

Senate strikes funding criteria after suit filed

By DARRIN HOSTETLER
State Press

The Associated Students Senate deleted all funding criteria for campus clubs and organizations last night after the Lesbian and Gay Academic Union filed a lawsuit against ASU in federal district court.

A press release issued by the LGAU said the lawsuit alleges "ASASU's refusal to fund the group infringes on (the LGAU's) constitutional rights to free speech and association and denies them equal protection and due process."

The LGAU has been denied funding, along with several other campus clubs and organizations, under a provision in the ASASU bylaws that prohibited funding groups that are "controversial."

LGAU co-chair Denise Heap said President J. Russell Nelson, Vice President for Student Affairs Betty Asher, Associated Students and the Arizona Board of Regents are named as defendants in the suit.

ASASU Executive Vice President Bridget Shelton, Campus Affairs Vice President Lee Anne Seall, Activities Vice President Christine Roth and 13 members of the ASASU Senate also are named as defendants.

The ASASU senators and executive officers officially were served notice of the lawsuit during the senate meeting last night.

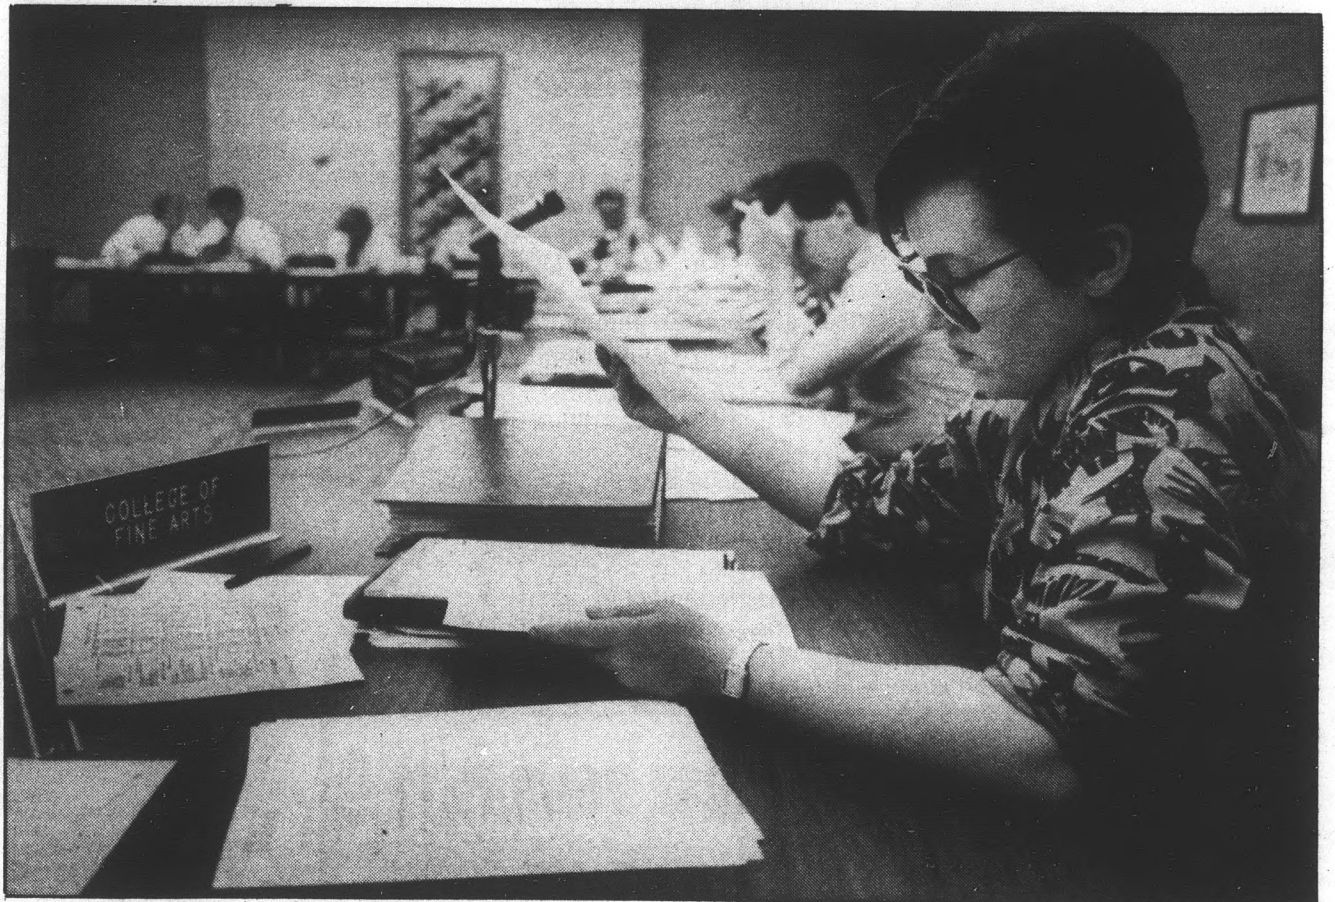

ASU law student Ed Ranger, a certified Arizona process server, distributed 17-page statements to the defendants that described the basis of the lawsuit and notified them of their obligation to file a denial in U.S. District Court within 20 days.

As several members of the LGAU watched, the senators received their documents in an atmosphere of surprise and high spirits.

Many senators laughed, and some broken applause broke out in response to comments made by senators picking up their copy of the document.

Executive Vice President Bridget Shelton rose and said "thank you very much" while taking her copy of the lawsuit from Ranger.

The senate then considered Senate Bill 60, a measure that originally would have stricken the section of the bylaws that prohibited the funding of groups deemed "controversial."

College of Fine Arts Sen. Lisa Marie Kiessling reads a subpoena that some ASASU members were served during the senate meeting in the MU Tuesday evening. Many senators were served with a lawsuit filed by the LGAU after the group was denied funding. Kiessling was among the senators not named in the suit.

Andy Mrozinski/State Press

But the measure, authored by College of Public Programs Sen. Kate Lehman, would have added a provision that prevented groups whose "primary purpose is to promote a sexual preference" from receiving funding.

The senate, after nearly two hours of debate, ended up

ASU employee serious, stable after weekend 3-car accident

By LAUREN MILLETTE
State Press

An ASU employee was in serious but stable condition Tuesday after a three-car collision Sunday that also killed his wife during a "weekend of abnormal tragedy on the highways of Arizona," a police spokesman said.

"There were nine reported fatal car accidents, with 15 fatalities — an unusually high number for a three-day holiday weekend," Arizona Department of Public Safety Sgt. Dan Sanders said.

"We usually only see two or three fatal accidents during holiday weekends."

George Whittaker, a 50-year-old ASU parking officer, is being treated for multiple abrasions in the Intensive Care Unit at Scottsdale Memorial Hospital.

Roberta Whittaker, 49, died from internal injuries at the scene of the accident. The couple had eight children.

Sanders said police did not issue any citations but are investigating the accident. He said the cause of the accident has not been determined.

Police gave the following description of the accident:

Whittaker and his wife were heading northbound on Route 87, three miles south of Shea Boulevard at 6:30 p.m., when a 1985 Chevrolet, also traveling north, slid sideways into their vehicle.

The Chevrolet was driven by 52-year-old Coolidge resident Eiko Hartman.

Hartman hit the Whittaker's car after she was side-swiped by a southbound car driven by Michelle Edens, an 18-year-old Tempe woman, who was trying to pass another southbound vehicle.

Edens was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and treated for a fractured pelvis, internal injuries, cuts and bruises.

Her two passengers sustained minimal injuries. Hartman and her passengers were taken to Scottsdale Memorial Hospital, treated and released for minor injuries.

2 ASU graduate students killed in head-on collision

By MIKE BURGESS
State Press

Department of Public Safety officials still are investigating the cause of a head-on collision that killed two ASU graduate students and injured four other people early Saturday morning.

The two Indian students, Madhu Anshumali, a civil engineering graduate student, and Suresh Natarajan, a physics graduate student, were killed when a van driving the wrong way in the southbound lanes of Interstate 17 at McDowell Road collided with their 1977 Toyota Corolla.

DPS officer Bob Dapser said no charges have been filed or arrests made in the accident, but he said "alcohol was involved."

The two passengers in the Toyota, Subrata Chakraborty, an engineering and applied sciences graduate student, and Dipankar Gupta, a mathematics graduate student, were injured in the accident.

On Tuesday afternoon, Gupta was in serious condition at St. Joseph's Hospital and Chakraborty was in stable condition at Good Samaritan Hospital.

The driver of the van, 30-year-old Mark Henry Ott, was in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday.

Senior business major Sujoy De, a close friend of the ASU students, said the deaths of his friends, whom he called "saints," has not sunk in.

Madhu Anshumali

Suresh Natarajan

He said the accident occurred when the men were returning from Studio West, 4029 N. 33rd Ave. in Phoenix, at about 1:30 a.m. De said Gupta had passed his qualifying doctoral exam in mathematics and the men went out to celebrate.

De said Natarajan is religious and did not drink, and Anshumali only drank occasionally.

The roommate of the men who were killed said Natarajan played table tennis on Friday nights, but because there was no game that night, he went out.

"He was the most honest guy," he said. "He never drank and was very religious. He is one of the simplest guys."

He said Anshumali, the driver of the car, drank occasionally.

De said he and about 15 other ASU students from India spend time together and watch football games.

"Who's the guy upstairs that does these strange things?" he said. "If this is life, I don't know. It's weird."

Police said Ott, the driver of the van, was driving on a suspended license, and the license plates on the van were not registered to that vehicle.

Vendor says resolution doesn't cut the mustard

Ordinance will require $1 million in insurance

By TINA DAUNT
State Press

The Tempe City Council is cracking down on mobile merchants, but a popular University Drive vendor claims the new ordinance will leave him out in the cold.

The council passed a resolution Feb. 12 regulating Tempe vendors by requiring $1 million in personal-injury and liability insurance.

But Casey O'Hara, who sells hot dogs from a cart on the corner of College Street and University Drive, said he is afraid the new requirement will force him out of business.

"The $1 million in insurance scares me because I don't know if I can get it," he said. "It's just not fair."

"The city doesn't require restaurants to take $1 million in insurance. I don't think I should have to either."

O'Hara said he already has an insurance policy of $300,000. Tempe Councilman William Ream said if O'Hara is sued for more than his insurance coverage, the city could be held liable.

"The $1 million in insurance is essential," he said. "The city is self-insured, and we can't be expected to dip into the taxpayers' pockets if Casey is sued and can't pay."

Ream said O'Hara has 30 days to get the insurance. If he can't obtain a policy, Ream said the city may make an exception to the resolution.

O'Hara, who has been selling hot dogs on the same corner for three years, said he serves about 900 students a week.

City Attorney Dave Merkel said $1 million in insurance is a "spit in the ocean."

"Protection for $1 million is a good amount to have," he said. "Anything lower is inadequate."

Under the new law, sidewalk vendors also are required to pay $250 for a six-month permit, which guarantees sidewalk space.

Like the old ordinance, the new law requires mobile merchants to move every hour. Sidewalk vendors, who sell goods from carts, are no longer restricted by the time limit.

O'Hara said he is satisfied with the new ordinance except for the insurance requirement.

"I get to sell longer, and I don't have to worry about someone else trying to take my spot," he said.

The City of Tempe began studying the vendor issue after several established merchants complained that they were being undersold by vagabond vendors, who have low overheads.

City staff discovered that many mobile merchants were operating without city sales tax licenses and violating zoning laws.

Todd Green/State Press

Casey O'Hara, Tempe hot dog vendor at the corner of University Drive and College Avenue has been there for 3 years but may be in danger of losing his spot because of changing insurance regulations by the Tempe City Council.

National Guard offers benefits beyond push-ups

The crunch is on. Between the Arizona Board of Regents and the governor's office, students are looking at $120 per year in proposed tuition increases. Though Ev Mecham assures us that we should be grateful that the increase is as "modest" as it is, students who know the dull tedium of rolling pennies tend to question our supposed good fortune.

