By LAUREN MILLETTE
State Press

A Tempe man has been charged with first-degree homicide and aggravated assault in connection with the slaying of ASU student Vincent Nieland.

Roy Young, 850 S. River Drive, will enter his plea at a preliminary hearing Sept. 17.

Young, 36, is being held at the Maricopa County Jail on $548,000 bond. Young lived in the same town house complex that Nieland did.

Nieland, a 20-year-old sophomore justice studies major, was fatally stabbed in the chest and left rib cage during a fight at about 3:51 a.m. Sunday at the west pool of the Questa Vida Town Houses.

After he was stabbed, Nieland fell into the deep end of the pool, residents of the complex said.

Nieland was taken to Scottsdale Memorial Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Bradley Knutson, 23, also was stabbed twice during the brawl.

A man at the complex, who asked not to be identified, said he was visiting friends of Nieland in a nearby apartment when they were told that Nieland was lying on the bottom of the pool.

The source said the group ran to the pool, but Knutson had pulled Nieland out and had started cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

The man said he arrived about 30 seconds after Nieland had been pulled from the pool and immediately placed his hands over Nieland's chest wound to apply pressure.

"I tried to apply force to the wound to help stop the bleeding but it didn't work," the source said. "As air was being breathed into him, Vinnie (Nieland) exhaled a gurgling sound that sounded as if his lungs were filling up with blood."

"I realize now that he (Nieland) was probably already dead when we were trying to revive him, but at the time, we tried to do everything we could to concentrate on keeping him alive."

He said Knutson told him that Nieland had been in the water for about one minute before he was pulled out.

Other residents at the complex, who also asked that their names not be revealed, said they slept through the fight and knew nothing about it until Tempe police knocked on their doors for questioning.

The residents said after questioning they went out to the pool area and saw broken beer bottles, a bloody T-shirt hanging on the side of the pool, garbage cans toppled over and furniture scattered throughout the pool deck.

"The deck was a mess," one woman said. "It was obvious there had been a fight. I'll never forget how the blood-stained pool looked with a chair thrown to the bottom of it, where the guy who was killed was taken from."

Another man said he had seen Nieland,

Knutson and others gathered around the pool earlier in the evening listening to music, drinking beer and having a "good time."

He said the group was acting rowdy but no rowdier than any other college students.

He said he saw two couples walk by the group and the group whistled and made a few remarks to the women.

He said: "I didn't want any part of it, so I didn't listen to exactly everything that was said, but I'm sure it was just your usual comments that young men make to young women."

"One of the ladies was offended and came up to the group and started yelling at them. She spoke rough to them, like she had come from a part of town where she had been harassed before. She told them she would be back with someone 'to kick their ass.'"

Regents verdict upsets governor

By KIM MATTINGLY
State Press

Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt is disappointed with the Board of Regents' decision to reduce his 6 percent budget cut to 3.24 percent, and the state's three universities eventually will have to cut spending anyway, Babbitt's spokesman said Monday.

Scott Phelps said: "He's clearly disappointed. Our best guess is we need 6 percent from the state. It's all well and good for the regents to say we're going to cut 3 percent, but the bottom line is 3 percent is not good enough."

Babbitt requested in July that ASU, NAU and UA set aside $24 million to help offset an anticipated revenue shortfall of $60 to $120 million.

Instead, the regents have agreed to set aside about $12 million of their $400 million budget.

ASU will lose $4.5 million under the regent's proposal. "When the university budgets were put together, the revenue forecast was a bit rosier than it is now," Phelps said. "It looks like we're not going to have that much money to spend."

Phelps said Arizona's economy was growing at an 8 percent rate, but recent readings show only a 4 percent base.

"It's all just paper work right now, but the bottom line is the state isn't going to spend what it doesn't have to spend. "If the board goes with the number they've set on, that would turn out to be $12 to $15 million that we were looking to save that ain't going to get saved."

He said Babbitt's request is "not actually a cut at this point but rather a mid-course correction."

Unlike other state agencies, the university system does not have to comply with the governor's request.

"If that's what the regents think is fair, (Babbitt) can't tell them what to do," Phelps said. "All we can do is go back to our own agencies and ask for a 7 or 8 percent cutback."

"Keep in mind, every agency thinks they'd be better off not to be included in the cuts."

If the regents refuse to cut the full 6 percent now, the state Legislature will simply dictate the cuts in January, he said.

Regent Jack Pfister said the revenue shortfall can be made up with a 3.24 percent cut by all state agencies.

"We believe we have a meritorious argument to make, and we hope the governor and the Legislature will understand and give it a serious consideration," he said.

"The governor is a very persuasive individual, and we will seriously consider his response, but we hope he will give our position a fair hearing."

Pfister said Babbitt's original request does not affect primary and secondary education, the Legislature or the Department of Economic Security.

The regents are asking that the governor "broaden the base" and include more agencies in his cutback request, he said.

Escape of crew during hijacking stirs debate

LONDON (AP) — The escape of Pan Am's cockpit crew at the start of the 17-hour hijacking in Pakistan has stirred debate over whether the ancient rule that a captain never abandons ship should apply to jetliner hijackings.

An informal Associated Press survey Monday found disagreement on the issue among pilots, airline officials and the hijack victims themselves. Opinions ranged from one survivor who called the cockpit crew's action "absolutely superb" to a spokesman for a competing airline who said it was "unthinkable."

By escaping through a hatch in the roof of the Boeing 747 soon after terrorists boarded the plane Friday, the three-man flight crew effectively grounded the jetliner at Karachi Airport.

But it left the nearly 400 passengers and remaining crew without an authority figure and confronting four terrorists, who in the end blasted them with grenades and machine-gun fire, killing 18 people.

"If one refers to the maritime world, where the tradition would have the captain of a sinking ship be the last to leave the deck, one could find quite cowardly the conduct of this crew," Le Figaro, a leading French daily, editorialized Monday.

Terry Middleton, executive administrator of the London-based International Federation of Air Line Pilots Associations, which represents 60,000 pilots in 66 nations, said the advantage of keeping a commandeered airliner grounded could outweigh all other considerations.

A British Airways pilot, Chris Orlebar, said he had no doubt what he would do in the same circumstances. "I would stay on board and somehow disable the aircraft," he told London's Daily Mail newspaper.

But Shuli Naor, a captain for the Israeli airline El Al, quoted in the Tel Aviv newspaper Hadashot, disagreed.

"Look, if you drop the heroic business of the crew being the last to abandon ship — here it's the plane — when the crew abandons the plane, the plane becomes an unattractive object for hijacking," he was quoted as saying. "It's like you've hijacked a building."

Testing on alcohol to find possible pollution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alcoholic beverages from several foreign countries are being tested for radioactive contamination from the Chernobyl nuclear accident, the government announced Monday.

Samples of alcoholic beverages being imported from countries affected in some degree by the radiation accident will be purchased at retail for testing, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms said.

The bureau said it will obtain samples of beverages produced both before and after the Soviet accident, and send both to the University of Georgia for testing to compare radiation amounts.

Testing will continue over several years and any beverages found with unsafe levels will be ordered withdrawn from sale, the agency said.

Bureau officials have divided the countries into three risk categories for testing. They are:

High risk: Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany, Greece, Yugoslavia, Albania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania and Czechoslovakia.

Possible risk: Italy, France, West Germany, Sweden, Norway, Finland and Austria.

Illegal entrants caught by new patrol system

YUMA (AP) — In the last three weeks of August, four television cameras linked to a computerized, closed-circuit system near San Luis contributed to the apprehension of about 550 illegal entrants into the United States, a Border Patrol spokesman said Monday.

"Our rate of apprehensions has continued since then," said Dale Cozart, chief of the agency's Yuma Sector. "We are very pleased. It looks like the system is going to be very successful."

In the Nogales area, two of the four cameras planned for the sector were installed the last week of August, and an estimated 50 aliens were stopped, said Michael Sheehy, who runs the Border Patrol office at Nogales.

He said the cameras have proven so effective that an attempt was made last week to knock one off its 55-foot steel tower.

An agent foiled the attempt by a half-dozen men to scale the tower or to topple it, but not before he was "sucker-punched" and the men escaped, Sheehy said.

Once two new cameras are installed by mid-September, the Nogales unit will monitor three miles of the international border.

He said technicians were still working on the $400,000 Nogales scanning system, which includes motion-detecting sensors, the two additional cameras, and a computer.

"So we haven't started assigning people to monitor the cameras yet, but when we do, I'm sure our apprehension rate is going to extremely high," Sheehy said.

Commercial fast-food could establish at USC

LOS ANGELES — A survey that showed a preference on University of Southern California campus for fast food has prompted Dining Services to explore the possibility for a fast food outlet this school year.

"We wanted to have a hamburger restaurant within the campus that will provide consistent, quick service to its customers," said Gene Lawless, director of Dining Services.

Lawless said Dining Services has already met with Burger King and McDonalds, but neither company was interested in the arrangement the university wanted. He said Carl's Jr. may be, however. At this point they are negotiating.

