Education act will limit amount students can receive from GSLs

By KIM MATTINGLY
State Press

The revised Higher Education Act, which President Reagan signed Friday, will immediately limit the amount of money students can receive in the form of Guaranteed Student Loans.

Paul Barberini, director of ASU student financial assistance, said although the act raises the maximum amount students can borrow, it also requires students to prove their financial need.

"Students won't be able to just walk in the office and get a loan," he said. "Everybody must qualify on the basis of need analysis. We determine how much you can borrow."

Effective Jan. 1, GSL loan limits, which were $2,500 for all undergraduates, are now $2,625 for freshmen and sophomores and $4,000 for juniors and seniors.

Limits were raised from $5,000 to $7,500 for graduate students.

Barberini said that before the bill was approved students whose income was less than $30,000, or parents' income in the case of a dependent student, were automatically eligible for the maximum amount.

"Before it was just assumed you needed the money," he said. "But the new rule is everyone must apply and be qualified to borrow under an analysis process."

Pat Clark, associate director for student financial assistance, said the analysis or "financial profile" takes about four to six weeks to process.

Clark said an analysis will not be required of students who have already applied for GSLs and are waiting for their money.

But Pat Smith, from the governmental relations

'Students won't be able to just walk in the office and get a loan. Everybody must qualify on the basis of need analysis.'

— Paul Barberini

department of the American Council on Education, said a need analysis will "reduce or eliminate" eligibility for some new GSL applicants.

"In a family that earns $25,000 to $30,000, the calculated family contribution can be sizeable, and that is deducted from the amount students can borrow," she said.

Barberini said Congress made the provision effective immediately "to reduce federal expenditures."

"They're trying to reduce the amount that students borrow to save federal budget dollars," he said. "GSL is a $9-billion-a-year program."

Also effective Jan. 1, students — who want to claim independence to increase their eligibility for aid — will have to prove their parents did not support them for two years previous to the award year. They also must have earned $4,000 each of those two years.

Barberini said ASU's financial aid office is already preparing for the changes.

"We'll have to move quickly on it," he said. "We are working here internally and with (the College Scholarship Service) to put together information about how students have to do things differently."

Aquatic center use limited during filming

By KERRY FEHR
State Press

The filming of "Campus Man" begins today and will limit the use of the Mona Plummer Aquatic Center starting Oct. 27.

Associated Students President Chris Cummiskey said classes, intramurals and recreational swimming will be moved to pools at the Sigma Nu fraternity house and Mariposa Residence Hall.

The following is a list of times the aquatic center will be closed:

- Oct. 27-31: 6 a.m. to 7 p.m., but open for recreational swimming from 8 to 10 p.m.
- Nov. 1: 6 p.m. to 6 a.m.
- All weekends beginning Nov. 8.
- Nov. 18: 1:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m.
- Nov. 19 to 22: 4 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Cummiskey said the film's producer is donating more than $65,000 to the University and also has agreed to contribute money to the United Way.

He said RKO will donate a certain amount of money per student to the United Way in ASU's name as an incentive to about 2,000 students needed as extras.

"This gives us a perfect opportunity to incorporate the students into something not only enjoyable... but also philanthropic."

He also said the production team is fostering competition between groups and plans to donate big screen televisions to ASU.

Regents' plan will cut funds by 3.4 percent

By BENNY McCONNELL
State Press

PHOENIX — The Arizona Board of Regents presented to members of the Arizona Legislature Friday the regents' budget cutback that evenly cuts funding for state agencies.

Unlike the various percentage cuts for different agencies offered by the governor's office, if approved, the regents' plan would cut 3.24 percent from every state agency affected by an anticipated $67.5 million projected shortfall in state revenues.

Gov. Bruce Babbitt's proposal staggered cutbacks from .20 percent to 6 percent, with a handful of agencies exempt from cuts, including the governor's office.

Babbitt's office originally asked the regents to cut 6 percent from the three universities' budgets.

But the regents are not a state agency and are not legally bound by the governor's request.

ASU President J. Russell Nelson told the legislators: "We have had two significant cutbacks in the past, and these have not been made up since then."

"This proposal gives somewhat more modest cutbacks."

Though the legislators said a revenue shortfall is imminent, they were unsure of the amount the state would be short when the Legislature meets in January.

Sen. Bill De Long, R-Tucson, said, "I don't think when the Legislature looks at the shortfall that it will be a 6 percent shortfall — but something under that — so we'll probably have to go back to committees and readjust the budgets."

Sen. Pete Corpstein, R-Paradise Valley, said the state's tough situation is going to get tougher.

"We're going to have to look at the supplementals given out (to universities) and maybe hold those," Corpstein said. "Or we may get into a legal liability situation if we don't take care of other concerns like crime... and transportation."

"We have done some crazy things when we've had some money to spend, and now that's coming back to bite us on the fanny, and the universities are having to pay for that."

Corpstein quoted the $67.5 million figure from projections he saw Wednesday and said, "We know darn well that it'll be more than $67 million, too."

Rep. Bev Hermon, R-Tempe, said, "We know the sky is falling but, hopefully, not as bad as we think it is."

The legislators said the regents should present their budget cutback proposal to every state legislator before it convenes in January.

In other business, a unit cost summary presented by Molly Broad, board of regents executive director, showed "significant" declines in chemistry enrollments at all three universities.

NAU had a 13 percent drop in chemistry enrollment for the 1985-86 school year from 1983-84, but made up with a 27 percent increase in history program enrollments.

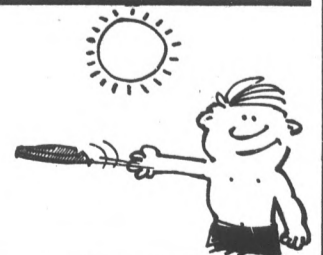

ASU showed a 10.2 percent drop in chemistry enrollment, and UA showed a 5 percent drop for the same years.

The chemistry enrollment for 1985-86 also marked the first time in history UA had more people in a program than ASU, Broad said.

Nelson said: "(The three chemistry enrollment drops) appears to indicate a shift in student interest, which may not be a permanent thing."

U of A professor claims CIA lies to U.S. public

TUCSON — A University of Arizona professor who has conducted extensive investigations into the U.S. government's involvement in Central America contends that the CIA, with presidential approval, is lying to the American people.

Jaqueline E. Sharkey, a U of A associate professor of journalism told about 50 people in a recent speech at University of Arizona of her findings after prolonged visits to Central American countries over the past several years, investigating the extent of CIA involvement.

