

3 executive offices still up for grabs in runoff

Kunasek, Escobedo will vie for top spot

By DARRIN HOSTETLER
State Press

And then there were two. Associated Students presidential candidates Karrin Kunasek and Steve Escobedo will vie for ASASU's top job in this week's runoff election.

Kunasek, who finished with 36.3 percent of the votes, and Escobedo, with 18.7 percent, were the top two vote-getters among six candidates contending for the presidency in the campus-wide election last week.

Chuck Hopkins, receiving 13.3 percent of the votes, Ed Sullivan, with 12.7, Mark Wade, 12.6, and Will Murphy, 6.3, rounded out the field.

Will Daly, who received 40.1 percent of the votes, and Karl Karg, with 34 percent, also advanced to a runoff in the race for the executive vice presidency, while Todd Stevens, 25.9, finished third.

Mark Isenberg, with 33.2, and Vince Micone, 28.3, will duel for the campus affairs vice president's office. David Schwartz and Kecia Beasley tied for third in the race with 19.3 percent of the votes.

According to ASASU bylaws, a runoff election between the top two contenders is necessary for all races when no candidate gets 51 percent of the votes.

The runoff will be Wednesday and Thursday. John Fees claimed 77.3 percent of the votes in the race for activities vice president, overwhelming his opponent, Jerry Ellison, who received 22.7 percent.

Elections Director Patrick McWhortor announced the results of the April 8 and 9 election Friday afternoon to candidates and campaign workers in a packed MU Rendezvous Lounge.

Kunasek was all smiles as she embraced members of her campaign staff after the announcement.

"We worked very hard, and I couldn't have done it without them," she said. "We're going to get out there and work this week, too."

An emotional Escobedo hugged his campaign workers, while receiving numerous handshakes and backslaps.

"I'm really, really happy," he said. "I feel like this clears

Dean: 'External pressure' worries accrediting agency

By TINA DAUNT
State Press

The ASU College of Business dean said accreditation officials at a New Orleans probation hearing are worried that if the college does not get its legislative budget request, "external pressures" could force administrators to maintain enrollment with insufficient funds.

John Kraft said participants in a Friday hearing of the American Assembly of the Collegiate Schools of Business discussed pressure from the governor's office and former business college administrators.

He said members of the accreditation council were mailed copies of newspaper articles quoting officials who "said there really wasn't an accreditation problem."

"The assembly is concerned this could cause undo outside influence," Kraft said.

He said "external pressure" stems from Jim Cooper, Gov. Evan Mecham's education adviser, and William Huizingh, a retired ASU business associate dean.

Cooper accused Kraft last month of "playing games to get the sympathy of the students."

"As for the accreditation problems, we're trying to determine if they were the result of the inadequate programming or underfunding," Cooper said in a March interview.

He said he is concerned that the college is not spending its funding correctly but does not deny it has accreditation problems.

The accreditation assembly should announce today in New Orleans whether the college will be reaccredited, suspended or placed on probation.

In 1986-87, the business college was funded for 239.5 full-time-equivalent faculty. Of those positions, 218 were filled.

Kraft said the about $900,000 allocated for remaining positions was used to compensate for deficiencies in the operating budget.

"The (operating) budget was not sufficient," he said. "We needed the money to run the college."

But Cooper said the money should be used for its intended purpose.

"Every year the University gets a lump sum of money to pay faculty," he said. "If the money is not used for salaries, we want to know where it went."

In a letter to the editor that appeared in the March 24 issue of the State Press, Huizingh raised the same concerns.

"In my letter I merely pointed out the budget for the faculty," he said. "I simply wanted to know why the budget was insufficient to meet the standards."

"With an 18 percent increase in enrollment (since 1976) and a 70 percent increase in the budget after inflation, why does the college fail to meet the standards?"

Kraft contends that the college has been underfunded for years.

He said the college needs $1.9 million more in 1987-88 than its current budget of $12.8 million to meet accreditation standards.

Without the increase, the college administrators would be forced to cut student credit hours from 83,000 to 66,000.

Riot at University fraternity house results in injury of campus officer

By MIKE BURGESS
State Press

A riot involving almost 500 people at the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity house early Sunday morning resulted in an injured ASU police officer and a student arrest.

Lt. Craig Emanuel said Cpl. Mike Schlittenhardt was treated at Tempe St. Luke's Hospital for cuts on his left hand. Schlittenhardt also bruised his left eye when his eyeglasses were broken.

Seven more officers were dispatched to the street in front of 609 Alpha Drive at 1:33 a.m. Emanuel said "there was a lot of drinking going on."

Police said freshman business major

Sean Michael Hartnett, who is not a member of the fraternity, was arrested and taken to Maricopa County Jail. He is being held in lieu of $2,466 bail.

Hartnett, 19, has been charged with aggravated assault, resisting arrest, threatening and intimidating, possession of a fraudulent license, escape, littering and attempted crime riot.

An unknown person stole Schlittenhardt's flashlight, portable radio, night stick, and notebook, police said. Schlittenhardt's eyeglasses and uniform also were damaged.

Emanuel said he is "disappointed" by the incident, which is the first assault on an officer at a fraternity party since August.

Greg Greenbaum, Phi Sigma Kappa president, said the incident stemmed from a fight and became worse when people began "booing" police trying to break up the fight.

Greenbaum said the 25-keg party was part of the daylong Little Sister Volleyball Tournament.

