Tuition decision requires financial aid assessment

By DANA LEONARD
State Press

Members of the Arizona Board of Regents must assess student access to financial aid before setting next year's tuition, the regents' finance committee concluded Thursday.

State financial aid and a proposed tuition formula that would require students to pay a higher percentage of educational costs were discussed by the committee in Tucson at the U of A's student union.

The tuition formula calls for an annual one-half to 1 percent increase in tuition over the next five years.

In-state students now pay 20 percent of their education costs. If the proposed plan is approved, students would pay up to 25 percent.

At the meeting, Student Regent Joe Mikittish said: "In my mind, it's premature to ask students to pay a larger percentage of the cost of education. First, you have to know the financial aid capabilities of the state. (Financial aid and tuition) need to go side-by-side."

Dudley Woodard, U of A's vice president for Student Affairs, said gift and grant aid have been diminishing, but there's been a "significant self-help effort" by students.

"Student earnings on-campus increased at a rate exceeding inflation," he said. "But that's because students are working more hours, not because there's been an increase in wages."

Don Aripoli, U of A associate vice president for student services, said: "Students working 40 hours a week is technically possible. But it's not practically possible."

Woodard said students may not be able to "become immersed in university life" if they're juggling work and studying.

David Martin, ASASU assistant state relations director, agreed. Martin said when he received financial aid and quit his job, his grade-point average rose one full point, and he had more time for extracurricular activities.

On the average, students are borrowing or earning 64 cents of each dollar applied to their education, Woodard said.

Phyllis Bolt Bannister, U of A director of student financial aid, said recent changes in student-loan qualifications is complicating students' efforts to get loans.

"Students now have to include assets, not only income, when applying for a loan," she said.

Assets can include a house, business, farm or trust, she said.

If a student is dependent, the parents' assets must be applied toward contribution to educational cost.

Bannister said people in Arizona place a high value on owning a home, and middle-income families are affected more by the new rule than low-income families, who may not own homes.

"Needy students are still getting aid," Associated Students of U of A President Reuben Carranza said. "It's the middle-income students who are feeling the pinch."

Students who borrow to pay for their education may have difficulty repaying the loan, Aripoli said.

His office is investigating what is "reasonable indebtedness" based on what a student "may possibly be earning upon graduation."

Recall exempted from spending limits

By MICHELLE HOFFMAN
State Press

The Arizona Supreme Court ruled Thursday the Mecham Recall Committee does not have to abide by voter-enacted campaign spending limits.

"We're elated," said Garry Smith, recall president. "This decision does many things for us. It tells the people of Arizona that we are within our constitutional rights."

Although the decision is good only until Nov. 3, when the recall must submit 216,674 valid signatures to force another election, Smith said the ruling eliminates the "fear factor" that discouraged individuals and businesses from donating or becoming actively involved in the recall.

"It was great timing," he said, because the recall "needs the money." He said he hopes the court decision will allay fears potential donors had of being publicly identified.

Arizona Attorney General Bob Corbin said the recall filed suit in July to determine if Proposition 200, which limits private donations and requires election committees to report all monetary transactions, was applicable to the recall.

"I wanted legal interpretation," Corbin said, because he said his office was unsure if the spending law applied to the recall before Nov. 3.

Corbin said he would not prosecute any campaign spending violations until Thursday's court decision.

If the recall gathers the required signatures by the deadline, then the recall will fall under last year's Proposition 200, he said.

"But that was not today's issue," he said. "That was never under question."

Steve Goodman, chairman of ASU College Republicans, said although his group does not support the recall, he said the court's decision is "beneficial" to the recall in lieu of the recent decision banning signature gatherers from inside five Valley malls.

"It's Mecham's fight," Goodman said. "He has the tools and ability to fight (the recall) if he wishes. It is out of our jurisdiction."

Nelson will miss University papal Mass

By ROBIE KAKONGE
State Press

ASU President J. Russell Nelson will not be in the state when Pope John Paul II celebrates Mass in Sun Devil Stadium on Monday, Sept. 14, according to one of his assistants.

Nelson will be in Washington D.C. attending the annual National Association of Student Universities and Land Grant Colleges, said Ann Bergin, assistant to the president.

Nelson is out of town and was unavailable for comment. Bergin also said the president's office will not have a representative at the Mass.

Reaction to Nelson's planned absence is mixed.

Bob Leone, a deacon at the All Saint's Catholic Newman Center, remained relatively neutral on Nelson's presence for the papal visit.

"This is a free world and we have free choices," Leone said. "If Nelson is not there, it won't bother me, it won't bother anybody else and I am sure it won't bother the pope."

"I am sure that most Catholics will want to be there. But if he is not there it is fine with us."

ASU law student Sherry Pirre said: "This whole pope thing is getting silly. It does not matter if Nelson is there or not, the pope's visit has become too much of a hassle for ASU."

"Having a day off for the pope's visit is useless to the majority of ASU students. This whole thing is just taking too much time."