"What we have ... is a democracy in which, we, the people, supposedly control the activities of our government, but which in fact we have almost no control over," she said.

"Not only do we have no control, but we are being lied to about what the intelligence agency is doing. The people who are most upset about this are the members of Congress, who are responsible for overseeing these activities."

She assailed the contradiction between President Reagan's public policy on Central America — which she said is "designed to promote democracy, promote economic development, and stop the spread of communism" — and the results she sees the current policy yielding.

"The agency can do whatever it wants abroad ... but they are prohibited from operating in this country to influence public opinion and congressional opinion," Sharkey said.

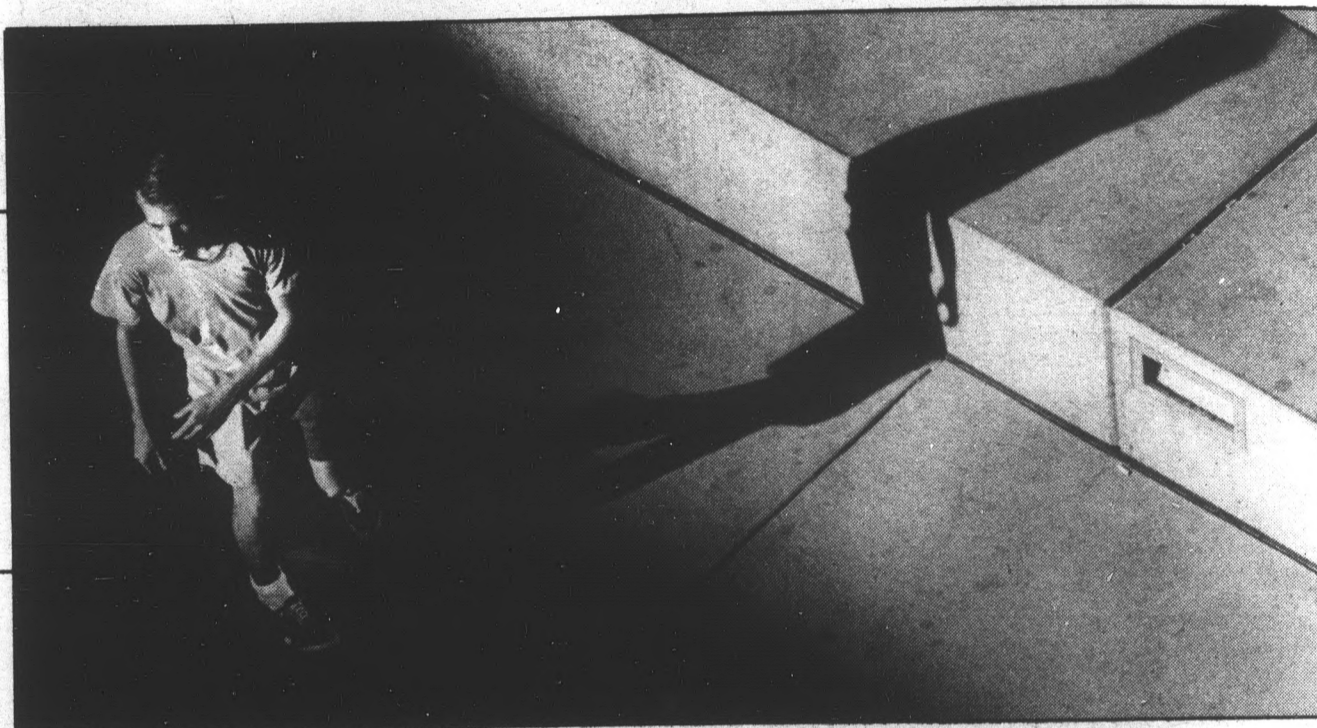

"These false stories that are planted in the media ... are picked up by American reporters working in that area, and they are reported in this country as being fact."

New tax law highlights congressional scorecard

WASHINGTON (AP) — Between the convening of the first session of the 99th Congress on Jan. 3, 1985, and the close of the second session Saturday night, the House and Senate produced an impressive legislative record.

Here are some highlights:
 •The most thorough revision of the federal tax code since World War II, including tax cuts for millions of Americans and an increased tax burden for businesses. A variety of popular deductions and breaks will be repealed.
 •A rewrite of the nation's immigration laws, including amnesty for millions of illegal aliens and penalties for employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens in the future.

 •The Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law that aims to force a balanced federal budget by 1991 by mandating a series of annual, declining deficit targets. The bill had called for automatic across-the-board spending cuts to meet the annual targets, but the Supreme Court struck down that provision.
 •Federal revenue sharing for local governments was allowed to expire.
 •A $1.7 billion anti-drug law enforcement and education package sparked by election-year interest in the issue.

 •Reauthorization and expansion of the Superfund toxic waste cleanup program and approval for industrial taxes to pay for it.
 •Reauthorization of the Clean Water Act, including $18 billion in grants to states for facilities to curb pollution.
 •A $16.3 billion package of water development programs for dams and harbors, including new cost-sharing arrangements with local governments.
 •Economic sanctions against the white minority government of South Africa imposed over President Reagan's veto.
 •A prohibition on anti-satellite weapons testing and a cut in Reagan Strategic Defense Initiative — "Star Wars" — research from $5.3 billion to $3.5 billion.

 •Agreement to Reagan's request for $100 million in aid to Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Meanwhile, there were measures that did not survive this Congress and died with adjournment. Those included:

•A $90.7 billion, five-year highway bill reauthorizing federal highway and mass transit programs. The Senate version of the measure included a provision to raise the speed limit on interstate highways from 55 mph to 65 mph.

Raffling for puppy bad idea

ASU has an ongoing problem with a student's need for companionship.

Since girlfriends and boyfriends come and go, and, in some cases, aren't dependable enough, many students go out to the petshop and buy a puppy or a kitten.

They figure this will give them the love that is lacking in their lives, and everything will be rosy.

Instead, what often happens is that the puppy or kitten gets dumped on campus because the student realizes a pet is more of a responsibility than he or she bargained for.

ASU, among other things, is known as a dumping ground for unwanted cats and dogs.

Last summer, the University went through an extensive hunt for cats that have been abandoned and the kittens that have been born on this campus.

They did succeed.

For the first month of this semester, there were few cats in sight.

But nothing lasts forever, and abandoned cats are returning to ASU.

