Marriott takeover should not change SAGA operations, director Agee says

By PATRICK J. KUCERA and CARRI L. MITCHELL
State Press Writers

SAGA Food Services, which Marriott Corp. purchased for approximately $501.6 million Monday, will continue to operate all concession areas on campus "as usual," the ASU retail food service director said.

Bob Agee said the only short-term change affecting ASU will be the removal of the name "SAGA" in August.

"I don't think (the merger) is going to affect operations at all for the next six months," Agee said. "It will still be SAGA, but with Marriott's name."

Marriott began its takeover bid of SAGA, a publicly-owned company whose stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange, in May.

Monday afternoon, SAGA and Marriott signed the agreement. Marriott has offered $39.50 for each SAGA share.

SAGA is a national company that operates food service at over 300 universities and colleges including ASU, Stanford, Western Colorado and University of California-Riverside. It also owns restaurants, such as Stuart Anderson's Black Angus and the Velvet Turtle.

Agee said the purchase of SAGA stock by Marriott was a good business decision on both sides, adding that Marriott is picking up quality employees.

"Personally, my feeling is Marriott purchased SAGA for its programs and people," he said. "From a business standpoint, SAGA and Marriott played the game very well and got the best deal for each of their stockholders."

Marriott Corp. also is a public company whose stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange. The company owns hotels, resorts and runs food concessions at many major U.S. airports, including Phoenix Sky Harbor International Airport, and at about 50 universities and colleges.

Marriott also is one of the owners of the Howard Johnson's

Hotel at Apache Boulevard and College Avenue, which ASU attempted to purchase last year.

Corporate headquarters for Marriott are in Washington, D.C., while SAGA is based in Menlo Park, Calif.

Harry Souers, director of corporate relations for the Marriott Corp., said the changeover will be "a long process. We want to learn what the business is like and to review SAGA's strengths and problems."

Souers said Marriott representatives will begin visiting SAGA sites soon.

"It's easier to learn about a business from the inside," he said.

Souers added that he hopes Marriott will be able to maintain the current SAGA contracts.