The fact is that many students are marginal as it is. An increase in tuition will certainly derail many students' educational plans and hopes for the future.

The purpose of this column is not to bewail our fortunes — that's been done already. Rather, I'd simply like to offer a suggestion to those who may be seeking a way to stay in school.

Various National Guard units offer as much as $18,000 in educational support. This comes in the form of enlistment bonuses, roughly $100 a month for monthly guard drills, about $5,000 in educational assistance for undergraduates under the new G.I. Bill and a generous student loan repayment program.

But there are a few catches, too. Much of the money is available only through six-year enlistments. You also have to go through the same basic training as the regular troops: getting your head shaved bald, doing sit-ups until you choke, having drill sergeants scream into your face . . . the whole nine yards.

Oh, yeah. You also have to swear an oath saying, in effect, that you're prepared to die for your country. If there is a war and the Guard is mobilized, you get to go.

But for what it worth, I've been a pretty happy member of the Arizona Air Force and Army National Guard for the past six years. Soon I'm going to re-enlist for another six years. They made me an offer I couldn't refuse; they're repaying 90 percent of my student loan.

Ed Schubert
Analysis Editor

I don't want to sound too much like a Guard commercial. There have been times when I would have said, "Take this job and shove it!" if I had had that option.

But the pluses really outweigh the minuses. I'm presently in the 180th Field Artillery, C Battery. Lobbing 100-pound high-explosive shells downrange is just a hell of a lot of fun.

You also get to get dirty. After a month at ASU, minding my professional decorum and trying to impress the "right" people, I'm ready to go down to the firing range and run around in the mud, dirt and cactus while the guns blast up seismic waves of dust and sulfur.

But again, there are drawbacks: k.p., miserable weather, second lieutenants.

Sometimes my liberal friends raise their eyebrows when I mention that I'm in the Guard. There is a certain tendency among the general public, and liberals in particular, to see the terms "military" and "militarism" as synonymous (they aren't) and to see the armed forces as somehow the exclusive domain of conservatives and Republicans — or worse.

This is an unfortunate misconception for two reasons. First, it is thoroughly false. The U.S. military is as nonpolitical in practice as it is in theory, the antics of Col. North notwithstanding. Also, the armed forces probably lose a lot of good people who would be very compatible with the military, but who never consider enlistment because they perceive it as somehow a conservative force.

I suspect this misconception of the military runs most strongly at ASU among supporters of the various peace and anti-nuke groups — groups for whose principles I have much, but not complete, sympathy.

So I would like to leave those folks with the following thought.

We know that one reason the United States is reluctant to pursue nuclear disarmament is because of the Soviets' vast superiority in numbers and conventional forces. The U.S.S.R. and its proxies practice universal military conscription; the United States and our allies do not.

When an individual joins the U.S. armed forces, is it possible that he or she is making nuclear disarmament just a jot more possible, having made the West's conventional forces just a jot larger?

Is it at least possible that American servicemen and women have made a moral commitment as great or greater as those who trespass and are arrested on Nevada nuclear testing sites?

Emasculating manifesto

Editor:
In response to Patrick J. Kucera's editorial of Feb. 6.

What is not necessarily a simplistic or trite issue turned out to be a pretentious personal manifesto that backfired on Mr. Kucera by emasculating him into a sophisticated "1980s kind of guy." His attempt to overwhelm us with high art and fine cuisine, not to mention the "Very Special Old Pail" (that's V.S.O.P., guys), failed.

A philosopher once said, "You can dress a pig in a tuxedo." I am in no way referring to Mr. Kucera as the former, for I can accept most opinions and there is a love I feel that does not allow me to regard anybody as inferior. (No, I am not religious. I am an atheist.) I've met the type of men Mr. Kucera is talking about and I know what he means, but this almost always is a superficial barrier that can be broken.

If you want to gain some insight on the human nature, try reading Tolstol's "The Chinese Pilot" or listen to Webern's "Wozzeck." They offer a deeper insight to the human social condition than did Mr. Kucera's editorial.

Kucera's a sissy

Editor:
Mr. Patrick (or is that "Patsy") Kucera is a hypocrite. It is not OK for "real men" to laugh at "sissies" like yourself, but it is fine for you to ridicule them. Where is your sense of fairness?

I have been categorized by many to be a member of your "real men" stereotype; yet, I "cook, sew, clean, shop for bargains and wash clothes" and appreciate arts and crafts, too. Sure, I like a rugged game of football, talking about previous exploits while downing brewskies with the guys and don't eat quiche, but that doesn't make me the un-Christ-like ogre you depicted. Last week's sermon said it best. "You don't have to be a wimp to be humble."

You have chosen your preference or activities, maybe because you lack the talent or the (insert "real men" lingo here) for the others, but your lack of participation in the "real men" category has made you ignorant of reality. "Real men" come in all types, i.e. Jesus fits in just fine.

Your description, Mr. Kucera, should have been labeled "real stupid men," and they come in all types, too, even "sissies."

Peter Munguia
Senior, Electrical Engineering

It's all so un'real'

Editor:
Patrick J. Kucera really hit the nail on the head with his "real men" editorial in the Feb. 6 State Press. It is only true that today in the United States (and in many other countries as well), a Jesus Christ or a Benjamin Franklin would not be a "real man" in the "real" eyes of many "real men" and "real women." For that matter, a Madame Curie or an Amelia Earhardt would not be considered a "real woman" by these folks. Irrational and ridiculous stereotyping of "real men" and "real women," often based on archaic notions of masculinity and femininity, is at the root of most of the problems between the sexes today. The sooner men and women realize the "real" truth, the better they will be able to understand each other.

S. Bala Chandran
Graduate student, Computer Science

Stop sensationalism

Editor:
Grow up! The State Press police reports smack of "sensationalism," e.g. "a flaccid penis" or "an erect penis."

Displays have taken fun out of purchasing Trojans

Should condom companies be permitted to beat the drum for their products on national television?

I say they should.

I had a passing acquaintance with condoms long before they became an advertising issue. But our generation never called them condoms. They were Trojans. Even in those days brand name was everything.

The first thing we learned in the P.S. 35 schoolyard was that Trojans came three in a pack, and you better carry them at all times because you never knew when lightning was going to strike.

We looked on anyone who carried Trojans as our role model, and believed as gospel everything he told us about his sex life. They were lies, all lies, but they certainly held our attention.

The toughest thing about Trojans was

Art Buchwald
Los Angeles Times
Syndicate

obtaining them from the drugstore.

On Jamaica Avenue it went like this. I entered and went to the soda fountain for a chocolate egg cream. Then I cased the store waiting for it to be empty, or as near as empty as it could get. I read comic books until Doc Fiedler's counter was clear.

Doc Fiedler always kept the Trojans under the cash register next to the Feen-amint and Jergens lotion. I once peeked back there to see how they were stacked. Finally I said, in a very high screechy voice, after buying a small tube of Ipana toothpaste, "Oh, I forgot. I believe I'll have a pack of Trojans, for my uncle."

Doc Fiedler looked at me suspiciously. "You got a date tonight with Jean Harlow?" he asked.

"Maybe. Are these the real thing?"

As I think back now, I'm sure Doc had trouble restraining a grin. He said, "You can have a money-back guarantee on all three."

I gave him 50 cents and stuffed the Trojans in a wallet where they remained untouched for 10 years.

Then they were discovered by my sister who demanded to know what I was doing with them in my wallet.

As most sisters would do, she called me a pig.

As far as I can tell, Trojans went into a decline after World War II and miracle drugs took their place.

In fact, the lore has it that if it hadn't been for school kids buying Trojans to impress their friends, the company might easily have gone under.

Now condoms are back, and they're trying to sell them on national television. I don't believe Doc Fiedler is still with us, but if he is he doesn't have to worry about putting Trojans under the counter anymore. You can have a nice big display in your store window, and no one could care less.

You would think now that Trojans are so popular I'd stock up on them. But that isn't the case. The fun of buying them was sneaking to the back of the store, and making my purchase before anyone caught me. Besides, what's the big deal of showing off to all my friends when they can see them for themselves next to the L'eggs display by the door?

ASU technology studies inadequate, prof says

Report describes faults of information sharing

By BEN McCONNELL
State Press

An ASU professor says University studies on the how-to's of manufacturing and how to use evolving technology is woefully inadequate.

In a report to the National Science Foundation last week, Rolf T. Wigand, director of ASU's program for information management and a professor of public administration and communication, suggested the current industry-University method of information sharing is not suitable for spontaneous or temporary projects.

The sharing of industry-University research also is known as technology transfer.

"The reaction of industry researchers is less an indictment of University researchers than an expression of disappointment that the research assistance they would like is not available," the report said.

The downfall of University research for manufacturing processes, properties of materials and applications of evolving technologies occurred at the same time industry emerged as the leader of high-technology research, primarily microelectronics, the survey said.

The combination of University funding cutbacks with the industry surge combined to form a double blow to the industry-University technology transfer relationship.

The year and one-half $105,000 study questioned officials of high technology industries from Motorola, Inc. and Honeywell to small start-up companies with 20 employees, Wigand said.

Officials at Honeywell and Motorola, Inc. were not available for comment.

The technology transfer system works, Wigand said, and minus the deficiencies the study points out, works relatively well.

But cooperative research projects usually take one year to get off the ground, a substantive cramp to topical research in the ever-changing and fast-moving microelectronics industry, the report said.

"The system works but the report seeks to answer why it works," Wigand said. "The most important question is always 'why?'"

Wigand said he set out to discover why the technology transfer system was working, but in the course of the study, he found the system's problems.

ASU police report

University police reported the following incidents in the 96-hour period ending 5 a.m. Tuesday:

•Police said five concrete trash cans and a concrete ashtray were destroyed after a dance in the MU Saturday night. Estimated damage is $1,100.

Lt. Craig Emanuel said police have no suspects but think the damage was caused by people in the area during the dance.

"There were quite a few rowdy people who were hanging around the dance that never went in," he said. "A couple of people are strong enough to do that kind of damage if they set their minds to it."

•A $500 Honda Elite motorscooter was stolen from Lot 64, where it was locked twice, police said.

•Police arrested and charged Andrew J.

Nagy with illegal possession of marijuana, narcotics and related paraphernalia.

The man, not affiliated with the University, was stopped at 300 E. First St.

•Police stopped Hollis J. Kizzire an hour later at the same address for driving on a suspended license.

Kizzire was arrested and charged with driving on a suspended license and possession of marijuana.

•Someone threw a smoke bomb into the game room of the MU, police said. The area was evacuated for about 10 minutes.

•Five students were arrested and charged with alcohol-related crimes, police said.

•A gray couch was taken from the study lounge of Palo Verde East, police said. Estimated loss is $300.

Police said witnesses saw a 5-foot-9 blond man and a 5-foot-10 brunette man in a toga take the couch.

•Someone took a golf bag and clubs from a locked trunk of a car parked in Lot 57, police said. Estimated loss is $300.

•Police said students told an officer they saw a man sitting on the floor in Hayden Library "looking up a female's shorts."

The man, not affiliated with the University, said he was falsely accused, but he left the library shortly after.

•Two students were found in an air conditioning vent on the first floor of Manzanita Residence Hall, police said.

They were escorted out of the building.

•Police responded to complaints of a "wild party" in a room at Cholla Apartments and asked tenants to keep the noise level down.

Police said there were several complaints about objects being thrown from the balcony.

The party resumed, but police had to return two hours later to break up the party.

Police said the tenants were warned if they did not end the party, they would be arrested for disorderly conduct.

•Five juveniles were seen throwing skateboards off the fourth and fifth floors of the Business Administration Center, police said.

The boys ran from officers but were caught on Tyler Mall, police said.

The boys told police they were trying to throw their skateboards into a pond on the ground level. The boys were detained until their parents picked them up, police said.