He said the fraternity had "double security" at the party and kept in contact with police, who told them to "keep beer from going out" of the house.

Self-defense course teaches safety tips

By JUDIE GAILLARD
 State Press

"Impact," a course for teaching female students how to protect themselves on campus, will be offered at University residence halls this month.
 The first free course will be taught at Palo Verde Main Residence Hall from 8 to 10 p.m. Tuesday.
 Barbara St. John, a Valley private investigator who founded the self-defense training class after she was assaulted on duty, said most attacks are preventable.
 "There are no victims, only volunteers," she said.
 St. John said women need to be in control of their actions and consciously aware of the signals they put out.
 "This campus is so big and dark; women really need to not look so vulnerable," she said.
 The program is for women interested in the basic essentials of self-defense. St. John said the moves taught stem from the martial arts but require little physical skill.

Defense budget to face major cuts, McCain says

By MICHAEL ROWELL

State Press

U.S. Sen. John McCain told about 50 ASU students that the defense budget will be cut substantially next year.

"This is the third year after a very large buildup that the budget will be cut," said McCain, who sits on the Senate Armed Services Committee and spoke at the Business Administration Building Friday.

McCain, a Republican, said the major funding debate in next year's legislative session will be over the Strategic Defense Initiative.

McCain said he supports SDI, "but not in an unlimited fashion." He said he wants "to see if it works, and I think we can find that out in two or three years."

McCain said SDI would "absolutely not" work as a perfect shield but would be an "incredible factor" in offsetting a Soviet first-strike capability.

He also said President Reagan was right to veto a highway bill that would have provided $88 million in state federal highway funds. Congress recently overrode the veto.

"We need those highways built," he said. "But at the same time they tacked on 153 special demonstration projects."

McCain said a special demonstration project "means a congressman can demonstrate that he can get some pork for his district."

McCain suggested looking for alternatives to inefficient programs and freezing all program spending levels.

"If we froze all programs, then we would have a situation where all Americans would recognize that we're all in this together — that we're all making sacrifices and paying for the sins of our predecessors," he said.

McCain, who also sits on the Senate Commerce Committee and oversees domestic air transportation, was 30 minutes late for his appearance, blaming it on a late flight.

"As you know we're having an enormous problem with congestion, flight delays (and) near-miss reports," he said.

"We have potentially a crisis situation. Something's got to be done; otherwise we're going to have a very serious situation on our hands."

McCain said it was a serious error to sell arms to Iran, and the best the United States can hope for is a stalemate between Iran and Iraq.

"If Iraq loses . . . that will destabilize the Middle East in a fashion that we have never seen," he said. "I'm scared to death about it, but the United States' options are extremely limited."

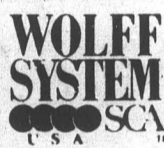

After McCain's speech to business students, he rushed to the College of Law to join his Democratic counterpart, Sen. Dennis DeConcini. Both congressmen were invited to address about 85 people at a tribal government symposium.

Both senators said although legislation to regulate gambling on Indian reservation is moving through Congress, legislators have "put the brakes on" temporarily to allow more time to analyze the measure before approval.

McCain said gambling must be regulated due to "the temptation for unsavory elements to enter into (gambling activities)."

Life's events causing stress for collegiate types

Have you ever had one of those weeks where everything that could possibly go wrong does go wrong, and you end up wishing that you had run off with the circus when you were eight?

Well, I'm happy to report that I'm no different from anyone else — last week was possibly one of the worst weeks of my life. I think this is the cue for the violin music to begin playing in the background; this is going to be emotional stuff.

Last week started, like all weeks unfortunately do, with a Monday. Like all Mondays, it was lame. In fact, whoever came up with the idea for Mondays, should be shot. Anyway, I had to get up in the wee hours of the morning for my POS 101 class and struggle to keep my composure while my friends laughed, joked and generally made the best of the situation.

If there's one thing I can't stand, it's people who are happy in the morning. It really gets on my nerves. In fact, when someone says "Hi" to me early in the morning and has the nerve to smile at me too, my initial reaction is to tell them to shut up and break their nose. Luckily, I had good parents, so I was brought up not to do such things.

Later in the day, I looked at my schedule and realized that I had two major tests and a paper due this week. I also had Greek Sing practice at night, which, if it weren't for the attractive young ladies in attendance, would be enough to rot my brain, curve my spine and keep me a hostile guy. One can only sing "The Farmer and the Cowman" so many times without winding up in the Lawrence Welk Mental Ward.

Getting back to the young ladies. As we all know, spring is a time when most people have their minds on subjects other than Karl Marx and Bolivian archeology. It's called spring fever, and when it hits, it hits you where it counts. One of my fraternity brothers and I figured out that there were no less than 30 women at Greek Sing practice that we wanted to marry. Who can crack open a book or do anything else when faced with that many choices?

Alex Simon
Columnist

My encounters with the law enforcement members of our community started on Tuesday when I parked my car in lot 58 and received a ticket for not having a proper decal. It is an open lot after 7 p.m., my ticket was timed 6:58 p.m. I'm starting to get a little upset.

The next day, I went out to my car once more, only to discover that my car bra had been ripped off. I went to the ASU police to report it and ended up waiting an hour, talking to the lovely secretary about her acting skills, only to spend five minutes filling out a report. By the time I'm through at the cop shop, I realize I'm late for Sing practice and rush over to sing my throat raw. Does the fact that I've only had three hours of sleep and a granola bar to eat phase me? Are you kidding, I'm a college student! I just catch a few winks in between songs, just like Elvis used to do.