A random one-to-one survey was conducted during the summer by the research marketing department that found most people on campus would like a commercial fast food service to move on campus, Lawless said.

Of the 200 students, faculty, and staff members surveyed, 59 percent preferred commercial food service to the services provided by the university dining service. The survey found that the average customer eats at a fast food restaurant approximately 2.2 times a week.

The negotiations with Carl's Jr. may be complete sometime this spring, but Lawless said nothing is definite.

Voters narrow gubernatorial race today in primaries

By MICHAEL ROWELL
State Press

Arizona officials are expecting a 29 percent voter turnout today in the state's primary election, a Maricopa County Elections Department spokeswoman said.

Barbara Lebsch said Tempe polling sites will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. for registered Democrats and Republicans.

In the Democratic primary, Superintendent of Public Instruction

Carolyn Warner will face Phoenix lawyer-businessman Tony Mason for the nomination for governor.

Although Warner has been leading in the polls with 35 percent of the vote, Mason has captured about 31 percent of the Democratic vote, according to a Phoenix Gazette poll.

Burton Barr and Evan Mecham are competing for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

The big race in the Republican primary is a battle between four candidates for the Congressional seat vacated by John McCain.

The candidates are Bob Edens, Rick Lavis, John J. Rhodes III and Ray Russell.

In Tempe's District 27 a four-way battle for two Republican nominations for state representative is under way.

Peter Gorski, Bob Nixon, Jenny Norton and incumbent Bev Hermon are the four hopefuls.

Both party primaries have candidates vying for the position of superintendent of public instruction, a post held by Warner for the last 12 years.

Both the governor and the superintendent of public instruction are voting members of the Arizona Board of Regents.

Lebsch said that in an area such as Tempe where many people work, the busiest voting times are in the morning before people go to work and in the evening.

Vandals damage trams; buses provide service for day

By TINA DAUNT
State Press

ASU's tram service was stricken by vandals this weekend causing $1,300 damage to two trams and forcing students to ride buses from Lot 59 Monday.

Richard Landreth, assistant director of parking and transit services, said the damaged trams have been repaired and will be running again today.

The windshields, headlights and taillights of the trams were broken early Sunday morning, marking the second time the trams were vandalized since school started, Landreth said.

"Usually we keep the trams locked up in the location where we're building the new parking garage, but since we've started construction we've had to park them in Lot 40," he said.

"After the trams were vandalized again this weekend, we made room for them again in the construction zone."

Landreth said the trams were first vandalized in Lot 40 when the air hoses and the brake lines were disconnected on Aug. 28.

"The first time was just horse play. Someone was just jumping up and down on the trams," he said. "This time it was a case of real property damage."

Charges are pending upon investigation, however, there are no suspects or leads at this time, Landreth said.

"I hate to think an ASU student would have done this, but we just don't know," he said. "If anyone saw the incident, we're hoping they'll come forward."

Manuel Figueroa, the program coordinator for parking and transit services, said three buses were used to shuttle students from the parking lots.

Landreth said tram service was a little slow until the buses were borrowed from Agan Bus Company at 8:15 a.m., but after the buses arrived, there was "plenty of service."

"Everyone was very patient and understanding," he said.

Teen sex not result of contraceptive availability

Now that Congress has returned from recess, the nation's birth-control advocates had best be prepared to do battle if the advances they have made are to stand.

The Senate will consider the reauthorization of the nation's family-planning program, and some abortion opponents hope to dismantle services that provide contraceptive information to teen-agers.

On the surface, their logic seems faulty. If you don't want abortions, then why wouldn't want contraceptives to prevent pregnancies?

A friend provided the answer at lunch recently. Teen-agers should not have sex, she said.

We'll take that point for granted here. High school kids, in general, fail to understand the full meaning of their actions when they make love. They also fail to know their own bodies.

My friend further reasoned that if contraceptives are made easily available to them, then teen-age girls will feel free to have sex.

OK, so her reasoning is, in fact, not faulty. However, it is not a true reflection of what is going on out there.

Supporting my friend's reasoning is the belief that teen-agers won't have sex if they are scared of becoming pregnant. She as much as said that this would be the major reason for girls to avoid having sex.

Contraceptives take away that fear. Thus, take away the contraceptive, you reestablish the fear. Reestablish the fear, and girls stop permitting boys to sleep with them.

Fear is a reason for some girls not to have sex. But many more still have sex without the safeguard of contraception. If you doubt that, look around you. Teen pregnancy is one of the nation's greatest problems.

Tom Blodgett
Editor

What the anti-family planning faction is missing that sex does not need the encouragement of contraceptives. On the surface, it is attractive enough to teen-agers that they will partake even if no form of birth control is readily available.

Planned Parenthood — a group that makes pro-lifers positively hiss, despite the fact that its primary aim is to prevent unintended pregnancies before they happen — has found that couples do not come in for birth-control counseling on average have been sexually active for six months.

Furthermore, a focus-group study conducted by the Alan Guttmacher Institute suggests that the fear of pregnancy is more likely to regulate how often some girls have sex, rather than if they are going to do so.

Consider the comments of one participant in the study, an Indianapolis teen-age girl:

"If I did (use a contraceptive), then I'd have sex more . . ."

Read it again. The girl is having sex, just not as often as she would if she were using a contraceptive.

This girl runs an extraordinarily high risk of getting pregnant. She, like many teen-agers, subscribes to the belief that her chances of conceiving are small because she has sex infrequently.

Many more girls are just going ahead and having sex regularly without any form of birth control. Their reasons vary: fear of looking immature or losing the guy, not planning on having sex or not thinking about the use of contraceptives. On average, 80 out of 100 of those girls will get pregnant.

Therein lies the true problem. Teen-agers are having sex. And many, in spite of the risk, are doing it without birth control. If contraceptives are not available, most will continue to have sex.

End result: A slew of unintended teen-age pregnancies on top of the ones we already have.

This is what we must address. It seems that if we really want to prevent such teen pregnancies, then we must ask how can we get more girls to use birth control, including the ultimate form, which is to say, "No."

A few successful programs are already out there. A Johns Hopkins University study released this summer showed that one such program reduced the number of pregnancies, abortions, even absenteeism.

Pro-lifers are on the wrong battlefield if they believe making contraceptives available will reduce the number of abortions. We are wasting time wondering if we should restrict the amount of information available.

Ignorance is the problem, not the solution.

Fired custodian states case

Editor:

On June 23, Delbert C. Overstreet Jr., the new director of the ASU Physical Plant, sent all Physical Plant employees a memo outlining a new uniform policy. He stated in essence (and I paraphrase), "From now on let's everybody except me wear the exact same shirt. To avoid confusion we will put your name on your shirt." He also made up a few rules to supplement the idea like nobody could wear anyone else's shirt, you could only wear them for official University business (not out to the movies or a dog fight) and you better keep them clean. I don't know why he decided to get the shirts first. Maybe he thought everyone's name would look funny on pants.

After I declined to get measured for my new shirt he sent me a personal letter stating that I was "expected to comply." I expected him to fire me if I didn't comply. He expected wrong; I didn't comply. I expected right; he fired me. Another letter I got justified my firing thus: "His explanation and basis for such actions are invalid and unreasonable." This made me wonder since I never gave anybody an explanation. All I ever said was "no." Mr. Overstreet must have guessed my explanation. And if he is no better at guessing than he is at expecting, I guess I better spell it out.

In this Manichean universe of ours, all is duality: good and evil, light and dark and bicameral Congress. Uniforms are also of a dual nature: the necessary and the unnecessary. Whenever men band together to effect the outcome of life or death situations, uniforms are necessary. When you have to kill someone you never met before and have no personal hate for, it is good to be reminded that you are not acting as yourself, but rather as an agent of the state.

Bill the soldier does not kill, a uniform does. Joe the policeman does not kill, a uniform does. A uniform serves to remove individual responsibility. That's what necessary uniforms do — they deindividualize people so they can do the terrible necessary things they could not do as individuals. It is a loathsome thing deserving of respect. I owe my freedom to reject an unnecessary uniform to my forebears who dies wearing necessary ones. Because of them my refusal to comply results in the termination of my job, not my life.

This other uniform, the one being forced down the throats of the Physical Plant workers, is the unnecessary uniform. It is the play uniform, the toy uniform, the mock uniform, used to remind the wearer of his or her lower station in life. Dancing bears in the circus wear little military jackets and absurd shakos, not for security purposes, but because it is laughable. To see a bear dressed like a general is a good joke. To see a custodian in a uniform is not particularly funny, but the underlying perception is the same. Here is what Joseph Addison, the British essayist, has to say in the early years of the 18th century: "A fine coat is but a livery when the person who wears it discovers no higher sense than that of a footman." Substitute uniform for livery and custodian for footman and you see what I mean. Brilliant as Addison was, he fell into the classic error of classifying people by occupation and then ranking the classes.