Tempe police report

Tempe police reported the following incidents ending noon Tuesday:

•A 16-year-old Tempe girl suffered head injuries and was listed in fair condition at Scottsdale Memorial Hospital after a three-car accident at Baseline Road and Lakeshore Drive, police said.

Police said Rashell Jamille Travis was ejected from her stepfather's 1964 Mercedes sedan as he attempted to make a left turn onto Lakeshore Drive and was struck broadside by a 1970 Chevrolet.

The Mercedes, driven by Robert Liddiard Jr., then struck a Toyota coupe on Lakeshore Drive preparing to make a right turn on Baseline Road, police said.

The Chevrolet's driver, Jacilles Undell, was treated and released from County Hospital for leg and knee injuries.

Police said Liddiard suffered fractured ribs but is in satisfactory condition.

•An unknown person entered Rundles Market, 730 S. Mill Ave., through the roof and stole $834 in rolled coins and currency, police said.

Police said a blue steel Lugar .22-caliber pistol and a set of silverware also were stolen.

•Two unknown men robbed Jerry's restaurant, 1715 N. Scottsdale Road, at gunpoint, police said.

Police said the men entered the restaurant while the cashier was opening the register to serve customers.

The first man took money from the register, while the other pointed a handgun at the cashier, police said.

DeConcini asks for South Korean democratization

By KEITH OLBRIGHT
State Press

U.S. Sen. Dennis DeConcini opened an international conference here Friday by asking that Korea be made a democracy.

Although some contend that there is no potential for a peaceful evolution of democracy and that the United States does not belong in Korea, DeConcini said, "If anything, South Korea is asking for U.S. support for a full democracy."

DeConcini said the United States knew "the price of democracy," and cited the recent torturing of a Korean protester as a reason in favor of a peaceful evolution of democracy in South Korea.

"We believe it is in conflict with basic democratic principles to prohibit petitioning for rights," he said. "Conflicts or violence can only hinder a peaceful evolution to democracy."

DeConcini spoke at an international conference, "Korea in the light of the Philippines." The conference attracted several national experts to discuss the process of democratization of South Korea.

DeConcini said the United States must face the issue of a peaceful evolution of democracy in South Korea. He also said the United States, which stations 40,000 men in Korea, must combine with South Korea to install a democratic system this year.

DeConcini said the U.S. House of Representatives has passed a resolution to install democracy in South Korea and insisted that "it is time for the Senate to do likewise."

The resolution would install a democratic system but would not favor any leader or party. He added that the resolution would not hinder nationalism in the country.

Sorority seeking members for comeback at ASU

By SHELLY SCHAFFER
State Press

Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority, which temporarily folded last fall after 36 years at ASU, is recolonizing this week and attempting to attract 80 new members.

Tri Sig alumni Chris Labarge, the sorority's membership adviser, said, "Last fall we realized we were not going to get many girls through rush, so the collegiate advisers decided it would be better to temporarily fold with the idea to start over again with new members this February.

"From being so small all these years, the thought of 80 members is so exciting."

Labarge said Tri Sig alumni will be on Cady Mall through Thursday answering questions and taking applications.

Members must be ASU students with a minimum 2.2 GPA.

"We are looking for girls who are interested in helping us start over a fresh, new, problem-free sorority," Labarge said. "We feel it is more attractive than joining a sorority that already carries problems into each semester."

The girls who are selected this week will be installed as active members next fall.

Linda Dee, a Tri Sig national field representative, said, "The girls last semester didn't have the motivation to be a chapter — it was just one of those things.

"We're not starting from scratch; we have always kept our charter at ASU. Right now we just don't have any members — we're looking for a whole new group."

Residence Hall Director LeeAnn Coulson said Tri Sig still has a floor in Palo Verde Main Residence Hall, which houses sororities.

The vacant rooms were filled by alternate sororities this semester, but Coulson said, "Tri Sig never gave the floor up. If they have a successful rush, they will be moving back in the fall."

Dee said, "The kitchen and the chapter room have been refinished; it's all ready for a whole new group of girls."

The Tri Sig national base is in Woodstock, Va., and its philanthropic is the Robbie Page Memorial for polio.

Reagan challenges U.S. to work harder

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, trying to derail import-restricting trade legislation in Congress, challenged the nation Tuesday to "work harder and work better" and restore pride in the label reading, "Made in America."

In a speech to 200 business leaders, Reagan summoned Americans to undertake "a quest for excellence" in education and business to make the United States competitive into the 21st century.

The address was the kickoff of Reagan's campaign for a package of "competitiveness" proposals, including an easing of antitrust laws, changes in product liability statutes, a $980 million job retraining program and other steps intended to help shrink the nation's $170 billion trade deficit.

Competing with Reagan's plan are labor-backed measures moving through Congress that would restrict Reagan's hand in dealing with trade disputes and provide mandatory retaliation — through tariffs or quotas — against nations that have huge trade surpluses with the United States.

Similar legislation was approved by Congress last year and vetoed by Reagan.

"History has taught us that we cannot become more competitive or enjoy major job growth by restricting imports across-the-board," Reagan said. "In 1930, the United States imposed major new tariffs, against the advice of most economists."

"Three years later, the unemployment rate stood at 25 percent," he said. "Free trade is one of the few things almost all economists agree on."

Reagan said it's "going to take some doing" for the United States to be competitive with other countries. "In the years ahead, we're going to have to work harder and work better."

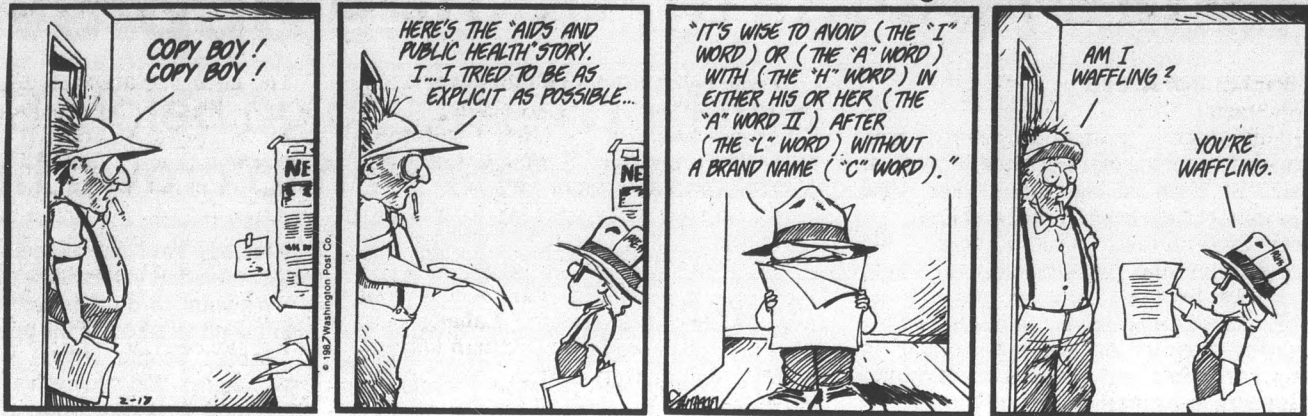

He said his program "will challenge all Americans to be all that they can be, to work together to seek new opportunities, to be the very best in a strong and growing international economy."

Reagan's speech did not include many details of his plan, but it has been outlined in depth by other administration officials. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the package will be sent to Congress on Thursday.

For business, Reagan said, the challenge will be "to make products more efficiently, to embrace new ideas, better methods of management and new technologies, yes, to make the proudest, most desirable label on more and more products and services around the world — the label that reads, 'Made in America.'"

House Rules Committee approves King holiday

By VICKIE CHACHERE
State Press

PHOENIX — The Martin Luther King Jr. holiday moved closer to Gov. Evan Mecham's desk Tuesday as the House Rules Committee approved a bill allowing the state holiday.

A similar bill goes before a Senate committee today.

Thousands of King supporters are expected to crowd a 3:30 p.m. hearing of the Senate Government Operations Committee to voice their support for Senate Bill 1083.

A holiday honoring King was rescinded by Mecham in January.

The House's version of the holiday bill — House Bill 2419 — is expected to go before the full House Thursday.

The Legislature, under pressure from local business leaders, decided to take the King holiday issue into its own hands,

Similar proposal to go before Senate; bill supporters plan to crowd hearing

despite Mecham's recommendations that voters decide through a referendum if they want the holiday.

Mecham rescinded the holiday because he said former Gov. Bruce Babbitt created it illegally and because the holiday would cost the state about $2 million.

Rep. Sandra Kennedy, D-Phoenix, said she expects the Senate bill to face greater opposition than the House measure because there is more support for Mecham's policies in the Senate.

Kennedy, who co-sponsored the House bill, said she expects House members to approve the holiday.

Kennedy said she objects to Mecham's suggestion that voters have the final say.

"We want to do it here," she said. "We don't want to take it to the people."

"Some people have said to (the lawmakers) that's why we have been put there, and we need to take care of it."

Beverly Terrance, a member of the Martin Luther King Jr. Celebration committee, said her organization is happy with the Legislature's support for the measures, adding that members of her committee will testify before the Senate today.

"We are going to pack the room, the hallway, the parking lot, the whole bit," she said.

But Terrance said the Legislature's support could be worthless because she believes Mecham will veto the bills.

"I personally think that he will try to (veto the bills)," she said. "I think the pressure is on him, but his personal beliefs will come through."

Mecham would not comment on how he would handle the King legislation once it reached his desk, but he said in January that he does not believe the slain civil rights leader deserves a holiday.

Rev. Warren Stewart, chairman of the King Holiday Committee, said his organization is not concerned at this time with Mecham's feelings on the bill.

"Right now all of our efforts, energies and prayers are concentrated on the House and the Senate," he said.

Committee rejects legislation prohibiting ticket scalping

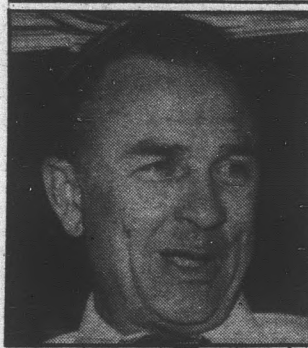

PHOENIX — Legislation that would prohibit ticket scalping in Arizona may be redrafted after the measure was voted down in a Senate Judiciary Committee meeting, a state official said Tuesday.

Allan Price, assistant director for public relations for the Arizona Board of Regents, said the bill may be approved later but was held because some lawmakers question if scalping is really harming anyone.

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Kay said if Sen. Doug Todd, the bill's sponsor, can redraft the legislation so it only applies to universities, the bill will be heard again.

If there is no amendment, he said the bill will be killed. The next vote is scheduled March 3.

Price said, "It's not good that it failed, and whether or not it returns depends on how much interest there is in the Legislature."

'There is a lot of money in ticket scalping . . . I don't like to see the community getting ripped off.'
—C. Russell Duncan

This is the third time the legislation has been introduced into a Senate committee, and the third time it has failed to reach the full Senate.

Todd, a Tempe Republican, introduced the measure at the urging of University officials who want to stop outside ticket sales at Sun Devil Stadium and the UAC.

ASU Police Chief C. Russell Duncan said he will participate in the redrafting of the legislation and will ask lawmakers to reconsider the measure in the 1988 session.

"We'll find out what the stumbling point was this year, and we will go back with it again next year," Duncan said.

"There is a lot of money in ticket scalping, and they can lobby as well as anybody."

Duncan said he wants the bill approved because it would be a consumer protection measure.

"I don't like to see the community getting ripped off," he said.

House passes prayer measure; Senate next up

PHOENIX — The Arizona House of Representatives passed a resolution Tuesday urging Congress to approve a constitutional amendment allowing prayer in public schools.

The measure was approved 38-21 and now will go to the Senate.

Rep. Gary Giordano, R-New River and sponsor of the bill, said he is pleased with the House's action.