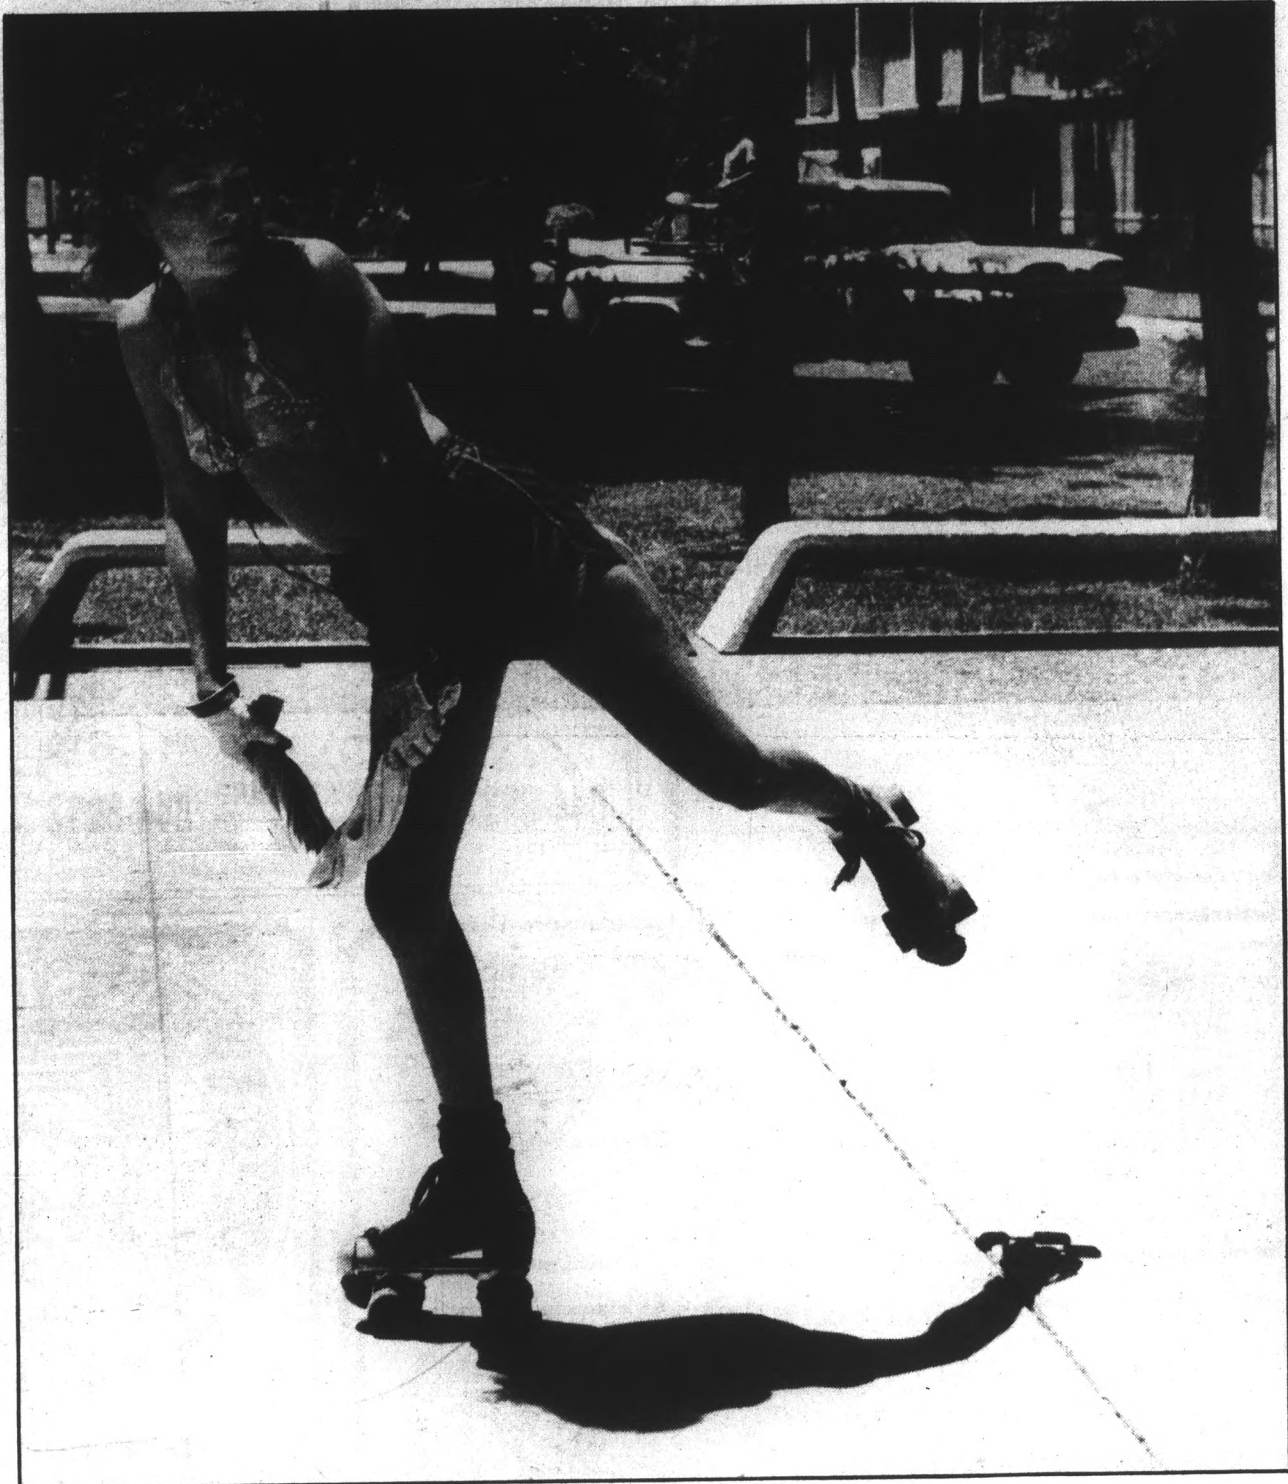

Eugene Elsbree, vice president of corporate communications for SAGA, said that while the agreement has been signed, it must still be ratified by the stockholders.

"The stockholders have been given until June 20 to decide," Elsbree said.

He said an exact figure on how much Marriott paid in total for the stock has not been released, but approximately 12.7 million shares of stock were available for purchase, which brings the amount paid to about $501.65 million.

The takeover was not hostile, Elsbree said.

"The initial offer was unsolicited," he said. "Both companies have worked to try not to show any animosity when the merger was being sought."

Rockin' Roller

Kimm Fetters, a junior nursing major, performs her twice daily skating routine near the fountain on Cady Mall late Wednesday morning. Fetters, who has been skating for eight years, says she tries to skate every other day, but it has been getting too hot lately. She said she prefers to skate late at night when it is cooler. "Nobody can catch me wading through the fountain," she added.

Agee said the merger will not affect ASU in any major capacity in the short run, but it is unclear what may occur one year from now.

All contracts and trademarks held by SAGA will be transferred over to Marriott, he said.

"Those trademarks, like 'The Grand Marketplace,' 'Cafe Ole' and 'Greenstuffs,' are all sold to Marriott," Agee said.

"Marriott is a very large corporation with some expertise in concessions," he said. "That is the only area they have more contracts in than SAGA. They have been purchasing contracting companies over the last two years."

While Marriott does have some contracts for food service with many campuses, Agee said almost all of those are very small colleges.

Elsbree said: "As far as SAGA is concerned, it is business as usual at ASU and many other campuses and at the restaurants we service. Our goal is to maintain a high quality and standard of food we have at our outlets."

Agee said he is not sure how the changeover will affect the jobs of current employees, but, "Marriott does offer a multitude of opportunities in management for (SAGA's) people."

