Regents requested to deny proposed fee hike of $146

By VICKIE CHACHERE
State Press

TUCSON — Students from the state's three universities asked the Arizona Board of Regents Thursday to deny a board Finance Committee recommendation that would raise resident tuition by $146.

The pleas came on the eve of the board's final decision on tuition rates for the 1986-87 school year.

The board is scheduled to make a final decision at 10 a.m. today in the Junior Ballroom of the UA Student Union.

The decision will follow two months of review by the board on recommendations from the Presidents' Council and The Arizona Students Association.

ASA submitted a recommendation in September calling for a $35 to $50 increase over this year's $990 fee.

Less than 10 students approached the board, but about 60 students applauded often in support of the speakers.

ASU student Vickie Baldwin, who represented the Native American Students Association, said that if the board supports the increase, which would set resident tuition at $1,136 for 1986-87, minority students would suffer economic hardship.

Baldwin said many Native Americans attend ASU because of low tuition rates, and a substantial increase would force some students to leave the University.

"Increasing tuition is not really a benefit for students," she said.

Baldwin, who said she has provided housing for several Native American students who cannot finance both their educations and living expenses, said a tuition hike would necessitate additional financial aid for Native American students.

Dolores Carranza, the mother of two students at UA, requested the board to consider the financial strain tuition increases would place on parents.

Carranza said she and her husband provide some financial support for their sons, but both students are still required to work to meet education costs.

"As a parent, it disturbs me greatly that my sons and many other students will not be able to continue in their education because of monetary factors," she said. "Please remember the students when you make a decision on the tuition increase tomorrow."

A UA student, identified only as Nick, said the board should also consider the effects the increases would have on students who are financially independent of their parents.

"I don't think they owe me a college education," he said. "You are asking my parents to take care of me beyond the age of 18."

Regent William Reilly also advised the board to consider the question of financial aid availability and if it will offset the tuition increases.

"Financial aid is not a gift. It is something that is earned," Reilly said. "When you talk about financial aid being a great big ol' answer, remember it's not . . . an answer."

ASA members will also present a rebuttal to the Finance Committee recommendation today, including a projection showing tuition rates calculated under the council's recommendation would double in the next four years.

Developer declines candidacy in 1986

Will delay governorship quest because of friendship with Barr

By CARRI L. MITCHELL
State Press

Camelback Esplanade developer J. Fife Symington said Thursday that he had considered running for governor in 1986, but declined because of his friendship with possible candidate Burton Barr.

Symington, speaking to members of Alpha Kappa Psi, ASU's business fraternity, said his friendship with Barr, the House of Representatives' majority leader, and family concerns would prevent him from running.

"I've made my mind up to run someday, but now is not the time," he said.

Symington said contrary to his reputation, he did not come to Arizona to rape the land at 24th Street and Camelback Road.

He first came to Arizona in 1968 while he was in the Air Force, and two years later he went to Vietnam.

"I didn't like (being in Vietnam) too much and I thought, 'Gee, Arizona is a nice place,'" he said. "I went into real estate because, in such a broad business, I felt I could find a niche."

Symington said he has "always been in love" with the property where he has plans to build the Camelback Esplanade development.

"We like to build it right, lease it, and keep it for a long time," he said.

Esplanade is a 1.5-million-square-foot project which has five office buildings, a hotel and retail space.

Ground breaking of the first phase of the project is expected to take place at the beginning of the new year, and it will take 21 months to build, he said.

The complex was originally projected to be 20 stories high, but because of zoning rules in Phoenix, it has been reduced to 11 stories, Symington said.

"We knew we would have to lose to win," he said, adding that he had a mission to come to Phoenix and break the "narrow and unimaginative" zoning process.

The new project is designed as an urban village system, which creates a core area that will become the center of activity for surrounding communities.

Symington said the concept allows people who work in the facility to live in a nearby community so they do not have to commute long distances.

"It's Phoenix's answer to 30 years of neglect in transportation," he said.

Symington said the criticism that the project will increase traffic in an area already filled with problems has been "blown out of proportion."

He said traffic in the area surrounding 40th street and Thomas Road is already as heavy as the amount Esplanade is supposed to cause in 1990.

"There are many intersections worse than that (one)," he said.

Rajneesh transported to Oregon to face immigration indictments

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A federal prison plane carrying Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh hopped across the West on Thursday as the Indian guru continued his cross-country journey back to Oregon to face immigration charges.

The 53-year-old guru, whose sect claims 500,000 followers worldwide, was arrested Oct. 28 in Charlotte, N.C. in what federal authorities maintained was an attempt to flee to Bermuda. Rajneesh and six disciples had flown from the sect's central Oregon commune-city, Rajneeshpuram, on two Learjets.

Rajneesh and seven disciples face federal charges in Oregon accusing them of covering up sham marriages between some American followers and foreigners who came with him to the United States. The guru also is charged with lying to immigration officials to conceal his intent to remain permanently in the United States after he arrived in this country in 1981.

After spending three nights in Oklahoma City, Rajneesh, clad in a tan jumpsuit, boarded the federal Boeing 727 early Thursday along with 60 other prisoners.

The plane then made stops in Tucson and Phoenix and Long Beach, Calif. to drop off prisoners. The jet then headed for Vandenberg Air Force Base to deliver inmates to the federal prison at Lompoc, said Andy Richards at the Long Beach Airport tower.

Callers report bogus death threats against American captives in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An anonymous caller said Islamic Jihad extremists planned to kill their half-dozen American hostages Thursday, and a second caller claimed they were dead. But no bodies were found in the designated spot.

The captives were to be "executed" by firing squad because indirect negotiations with the United States had reached "a dead end," the first man said in a call to a Western news agency.

Since the calls could not be authenticated, it was impossible to determine whether they were a macabre hoax or simply part of a war of nerves being waged by the shadowy Shiite Moslem faction to pressure Washington into making a deal.

An unidentified representative of the news agency said Thursday's first call came at 7:15 a.m. (12:15 a.m. EST) from a man who, speaking in classical Arabic, declared the American hostages would be shot by a firing squad.

"We wish to tell America that the sad end of the American hostages will not be the last. We shall shake the earth at America's feet and the feet of its agents," the caller said.

He promised to call again at 1 p.m. local time to say where the bodies had been dumped. That call was never made. But another man, speaking colloquial Lebanese Arabic, called the agency at 10 a.m.

He said that "all the bodies of the Americans, including (diplomat William) Buckley's," had been dumped in the basement of the derelict, shell-pocked Coca-Cola factory in the Kola district of south Beirut.

Guerrillas free U.S. missionaries after month of jungle captivity

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Colombian leftist guerrillas freed two U.S. missionaries, including an American pilot, after holding them captive in the jungle for a month, police said Thursday.

They said pilot Stephen Estelle, of Douglas, and fellow missionaries Paul Timothy Cain and his wife Bonnie, of the New Tribes Mission, a Protestant group based in Sanford, Fla., had been held by a unit of the Colombian Revolutionary Armed Forces guerrilla group. The police spoke on the condition of anonymity.

The missionaries were reportedly in ill-health and would probably go back to the United States shortly, relatives of the Cains said earlier in Florida.

Relatives said earlier that Cain reportedly was suffering from malaria and his wife from diabetes.

Police of Meta Department (state) said the three were released Wednesday in Calamar, a small village in the Guaviare jungle, east of Colombia.