"Today we are at a point that even if prayer is mentioned in a state statute, even if the intent of the Legislature is not to encourage prayer or a state-worded prayer, it would be rendered unconstitutional," he said.

If approved, the resolution will indicate the state's support for prayer in the public schools. Arizona does not permit official prayer in public schools but has allowed a moment of silent meditation since 1981.

Giordano said the Arizona resolution will only be effective if other states pass similar resolutions.

"As this pattern follows throughout the rest of the country, that will send a message," he said.

But Rep. Karan English, D-Flagstaff, said she voted against the resolution because its first paragraph calling for less government interference in school prayers contradicts its second paragraph, which asks for the constitutional amendment supporting prayer.

"I have real problems with putting constraints on this whole issue," English said. "It's a clear conflict in philosophy."

So You're Going to Graduate, Congratulations . . .

So you're going to graduate. Congratulations!

After years of study, it's time to leave college, get a job, and start your career.

That's a big change in your life. Are you prepared for it?

How will you find a job?

Use Want Ads? Send resumes.
Use Placement Services? Send resumes.
Use Referrals? Send resumes.
Send a lot of resumes.

Each semester millions of students graduate from thousands of colleges and enter the job market.

How will they find jobs?

By sending resumes.
Resumes a lot like yours.

Because they're a lot like you. About the same age. About the same education. About the same qualifications.

All applying for the same jobs.
You have a lot of competition.

Consider the employer.

All those piles of resumes to plow through.

Your resume is in there . . . somewhere.

How is an employer to distinguish your resume from the hundreds of similar resumes he receives?

If only he had a chance to get to know you before he decided who to interview.

What a difference that would make! After all, employers don't hire qualifications. Employers hire people with qualifications.

But your written resume can only present your qualifications, not you.

Consider:

The Video Resume.

A pre-interview discussion with you on standard 1/2 inch VHS tape.

The Video Resume presents you with your qualifications to get you that job interview.

The Video Resume. Today's Resume. The Human Resume. The Living Resume.

Now an employer can get to know you before he decides who to interview.

And you can interview with employers who really want to interview you.

Now consider:

The Video Resume Library.

A database of Video Resumes used by employers.

Why would employers use the library?

Because interviewing is expensive and time consuming. Knowing more about the person, in addition to the qualifications, lets them make better interviewing decisions.

And that saves them time and money.

The Video Resume Library can introduce an employer to hundreds of qualified graduates.

It can introduce you to hundreds of potential employers.

Stop!

Sounds like a good idea. You'll think about it when you graduate.

But you need your Video Resume now.

Why?

Because employers are interviewing now. They need your Video Resume now . . . in the Video Resume Library.

So don't miss the boat.

If you don't have the time for them now, they may not have the time for you later. By then they'll have made their hiring decisions.

What's it cost for a Video Resume?

The first 200 students pay only $49.95. That's almost a 40% savings off the regular $79.95 price.

What's it cost to join the Video Resume Library? Nothing! It's free. The library is wholly supported by subscribing employers.

So why wait?

Your first job is the most important job in your career. Because your career isn't just a way of making a living - it's a way to make a life.

Call RKO Today.
Do it now!

striking all bylaw prohibitions on funding groups by a vote of 11-5-2, including organizations that support a political candidate or those that require ASASU to purchase food or beverages.

The requirement that a group not be "controversial" also was deleted.

College of Liberal Arts Sen. Mark Isenberg said "this means we can fund whomever we want because there is no more criteria for funding."

College of Liberal Arts Sen. Karl Karg said he proposed the amendment that struck all guidelines from Senate Bill 60 because he "didn't feel it was fair to discriminate against a particular group."

"We have the right to examine each program a group wants funded on its individual merits," he said.

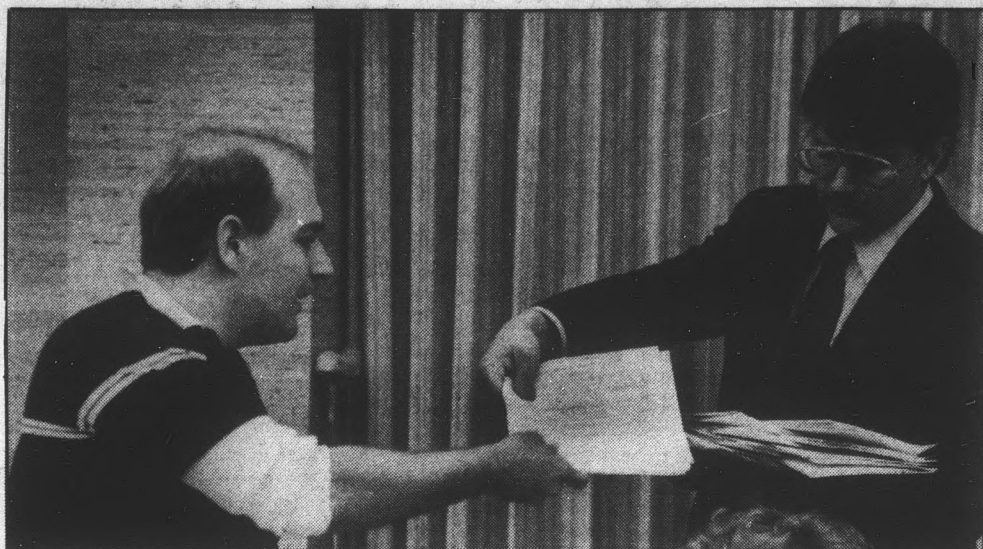

Campus Affairs Vice President LeeAnne Seall said: "By taking out all tangible criteria, we are left with using criteria based on what we think is best for students. Some scrutiny, involving our values and personal morals, will have to be used."

College of Business Sen. John Colombo, a proponent of the sexual preference clause, said: "In the end, this may not be such a bad thing. This will force each senator to stand up and defend his point of view and not hide behind the bylaws."

Heap said the LGAU's suit asks for compensatory and punitive damages "in an amount the court feels is appropriate, and, of course, legal costs," from Vice President Asher, the ASASU Executive Officers, and the 13 senators.

The lawsuit said the LGAU wants the court to also "issue a preliminary and permanent injunction enjoining (ASU) from continuing to enforce their discriminatory and unconstitutional policies."

College of Liberal Arts Sen. Mark Isenberg is handed a subpoena by Ed Ranger, an Arizona registered process server, during Tuesday evenings ASASU senate meeting.

ASU psychology clinic offers support programs

By JUDIE GAILLARD
State Press

ASU's Clinical Psychology Center is offering four programs beginning this month to help students and the community cope with problems ranging from divorce to manic depression.

Steve Dannenbaum, an ASU resident therapist, said the center will be offering a support group for students who need counseling, an asthma group, a group for adjusting to divorce and a group focusing on manic depression.

Dannenbaum said a group for "drop-in consultation" is a new addition to the center designed to support students in problem-solving, coping with stress and adjusting to campus life.

"Campus resources seemed to be busting at the seams," he said. "The students were calling for their immediate needs to be met."

Dannenbaum said the center is interested in students' immediate needs and is not a long-term therapy group.

"Loneliness is the biggest complaint," he said. "Students feel isolated, and the group provides immediate support."

"We're trying to lend support to the campus community by offering this program."

Dannenbaum said each 90-minute session costs $6.50.

A second program the center is offering this month is a 10-week psychotherapy group on divorce adjustment.

Tim Ayers, also an ASU resident therapist, said the group will focus on disengaging from a marriage and developing a single lifestyle.

"Some people will remain dependent on a former spouse and need to learn how to cope with issues they have never handled in the past," Ayres said.

Ayers said adjusting to a single lifestyle is an important step in accepting divorce.

"People new to the dating game need to learn how to avoid pitfalls in a relationship and make choices again," Ayers said.

He said people need to look at divorce as a growing experience.

Ayers said the group has been successful in past programs. A third group to be offered by the center in late February or early March will focus on living with manic depression.

The group's purpose is to increase understanding of the illness and educate people involved with manic depression.

ASU therapist Rusty Overby said manic depression impacts occupational, family and social functioning.

"Manic depression is an illness where people have extremely sharp mood swings," Overby said. "They can be highly elated at one point and in severe depression the next."

Ayers said about 1 percent of Americans are diagnosed as manic depressives. The illness is usually noticed during the mid-30s of a person's life.

He said the group is part education and part therapy and is open to people suffering from the illness, as well as family members, spouses and friends.

The group will meet for eight to 10 weeks and costs $7 per session.

A new program to begin this spring is designed to teach school-aged children how to control asthma.

The program will educate patients and their families about the disease and teach them ways of coping with asthma-related stress, including how to prevent and handle attacks.

"Asthma is the most frequent cause of hospitalization for children," Overby said.

"The group gives kids the chance to talk to other kids about asthma and to share their feelings. A parents' group tracks the children's sessions and functions as a support group."

Overby said the group practices relaxation and breathing. He said therapists emphasize to the children the importance of taking medicine.

For information about any of the programs, call the Clinical Psychology Center 965-7296.

Calendar representing various ethnic groups seeks artwork

By ROBERT KOSCHEKA
State Press

An ASU committee for cultural diversity is seeking various forms of art from students, faculty and staff to use on a calendar depicting different ethnic groups in America.

The calendar will mark important dates for various ethnic groups, including Asian, black, Hispanic, and Native American history. Events that have positively influenced American culture also will appear on the calendar.

Art Carter, assistant dean of Student Life, said the calendar is important because it will show the various ethnic groups that make up ASU.

"We think ASU is unique in that we're the fifth largest school in the nation, and our student body is very diversified culture-wise," he said.

Carter said the cultures "are here for us to enjoy." He said the calendar will attempt to promote these different cultures on campus.

Carter said the calendar will depict ethnic groups during different eras of American history.

He said the committee for cultural diversity is sponsoring the contest to make students aware of the many ethnic groups on campus.

"We want to get students to submit their own art that depicts our roots," Carter said.

Carter said the contest is open to students and faculty. The works can be pencil drawings, oil paintings, sketches or photographs.

The winning entries will be reproduced and converted to standard-size photographs to appear in the calendar, he said.

Carter said entrants do not have to be artists to enter.

"Anybody with reasonable talents has a good chance of winning, entrants don't have to be distinguished artists or art majors," he said.

Carter said the contest will be judged by various artists from around the Valley. The calendar will be available next fall.

Entry forms must be submitted by Feb. 20 and are available in MU Room 58.

Anonymous donors give $7.5 million to Princeton

By The Associated Press

PRINCETON, N.J. — Princeton University has received two anonymous pledges totaling $7.5 million for the construction of a building to house the economics department and Center of International Studies, officials say.

The gifts bring the total funds pledged to the project to $15.5 million, within $1.2 million of the $16.7 million sought, officials said Monday.

Groundbreaking for the building, which will include 50,000 square feet of space, is to begin this summer.

"The new Economics Center of International Studies Complex is the most important addition to our facilities in the social sciences at Princeton since the construction of the Woodrow Wilson School over 20 years ago," said President William Bowen.

Actor gains dimension with 2nd film role

By KHALI CRAWFORD
State Press

In the wake of his flat role in "Dune," Kyle MacLachlan's second motion picture role in "Blue Velvet" has given his career new dimension.

"After 'Dune' there's no other way but up," MacLachlan said in a telephone interview of his debut in David Lynch's "Dune." "It is only a narrow slice of what I can do."

MacLachlan now plays Jeffrey Beaumont, a naive college student with a penchant for mysteries, in David Lynch's "Blue Velvet," a dark, sensuous mystery about the stange world of love and darkness.

The acclaimed film also stars Isabella Rossellini as Dorothy, the haunting cabaret singer; Dennis Hopper as Frank, a psychotic killer fueled by perverse sexual fantasies; and Laura Dern as Sandy, the detective's daughter.

A De Laurentiis presentation, "Blue Velvet" is playing at 7 and 9:30 p.m. Thursday at the MU Cinema in the lower level of the MU. Admission is $1.