Last week on Cady Mall, the Senior-1 Class of 1987 of the College of Nursing decided to raffle off a puppy.

According to individuals at the nursing college, they needed to raise money for their traditional pinning ceremony that takes place the night before graduation.

It is a given that not all ASU students are irresponsible, but what are the chances of this pup being given to a student who cannot give it the attention it needs and deserves.

Hopefully, the lucky ASU student who "wins" the nursing school pup, knew the responsibilities before laying down the money.

And if this student finds that he can't handle a puppy, let's hope he finds a better way to solve his problem instead of dumping it and leaving it to fend for itself.

Finally, the nursing school, supposedly being humanitarians, should think twice about how they are going to raise money for a ceremonial party. It's one thing to raffle off a TV or a scooter, but when you raffling off a living thing, it's a whole different situation.

Free market should determine who pays for water

Do you know where your property taxes are going? If you live in the water service area for the Salt River Project, you may be paying for water that you will never see.

According to Harry Braun, candidate for Congress in District 1, the homeowners in Tempe, Mesa, Gilbert and Chandler are paying for the Central Arizona Project water, which is primarily used by wealthy corporate farmers.

So how did this situation come about? And why don't you know about it? Braun gave me some answers last week while he was on campus to debate his opponent, Jay Rhodes.

He explained that the original purpose of the CAP was to bring Colorado River water down to Arizona farmers. But because the water is too salty and far too expensive, those same farmers who lobbied for it are turning it down. So what we have now is a surplus of CAP water. Braun points out that "to say that we have a water shortage is the first myth that needs to be corrected. It is a myth that has been created by the agribusiness community to justify this immense multibillion dollar project."

So why isn't the extra water going to the cities? And just what will be done with it? Braun tells a fascinating but little known story. It seems that the CAP is managed by a small agency known as the Central Arizona Conservation District Board. You say you've never heard of it? That is not surprising, since its members are not too fond of publicity. Over the years, they have made it difficult for people to learn of the times and locations of their meetings. And those locations are often in the most remote places. One meeting was held on a ranch 64 miles out of Tucson down a 20-minute stretch of dirt road. They may claim to observe the Arizona open-meeting law, but this seems questionable, to say the least.

Ellen M. Young
Columnist

Anyway, this board has decided that the property taxes of city homeowners will pay for the water, while corporate agribusiness — primarily about 1,200 cotton farmers — will receive it. Now, first of all, cotton is a water-intensive crop; it requires an intense amount of water, you might say. So, as Braun quite logically points out, growing cotton in the desert is "somewhat absurd." He says the ideal crops would be citrus fruits and other foods. So why are the farmers growing cotton? Two main reasons: these cotton crops are heavily subsidized by the federal government, and, secondly, they produce a higher profit than food crops. The CAWCD also sees that these farmers get much cheaper electrical power from the dams than do city dwellers.

What it adds up to is this: 90 percent of Arizona's water is consumed by agriculture, which contributes 2.5 percent of the state's income. Meanwhile, 95 percent of the state's income is provided by the cities, which consume only 7 percent of the water.

So why is this board so fond of wealthy cotton farmers? Well, campaign contributions don't hurt.

Braun feels that the free market should determine where the water goes, that those who receive it should pay for it and that CAWCD meetings should be held in cities where the public would have easy access to them. He says that if he were elected, a major investigation would take place.

You may be wondering why all of this means so much to Harry Braun. Two reasons: first, a majority of the people affected by it live in his district and, second, his opponent, Jay Rhodes, is a member of the CAWCD board.

According to Braun, the secretive board meetings are not uncharacteristic of Rhodes, who has a bit of a penchant for avoiding the public. Following their first ASU debate, at which Braun did quite well, Rhodes decided to change the rules. The second debate was cut from two hours to one, and he refused unscreened questions from the audience. Braun, on the other hand, took any and all questions from students down on the mall. Braun feels that Rhodes attempts to avoid debates for fear of embarrassment.

Granted, this is a good campaign issue for Braun. But it is also an important issue for the voters to consider. The CAWCD board members are elected by the citizens of Maricopa, Pima and Pinal counties. If the same members are re-elected, the same practices likely will continue. Braun and many others have endorsed Sam Goddard for a position on the board. Goddard, father of Phoenix Mayor Terry Goddard, is a former governor of Arizona and current chairman of the State Democratic Party. Braun endorses him because, as he explains it, "Sam Goddard is a Democrat, and Democrats have traditionally always looked out for little people — for the majority of people — and Republicans have always traditionally looked out for and worked for wealthy people."

Clearly, something must be done about this board. And I agree that Sam Goddard is the man to change things. But we also owe Harry Braun thanks for having the courage to bring it out in the open, while so many other elected officials discuss the problem behind closed doors.

LGAU tactics unnecessary

Editor:

As an Associated Students senator, I see my name defamed (indirectly) almost daily in the letters to the editor concerning funding the Lesbian and Gay Academic Union. I wish to respond to these letters by presenting some comments on apparent LGAU goals and the tactics they employ to try to achieve these goals. For the record, I would like to state that I am not an ideologue nor fundamentalist. I really feel that I have few preconceived ideas about the morality of homosexuality versus heterosexuality.

To begin with, I would like to address the people who have been harshly criticizing the ASASU Senate for supposedly judging the sexual practices of the gay community. No such judgment has been made. There has been no senate resolution condemning homosexuality, nor would any such resolution receive support in the senate.

There seems to be a double standard here. The LGAU (and others) contend that the senate is not qualified to decide whether homosexuality is not acceptable and that senators should not impose their beliefs upon others. I agree with both of these contentions. However, the LGAU and others have decided that homosexuality is acceptable (which is fine) and have decided that it is OK for them to force this decision upon others via lawsuits or threats of recall.

If the senate should not be allowed to decide that homosexuality is not acceptable (which it shouldn't), then it should not be allowed to decide that it is acceptable. "Acceptance" is what the LGAU wants. The LGAU doesn't want funding. They want to force the senate to pat them on the back and say it is all right to be gay. If they don't receive that, then they want all of publicity and attention they can get.

In addition, here is a personal comment on the LGAU's tactics in requesting funds. Since I have never been personally contacted by this organization, I can only assume they feel it is more effective to throw temper tantrums on Cady Mall and storm out of senate meetings than it is to try to convince elected representatives of the validity of their request or of the possible error in my vote.

Keeping 'A' butte gold

Editor:

As an organization dedicated to promoting school spirit, the Student Athletic Board was pleased to discover your concern for the welfare of the 'A' on Tempe Butte.