They were delivered to two members of a government peace commission and a local official. The two commission members — Communist leader Alberto Rojas Poyo and Carlos Morales, a university professor — negotiated the release.

The police said no ransom was paid.

Estelle, the Cains and Paul Dye, another pilot from Saginaw, Mich., were captured Oct. 5 at an airstrip at the village of Morichal Viejo in eastern Vaupes state. Dye later escaped.

Storm-swollen rivers kill 38 people in flooded Virginia, Washington

National Guardsmen patrolled flooded streets in Richmond, Va., on Thursday and monuments were sandbagged in the nation's capital as the crests of storm-swollen rivers surged eastward after destroying whole towns and killing at least 38 people.

Behind the crests, people returned to the ruins of communities across the western mid-Atlantic region, to begin rebuilding in the wake of deluges that left nearly 50 people missing.

The current crested at 24.2 feet at the Richmond water filtration plant, about five miles upstream from the city's center, where a sandbag dike 28 feet high protected the drinking water source, City Manager Manuel Dease said.

In Washington, spillover from the bulging Potomac River covered the plaza of the Jefferson Memorial, but had not come close to the steps leading to the statue in the domed, open-air structure.

The Potomac surpassed 7 feet in the morning and was expected to crest at 13 or 14 feet at 6 p.m. in the trendy Georgetown section.

Activist says AIDS death toll inaccurately low

By ED SCHUBERT
State Press

Although the official number of people who have died of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome in Arizona stands at 28, the true figure is 58, a gay rights activist said at a panel discussion Wednesday.

Bob Hegyi, founder of the Arizona AIDS Fund-Trust, said because the disease attacks the body's immune system, victims are often recorded as having died from other diseases.

"People don't die of AIDS, they die of something else," Hegyi said. "They died of a disease that was unexplainable, like tuberculosis or Valley fever."

Judith Curtis-Mardon, co-chair of the state chapter of National Organization for Women's Lesbian Rights Task Force, speaks about the need for lesbians to "join hands" with their "gay brothers."

Dr. Doug Campos-Outcalt, medical director of the Maricopa County Department of Health Services preventive services program, said the medical community has strict criteria for determining whether a patient has AIDS.

An individual must have been healthy before coming down with the symptoms, and his immune system must be completely "shot" before he is diagnosed as having AIDS. He said all AIDS sufferers do not meet these criteria.

Campos-Outcalt explained that most people who have the AIDS virus will not suffer from the disease.

"Sixty to 70 percent won't get sick at all," he said, while another 20 percent will suffer only minor symptoms. However, there is a 5 to 10 percent fatality rate for those with the virus.

'Gay men are becoming more responsible in their actions.'
— Kirk Baxter

He also said the disease is "not that communicable," and can only be acquired through intimate sexual contact and exposure to contaminated blood products.

"You don't get the disease from shaking hands," he said.

Hegyi said, "You are taking a risk if you have sex with more than one person," irrespective of whether one is homosexual, bisexual or heterosexual.

Gay activist Kirk Baxter, who also spoke at the program, said the AIDS danger had increased "responsibility on the part of our own community."

responsible in their actions," said Baxter, who is a board member of the National Gay Task Force.

Judith Curtis-Mardon, co-chair of the Lesbian Rights Task Force, said lesbian women have a moral obligation to support gay men in the face of anti-homosexual "hysteria" being fomented by the "religious right."

She said such hysteria is part of a "heterosexist plot to oppress us out of existence."

"It's extremely important for the lesbian community to be hugging our gay brothers," she said.

Although some have taken the position that "lesbians don't have AIDS, so it's not our problem," Curtis-Mardon said, "I'm happy to say that overall that position is fading."

The panel discussion was sponsored by ASU-American Federation of Teachers and University Employees and the Lesbian and Gay Academic Union.

Doctor says fear of catching fatal disease is unwarranted

By COLLEEN MOORE
State Press

The risk of catching Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) is not high enough to justify the recent hysteria over the disease, said the medical director of United Blood Services of Arizona.

Dr. Jim Olive, who is also vice president of Medical Technical Operation of Blood Systems Inc., said, "People should be aware of the precautions to take to avoid the disease, but not be overwhelmed by fear."

Efforts by the Student Health Center to educate people about AIDS will be useful in easing panic and fear, he said.

Olive was on campus Wednesday and spoke to about 30 people in a speech sponsored by Student Health Advisory Committee, Women's Services and Associated Students of ASU.

"I think education is always a good tool to relieve fear. It's important to understand something in order to not be afraid of it."

Olive said AIDS is classified as a venereal disease and the fatality rate of the disease is 100 percent.

"We have indications that the disease is starting to plateau. The number of people getting it is going up, but not as fast as it once was," he said.

"It's not galloping across the country, but it's running very fast."

"As time goes on, I think we will find a cure and a method of treatment. The time frame? I have no idea... it could take 20 years," he said.

Olive said an accurate count of how many U.S. citizens are carrying the virus is not available, but he cited statistics from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

"It could be 100,000. The latest, most popular figure is one million. These numbers are coming from projections based on how many people currently have the disease, not hard evidence," he said.

Olive said that three to five percent of people who carry the AIDS virus will eventually develop the disease, but that some people have estimated that figure to be as high as 20 percent.

People do not risk contracting AIDS from casual daily contacts, or from donating blood. The risk of getting AIDS from a blood transfusion is "very small" — anywhere from one in 20,000 to one in 40,000.

"You have to work like hell to catch the virus," he said.

"The U.S. has more reported cases of AIDS than anywhere else in the world," he said. About 14,000 cases have been diagnosed in this country.

The virus apparently originated in monkeys in Central Africa during the 1960s, before being contracted by people in that country and spreading to humans in Europe, Latin America, the Caribbean and the United States, he said.

"Interestingly enough, we're seeing very little of the disease in the Orient," he said.

Olive said that U.S. Orientals who are in the high-risk groups (homosexuals, drug abusers and hemophiliacs) seem to have a slightly lower incidence of the disease than the norm.

Olive said he does not support suggestions that a national registry be compiled to list people who have been tested and shown to be carrying the virus.

Children with AIDS should be allowed to attend school, "as long as they are in control of body functions, and are of normal intelligence and ability," he said.

In regard to a controversial new AIDS treatment developed by the Louis Pasteur Institute in France, Olive said: "I think it's interesting but probably premature. The data isn't there to support it."

The treatment is cyclosporine, an anti-rejection drug normally used for organ transplant patients, which has recently been used to diminish the symptoms of six to eight AIDS patients, he said.

Administration enacts the acts it condemns

Reed Irvine, Director of Accuracy in Academia, will speak at 10 a.m. today in the MU Pima Room. He was invited to ASU by the Political Union and the Graduate Student Association, and is speaking free of charge.

It has come to the attention of the State Press that ASASU President Dave Varnell and Political Union Director Jim Heath have received harassing phone calls and other problems due to their decision to bring Irvine to campus.

Because of pressure from several sources, including some ASU administrators, Irvine was not invited to speak at next Wednesday's forum on media bias, a subject he is quite interested in, being president of Accuracy in Media.

By its attempts to prevent Irvine's appearance, the ASU administration is guilty of the same act of censorship for which it has criticized AIA. The administration has accused AIA of advocating censorship in the classroom, and condemned the group. By barring Irvine's appearance at ASU, the administration itself would be hypocritically practicing its own form of censorship.

