

Student court asked to open club funding

By KERRY FEHR
State Press

The co-chairman of the Lesbian Gay Academic Union asked the Associated Students Supreme Court Monday night to reopen the fall funding process for clubs and organizations during a hearing for the LGAU's suit against ASASU.

Steve Cronk also requested that the court strike two articles in the bylaws that prohibited the LGAU and at least three other organizations from being funded last month.

A ruling is expected by next Monday.

No representatives from ASASU attended the trial because the LGAU petitioned against the constitution and bylaws, but not ASASU officers.

According to the bylaws, the senate shall not fund any activity that aligns ASASU into biased sponsorship of a partisan political viewpoint and otherwise aligns ASASU into biased sponsorship of a controversial matter.

Cronk said the bylaws do not give the senate the power to deny an organization funding, only the group's activities.

"The merits or debate-worthiness of our group are not the issue tonight," Cronk said.

Although the senate considered whether the LGAU was a controversial group, Cronk said "none of our activities were ever debated."

Cronk also argued the words "biased sponsorship" were not grounds for denying the LGAU funding since the strict definition of bias — showing favoritism between two equals — did not apply because LGAU was the only homosexual group to request funding.

Cronk said he objected to the bylaws use of the word "controversial," because it allows the senate to use its personal interpretation in allocating funds.

If the supreme court upholds the two funding articles, Cronk said the bylaws will continue to be used as "a vehicle for discrimination if (the senate) chooses to use it against us."

Chief Justice John Matelski said the four-member court will have to evaluate whether it has the authority to rule on the case and issue a temporary restraining order if the court decides in favor of the LGAU.

Matelski said the court will decide the case and posts its decision in the ASASU office by Monday, no later than 7 p.m.

Goldwater to help expedite classical station bid

By MICHAEL BURGESS
State Press

Sen. Barry Goldwater will help expedite KAET-TV's application for a classical radio station on ASU's campus, Goldwater's press secretary said Monday.

Jim Ferguson said Goldwater, R-Ariz., wants to help KAET gain funding and convince Federal Communications Commission officials to consider ASU's application soon.

"He will work directly any way he can," Ferguson said.

In June, the Arizona Board of Regents filed an application with the Federal Communications Commission to obtain the 89.5 slot on the FM dial. The spot is reserved for non-commercial public radio.

If ASU obtains the station, it will operate out of Stauffer Hall by the University's Public Broadcasting Service outlet KAET-TV, Channel 8.

Lee Frischknecht, KAET assistant general manager, said Wednesday he and Arizona Sen. John Hays, R-Yarnell, asked Goldwater's office to help speed up KAET's application.

Hays convinced members of the Arizona Legislature to appropriate $250,000 to fund the station last spring.

Frischknecht said Hays wants to make sure the money is applied to the station.

"We're asking the FCC to pay attention to our application sooner," he said.

Frischknecht said the delay in application consideration comes from an enormous backlog of FM station applications filed with the FCC for new slots that have opened.

"The process, according to FCC schedules, is not very quick," he said. "They have a small staff and a large stack of applications."

He said the process normally takes years. Larry Miller, KAET's legal counsel in Washington, said ASU's application has been refiled after it was returned last month because it violated a U.S.-Mexican treaty limiting the wattage for U.S. stations within 199 miles of the border from broadcasting into northern Mexico.

He said he expects the application to be reinstated in the same place where it was applied.

"Hopefully, Goldwater's office will encourage them to speed up the process by which a license is awarded," he said.

Frischknecht said he hopes that if the application is expedited, the FCC will set up a deadline for applications and will begin considering applications.

He also said he hopes the FCC will begin considering the application in late November.

Miller said the only other applicant is the Maricopa Community College District, which operates KJZZ-FM, 91.5, a jazz station on the Mesa Community College campus.

Bob Glazer, KJZZ development director, said the Maricopa District's application already has been submitted and that they also have legal counsel in Washington.

"We have already collected $80,000 from private donations," he said.

Glazer said that if the Maricopa Community College District receives the station it would operate out of Mesa Community College under a dual license.

Glazer also said he has heard of two other parties who want to apply for the station.

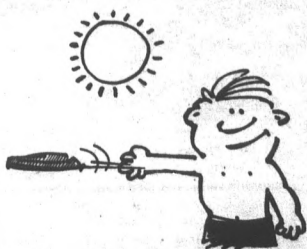

Ferguson said Goldwater will help the Maricopa Community College District or any other group that asked for help.

Student assaulted in Best Hall; police have no suspects in case

By LAUREN MILLETTE
State Press

An ASU student was assaulted in her room at Best Residence Hall by a man who crawled through her second-story bedroom window while she slept, a University police official said Monday.

Lt. Craig Emanuel said the woman's face was swollen and bruised from the attack late Saturday night, and she received two cuts on her right cheek.

The woman told police she woke to a man standing above her bed, Emanuel said.

Several residents at the hall said they heard screaming for about twenty minutes on the second floor during the time of the assault.

The man escaped down the west stairway, Emanuel said.

The student told police she had never seen the man before, and described him as Caucasian, about 5-foot-8, medium build, with dark brown hair, and wearing a red and white baseball shirt, faded jeans and a white mesh "Bud" baseball cap that hid two-thirds of his face.

Emanuel said police have no suspects in the case but do have evidence that will help police in their investigation.

University police are unsure of the motives behind the attack, Emanuel said, and are working with Tempe police on matching characteristics of a suspect in a similar case.

A Tempe police spokesman said he had not heard about the assault on the student but said Tempe police work closely with University police on these types of crimes, trying to match suspects' personality traits, characteristics and motives, to compile a profile.

ASU Deputy Chief Doug Bartosh said University police are working with the Residence Life Office to inform each residence hall of the incident and the suspect's description.

Emanuel said although the security at the halls is good — tight control of room door keys, good lighting and periodic foot patrol of the halls is standard — University police and residence life are considering stricter security guidelines.