Wednesday, I finally finish up my paper and rush back to my room to start studying for Friday's test. Then my boss from the paper calls me up and tells me I have to have my column in a day early. Sure, no problem boss. You supply the drugs to keep me alive through all this, and I'll provide the story.

This night has special meaning for me, since after Greek Sing I had another encounter with Mr. Police Officer, our friend in khaki. Apparently, in my exhausted state, I failed to see a stop sign and cruised through, singing along with Smokey Robinson on the radio as if nothing had happened. Does the guy even have the courtesy to give me my ticket in a dark side street so we can keep the whole thing quiet? What a stupid question! These guys just enjoy their jobs too much. He chased me all the way to the Chuckbox and put his flashing lights on bright so everyone driving down University Drive could see. He did tell me to have a nice day, though, which really warmed my heart.

My question is, why do we have to have stressful weeks like this? Let's face it, stress is the absolute worst. It makes your face break out, it turns you into a beady-eyed anti-social creep, and it ruins your singing voice. My day just isn't the same unless my singing parter, Jake, and I can croon "You've Lost That Lovin' Feelin'" to at least one group of young ladies who are willing to put up with us.

Some solutions for stressful weeks: You could always drop out of school, shave your head, join a cult, and get your own syndicated TV show. But, as we all know, that is just hell on one's married life, so that's out.

Next, you could tell your parents that you're stressed out and need to go away to Indiana to get away from it all. If you couldn't make it to Mazatlan, Bloomington's the next best thing.

Finally, you could buy a couple cases of Corona, soak your body in a hot tub and have Cybil Shepherd rub your aching muscles.

Personally, I'd take selection #3, but that's just me.

In conclusion, the only good thing that can come out of a stressful week is knowing that the next week can only be better and if, for some reason, it should be worse, shave your head, buy some beer and get a gorgeous blonde with long legs to rub your back while you break out.

U.S. must support Sandinistas

Editor:

Nicaragua is located in Central America. In 1979, the 46-year Somoza family dictatorship was overthrown by the Sandinista government. The United States has never accepted the Sandinista government do to its Marxist ideology. I think that America has to start cooperating with the Sandinistas.

A government that manages to distribute assets owned by less than 1 percent of the population of Nicaragua in 1979 for the best benefit of the people should be accepted. The Sandinista government builds schools, hospitals and strengthens the infrastructure of the country. One example of this is the illiteracy rate which has dropped from 80 percent to less than 20 percent in six years.

I think Reagan's policy in Nicaragua and Central America is wrong. Reagan and his Congress are sending millions and millions of dollars to the contras every month. The contras are a group of soldiers that support the Somoza government and they now operate from Honduras trying to overthrow the Sandinistas.

The Sandinistas have asked for financial help from the United States, but this has been denied due to the fact that the United States thinks there are Russian and Cuban military in Nicaragua. Even if this was or is true, I think that the United States should support the Sandinista government in Nicaragua. This would make the Sandinistas less dependent on Russia and more willing to conform to the Western world. This would make the Soviets' help futile by making them less dependent on the Soviets.

I think that America should encourage international cooperation to establish itself in Nicaragua. This would encourage economical growth and contribute to the rise of capitalism. I think the United States should use Nicaragua to stimulate democracy and economical growth in Central America instead of creating a new Vietnam.

Paul Jones

From the home office in Scottsdale

Editor:

After exhaustive research in comparative analysis, I have come to the following conclusions concerning the similarities between Gov. Evan Mecham and Soviet secretary General Mikhail Gorbachev.

1. Both are unable to clearly express themselves in English.
2. Both dislike the American press.
3. Both have about the same chance of winning the next gubernatorial election in Arizona.
4. Neither was elected by a majority of the people they govern.

5. Both are unaware of the fiscal restraints on Arizona students.
6. Neither knows the historical relevance of the word "pickaninnies" in America.
7. Both could benefit from a course in Arizona history.
8. Neither has ever been to South Phoenix.
9. Neither is likely to attend a U2 concert in the near future.
10. Neither drives a Ford.

Ticket pedestrians, too

Editor:

Wow! A record number of citations issued to bicyclists. Are the officers going to get together and have a punch, ice cream and cake party this weekend? They're so neat!