In my youth I knew a boy who ranked his friends according to their bestness. Instead of thinking about wholesome things like baseball, Davy Crockett, or Marilyn Monroe, he spent a lot of time shuffling his acquaintances up and down his friendship hierarchy. He told me once that if I didn't eat lunch with him I would be demoted from fifth to sixth best friend. I regret to inform the reader that he grew up to be a mid-level bureaucrat who spends a lot of time deciding what color clothes other people should wear.

Henry David Thoreau tells this story: "I have heard of a dog that barked at every stranger who approached his master's premises with clothes on, but was easily quieted by a naked thief." Addison, my schoolmate, and Thoreau's dog all made the same big mistake. Some footmen uncover enough sense to throw tea into a harbor, some naked men will steal your money and your clothes, and I didn't eat lunch with that kid. If our collective purpose is peace, love and understanding, we will not be able to accomplish it by a dog-like false classification of individuals according to race, sex, religion, age, occupation, bestness or nakedness. Once humans are classified, it is far too great a temptation for the members of one class to consider themselves better than the members of another. Once again we have apartheid, the few and the many, peasant and nobility, Brahmin and untouchable. It's no way to run a country and no way to run a university.

Thomas Jefferson's better idea was country based on the value of the individual, not just politically but as a way of thoughtful living. Jefferson also said: "The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants. It is its natural manure."

As for me, I am not going to put his shirt on my back. I hired on to sell my labor, not my body. I'd rather be an non-uniformed man without a job than Thoreau's dog with a paycheck.

Senate candidate says defense spending imprudent

By KERRY FEHR
State Press

Congress' shift from educational to defense expenditures is dangerous because "all great societies have had their success anchored in education," U.S. Senate candidate Richard Kimball said Monday.

"If people think education is too expensive, they should find out how much financing ignorance will cost," Kimball, a Democrat, told about 15 people on Cady Mall.

"Great empires have fallen because they have forgotten to invest in the inside," he said.

Kimball was on campus as part of his campaign for the Senate seat vacated by Barry Goldwater.

Kimball said if the federal government would stop spending so much money on national defense, and instead fund services for the general population, the budget would balance.

"This is the first generation that says its children should pay tomorrow for today's defense buildup," he said.

'Star Wars is possible, but it's not prudent.'
—Richard Kimball

Kimball said the senators who support the Strategic Defense Initiative know 78 percent of the money will be spent for research and development of SDI systems in their home districts.

He said he does not distrust the technical aspects of SDI, but the program would cost approximately $30 billion and wouldn't even protect against bombers, cruise missiles and submarine warfare.

"Star Wars is possible, but it's not prudent," Kimball said. He added he doesn't understand why the government would commit itself to a $700 billion national defense.

"There is no return on an MX Missile." Kimball said he supports a test ban treaty and arms control.

Also, Kimball said he supports sanctions against the South African government for its policy of apartheid because it is eventually going to be overturned.

He said the United States will look foolish when apartheid finally fails, and it is still doing business with the South African government.

ASU climatologist downplays effects of nuclear winter

By ED SCHUBERT
State Press

Nuclear winter may not be as serious a consequence of nuclear war as has been previously believed, an ASU climatologist said Monday.

"What I believe is that there will be climatic effects (from a nuclear war), but the social chaos would dwarf the climatic effects," Robert Balling said during a meeting of the Coalition for World Peace in the MU.

Balling said a nuclear winter could occur if nuclear exchanges could kick enough dust into the atmosphere to significantly reduce the amount of sunlight getting to the earth's surface.

He said that in speculating on nuclear winter, scientists had to deal with "a gigantic set of assumptions" and a lot of unanswerable questions.

Balling said one of those questions would be in which area of the world the nuclear exchanges would take place.

He said that for the purposes of his research, he is assuming the exchanges would take place between 30 to 60 degrees northern latitude — or roughly the north-south distance between Houston and Leningrad.

Balling said questions about what type of terrain would be hit by nuclear weapons would also be raised.

If primarily rural areas were hit, such as states in the Midwest where many ground-based missiles are stationed, a different kind of smoke would be put into the air than if urban areas were hit, he said.

Balling said that in urban areas there is "all sorts of refining that sends a sort of sooty smoke into the air."

"Are we going to see Nebraska on fire or the Eastern Seaboard on fire — or both?"

Explosions in the atmosphere would ignite fires that would send smoke into the lower atmosphere, while explosions at or below ground level would blast dust into the stratosphere, he said.

Balling said another question would be if dust in the atmosphere would cool the earth by keeping out the sun or have a "greenhouse effect" by trapping the earth's heat.

Balling said either effect was possible, depending on all the other variables.

He said whatever the effects of a nuclear war, they would be the result of the earth trying to maintain its balance of energy and to obey the laws of physics.

"Our planet has to obey those laws, even in a nuclear war," he said. "The energy of the earth must always be in some sort of balance."

He said he became interested in nuclear winter in 1983 when he was developing a computer study of the possible climatic effects of a Kracatoa-sized volcanic eruption.

In December of that year, Science magazine published an article on nuclear winter which started a rash of research on the topic, he said.

Balling said his attitude at the time was "The heck with volcanoes, let's study nuclear winter."

As Balling was concluding his presentation, U.S. Senate candidate Richard Kimball entered the room and was introduced by Roger Axford, chairman of the CWP, as "the man who's going to prevent nuclear winter."

Axford said Kimball, a Democrat, "is running against a man whom I define as a war monger: John McCain."

Kimball was critical of the Reagan administration's failure to respond to Soviet proposals for arms control.

"The answer to a peace proposal should never be a blank 'no,'" Kimball said.

Instead, unsatisfactory Soviet proposals should be met with counterproposals, he said.

"We are the leaders of the free world, and as leaders of the free world we should be the ones dragging the Russians kicking and screaming to the negotiating table," Kimball said.

He attacked the military-industrial complex, saying 70 percent of the money allocated for Star Wars research "is being spent in the home districts of congressmen who voted for the projects."

"If you just follow the dollars, it will clear up a lot of the hogwash that goes on in politics."

Drug tests

Home kit has limitations; accuracy questioned

By TRACY SCOTT
State Press

When home drug-test kits become available over the counter later this month, buyers should be aware of their restrictions, said the director of ASU's New Choices Program in the School of Social Work.

Robin Knox said, "People who use the kit need to be aware of its limitations, the test's margin of error and need to have a plan of action if the results are positive."

The kit will contain an instruction manual and a vial for a urine specimen.

The specimen must be sent to Chicago to be tested.

The kit is being marketed primarily for parents to test their children, which raises some serious questions, Knox said.

"How can you force someone to give you a specimen?" he asked.

A urine specimen must be obtained in a somewhat voluntary manner, Knox said.

"And what are parents going to do when they get back tests results that are positive?" he said, adding parents will not be prepared to handle the situation.

Rosanne Perricelli, a senior business major, said she would not use the kit to test her own children.

"I don't think drug tests are reliable," Perricelli said.

Knox said help of a chemical dependency specialist should be sought from the start of testing.

He said mandatory drug tests, if the results are positive, often are used by corporations to fire employees and by universities to ban college athletes from competition.

But Knox said, "Parents will not be able to fire their children."

The philosophy behind the in-home kit is to deter children from using drugs, he said.

Corporations and universities use the drug test as a monitor, and the consequence is the deterrent, he said.

"But the drug test will not be used as a deterrent by parents, but a threat," Knox said.

Alan Matheson, a College of Law professor, said parents subjecting their children to mandatory drug tests involves constitutional rights.

The Fourth Amendment protects against illegal search and seizure, but the court has not determined whether people have the personal right of choice to use illegal drugs, Matheson said.

Perricelli said, a test is not the best indicator of drug use.

She said, "I have experienced children on drugs, and there are signs to determine drug use."

Knox said once the specimens are analyzed, there is no way to ensure test result accuracy.

"There is a 7 percent margin of error under ideal circumstances, which is controlled laboratory conditions," he said.

The problem of mailing specimens complicates the process because it increases the chances of mix-ups, Knox said. The laboratory must be able to handle the specimens on a nationwide level.

Perricelli, a former lab technician, said once the specimens are mailed out there is the possibility of mix-up.

"There is also a chance that results will come back as false-positive and false-negative," she said.

A false-negative means the test registered no drugs in the specimen when actually there was, and a false-positive means the test registered drugs in the specimen when there was not.

"Often times diet pills and sleep aides will show up as positive in some drug tests," Knox said.

Since only one manufacturer produces the kit, it is impossible to get a second opinion.

Bomb demolishes Paris post office killing 1, injuring 19

PARIS (AP) — A bomb exploded Monday in a post office on the ground floor of Paris' ornate 17th-century city hall, killing a woman and injuring 19 other people.

The bomb blew out the windows and window frames on one side of the building and devastated the interior of the post office. It came four days after a bomb failed to explode on a crowded commuter train in central Paris.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the latest attack, which occurred about 7 p.m.

Paris police chief Jean Paolini said the bomb at city hall had been placed "on or under a bench in the post office."