John Kugler, district manager for SAGA, said, "Marriott is a good company and it will be a good parent. This whole thing has a potential to be positive."

ASU is the only university in Arizona served by SAGA. NAU is serviced by Professional Food Managers and UA is independently operated.

Pro-choice advocates elated at court ruling

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pro-choice groups were elated at Wednesday's decision by the U.S. Supreme Court striking down key sections of Pennsylvania's 1982 abortion law, but one of the law's sponsors said the fight isn't over.

"Oh, this is wonderful," said Morgan Plant, director of Pennsylvania Planned Parenthood, who learned of the decision in the state Capitol while tracking further attempts by Pennsylvania lawmakers to control abortions.

She said the court followed up on a 1983 decision reaffirming its 1973 decision giving women the right to abortions.

State Rep. Stephen Freind, one of the two sponsors of the 1982 law, said he hadn't seen the opinion and wanted to study it.

Zoo honors snake as 'Animal Father of Year'

CHICAGO (AP) — Hank, a laid-back boa constrictor who showed zoo officials that another boa named Howard would better be named Kate, is being honored on Father's Day.

The 6-foot-6 reptile, a father of 19, is the Brookfield Zoo's Animal Father of the Year and top snake as the zoo honors some of its recent and well-known fathers, said Linda Elbert, a spokeswoman.

Besides Hank, animal dads include Marco Polo the llama, Babe the ox, Totum the miniature horse and Lucky the Nubian goat.

Hank, a first-time father in March, takes the role in stride, said zookeeper Mary Keefe. "Once you grab onto him, he'll wrap around you, and that means he's relaxed," she said.

Convictions upheld in case of child molester

PHOENIX (AP) — The evidence against William Abad Castaneda was overwhelming, the Arizona Supreme Court said as it upheld the Tucson man's convictions and death sentence in the molestation and murder of a 12-year-old Michael Perry.

The justices acknowledged that trial judge Thomas Meehan of Pima County Superior Court had erred in some findings as to the crime's seriousness and that Castaneda's initial lawyer could have done a better job.

But they said any errors were harmless, given the lopsidedness of the case.

Castaneda, now 46, was accused of luring Perry and a 12-year-old companion away from a May 6, 1984 Tucson chess tournament.

Hotel blaze caused by faulty dishwasher

TUCSON (AP) — A hotel guest was briefly trapped on a roof as fire, apparently caused by a faulty dishwasher, heavily damaged part of the Residence Inn, 6477 E. Speedway Blvd., early Wednesday, officials said.

Damage was estimated at $75,000 and forced the hotel to close one of its 16, eight-room buildings, said night manager Daniel Small.

The fire extensively damaged four rooms on the building's top floor and caused water damage to the four rooms on the ground floor, Small said.

It apparently started in a faulty dishwasher in the room of Brent C. Norton, 25, who broke a window and climbed out onto the roof and was rescued shortly afterward, according to Tucson Fire Capt. James Bleess.

Terrorism spurs local travel opportunities

By BRAD HALVORSEN
State Press Writer

Alumni association members who were planning to discover Europe this summer are rediscovering more conventional places to travel — safer spots, closer to home.

"A lot of people are rediscovering the United States as a good travel opportunity," said ASU alumni association director Rochelle Mackey, who was scheduled to escort the "Alpine Discovery" European getaway in August.

The trip, one of several sponsored by the alumni association this summer, was canceled due to fear of terrorist attacks.

"A lot of people are going to Canada, and Alaska is doing very well," she said.

The association has been sponsoring trips, continental and abroad, since 1974. This is the first time a trip was canceled due to international unrest, Mackey said.

The association's most recent trip to Europe, in 1982, attracted more than 80 participants, she said.

This year, 10 to 12 members expressed interest. All but two canceled their plans after continuing terrorists strikes against Americans in Europe.

"I don't doubt it would have been safe, but it's better not to trick fate," said alumni member Hank Fryberger, who canceled European plans for he and his wife, Gen. "After all the trouble and the hatred over there, we decided it was better to wait."

The Frybergers, who live in Tempe, instead will travel to Alaska this summer on one of the association's other trips.

Terrorism did not intimidate Leon and Jean Lewis of Scottsdale, however. They held out until the trip was officially canceled.

"We had six people murdered here in Phoenix in one weekend," Jean Lewis said. "They said the chances of injury (in Europe) is one in 650,000. That just doesn't frighten me."

The Lewises still are planning to see Europe this summer, but will make arrangements through a different travel group.

The 19-day Alpine Discovery trip, slated for departure on August 7, included tours through sight-seeing spots in the highlands of Switzerland, Italy, Austria, Germany and Liechtenstein.

Mackey, who is also director of the association's travel program, said fear of terrorism abolished another European trip in which her organization expressed interest.

Plans for the late August cruise of the "great capitals of Europe," were dropped when the European cruise liner company removed its ships from the Mediterranean Sea.