He said police consider the crime an assault because the student reported the man repeatedly hit her face with his fist, but do not consider the attack an attempted rape because the man did not touch another part of her body.

Correction

In a headline in the Oct. 2 edition, the State Press incorrectly attributed a statement to U.S. ambassador to Costa Rica Lewis Tambs that he is the target of a Nicaraguan Contra death plot. As reflected in the story, The Christie Institute, a Washington D.C.-based public interest group, made the charge about the Contras, and Tambs said it was actually the Sandanista government that was trying to kill him. The State Press regrets the error.

U of A may begin to burn radioactive waste

TUCSON — The University of Arizona may begin crushing and burning vials of low-level radioactive waste in a Department of Risk Management and Safety incinerator to save on disposal costs.

The Radiation Control Division is studying a plan to purchase a $30,000 machine to crush liquid scintillation vials containing non-hazardous radioactive materials, said Bryan R. Westerman, director of Radiation Control.

Each vial contains about 15 milliliters of Toxic organic solvent and varying but insignificant amounts of radioactive tritium, carbon-14, phosphorus, or sulfur isotopes, he said.

Mark D. Van Ert, a U of A assistant professor of health education and an industrial safety expert, said the incinerator currently is licensed by the Environmental Protection Agency to burn toxic wastes, but not radioactive substances.

Westerman said the vials would not be crushed or their contents burned until after the material had been deminimized, with radioactivity reduced to a safe level.

Van Ert, who conducted a study into the safety of the vial crusher for Radiation Control, said there is a danger of explosion when working with the apparatus.

Ban on camping out to continue at WSU

PULLMAN — The ban on camping out before football games will continue for the remainder of the season, said Sandi Vibber, Washington State University Safety Professional Supervisor.

"For a lot of reasons, we are going to continue with the camping-out ban for the season," she said.

"There are more problems and potential problems with camping out than it is worth," she said.

When the ad hoc committee on crowd control met in late September, Vibber told the students "more appropriate things can be done to express Cougar spirit."

"We're asking them to find some other place to celebrate," she said. "A place where they can be warm and dry and have a bathroom available."

"It's a big problem that has been around a long time," Vibber said, "and it's going to take all of us working together to solve it."

ASWSU President Barb Gorham was surprised by the continuation of the ban.

"We were told it (the ban) was a stop-gap, emergency measure," she said. "We all expected it to be a one-time thing."

"I don't think the students are going to be very happy," she said.

Gorham also expressed doubts about the plan's workability. "I'd like to see how they are going to enforce it," she said.

Arizona House candidate strives to expand public service

By MICHAEL ROWELL
State Press

When Jenny Norton joined the Brownies at age 7, her mother called it "going into government." So when Norton, a Republican candidate for the Arizona House of Representatives, decided to run, she was only doing what her mother had brought her up to do.

"She sat me down in front of the TV in 1953 and said, 'You will watch the national convention, it will do you good some day,'" Norton said.

Norton, 41, is running for one of the two District 27 seats and will face Bev Hermon, a Republican, and Bruce Mason, a Democrat, in the Nov. 4 election.

She said since she was a child, her politically active mother began molding her for government service.

"By running for office I feel I'm just expanding the public service I've already given to the community," she said.

Norton is vice president for public affairs of WERRCOR, a Scottsdale development company. She lobbies state and federal legislatures for ethanol tax credits.

Norton is a 33-year resident of the Valley and has lived in Tempe since 1976.

Norton and her husband Bob Ramsey, who met in student government at Phoenix College, have been saving for Norton's eventual run for office.

"Our nest egg has been for when Jenny runs for office," Norton said.

She said ASU is the single most important entity in Tempe and was the main reason she and her husband moved here.

'I will work very hard for parity in the funding process amongst the three universities.'
— Jenny Norton

"I will work very hard for parity in the funding process amongst the three universities," she said.

Norton said she would be supportive of the appointment of an East Valley representative to the Arizona Board of Regents, and is pleased with the job the student regent is doing.

"But I would not favor giving a vote to that student yet," she said.

Norton said education is a priority in her campaign. "I am the only candidate in District 27 endorsed by the Arizona Education Association," she said.

Norton said she supports Proposition 103, adding that "out of control" insurance rates is a problem that needs to be addressed.

"I believe one way of addressing it is to pass Proposition 103 and allow the debate to continue about changing our liability laws," she said.

Norton said she has done much to assist in Tempe's growth as a member of the Tempe Industrial Development Authority.

"I have helped bring industry and growth into our city," she said. "I will remain on the IDA whether or not elected to the Legislature."

Norton said that she would like to see Tempe commercially develop some of its remaining land to increase its revenue base.

Norton said she is in favor of the Rio Salado plan — a development of industrial, residential and recreational parks along the river — in its present, integrated form.

"It's an expensive endeavor, but I encourage it," she said.

"It would enhance us not only recreationally, but business-wise."

"We just have to figure out where the money's going to come from."

Norton said she is focusing her efforts on the seat vacated by Rep. Doug Todd, who is currently pursuing an Arizona Senate position.

"I have pledged my support to Mrs. Hermon and am not running against her," she said. "Dr. Mason, although he has not pledged support by any means to Mrs. Hermon, has indeed targeted Jenny Norton and is also running for the vacant house seat."

She said she was upset by Mason's comments that she was not a strong candidate and said, "I'm sorry to hear that he feels that way. I am strong on the issues."

Candidate seeks to balance funding among 3 universities

By MICHAEL ROWELL
State Press

ASU is being shortchanged by the Arizona Board of Regents in funding decisions, District 27 Republican candidate Bev Hermon said, and she promised she would help the University gain equity.

Hermon, the incumbent in the district race, said she has been working in the Legislature to help ASU and will continue to do so.

A representative for four years, Hermon is running for a third term. She will face fellow Republican Jenny Norton and Democrat Bruce Mason on Nov. 4.

Hermon was a member of the Tempe City Council for eight years. She has been a Tempe resident for 24 years and is married with three children.

Hermon, 53, serves on a commission of regents and legislators that is studying inequities between the three universities.