In years past, the 'A' has been maintained by the Student Alumni Association and is currently being attended by the SAB.

Gold is the official color of the 'A' and is the color that we have been using since the introduction of the Athletic Department's "Go Gold" campaign.

We are aware of the current "discoloration" of the 'A' and by the time this letter is printed, it should be gold again.

We regret that the 'A' changes colors so frequently. It is sad that certain groups on campus are so self-obsessed that they refuse to contribute to school spirit in lieu of themselves. Continuous and repeated color changes are bound to result in our loss of the 'A.' The City of Tempe has assured us of this.

We ask that everyone show their spirit and keep the 'A' gold. With your support, the 'A' can continue to serve as a symbol of pride and tradition at ASU.

Man healing after surgeries on injuries from tram mishap

A Sun Lakes man who sustained head injuries when he jumped off an ASU tram near the College of Law was listed in critical but stable condition Sunday.

Donald Pollie, a 59-year-old doctor, is recuperating at St. Joseph's Hospital in Phoenix. Pollie underwent two operations to remove blood clots in his brain.

Pollie, of 10644 E. Michigan Ave., jumped from the tram Wednesday after it had turned south on McCallister Avenue from College Street. According to ASU Registrar records, Pollie is taking a class at the University.

A witness on the tram said Pollie attempted to get off the vehicle as it turned the corner at Armstrong Hall. Pollie apparently got up from his seat, turned and jumped.

The tram was traveling at about 10 mph. He was transported to the emergency room at St. Luke's Hospital and moved to St. Joseph's late Wednesday night.

Pollie gained consciousness shortly after he landed on the pavement, but lost consciousness before he was taken from the scene.

'Red curbed' street awaits meters

By TINA DAUNT
State Press

ASU students will not be able to park on Myrtle Avenue, east of Tempe Center, until ASU completes its installation of parking meters, the assistant director of parking said.

Richard Landreth said the street was "red curbed" and will be closed for parking for at least three weeks.

"We're in the process of signing an agreement with the City of Tempe to gain access to Myrtle Avenue, Krugar Avenue and 10th Street," he said. "We're removing the city meters on Myrtle and installing our own."

Victor Zafra, vice president for business affairs, said although the City of Tempe gave the streets to ASU, the University plans to give the city access to various ASU properties.

"Since the streets were given to us, we feel we have a moral commitment to the City of Tempe," he said.

"We're still in the process of working out the agreement. The city would like to expand Terrace Road at Rural Avenue for bike riders and use part of Tempe Butte for a park."

Zafra said ASU needed to gain access of Krugar Avenue, east of Tower Center, before the expansion of the Architecture Building could be completed.

ASU police report

University police reported the following incidents in the 72-hour period ending 6:30 a.m. Sunday:

•The fire alarm system at Cholla Apartments C- and D-wings was activated by a malfunction, police said.

When the staff for the complex tried to get the residents to go through evacuation procedures, few residents cooperated and police were asked to assist in enforcing evacuation.

Police said they discovered only half of the residents complied when they made floor by floor room checks.

Officers reset the alarm after they were able to get residents to cooperate with the drill, police said.

•Police said they gave citations to seven people for various liquor violations on Alpha Drive Friday and Saturday nights.

Two juveniles who police questioned for exiting from 717 Alpha Drive with alcoholic beverages told police they "had no idea they could not legally possess alcohol," police said.

Police advised the youths of ASU and Arizona liquor laws and escorted them off campus, police said.

•Police barricaded Lemon Street between College and Forest avenues late Friday afternoon until late Saturday afternoon because of a power outage in the Best, Hayden and Irish residence halls.

•A woman not affiliated with the University reported she had been traveling with a man she met in Flagstaff when he abandoned her in the parking lot of Tempe Center, police said.

She reported the man drove away with her personal belongings in his 1966 Dodge truck, police said.

Police said they have not apprehended the man. Police brought the woman to the All Saints Catholic Newman Center for help.

•University Drive was blocked off for about 40 minutes while a young man, who was not affiliated with ASU, was evacuated from Manzanita Hall with self-inflicted gunshot wounds Friday morning.

•An abandoned ASU van was found near the 42-mile post on Route 286, near the Tucson Department of Public Safety, police said.

Sisters, collectors boost 'Genuine Nun Doll' sales

ELMHURST, Ill. (AP) — A suburban businessman says he's trying to preserve his childhood memories of nuns and some of the Roman Catholic Church's tradition by marketing his Genuine Nun Dolls.

"People like doll collectors and men and women who were educated by nuns buy them," said Tom Cholewa, who said he had sold about 500 of the 18-inch dolls with authentic, old-fashioned habits during the past year.

"They're as original as we can get them," Cholewa said Saturday. "The doll costumes are sewn by a tailor. Each one is a work of art. They could never be made on an assembly line."

The dolls, selling by mail order for $89.95, have received enthusiastic support from nuns around the country, Cholewa said.

"The sisters have been very helpful," said the 32-year-old entrepreneur.

Tempe police report

Tempe police reported the following incidents for the period ending midnight Thursday:

•Police said someone entered the Serving Spoon restaurant, 331 S. River Drive and broke into the cash drawer Oct. 15.

The thief entered by prying open the front door and stole $50.

Police have no suspects in the case.

•An officer was sent to investigate a possible drug overdose Oct. 14, police said.

Police were contacted by a Tempe woman's ex-boyfriend, who told them that the woman may have taken an overdose of sleeping pills.

The officer found the woman in her home, where she assured him that everything was fine.

But police said the officer was again dispatched a short time later and discovered the woman unconscious.

Police said the woman told her ex-boyfriend that she had consumed 15 or 16 sleeping pills.

She was transported to Tempe St. Luke's Hospital, where she was listed in stable condition.

Emergency room doctors said the pills appeared to be valium or a valium-like substance.

Police said a search of the woman's house revealed a serving tray with a white, powdery substance on it.

•Unknown persons entered a Tempe man's residence at 1100 W. Manhattan Drive by kicking in the carport door.

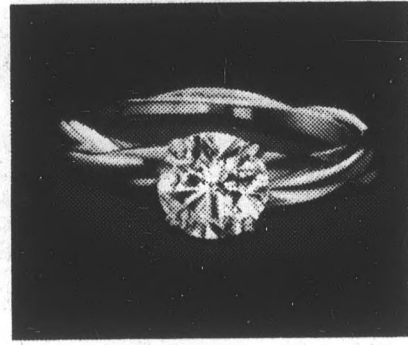

The thief stole a RCA 19-inch color television, valued at $150, and a gold cross on a chain worth $10.