Free speech in the classroom should rightly be subject to certain minimum standards of quality and truth. Free speech in a public address should be subject to similar standards. It is the place of the ASU administration to see to the enforcement of these standards in the classroom, but not in a public forum, on or off the ASU campus.

The theme of the lecture series is "Celebrating Political Diversity." Diversity applies equally to conservative and liberal speakers. Banning a particular speaker because of his political bias cannot and should not be allowed.

Irvine's organization is of great interest to the campus population because of its recent actions regarding ASU Political Science Professor Mark Reader. Thus, it is nearly inconceivable that he would not be allowed to speak here.

The ASU Administration should be condemned for its cowardly attempt to infringe on Irvine's right to speak at ASU. Certain administrators have shown themselves no more deserving of respect than the very organization which they condemn.

Americans undereducated

Editor:

I am surprised when many Americans do not know where Malaysia is. I have a hard time explaining to them about Malaysia. It is not fair that they only know Penang, which is a state in Malaysia, without having any knowledge about the country herself.

Although Malaysia is only a small country, most of the Malaysians do have a wide knowledge about others. We do not only learn about the developed countries like the United States, but also other developing countries such as Africa and Sri Lanka.

Even if the United States is well known all over the world, that does not mean that the Americans do not need to know about other countries. I think that Americans will be more respected if they could stop being so ignorant and try to get more information about others.

One way to learn is to take extra classes such as World Geography that are widely offered at the universities. The library is also a good place to find the information about other countries in the world. Having some knowledge about others is beneficial. It will be more interesting to watch the news about other countries on the television, if we have some knowledge about those countries.

Pornography promotes willingness to commit violent acts

Editor:

Thank you for the well-written article concerning our Halloween protest linking the murder of nine million women as witches during the Middle Ages with the present-day torture of women glorified in pornography. Women Take Back the Night appreciates the professional attitude and abilities of reporter Ed Schubert.

An article found on the third page of that same day's State Press, "Skin: Nude Centerfolds may Distort Men's Perception of Women," coincidentally and partially answered one of the reporter's questions. So-called "soft-core" pornography is degrading and threatening to women, if only to a lesser extent than hard-core porn. Dr. Kendrick's study found that instead of adding "spice and greater sexual activity to relationships," as has been believed by some, men's use of porn had a detrimental effect of their lover relationships with women. They have a tendency to find their mates less attractive" and "rated themselves as being less in love with their mates after exposure to centerfolds."

In 1970 the President's Commission on Obscenity and Pornography found no link between porn and violence. They in fact suggested that porn had the cathartic effect of reducing violence. New research dramatically disputes this questionable model and establishes a direct link between porn and the attitudes of men toward victims of male violence as well as men's willingness to commit violence against women. Recent studies by Donnerstein, Feschbach, and Malamuth found that men's exposure to violent sex films increased their willingness to react violently and to inflict pain upon women. Men exposed to violent porn were found more likely to be sexually aroused by the idea of rape and less sympathetic to rape victims.

This research is proving what many women have known all along: that pornography is a threat to women's existence.

All Christian miracles contradictory to 'law of identity'

Editor:

This is in response to the letter of Lundquist and Myers in the Oct. 22 issue of the State Press. In it, they claim that there is evidence to support the claims of Christianity, and in particular, the resurrection of Christ. They claim that this supposed event is open to the same rigorous scrutiny as any other historical event. Sure it is, but they ignore one crucial thing. No one has to refer to historical documents to determine whether such events could have happened; one can refer directly to reality, and in particular, the law of identity (things are what they are). All miracles contradict the law of identity, and that is why such supposed events are called miracles, and precisely why they are impossible. The law of identity can be verified by simple experiments. For instance, by the nature of the size and speed of cars traveling on the highway, and by the nature of the human body, if one stands in the middle of the highway and gets run over, one will most likely be killed. Cars are cars, and men are men, and in collisions between the two, men are usually worse off. If one does not believe this, one can try it and find out. I hope that most people have enough common sense never to try this. However, whenever one chooses to abandon reason in the face of any question or dilemma, the consequences can be just as disastrous.

Finally, in the last paragraph, they challenge everyone to check out the facts for themselves. Yes, check out the facts. It is not possible for a man to be anything but a man, even if he is Jesus Christ.

If anyone is really interested in a rational philosophy, I suggest that he look into Objectivism, founded by Ayn Rand. Her work is available in many bookstores.

CISPES member's attack on AI condemned

Editor:

I am troubled by the letter on Nov. 1 by CISPES member Phil Rosen attempting to discredit Amnesty International by personally attacking one of the members of our campus chapter. Our small group diligently adheres to Amnesty International's basic philosophy of concern for human rights regardless of which political, social, economic, or religious context they occur in. A partial list of countries AI has approached this year regarding abuses includes Chile, Namibia, Peru, the Soviet Union, Guatemala, Poland, South Africa, El Salvador, and Haiti.

Most of the members of our local AI group, Mr. Martinez included, are concerned over what we believe to be the frequent tendency of many partisan, politically active organizations to overlook and/or rationalize the human rights violations in countries whose policies or ideologies they support. We feel no government, be it leftist or rightist, should be exempt from scrutiny; the only "dogma" we follow is one of political neutrality and attention to human rights. We welcome any skeptical or interested individuals to join our open meetings in the MU on Thursdays at 2 p.m.

Sticks and stones are breaking people's bones, let's not waste time calling names.

Ex-patrolwoman back for Homecoming; offers students opportunity for revenge

By ROB KELTON
State Press

Just when you thought it was safe to bicycle in restricted areas, Deanna Betar, ASU's ex-bicycle patrolwoman, is back.

But her return on Nov. 15 will not entail ticketing bicyclists. Instead she will give former offenders a chance to even the score.

Betar will be in a dunking booth as part of the 1985 Homecoming Week celebrations which begin Sunday.

"I really think we could fund Homecoming on this event," said James Emmelkamp, Associated Students of ASU activities vice-president.

Students, or interested persons, can pay $1 for a shot at the policewoman turned insurance financial planner.

Homecoming events will start Sunday with the first ASU Homecoming Tennis Classic Tournament to be held at the Apache and Whiteman tennis courts.

The kick-off ceremony, where the Homecoming King and Queen will be announced, will take place Tuesday.

The first 10K and One Mile Fun Run, featuring KUPD's Dave Pratt running a mile clad only in his red underwear, will take place before the Homecoming Parade on Saturday, Nov. 16.

Walter Cronkite, the grand marshal of the parade, will head up the line of floats that starts on McAllister Avenue and ends on Mill Avenue behind Gammage Center.

"I think we have 10 to 15 floats entered, but we are accepting applications all the way until parade day," Emmelkamp said. "There is an apathetic attitude on this campus, but we're trying to change it with some tradition."

A pep rally/bonfire on Saturday Nov. 16 in the river bed behind Sun Devil Stadium will also be included for the first time this year, Emmelkamp said.

Store, lock bicycles properly, says Mother

Ask
Mother
Theresa

Dear Mother Theresa:

Can you tell me why so many ASU students use a quality lock on their bike, but don't bother to lock it to a fixed object?

Can you tell me why those who lock it to a fixed object often lock it through the front wheel instead of the frame?