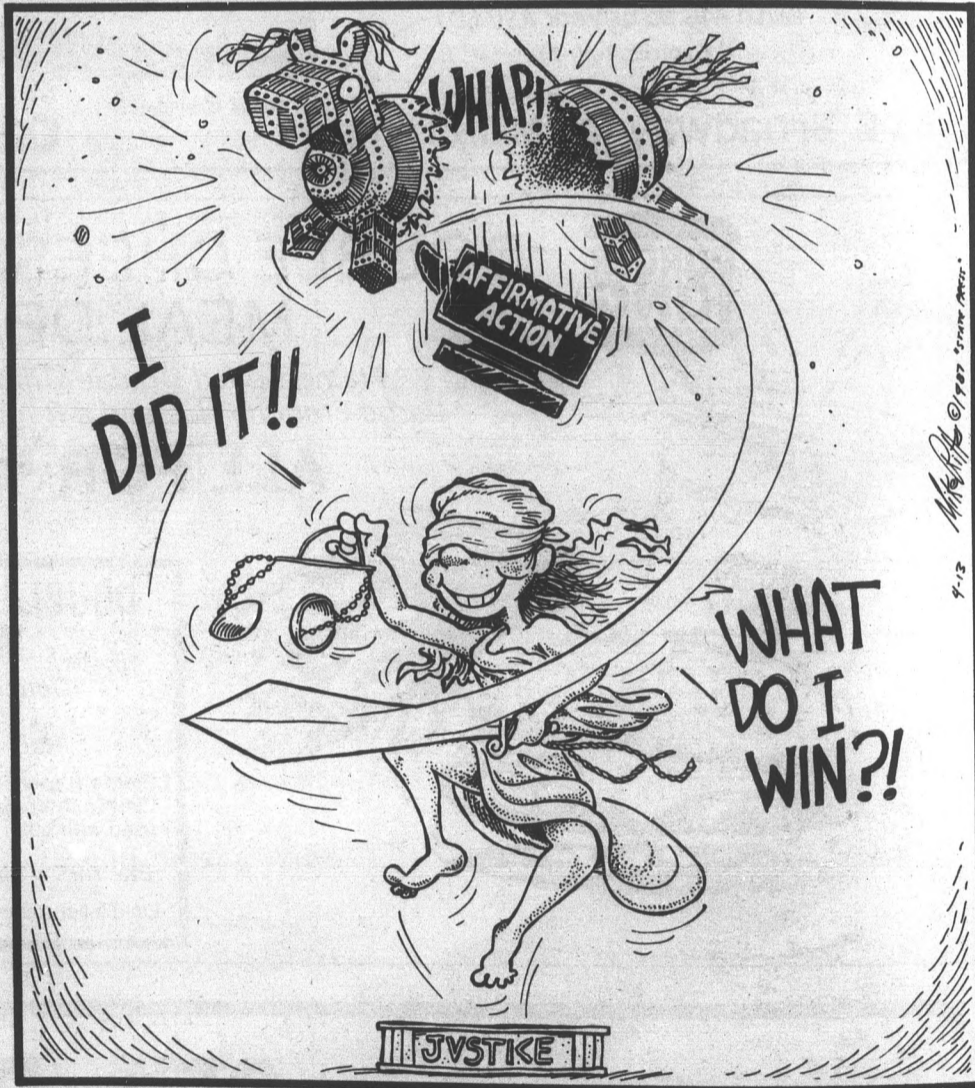

Just think about it. They tell us the collected funds are utilized for the bike program (whatever that is). Great. Now they have enough money to buy some more of those horrible bike racks that bend your wheels and derailers.

I should not forget to mention how convenient the bike racks are when using the U-shaped lock which 90 percent of the cyclists use. The logic continues. Perhaps Lt. Emmanuel would pay attention to complaints from cyclists regarding pedestrians' "haphazard walking in areas where both modes of transportation are allowed."

Why not ticket pedestrians for suddenly diverting from the flow of traffic on the malls as they turn into a cyclist? That's worth about $18.

Getting paid for robberies easy way to start career

An official-looking piece of mail arrived at Erik's Deli in a Chicago suburb the other day.

Matt Mueller, the manager, opened the envelope and found some forms that the state of Illinois wanted him to fill out.

They concerned a young man named Anthony, who used to be a busboy at the deli. Anthony was out of work and wanted the state to give him unemployment compensation.

Mueller sat down and remembered what he knew about Anthony. In the beginning, Anthony had been a reasonably competent busboy. He filled the water glasses, cleaned off the tables and washed his hands when he went to the bathroom.

But after a few weeks, he seemed to lose his enthusiasm and energy. He'd show up late for work, leave tables half-cleared, and his mind seemed to be somewhere else.

Mueller would tell him, "Anthony, you have to work harder." Anthony would shrug and say he was doing his best.

After about three or four such conversations, Mueller told Anthony that he was through. Anthony shrugged. Being fired didn't seem to bother him.

A few weeks later, something strange happened at the deli.

Mike Royko
Tribune Media
Services

One of the night-shift employees was taking out a can of garbage. When he opened the door, he met three men wearing masks and surgical gloves. One had a gun.

They grabbed the employee and dragged him inside. They quickly rounded up the other employees, and one of the masked men pointed at the night manager and said, "That's him."

The night manager was dragged into the restaurant office and told him to open the safe. When he pretended that he couldn't, they whacked him on the head and threatened to shoot him. He instantly remembered how to open the safe and they left with $7,000.

Naturally, the police suspected that this was an inside job, since one of the robbers knew who the night manager was, where the safe was and that it could be opened and would contain a considerable sum.

They began wondering: Could it have been someone like, say, Anthony, the ex-busboy? The problem was that because the men wore masks, there was no way to prove it had been Anthony, even if they could find him.

While they wondered what to do, they got lucky. A tipster told them that the same guys that robbed the deli were going to knock off another restaurant.

So several cops posed as customers and kitchen workers and waited. Sure enough, when an employee took out some garbage, there were the men in masks and surgical gloves. They barged in but were rudely surprised to find a bunch of cops there to greet them.

One of them bolted out the door and sprinted away. The cops chased him and they wrestled around a bit, and a gun went off.

"Oww," the masked man said, since the bullet punctured his leg.

When they removed his mask, they found that their hunch had been right. It was Anthony, the ex-busboy.