•Police said unknown persons entered a Tempe man's residence at the 400 block of East Cornell Drive by prying off a rear screen window Oct. 14.

The thief removed various items of jewelry, including a gold ring with three diamonds, valued at $300, from a box in the bedroom.

Soviets expel 5 U.S. diplomats; White House promises 'action'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union expelled five U.S. diplomats on Sunday, five days after the last of 25 Soviet U.N. envoys ordered out of the United States returned home.

A Kremlin official linked the expulsions to the U.S. order against the Soviet U.N. diplomats. In Washington, Secretary of State George Shultz responded, "We will protest, and we will take some action."

Sunday's expulsions of four diplomats in Moscow and one in Leningrad were announced by the official news agency Tass. It said in a brief report that the Foreign Ministry determined they had engaged in "impermissible activities," a catch phrase for espionage.

The five are Jack Roberts of the U.S. consulate in Leningrad and William Norville, a first secretary; Charles Ehrenfried, a third secretary; and attaches Gary Lonnquist and David Harris from the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

The Tass announcement did not mention the U.S. expulsions of the Soviet diplomats from the United Nations, but Georgy Arbatov, a chief Kremlin spokesman, indicated that the Soviets were retaliating. Arbatov spoke in a satellite interview from Moscow on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation."

"The Americans will (see that) Mr. Gorbachev is a very forthcoming man if he has good partners. But if you behave in such a way, he becomes very tough," Arbatov said, referring to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

"It can cool down to zero in both countries if you go on this way of retaliation after retaliation," Arbatov added.

Shultz, appearing on the NBC-TV program "Meet the Press," said it is up to President Reagan to decide what action to take.

Donald Regan, the White House chief of staff, said on "Face the Nation": "I'm disappointed to see that (the expulsions). I thought that after Reykjavik, relationships would have improved somewhat. We are now going to have to consider taking appropriate action . . . to consider what our alternatives are."

Neither Shultz nor Regan would elaborate on the possible U.S. response.

The expulsions came after U.S. and Soviet officials gave indications that the dispute over the U.N. envoys was quieting down.

In March the United States ordered the Soviet Union to reduce its U.N. Mission staff by 105 people over a two-year period, contending many of the diplomats were engaged in espionage. It was stated that it was up to the Soviets to determine whom to recall.

The last of the Soviets had left Tuesday, before the deadline.

TV's nuptial king honeymoons with luck

Bob Eubanks is back, for better or worse, in the all "new" Newlywed Game on KTVK Channel 3 weekdays at 6:30 p.m.

By GREGORY ROBERT KRZOS
State Press

PHOENIX — What does your husband say to you before you the two of you make whoopie at night?

The answers are unpredictable and varied and sometimes may even result in a swift slap across the face from the spouse. But for Bob Eubanks, King Midas of "The Newlywed Game," nuptial bliss (or blues) has definitely been the makeup of his career.

Up close and personal, Eubanks appears to be a rather serene gentleman.

While staying in Phoenix to promote the "New Newlywed Game" on KTVK Channel 3 at 6:30 p.m. weekdays, Eubanks sits in his Embassy Suites hotel room and ponders over his remarkable career and the luck that has been pulling at his trousers ever since he began show business. Nix the camera and the eight hilarious newlyweds, and you've got an entirely different man.

There wasn't any elbow-poking humor or signs of inflated TV wackiness. It was just Bob Eubanks — and not a word about whoopie.

"I was driving down an L.A. freeway and I wanted to see what the number one (radio) station (KRLA) looked like," he said. "One of the DJ's was sick, I said 'You're in a jam, can I help?' — I was there seven years."

It is this type of spur-of-the-moment luck that landed him a role as host of "The Newlywed Game." He bet a friend $5 that he could get an agent to represent him. The agent, convinced that Eubanks had that "flair," signed him on the roster and sent him over to Chuck Barris, who ironically enough needed someone for his new daytime feature, "The Newlywed Game."

"Chuck taught me how to do a show," Eubanks said. "He's the most fascinating man I ever had to deal with. Fortunately I had enough ability to keep going (with the show)."

The show has since "taken off" and has been rolling out the laughter since the early '60s. Who would have thought that a show about four couples, fresh from the altar and gabbing about the "color of bed sheets" would become such a sensation?

Not Eubanks. But he offers a broad smile when the newlyweds are mentioned. It is quite obvious that riding the marriage-go-round has been very rewarding.

"Those four couples have the same enthusiasm now as they did in 1966," he said. "They say things that they wouldn't say at a party. Comedy writers couldn't write some of the things

Artist mixes danger, mysteries of modern life

By KHALI CRAWFORD
State Press

The element of danger which has found graduate student Brian Borello slumbering with a python and hanging upside down from a crane seems to pervade the artist's "mysterious" work.

"I am doing steel constructions and experimenting with neon mixed with stone or concrete in dangerous, precarious situations," Borello said.

Borello's Master of Fine Arts thesis exhibition of selected sculptures and four drawings will be displayed in the Harry Wood Art Gallery today through Friday Oct.

24. There will be an opening reception at the gallery tonight from 7 to 9 p.m.

Borello has taken a hiatus of sorts from performance work such as his 1983 "Sleeping with Pythons" and his 1984 "Swinging Man" to concentrate on sculpture.

Talking Heads "True Stories"

Every once in a while it is nice to listen to an album that offers both strong music and lyrics that say more than "I want to sleep with you." "True Stories" by the Talking Heads is one of those albums.

The songs on this album have some strong sounds; however, the album begins to seem redundant because lead singer David Byrne has a distinctive voice which makes the songs sound alike.

The songs on this album were written by Byrne as part of the screenplay to the narrative feature film, "True Stories," about contemporary American life. The songs reflect various American music forms.

Some of the music genres represented on the album include classic rock, folk ballads and a country sound found in the song "People Like Us".

Two ways to leave the pack behind.

From grade point averages to grad school applications to preparing for the (gasp) real world, there's one thing that stands out about higher education. The higher the education, the stiffer the competition. But don't despair. Apple® has two ways to make sure the competition eats your dust. Just take part in a five minute demonstration of the Macintosh™ personal computer. You'll see how Macintosh can help you work better, faster and smarter. You'll also qualify to win a Trek® 12-speed touring bike. Just by showing up. What's more, you'll walk away with a free bicycle cap. And the knowledge that you can dramatically change the course of History. Biology. And whatever else you may be studying. Macintosh and a Trek bike. Both will do more than help you get ahead. Both will take you anywhere you want to go.