Can you tell me why those who can't find a fixed object or a bike rack near the entrance to their building won't walk a few yards around the corner, where they'll likely find one?

I can't fathom why it's so hard to get people to take easy precautions in order to eliminate the bike thefts which are so easy to prevent.

Frustratedly,
Bill Wright
ASUDPS

Bicycle Education and Safety Team

Dear Frustrated:

I can sympathize with your feelings. It is sad indeed that victims often ignore a few simple precautions that would prevent people from losing what is often their only form of transportation — their bicycle.

Locking a bicycle to itself may indeed keep a thief from riding away on it, but it never stops him from simply picking up the bike and putting it in a van.

If you only lock the front wheel the thief unbolts the wheel and takes the rest away.

Invest $20 in a kryptonite or Cytadel lock and lock the frame of the bicycle to a rack. The bicycle will not be damaged if you back the bicycle into the rack and lock up the main frame.

If you use a kryptonite or Cytadel properly (locking the main frame) and you still lose your bike, the lock companies will give you a refund. Depending on the make of the bike and lock, you can collect up to $350.

Dear Mother Theresa:

My problem will sound like a strange one. I am 19, a successful student and part-time career woman. I am considered an attractive female by both men and women. However, my mother has never considered me an attractive person.

She has always loved blond, blue-eyed "California-type" women. Recently she flew in from New Jersey to visit me. I took her for a walk around campus and she spent all her time commenting on the beauty of blond co-eds. I felt like crying and screaming for her approval. At the same time, I felt ashamed for feeling this way.

Mother Theresa, I know, logically, that I am an attractive girl. I am five feet, four inches tall and weigh 115 pounds. I have several "boyfriends" whom I date. Also, men notice me on campus and elsewhere. I have one brother who is also dark, but his looks don't seem to matter to her.

I can't help feeling ugly and inadequate because of my mother's remarks. She has never come right out and said "you're ugly" or anything like that. Still, I'm dying for her to admire my looks and compliment me on them. Am I wrong or is she?

Brunette and Bummed,
Engineering

Dear B.B.:

I certainly feel your mother is wrong in this matter. How sad that you've gone through so many years feeling plain or downright ugly because of her insensitive attitude.

While everyone is entitled to their opinion about what is "attractive," and those opinions are many and varied, your mother should be able to muster the compassion to give you some support and praise about your appearance.

The important thing is that you have not let this problem get you down to where it affects your lifestyle. You have enough self-confidence to date and stay in shape, so at least your self image has not been completely sabotaged.

I agree with some friends around the office who suggested that you take a good look at some established brunette beauties.

Can you honestly tell yourself (or can your mother) that Jaclyn Smith, Diane Carroll and Audrey Hepburn are homely people?

It may not work, but I urge you to take a chance and give Mom a call, or drop her a line explaining your feelings.

You may be surprised to find that she took for granted the fact she honestly considers you attractive. If not, then give up waiting for her approval.

It is abnormal and wrong for a mother to not find her child beautiful. And remember, though it may sound corny, it is still true that it's what's on the inside that counts.

Some un-asked-for advice from Mom Theresa:

Recently people have been parking bicycles on the handicapped ramp behind the MU. Besides the inconvenience to the handicapped, those bikes can be legally impounded. Don't be a jerk — park your bike in a proper rack.

police report

University police reported the following incidents in the 24-hour period ending at 6:30 a.m. Thursday:

•A student told police a strange man tried to start a conversation with her Wednesday morning, police said.

The woman allegedly has seen the man staring at her numerous times in various areas of the MU and the Business Building in the last year and a half.

The man is described as a Caucasian in his late 20s. He is approximately 6-foot-2, 185 pounds with shoulder-length brown hair. He was wearing a red sweatshirt and cream-colored pants.

•A student's black leather wallet was stolen from the steps of the Nursing Building sometime Wednesday morning, police said.

The owner told police she put the wallet down and left it unattended for an indefinite period of time.

When she went back to look for it the wallet was missing.

A check-cashing department called the victim later that day and told her another woman had attempted to cash a check in the victim's name, but was refused because her identification did not match.

Total value of the theft was estimated at $100.

•A burgundy Murray cruiser bicycle valued at $80 was stolen from behind the Physical Science West Building sometime between Tuesday Oct. 29, and Monday, police said.

The owner told police she had locked the bicycle to itself. Later that day she realized she had lost the key to the bicycle.

When she returned to the area Monday the bicycle was gone.

•A staff member's blue Schwinn 10-speed bicycle was damaged while parked in the bicycle racks outside the motor pool sometime Wednesday evening, police said.

The owner told police he had locked his bicycle to the rack and left to attend to business on campus.

When he returned he found the front wheel was bent.

Because of smudge marks on the bicycle, police believe a car possibly ran into it while backing out of the motor pool area.

Damages were estimated at $30.

U.S. Census Bureau: college degrees worth more now than in '60s

By the College Press Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — College degrees are worth more to male students now than at any time since the 1960s, the authors of a new U.S. Census Bureau study said.

The study, by analysts in the bureau's department for Demographic Studies, said that as of 1983, male college graduates could expect to earn 39 percent more than men who quit school after high school.

Male college students' economic edge over high school grads declined during the 1970s. In 1969, male college grads made 28 percent more than high school grads. In 1979, the difference was 21 percent.

By 1981, the decline had been reversed. The economic edge was 34 percent that year.

The study does not include figures for female college students.

The bureau's analysts attribute the decline and subsequent increase in the value of a degree to the entrance and passage of the "Baby Boom" generation through college.

The larger the college graduating class, the less valuable a college degree is in the marketplace.

Among other conclusions, the analysts found:

- Even the states with low levels of educational attainment are improving. In 1950, 19 percent of South Carolina's adults had graduated from college, compared to 49 percent of Utah's. By 1980, the extremes were represented by Kentucky (53 percent) and Alaska (83 percent).
- Black students' graduation rate, which was 65 percent of that of whites in 1940, improved to 96 percent by 1980.
- Thirty-two percent of the American population has at least some college education. By comparison, 17 percent of East Germany's, 16 percent of Sweden's, and seven percent of Hungary's population have some higher education.

Survey shows public supports student aid budget cuts

By the College Press Service

NEW YORK — Fewer Americans favor letting middle-income students take out Guaranteed Student Loans, a recent survey shows.

Public support for the idea has been dwindling since 1983.

The survey, released Oct. 21 in conjunction with National Higher Education Week, shows that of 1,000 people polled by telephone early this fall, 40 percent strongly supported the government's loan program for middle-income students.

That's down from a 46 percent rate last year, and 51 percent in 1983.

The poll, conducted by the New York-based Opinion Research Corporation for two higher education organizations, reveals a decline in support for federal financial aid programs in other ways as well.

Two years ago, for example, 63 percent of those polled supported increasing aid to financially needy college students.

Moreover, citizens thought aid to poor students was the third most important of 14 federal aid programs.

This fall, however, only 53 percent supported increasing aid to poor students, demonstrating it to the seventh-most-important program.

They considered government financing for medical research, medical care for the aged, overall aid to higher education, aid to agriculture, aid to primary and secondary education and funds to clean up the environment more deserving of budget hikes than aid to poor students.

The survey appears to reflect increasing public support for some of the student aid budget cuts proposed for the past several years by the Reagan administration.