The cops assumed that Anthony either took the busboy job in the first place just to case the restaurant, or later decided that robbing the place paid better than filling water glasses.

In either case, he and his pals were charged with both robberies and are awaiting trial. Since they were caught on the spot, it is assumed that even a Chicago judge will find them guilty of at least one of the robberies.

Anyway, that is what went through the mind of Mueller, the deli manager, when Anthony's unemployment compensation papers came from the state.

So he called the state office and told them that he didn't think it was necessary to give money to someone who hits people on the head and points guns at them.

"They are eligible," a state employee said, "unless they are convicted of public aid fraud, not for just some crime. We don't deny someone just because they have a criminal record."

When we mentioned this to a state welfare person, she said: "I don't understand why he wouldn't want to fill them out. We're just trying to verify information."

Incidentally, the reason Anthony is not in jail, and is asking the state for walking-around money, is that he was able to post bond on the robbery charges. He plunked down $2,000 in cash.

No wonder the poor guy is broke.

Tempe police report

Tempe police reported the following incidents ending noon Sunday:

•A west Tempe home sustained $15,000 in damages in a Friday morning fire, police said.

Police said the owner of the home in the 1300 block of W. Seventh Place, was awakened by an explosion and evacuated by Tempe firefighters.

Tempe fire officials are investigating arson as a possible cause of the fire, which also damaged three vehicles.

•A 58-year-old Tempe man was arrested for shooting a gun at a man as he sped from the parking lot of a bar in a red GMC truck, police said.

Police said the suspect fired a single shot from a revolver as he was driving away in the 29 block of W. Southern Avenue after a dispute over money.

•A Colorado man was robbed of $17 at knifepoint while walking his dog in the parking lot of a Tempe hotel, police said.

Police said the suspect approached the 57-year-old man at the La Quinta Motor Inn in the 900 block of S. 48th Street and demanded money.

•Three unknown men entered a Tempe Circle K in the 1100 block of S. Terrace Road, pretended to have a gun and robbed the clerk of $26, police said.

—MIKE BURGESS

ASU police report

University police reported the following incidents during the 48-hour time period ending noon Sunday:

•An ASU student playing with a friend's handcuffs had to be released from the shackles by police. Police said the man locked the handcuffs to his wrists and could not get them off.

•An unknown person stole a 1964 Volkswagen Baja Bug from Lot 63, police said. Estimated loss is $800.

Elections

Fees said he was "very happy" and looked forward to "getting on with programming at ASU."

McWhortor said he was pleased with the record voter turnout of 4,077, adding, "We tried to run a fair election, and I believe we were successful."

McWhortor also announced the winners of the 10 ASASU Senate races:

Lesbian and Gay Academic Union co-chair Denise Heap, a senate candidate from the College of Liberal Arts, finished third in her race with 12 percent of the votes.

Heap pledged last week to contest the election if she lost because she said the election had been "compromised," which put her at an unfair disadvantage.

Heap could not be reached for comment Sunday.

Skinny Puppy are Nivek Ogre, right, Dwayne Goettel and Cevin Key. The band will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday at Crash, 1500 S. 7th Street in Phoenix.

Cryptic canines

Skinny Puppy meld symbolism, electronics

By MICHAEL ROWELL
State Press

When Skinny Puppy takes the stage Saturday at CRASH, expect to see a show heavy on theatrics, imagery and symbolism, says vocalist Nivek Ogre.

"It all has to do with symbolism, everything is a symbol," he said Saturday, speaking from a motel room in Portland, Ore.

"There's a symbol being built on stage throughout the concert which turns into its opposite at the end."

Ogre wouldn't reveal what this symbol is, but hinted that "it isn't a gleaming symbol or a symbol that stands out, shines above and needs to be worshipped. If that makes any sense."

Ogre said his band uses a lot of props, but this is no million-dollar stage show — it's closer to $1,200.

"Usually it's stuff I find at rummage sales, on the street, in the garbage."

Skinny Puppy emerged from the unlikely locale of Vancouver, Canada, in the summer of 1983. They've released three records on Vancouver's Nettwerk label: the Remission EP, the Bites LP and the latest, Mind: The Perpetual Intercourse, which is an unusual combination of danceable electronics, harsh sounds, sampled sound effects and Ogre's hoarse, other-worldly and often monotone vocals.

The band's current lineup is Ogre, Cevin Key and Dwayne Goettel. They play a variety of percussion and electronic instruments, augmented with digital backing tapes during their live shows.

Ogre, whose given name is Kevin Ogilvie, said his gravelly vocal styling is the result of a voice characterization that "kind of stuck."

"Prior to this band, the only time I sang was in a choir in elementary and junior high school," he said.

Skinny Puppy recently completed a new album, Cleanse, Fold and Manipulate, which should be released by the end of May, and will be playing material from the record Saturday. Ogre said he has expanded his singing style on the new disc.

"I have developed a bit of a range and a number of different voices. There's a wide variety of moods, sounds, vocal styles and instrumentation on this album. We're really happy with it."

Ogre said his cryptic, sometimes disturbing lyrics are not meant to communicate specifics but to create an overall mood.

"Skinny Puppy will never be a band that will come out and blatantly make statements or will try and change anything. We'd rather just create imagery — we would rather people decide for themselves."