One witness said he saw two men leave the area just before the explosion. "I saw two Arab-type men flee the post office just before the explosion," he said. "One of them was about 35 and wore a mustache."

The fire department placed the casualty toll at one dead and 19 injured, one of them seriously. A witness said the woman who died was "completely blown apart."

The plaza in front of city hall was littered with glass shards and wood splinters. Inside, panels from the post office's ceiling were hanging down, criss-crossed with ripped out wiring. Furniture was smashed, wood was burned, and the carpeting was ripped to shreds.

Premier Jacques Chirac, who also is mayor of Paris and maintains an office in the building, ironically was forced to interrupt a meeting of his internal security council at the premier's office to go to the scene.

In a statement later, Chirac called for a war against terrorism, "this leprosy of modern times."

He called on the public to help police by reporting suspicious conduct or objects.

The premier said the government would use all means at its disposal to fight terrorism, "and this will not be without consequence for those who are linked directly or indirectly to terrorism."

In a message to Chirac, President Francois Mitterrand expressed his sympathy to the families of the victims and said, "We must all witness the resolution of the country in combatting without mercy the terrorism that threatens our lives and our liberties."

A group calling itself the Committee for Solidarity with Arab Political Prisoners and the Middle East claimed responsibility for that attempt and said more attacks would follow unless its demands were met.

ASU providing curriculum development to Bhopal victims

By DAVE HODGES
State Press

Friday's multimillion dollar lawsuit filed against Union Carbide Corp. by the Indian government for the 1984 toxic gas leak in Bhopal is expected to cause "minimal" harm to an ASU vocational training center located in the city, a program manager said.

Bill Lewis, manager of the training center and an ASU professor of engineering and computer science, said vocational training is being offered to victims in Bhopal by a joint effort between Union Carbide and ASU.

At least 2,083 people were killed and more than 200,000 were injured after methyl isocyanate leaked from Union Carbide's pesticide plant in Bhopal on Dec. 3, 1984.

After the disaster, Lewis and K.A. Vijaisimh, a faculty associate in the computer science department and a native of India, wanted to do something to help the Indian people, Lewis said.

According to Lewis, after presenting a proposal of a vocational center to benefit the people of Bhopal, ASU received a $2 million grant from Union Carbide in April 1985 to establish the center.

After feasibility studies, classes were started for the deaf and blind in June.

"The center in Bhopal is not an ASU campus," Lewis said. "It is being conducted by a non-profit organization. ASU is only providing curriculum development.

"ASU is not directly involved in management," he said. "There are no state funds being used for this project."

According to Lewis, only one ASU faculty member is presently in Bhopal. Ernest Hirata, director of ASU's technology division, is in India developing curriculum for classes in welding, which are scheduled to begin next week.

The school is being managed by Bhopal resident Indra Iyengar, a disciple of Nobel Prize-winner Mother Theresa, and is being staffed entirely by Bhopal residents.

About 24 students attend the vision and hearing-impaired classes. Twenty people are expected to enroll in the welding class.

Richard Olson, ASU director of international programs, said this is an unprecedented project for any university.

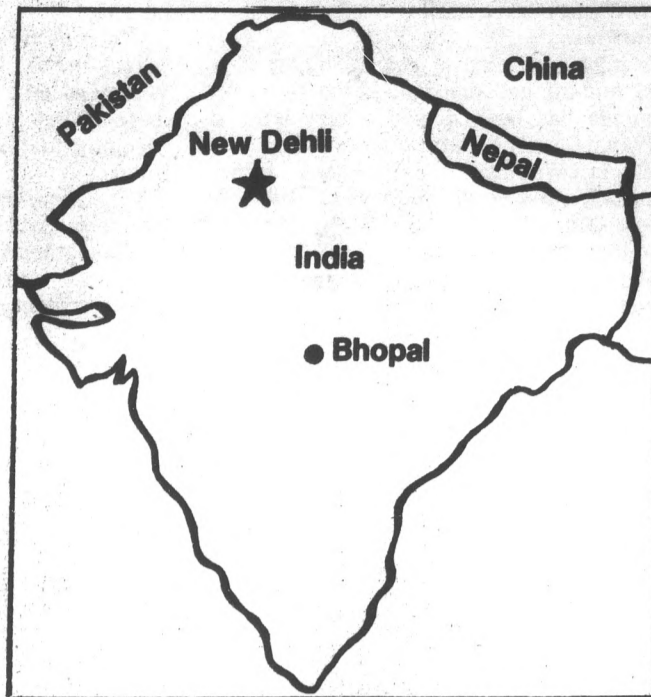

"The program is unique," Olson said. "There's never been anything like this by this University and probably any university."

"It's a challenge to mount the program and keep it going. I don't see anything like it being replicated in the world."

Lewis said, "It's not your typical University project."

"It (the center) has the potential for a lot of publicity, but we're trying to avoid it for now. Maybe publicity would be more important once we're established. We're still just starting out."

"It's purely a humanitarian gesture."

police report

University police reported the following incidents during the 24-hour period ending 7:30 a.m. Monday:

•A hard boiled egg exploded in a student's face in Room 225 at Manzanita Residence Hall.

Police said the student was cooking an egg in a cup of water in her microwave oven, and as she took it out, the egg burst open and hurled egg shell into her face.

The Tempe fire department responded, and the student was taken by American Ambulance to Tempe St. Lukes Hospital, where she was treated and released for facial burns, police said.

•Two trams are out of service because of vandalism, police reported.

Tram No. 6 sustained a broken trailer and smashed front windows and tail lights, police said.

Tram No. 7 sustained broken front windows and headlights, police said.

The damage is estimated at $1,380.

wo concrete garbage containers located at the Life Sciences Center and Palm Walk sustained $400 in damages, after someone used a blunt object to knock out large chunks of concrete, police said.

•The door to Room 1420 at Manzanita Residence Hall was kicked in during a party in the next room, police said.

There are no suspects and nothing was reported stolen from the room, police said. Damage is estimated at $50.

•An unlocked men's silver Nishiki 10-speed, valued at $100, was stolen from the north side of the MU, police said.

•Police said a resident assistant at Palo Verde West Residence Hall woke to find her window sprayed with "Gay RA" in red paint. Damage is estimated at $50.

•A Mercedes hood ornament, valued at $50, was stolen from a student's Mercedes while it was parked in Lot 51, police said.

Judge denies new trial for pilot convicted of manslaughter

By DARRIN HOSTETLER
State Press

A pilot convicted of manslaughter in a 1985 mid-air collision that killed two ASU students has been denied a new trial, a Yavapai County deputy attorney said.

Ethan Wolfinger said Judge James Hancock refused the request of Robin S. Thompson, 21, for a retrial in Yavapai County Superior Court.

Wolfinger said Thompson will appear in court again on Sept. 19, for a mitigation hearing.

"Thompson will attempt to persuade the judge to be lenient on the sentence," Wolfinger said. "In a mitigation hearing a defendant submits letters of recommendation and such with that aim in mind."

Thompson, who will be sentenced on Sept. 29, faces up to 10 years in prison for each manslaughter charge and more than one year for each charge of reckless endangerment.

Suanne Rudley, an attorney for Thompson, said that no decision has been made on an appeal.

Thompson was convicted on two counts of manslaughter and two counts of reckless endangerment on July 2, stemming from the collision on April 14, 1985, near Camp Verde.

The Piper Cherokee 140 that Thompson was piloting struck the tail section of a Cessna 172, carrying ASU students Paul Bjornstadt, Kim Marble, Samantha Fraser and Timothy Streit.

Fraser and Streit were thrown from the Cessna's fuselage and plummeted 6,500 feet to their deaths.

Bjornstadt and Marble were injured when the remainder of their plane crashed into a hillside.

Thompson and his three passengers were not injured.

Three cheers for banking convenience!

What with classes, studying, and the occasional extracurricular activity, a little convenience in the finance department would certainly be welcome. And Valley Bank gives you convenience three ways.

Start with a choice of checking accounts aimed at limiting your hassles and your expenses. There's ValueChecking™—the account that gives you more value for your money. Or you might prefer a checking account designed expressly for students. We call it the Student Express Account. You'll call it terrific. Because it's an account that has no minimum balance requirement and a low annual fee that makes it about half the cost of most regular checking accounts.

Best of all, every Valley Bank checking account gives you access to 150 Valley National Banking Machines all over Arizona, for self-service banking around the state and around the clock.

Need more convenience? How about two Banking Machines right on campus, just outside the Bookstore, for quick cash between classes or after dark.

And there's a full-service Valley Bank branch (with two more Banking Machines) located right around the corner, at 826 E. Apache Boulevard, where you can open your checking account and take care of all your other financial needs.

Saving you time and saving you money. That's the value of convenience. And only Valley Bank gives you convenience worth cheering about.

Space Shuttle delays leave commercial satellites up in air

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's decision to force most commercial payloads off the space shuttle to a non-existent private U.S. launch industry is prompting communications satellite owners to consider France, China and even the Soviet Union for sending their cargoes aloft.