The Opinion Research survey does not indicate why public support for federal aid programs is declining.

But the survey does show far more people believe the quality of higher education is improving (44 percent) than believe it is declining (16 percent).

Paradoxically, support for federal aid programs is declining even though seven of 10 respondents say they would be unable to afford a college education without low-interest loans or grants, and three of four expect the cost of college to be beyond the reach of most Americans in the foreseeable future.

Other survey results:

•A substantial majority favors retaining the current tax deduction for contributions to charities and educational institutions. The administration has proposed curtailing the education in its tax reform package.

•More Americans than ever (40 percent) intend or hope to go to college, a four percent increase over last year, and a 16 percent jump over 1982.

Officials at Michigan State say African students 'spied' on

By National On-Campus Report

Agents of the South African government have been observing South African students attending Michigan State University.

According to officials at the university, the agents have been using fear tactics to discourage the students from participating in anti-apartheid protests.

Sources also said the agents are disrupting meetings of MSU's South African Liberation Committee.

While the offices of the president and vice president and MSU's Department of Public Safety said they are unaware of any South African agents on campus, the surveillance is confirmed by faculty and administrators from MSU's African Studies Center, and by the MSU intramural sports director.

"I suppose you could call them spies," said the sports director. "Sympathizers may be more accurate."

African Studies officials tell of a South African student who, after returning to his country, was confronted by government officials with pictures of his East Lansing apartment walls decorated with a poster of jailed black African leader Nelson Mandela. South Africa then denied the student the research opportunity needed to finish his doctoral dissertation.

"We don't know how it occurs," one official said, speculating that the surveillance may have been carried out by fellow South African students at MSU, South African agents, or "the FBI or some other U.S. security agency."

Artie Miller, a member of the student South African Liberation Committee, said South African agents gather information on student anti-apartheid groups and try to "subvert their efforts."

A new student group at Cornell University is working to eliminate the Greek system at that school.

People for the Elimination of the Greek System (PEGS) members describe themselves as dedicated to stimulating discussion, researching the Greek system's theory and practice and lobbying and acting to sever the school's ties with what they believe are "racist, sexist, classist and homophobic institutions."

"I am offended that my tuition goes toward (the Greek system) and I don't have a chance to participate," said Daniel Carew, a Cornell senior and organizer of PEGS. "No group should have its own dean. The union of fraternities and the university never should have happened in the beginning."

"I honestly wish (PEGS) would work with us," said John Craik, Interfraternity Council president. "I don't think they really know the Greek system and the Greek system doesn't know them, and that's too bad."

Dean of Students David Drinkwater said because fraternities and sororities provide residence for many students, Cornell is interested in the physical conditions of the houses, the behavior of members of the Greek system and the study environment the houses provide.

"I think it's naive to believe the university can back out of that responsibility," he said.

Cornell students lobby for Greek system's end

He was offered the lead in Steven Spielberg's "Back to the Future," but the part went to another Canadian, Michael J. Fox.

Corey Hart's not hurting though. He has racked up more than $2 million in album sales to date and last month, Hart sold out a cross-Canada arena tour including one 55,000 seat grandstand in a matter of hours.

Pretty good for a 23-year-old. Hart will be at Gammage Center on Nov. 25 at 8 p.m. with songs including "I Wear My Sunglasses at Night" and "Never Surrender."

Tickets, at $12.50, are available at Gammage and Diamond's box offices.

Some fans who waited at the MU Wednesday for Alabama tickets were just a little upset when the MU ticket office computer system went down 20 minutes after the tickets went on sale.

UAC will play home (down home) to the country group on Nov. 24. Tickets, at $15.50, are available at ASU, Gammage and Diamond's outlets.

The ASU Alabama show will be in-the-round and special "gold circle" tickets are $47.50.

Phoenix is the place and yes, you too, can be in a big-time movie to be released in this summer. It's called American Anthem, starring Olympic gold-medalist Mitch Gaylord and Janet ("The Flamingo Kid") Jones.

The filmmakers have chosen Phoenix for the staging, on Nov. 8-16 (excluding Nov. 10), of a gymnastic competition which will serve as the "Rocky vs. Apollo"-type climax.

To be a star: Come to Phoenix Union High School, 7th Street and Van Buren Avenue, in bright colors (especially red, purple, orange and yellow) at 8:45 a.m. on production days.

Absolutely, the film's producers say, don't wear green or blue. Breakfast is on them, they promise.

You are on "z air." Dr. Ruth Westheimer, author of "Good Sex," will appear at the Celebrity Theatre on Nov. 22. Look for an upcoming State Press interview with the doctor.

Tickets, at $10, are available at Diamond's outlets and the Celebrity Theatre, 440 N. 32nd St. (one mile south of McDowell Road).

The 34th annual BMI (Broadcast Music, Inc.) Awards to Student Composers competition will award $15,000 to young composers in a contest designed to give cash prizes to aid in obtaining or continuing a musical education.

Contestants must be under 26 years old on Dec. 31, 1985. There are no limitations as to instrumentation, stylistic consideration or length of work submitted.

You may enter only one composition. The deadline for entering is Feb. 18, 1986.

For more information, write: Director, BMI Awards to Student Composers, 320 W. 57th St., New York, N.Y., 10019.

The Lyric Opera Theatre will present Gilbert and Sullivan's classic The Mikado in the Music Theater Nov. 15-16, Nov. 20 and Nov. 22-24. Curtain times are 8 p.m., except for the Nov. 24 performance, which is at 7 p.m.

Tickets, at $9.50, $5 for students and children under 12, are available at Gammage and Diamond's outlets and at the Music Theater on performance nights.

Legendary silent film star Lillian Gish will appear on stage at Gammage Center as well-known motion picture personalities join in the American Film Institute's Salute to Lillian Gish at 8 p.m. Nov. 15.

Tickets, available at Gammage and Diamond's box offices, are $25.

The Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem are coming to Gammage to play Irish folk songs.

No blarney

Immortal Irish folk stars hit Gammage

By JASON C.F.W. BROCK
State Press

Yes, it is true. Gammage Center will become the very center of the universe on the night of Nov. 14, 1985.

Inconceivable as it may seem, the world renowned CLANCY BROTHERS & TOMMY MAKEM are coming to Gammage to play Irish folk songs.

As soon as Tommy Makem says "hello" in a State Press telephone interview, it is time to plug the I.T. (Irish Translator) into the phone.

Then, what does every person who interviews folk singers do? Why, ask them about what they think about the Irish Republican Army, of course.

Makem: "Well, if you were to ask all four of us (he and the Clancy Brothers), we would probably give you four different answers."

State Press: "But Tommy, we're asking for yours."
Makem: "Do you mean what they stand for or what they have done?"

State Press: "However you want to answer."
Makem: "I'm for the unification of Ireland because we have lived through 800 years of occupation and trouble."

State Press: "Thanks for answering such a touchy question."

There is nothing like putting the interviewee on the defensive.

Among other things, Makem wanted to discuss the Clancy Brother's past.

From this point on, read with an Irish accent.

"We all started out in theatre in New York in the early '50s. Tom Clancy was an actor on Broadway while Liam Clancy and I were working off Broadway for about $45 a week.

"Patty Clancy, on the other hand, was working in television and founded Tradition Records.

Patty's record company highlighted "ethnic" music from many different cultures, Makem said.