Meanwhile, the Chernobyl nuclear disaster has all but depleted entries for the association's trip to the Soviet Union in August.

Three people have kept their plans for the two-week excursion to Moscow, Leningrad, Copenhagen and the Volga River, Mackey said.

"We had expected 30 to 35 (people) and we were well on our way to selling that," Mackey said. "Then came Chernobyl."

Mackey said a six-city tour of Russia in 1983 attracted 65 people.

Besides the trips to Canada and Alaska, the alumni association this summer is also offering an excursion to China, a transatlantic cruise beginning in London and ending along the East Coast, and several trips throughout Arizona.

Mackey, who has traveled to Europe several times, said she would have experienced minor inhibitions if the trip had not been canceled.

"I think I'm always a little on edge because I'm responsible for 60 to 80 people," Mackey said. "But I think I would have felt a bigger sigh of relief than usual after coming home."

OPINION

Saying 'so long' to an old friend

When you have known someone for many years and have seen the changes he or she has gone through, it is somewhat sad when that individual faces the end.

Although it will be "business as usual" in the Grand Marketplace in the MU or at the satellite stations located throughout the campus, SAGA is going to change.

There can be no doubt the Marriott Corporation made a good business decision in merging with the million-dollar industry in which SAGA is involved, but the name SAGA will probably never be seen again on this or any other campus, unless some other company with an identical name that deals in electric paperclips wanders onto ASU.

Throughout the years, SAGA has been the butt of many jokes regarding the quality of its food and service.

The State Press has made its fair share of barbs, calling SAGA the "Soviet Attempt to Gag America" and other humorous names.

But when it comes down to the lowest common denominator, the name SAGA will live for a long time in our hearts.

The faces may be the same and the food just as palatable, but the name "Marriott" just does not have the same punch as "SAGA." That means no more cute headlines in the newspaper.

One of the most common complaints surrounding SAGA has been the lack of flavor in the food. But we still head to the MU or stop at the satellite for a bagel, Coke, croissant, cookie, deli sandwich or pizza on a daily basis.

Why?

Because the food is fairly decent, at reasonable prices and has a wide variety, and it is not as bad as everyone claims it to be.

Corporate heads say there will not be any major changes in the short run, so we can expect the same food and service we have received before, but look for a name change in August.

Regardless of what happens, SAGA is changing and ASU will have to change with it.

So long, old friend. It doesn't matter what others say, we will miss you.

Library study room open 24 hours a day through final exams

Editor:

Raspberries to the Summer State Press for not fully investigating the facts surrounding library hours during finals week. We do, in fact, have a 24-hour study hall available during the entire finals week, including Saturday and Sunday. Spring semester it ran from May 8 through 15. In fact, the ASU libraries are open more hours than most of the schools in the Pacific-10.

ASU libraries are open 105 hours per week, not including the 24-hour study room. This is 12 hours a week more than the PAC-10 average. University of Southern California is open 94 hours, University of California at Los Angeles is open 87, Stanford is open 77 and Berkeley is only open 74 hours per week. I am sure all these universities and libraries believe they promote "excellence in education."

This seems to be a complaint of the State Press every semester, and yet the statistics do not support this claim.

MU open during finals, too; many special services available

Editor:

This letter is in response to your editorial, "Roses and Raspberries" printed on June 5. You awarded "raspberries" to the ASU Library system for closing their doors early during finals week. I have no complaint with this conclusion.

My complaint stems (no pun intended) from the fact that you failed to give a "rose" or even an honorable mention to the Memorial Union and its fine staff for remaining open for over 96 straight hours during finals week. This is not the first time we have remained open during finals week; we have done this for the last four semesters.

I would personally like to give recognition to those who sacrificed hours of restful sleep or study time in order to give the students of ASU an opportunity to excel in their education. In my opinion, this is definitely a part of that "excellence in education" that is being offered here at ASU.

Thanks to the Memorial Union Professional Staff for having the insight and concern for the students during finals week. Thanks to all the fine employees of SAGA Food Services for providing hot food and drinks around the clock. And special thanks to those student employees who sacrificed their personal study time in order to provide a suitable and convenient atmosphere where students could study on a 24-hour basis during finals week.

The library may not be open late during finals week in the future, but you can be certain that the MU will continue to carry on its fine tradition of providing special services to the University community.

In conclusion, I feel it would be appropriate to award yourself a belated "raspberry" for your failure to recognize the MU for this special service.

Speed limit determined by greedy bureaucrats

Editor:

I see where Department of Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole is going to rob your state of highway funds because you haven't ripped off enough motorists for speeding. Dole wants the $1.5 billion business of fining motorists to continue. Let's hope you folks in Arizona will fight back!

The whole matter is fiscal, not a matter of safety. Proof? There's plenty. In 1946, our servicemen (the men with the poor highway safety record), returned from overseas and the national speed limit that had been 35 miles per hour went back to 60-70 miles per hour. Those two factors should have made the death toll soar, but instead the national fatality rate on our highways went down 1.42 per 100 million vehicle miles — something unequalled since then. When speeds almost doubled, the death rate went down. When people pay attention to their driving, they drive more safely.