The band's sound is not influenced by any one band or type of sound, he said. "It's everything. You can take elements from some of the worst pop songs and find they're completely brilliant."

Because he does not go to discos very often, Ogre says he is not aware of most dance music.

"I like harder dance music," he said, "and there isn't a lot of hard music around. It's very difficult in the electronic genre to create a hard record."

Ogre said the band often tries to inject disturbing or confusing imagery into its performances. On the last tour, for example, the band would have someone planted in the audience who would attack the band at the end of the show, breaking a beer bottle over the head of one of the performers.

One of the more "shocking" stunts the band has pulled was at a show in Vancouver. An audience member emerged at the end of the performance and fired blanks at Ogre, who was wearing a hidden chestplate rigged front and back with blood-filled balloons. Gunpowder charges on the chestplate were to be set off electrically.

"The most stupid thing we did was we plugged into a wall current," he said. "I was sweating, and as soon as I hit the ground I grounded out and got electrocuted."

The name "Skinny Puppy" was simply the result of putting a noun and an adjective together, Ogre said.

The first song the band ever wrote, "Canine," was about a dog "watching perversion go on all around him, having to deal with it — whether or not he should be loyal to his master, the one that ruled over him, or bite his leg off," he said.

Opening for Skinny Puppy at 8 p.m. Saturday at CRASH is Edward Ka Spel, formerly of The Legendary Pink Dots. Tickets are $9 in advance, $12 the day of the show, and are available at Zia Records. CRASH is located at 1500 S. 7th St. in Phoenix. For more information call 253-6092.

ASU artist explores emotion, beauty in modern paintings

ASU artist Carlene Roters explores the psychology as well as the beauty of contemporary images in her paintings.

Roters' Master of Fine Arts Thesis Exhibition, on display through April 17 in the Harry Wood Art Gallery, features 17 oil paintings of subjects ranging from people to plants. But 41-year-old Roters said her paintings are not merely portraits.

Roters explained she not only paints the way her subjects look, but also the way they feel. "I try to capture their personality in my painting," she said.

Roters, teaching assistant in the art department, is in her third year at ASU. She earned her B.F.A. at Syracuse University in New York in 1967 and has studied at Oregon State University and Loyola University.

She wasn't always interested in art. "I never wanted to be an artist. It is something I've been doing since I could walk," said Roters whose parents are both painters.

Roters' paintings reflect her interest in Byzantine, Naive and Modern Art.

Upon receiving her master's degree in May, Roters plans to travel to explore different cultures and bring them back to her art.

The Harry Wood Art Gallery, located on the first floor of the Art Building, is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

ASU sophomore Karli Urban flips her way to a 9.6 performance on the balance beam and a second place finish in the all-around competition Saturday night at the University Activity Center. Urban topped her career high in the all-around with 38.15 points.

Women gymnasts take regionals, defeat top-seeded rival Utah Utes

By CAROL BOOS
State Press

The ASU women's gymnastics team found out that the best game plan may not always be one that constitutes winning.

The Sun Devils went into the Midwest Regional Saturday in the University Activity Center as the underdog and with hopes of making it to nationals through a wildcard-type system.

But the game plan didn't work. They upset No. 1-seeded Utah and No. 2-seeded Oklahoma to win the meet.

"We went in concentrating on hits and getting a good score," senior and All-America Shari Mann said. "It wasn't like we were saying, 'We gotta win, we gotta win.'"

"We didn't expect to win," head coach John Spini said. "We were just taking one event at a time, that was the game plan."

And it worked. The Sun Devils beat their season-high by scoring a 189.00 and captured a spot in the National championship April 24 in Provo, Utah.

"It just goes to prove that when a team of that caliber hits that many routines, they can win nine out of 10 times," Utah head coach Greg Marsden said.

Utah finished with a 188.60 for second place, and third place went to UA with a 187.25. Nebraska followed in fourth with 185.15. Oklahoma (184.60), Utah State (182.10), New Mexico (180.70) and Brigham Young (107.35) rounded out the competition.

Oklahoma's Kelly Garrison-Steves set a postseason high score of 38.75, as she took first in the all-around.

Sophomore Karli Urban finished second with a 38.15, beating her career high of 37.95, despite hyperextending her knee Wednesday in practice.

"It didn't hurt when I was competing," Urban said after the meet. "It hurt between events and it really hurts now."

Freshman Suzy Baldock finished fourth for the Sun Devils, tying her career-high of 37.95.

Mann finished ninth in the all-around competition.

With six of the nation's Top-11 teams, the Midwest Regional was perhaps the toughest. No other region had more than two Top-10 entrants.

But the once young and inexperienced gymnasts showed they had grown up and that big, bad and tough teams didn't scare them.

"I try to coach this team as not being freshmen," Spini said. "I tell them 'you're mature enough to handle it.'"

"I couldn't be more proud of them."

Spini said the key to winning was to hit as many routines as possible. They hit all but two, both of which were thrown out.