One of the things the committee is going to do, Hermon said, is pick institutions they think are comparable to the three universities and have an impartial analyst study these institutions' funding strengths

'I think problems like the problem the Business College is having now are a direct result of insufficient funding.'
— Bev Hermon

and weaknesses in hope of improving the situation in Arizona.

Hermon said some sort of adjustment is needed because the amount spent for each full-time student at ASU is $625 to $690 less than at UA.

"We just need to be sure that there's no way these figures are sandbagged," she said. "We have seen other attempts to remedy the situation somehow derailed, so we are naturally suspicious."

Hermon said a better balance among the three universities is needed, and that the University is suffering from the funding disparity.

"I think problems like the problem the Business College is having now are a direct result of insufficient funding," she said.

Hermon said she would spend whatever time necessary to get ASU the additional funds that it needs.

"I have a lot of other interests, but I represent the University," she said. "This is one of my responsibilities."

She added ASU needs the funds to keep its national reputation.

"I think if you go across the country, the school that people have heard of in Arizona is ASU," she said. "This is the metropolitan University for the Phoenix metropolitan area."

On other issues, Hermon said she is concerned with the transportation of hazardous materials in Arizona.

She said she is planning to devote a "block of time" to the study of better methods of tracking materials transported.

"We could really have some major tragedies here if we don't," she said.

Hermon said she also would like to see cleaner fuels such as gasohol used and better emissions testing.

"There's some real politics involved with trying to strengthen the emissions testing program," she said.

"I don't know what we'd do about particulates; we don't want to pave Arizona."

When asked her opinion of the governor's race, Hermon said, "I think Schulz could win it."

"But if you ask me who I'm supporting, I'm a Republican, and I support my nominee."

'Challenger Hall' a great idea

It was only eight months ago when the nation saw the Space Shuttle Challenger blow up about 90 seconds after lift-off.

The country was in shock, and for days the networks replayed the videotape of the explosions. Little did they know the U.S. space program would be brought to a grinding halt.

Within weeks, memorial services and tributes to the seven astronauts who died became commonplace. Even the Smithsonian Institute displayed a wonderful tribute that would bring tears to the eyes of visitors.

Now, it is time for ASU to create its own fitting tribute to the Challenger and her crew. A petition calling for the renaming of the Classroom Office Building to Challenger Hall will be brought before the Associated Students Senate tonight.

The petition, which was approved last month by the Government Operations Committee, asks the Arizona Board of Regents to authorize the name change in memory of the seven astronauts.

College of Liberal Arts Sen. Mark Isenberg, author of the petition, deserves a standing ovation for his efforts to rename the building. Instead of letting things stand as they may, Isenberg decided to go out and do something for the community. His petition does just that.

Isenberg and Senate President Bridget Shelton said they expect little, if any, opposition to the petition, but we cannot speculate if any senator will vote against the petition tonight.

There is no justifiable excuse to deny the petition, and we encourage all senators to vote in for it. If any senator votes against the proposal, he or she should present a logical argument why this tribute should not take place on this campus. Many people would like to know.

After the senate vote, the petition, if approved, will be given to ASU President J. Russell Nelson for approval before being taken to the regents.

Nelson should approve it and Challenger Hall then could be a reality on this campus.

Decent fire escape plan lacking for handicapped

Disabled students flock to ASU, and there are logical reasons for this.

There are no hassles to go through as far as the weather is concerned; it rarely snows in Tempe. Tempe is a flat place, making it easier for the handicapped to get around.

ASU has many facilities to help a physically handicapped student get a good education — hassle free, except for one major characteristic.

Is there a feasible way for students in a wheelchair to get out of a tall building in an emergency situation?

I had never thought about this until the other day when I witnessed a fire alarm at the Business Building.

Whether it was an organized drill, a bomb threat or a student pulling a fire alarm to get out of taking a test, the situation I saw horrified me.

At the sound of the alarm, students began filing out of the building by way of the stairs. (Remember, the elevators can not be used during emergency situations.) I saw a disabled student having to get out of his wheelchair and try to get himself down the stairs, while in the company of many other able-bodied students.

There was another student trying to help him, and needless to say, it was slow going. There was a tremendous back-up of other students behind him, waiting to file down the stairwell.

I do not want to sound critical of handicapped students in any way when I make this statement, but if that had been a real fire, many lives could have been lost, including the handicapped student, because he or she couldn't get out of the building fast enough.

Amy Frischknecht

This was my initial reaction. I think this subject is a very important one and should not be brushed aside.

Returning to the original point of ASU being a convenient University for the handicapped, ASU has wheelchair ramps and automatic opening doors — neat things to make life easier, not to mention entertaining for skateboarders and able-bodied, but lazy students.

I heard someone say that in case of a fire or other hazardous situations, disabled students are supposed to go to a designated place in the building and wait for a fireman to come and rescue them.

Sure. Let's wait in a towering inferno for Steve McQueen to come bounding up the stairs, through the fierce flames and blinding smoke to carry me down multiple flights of stairs.

Sounds like a great idea for a movie, but this is real life.

All kidding aside, this is exactly what the disabled students are to do.

This sounded pretty risky to me, and it seems like there ought to be another way around this. It is hard to imagine what I would do if I had to wait under a bonfire for someone to come get me. Actually, I think anyone would try to get out of the building anyway they could, in a wheelchair or not.

I guess all we can do is hope it never happens. This brings me to my second reaction.

Students who pull fire alarms just to get out of a test have to be the lowest form of life on earth. I didn't used to think this way. I thought it was a pretty clever alternative to failing an exam.

I have never had the pleasure of pulling such a stunt, though I have turned the possibility over in my mind a few times. I thought it would be better to save it until I really needed it. But now that I have seen what trouble it causes to handicapped students, I am shocked at myself for even considering pulling an alarm just to cop out on a test.

Just the same, this is college. We should all be just a little bit more mature since we pulled that fire alarm in elementary school. It's time to show some courtesy for not only the handicapped, but also the professors.