In the 10 years before double-nickle, the death rate went down 2.04. In the 10 years after the 55 mph, the death rate only went down .91. The one year of 55 mph when motorists did slow down — the Iranian oil crisis year of 1979 — the death rate went up .11. The 55 mph limit has done nothing for highway safety, but it has been a real money maker for politicians.

POLICE REPORT

University police reported the following incidents during the 48-hour period ending at 7 a.m. Wednesday:

Two men unaffiliated with the University were arrested Tuesday afternoon in connection with an attempted theft and motorcycle theft, police said.

Henderson Combs, 20, 3030 N. 35th Ave., and Janal B. Lawson, 18, 301 N. Black Canyon, were arrested on two different occasions.

Police reports revealed the following:

An officer spotted two men in Lot 23, a motorcycle parking area south of University Drive across from Manzanita Residence Hall.

The suspects fled when approached by the officer, but were apprehended. Combs was booked on charges of attempted theft and possession of burglary tools. Lawson was booked on charges of compounding and conspiracy.

The subjects were released on their own recognizance at approximately 4:20 p.m.

About 15 minutes later, an officer observed Combs and Lawson riding a Honda Elite motor scooter along McAllister Avenue. When approached by a marked patrol car, the two men dropped the motorcycle and ran in opposite directions.

Lawson was apprehended by Tempe police at College Avenue and Encanto Drive. Combs was apprehended at 14th Street and Normal Avenue.

Both were booked again in connection with a motorcycle theft. They were transported to Tempe police department and were held for an initial appearance Wednesday.

An ASU student received head injuries while swimming at the Mona Plummer Aquatic Center Tuesday afternoon, police said.

The student was swimming underwater with her eyes closed when she bumped into the wall. She sustained a lump on her forehead.

She refused medical treatment but agreed to be transported to the Student Health Center.

A woman unaffiliated with the University reported that $505 worth of items were stolen from her vehicle, parked in Lot 27, sometime between 11 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. Monday, police said.

The items included a Pentax 35mm camera, a Sony Walkman cassette player, a brown leather duffel bag, a pair of loafers and a pair of gym shoes.

A construction site near Cholla Apartments was flooded early Tuesday morning after water valves were automatically turned on by a fire alarm, police said.

A malfunction caused the alarm to activate. Flow valves outside the D-Wing and the main pump house began releasing water, flooding the surrounding area and construction ditches.

No signs of fire were found.

'Copy cat' fires plague Colorado frats

By the College Press Service

MACOMB, Ill. — In what are being termed "copy cat" incidents, arsonists have started five fires on the Western Illinois University campus during the last month, and another fraternity fire attributed to foul play erupted on a Colorado campus, making the seventh frat fire in the state since last fall.

Two of the Western Illinois fires burned frat houses, with one blaze causing enough damage that Macomb fire officials may condemn the structure being rented by the Sigma Pi fraternity.

"As far as we know, there is no national conspiracy to burn frat houses," says Robert Marchesani Jr. of the National Interfraternity Conference in Indianapolis. "These are a copy cat thing."

The three other fires at Western Illinois occurred in a dorm.

The Illinois fire marshal has offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the Western Illinois arsonist. "We don't treat this lightly," notes WIU spokesman John Fairman.

"There are no strong emotional feelings between greeks and non-greeks," Fairman maintains.

Campus women, moreover, have not leveled any major allegations of sexism at the fraternities, he adds.

Last fall, a series of frat fires at the universities of Denver and Colorado was accompanied by anonymous notes claiming the fires were retaliation against general fraternity treatment of women.

Another fraternity fire broke out April 9 at the Colorado School of Mines' Sigma Phi Epsilon house.

'Ferris Bueller' decides to ditch because 'leisure rules'

By CINDY PEARLMAN
State Press

Yes, a John Hughes movie without Judd Nelson, Molly Ringwald, Emilio Estevez . . . in any combination or form whatsoever. Good or bad, that's the first thing you notice about "Ferris Bueller's Day Off," which stars Matthew Broderick in the title role. Concerning Broderick who has previously made his mark with "War Games," "Ladyhawke" and on Broadway — good or bad isn't the question.

He is quite good.

So is "Ferris Bueller's Day Off," a starkly simple tale about one day of a high school senior's life. His name is Ferris Bueller. And the movie is about his day off — from school, pressure, adults and his own future.

It's springtime in suburban Illinois, the weather's never been better and Ferris has this overpowering urge to ditch school and head for a day of hanging around in downtown Chicago with his girl, Sloane (Mia Sara) and his best friend, Cameron (Alan Ruck).

If this sounds boring, it's not. If it sounds like another introspective teen issue film like Hughes' "Breakfast Club," it's not. Where that movie was about the problems of being a teenager, "Ferris" steers the other way. This film is about the fun.