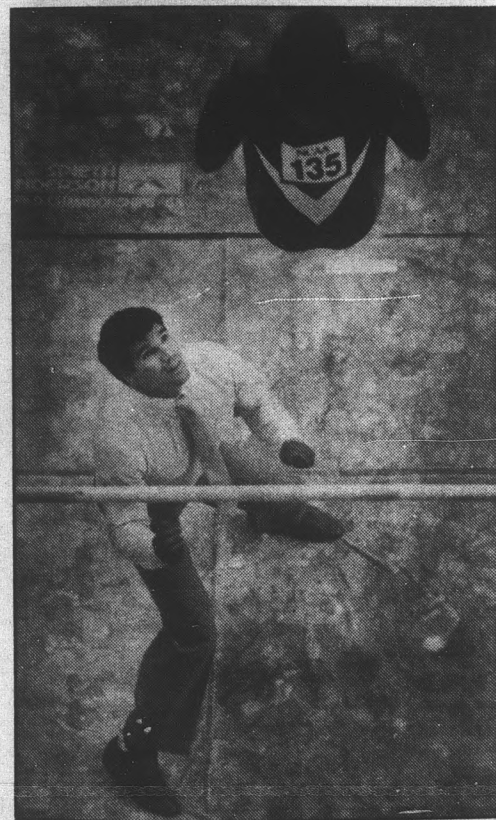

The Sun Devils' first event was beam — one of their weaker events — and one they hoped would come later in the meet.

But near-perfect performances gave the Sun Devils one of their best scores ever (47.10).

"We were so scared to start on beam but it turned out to be the best thing — I think it was a key," Urban said.

"Once we hit on beam it took the pressure off the rest of the events," Spini said.

Benjamin sparks ASU win; Devils take 3rd place

By DAVE HODGES
State Press

Mike Benjamin had three hits and drove in four runs as ASU defeated Southern California Sunday, 11-6, and won the weekend series with the Trojans, two games to one.

The victory, viewed by 1,661 at Packard Stadium, put ASU in sole possession of third place in the Six-Pac and avenged an earlier three-game sweep of the fourth-place Trojans.

The Sun Devils (24-19, 9-9 in the Pacific-10 Conference Southern Division) won the series opener Friday, 6-3, but lost the second game Saturday, 8-1.

The series victory may give ASU the inside track to a possible NCAA tournament berth. The Devils are in third place behind Stanford (12-4) and UCLA (12-6).

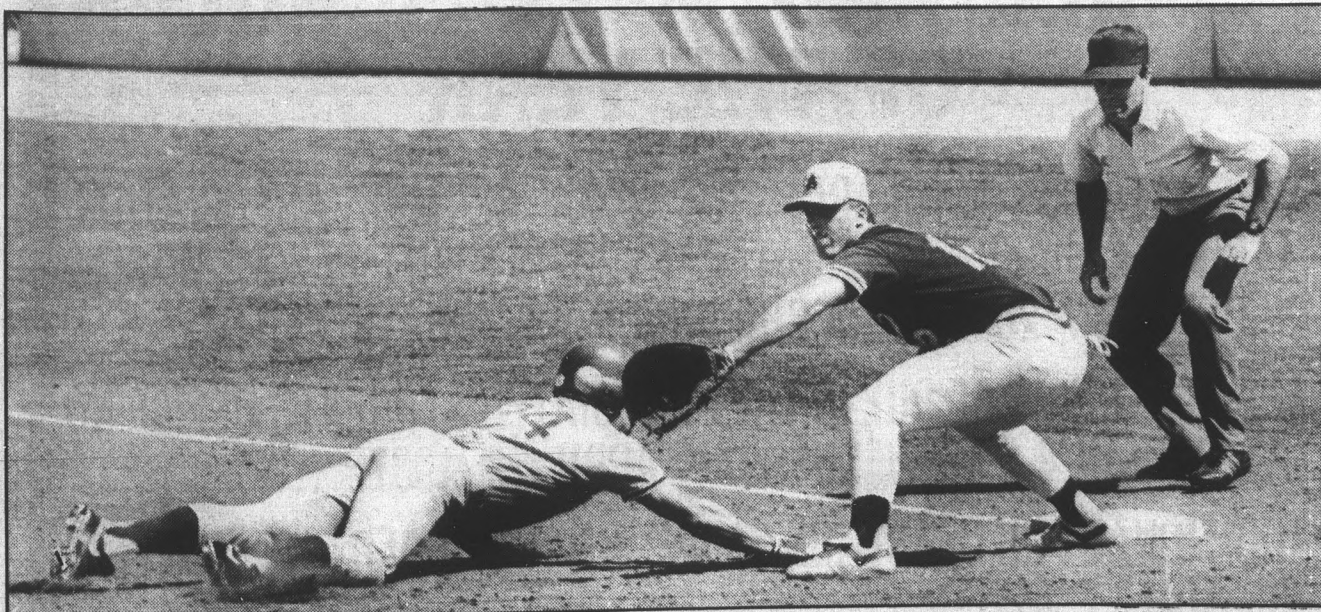

ASU travels to Los Angeles to play a three-game series at UCLA Thursday.

The Devils scored early and often Sunday, pushing across seven runs during the first three innings.

ASU jumped on top during the first inning, scoring two runs. With one out, Tim Esmay singled and advanced to third base when Ted Dyson reached second on the first of three errors by second baseman Don Buford.

Dan Rumsey then knocked Esmay in with a single, and Dyson scored on a sacrifice fly by Tony Mattia, making the score 2-0.

Mize wins '87 Masters by holing out 25-footer

By The Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Larry Mize, a native son of this old southern city, turned back two stars of international golf with a spectacular pitch-in birdie that won a sudden death playoff Sunday in the 51st Masters golf tournament.

Mize won the coveted green jacket that goes to the Masters champion with a pitch from about 25-30 yards to the right of the 11th hole, the second of the sudden death playoff.