Existence of LGAU explained

Editor:

The issue has been raised recently as to whether Associated Students should fund the Lesbian and Gay Academic Union. I wish to address the question of the reason for the existence of a lesbian and gay group when no heterosexual group exists.

The answer to this question is that there is no discrimination based upon heterosexuality.

No one has been disowned, disinherited, excommunicated, harassed, assaulted, imprisoned or murdered solely because they are heterosexual.

No heterosexual has been taught from childhood to hate and distrust himself or herself. These are problems lesbian and gay individuals must deal with, as must members of other minorities.

Respect for Yom Kippur

Editor:

To those professors who are planning on tests or large amounts of information to be presented on Monday, Oct. 13, please think twice, as this is the most significant of all the Jewish holidays during the year — Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement).

I do not hear you questioning the existence of M.E.Ch.A. or the Black Student Union.

Members of minority groups need the support of others of similar backgrounds when dealing with this kind of oppression.

The purpose of the Lesbian and Gay Academic Union and other minority groups, in my opinion, is to provide education, networking on campus and beyond campus and to foster pride in themselves.

What is so controversial about this?

In a society which is predominantly heterosexual, there is no need for a group to promote pride in heterosexuality because it is insinuated in every aspect of life.

British official says apartheid unchanged by U.S. sanctions

By DAVE HODGES
State Press

Economic sanctions against the South African government will not end apartheid, a member of the British Parliament visiting ASU said Monday.

Geoff Lawler, 23, told about 30 people in the MU that all sanctions would do is send the South African government a "symbolic gesture."

Lawler said Europe and the United States should do something as soon as possible to stop the "morally offensive" government in South Africa, but added the country does not pose an immediate external threat.

Apartheid, a system of political racism against blacks, was imposed by South Africa's white minority government in 1948.

"The U.K. condemned apartheid then, and we condemn it now," Lawler said.

On Thursday, the U.S. Senate voted to impose sanctions against South Africa's white minority government, despite President Reagan's veto of the bill.

The sanctions will ban all new investments and all new bank loans, end landing rights in the United States for South African aircraft and ban the import of South African iron, steel, coal, textiles, uranium, arms, food and agricultural products.

Lawler said President Reagan is involved too much in "global politics."

"We may be America's mother, but we are Europe's next-door-neighbor," he said.

"Europe is in a position to take positive steps to improve the conditions in South Africa," Lawler said. "We are in a position to directly affect the livelihood of so many (South Africans).

"We should use that position to the full. It's very easy to call for a ban on smoking in public places if you don't smoke yourself."

He said placing sanctions will inflict considerable damages on the South African economy and will not only hurt the government but black workers.

"Sanctions are an attractive proposal," he said. "Even if they're ineffective, they act as a gesture."

Lawler outlined three main goals of sanctions:

- They should be able to be enforced effectively.
- They should have a maximum effect on the establishment with a minimum effect on the people they are trying to help.
- They should be designed to achieve hasty reform.

"Britain is resolutely opposed to sanctions," he said. "It is a complex matter that will only be solved with a complex solution."

'Dangerous' hazing subsides for Crimson Tide frat pledges

By Intercollegiate Press

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — "There isn't a fraternity on this campus that doesn't haze," said a University of Alabama senior who belongs to one of the oldest fraternities on campus.

But while university officials and fraternity members agree that most fraternities haze, they said hazing in the form of dangerous, physical abuse is not a problem anymore.

Hazing does not exist in a "negative way," said Rickey Hoots, president of Chi Phi, which was placed on restricted probation after forcing pledges to participate in a scavenger hunt in November 1985.

Hoots said he had not known that scavenger hunts were considered hazing.

David Grady, assistant director of Student Life for Greek Affairs, said mental hazing may be deeper and last longer, while sore muscles from having to do pushups or cleaning duty will go away.

Grady said fraternities stress pledge class unity too much, and said fraternities should focus on chapter unity instead.

"You don't need a group made up of four different pledge classes," he said.

"The founders of the chapter didn't need to be hazed to be a group. Nobody made the founders do pushups," Grady said.

But students are getting smarter, Grady said.

"If hazing continues, membership is going to decrease. Students won't put up with much anymore," he said.

ASU police report

University police reported the following incidents in the 22-hour period ending 5:30 a.m. Monday:

•Atari computer equipment and $30 cash was stolen from a resident's room at the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity house, while the student was sleeping, police said.

Estimated value of the loss is $800.

Police said the student awoke and saw a Caucasian male adult standing in his room. The student described the man as 5-foot-8, 150 pounds, and wearing a brown shirt, tan pants and a gray sports coat, police said.

Police said the student reported he watched the man flee out the door and leave in a 1986 Ford car with Arizona license No. DBR 509.

•A Tempe man observed a man carrying a 10-speed bike from the Cholla Apartments to a maroon truck parked at 936

Terrace Drive, police said.

The suspect is described as 6 feet tall, 140 to 150 pounds, and wearing jeans, tennis shoes and a dark shirt, police said.

The suspect fled on foot and the witness called police, police said.

Police found a men's red Cycle Pro 5-speed bike with a gray Master lock and a men's black Raleigh 10-speed bike with a black ProTour lock in the back of the truck when they responded to the witness' call, police said.

Police contacted the truck's owner and questioned him about the bikes, police said.

The owner told police his truck was taken from Lot 42 between 11 p.m. and 1:30 a.m. and he did not give anyone permission to use it, police said. The truck incurred $200 in damages during the time it was used by an unknown person, police said.

A University detective took photos, dusted the truck for fingerprints and started investigation procedures, police said.

•An ASU Community Services aide reported two people trying to break into the Community Services Building, police said.

When police responded, they found two Phi Kappa Psi pledges on the west side of the building, police said.

The students told police they were left there by fraternity members who told them to find their way to 418 Adelphi Drive, police said. Police escorted them to the fraternity house.