"The first time I saw it I was biting my fingernails and saying, 'Am I honest and truthful? Are the choices interesting?'" said the 27-year-old actor.

"Jeffrey is an extreme. Sometimes he is like Curious George. Jeff goes with his impulses; he's curious about things. This is the first time he hasn't censored them."

Although the film has recieved considerable critical praise for its symbolism, Machlachlan tends to examine it from a different perspective. "The way I look at film is the reality of it," MacLachlan explained. "I tend not to take it apart in some Freudian archetypal form."

"I find it ('Blue Velvet') fascinating. First, it's level of truth is at its most raw, basic, simplistic."

MacLachlan said "Blue Velvet," like David Lynch's first feature film, "Eraserhead," is stylized and "not of this world."

"People don't talk the way people in this world (film) talk," MacLachlan explained, citing the movie's often twisted dialogue. "It's not real. It gives you a real eerie feeling."

As an actor, MacLachlan said this nonsensical banter is particularly challenging. "It's difficult to make the audience not crack up and say, 'What the hell is this,'" he said. "The challenge of David's script is to make it work. You have to believe it — the whole thing — that it could really happen."

MacLachlan became interested in performing at age 13 for the "social elements of it."

As a student at Eisenhower High School in Yakima, Wash., MacLachlan never took drama classes, but enjoyed being in the plays.

In 1979 MacLachlan enrolled at the University of Washington with intentions of pursuing a career that wasn't theater oriented, but found himself happiest in the theater department. In 1982 he graduated from the League of Professional Actor Training Program and went to the famous Oregon Shakespeare Festival, where he remained for seven months, appearing in "Romeo and Juliet," "Julius Caesar" and "Henry V."

Although his role in "Blue Velvet" was a marked boost to his career, MacLachlan says now he's engaged in a waiting game. "Filmmakers don't believe what you can do 'til they see it," he said.

While he's busy reading scripts, gardening and spending time with his girlfriend, 20-year-old Laura Dern, MacLachlan is rehearsing to perform a narration of Dante's Inferno with the Yakima Symphony Orchestra on Saturday.

As he grows as an actor, MacLachlan also is working on growing as a person. "I like to think of myself as being on a path to something — sort of going toward some spiritual level."

"I'm beginning to explore a form of meditation to get in touch with the inner person from which creativity springs."

"It can be a destructive world. The only way to maintain my sanity is to gain a strong sense of who I am and not depend on my job for happiness."

Kyle MacLachlan stars opposite Isabella Rossellini in David Lynch's "Blue Velvet."

According to a recent Associated Press article, the estate of Margaret Mitchell is working with a New York literary agent on an authorized sequel to "Gone With the Wind."

Apparently the book could be published by next year and a sequel to the classic 1939 film is likely to be released shortly thereafter.

This is disturbing news — a sequel to "Gone With the Wind"? The adventure continues?

Will Scarlett O'Hara find a new love? Will Rhett come back? Will the perpetrators behind this move realize what a mistake they are making?

The term, "Let it be" fits appropriately here.

A sequel to "Gone With the Wind" is as ridiculous as wanting to tilt the Tower of Pisa the other way or fixing the crack in the Liberty Bell. You just can't do it.

Evidently before his death in 1983, Stephens Mitchell, the author's brother, agreed that his family should proceed with a sequel even though Miss Mitchell would be against it. T. Hal Clarke, an Atlanta attorney who represents decisions concerning the epic novel and film, has revealed that the Mitchell family knew that if they did not act, a variety of unauthorized sequels could be released when the copyright to "Gone With the Wind" expires in 2011.

The William Morris Agency is currently searching for a novelist to write the sequel. I wonder what Jackie Collins and Sydney

Ya know ♦ ♦ ♦

Sheldon are up to these days? This is blasphemy.

To say that it will take a year to write a sequel to a book that was maturing in the mind of Margaret Mitchell for ten years, is ludicrous. To even suggest a movie at this stage of the game is simply low.

What '80s talent can they get to play Scarlett O'Hara? Why not book Madonna — she's into look-a-like games. Better yet, they should throw Sean Penn in there to make it look real.

Seriously, wouldn't Robert De Niro and Meryl Streep be picture perfect as the '80s Scarlett and Rhett? Perhaps Joan Collins and George Hamilton would be preferable. Morgan Brittany, fresh from her two-year stint on Dallas as Pam's wicked sister? Don't laugh, she looks like Vivien Leigh. Nobody can outshine or replace Vivien

Leigh and Clark Gable in the title roles. "Gone With the Wind" is sacred. It was risqué in the '30s, and that's what made it work then and that same splendor makes it work today. It has a classic flavor which can't be repeated.

Our beliefs have swayed over the past four decades. Movie making and writing has shifted dramatically. It would take a special and unique talent to create a piece as golden as the original.

It is even more frightening to think who would be directing it. Steven Spielberg?

Admittedly, this would be a grandiose business venture for Hollywood and the literary market. All of the publicity surrounding the release of "Gone With the Wind Part II" (or whatever they decide to call it) would make a lot of business entrepreneurs extremely happy.

Scarlett O'Hara T-shirts are the first thing that come to mind. A Rhett Butler fashion line? A "Gone With the Wind" board game? Television series? Cartoon?

What have the '80s have done to us? "Big bucks" no longer signifies a swift boot in the rear. Unfortunately, money talks. But to what end?

I can see the reasoning behind this ordeal. The Mitchell estate is attempting to preserve the good of the original. Unfortunately, I cannot understand why anyone would want to make a sequel at all.

Frankly, if the conspirators of this illogical mess took Miss Mitchell's first book more seriously, they wouldn't give a damn.

Fractured fairy tale

Gilbert & Sullivan's comedic opera of love floats into LOT

By DAVID MILLER
State Press

There are love stories from every dimension. And beginning tonight, the Lyric Opera Theater will present one from two authors who should know.

"Iolanthe," the Gilbert and Sullivan tale of a mixed and mixed-up love affair, can be seen at 8 tonight in a student preview in the Music Theater. The show runs through March 1. And, in the usual G & S style, a decidedly different look at the tangles of romance will be shown.

The comic-opera involves the relationship between the other-worldly fairy, Iolanthe, and the mortal she wed unlawfully. The marriage, in fact, caused her to be banished from her fairy utopia, much to the chagrin of her friends.

She is, however, pardoned after 25 years, and it's here that the romantic weaving begins.

Director John Stone Porter describes "Iolanthe" as "something very special."

"The thing that's great about it is that it's not totally comic. There's a certain amount of melancholy and it has all kinds of dramatic levels. It has a little of everything," he said.

Porter, a former ASU music instructor and veteran Gilbert and Sullivan director, calls this experience his "icing." And while he says everyone involved has worked very hard, he emphasizes that the audience should, and the performers will, come in to have a good time.

"We're all enjoying it," he said.

Sheralyn Storr, an ASU vocal performance major, plays the fairy Celia. She describes the operetta as one of Gilbert and Sullivan's more lighthearted works.

"There aren't really too many complicated twists to the show," she said. "It takes place around the turn of the century and it pokes fun at the London Parliament and the

'There's a certain amount of melancholy and it has all kinds of dramatic levels. It has a little of everything.'

— John Stone Porter

House of Peers. The fairies end up taking over the House."

Storr gives high marks to director Porter.

"John was a bit of fresh air," she said. "He pushed me to my limits, helped me grow — I enjoyed that. With every director it's a love/hate situation, but it always ends in love.

"A performer may not always like being pushed, but it should be that way. I'll walk away from "Iolanthe" with a good memory."

Christine L. Gauf, who plays the forgiving Queen of the Fairies, echoes Storr's sentiments on the richness of being involved with "Iolanthe."

"It was very different for me, a diversion from what I usually do," she said. "But I enjoyed it. John (Porter) provided me with the atmosphere and the opportunity to create, and I like that."

Porter also enjoys the interaction.

"I like working with students because they're more open-minded than professionals," he said. "Each student is different and has different needs. Some you take an iron hand to — the more undisciplined ones, and some you just guide. And that's the job of the director — to see who they are and what they are.

"I only get tired when students are undisciplined. That's when I want to pull my hair out."

Tickets are $9.50 for adults, $5 for students and children and can be purchased at Gammage and Dillard's ticket offices.

The Lord Chancellor (Michael J. MacMullen), top, looks skeptical as Phyllis (Mary Byers) dreams and the fairy Lella (Michele Milford) listens intently in Lyric Opera Theater's "Iolanthe."

Hysterical history takes form in 'The Mandrake'

By SCOTT C. SECKEL
State Press

As a last alternative to singles' bars, the personal classifieds and that cold cutie in Intro to Biology, a guy recruits two buddies to help him with a scheme to have the night of his life with his "dream girl."

Unexpectedly, this contemporary scenario is the basis of a play written during the Renaissance: Niccolo Machiavelli's "The Mandrake."

Yes, Virginia, there was sex before Woodstock. And after seeing ASU theater professor William Akins' adaptation of "The Mandrake," you might not consider history such a dry subject after all.

Presented by ASU Theater, this lively comedy opens at 8 tonight at the Lyceum Theater, University Drive and Forest Avenue.

Director Akins said he chose "The Mandrake" because "it would provide ballast to the season." The earliest of the educated comedies, or commedia erudita, the play also is regarded as the finest.

"It's a classic, and it's just a very funny play," said Akins in his book-choked office.

Akins has adapted "The Mandrake" into a modernized version so contemporary audiences can enjoy it as fully as did their Florentine counterparts — something Machiavelli would have approved of heartily. The comedy originally was written in the vernacular and its popular appeal spread even to the vatican. "The pope saw a production of it and enjoyed it immensely," Akins said.

During the latter half of his life,

The foolish old lawyer (Joe C. Lauderdale) rages at his young wife (Jennifer Houston) in Niccolo Machiavelli's "The Mandrake" presented by ASU Theater.

Machiavelli was exiled from Florence by the Medici family. He had been tortured and was saved from death only by the intervention of the pope. He spent his days talking with farmers and living a simple country life. His body healed slowly. At night, he would put on the fine clothes of his days among the courts and sit down to write. Machiavelli wrote "The Prince,"

"Discourses" and "The Mandrake" during this period. The latter is quite possibly a gift to the simple farmers who gave him companionship during those painful days.

The story is about Callimaco (Gregory Smith), who has an eye for gorgeous Donna Lucrezia (Jennifer Houston). There's a catch, though: Lucrezia is married to old, ugly Messer Nicia (Joe C. Lauderdale).

Callimaco, his servant Siro (Sean Healy), and his friend Liguro (Lionel Estrada) develop a plan to enable Callimaco and Lucrezia to enjoy each other's company without their clothes on.

Was Lucrezia a typical Florentine girl? "Yes, she's pretty typical — she's virtuous and kind and Christian," Jennifer Houston said. "She's a goody-goody (she thinks is)."

Unlike the Victorian Age, however, "this was a time when women were to be looked at," Houston said.

The satirical elements of the play are not only evident in the puns and double entendre, but in the oversized costumes and performances of the actors. They are not playing people so much as they are playing caricatures. "This is extremely stylized acting — the costumes, the set," said Houston. "We're playing types."

In the early Renaissance, short performances of dance, music and poetry were very popular between the acts of a play. These were called intermezzi and, in keeping with the spirit of the play and period, they have been included in this Nuclear Age production. The intermezzi provide variety and have little relationship to the main performance.

Akins said that "The Mandrake" has been a fun play to work on and "it's been a super cast to work with. Everything has been very professionally done."

"The Mandrake" runs through March 1. Curtain time is 8 p.m. except Sunday when it is 2 p.m. The theater is dark on Monday, Feb. 23.

XTC pushes for youth, innocence on mediocre new album

XTC — "Skylarking" ★★½
The sorely missed Todd Rundgren pops up producing "Skylarking," a playful, schoolboy effort from XTC.