The Aug. 15 White House announcement has thrown the satellite industry into confusion. Some satellite firms, with multimillion-dollar investments, will be favored with a shuttle launch; others will have to buy expensive rockets from American firms that won't even have them for at least two years or will have to stand in line overseas.

The government's choices are to be made in a few weeks.

"We don't know whether we are on the shuttle or off the shuttle for launch," said

Troy D. Ellington, GTE's vice president for satellite programs. "We don't know what the availability of commercial launchers is or will be."

When Challenger exploded Jan. 28, NASA had 44 commercial payloads under contract for future flights, mostly communications satellites. It had collected $190 million in advance payments and has made no refunds.

The backlog was created by the two-year shuttle shutdown and the priority which military cargoes will get when flight resumes. Only 15 commercial satellites will be launched from the shuttle through 1992.

"Had we had any hint that the government of the United States would seriously consider abrogating contracts entered in good faith, we wouldn't have made those deals," said John E. Koehler, president of Hughes Communications, Inc., which holds contracts to launch 10 commercial and one military communications satellite from the shuttle.

Before the accident, commercial satellites were to be mixed on the shuttle with military and scientific payloads. The flight rate was to rise to 24 a year and — because the shuttle was the country's prime launch vehicle — no U.S. firm was manufacturing rockets for private use.

Initially, the redesigned shuttles will make only four flights a year.

President Reagan promised that the private sector "with its ingenuity and cost effectiveness" would take over where NASA left off. But Otto Hoernig, vice president of American Satellite Company, said that just adds more uncertainty, because "I don't think there is a large enough commercial satellite base to support a commercial expendable launch vehicle industry."

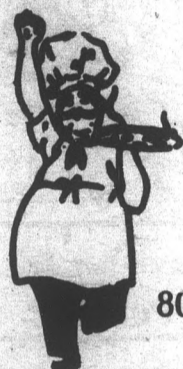

Charles D. Walker, a McDonnell Douglas engineer who has flown in the shuttle three times with his company's drug-purifying equipment, said the launch vehicle industry will find survival tough without government subsidy.

The builder of Titan rockets for the military, Martin Marietta, announced last week it had signed its first private agreement — to fly a satellite for Federal Express in 1989. General Dynamics, manufacturer of Atlas and Atlas Centaur, has said it will sell launch contracts, but McDonnell Douglas has not decided whether to enter the commercial market with its Delta rocket.

Two major aerospace firms — Martin Marietta, which built Titan rockets for the Air Force, and General Dynamics, manufacturer of Atlas and Atlas Centaur — say they'll sell launch contracts.

Agency might sue expanding utilities

TUCSON (AP) — The chairman of the Arizona Corporation Commission says the agency might sue some utilities that are expanding into real estate, banking and other non-regulated, non-utility businesses.

"I assume we will end up in litigation," Commissioner Renz Jennings said. "We will take it up as far as we have to in the Legislature and in the courts."

Jennings spoke Sunday during a discussion of the purchase of 80 percent of E.C. Garcia & Co., a Tucson real estate investment firm, by a subsidiary of Tucson Electric Power Co. The purchase took place in May 1985 and April 1986, but was not publicized until recently.

Jennings said the Arizona Legislature and the state attorney general ought to conduct antitrust investigations of TEP's entry into real estate, Arizona Public Service Co.'s interest in a Phoenix site for developing a shopping mall and the entry into banking by AZP Group Inc., APS' holding company.

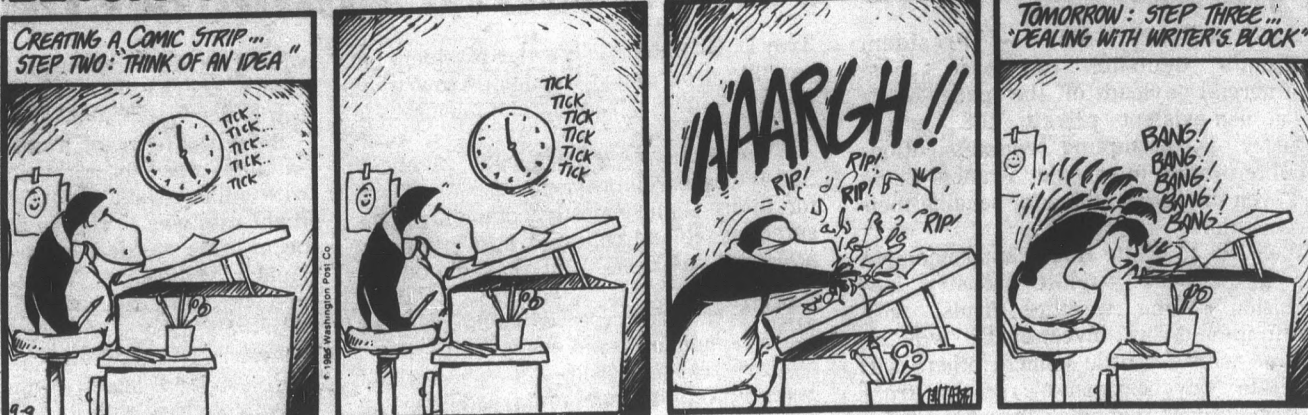

Or the state should consider limiting the amount of non-regulated subsidiary holdings that a utility company may own, Jennings said.

Jennings said the commission was concerned that utility customers may end up footing the bill for utilities' non-utility activities.

Barry Burdett, a TEP spokesman, said TEP subsidiaries can invest in other companies because they are non-regulated private enterprises.

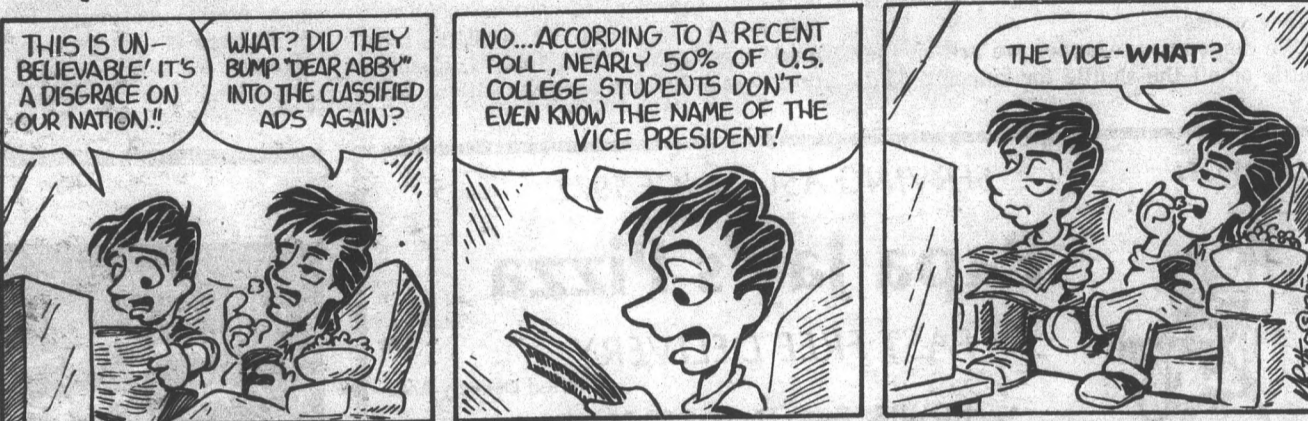

Also, TEP's non-utility subsidiaries work in the favor of ratepayers, Burdett said, because they improve the financial health of the utility and reduce the frequency of rate increases.

Gorbachev seeks 'headway' in Soviet-American talks

MOSCOW (AP) — Kremlin leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said Monday he still wants another superpower summit and that a foreign ministers' meeting scheduled this month will show "whether the Soviet-American dialogue has a chance to advance further."

Since the summit in Geneva, Gorbachev said, the two nations "have not moved even an inch closer to an arms reduction agreement."

Gorbachev's comments were made in reply to questions from the Czechoslovak newspaper Rude Pravo. They were distributed by the Soviet news agency Tass and read over national television.

Commenting on the possibility of a new summit with President Reagan, Gorbachev said, "We are for holding a Soviet-American summit, a summit that would be marked by notable headway in solving if only one or two of the substantial problems of international security."

Gorbachev said he does not take an "all or nothing" attitude toward a second meeting with Reagan, but added, "There is no sense in holding a meeting for the sake of 'nothing.'"

At their first meeting in Geneva, Reagan and Gorbachev agreed to meet again in the United States this year and in the Soviet Union next year.

But the Kremlin has delayed setting a date for the 1986 meeting, saying it wants assurance of concrete progress in arms control first.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze are scheduled to meet in Washington Sept. 19-20, to talk about the new summit.

They were supposed to have met in May, but the Soviets canceled the meeting after the U.S. bombing of Libya in April.

The Soviet arrest of American correspondent Nicholas Daniloff on espionage charges has prompted speculation that it could endanger a summit this year. In Washington administration officials said cancellation of the Shevardnadze-Shultz planning session was one of the options Reagan was considering as a response to the arrest.