As for appearing on the "Newlywed Game," Eubanks leans back on the couch and shakes his head.

"I could never do the 'Newlywed Game.' I'd be too embarrassed to be on the show. I'm not that outgoing," he said with apprehension. "The show's a piece of fluff, a half hour piece of fluff. If it makes people smile and laugh then it has served its purpose."

BE A PART OF MANAGEMENT YOUR FIRST DAY ON THE JOB.

Where you go with the career you choose often depends on where you start. As a Naval officer, you're already starting halfway up the ladder right from day one.

Maybe you don't think of the Navy as a company, yet if you had a list of every kind of leadership position, you'd find a comparable occupation for a Naval officer.

Executive, managerial, professional, scientific or technical, today's Navy is big business. Sophisticated technical and management training develops experience and responsibility you'll use the rest of your life.

Naval officers earn solid starting salaries with additional allowances adding more to their income, and benefits like free medical and dental care, and thirty days' paid vacation each year.

Minimum qualifications require that you must not have reached your 29th birthday by commissioning, you must have a BA or BS degree, you must be a U.S. citizen and you must qualify for security clearance. For further information, call Navy Management Programs. Make your first job a real move up in the world.

A Tax Advantage
With A
Fourth Floor
View

Whether you're attending ASU, or putting someone through it, now is the time to look into a practical alternative to rising dorm costs. One that gives you both a tax advantage and a more advantageous way of life. Look into Hayden Square.

These elegant, one and two-bedroom condominiums are the perfect places to live while going to school. You're just a five minute walk from the ASU campus. And you're literally in the middle of the convenience and excitement of Old Town Tempe — with its many shops, entertainment centers and more.

Hayden Square even has covered parking — a real plus over trying to find parking around ASU's dorms.

Of course, the tax advantages to owning a Hayden Square Condominium, as opposed to living in a dorm or apartment, are quite obvious. And very beneficial. What's more, by the time you're ready to sell, the resale value's may have appreciated significantly.

So take advantage of Hayden Square. Condominiums that give both ASU students and their parents a clear advantage.

Neon

Borello creates sculptures made from traditional materials such as cast bronze and welded steel. Others are made from rusty steel, wood and painted cardboard which he said he "considers the residue of contemporary life." Both forms are juxtaposed with an urban-like neon light.

A 1981 graduate of the University of New Orleans, Borello came to Arizona in 1984 to work at ASU's neon facility. He has taught three-dimensional design and beginning sculpture and currently is teaching a two dimensional design class. He plans to graduate from ASU in December with a Master of Fine Arts degree in sculpture.

"For me it's a time for experimentation and growth," Borello said. "I like making sculpture using bronze, steel, neon, trash and cardboard. I have even used my body in performance work. I don't like to be confined to one technique."

In the last seven years, the 27-year-old artist has shown his work in nearly 30 exhibitions in five states. In 1986 his work has appeared in the Arizona Biennial Show at the Tucson Museum of Art in Tucson, the Museum of Neon Art in Los Angeles and the Elaine Horwitch Gallery in Scottsdale, among others.

His sculptures, which he says are products of a curious mind, combine "natural systems with mental human constructs."

The sources of his images lie in "things people still don't know a lot about" — particle physics, fossils, plant and animal life, ancient rituals and traditions of man.

"I like to let the pieces have a feel of how contemporary life is — harsh and decaying," he said.

Pieces such as "Seppuku" and "Picador" allude to the Japanese suicide ritual and the Spanish bullfight respectively and are rituals reflected in a contemporary mode.

Another work combines two "mysterious" objects: a man-made coordinate grid with a seashell. He said it integrates the "human representation of reality" with what is "as close to pure geometry as you can get in nature."

The Harry Wood Art Gallery, located on the first floor of the Art Building, is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Silly script strangles 'Choke Canyon'

By AMY FRISCHKNECHT
State Press

If you've ever been to Moab, Utah, you know what a boring and uneventful place it is.

"Choke Canyon," directed by Chuck Bail, is sadly lacking any element of interest. And guess what else? It's filmed in Moab.

It is the story of a young physicist by the name of David Lowell (Stephen Collins) who is researching the possibility of harnessing sound waves and converting them into a safe, inexhaustible form of energy. His theory will be tested when Halley's comet passes over the canyon.

Just as things become rosy, trouble is on the way, as a controversial industrial company has other ideas for the use of the canyon. They want to use Choke Canyon as a hazardous waste dump.

When they offer to buy out Lowell's lease on the everpopular canyon for an enormous amount of money, he repeatedly turns them down. You would think World War III was beginning.

The remaining time of the movie shows the audience nothing more but an all out cat fight for who gets to use the canyon this weekend.

Stephen Collins made his film debut as Hugh Slone in "All the President's Men." From there he has made several appearances in movies such as "Star Trek - The Motion Picture," and "Brewster's Millions."

Career credits of Bo Svenson, who plays The Captain, and Nicholas Pryor, as Pilgrim, are mostly from made-for-television movies and weekly series shows.

"Choke Canyon" features several actors who would

"Choke Canyon"
Ovidio G. Assonitis Productions

normally be labeled as "no names" in the business. Many of them, such as Stephen Collins, Bo Svenson and Nicholas Pryor, have not been established as well-known stars.

In fact, this film has no recognizable names, not even the director or producer. It shows.

During the film all I could think about was why anybody would want to make a film about this subject. What was the point?

However, I must give this film some credit, it was not the worst movie I've ever seen. Even though I felt that my intelligence was being insulted throughout the film, at least I was able to stay awake.

"Choke Canyon" simply was not logical in any sense. Besides attempting to convert sound waves to usable energy, other characteristics of the movie were plain silly.

In the last scene of the movie, when the comet passes over the canyon, they actually depicted it passing over the canyon.

In the midst of all these illogical facts, there was one aspect of the film that made the trip to the theater worth it. The stunts in "Choke Canyon" were nothing short of phenomenal. A helicopter and a plane flew in between canyon crevices, landed on tractor trailers and other neat stunts.

"Choke Canyon," rated PG, is showing in Tempe at AMC Lakes Theaters and Manns Poco Fiesta in Mesa.