Rundgren is a master of coaxing and capturing fine performances from groups he has produced. Cases in point: "Now" from the Tubes and "Forever Now" from the Psychedelic Furs are widely held as both groups' finest records.

Whether "Skylarking," on Virgin/Geffen Records, is XTC's finest effort is doubtful, although it is a good listen if only for the innocence of youth and virginity it seeks to capture.

"Skylarking" does not lack direction or concept. Boy meets girl, boy loses girl, boy gets girl back and girl dies. But songwriting is not strong on this aurally interesting album.

"Summers Cauldron" has all the flowery and syrupy verbiage an English 102 teacher would ink out as huh?

Examine: "Insect bomber Buddhist droning/ Copper chord of Augusts organ/ Please don't heed by shout I'm relax in the undertow." Huh?

Arguably, the songwriting here is more aural than logical. Whoever said e.e. cummings was logical?

The group has dwindled to three: Andy Partridge, Colin Moulding and Dave Gregory. Rundgren has added plenty of his trademark organ riffs and sure-to-grab-ya melodies.

"Earn Enough For Us" is a hybrid XTC/Utopia classic, reminiscent of XTC's popular "Senses Working Overtime."

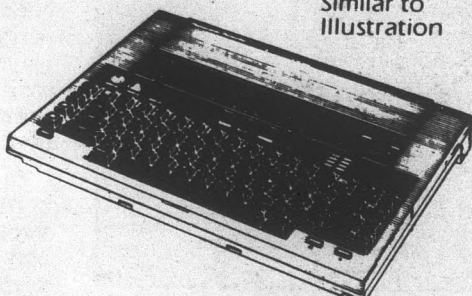

For all its youth and zeal, "Skylarking" may be too innocent, too green. Surely, this is an LP that grows on you.

Wooden performances on display in 'Mannequin'

It's too bad about Andrew McCarthy. Admittedly, there aren't that many great movie roles being handed out these days. And Michael J. Fox or Emilio Estevez probably would've paid cash for a role in "Platoon," instead of the ones they occupied in their most recent respective bombs.

But Andy, Mike and Emilio are the screens' coming crop — the next (and current) leading men. Is it too harsh to give them a hard time when they crash and burn in a bad movie? Even Marlon Brando had a stinker or three.

But that was Marlon, and this . . . is "Mannequin."

"Mannequin" is not a completely awful picture; it's got some charm and even a little wit. But at $5 admission, a little more is asked for.

McCarthy plays Jonathan Switcher, a down-on-his-luck sculptor booted out of a succession of jobs, such as pizza-making and gardening. First question — why doesn't he sculpt?

Jonathan remains down and out until he discovers his true calling: window dressing for Prince & Co., a declining department store in Philadelphia. Along with a little help from an Egyptian spirit-cum-beautiful mannequin, he hits the big time. Kim Cattrall plays Emmy, Jonathan's real-life doll.

'Mannequin' 20th Century Fox

So now there are two dummies for the price of one, and McCarthy's walking his blue-suede shoes right up the road paved in gold. He is one successful heterosexual window-dresser, and the conniving competition, Illustra, wants him.

This brings up another question: what are we doing here?

It's not as though "Mannequin" isn't funny in spots. Witness the best line in the movie: after hearing a groveling executives' spiel, boss-man "Beej" (Stephen Vinovich) says, "Richards, how'd you learn to kiss ass like that? You take a class?"

My sides are still aching. But we have to wonder: is this the best we're going to get? Is it wrong to expect more than mediocre slapstick out of a monstrous admission ticket?

We've also got the obligatory car chase and wreck, bumbling (as usual) cops and a FLAMING homosexual, played with enormous effort by Meshach Taylor — easily the film's best performance.

And McCarthy's not bad — he gets points

Andrew McCarthy plays Jonathan, a young stockroom clerk, who falls in love with a mannequin, Kim Cattrall, in "Mannequin."

for trying and, aside from Taylor, is "Mannequin's" only real savior.

Perhaps it's best not to read too much into "Mannequin" and accept it for what it is: light, airy entertainment. But for the amount of potential talent and the originality of the idea, "Mannequin" could have been a real comedic vehicle instead of a so-so trip to the bargain basement.

"Mannequin," rated PG, is playing at the Lakes Theaters, Baseline and Rural roads.

Musicians reunite vivid sound in 'Hammers and Mallets'

Pianist Caio Pagano and percussionist John Boulder will perform at 7 p.m. Sunday in the ASU Music Theater.

ASU music professor and pianist Caio Pagano, and guest artist percussionist John Boulder will present "Hammers and Mallets," a recital featuring four works by 20th century Brazilian composers at 7 p.m. Sunday in the ASU Music Theater.

Pagano will open the concert with Villa-Lobos' whimsical "Three dances from 'Brazilian Children's Carnival'" and continue with the descriptive "Celestial Maps" III, a nine-movement work composed by Almeida Prado and dedicated to Pagano.

Boulder will join Pagano after the intermission for Osvaldo Lacerda's light-hearted "Suite (1974) for percussion and piano." The duo will conclude with Marlos Nobre's "Sonancias I (1972)," which Pagano describes as a serious, abstract, classical piece.

Pagano has performed with the leading orchestras of Central and South America, as well as in Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany and the United States.

Boulder has been the timpanist of the State Symphony Orchestra of Sao Paulo, Brazil, and professor of percussion at the Art Institute of the State University of Sao Paulo since 1978.

A proponent of new music, Boulder has formed several chamber music groups. Grupo Percussao Agora regularly tours in the United States and Europe. With his wife, soprano Martha Herr, he formed Duo Experimental.

Pagano and Boulder first performed together in 1981 when they were invited to play Bela Bartok's "Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion" in Sao Paulo. They recognized their musical affinity and joined forces, performing the special repertory for piano and percussion in concerts and festivals throughout North and South America.

Part of the Faculty Artist Concert series, the concert is free and open to the public. The ASU Music Theater is located in the Music Building, Mill Avenue and 10th Street. For more information call 965-3371.

Sinatra, Selleck gear for future projects together

By The Associated Press

RADNOR, Pa. — Frank Sinatra says he had such a good time with Tom Selleck when they filmed an episode of "Magnum, P.I." that he'd like them to make a movie together.

"We could do a wonderful romantic comedy," Sinatra said in an interview in TV Guide's Feb. 21 issue. "We could be here (Hawaii), or in New York or Monte Carlo, and the two of us could go looking for girls together."

Sinatra appears in the Feb. 25 episode of Selleck's television series.

"I haven't had so much fun since 'Eternity,'" he said, referring to his Oscar-winning performance in "From Here To Eternity."

Selleck also enjoyed pairing up with Sinatra.

"The biggest thrill of all is that (Sinatra) treated me as a peer, so I go slowly because I don't want him to think I'm after something," Selleck said.

Sinatra's guest appearance was arranged at a dinner party following his concert in Hawaii last summer.

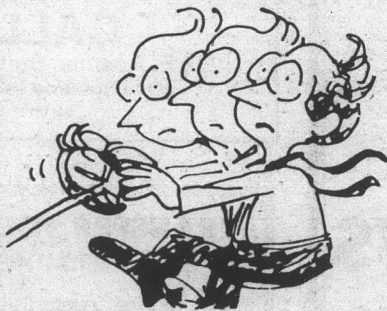

Selleck said the singer "talked a lot about our show — about particular episodes, so I knew he wasn't just being polite when he said he was a big fan. Then, off the cuff, he just asked, 'What would you guys think about me doing one?'"

Band surges to city limits with quality sound, boyish appeal

By TOD McCOY
State Press

Local Orangewood recording artists City Boys know — as Sammy Hagar once put it — “It’s a long way to the top if you want to rock and roll,” but they are prepared to do it.

“Our goal is to be recording artists, and musicians,” says Phil Lundeen, lead singer for the band. “Good musicians.”

The City Boys, comprised of Eric Tamblin, Phil Lundeen, Curt DeJean, Jamie Segó and Dan Whitmore, perform at 9 p.m. Thursday at Edcel’s Attic, 414 S. Mill in Tempe.

“We’ve been playing together a long time,” Lundeen said. “Eric and I formed Blitzkreig six years ago, and Curt joined us about three years ago.” The rest of the group came together later after minor personnel changes.

The band describes their music as “melodic AOR” (album oriented rock)/Top 40 and has been compared to the likes of REO Speedwagon and Dennis De Young.

“We don’t just base our songs on anyone,” DeJean said. “They just kind of come out.”

About half of the songs the band plays include selections from The Outfield, Honeymoon Suite, the Hooters and an electrified version of “Johnny B. Goode.”

The rest of the set are originals like the jazzy “Rocking Alone” and the slower dance song, “Pick One and Dance.”

“We start out with a riff and build up from there,” Lundeen said. “When we write our songs, we try to take our audience into consideration.”

Although some of their material has been sent to A&M Records for consideration, no offers have come through yet.

“In the near future, we are going to record a (promotional) album in California, hopefully soon,” Lundeen said. “What makes it hard for us is that (our band) is a personal investment and we don’t have a lot of time to concentrate on it. We all have other jobs to do.”

The group shuns projecting an image onstage, preferring to present themselves as they would anywhere.

“We don’t dress for this. We don’t try to present an image — our music is our image,” DeJean said.

Sponsored by The Drum Shop, the City Boys have played at various places around town, such as Backstage and Buddy’s, where they once ran into a little trouble.

“I got into a fight with a drunk and I had a microphone stand in my hand — we wrote a song about it,” DeJean said. “We don’t follow any trends.”

Devils fall to Cal-Riverside in extra innings

By DAVE HODGES

State Press

The good, the bad, and the unusual were all present as the ASU baseball team split four games over the long holiday weekend with Cal-Riverside and Loyola Marymount.

•THE GOOD — Mike Burrola, Tony Mattia and John Finn cranked home runs as the Sun Devils beat Cal-Riverside Monday, 14-2, in the first game of the series.

The Devils came from behind and beat Loyola Marymount Saturday, 13-12, on a tenth-inning home run by Tim Spehr.

•THE BAD — John Sarina's two-run single in the eleventh inning gave Cal-Riverside an 8-6 victory over ASU on Tuesday.

Friday ASU blew a 3-0 lead in the eighth inning, as Loyola scored four times in the inning to defeat the Sun Devils, 4-3.

•THE UNUSUAL — Friday's game featured a phantom interference call, and Saturday's game had a successful hidden ball trick and both coaches were ejected.

The Devils (7-4) split a two-game series with Cal-Riverside, losing Tuesday, 8-6 in 11 innings, but defeated the Highlanders Monday, 14-2.

In Tuesday's game, the Highlanders (8-2) jumped to a 6-0 lead by scoring three in the second inning, one in the third, and two in the fifth.

But Highlander pitcher Steve Green, who pitched beautifully for the first four innings — allowing one hit and striking out four — tired out, allowing the Sun Devils to come back in the fifth.

With one out, Green walked Tim Spehr. Tim Esmay then flew out to right, but Bob Dombrowski singled, and Finn walked to load the bases.

Next, Benjamin walked, forcing in Spehr. Mike Burrola followed by hitting his first pitch over the right field fence for a grand slam home run, narrowing the score to 6-5.

The Devils tied the game on an RBI single by Burrola during the seventh.

The Highlanders should have won the game in the 10th, but John Sellick left third base too early, negating a sacrifice fly.

ASU catcher Tim Spehr injured his left leg on the play at the plate, but the extent of his injuries will not be known until later today.

Devil men swimmers dominate Wildcats, Lobos

By STEVE ADAMS

State Press

ASU did it again.

For only the third time this year, a Sun Devil team defeated UA. This time the honor belonged to the men's swimming team, who speared the Wildcats, 115-64, as well as drowning the Lobos of New Mexico, 125-43, Saturday and Sunday.

The men's victory comes only two weeks after the women's swimming team defeated the Wildcats, 89-51, in Tucson.