Gorbachev said the Soviets "expect that the coming meeting between Comrade Shevardnadze and the U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz can clarify where we are located now and whether the Soviet-American dialogue has a chance to advance further."

"If one proceeds from the view that a moratorium is unacceptable, if the question of medium-range missiles in Europe is blocked, if strategic arms are to be upgraded and so on, then what is there to agree about," Gorbachev said.

"A summit meeting would hardly be of any use in the atmosphere of a feverish arms race, of the spiralling of tension, in an atmosphere where the existing treaties are being abandoned," he said.

"And nothing would be easier than to use the meeting for misleading people, for lulling the public with pretenses that everything is all right while continuing a dangerous policy," Gorbachev added.

Babbitt addresses water quality before Iowa committee

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt Monday attacked federal environmental officials for moving too slowly to counter pollution caused by farm chemicals.

But he warned Iowa legislators to use caution before approving a state-run disposal.

Babbitt, appearing before a legislative committee studying water quality issues, said the Environmental Protection Agency has failed to carry its share of the load.

"The EPA simply has not moved fast enough," Babbitt said. While much of the responsibility for regulating farm chemicals and dealing with farm chemical contamination lies with the states, he said, only the federal government can set standards and do basic research into the dangers of the chemicals.

"It's an extremely complex and expensive process," Babbitt said. "The EPA is simply not moving fast enough to establish those standards."

But he warned the panel, a joint House-Senate committee now in its second year, that state lawmakers eventually will have to deal with the problem of how to stop the gradual poisoning of groundwater supplies by farm chemicals.

"Groundwater is a unique state and local issue," Babbitt said. "It's right in our hands. There's nowhere else to go. The buck stops squarely at the state capital."

Farm chemical pollution is a touchy and growing issue in Iowa, as one recent survey showed half the wells in one northwestern section of the state were polluted with various pesticides and fertilizers. Lawmakers last session decided to spend more than $1 million in an effort to convince farmers to use better application methods and flirted briefly with slapping a tax on the chemicals.

Babbitt said he wouldn't rule out such a tax, but "there are a lot of good arguments on every side."

Babbitt was called before the panel largely because of an Arizona law passed last year which sets tight new regulations on water pollution, including application of farm chemicals. That law has been called by some a model for states which are worried about gradual pollution of groundwater supplies.

He argued that state officials wrestling with the issue should first develop a political consensus, a move he said is made easier because cleaning up water supplies is overwhelmingly popular.

"It's a good political issue," Babbitt said. "It's important, and it relates to everybody. Everybody can relate to drinking water out of the tap and not wanting to get cancer."

The issue of a state-run hazardous waste site has also been debated in Iowa, where lawmakers have authorized such a site but earmarked no money.

Panel explores ethics of new reproductive technology

Committee voices concern over surrogate motherhood

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most new infertility treatments are morally acceptable but the practice of one woman carrying another's fetus should be restricted, a medical ethics committee said Monday.

In the first major report examining the ethics of new reproductive technology, a committee of doctors, lawyers and ethicists said practices such as artificial insemination and using donor sperm and eggs for producing test tube babies is morally acceptable in most cases.

However, the panel said some other procedures should be classified as experimental and not used routinely until more is known about them. These include using frozen eggs, or ova, and using surrogate mothers to carry someone else's fetus until birth.

The committee, established by the American Fertility Society, which represents 10,000 doctors, scientists and specialists dealing with fertility, said it had "serious ethical reservations" about surrogate motherhood.

The group called for "intensive scrutiny" of the practice because of legal and ethical concerns and because so much is unknown about the physical and psychological effects of the practice on the mothers and offspring involved.

The issue of surrogate mothers caused the most discussion in the committee, said its chairman, Dr. Howard W. Jones Jr. of Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk.

Jones is one of the country's leading experts on in vitro fertilization, the formal name for producing test tube babies.

The committee said it was ethically unacceptable to use surrogate motherhood for non-medical reasons, such as the convenience of not carrying a fetus to term.

The panel concluded it would be preferable for surrogates "not to receive payment beyond compensation for expenses and their inconvenience."

Lori B. Andrews, an attorney on the panel who is medical law project director for the American Bar Foundation, estimated there are about 100 surrogate mother cases annually in the United States.

These cases typically are arranged by people who charge to match couples with surrogates and are outside the experimental guidelines recommended by the committee, she said.

If surrogate motherhood becomes more common, the committee recommended action to settle custody conflicts. In a recent New Jersey case, a surrogate is seeking custody of a child conceived by artificial insemination after she agreed to take $10,000 from a couple to carry the child.

"If surrogate motherhood turns out to be useful," the committee said, "a change in the law would be appropriate for assurance that the couple who contract with a surrogate mother are viewed as the legal parents."

The committee said in vitro fertilization is morally acceptable and offers benefits that outweigh risks to both the couple and the offspring.

The method is used when a woman's eggs cannot reach the part of her body where they can be fertilized and implanted in her womb.

This technique involves removing an ovum from a potential mother and fertilizing it outside her body with sperm. The fertilized egg then is put into the woman's womb where it may grow into a fetus.

Dedicated Parker hopes to get to Rose Bowl

By STEVEN ADAMS
Contributing Writer

In Division I college football, experience only comes through dedication.

Practicing hours a day in 100-degree-plus temperatures and being put through grueling workouts at Camp Tontozona would cause most people to pack their bags and leave, but these are realities that Anthony Parker must face as a member of the ASU football squad.

"It's rough right now working so hard," Parker said, "but we will definitely be ready for the home opener."

The football opener against Michigan

State is not the only game Parker has prepared for this season.

Last year, in the UA contest, Parker was involved in a play that proved costly for the Sun Devils.

Parker was deep to receive a punt. The turnover he made resulted in a UA score that lost the game for the Devils, costing the team a Rose Bowl berth.

"A UA player pried the ball out of my hands," Parker said. "It rolled into the end zone."

"I think about it a lot, and it is still a very sensitive issue with me. It has made me work a lot harder."

Parker said this year the whole team is ready for UA, as well as for the rest of the schedule.

"Our No. 1 goal is to get to the Rose Bowl this year," Parker said, adding that beating UA was crucial to achieving that goal.

"We have to beat UA," he said. "They have always been an obstacle for us, but we have to beat them this year."

Parker added that, looking at the teams statistically, ASU is much better, but that UA always seems to find some way to win.

UA has defeated the Sun Devils the past four seasons, but it will not be a crucial game this season unless the Devils defeat some of the other Pac-10 teams on their schedule.

"The key games will be against UCLA, Washington and UA," Parker said. If the Devils can get by these powerhouses, Parker thinks the Rose Bowl is well within their grasp.

"Of course, that's a long way down the road," Parker said. "I just have to concentrate on one game at a time."

Parker added that freedom from injury is a key factor in the Devils' Rose Bowl hopes.

"The offense is much improved over last year, as well as the defense still being

Tailback and punt returner Anthony Parker, shown here in action last year, hopes the Sun Devils can make it past UA to the Rose Bowl.

At last College, pro football season returns: thank God

Thank God football season is finally here again.

Baseball is all right, but the season seems to last forever, and when there are no close races left, it really makes the "Game of the Week" seem more like the "Game of the Week," especially when it's the Dodgers and the Mets for six weeks in a row.

Don't get me wrong. I like baseball, and when the playoffs start, even though the Giants won't be there, I'll watch with quite a bit of interest. But baseball is still no substitute for football.

And after a close analysis of the first full-fledged weekend of football action, with both the pros and colleges in action, there are some things we can surmise:

Those who said UCLA had a chance to win the national championship were slightly off base, to say the least. The Bruins were horrible in Saturday's 38-3 drubbing at the hands of Oklahoma. And Oklahoma is at least as good, probably better, than people expected.

The national championship should be decided Sept. 27 when the Sooners travel to Miami to meet the Hurricanes.