Ferris and company want to walk around, goof around, pal around and, with a vintage red Ferrari and Bueller's gift for some fast talking in tight situations, show that life at 17 isn't so bad after all.

"I've said it once, I'll say it again," says Broderick as Ferris. "Life moves pretty fast; if you don't stop and look around, you could miss it."

They don't miss much in this movie. For Ferris, it is a well-calculated and nearly flawless plan: How to fake your parents (Cindy Pickett and Lyman Ward) that their truly beloved son is on death's door, the student body that you are desperately in need of a kidney operation, the Dean of Students (Jeffrey Jones) that your girlfriend's grandmother has died in order to release her from school's captivity, and your best buddy that you will lay your life on the line for the use of his father's 1961 Ferrari 250 GT California to cruise in.

A great plan, however, usually has its evil forces working against it. Maybe your younger sister Jeanie (Jennifer Grey) and the Dean of Students are out for your hide. The Dean wants to use you as an example to the student body. Your younger sister is tired of . . . you and your knack for sliding out of tight spots.

Maybe you find yourself in a taxi cab next to your downtown businessman Dad. Or, perhaps, you end up on a float in a German-American parade leading the crowd in a sonic version of "Twist and Shout."

That's Ferris' day and John Hughes' creation. As in the past, Hughes shows a fine ear for teen lingo, dilemmas and wacko plotting. And he has in this movie, as in the past, chosen a fine cast of supporting characters.

This supporting cast, including Alan Ruck as Ferris' best friend, is head of the class.

As the kid who blames himself for his parent's lack of attention, Ruck can produce facial spasms to rival Eddie Murphy. As the distraught sister, Grey is an expert whiner and complainer.

And a brief scene with Charlie Sheen who looks identical to his father Martin, shows a '80s James Dean character of the future. "Ferris" only sore spot is Sara, his girlfriend, who looks just too much like a 30-year-old model.

But that's not a reason to ditch this film.

'Jake Speed'

His main move is super slow

By AMY FRISCHKNECHT
State Press Writer

Possibly the best thing about going to see "Jake Speed" is arriving at the theater five minutes early and catching the last few minutes of its running partner, "My Little Pony."

In fact, this newest adventure movie — starring newcomer to the screen Wayne Crawford as Jake Speed — is quite a contradiction to its name. It is slow!

The setting of this film is very much like "Romancing the Stone" and the storyline copies it as inconspicuously possible without being too noticeable.

But it is noticeable. What this adventure film misses most is the presence of Michael Douglas and Kathleen Turner.

So the story goes. A college-age girl, Maureen, goes to France with her friends to "see the world" and ends up getting kidnapped by a gang of international white slaver owners. Her older sister, Margaret (another newcomer Karen Kopins), who urged her to go and have an experience of a lifetime (no pun intended), is obviously distraught and feels totally responsible.

Into the scene walks Jake Speed and his faithful assistant Des Floyd (Dennis Christopher), known only to Margaret as characters from a chain of adventure paperback novels.

They offer information to Margaret about Maureen's whereabouts and tempts her with an adventure, promising to rescue the sister for no fee. All they want is to have a good story for their next novel.

This so-called adventure drags on while the plot takes our authors/heroes and distraught sister through the wilds of Africa, which at this particular time is caught in the middle of a revolution.

All they wanted was a good story. All they needed was some good lines. This major factor of any movie was seriously lacking in this one.

But other important factors were misplaced too. There was no original plot, certainly no original lines, and although Jake Speed had some actors that had not been seen for a time, such as Dennis Christopher ("Breaking Away"), Donna Pescow ("Saturday Night Fever") and John Hurt ("The Elephant Man"), it had no original parts for them to play.

John Hurt, who has been considered one of the best actors in the business after being nominated for two Academy awards, gave as good of a performance as the shallow script allowed him. His intentions of "doing a film that is light and fun and humorous" are shattered in Jake Speed.

Dennis Christopher, who plays Jake Speed's right-hand man, was nearly the only ray of light for the film. His character, Des Floyd, has wit and style that fit right into Christopher's sphere. His credits in addition to "Breaking Away" include roles in "Fade to Black," "Chariots of Fire," a return to the stage to perform in "Butterflies are Free" and Shelly Duvall's Faerie Tale Theater.

As for Jake Speed himself, Wayne Crawford has been involved in his producing partnership with Andrew Lane for some 10 years. Some of their previous joint-effort films are "Getting Even," "Valley Girl," and "Night of the Comet." Apart from playing lead for his own film, Crawford has occasionally performed in Television's "Hill Street Blues" and "Cagney and Lacey."

Unfortunately for "Jake Speed," there have been too many adventure films ahead of it that give the audience more than accredited actors. Out of the $5 paid to see this film, none of it was spent in good taste, except for maybe 25 cents for the chuckle I received witnessing a three-hundred pound flashdancer do her stuff to the familiar song "Maniac" in a Zimbabwe dive.