"It feels really good to defeat UA, especially when the rivalry is so strong," coach Ron Johnson said.

The Sun Devils captured 22 of the 28 heats with the Wildcats and the Lobos splitting the other six evenly.

The meet was set up in the NCAA championship format, with three sessions taking place over the two days.

"We wanted to get the swimmers geared up for what the competition would be like when the Pac-10 championships came up," Johnson said. "We especially wanted them to get a taste of what it would be like for the NCAA championships."

Justin Farabee took three events, winning the first heat in the 200-yard individual medley relay and the 400-yard individual medley and heat two in the 200-yard breaststroke.

Andy Jameson continued his successful season by also winning three events. Jameson captured heat two of the 100-yard butterfly, heat three of the 100-yard freestyle and heat two of the 200-yard butterfly.

"The swimmers came through well and displayed some good performances," Johnson said. "It was also good to see Yan (Cardineau) able to compete and to see the freshman do well."

Freshman Paul Howe and Todd Merrill displayed some good form, with Howe taking the second heat of the 500-yard freestyle and the 200-yard freestyle and Merrill edging Wildcat Scott Meinke to win heat one of 100-yard breaststroke.

Cardineau, who has sat out the whole season due to eligibility problems, came through to win the 1650-yard freestyle and place fourth in the second heat of the 500-yard freestyle.

Overall, the results were what Johnson had expected.

"I knew that Mexico was not quite up to our caliber of play so that competition was not so tough," Johnson said.

"I am pleasantly surprised at how well we swam against UA though."

One bright spot for the men was the performance of the diving team, led by All-America Joe Slezak.

Slezak finished first in the one-meter competition, edging out rival Dale Caldwell of UA by a score of 309.90 to 297.45.

In the 3-meter diving event, it was Caldwell this time who came out ahead, garnering 320.10 points to Slezak's 310.57.

"Dale Caldwell has beat Joe twice and Joe has beat Dale four times, so things turned out pretty much like I had expected them to at the meet," coach Ward O'Connell said.

Slezak's performance qualified him for the NCAA in both board events.

"I was very pleased by the performances especially of Danny O'Donnell and Chris Zickert," O'Connell said.

Both O'Donnell and Zickert qualified for the preliminary rounds of the NCAA with scores of 482.25 and 485.10, respectively.

"It is nice that they qualified because now we have all of the men and women divers in the NCAA," O'Connell said.

The women swimmers and divers also joined in on the competition on Saturday, downing the Lobos 99-68 in a regular dual meet format.

The swimming team took 14 of the 15 events, dropping only the 100-yard breaststroke by two-tenths of a second.

The Sun Devils' Christine Erlen set an NCAA qualifying mark in the 1650-yard freestyle, clocking in at 16:45.01, edging out her closest opponent by over one-and-a-half minutes.

"She swam a strong event and it is very pleasing to see her qualify with such a good time," coach Tim Hill said.

Erlen made the qualifying mark by eight one-hundredths of a second.

The diving team again proved to be a bright spot with All-America Tracy Cox setting a life-time best in the 3-meter diving competition scoring 313.27 points.

Robyn Benincasa had been leading the 3-meter through four events, but it was Cox's last two dives that made the difference.

"Tracy did outstanding dives on her last two and came back to edge out Robyn," O'Connell said.

The results were the same in the 1-meter event, with Cox this time setting a pool and school record with a point score of 352.50 followed once again by Benincasa with 292.95 points.

"These two divers are incredible and I have not seen any two girls perform so well since my 13 years at this school," O'Connell said.

The women have now upped their record to 7-2-1 overall and 3-2-1 in the Pac-10.

The next stop for the men's and women's teams will be the Pac-10 championships on February 27 and 28 in Tucson.

Sun Devil recruits rank among the nation's best

By DEAN A. OBENAUER
State Press

This year's NCAA football national letter of intent day has come and gone.

The questions of what school will get what bluechip player and what bluechip player will choose what school have, for the most part, been answered.

Most of the country's top rated high school football players have signed their names on the dotted line committing themselves to play football for the college of their choice next season.

With the bulk of ASU's recruiting crop picked and ready to harvest, its full impact will not be felt right away. A good portion of the class will most likely be redshirted and there is a possibility that another portion of the class will not be academically eligible.

Nonetheless, it is time to look into the crystal ball and see what this year's class means to the team now.

Only time will tell what the class will mean to the Sun Devil program in the years to come.

This year's Sun Devil recruiting class has already been ranked No. 2 in the Pac-10 and No. 7 in the nation by the Long Beach Press-Telegram.

The Devils earned their second-best in the Pac-10, behind UCLA, with the signing of five of The Sporting News Top 100 players.

Leading the Sun Devil freshman class are linebacker Shane Collins (6-foot-4½, 225 pounds) of Bozeman, Mont., running back Kelvin Fisher (6-0, 190) of Ambridge, Pa., defensive back Nathan LaDuke (5-11½, 180) of Phoenix, running back Leonard Russell (6-2, 210) of Long Beach, and defensive back Jimmy Watkins (6-0, 193) of Olathe, Kan.

With the graduation of ASU quarterback Jeff Van Raaphorst, linemen Danny Villa and Jim Warne and tight ends Stein Koss and Jeff Galimore, the Devils signed three quarterbacks, five offensive linemen and two tight ends.

The Devils also picked up 10 defensive players to fill the gaps left by defensive ends Skip McClendon and Jim Reynosa, Devilback Scott Stephen and free safety Darren Willis.

Coach John Cooper is pleased and confident with this year's recruiting effort and has called this class better than last year's.

The Press-Telegram, which researches college football recruiting more than any other newspaper in the West, ranks the 1987 Pac-10 recruiting classes as follows:

1. UCLA
2. ASU
3. Washington
4. Stanford
5. Southern Cal
6. Washington State
7. Oregon
8. UA
9. California
10. Oregon State.

Like the Sun Devils, Pac-10 foe UCLA also signed five players from The Sporting News Top 100 en route to being named the conference's top recruiting class by the Press-Telegram.

Leading the national scene this year was Notre Dame. The Fightin' Irish signed a nation-leading nine players from this year's The Sporting News Top 100.

The Press-Telegram ranks the top 20 classes in the country as follows:

1. Notre Dame
2. UCLA
3. Texas A & M
4. Michigan
5. Florida
6. Pittsburgh
7. ASU
8. Oklahoma
9. Washington

10. Stanford
11. Miami
12. Tennessee
13. Arkansas
14. Clemson
15. Nebraska
16. Iowa
17. Ohio State
18. Colorado
19. Alabama
20. Georgia

Devil softball team experienced, prepares for successful season

By CHRIS DORSEY
State Press

What more could one person ask for?

A lineup of six fielders and three pitchers return from softball coach Mary Littlewood's 1986 team, which finished last season 32-17, ranking third nationally. Five of the nine returners received all-conference honors.

"This year's team will be more experienced," said Littlewood. "We have everyone back; the only people we lost were a catcher and a first baseman."

"The replacements are just as good or better."

ASU will enter the 1987 season ranked seventh in the NCAA. Since the rankings have begun, the Lady Devils have been in the Top 20 every year. This is ASU's fourth year competing at the NCAA level.

Littlewood is entering her 17th season as coach for the Devil softball team. She is the only coach the ASU softball program has ever had.

The top returners for the Sun Devils are Jodi Rathbun and Kathy Escarcega.

Rathbun will play first base this year following an excellent '86 season. She was a utility player for Littlewood. Rathbun was named to the all-conference and all-regional teams after hitting .416 and batting in 17 runs.

Centerfielder Escarcega returns as the leading power hitter. Last season she drove in 22 runs while batting .308. Escarcega was placed on the all-conference, all-regional, and all-America squads. She also led the team in doubles and triples, pounding 12 and 5, respectively. Along with these feats she tied Rathbun for the homerun title. Each having two roundtrippers on the year.

To any softball team, a strong pitching staff is important to NCAA title hopes. Littlewood has three sophomores returning that combined for a 32-17 record.

The top performer for ASU was Michelle Gravatt last season, she had an ERA of 1.23 with an impressive 14-5 record for a freshman. She also struck out 112 batters in 130 innings.

Rounding out the trio are Becky Stevens and Donna Stewart. Stevens completed the '86 season with the lowest ERA on the team. She finished with a record of 10-8 and had an ERA of .63. Stewart tossed 106 innings while striking out 83. Her season ended with an 8-4 record and 1.25 ERA.

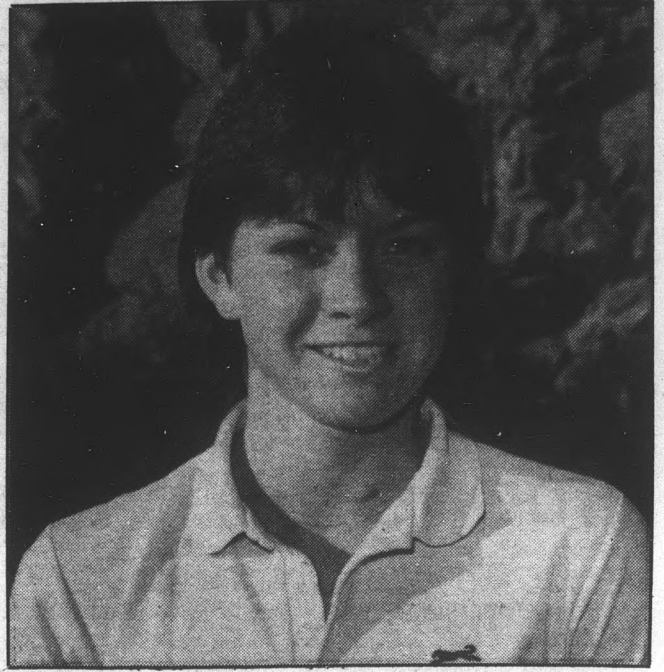

Stewart's pitches have been clocked at 62 miles per hour, which is the equivalent of a 90-mile-per-hour pitch in baseball.

"Our pitchers are a year older and have the year experience," Littlewood said.

The infield will be tough again this season. ASU returns three all-conference and all-regional from last year's team. They are Karen Fifield at second base, Linda Neeley at shortstop and Rathbun.

At third base, Cheryl Persinger will be back from last year. The newcomer to the infield, Dina Buccola, has served as backup to Angie LoSasso at catcher.

The experienced infield will be led by Neeley, who hit .252 and had eight RBI. Fifield drove in 10 runs while hitting .248. Persinger batted .286 and brought in 14 runs.

Kathy Escarcega

Accompanying Escarcega in the outfield will be Sheila Winchell and Yvette Baltazar. Winchell, in left field, hit .243 last season. Baltazar was a freshman last year and hit .148.

"We need to play games. You can only practice so long," Littlewood said.

In preseason action the Sun Devils are 3-0. They slipped past Arizona Western 2-1, and won a double-header from Mesa C.C., 8-1 and 3-0.

"We really weren't pressed that much," Littlewood said. ASU will kick off the regular season at home with the ASU Invitational Feb. 26 at Sun Devil Club Stadium.

Duncan says Devil track team ready to compete

By STEVE ADAMS
State Press

The ASU men's and women's track and field coach Clyde Duncan said that the team is right on schedule and mentally ready to compete, as the team captured two first-place finishes at the Oklahoma Invitational this past weekend.

"We did very well and I am very pleased with the way the athletes have run so early in the season," Duncan said.

Shirley Walker placed first in the 60-yard high hurdles crossing the line at 7.93, missing the NCAA indoor championship qualifying time by one hundredth of a second.

"It was disappointing that she was so close and missed it, but she put in a great run," Duncan said.

Lynda Tolbert continued her winning ways, capturing first place in the 55-meter dash with a time of 6.94 and qualifying her for the NCAA. This is the second event that she has qualified for this season, the other being the 55-meter high hurdles.

"Lynda did very well for us last year and has continued that consistency over into this year," Duncan said.

"She is always and will continue to be a major force in the track competition, especially in the outdoor season," he said.