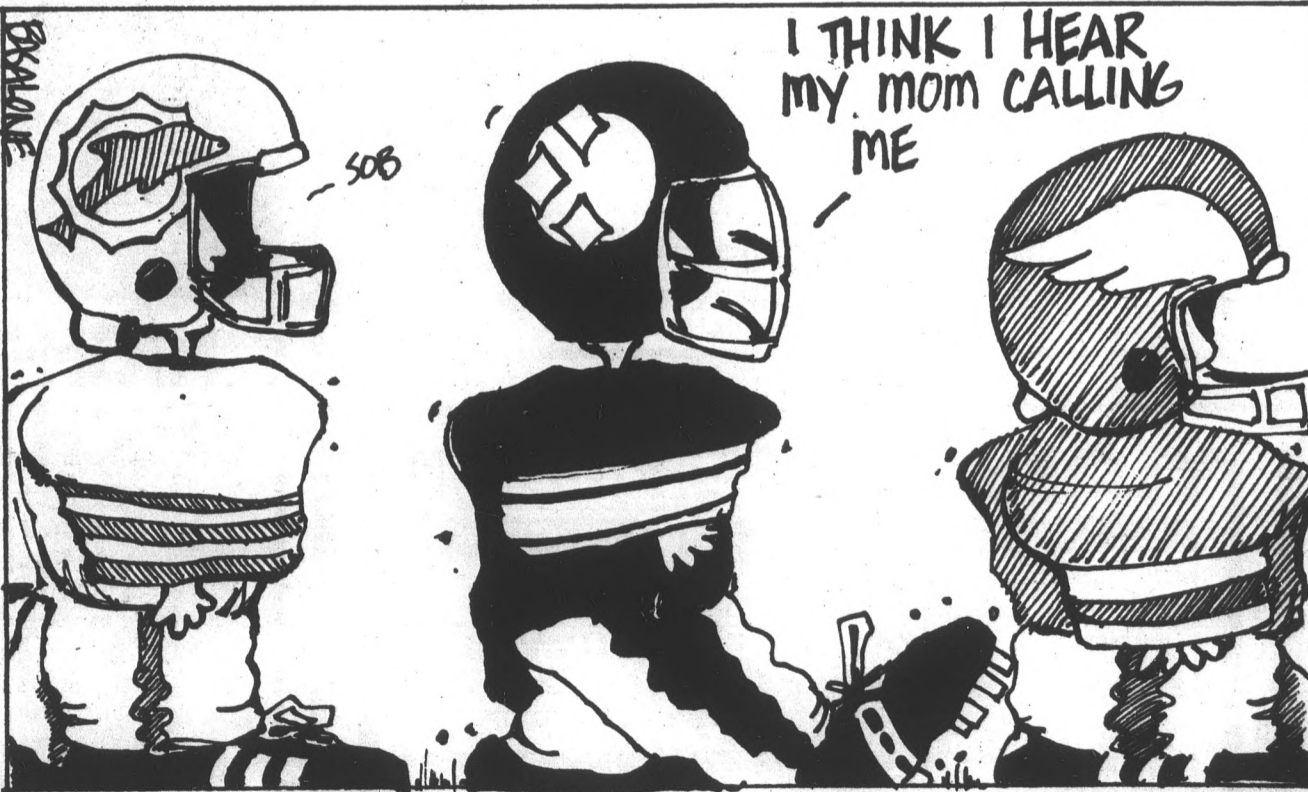

UA proved once again that it can run up a big score on a mediocre non-conference opponent. Ho-hum. Play a real non-conference schedule, then pop off, Wildcats.

Vinny Testaverde will win the Heisman Trophy this year. He has been outstanding in his first two games, including Saturday's 23-15 win at Florida. His only real competition should come from Michigan State's Lorenzo White. There are those who are touting Michigan quarterback Jim Harbaugh as the best in the land, but I don't think he can carry Testaverde's jock. Think about it — a Michigan quarterback winning the Heisman? Get serious.

But the colleges were not the only ones in action this weekend. The pros got things going in earnest, and there were some things that were readily apparent.

Buddy Ryan is in big trouble in Philadelphia. The mouth that roared got his rear end handed to him by the Redskins, 41-14. The Eagle defense gave up 433 yards in total offense, and Ryan still predicted a playoff berth for his club.

They must be laughing hysterically in Chicago, where the Eagles have to play next week. Look for the Bears to come awfully close to the 50 point mark against the Eagles. Ryan's 46 defense only works when you have the kind of personnel the Bears do.

Speaking of the Bears, they looked good, but far from unbeatable. The offense was very good, but last year's Bears would not have given up 31 points to the Browns. However, Chicago is still the team to beat in the NFC.

One team that should challenge is San Francisco. The 49ers have a revamped secondary with two rookies starting at the corners. Sunday they intercepted seven of Tampa Bay quarterback Steve DeBerg's passes en route to a 31-7 win.

Now granted, nobody is ever going to confuse DeBerg with Johnny Unitas, but the Niners had to be doing something right. The 49ers will find out how good they are Sunday when they play the Rams in Los Angeles.

A team that was not good Sunday was Miami. They broke up the "Killer B's," but alas, they forgot to replace them with anyone, and the 50 points the defense gave up was the most ever for a Shula-coached team.

San Diego went through the Dolphin defense like water through a sieve, but look for the Chargers to do that to a lot of strong. But if we get lots of injuries, that could play a big factor in how far we can go this season."

Turn to TAYLOR, page 17.

Parker

Parker, a native of Tempe, has been playing with the Sun Devils for three seasons, two of which have been as starting tailback. He feels the best thing he has to offer the team is his experience.

"Since I have been playing here three years, I think my experience is my best asset," he said, "especially over a player who is just starting and learning the system."

But Parker doesn't let his game experience go to his head.

"Last year I had a lot of pressures," he said. "I think they really started getting to me. But this year I have just reshaped my thinking and look ahead to doing my best in each game."

"I am just a team player. I'm a hard worker willing to put in the time to make myself better."

Parker also added that he was a coachable player.

Someday, Parker would like to go on to play professional football, but right now he has two more seasons at ASU to concentrate on before he can think of that.

"Sure I would like to play in the pros," he said, "but that isn't something I really think about too much right now."

One thing Parker is thinking about right now is the possibility of breaking the NCAA record for best average punt return.

"It's not a goal I've thought about too much, but it would be nice to accomplish," he said.

Parker is currently working on a degree in physical education.

"For now I'll continue to do my best in both football and school, and worry about everything else later," he said.

teams. With Dan Fouts, Wes Chandler, Gary Anderson, Lionel James, Charlie Joiner and Kellen Winslow, San Diego has a lot of ways to make the opposition look bad.

The era of good teams in Pittsburgh is over. The Steelers are just brutal, and will finish last in their division, and their 30-0 loss to Seattle is an indication of just how bad they are. Mark Malone is not going to blossom into a championship quarterback, and Louis Lipps and John Stallworth can't do anything without someone to get them the ball. It couldn't happen to a nicer bunch of guys.

Keep a close eye on the Browns, who could win the AFC title. Their defense is strong, and Bernie Kosar is much improved over last year. Nobody has a better running game than Cleveland.

There is no more question about which division is the strongest. It's the AFC West in a landslide. All five teams are strong enough to go to the playoffs and three of them probably will. The worst division is the NFC Central, hands down. With the Bucs, Lions, Vikings and Packers in their division, the entire year will be just a warmup for the Bears. You'll never go broke underestimating the teams in this division.

Regents approve deletion of NAU hockey team

Travel expenses for team too costly

FLAGSTAFF (AP) — Acting on the recommendation of a departing athletic director, the Arizona Board of Regents approved the dissolution of NAU's hockey program Friday.

Athletic Director Gary Walker, who resigned over the weekend, said Monday he recommended deleting hockey because of escalating costs and Gov. Bruce Babbitt's request for 6 percent budget cuts at the state's three universities.

At their meeting in Tucson, the regents approved reductions of 3.25 percent at each unit.

The Lumberjacks' icers made their varsity debut in the 1981-82 season.

The team enjoyed some success — improving from 6-18 in its first season to 21-6 by 1983-84 — but the program ran heavily in the red from a lack of spectator revenue, a suitable ice arena in Flagstaff, and road trips to points like Anchorage, Alaska, and Marquette, Mich.

The squad played its home games in Tempe last season, and NAU President Eugene M. Hughes suspended the program in March for one year.

Hughes said then that NAU hockey would survive only if the student body voted for a campus arena, and if boosters and other Lumberjack fans contributed $1 million for the arena and an additional $175,000 annually for three years to defray expenses.

Walker said he was stepping down to spend more time with his family and for other personal reasons.

Hughes said Walker will not be replaced. Instead, he said, former Walker assistants David Brown and Tom Jurich will be given additional responsibilities to cover for the absence of a single administrator.

Bears' McMahon to sit 3 weeks due to right shoulder separation

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Quarterback Jim McMahon will be lost to the Super Bowl champion Chicago Bears for at least three weeks because of a shoulder injury.

McMahon, the team's "free spirit," suffered the injury in the fourth quarter of Sunday's 41-31 victory over the Cleveland Browns in the NFL season opener for both teams.

"It's a second-degree separation in the right shoulder," trainer Fred Caito said. "He did not dislocate it. He will miss about three weeks."

Caito said X-rays were negative and that McMahon had movement of the arm.

"At the end of this week he will begin to work with weights, and in 10 to 14 days he will do some throwing," Caito said. "There was no damage to the rotator cuff. It is tender and sore and we will treat it with care."

Caito said that a first-degree shoulder injury is mild and takes about a week to heal. A second-degree injury has pain and swelling and takes three weeks, and a third-degree injury is a severe separation that can take six weeks.

Coach Mike Ditka said Mike Tomczak, a second-year pro, will start Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles.

"Three weeks is optimistic," Ditka of the recovery time for McMahon's injury. "If he can pop it (the ball) in three weeks, he'll be back in there."

"I'm disappointed for Jim's sake; it's not a good situation for us," Ditka said. "Hopefully we're not a team that depends

'Let's get on with the treatment, get well and get back to work.'