Devil spikers win 2; cross-country teams take 2nd, 3rd in Invite

By STEVE BRENNAN
State Press

The ASU volleyball team did its job — but not much more — this weekend in wins over Washington and Washington State, according to Coach Debbie Brown.

The Sun Devils narrowly defeated the Huskies in five games Friday night (15-5, 15-17, 2-15, 15-8, 15-5), but sent the Cougars away early Saturday night, shutting them out in three games (15-13, 15-3, 15-7).

Brown said the team played well but lacked enthusiasm.

"We played steady, but we could have played better. You don't get as emotionally up to play against teams that aren't supposed to be as good."

ASU has a record of 16-2 overall and 6-2 in the Pac-10. The Sun Devils have won their last seven matches, three of which have been against conference opponents.

After soundly defeating Washington in the first game, the Devils fell behind two games to one as the Huskies took advantage of ASU errors, coming from behind to win the second game, 17-15, and crushing them in the third, 15-2.

"We didn't play well," Brown said. "We just weren't thinking. We thought we could just stop playing after the first game."

Brown said the serving in the second and third games was an illustration of the team's attitude.

"Our serving was not very good," she said. "I think that is a good indication of how we were feeling in the match."

ASU then came back to win the next two games, taking the lead from the start and holding the Huskies under 10 points in both, winning the fourth, 15-8, and the final game, 15-5.

Against WSU, the Devils dominated from the first side out.

The Sun Devils jumped out to a 6-0 lead in the first game, but the Cougars came back to take the lead at 8-9. ASU gathered its composure, though, and put the Cougars away, 15-13.

The second and third games proved to be much less competitive, as the Sun Devils held the Cougars to only three points in the second and seven in the third.

"The first game was a little sluggish," Brown said. "But we did better at making adjustments in the last two."

Christy Nore led the Devils in kills against UW with 20, followed by Tammy Webb with 17. Against WSU Webb led with 13 while Tracey Barberie had 10.

The Sun Devils will face one of their toughest matches of the year Thursday night as they travel to Provo, Utah, to play third-ranked Brigham Young. Brown said the team will have to play a lot better to win that match.

"We are going to have to play one of our best matches of the year to win," she said. "We need to play better than we did this weekend."

The ASU cross country team hosted the first annual Sun Devil Invitational Saturday at Red Mountain Ranch in Mesa, with the men finishing in second place behind Houston and the women in third place behind New Mexico and Arizona.

Two Sun Devils placed first and second in the men's 5-mile race. Dan Fisher won the event with a time of 25:57, followed by Steve Preston at 26:32.

Two Houston runners took the third and fourth spots, Walter Bell (26:37) and Ralph Perry (26:39).

ASU runner Fred Herlitz finished in eighth place with a time of 27:23, and Sun Devil Chris Cameron placed 12th (27:40).

Carole Roybal of New Mexico won the 5-kilometer (3.1-mile) women's race with a 17:54.23 time, followed by Claire Feit of UA at 17:55.94.

The highest Sun Devil finisher was Laura LaMena in fourth place at 18:17.12. Dawn Arrigoni followed in eighth place and Jen Van Horn placed ninth.

Trojans displeased with ASU victory

By JAY TAYLOR
State Press

LOS ANGELES — Just how angry the USC Trojans were after ASU beat them Saturday was readily apparent as the teams were running off the field.

As the ASU fans were cheering the Devils' 29-20 victory, USC inside linebacker Rex Moore felt it necessary to give the Sun Devil section the finger.

It was a fitting end to a game that turned from a tightly played defensive struggle in the first half into a game of offense in the second.

The game also effectively eliminated the Trojans from the race for the Pac-10 title, by lowering their record to 4-2 overall, 2-2 in the Pac. The Devils moved to 5-0-1, 3-0-1.

The win was ASU's fifth in the seven-game series. Once again the Devils did not turn the ball over, while the Trojans gave the ball up twice, once on a fumble and once on an interception.

That is the philosophy ASU coach John Cooper has tried to live by all year.

"If you don't make mistakes, play good defense and have a good kicking game, you can win this league," Cooper said.

"We are going to be tough to beat. It feels good to be able to control our own destiny. There is a lot of football left to be played, but I like our position."

The Devils stayed with the offensive scheme that has worked for them all year. They started the game by establishing the running game and threw the ball sparingly.

Quarterback Jeff Van Raaphorst had his third consecutive strong game, completing 13 of 22 passes for 184 yards and two touchdowns, with no interceptions.

His second touchdown pass, a nine-yarder to tight end Jeff Gallimore, clinched the game with 7:51 remaining. And it very nearly didn't come off as expected.

With a third down and seven yards to go from the Trojan 9-

Devils Robby Boyd (No. 26), Greg Clark (No. 36) and Skip McClendon (No. 88) gang up to help teammate Stacy Harvey (No. 57) who is getting his arm chewed on by Trojan fullback Todd Steele (No. 21).

yard line the Devils came to the line, only to have Van Raaphorst call time out.

"If Jeff hadn't called time out, I would have run the wrong pattern," Gallimore said. "Usually Stein (Koss) runs the route I ran and I run the one he did. But on our way off the field for the time out, he reminded me that we were changing patterns."

"It's a good thing he did." With the change in patterns firmly in his mind, Gallimore ran over the middle and caught the pass that wrapped up the game.

The Devils were successful running the ball against the Trojans, gaining 211 yards. Tailback Darryl Harris was the leading runner with 73 yards on 20 carries.

The turning point in the game came with just over two minutes left in the third quarter and the score tied 13-13. The Devils had moved the ball to the USC 10-yard line, but were forced to try a field goal. Kicker Kent Bostrom missed to the left, but the Trojans were guilty of running into the kicker, the fourth time this season the Devils have benefited from such a penalty.

Roughing-the-kicker penalties resulted in touchdowns in each of the Devils' first three games; of those games, one was a three-point ASU win over Michigan State and another was a 21-21 tie with Washington State.

The Devils wasted no time taking advantage of this break. Fullback Channing Williams went in from the 5-yard line on the next play, giving ASU a 19-13 lead which they never relinquished.

Bostrom missed the extra point, a miss that loomed large when USC closed to within 22-20. But Gallimore's touchdown catch put the game out of reach.

Van Raaphorst said winning the last three weeks on the road was a big lift for the team.

"These three games were very big for us," he said. "At the beginning of the year we said that we wanted to win two of the three games. But to win all three was a bonus. It's a great feeling to come into a place with a history like this and play as well as we did."