The other trackster to place in the invitational was Andrew Parker who broke a meet record by timing in at 7.21 in the 60-yard high hurdles.

Parker was unable to compete in the final though, due to a false start at the line.

"If he hadn't false-started, we would have had three first-place finishes," Duncan said.

The other two athletes to compete were Clyde Duncan Jr., who placed seventh in the long jump, and the 1986 NCAA Division II long jump champion Jacinta Bartholomew.

Following the Sun Devils' fourth competition on Saturday, Duncan said that the team is right where they should be, in fact, doing better than expected.

"Our strong point is the outdoor season," Duncan said. "It is good to see us do so well now, because that means we will be more than ready to compete when the outdoor season starts in March."

ASU will next head back up to Flagstaff where more than half of the team will compete in a Northern Arizona University track meet.

"We are going to be dealing with more teams that are on a collegiate level," Duncan said. "This is good because it prepares us for the level we have to compete on."

The Sun Devils will be competing against

Southern Methodist University, Texas, Baylor, NAU and the University of Nevada-Las Vegas.

"There are going to be more top notch athletes here than in any of the past meets we have run to date," Duncan said.

Keeping everybody healthy and trying to qualify more people for the NCAA are the two goals that Duncan is looking towards in this fifth track meet.

Duncan hopes that Walker will qualify in the 60-yard high hurdles and that Sean Green, Tonette Holmes and Kim Woods will qualify in the 500-meter run.

"We are just going to run to try and qualify and to see how we match up against some of these teams," Duncan said.

The Sun Devils will compete in two more indoor competitions before the NCAA championships get under way in Oklahoma City, Okla. in March.

Robinson receives top votes for College Player of the Year

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Center David Robinson of Navy, who leads the nation in blocked shots and is among the leaders in rebounding and scoring, was the top vote-getter in nominations for The Associated Press Player of the Year in college basketball.

In balloting announced Tuesday, Robinson received 558 points and 40 first-place votes from members of the AP's college poll board. Steve Alford of Indiana was second with 370 points and 10 first-place votes.

The other eight nominees are Danny Manning of Kansas, 220 points; Dennis Hopson, Ohio State, 214; Reggie Williams, Georgetown, 180; Kenny Smith, North Carolina, 156; Armon Gilliam, Nevada-Las Vegas, 62; Mark Jackson, St. John's, 32; Ken Norman, Illinois, 28; and Horace Grant, Clemson, 22.

Poll members were asked to vote for five nominees, and the top 10 vote-getters will be placed on a ballot that will decide the 1987 Adolph Rupp Trophy for this season. The trophy will be presented at the Final Four in New Orleans on Friday, March 27.

Nominees received 10 points for a first-place vote, 8 for second, 6 for third, 4 for fourth and 2 for fifth.

Last year's winner was center Walter Berry of St. John's, now playing in the NBA with San Antonio.

The 7-foot-1 Robinson, a senior at Navy, had 106 blocked shots through games of Feb. 9 for an average of 4.6 per game for the unranked Midshipmen. He also was third in the nation in scoring and rebounding, averaging 29.1 points and 12.3 rebounds per game.

Alford, the senior guard who broke Indiana's career-scoring record this season, averaged 23.2 points per game through Feb. 9, and was fifth in the nation in 3-point field goal

Sarina's single came with the bases loaded in the 11th, following two singles and an intentional walk.

On Monday, ASU scored early and often, building an 8-1 lead after four innings, and cruised to the victory.

Mike Schwabe (3-1) pitched a complete game, allowing only eight hits and one earned run.

Finn, a center fielder, went four-for-five, had three runs batted in, scored three times, and had two stolen bases.

Tony Mattia also hit his sixth home run in 11 games, putting another dent in the pavement on Scottsdale Road.

Last week, the 20th-ranked Devils salvaged one game of a three-game series with sixth-ranked Loyola, losing Friday, 4-3, and winning Saturday, 13-12 in ten innings.

Saturday, the Devils spotted Loyola (8-2) an 8-1 advantage after three innings, but slowly began to chip away at the lead.

A six-run fifth inning, capped by two-run singles by Finn, Mike Burrola and Spehr, gave the Devils a 12-8 lead.

But Loyola did not give up, scoring four runs in the top of the ninth, highlighted by a three-run homer by Fred Tuttle.

Then the unusual happened. After Lion catcher Miah Bradbury led off the top of the tenth inning with a double, ASU second baseman Tim Esmay pulled a successful hidden ball trick, taking the punch out of a possible Loyola rally.

ASU won the game in the tenth inning, as Spehr cranked a full-count, two-out pitch over the right-field wall for a homer.

Coach Jim Brock said he was pleased with the way the team came from behind.

"I told them after the game how proud I was of the way they battled back," Brock said. "I would have told them the same thing if we had lost, 13-12."

"The difference is, they wouldn't have believed me." Brock said the victory could be very helpful in the long run.

"There will be times in Pac-10 play when we get down by five or six runs," he said. "If you think you can't come back in those spots, then you probably can't. We know we can."

During Friday's game, it was Loyola that came back. The Devils led 3-0 after seven innings as Mike Burrola knocked in two runs with a double in the third inning and had a run-producing single during the fifth.

But Loyola came back, scoring four runs on three hits and two walks during the eighth inning.

ASU threatened mildly during the bottom of eighth. With one out, Mattia singled and was replaced by pinch-runner Carl Irmisch. Then another unusual play occurred.

Irmisch stole second base, but as Jason Bridges swung on the low pitch, Lion catcher Jim McAnany intentionally ran into Bridges while throwing to second, prompting home plate umpire Chris Hodel to make an interference call on Bridges.

The play hurt the Devils, as Bridges became the second out of the inning and Irmisch had to return to first. Martin Peralta followed by striking out.

Brock said he did not like the call and said Hodel was "very simply outsmarted" on the play.

The Devils are off until Friday, when top-ranked Texas (8-0) comes to ASU for a three-game series Friday at 7 p.m., Saturday at 3:30 p.m. and Sunday at 1 p.m. percentage at 57.9 for the second-ranked Hoosiers.

Manning, a junior forward, was averaging 22.1 points per game and was fourth in the nation in field goal percentage at 64.1. Hopson, a senior forward, was second in the nation in scoring with an average of 29.3.

Kevin Houston of Army leads the nation with a 31-point average. He received two points in the balloting.

Williams, a senior forward, averages 23.9 points per game. Smith, a senior point guard who missed 1 1/2 weeks of the season because of arthroscopic knee surgery, averages 17.6 points and 5.3 assists per game while running third-ranked North Carolina's offense.

Gilliam, a senior frontcourt player for top-ranked UNLV, is among the leaders in accuracy with a field goal percentage of 60.4 and averages 23.4 points. Jackson, a senior point guard, averages 17.3 points and 6.9 assists.

Norman, a senior forward, averages 20.9 points. Grant, a senior center, averages 20.3 points and is second in the nation with a field goal percentage of 67.9.

Devil men's tennis team splits weekend road trip

By DOUG McMANUS
State Press

The ASU men's tennis team won one and lost one in California, but even the loss gained it some respect.

The team gained a split last weekend against two top-ranked teams, beating UC-Irvine and losing to UCLA.

On Saturday the Sun Devils played UCLA, third-ranked team in the nation, to a 6-3 loss. ASU pushed the Bruins to many three set matches before losing.

Coach Lou Belken was happy with the team's effort. "We were very competitive. This was the strongest we've played them (UCLA) since I have coached here," Belken said.

No. 2 singles player Doug Sachs continues to impress coach Belken in defeating UCLA's Tim Trigueiro 4-6, 6-0, 6-1.

"Doug Sachs has a great attitude. He knows he can win," Belken said. "We are as strong as anyone in the country at No. 2 singles."

Other Devils gaining victories were No. 3 singles player Mike Holten, defeating UCLA's Buff Farrow 7-6, 7-5. And, No. 2 doubles team Ken Kuperstein and Andy Roediger beat UCLA's Tim Trigueiro and Buff Farrow 6-3, 6-4.

On Monday the Sun Devils beat 22nd-ranked UC-Irvine, 7-2. The Sun Devils were impressive in clinching the match early by winning five of six singles matches.

By beating UC-Irvine coach Belken hopes ASU can break into the nation's top rankings.

"UC-Irvine has defeated a couple of highly-ranked teams already this year, so I hope our team will earn a top 20 ranking," Belken said.

Belken feels his team has taken a step toward making the NCAA tournament.

"Last weekend was the first step and this weekend will be the second," Belken said.

ASU plays this weekend in the Nevada-Las Vegas Tournament which will play host to many of the nations top teams.

Friday's meet against No. 1 ranked USC was canceled because of rain and will be rescheduled for later this spring.

UA Wildcats beat Westmont 9-6 in Tucson

By The Associated Press

TUCSON — Gary Alexander hit a three-run homer with nobody out in the ninth inning Tuesday to give defending NCAA champion Arizona a 9-6 non-conference baseball victory over Westmont College.

Westmont starter Craig Fowler (0-2) walked Rich Shuman to open the Arizona ninth with reliever Chris Van Wyk giving up a single to Chip Hale and then Alexander's fifth homer of the season.

Steve Strong's three-run homer, his fourth of the season, had given the host Wildcats a 6-4 lead.

Chris Lillich, who hit his first three homers of the season Monday to help Westmont win 12-11, slammed a two-run homer in the eighth inning to forge a 6-6 tie.

Wayne Gilles (1-2) got the win in relief for Arizona, now 10-3. Westmont's record fell to 4-5.

Yankees give Mattingly big single-year contract

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees on Tuesday became the highest-paid player produced by 13 years of salary arbitration, winning a one-year contract worth $1,975,000.

That surpassed the $1,850,000 contract won last Friday by pitcher Jack Morris of the Detroit Tigers.

Mattingly, however, trails Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox, Eddie Murray of the Baltimore Orioles and Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies, who are believed to make more than $2 million a year.

The Yankees had offered Mattingly $1.7 million. Arbitrator Arvid Anderson heard the case Monday in New York and, restricted to picking either the figure offered by Mattingly or the Yankees, chose the larger amount.

Decisions also were reached Tuesday on two other arbitration cases heard the day before. Both players — outfielder Kevin McReynolds of the New York Mets and pitcher Danny Cox of St. Louis — were losers.

Of the 19 cases resolved thus far, management has won 12.

Mattingly and his agent, Jim Krivacs of Clearwater, Fla., had been trying to negotiate a long-term deal with Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, who offered a two-year contract reportedly worth $3.5 million. Krivacs and Mattingly rejected the offer and decided to go through arbitration.

"There were no darts thrown from their side to us, or from our side to them during the negotiations," Krivacs said.

Mattingly settled on the $1,975,000 figure as an apparent appeasement to Steinbrenner, who said he would refuse to make any new deals worth $2 million per year.

"I'm very happy and very pleased with the decision," Mattingly said through Krivacs. "I'm happy that it's over."

Mattingly won a Gold Glove at first base last year and batted .352 with 113 RBI and 31 homers. He set club records with 238 hits and 53 doubles. In 1985, Mattingly hit .324 with 35 homers and an American League-leading 145 RBI. He won the AL batting title in 1984, hitting .343.

McReynolds, traded during the off-season from San Diego, had asked $825,000, while the Mets offered $625,000. Cox asked for $875,000, while St. Louis came in at $600,000.

McReynolds hit .288 with 26 homers and 96 RBI last year for the Padres. Cox was 12-13 with a 2.90 earned run average at St. Louis.

"There's no animosity. It was a business decision," McReynolds said from his home in North Little Rock, Ark. "We tried our case and lost. The Mets didn't do anything that put me in a bad light."

Mets Senior Vice President Al Harazin said the club "obviously was very pleased with the result" of McReynolds' hearing. "We feel the whole process was very professional from both sides. Now we're looking forward to Kevin having a terrific first season with the Mets," Harazin said.