— Jim McMahon

on one man that much. But so much revolves around the quarterback.

"Jim is not injury prone, it's just that crazy things happen to him."

McMahon has had a history of injuries. But in games that he has started, the Bears have a 27-4 record.

McMahon was in camp early Monday, but left for New York to appear on a talk show Monday night and was not available for comment.

"He said, 'Let's get on with the treatment, get well and get back to work' when he learned of the situation," Caito said.

Caito said McMahon's arm would be in a sling for several days for comfort and that he would receive anti-inflammatory medication.

McMahon was injured when Cleveland defensive end Reggie Camp fell on him. He remained in the game for two more plays before taking himself out.

College gridgers battle to lead AP poll ranking

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma remained a runaway leader Monday in the Associated Press' first regular-season college football poll while Miami, Fla., nosed out idle Michigan for second place, setting up a possible shootout between No. 1 and No. 2 later this month.

Oklahoma's impressive 38-3 drubbing of fourth-ranked UCLA earned the Sooners 55 of 59 first-place votes and 1,175 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of 59 sports writers and sportscasters.

Meanwhile, Miami upped its record to 2-0 by defeating No. 13 Florida 23-15. The Hurricanes received one first-place vote and 1,050 points in climbing from third place to second. Oklahoma visits Miami on Sept. 27 in an attempt to avenge the only loss the Sooners suffered en route to the 1985 national championship.

Michigan, which opens its season Saturday at Notre Dame, slipped from second place to third with one first-place vote and 1,026 points.

UCLA's embarrassment at the hands of Oklahoma dropped the Bruins from fourth place to 16th. Alabama, a 42-10 winner over Vanderbilt, moved up from fifth to fourth with 986 points.

Penn State crushed Temple 45-15 and rose from sixth to fifth with one first-place vote and 952 points. The other first-place ballot went to Nebraska, which trounced No. 11 Florida State 34-17 and jumped from eighth to sixth with 896 points.

Texas A & M, which gets underway Saturday night at LSU, remained in seventh place with 868 points while Tennessee downed New Mexico 35-21 and went from 10th to eighth with 713 points.

Auburn, No. 14 in the preseason poll, cracked the Top Ten by whipping Tennessee-Chattanooga 42-14. The Tigers received 509 points. That put them seven points ahead of Ohio State, which slipped from ninth to 10th with 502 points after losing to Alabama 16-10 in the Kickoff Classic on Aug. 27.

The new rankings include the same 20 teams as the preseason poll, with some rearranging of positions.

The Second Ten consists of Brigham Young, Baylor, Florida, LSU, Florida State, UCLA, Washington, Arkansas, Georgia and Michigan State.

The preseason Second Ten listed Florida State, Baylor, Florida, Auburn, LSU, Georgia and Washington tied for 16th, BYU, Arkansas and Michigan State.

Bears' McMahon to sit 3 weeks due to right shoulder separation

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Quarterback Jim McMahon will be lost to the Super Bowl champion Chicago Bears for at least three weeks because of a shoulder injury.

McMahon, the team's "free spirit," suffered the injury in the fourth quarter of Sunday's 41-31 victory over the Cleveland Browns in the NFL season opener for both teams.

"It's a second-degree separation in the right shoulder," trainer Fred Caito said. "He did not dislocate it. He will miss about three weeks."

Caito said X-rays were negative and that McMahon had movement of the arm.

"At the end of this week he will begin to work with weights, and in 10 to 14 days he will do some throwing," Caito said. "There was no damage to the rotator cuff. It is tender and sore and we will treat it with care."

Caito said that a first-degree shoulder injury is mild and takes about a week to heal. A second-degree injury has pain and swelling and takes three weeks, and a third-degree injury is a severe separation that can take six weeks.

Coach Mike Ditka said Mike Tomczak, a second-year pro, will start Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles.

"Three weeks is optimistic," Ditka of the recovery time for McMahon's injury. "If he can pop it (the ball) in three weeks, he'll be back in there."

"I'm disappointed for Jim's sake; it's not a good situation for us," Ditka said. "Hopefully we're not a team that depends on one man that much. But so much revolves around the quarterback.

'Let's get on with the treatment, get well and get back to work.'
— Jim McMahon

"Jim is not injury prone, it's just that crazy things happen to him."

McMahon has had a history of injuries. But in games that he has started, the Bears have a 27-4 record.

McMahon was in camp early Monday, but left for New York to appear on a talk show Monday night and was not available for comment.

"He said, 'Let's get on with the treatment, get well and get back to work' when he learned of the situation," Caito said.

Caito said McMahon's arm would be in a sling for several days for comfort and that he would receive anti-inflammatory medication.

McMahon was injured when Cleveland defensive end Reggie Camp fell on him. He remained in the game for two more plays before taking himself out.

College gridgers battle to lead AP poll ranking

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma remained a runaway leader Monday in the Associated Press' first regular-season college football poll while Miami, Fla., nosed out idle Michigan for second place, setting up a possible shootout between No. 1 and No. 2 later this month.

Oklahoma's impressive 38-3 drubbing of fourth-ranked UCLA earned the Sooners 55 of 59 first-place votes and 1,175 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of 59 sports writers and sportscasters.

Meanwhile, Miami upped its record to 2-0 by defeating No. 13 Florida 23-15. The Hurricanes received one first-place vote and 1,050 points in climbing from third place to second. Oklahoma visits Miami on Sept. 27 in an attempt to avenge the only loss the Sooners suffered en route to the 1985 national championship.

Michigan, which opens its season Saturday at Notre Dame, slipped from second place to third with one first-place vote and 1,026 points.

UCLA's embarrassment at the hands of Oklahoma dropped the Bruins from fourth place to 16th. Alabama, a 42-10 winner over Vanderbilt, moved up from fifth to fourth with 986 points.

Penn State crushed Temple 45-15 and rose from sixth to fifth with one first-place vote and 952 points. The other first-place ballot went to Nebraska, which trounced No. 11 Florida State 34-17 and jumped from eighth to sixth with 896 points.

Texas A & M, which gets underway Saturday night at LSU, remained in seventh place with 868 points while Tennessee downed New Mexico 35-21 and went from 10th to eighth with 713 points.

Auburn, No. 14 in the preseason poll, cracked the Top Ten by whipping Tennessee-Chattanooga 42-14. The Tigers received 509 points. That put them seven points ahead of Ohio State, which slipped from ninth to 10th with 502 points after losing to Alabama 16-10 in the Kickoff Classic on Aug. 27.

The new rankings include the same 20 teams as the preseason poll, with some rearranging of positions.

The Second Ten consists of Brigham Young, Baylor, Florida, LSU, Florida State, UCLA, Washington, Arkansas, Georgia and Michigan State.

The preseason Second Ten listed Florida State, Baylor, Florida, Auburn, LSU, Georgia and Washington tied for 16th, BYU, Arkansas and Michigan State.

FINALLY A FREE FLIGHT PLAN JUST FOR STUDENTS. YOU WON'T GET A BREAK LIKE THIS ONCE YOU'RE OUT IN THE REAL WORLD.

INTRODUCING COLLEGIATE FLIGHTBANK, FROM CONTINENTAL AND NEW YORK AIR.

If you're a full-time student at an accredited college or university you can join our Collegiate FlightBank.<sup>SM</sup> You'll receive a membership card and number that will allow you to get 10% off Continental and New York Air's already low fares. In addition, you'll get a one-time certificate good for $25 off any domestic roundtrip flight. Plus, you'll be able to earn trips to places like Florida, Denver, Los Angeles, even London and the South Pacific. Because every time you fly you'll earn mileage towards a free trip. And if you sign up now you'll also receive 3 free issues of BusinessWeek Careers magazine.

Introducing Collegiate FlightBank.<sup>SM</sup> Earn free trips to New York, San Francisco, Boston, Washington, D.C., Miami, Chicago, or Denver. Plus, Australia, Honolulu, London, and Mexico. All told, 74 cities worldwide.

SIGN UP YOUR FRIENDS AND EARN A PORSCHE.

But what's more, for the 10 students on every campus who enroll the most active student flyers from their college there are some great rewards: 1 free trip wherever Continental or New York Air flies in the mainland U.S., Mexico or Canada.

Or the grand prize, for the number one student referral champion in the nation: a Porsche and one year of unlimited coach air travel.

And how do you get to be the referral champion? Just sign up as many friends as possible, and make sure your membership number is on their application. In order to be eligible for any prize you and your referrals must sign up before 12/31/86 and each referral must fly 3 segments on Continental or New York Air before 6/15/87. And you'll not only get credit for the enrollment, you'll also get 500 bonus miles.

So cut the coupon, and send it in now. Be sure to include your current full time student ID number. That way it'll only cost you $10 for one year ($15 after 12/31/86) and $40 for four years ($60 after 12/31/86). Your membership kit, including referral forms, will arrive in 3 to 4 weeks. If you have a credit card, you can call us at 1-800-255-4321 and enroll even faster.

Now more than ever it pays to stay in school.