Tempe police report

Tempe police reported the following incidents for the period ending midnight Sunday:

•An employee of Wendy's, 790 W. Broadway Road, was forced at gunpoint to open the restaurant's safe Oct. 4, police said.

The employee was driving his vehicle in the area of Hardy Drive and Broadway Road when he was confronted by an armed man, also in the vehicle.

The man forced the employee to return to Wendy's and open a floor safe, from which he removed an unknown amount of money in a paper sack.

Police describe the suspect as black, 5-foot-7, 160 pounds, 27 years old, wearing a Levi jacket and pants.

•Police said they are investigating an attempted sexual assault in the parking lot of Suprizes bar, 919 E. Apache Blvd., on Oct. 3.

A Tempe woman was standing in the parking lot searching for her keys in her purse when she was grabbed from behind by a male suspect.

The man said he wanted jewelry, but when the woman gave him one of her rings, he kicked her in the right shin and yelled, "You're not getting off that easy."

He then lunged on top of the woman, hit her and told her to be still and quiet. The victim managed to scratch the man's face with the fake fingernails she was wearing.

Police said the attacker fled when a friend of the woman became concerned and called out for her from the doorway of the bar.

The suspect is described as a muscular Caucasian, 6-foot-4, 220 pounds, 22 or 23 years old, clean shaven with short cropped hair.

He was wearing a red or purple shirt with sleeves to the elbows and light colored surfer pants that hung to his knees.

The woman suffered minor bruises and the loss of her purse, valued at $20 and containing $80 in cash.

Lawmen raid LaRouche's headquarters

By The Associated Press

LEESBURG, Va. — Federal, state and local law enforcement authorities raided the headquarters of political extremist Lyndon LaRouche on Monday as several LaRouche associates were indicted in an alleged nationwide credit card fraud scheme.

While hundreds of officers searched for evidence at two office buildings used by LaRouche-affiliated organizations here, a federal grand jury in Boston handed up a 117-count indictment alleging wire fraud, unauthorized use of credit cards, obstruction of justice and contempt of court.

Two corporations, three campaign committees and 10 LaRouche associates were named in the Boston indictment. The groups named in the indictment are Caucus Distributors Inc. and Campaigner Publications Inc.

LaRouche is a frequent fringe candidate for president who has announced he is running for president in 1988 as a Democrat.

Ed Spannaus, treasurer of LaRouche's presidential campaign, called the action a "political dirty trick," coming four weeks before the general election. Several LaRouche followers are running for offices around the country.

Spannaus spoke at a news conference in a bookstore operated by LaRouche associates, across the street from one of the LaRouche offices being searched by federal and state agents.

"Many of you have just been witness to one of the biggest political dirty tricks in history," he said.

LaRouche's followers have run for hundreds of offices around the country, and gained widespread attention in April by winning Democratic nominations for lieutenant governor and secretary of state in Illinois.

Dozens of state police, Loudoun County sheriff's deputies and federal agents could be seen guarding and entering and leaving the two Leesburg buildings where LaRouche's corporations and organizations make their headquarters.

A LaRouche spokeswoman, Nereida Thompson, said she did not know where LaRouche was Monday. At his $1.2 million estate just outside town, more than half a dozen state police and U.S. Secret Service agents stood watching the front gate throughout the day.

The searches of two office buildings occupied by LaRouche-related organizations began about 7 a.m., EDT. The buildings serve as the headquarters for the LaRouche organization.

Dan Small, assistant U.S. attorney in Boston, said the agents had warrants for a variety of documents relating to a federal investigation into allegations of credit card fraud by organizations related to LaRouche.

Several of the 10 named in the Boston indictment had been arrested by midday, authorities said.

Meanwhile in Washington, the Supreme Court cleared the way for NBC to collect more than $250,000 from LaRouche, who had unsuccessfully sued the network for alleged libel.

Volunteer phone service offers assistance, comfort to kids

By TINA DAUNT
State Press

ASU students are helping kids with their homework, solving brother-sister fights, and calming "boogeyman" fears — over the phone.

Phone Friend is a service for children who are home alone to call when they have a question or need to talk.

The service, sponsored by the Phoenix Association for Supportive Child Care, is made up of volunteers, including several ASU students.

The Phone Friend number is 253-9099.

"A lot of kids are lonely and just need someone to talk to," said Lynne Nelick, a senior child development major who volunteers once a week.

"Children today have a lot of responsibility. Last week I talked to an 8-year-old boy who was babysitting his 2-year-old brother," she said.

"We're here to help if they have a question or a problem."

The hotline is open from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m.

The Phoenix Association for Supportive Child Care, a non-profit organization, started the Phone Friend program in 1985 for the cities of Tempe, Phoenix and Mesa.

The program has expanded to include children in Glendale and Paradise Valley.

Shelley Lanert, an ASU sociology graduate who is program assistant for Phone Friend, said the service is not meant to take the place of the 911 emergency number.

"We'll answer questions from doing homework to making an afternoon snack," she said.

"If we receive an emergency call, we'll get in touch with 911. Luckily we haven't had an emergency."

Lanert said that since the program started, two abused children have called seeking help.

"One child I talked to called crying," she said. "She kept saying 'my mom hits me all the time; I just can't do anything right.'"

"I tried my best to calm her down. We then tried to get her name and number so we could contact the Child Protection Service."

"Unfortunately the abused children usually lie about their addresses."

Lanert said most of the phone calls come from children who are bored.

"When I first started, I was amazed by the number of young kids who were left home alone," she said. "I even talked to a 4-year-old who was alone."

"I still not comfortable with the idea that so many children are left by themselves, but I'm getting used to it."

Lanert said there are 11 staff members answering about 60 calls per day, but more volunteers are still needed.

"I was at ASU Wednesday trying to get more volunteers," she said. "We're way understaffed."

The ASU department of child development offers internship credits to majors who participate in the program.

Nelick said, "I enjoy talking to the kids; helping them makes me feel good."

Good Day, eh? ASU tailback emerges in Devils' 16-9 triumph

By BOB HEILER
State Press

It was a Day to remember. Happy Day. Cooper's big Day. Daytime turns me on, and I don't mean maybe.