"In 1956, it all started to come together. We made our first record. We managed to swing a job playing at a very popular, up-beat night club in Greenwich Village. While playing there, we were discovered by a talent scout from the 'Ed Sullivan Show.'

"Just minutes before we were to go on, Tom Clancy got a bloody nose and we were afraid that he was going to bleed all over the white sweater he was wearing.

"We all were wearing white sweaters and thought it would be a shame to have to change, so we got the bleedin' stopped and went on. After that show, sweater sales went up 700 percent and those white sweaters soon became known as the Clancy/Makem sweater."

The new album is called "Reunion," Makem said. He detailed the group's break-up in the '60s when he decided to pursue a solo career.

But, what he said was so confusing that even after listening to the tape recorded conversation several times, it's still hard to understand what happened.

Also, listening to "Reunion," it is necessary to say that many of the lyrics in their songs are not the most intelligent. For example, one of the songs on Side One must have used the word "bloody" at least 485,327 times.

But, this is just an approximate guess. 'Tis true a wee bit monotonous.

'Tis a little mean to say this, yet 'tis somewhat justified.

Makem said that this 'tis the last tour. The group will perform in 28 cities in 30 days.

Tickets for the ASU performance, at $11.50 and $10.50, are available at Gammage and Diamond's outlets.

'That's Then' 'This Is Now' ups Emilio from pack

By CINDY PEARLMAN
State Press

This is Mark (Emilio Estevez) Jennings. Think of your average high school student who is smart-talking, wise-cracking, James Dean-inspired and generally penitentiary bound.

Mark is simply outstanding in this capacity.

He gets stopped for speeding in a stolen vehicle. He says, "Let's move, Dude," to his friend, Bryon. "Well . . ." says Bryon, who is your general poor, unsure, yet all-American type. "Check it out," says Mark and he laughs while speeding away.

This is Mark.

He's in a little hospital diner. "Do you want fries?" says the waitress. "Did I ask for fries?" says Mark.

This is Mark, too.

He gets a friend of his named Angela drunk and she passes out. Then, Mark takes out a pair of scissors and crops Angela's long black hair in retaliation for . . . life and things in general.

And this is Bryon (Craig Sheffer) Douglas. He's the nice kid who just has horrible taste in the people he pals around with. But, he treats Mark like a brother and Mark lives in Bryon's home, welcomed in by Mrs. Douglas after the death of his parents nine years ago.

This is Bryon.

One night he and Mark decide to go to their friend Charlie's bar to hustle pool at Mark's suggestion. Charlie, who is genuinely concerned about his two young friends, is worried when the two hustle a pair of older players who incidentally each weigh about twice as much as Mark and Bryon put together.

When the bar closes, Mark and Bryon are confronted outside at gunpoint by the unhappy large pool players. Charlie is killed.

And Bryon is scarred.

This is Bryon.

He likes Cathy (Kim Delaney) and he asks her for a date to the Emilio Estevez, right, and Craig Sheffer steal a car in high school dance.

Well, this intrudes in Mark and Bryon's friendship, so Mark eventually gets his revenge by turning Cathy's younger brother into a 12-year-old junkie.

And Bryon is scarred.

This is "That Was Then . . . This Is Now," a movie based on the popular teen novel by S. E. Hinton. Is it a break from the standard sex, drugs and rock 'n' roll teen films like it claims to be?

Well, the drugs seem to be free-flowing enough, but for once, the kids on drugs are actually messed up and don't get up in the morning and go to school.

The rock 'n' roll is there and loud and unimportant.

And the sex is tasteful. It's actually based on a relationship between Bryon and Cathy who are both portrayed by ex-soap stars who are well-versed in the art of tasteful clinches.

'Dance' executes England killings

By COLLEEN MOORE
State Press

Moviegoers who are considering whether to see the new British film, "Dance With a Stranger," are taking a chance.

Those who decide to gamble and see the film are bound to have mixed reactions to an impressively acted but tedious movie.

They might die from simultaneous boredom and fascination as the actors do an awe-inspiring job of portraying complex characters with shallow motivations.

The film was inspired by the life of Ruth Ellis, the last woman to be executed in England. Ellis, who was hung in 1955, was convicted of the fatal shooting of her ex-lover.

The title comes from Ellis having danced with strangers in the drinking club where she worked as a hostess. One of those strangers is David Blakely, a smooth-talking race car driver. Ellis and Blakely begin an affair on the very night they meet.

As the film progresses, the plot centers around the ups and downs of Ellis' relationships with Blakely and the kind but bland Desmond Cussen. Ellis is at the heart of a love triangle, as she betrays Cussen by being unfaithful, and masochistically endures Blakely's endless abuse.

Blakely beats Ellis sadistically. Ellis betrays both men. All three keep coming back for more.

Miranda Richardson's meticulous performance as Ellis is foremost in the film, and acting aficionados won't want to miss this movie for that reason alone.

Can this airbrushed picture of three neurotic people be true in spirit? Friends and colleagues of Blakely have reportedly charged that Richardson's Ellis is classier and cleaner than the real Ellis actually was.

Because the movie never sufficiently explains what makes these people behave so madly, the movie seems much longer than it actually is.

Undoubtedly, many people will leave the theater feeling as if they have been imprisoned for three hours.

This is a film about the frustration that led one woman to commit murder.

But it's depressing to watch such sickness.

Which leaves Estevez. This is his screenplay and his movie. He has the one-liners, and too many of them for an actor who seems at his best as an ensemble player. Eddie Murphy he's not. And much of Mark's obnoxiousness and spitefulness simply just isn't entertaining.

Estevez sits in Bryon's room in the rough East-side Minneapolis neighborhood and explains that he is like this because he had a lousy childhood.

It's raining out and the water washing down the window puts tears in Estevez' eyes (a great effect — the best part of the whole movie).

"Why don't you grow up, man?" Bryon demands and he talks of happier times when their actions were street pranks and not the thing reformatory sentences are made of.

Estevez looks smack into the camera. "That was then . . . this is now," he says.

Concert at bandfield to feature Busboys

The Busboys, a Los Angeles-based band which has been featured in movies, will appear in concert at ASU's bandfield on Nov. 14 at 7:30 p.m.

The Busboys formed in Los Angeles five years ago during the last great renaissance of Los Angeles bands which produced the Motels, Missing Persons and the Plimsouls.

Their first album, released in 1980, called "Minimum Wage Rock and Roll," launched them toward critical acclaim for their music's social commentary and their wild theatrics on stage.

Never before had there been a band on the threshold of pop music stardom composed of five blacks and one Chicano.

Concurrent with their first album, the Busboys went on tour as a national headliner in clubs and colleges, supported by well-timed appearances on television shows.

Their popularity continued to grow through 1981 and in 1982 they released their second album, "American Worker."

Also to their credit is their now-famous appearance in the movie "48 hrs."

In the fall of 1982, the group toured East Coast arenas and played one week at Radio City Music Hall with Linda Ronstadt.

In 1983, the Busboys became a working band on the road touring for two months with the Stray Cats.

To further their movie career, they recorded "Cleanin' Up the Town" for the soundtrack album "Ghostbusters," which went double platinum.

Opening for the Busboys on Nov. 14 will be Shi Guise, featuring Jeff Hildebrand, an ASU business student, as the group's lead singer.