"Jake Speed" could be the winner of this year's most pointless and boring film.

Prince, AC/DC release film soundtracks

Some notes from the music industry:
The soundtrack for "Running Scared," the new Billy Crystal/Gregory Hines movie is set for release on June 16. Appearing 11 days prior to the film's release, the soundtrack features new songs by Klymaxx, Patti LaBelle, Michael McDonald, New Edition, Ready For the World, Fee Waybill and Kim Wilde.

The Klymaxx song, "Man Size Love," is scheduled to be the first single released for the album. Klymaxx is the all-female Los Angeles-based sextet who struck gold earlier this year with "I Miss You" off the "Meeting in the Ladies' Room" LP.

When the new AC/DC album hits the stores this month, it will feature new tracks from Stephen King's upcoming film, "Maximum Overdrive."

"Who Made Who," contains the title song from the movie, a tale of machines gone mad when a comet enters the Earth's orbit.

The film stars Emilio Estevez.

MCA Records, purchasers of something called the Chess catalog in 1985, will reissue many of the collection's original rock classics in August.

Along with original cover artwork, the oldies include, "The Best of Little Walter" and "Go Bo Diddley."

The film is called "Under the Cherry Moon" and if you haven't heard already, it stars rock guru Prince.

Not surprisingly, Prince wrote the film's title theme, several other original songs and scored the incidental music as well. He also stars in this movie. And he directed it.

The album, "Parade: Music from 'Under the Cherry Moon,'" was released this March. One of "Parade's" singles, "Kiss" shipped gold in six weeks. More music is coming.

The movie itself is a simple and "perennial story of two young people who fall hopelessly in love," says its directors.

Kristin Scott-Thomas, making her feature film debut, is the girl who gets Prince.

Prince's new soundtrack comes with "Under the Cherry Moon."

Hammer away

Ryer leaves ASU, faces life of amateur athlete

Dave Ryer's days as a Sun Devil are over, but his career as a hammer-thrower is just beginning.

By CAROL BOOS
State Press Writer

Dave Ryer's years as a collegiate hammer-thrower have expired, but he still has goals in the field to be reached.

Ryer said he has "set his sights for the Olympics," and is about to begin the difficult life of the amateur athlete in training.

Ryer broke his own hammer-throwing record last week at the NCAA Championships in Eugene, Oregon, setting a new Arizona collegiate record.

The new record (63.50 meters) was set in the qualifying round. It seems that breaking his own record would lend enthusiasm to his training after college.

Despite breaking the record, however, Ryer feels the season was a disappointment.

"(It's disappointing because) even though I broke my own record, I'm capable of throwing 15 feet (4.6 meters) more."

Ryer came to ASU as a transfer from Mesa Community College, where he had thrown a school-record of 198-feet-6-inches (60.5 meters) and earned junior college all-American status. He also won an individual junior college title at MCC.

Ryer had an immediate impact on the ASU track program in the 1985 season following his transfer from MCC. He participated in the NCAA championships for ASU in 1985 and took seventh in the 1985 conference championships.

But since those days, Ryer's pursuit of his sport has met with several problems that prevented him from performing as well as he thinks he is capable of.

A back injury is one problem Ryer faced halfway through the season. The injury made training difficult for several weeks.

Ryer also faced a problem with the athletic program; and unlike the back injury, this problem was not something that time alone could heal.

"ASU athletics should look at track and field as a whole, and not concentrate only on sprints," Ryer said. "It takes everyone to make a team."

"ASU is a sprint-orientated school, but the more rounded teams are the ones winning — the ones who concentrate on field events as well."

Sprinting has been stressed at ASU, which has produced Olympic sprinter Ron Brown and 1983 Pac-10 100-meter champion Kenny Robinson. But changes are definitely in the wind for the ASU track program.

Next year, a new coach will be named and the team will hope to filter out some of the problems faced by last year's squad.

As for Ryer, the all-American will continue to train in hopes of participating in the Olympics.

'Even though I broke my own record, I'm capable of throwing 15 feet more.'

—Dave Ryer

"I'm happy that even though I threw poorly, I was still able to be an All-American," Ryer said.

"It gives me hope in the future that, when I throw well, I can accomplish my goals."

But before Ryer really starts taking his Olympic training seriously, a couple of other interests have to be tended to.

"I want to get my career started first," Ryer said, who majored in and will be entering the field of real estate. He also has plans to get married before settling into a regular training regimen.

"I want to work on that part (of my life) first, then keep training," he said. "I've set my sights for the 1992 Olympic games."

As much as I hate to admit it, the Cats' CWS win has style

Bob Heller
Sports

The College World Series trophy is settling in to its new home in Tucson. The Cats took the Seminoles of Florida to capture it in a 10-2 rout.

Readers of the State Press have read an awful lot about what scum the Wildcats are, how every Sun Devil has a duty to hate the U of A, and even how great thinkers throughout history have hated the U of A.