The puns are flying fast and furious about ASU's tailback, Paul Day. His name has become something Sun Devil fans like to hear.

The reason his name makes ASU fans smile is the role he played in the Devils' 16-9 win over the UCLA Bruins Saturday, coming off the bench to give the team a lift after starting tailback Darryl Harris struggled in the first half.

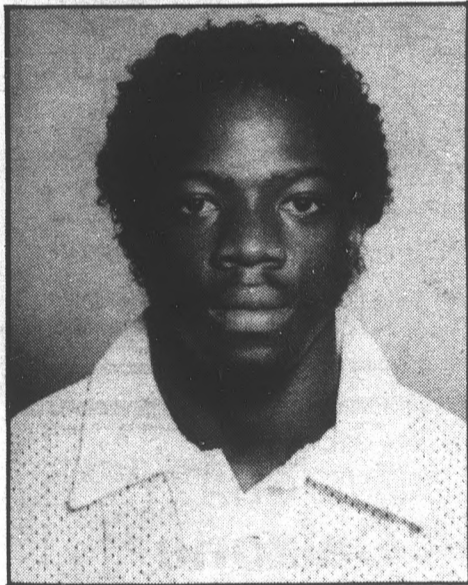

It wasn't always that way. Day has seen, well, worse Days. As a matter of fact, this was his best Day as a Sun Devil.

Last week Day was forced to run after practice, and he was criticized for poor blocking. Coach John Cooper said Day was "kind of in the doghouse last week." But Cooper also said that he has "atoned for that now."

Day rushed for 86 yards on 18 carries for an average of 4.8 yards per carry.

More importantly, in a drive that ate up valuable time near the end of the game, Day made two first downs on third-and-long to keep the Devils on the move.

On a third-and-six from the Devils' own 9-yard line, Day picked up seven yards. Three plays later, he picked up 11 yards on a third-and-eight from the Devils' 18-yard line.

Day attributed his success in the game to the Sun Devils' blocking.

"Blocking was the key," he said. "Everybody did their job and I got with it."

Day began as a wide receiver and converted to tailback last spring. Saturday's game was the first game in which he carried the ball more than six times, a fact which pleases him.

"I wanted to play more," he said. "I'm really happy about it."

Despite Day's designation as being "in the doghouse," Cooper said he was not surprised by the senior tailback's performance.

"Day's showing didn't surprise me," Cooper said. "I was pleased with him. That's the best game he's had."

"I hope it's just the start."

Whether he can turn in that kind of performance Day in and Day out remains to be seen.

Day is already looking forward to the next challenge the Devils must face.

"We can enjoy this today and tomorrow," Day told reporters after the game. "Then we've got to get ready for Oregon."

If Cooper was not surprised by Day's performance, one thing that was surprising, at least to many Sun Devil fans, was how little action Harris (who was the Pac-10's leading rusher before Saturday), saw in the game.

Harris carried the ball just eight times, gaining 20 yards. Six of those eight carries were in the first half, while Day carried only three times in the first half.

But in the second half it was all Day, long. He carried 15 times for 80 yards, a second-half average of 5.3 yards per carry.

Day also caught three passes in the game for 27 yards, his longest an aerial for 15 yards in the second quarter.

That pass came on a third-and-four at the end of the half in a drive that resulted in the first of Kent Bostrom's three field goals, putting the Devils on the board before going into the locker room.

Quarterback Jeff Van Raaphorst commented on Day's performance.

"He had a great day," Van Raaphorst said. "He's just the kind of guy that goes out there and gets the job done."

Rick Wiley/State Press

Paul Day was the game's leading rusher Saturday as the Devils upset the UCLA Bruins 16-9. He carried 18 times for 86 yards.

Devils show new character in victory over UCLA

It had to end sometime, and it was readily apparent during the second half of Saturday's 16-9 win over UCLA that the Devils' winless streak against the Bruins was going to come to an end.

The Bruins came out listless and the Devils came out fired up and marched down the field for a score that tied the game.

The Bruins looked like they wished they were somewhere else. They displayed precious little emotion and generally looked like they felt they could turn on the gas and win the game whenever they felt like they needed to.

They couldn't.

In past years they probably would have. In the past ASU probably would have folded its tent and called it a day when Darin Tupper fumbled on the UCLA 13-yard line with just over five minutes left and the Sun Devils leading 13-9.

In past years the Devils haven't shown the character they have shown this year. This year when the going gets tough, the Devils start to bust heads.

UCLA went exactly nowhere after recovering Tupper's fumble, the first coughed up by a Devil running back all season. After the Bruin offense ran three plays then ran off the field, the Devils gave the ball back on a punt and forced UCLA quarterback Matt Stevens to throw four straight incompletions and give the ball to the offense on the Bruin 9-yard line.

Stevens, who will never make anyone forget Vinny Testaverde, had a brutal second half, completing two of 12 for 12 yards.

Kent Bostrom then kicked a field goal to wrap up the win. The point here is that ASU has displayed a different attitude this season than in past (Darryl Rogers-coached) years. They seem to have more guts.

Jay Taylor
Sports Analysis Editor

It showed when Darrin Willis blocked a field goal to preserve the win over Michigan State. The Spartans had driven the length of the field to get in field goal range, but rather than call it quits and accept what appeared to be a certain tie and a possible loss, the Devils sucked it up.

Jeff Joseph came up with a big sack to end the drive, then Willis blocked the field goal.

It showed against Washington State when, after a lackluster performance all game, the defense held the Cougs on their final drive to preserve the 21-21 tie.

It showed Saturday when the defensive unit manhandled UCLA's offense most of the game.

The Devils were awesome inside their own 15-yard line. The first time UCLA got there, they completed a pass for a 10-yard loss on third and seven from the nine.

The second time they held the Bruins to three yards on three plays from the 15.

The third time, with a first-and-goal from the 5-yard line the Bruins gained no yardage on three plays plus a holding call against ASU.