Also performing will be Bang Bang, the opening group for Cyndi Lauper's UAC date last fall.

Tickets for the show are $4 and can be purchased at the ASU box offices and all Diamond's outlets.

Bits and Pizzas offers unique, succulent brand of Italian pie

By PATRICK J. KUCERA
State Press

In reviewing little bistros, my rule is to try the various cuisines available within a reasonable distance of campus.

However, every rule has an exception. So when ASU students frequent a more distant restaurant, it is considered fair game for my taste buds.

Bits and Pizzas, 3030 N. 68th St. in Scottsdale, is a quaint pizza parlor that tends to attract many ASU students for weekend splurges.

One night, my guest and I opted to have a pizza after an otherwise normal night at the newspaper.

We called the restaurant at about 10:15 p.m. to make sure it was open. It was — until 10:45 p.m.

We were off to the races.

When we arrived the place was vacant except for the waitress, a cook and someone's abandoned glass of Coke.

The atmosphere was very comfortable and relaxing with booths, tables and hanging plants all around.

It is easy to understand why many ASU students have taken a liking to this fine establishment.

After we were seated, I scanned the menu. It included not only a variety of pizza, but spaghetti and other Italian dishes.

I suggested the medium-sized pepperoni pizza. My cohort agreed. I thought a test of the salad was also in order.

Within minutes, my salad and drink were brought, accompanied by breadsticks, saltine crackers and butter.

The lettuce was fresh and the dressing was not overpowering as some Italian dressings can be.

About 10 minutes later, our pizza arrived. We should have ordered the small.

The deep-pan pizza (the only kind they serve) was unique because it had the pepperoni on top of the cheese and on top of that were pieces of chopped, cooked tomatoes.

I had never had pizza like this before, but I was going to remain objective.

After one slice, I was hooked. The crust was out of this world. It was crunchy, flaky, garlicky and buttery.

It was, without a doubt, the best pizza crust I have ever had.

The toppings on the pizza were a great complement to the crust as the tomato sauce hinted of oregano, basil, bay and rosemary. I was surprised by the use of the rosemary because an overwhelming majority of Italian restaurants seem to shy away from using additional herbs and spices.

The cheese was plentiful and sealed the pizza.

The only complaint I had about my meal was that after two slices and a small salad, I was full. I wanted to have another piece.

My guest commented that he enjoyed the pizza.

We ate half of it and took the rest home for breakfast.

After we finished, the bill arrived. I expected the worst, but I was wrong.

Our medium-sized pepperoni pizza, salad and two large drinks cost us $10.96.

This was undoubtedly some of the best pizza I have had in a long time.

Devils, Huskies patch up before showdown

By JERRY BROWN
State Press

Who is in? Who is out? Who knows?

Much of the talk surrounding Saturday afternoon's football showdown between ASU and the University of Washington at Sun Devil Stadium has centered on injured players who may not play in the game.

Both Washington coach Don James and ASU's John Cooper have more than mentioned the list of bumps and bruises their respective teams have accumulated. And both lists are lengthy.

Defensive tackle Reggie Rogers leads the Washington pass rush. Rogers was moved from linebacker during the off-season.

The Huskies will be without offensive guard Tim Burnham (ankle) and offensive tackle Dennis Soldat (knee). They may have to add fullback Rick Fenney (hamstring) to that group by game time.

"We won't know on him until we leave Friday," James said. "He's a good player when he's healthy, but he hasn't been healthy much."

Not one to be upstaged, Cooper read his injury list at Tuesday's media luncheon. It lasted longer than the roast beef on the plates of the reporters.

"I'm not feeling sorry for Don James," Cooper said. "This is football. That's the nature of the game."

The Sun Devils' list begins with 1,000-yard rusher Darryl Clack, who has missed all but three of ASU's games this season with a stress fracture of the right fibula in his lower leg. He is listed as doubtful for this weekend.

'The injury to Darryl Clack is probably the most important injury to anyone in the conference this season ...'

— John Cooper

Clack practiced in pads this week for the first time since the injury and ran the 40-yard dash for Cooper Monday. His 4.79-second finish is about four-tenths of a second slower than his normal time.

"The injury to Darryl Clack is probably the most important injury to anyone in the conference this season from the standpoint of what he means to our team," Cooper said. "We've really missed him."

The list of Devils who will miss the game (receiver Ron Simone and defensive back Vince Adams) is not as long as the list of players playing with pain. Quarterback Jeff Van Raaphorst (fingers), center Kevin Thomas (thigh), receiver Aaron Cox (finger), nose guard Dan Saleaumua (leg) and linebackers Greg Battle (back) and John Knight (hand) are among the walking wounded.

"Other than that, we're not in bad shape," Cooper said.

The ASU offense, which has struggled in wins over Washington State and California, will face a very strong Washington defense. Tackle Reggie Rogers leads the Husky pass rush. The 6-foot-7, 248-pound Rogers moved from linebacker to the line this year, but senior All-American candidate Joe Kelly (151 tackles last year) and sophomore David Rill keep the linebacking corps strong.

Game at a Glance, p. 17

"Kelly is a great player," Cooper said. "He plays with a lot of emotion, and you don't find him out of position very often."

The Huskies will be led on offense by senior quarterback Hugh Millen, who took the Huskies to a come-from-behind win over Oklahoma in the 1985 Orange Bowl.

He's a lot like (UCLA quarterback) David Norrie," Cooper said. "He does what it takes to win. He doesn't make mistakes."

A crowd of about 70,000 is expected for the 1:30 p.m. kickoff, which will be televised by CBS. The Devils are 18-12-1 in TV games since 1970 but have never won a regular-season game televised by CBS.

Cooper has asked for the support of the fans for this game almost from the minute the ASU-California game ended.

"We need 70,000 screaming fans there on Saturday," he said. "We have our last three games at home, and the our fans are an advantage for us."

When asked if the change in game time would affect the crowd, Cooper said, "It better not. Our fans don't want excuses from John Cooper, and I don't want to hear any excuses from them."

"If we play a game at nine in the morning, I expect 70,000 screaming people there. We have to have that."

Notes — About 400 standing-room only tickets for the Nov. 23 ASU-UA game will go on sale Saturday at noon in Sun Devil Stadium. Fans must have a ticket to the Washington game to purchase the tickets. . . . The game time for the ASU-Stanford game has been changed from 7:30 to 6 p.m. The game will be televised by the Turner Broadcasting Network with Lindsey Nelson and Paul Hornung calling the action.

Sun Devil spikers resume conference wars against USC

By MICHAEL KONZ
State Press

After an easy victory over NAU, the ASU volleyball team returns to Pac-West play Saturday against Southern California in the University Activity Center.

Assistant coach Sue Woodstra said the Sun Devils (18-10, ranked 10th in the Tachikara Collegiate Volleyball Coaches Association poll), "played really well" Wednesday night when they beat the Lumberjacks, 3-0 (15-3, 15-3, 15-10).

"They kept their concentration throughout the match," she said. "They served really well. In the third game they got behind 10-4, and we scored 11 points. Even when we were behind, they adjusted and got together."

Head coach Debbie Brown was traveling and not available for comment.

Dawn Meidinger, Rhonda Fletcher and

Susie Larson were substituted into the match in the third game and led the comeback.

Woodstra said playing the backups did not interrupt the Sun Devils' game.