The only remaining road game is the season finale at Arizona, Nov. 22.

Devil tailback Paul Day (No. 22) is caught from behind by USC outside linebacker Marcus Cotton at mid-field.

Van Raaphorst likens Sun Devils to famous prizefighter

Jeff Van Raaphorst gets protection from his line, as he looks for an open receiver. Van Raaphorst was 13 of 22 with two touchdowns Saturday.

By BOB HEILER
State Press

LOS ANGELES — Jeff Van Raaphorst sees a lot of Rocky in the Sun Devil football team.

No, not the fictional Rocky Balboa. The real one: Rocky Marciano, the heavy-weight champion from 1952 to 1956.

"If we just keep throwing punches, we get to them (our opponents) eventually," Van Raaphorst said after the Sun Devils' 29-20 win over the USC Trojans Saturday. "We're just like Rocky Marciano."

Like Marciano, the Devils are undefeated. Saturday, the Trojans were the Jersey Joe Walcotts of the afternoon.

Van Raaphorst explained how the team has managed to defeat Pac-10 challengers like UCLA and USC this season.

"Little mistakes, the things you know you shouldn't do, we just haven't been doing lately," Van Raaphorst said.

The Devils have made only one turnover in their last three games, a fumble to UCLA. With the exception of the Washington State 21-21 tie, in which Van Raaphorst was intercepted five times, he has been almost flawless, tossing just one interception in the Devils' other five games.

Van Raaphorst also has had the knockout punch on his side, throwing for nine touchdowns and averaging 14.8 yards per catch.

However, Van Raaphorst is quick to point out that the Devils' passing success in the last few games have been a direct result of the offensive linemen's play.

"The line is playing really well, really hard," he said. "It looks like I'm going to have to buy a few dinners at the end of the season."

The Devils are on top of the Pac-10 race, the only remaining undefeated team in the conference. And according to Van Raaphorst, every week they remain that way makes the next game that much more important.

"I think every time you keep winning, the next game coming up is the biggest," Van Raaphorst said. "We needed this win. We had three tough road games, and we were hoping to get through with at least two out of three wins."

"After we won the first two, we really wanted this one, especially because this place is home for a lot of these guys."

The Sun Devils have 22 starters from Southern California, a fact that made the two wins over UCLA and USC especially satisfying, according to Van Raaphorst.

But now that the wins are over, Van Raaphorst is looking forward to returning home, both on the playing field and off of it.

"I'll be happy to get back to Phoenix and get out of LA," Van Raaphorst said. "It's too much of a rat race for me."

With the return home and three conference games left to play, Van Raaphorst is hoping that the team can continue doing the things that put it on top of the Pac-10.

"The whole year we've just been out there firing at people," he said.

Sun Devils lead Pac-10 after 3 game road trip

The ASU football team completed a three-game road sweep by defeating the USC Trojans 29-20 in the Los Angeles Memorial coliseum Saturday.

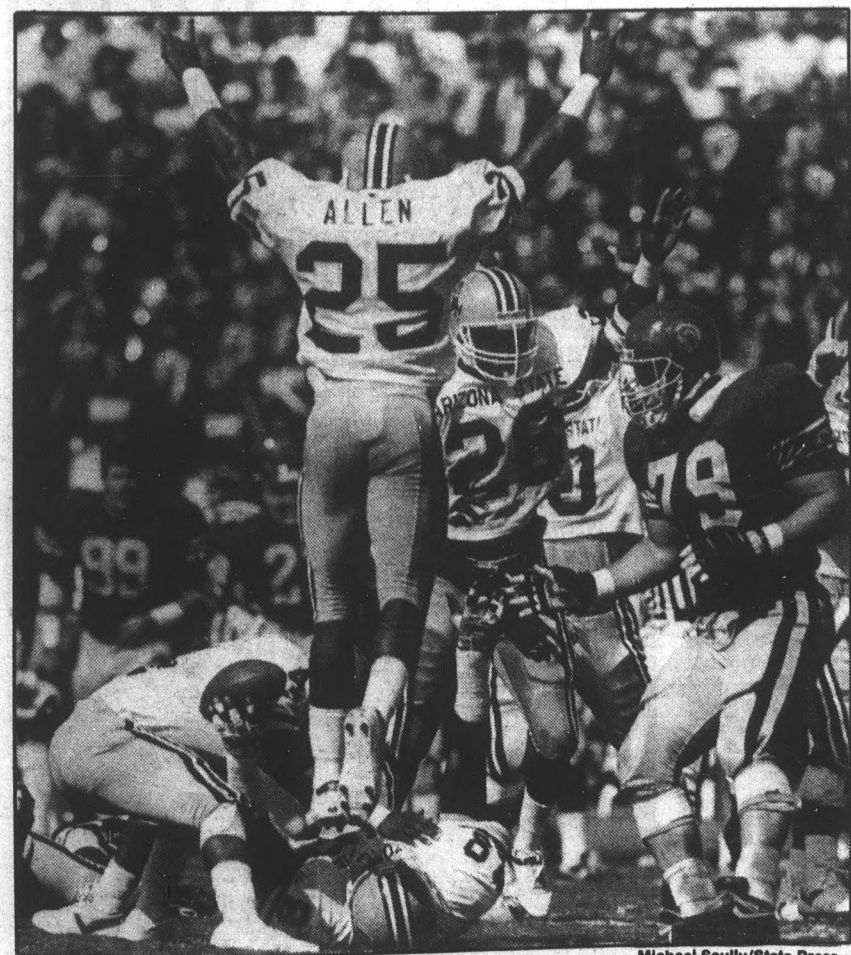

The Devils lead the Pac-10 conference, the lone blemish on their record a 21-21 tie to Washington State in the third game of the season.

The Devils three-game sweep included two wins in Los Angeles, over the Trojans and the UCLA Bruins, who lost to ASU 16-9. Sandwiched between these two ins over perennial powers was a 37-17 pasting of the Oregon State Ducks.

The Sun Devils outscored the Trojans 16-7 in the second half, after the two teams played to a 13-13 tie at halftime.

The USC game improves the Devils' series record with the Trojans to 5-2, making ASU the only team that holds a winning record over USC.

The team returns to Sun Devil Stadium this weekend for the first leg of a four-game homestand against Utah, California, Washington and Wichita State, before traveling to Tucson to face its intra-state rival, the Wildcats of UA.

ASU defenders celebrate a fumble recovery in the fourth quarter.