John Cooper seems to have instilled a sense of pride in his players that I haven't seen before. He seems to be a good motivator, and ASU is playing more emotional football than they have in the past.

And speaking of motivation, one has to wonder what a writer named A.M. Stroud of the UCLA Daily Bruin had in mind when he said in his Pac-10 football preview of ASU: "Now that he (Cooper) and his players have become more comfortable with each other, UCLA may not be able to count on the Pac-10 choke artists to suffocate again in 1986."

Now I don't claim to know what Stroud had in mind when he wrote this bit of overwhelming insight. If he had half a brain he would realize that quotes like that motivate teams and end up on lockerroom walls. His did both and according to Scott Stephen, it was quite a source of motivation for the Devils.

Obviously Stephen was motivated. He was selected Pac-10 defensive player of the week for his 10 tackles and one assist, including two sacks and three total tackles for losses of 26 yards.

And just to balance things out, Jeff Van Raaphorst was selected the conference's offensive player of the week for completing 16 of 19 passes for 187 yards and a touchdown. His completion percentage of 84.6 set a new school record and most importantly, he threw no interceptions.

Van Raaphorst's was another gutty performance that showed the new character of the Devils. He didn't let a week of intense pressure and criticism get him down. He just went out and did his job, and did it nearly to perfection.

Like the rest of the team did.

ATO, Delta Sigs swim to victory; T-shirts may return to all cotton

By STEVE ADAMS
State Press

There aren't many times when a person can go to the Mona Plummer Aquatic Center and see the makings of a Greg Louganis or a Mark Spitz.

Well, there weren't any makings of Olympic stars this weekend when the intramural swimming and diving tournament splashed off, but there were a number of good performances and close races.

The diving competition, the first event of the tournament, had the top two divers separated by less than two points.

Mark Olson captured top honors with a total point score of 171.35.

He was followed closely by Kevin Glazer, who finished with 172.85 points.

"The diving competition was the closest and some of the best performances we have had in quite a while," said Juliette Moore, assistant director of intramurals.

On Saturday the swimming competition got underway with some very close races.

In the men's B-league 50-meter backstroke, Andy Chisholm swam away with the win with a time of 30.05, only 34 hundredths of a second better than John Ransom.

The men's A-league 50-meter freestyle proved to be yet another race in which long fingers proved to be the difference.

Tod Walker outreached Steve Spadart by three one-hundredths of a second. Walker timed in at 24.31 seconds while Spadart was a close second with a time of 24.34.

As well as individual competition, there were also overall team results.

In the men's A division, Alpha Tau Omega led the pack, followed closely by J.F.C.M. '86 and Phi Delta Theta.

In the men's B division, Delta Sigma Phi swam away with the title with Phi Sigma Kappa and Phi Delta Theta pulling up the rear.

In the women's competition, Chi Omega stroked their way to victory, as Alpha Chi Omega and Evinrude followed a close second and third, respectively.

As far as crowd turnout was concerned, the intramural department was slightly disappointed.

"It was OK, but we would have liked a bigger turnout," said Moore.

"I know that the (UCLA) football game had a lot to do with so few people coming, but hey, look, we won the football game."

In other intramural news:
•The Cotton Poll is underway (in Tempe, not Dallas):
The intramural department has been up to its neck in complaints about switching the intramural T-shirts from 100 percent cotton to the 50-50 blend. In fact, they are not pleased with being placed in Dino's Doghouse by the State Press either, so they have come up with a solution to end all this controversy.

The intramural department would like people to write in and vote on whether they prefer the 50-50 blend T-shirt or the 100 percent cotton T-shirt.

All votes should be sent to the Intramural Department, attention Juliette Moore, Physical Education West Building, or you may stop in and drop off your vote.

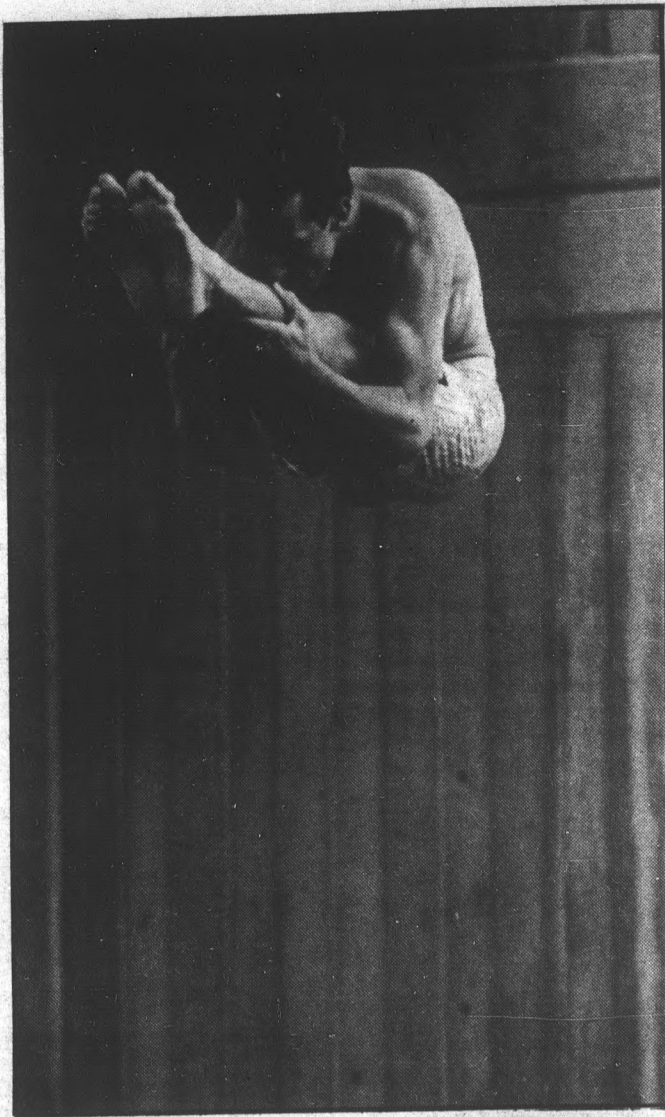

The whole controversy started when the intramural department decided to change the blend of the shirt not only because it would save them money, but also because they perceived a student preference for polyester.