"It's always different having someone new in the game, but we practice with different rotations," she said. "It should not be that big of a problem."

Experience is the result of playing, Woodstra said.

"It's really good for their confidence to get experience," she said. "Everyone wants to get in the game."

With postseason action close on the horizon, the match against USC (17-8, ranked sixth) takes on additional importance for ASU.

"Any matches we play against teams ranked before us are important," Woodstra said. "We believe that in each of those we go in with a good chance of winning."

ASU met the Trojans earlier in the season in Los Angeles and lost in straight games.

"The score could have been tighter," Woodstra said. "We did not play well. We didn't serve well."

"SC is up and down a lot. They're a team everyone wants to beat. We feel we can beat them. We've had a good week of practice."

Playing at the Trojans' home site was a problem, Woodstra said, but this time roles will be reversed.

"It will take away their advantage," she said. "Last time it might have been a factor. We may not have been ready going into their gym."

"I think that if we got a lot of people here, it would help us."

Playing in the Activity Center is an additional bonus. The Sun Devils play most of their matches in P.E. Building East, but certain ones this season have been played in the Activity Center.

"It makes it special," Woodstra said. "It makes it feel a little different. At first Debbie and I worried about how long it would take the players to get used to playing. But the lights are good, and there is plenty of floor space."

Although they are playing at home, the Sun Devils will still have to deal with the Trojans' strengths.

"Their strengths are each individual talent," Woodstra said. "They're pretty tall. They're well-skilled and run a sophisticated offense. They have no (weaknesses)."

That offense has been slowed by injuries, however. Right-side hitter Yvonne Lewis and setter Kim Ruddins are recovering from injuries.

Swimming teams dive into action

Men, women host meet with Mission Viejo club

By JON WILEY
State Press

The ASU men's and women's swim teams will begin their fall season Saturday at 10 a.m. against the Mission Viejo (Calif.) swim club — a team with a strong reputation but which is on the decline.

Men's coach Ron Johnson said Mission Viejo is not as powerful now because men's coach Mark Schubert and diving coach Ron O'Brien left to take jobs in Florida.

"The Mission Viejo that we're swimming against this weekend is not the Mission Viejo of old," Johnson said. "It will not be a particularly hard meet for the men's team."

However, Johnson said the meet will be difficult for the women because of their ages.

"The women mature much younger than the men," he said. "The girls get to be good in high school, whereas the guys don't get to be as good until college."

The Sun Devils first competition was against each other in an intrasquad meet between the men's and women's teams.

ASU could have begun its season earlier, but chose not to attend the USS Invitational Long Course Meet in Tucson.

"Since it was a meet of very little importance, we felt we would rather have the workout," said Johnson, who is beginning his 11th season as the men's swim coach at ASU.

"There was no particular obligation to go."

Although the ASU men's team is ranked 11th in the nation by the NCAA, it faces an uphill struggle because the strength in collegiate swimming is in the Pac-10.

In the NCAA's preseason poll, six of the top 11 teams are from the Pac-10.

"I think that we can do better than that," Johnson said. "I think we can probably finish well into the Top 10."

Johnson said he is confident about this year's team, which consists of 30 swimmers and 5 divers.

"Potentially, I think this team is as good as any team that we have ever had," he said. "The team that we presently have on campus is capable of finishing within the top eight."

The team is lead by Neil Cochran, a junior from Scotland. Cochran was a double bronze-medal winner at the 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles.

Johnson is also hoping for help from two European swimmers, Benny Nielsen and Richard Milton. Both already have been signed and are supposed to arrive at mid-semester.

Nielsen, from Denmark, is ranked second in the world in the 200-meter butterfly. Milton is a sprint freestyle swimmer from Sweden.

Johnson said Milton is one of the best available high school swimmers in the world.

"If we get both of those guys admitted, we will be a very, very tough team," he said. "In fact, I think that we could shoot for somewhere within the top three or four in the nation."

But before they start swimming, the two must pass the TOEFL exam, an English language proficiency test that all foreign-speaking students must take.

"We're holding our breath for them to get in because if they do (pass), it will put us in a position where we can have one of the finest programs in the country," Johnson said.

Another top swimmer for ASU is junior Andy Jameson, who is ranked fourth in the world in the 100-meter butterfly and was an Olympic finalist in the event.

For his efforts, Jameson was recently named the British Male Swimmer of the Year by the British Swimming Federation.

Senior freestyler Scott Brackett holds the ASU record for the 1000- and 1650-yard freestyle and was a member of the U.S. team in the World Student Games. Brackett has also placed as high as third in the NCAA Championships.

Junior Brett Rose, a 100- and 200-meter backstroke specialist, has been an NCAA finalist and is a member of the U.S. team in the Maccabian Games. These games are held in Israel every four years for Jewish citizens. He was also a Maccabian Games champion this past summer.

Johnson said the team has put in more training this year than in the past.

"We've trained harder in the both the weight room and the pool than we ever have before up to this point," he said. "We're into base training right now, working mainly on speed."

Johnson said the team's main goal for this fall is the International Meet, Dec. 1-5 in Austin, Texas, where ASU will compete with teams from 20 nations. The course used is identical to the 50-meter used in the Olympic Games.

Pick 'Um

First prize will be an ASU sweatshirt from University Sporting Goods. Second place will get 50 percent off any purchase at Poster's Mostly (excluding Patrick Nagel posters). Third prize is a lunch for two at Bandersnatch and fourth place will dig into a 16-inch pizza with a choice of toppings at Ginò's Pizza.

NCAA lists possible penalties for drug offenders

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — Penalties for college athletes who test positive for drugs will range from a warning to the loss of a year's eligibility under a program expected to gain NCAA approval in January, the chairman of a special committee said Thursday.

Drug testing is being performed independently at 96 of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's 283 Division I schools and is under consideration at 45 others. Under the program developed by the committee headed by former NCAA President John Toner, the NCAA would conduct mandatory tests at selected Division I bowl games and championships beginning in August 1986.

"We won't necessarily test at a championship each year. We will focus on those that we think should be tested, and we reserve the right to be able to announce or not announce those that are tested," Toner said. "We want complete freedom to test where we think it's necessary."

A positive test result for any of about 200 banned drugs or chemicals except marijuana would result in a 90-day suspension of eligibility. A repeat offender would lose eligibility for one year.

Only a confidential warning would be issued for an athlete's first positive test for marijuana. Toner said this is because marijuana is the most prevalent "street drug" and because an athlete could test positive from just being in the same room with marijuana smoke.

But if athletes test positive for marijuana twice, they will be subjected to the standard first-offender sanctions.

Phoenix next to unveil plan for baseball

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball listened with interest — but without commitment — Thursday as communities from coast to coast made their pitches for expansion franchises.

Representatives from Columbus, Ohio; Denver, Colo.; and the Miami, Fla., area each spent about an hour in the morning with Commissioner Peter Ueberroth and baseball's Long Range Planning Committee.

Phoenix, Ariz.; New Orleans; Buffalo, N.Y.; New Jersey; Tampa-St. Petersburg, Fla.; and Nashville, Tenn., were scheduled for Friday.

The spokesmen from the various cities were upbeat about their chances of landing a team. Each came armed with studies, charts, graphs, brochures, each said the commissioner and the committee listened intently, and each acknowledged that they left with nothing more than handshakes and thanks.