Mize played the shot to the fringe, then stood frozen in fascination as the ball took off, running straight into the cup. That eliminated Greg Norman of Australia, while Seve Ballesteros of Spain bogeyed the first sudden death hole to drop out.

"It's a dream come true," Mize said. "I've dreamed of winning the Masters, but I never dreamed of winning it like this — beating two of the greatest golfers in the world."

The ball disappeared into the hole like the flash of a cotton-tail rabbit ducking into its burrow.

The quiet, soft-spoken Mize leaped high into the air, then went hopping around the green, raising both hands in elation and clapping them to his head.

"Reporters have asked me all week if I ever dreamed of winning the Masters. I did," Mize said.

It was the climax of a struggle in which six men either led or shared the lead at one time or another.

And it beat the two dominant figures in golf today, Norman, the flamboyant "Great White Shark," and Ballesteros, the Spanish master who has won this championship twice and owns a couple of British Open titles.

They were Mize's playoff partners after all three finished the regulation 72 holes in a tie for the top at 285, only three shots under par on the Augusta National Golf Club course.

Another key to winning, Spini said, was freshman Kim Zulla. Zulla has been out most of the season with a knee injury, but started for the team on the vault with a 9.35. That lead to three 9.60 scores for Mann, Urban and Baldock.

"Kim starting out on vault and hitting kind of made everything click," Spini said. "I thought then that was going to be a big part of the meet."

After three events, the Sun Devils trailed the Utes by .85 points. Utah's last event was the floor exercise, ASU's was the uneven bars.

Although the Utes were facing injuries which would likely lessen their skill level on the floor, the Sun Devils still had to make up almost a point.

The Sun Devils made it through two routines with out a fall. Most were relaxed. Then a slip coming out of a stalter drop: Mann had fallen and the pressure had risen.

Mann finished with a 9.10. "I was disappointed when I fell," Mann said. "I think a lot of things went through my head like, 'Can I take it back? I never want to let the team down, I want to be dependable.'"

"I was concerned with doing so well that I just was thinking too hard," she said. But Utah fell and Mann didn't have to think anymore.

With the victory, the Devils will go into the Nationals seeded perhaps as high as third. "I don't care if we go in fifth or sixth; we are going to have a chance to win," Spini said.

The Sun Devils started the season with a 180.80 and have moved up to the sixth-highest ranking in the nation. Their success has been attributed to the six freshmen on the team.

"When I was a freshman (1986) and we were in the finals, I freaked out," Urban said. "I was worried that these guys (the freshmen) were going to do the same but they didn't — they are tough."

"They don't act like freshmen and they don't compete like freshman," Mann said. "They've come through, and it makes my last year a little more special. I've been waiting so long for this day."

These freshmen don't remember last year though when the Utes beat the Sun Devils by eight-tenths of a point with their performance on floor in the regionals.

They don't remember when the Utes beat the Sun Devils by one-quarter of a point in the National Championship meet held in Florida, either.

The Devils scored two more runs during the second inning. With two outs, Benjamin walked and advanced to second on a balk by USC starter John Reilly (5-3).

Esmay then reached second on an error by shortstop/quarterback Rodney Peete, which allowed Benjamin to score. Ted Dyson followed by driving in Esmay on a single to right field, boosting the Sun Devil lead to 4-0.

But the Trojans came back in the third inning, narrowing the gap to 4-2 when Peete hit a wind-blown two-run home run to right field.

ASU retaliated by scoring three in the bottom of the inning. Tim Spehr led off the inning by drawing a walk, and Bob Dombrowski sacrificed him to second.

Then John Finn stroked a double down the right field line, scoring Spehr. Benjamin followed by lining his ninth homer, a two-run job, over the left field wall, making the score 7-2.

ASU put the game away in the sixth inning, scoring four runs on three hits, two walks and two errors.

Tony Harris (3-0) got the win in relief of starter Gordy Farmer. David Cassidy collected his second save.

On Saturday, freshman right-hander Randy Powers pitched USC to an 8-1 victory over the Devils.

Powers, who threw eight shutout innings before being touched for a run in the ninth, allowed only three singles through the first eight frames.

"He was throwing about 78 (miles per hour) and his curve wasn't that good," ASU head coach Jim Brock said. "But he obviously pitched very well."

The victory could prove to be very big down the road for the Trojans (27-17, 8-10).

USC, with an earlier three-game sweep at Los Angeles, won the season series 4-2. That could become a factor if ASU and USC are tied at the end of the season, although the NCAA is not required to use the season series as a criteria for breaking ties in its playoff selections.

Brock said he expects the top three or four teams from the Six-Pac to receive tournament bids.

On Friday, Mike Schwabe pitched his fourth complete game as the Sun Devils beat the Trojans, 6-3.

Schwabe (5-4) spotted USC a 2-0 lead after two innings, but ASU came back in the fifth, taking a 3-2 lead. Mattia led off with a single and moved to third when Matin Peralta hit a double to right-center. Mike Burrola then knocked in Mattia with a single, and Spehr's ground-out scored Peralta.

Burrola scored on an error by Buford. The big blow came in the sixth inning when Dyson and Mattia hit back-to-back homers. It was Dyson's ninth dinger and Mattia's 13th.

Rumsey added a solo homer during the eighth. The Devils are off until Thursday's series opener at UCLA.