"Students said they didn't want the 100 percent cotton shirts anymore so we changed," said Moore.

It has been agreed that whatever the outcome of the Cotton Poll is, the intramural department will comply.

"We'll go with whatever they want," said Moore.

All votes should be submitted no later than 4 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 10. The results will be announced at a later date.

Miami stays atop AP poll

By The Associated Press

The University of Miami remained No. 1 Monday in The Associated Press' college football poll but second-ranked Alabama made up ground on the Hurricanes while Stanford and Mississippi State cracked the Top Twenty for the first time in five years.

Miami, which climbed into the No. 1 spot last week after beating Oklahoma, cruised past Northern Illinois 34-0 on Saturday for its fifth consecutive victory. The Hurricanes received 55 of 58 first-place votes and 1,155 of a possible 1,160 points from a nationwide panel of sportswriters and sportscasters.

Alabama also raised its record to 5-0 by defeating Notre Dame 28-10. The Crimson Tide received two first-place votes and 1,084 points. Last week, also with 58 voters participating, Miami led 56-1 in first-place votes and 1,156-1,058 in points.

The first nine teams are the same as last week. Third-ranked Nebraska edged South Carolina 27-24 and received 988 points while Michigan remained No. 4 with 959 points after downing Wisconsin 34-17.

The other first-place ballot went to fifth-ranked Penn State, which knocked off previously unbeaten Rutgers 31-6 and received 937 points.

Sixth-ranked Oklahoma rebounded from its loss to Miami by crushing Kansas State 56-10 and received 867 points. Auburn stayed seventh with 828 points by blasting Western Carolina 55-6. Arkansas held onto eighth place with 726 points by whipping Texas Christian 34-17 and Southern California remained No. 9 with 709 points thanks to a 35-21 triumph over Oregon.

However Arizona was idle and slipped from 10th to 11th, while Iowa moved up from 11th to 10th. The Hawkeyes turned back Michigan State 24-21 and received 614 points.

The Second Ten consists of Arizona, Washington, Baylor, Texas A&M, Arizona State, LSU, North Carolina State, Stanford, Mississippi State and Clemson.

Stanford is 4-0 after beating San Diego State 17-10. The Cardinal last made the Top Twenty during the first week of the 1981 season.

Mississippi State, which was in the Top Twenty several times in 1981, is 4-1 after defeating Memphis State 34-17. Clemson, 3-1 after blanking The Citadel 24-0, also appeared for the first time this season.

UCLA dropped out of the rankings after losing to Arizona State 16-9, Michigan State disappeared following its loss to Iowa, and Fresno State, which made the Top Twenty last week for the first time in 44 years, couldn't stand prosperity and lost to San Jose State 45-41.

ASU's Stephen, Van Raaphorst sweep honors

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP) — Linebacker Scott Stephen and quarterback Jeff Van Raaphorst of Arizona State were named Monday as Pacific 10 Conference players of the week for their roles in the Sun Devils' 16-9 victory Saturday at UCLA.

Stephen, a senior from Los Angeles, was credited with 11 tackles, 10 unassisted, including three for losses and two quarterback sacks for 22 yards in losses.

Van Raaphorst, a senior from El Cajon, Calif., completed 16 of 19 passes for 187 yards and the game's only touchdown. His 84.2 percent completion rate established a school record.

Others nominated were quarterbacks Rodney Peete of Southern California, Chris Miller of Oregon and Erik Wilhelm of Oregon State; split end Lonzell Hill of Washington, running backs Brad Muster of Stanford and Chris Richards of California; and, on defense, backs Ron Collins of Washington State and Craig Rutledge of UCLA and end Gino Mingo of Oregon State.

FINALLY A FREE FLIGHT PLAN JUST FOR STUDENTS. YOU WON'T GET A BREAK LIKE THIS ONCE YOU'RE OUT IN THE REAL WORLD.

INTRODUCING COLLEGIATE FLIGHTBANK, FROM CONTINENTAL AND NEW YORK AIR.

If you're a full-time student at an accredited college or university you can join our Collegiate FlightBank.SM You'll receive a membership card and number that will allow you to get 10% off Continental and New York Air's already low fares. In addition, you'll get a one-time certificate good for $25 off any domestic roundtrip flight. Plus, you'll be able to earn trips to places like Florida, Denver, Los Angeles, even London and the South Pacific. Because every time you fly you'll earn mileage towards a free trip. And if you sign up now you'll also receive 3 free issues of BusinessWeek Careers magazine.

This Porsche 924 can be yours if you are the national referral champion.

SIGN UP YOUR FRIENDS AND EARN A PORSCHE.

But what's more, for the 10 students on every campus who enroll the most active student flyers from their college there are some great rewards: 1 free trip wherever Continental or New York Air flies in the mainland U.S., Mexico or Canada.

Or the grand prize, for the number one student referral champion in the nation: a Porsche and one year of unlimited coach air travel.

And how do you get to be the referral champion? Just sign up as many friends as possible, and make sure your membership number is on their application. In order to be eligible for any prize you and your referrals must sign up before 12/31/86 and each referral must fly 3 segments on Continental or New York Air before 6/15/87. And you'll not only get credit for the enrollment, you'll also get 500 bonus miles.

So cut the coupon, and send it in now. Be sure to include your current full time student ID number. That way it'll only cost you $10 for one year ($15 after 12/31/86) and $40 for four years ($60 after 12/31/86). Your membership kit, including referral forms, will arrive in 3 to 4 weeks. If you have a credit card, you can call us at 1-800-255-4321 and enroll even faster. Now more than ever it pays to stay in school.

SIGN ME UP NOW! (Please print or type) 1 Year ($10) 2 Years ($20) 3 Years ($30) 4 Years ($40)
Must be submitted by 12/31/86.