There's nothing wrong with healthy competition and the derision that travels hand-in-hand with it. I'm sure Tucson's own Daily Wildcat serves up some of the same kind of defamation for our fair institution occasionally, like after our basketball team beat them last season.

But some things transcend the considerations of intrastate rivalries. These events demand that we lay aside our differences for a moment and recognize a particular achievement.

Little things like national championships definitely fall into this category.

And, even though I still don't care for Larry Smith, Wilbur the Wildcat or having to go to the Holiday Bowl, I can't help but admire the style of Jerry Kindall's Cats.

The Cats came from behind in every one of their post-season contests, until they delivered the decisive death blow to the Seminoles. They refused to quit, even in the face of rather daunting odds.

Friday, in the game that got the Cats into the championship matchup, things didn't look so good in the bottom of the second. The Cats were down 5-0 to the Seminoles, the No. 1 team in the country. They were facing Mike Loynd on the mound, a man who needed just one more win to break an NCAA record for victories in a season.

As it turned out, Mike Loynd was never to get that last win. The Cats rallied to beat Florida 9-5, then repelled Loynd again in the final game, shelling him when he came in as a reliever. I'm sure Mike hates the Cats enough by now to write columns for the State Press. Maybe I'll look into that possibility.

But for now, the boys down south have to be congratulated, not only for their win, but for the way they won.

Ace Wildcat pitcher Gilbert Heredia summed up the attitude that carried the Cats to their national title:

"When we get behind it just makes us try harder."

Not a memorable phrase. Anyone could have thought of it. It's also kind of arrogant, cocky.

These are reasons to disdain the sentiment. But it has a couple of amiable qualities, qualities that aren't found every day. First of all, it's obviously true.

Secondly, and more importantly, it's the mark of champions.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE

Oh, holy St. Jude, apostle and martyr, great in virtue, rich in miracle, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need. To you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to who God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present and urgent petition in return, I promise to make your name known and cause you to be invoked. Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and three Glories for nine consecutive days. Publication must be promised, St. Jude pray for us all who invoke your aid. Amen.

This novena has never been known to fail.

UA win over Florida sparks celebration

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State Coach Mike Martin was quick to pull 20-game winner Mike Loynd from the championship game of the College World Series, and quick to defend his decision.

Loynd came out after giving up a leadoff double in the sixth inning of Monday night's game against Arizona. Richie Lewis relieved him and was touched for a pair of two-run homers that made the score 6-0.

Arizona went on to a 10-2 victory over the top-ranked Seminoles to win the title.

Martin said Lewis, who had two victories and two saves in the Series, was the right man for the sixth-inning situation.

"The score was 2-0 at the time, and we've got a guy that's been doing it for us all year," Martin said. "We'll never hesitate to go and get that little guy. He came in there and happened to get a couple of balls up and they hit him."

Loynd, who needed to win to break the NCAA Division I record for victories in a season, allowed three hits and one earned run. He said he didn't want to leave the game.

"I wasn't too happy," the junior right-hander said. "I didn't feel there was any reason for me to be taken out."

Lewis said the outcome wasn't decided by the pitching change but by the Seminoles' lack of offense. They were shut out and held to three hits in the first eight innings by Gary Alexander, 8-2.

The Wildcats had spoken with their bats in winning the national championship.

It was their fans' turn Tuesday as hundreds happily thronged Tucson International Airport and as many or more attended a reception for the team at a midtown hotel.

"Wonderful!" said Vivian Barfield, who with her husband

Webb has held Arizona season tickets for 26 years.

"Wonderful!" her husband echoed. "We knew they were going to do it when they left Texas (the Central Regional). We were a little bit nervous, but after the first run (Monday night) we knew they had it."

Arizona defeated Florida State 10-2 Monday night for the championship.

"It's great! They looked pretty good. They polished it off with a flair," said Dick Farney of Tucson.

Many supporters waved red and blue pom poms; some held banners such as "We Love You — Sec. 17." Youngsters perched atop their parents shoulders for a chance to see their heroes.

Chants of "U of A! U of A!" and "We're Number One!" reverberated through the concourse as the fans waited, and a pep band broke into play when the team emerged through the plane's ramp.

One little girl leaned forward on her father's shoulders, touching the smiling players as they walked past.

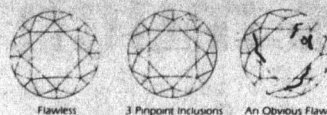

Amid cheers, clapping and pats on the back, autograph sessions were the order of the moment.

Philip Stevens, 13, of Tucson, a baseball-capped youngster, got at least four Arizona players, including first baseman Todd Trafton, to sign his glove.

He, like 11-year-old fan Eric Housel, who called the championship and the fan turnout "pretty exciting," said he'd like to play for the Wildcats some day.

Trafton said he had heard "Tucson was going crazy" over the team's exploits in Omaha, but the size of the welcome-home still surprised him.

"I kind of expected a big turnout. But that was pretty deep there," he said.