Joshua Alain Mahler, a psychology major, had a differing opinion.

"If anyone from ASU should be there to welcome the pope, Nelson should do it. As president, he represents this school. The meeting in Washington is probably important but how many times does the pope come to ASU? Nelson should skip the meeting in Washington, and out of respect, go see the pope."

ASU Director of Public Events Jim O'Connell defended Nelson's absence because the event is not University-sponsored.

"What people need to understand is that this is not a University ceremony but rather a community one, so his absence won't affect ASU one way or another," he said.

Two supply ship crewmen killed in tanker attacks by Iran and Iraq

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Another convoy of U.S. warships and Kuwaiti tankers steamed south Thursday through the Persian Gulf, where two supply ship crewmen became the first fatalities of renewed tanker attacks by Iran and Iraq.

Iraq said its warplanes raided a tanker, and shipping sources said Iranian speedboat-borne fighters attacked a Japanese tanker and an Italian motorship.

Fire from Iraqi warplanes or Iranian speedboats have hit at least 20 ships registered in nine different nations since Saturday, said gulf-based shipping sources. They say the number at least doubles the average for a month in 1986.

Britain reflagged its first Kuwaiti tanker Thursday off Khor Fakkan port on the Gulf of Oman, said shipping sources in the United Arab Emirates.

Iran and Iraq, which have been at war since September 1980, reported air strikes on each other's territory Thursday and Iraq claimed its gunners downed an Iranian plane.

High temperatures, winds fan fires plaguing forests in 6 Western states

(AP) — Scorching temperatures and steady winds fanned a plague of fire across parts of six Western states Thursday, consuming hundreds of thousands of acres of brush and timber and threatening California's towering sequoias.

Jack Wilson, director of the Boise Interagency Fire Control Center, called the situation "extremely critical, primarily in California and southwest Oregon."

"In the national park situation, we're very fearful that they might get into the giant sequoias, which are an irreplaceable resource," he said.

California, Oregon and Idaho bore the brunt of the fires. A 660-acre fire in western Arizona was expected to be controlled by Friday.

The fires were started by thousands of lightning strikes spawned by late-summer thunderstorms.

An estimated 8,000 persons were evacuated from nearly a dozen rural communities in California, more than half of them near the northern entrance to Yosemite National Park.

Soviet demands 8-year sentence for teen-age Red Square aviator

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet prosecutor accused Mathias Rust of taking an ego trip when he hedge-hopped his small plane to Red Square, and demanded Thursday that the West German teen-ager be sentenced to eight years in a labor camp.

Vladimir Andreyev said the 19-year-old pilot's goal in his daring flight to the Kremlin on May 28 was "cheap popularity" rather than a discussion with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev about peace and disarmament.

He asked Judge Robert Tikhomirnov to give Rust eight years for violating international flight rules, two for violating the Soviet border and four years for hooliganism. The terms would be served concurrently.

Rust acknowledged his guilt on the first two charges but has contested the charge of hooliganism.

The trial began Wednesday and a verdict is expected Friday after Rust and his Soviet lawyer, Vsevolod D. Yakovlev, have an opportunity to address the judge and his two lay assistants.

Violent protest continues in Korea; labor turmoil claims second fatality

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — About 13,000 striking workers occupied the nation's largest shipyard Thursday, and some torched cars, destroyed office equipment and attacked a tourist hotel.

Hundreds of other strikes continued around the country after one striking shipyard worker became the second fatality in two months of labor turmoil.

Striking taxi drivers who reached a pay raise agreement in Seoul returned to work late Thursday, but a strike leader was reported in serious condition after setting himself on fire in a dispute with management. Daewoo, the nation's No. 2 automaker, remained shut down for the ninth day.

President Chun Doo-hwan said he was confident the country could overcome the labor unrest, which he called "a one-time fever for a leap forward."

Jennings: advisers not 'babysitters' for athletes

Harris supports probe into Harvey exemption

By SCOTT LUCK
State Press

Former ASU faculty athletic representative Marianne Jennings said Thursday student athletes should assume more responsibility for fulfilling academic requirements and not rely heavily on advisers.

"Advisers are there to help, but they are not babysitters," said Jennings, who resigned her position Monday. "They should not be held responsible for athletes' actions. Sometimes too much is taken care of for (athletes)."

ASU Athletic Director Charles Harris said, "I don't disagree fundamentally that every student has the ultimate responsibility for making sure their career as a student is preserved."

However, Harris added, "I'm not sure any student should have that responsibility fall solely on them."

Harris said the athletic department provides a student athlete handbook and conducts its own freshman orientation to keep athletes informed about academic requirements.

Jennings resigned when ASU President J. Russell Nelson overruled her decision to declare Sun Devil inside linebacker Stacy Harvey ineligible for the 1987 football season.

She based her ruling on a faculty athletic representative policy of not accepting correspondence courses for athletic eligibility credit.

Harvey took an ASU summer correspondence course to make up for a two-unit deficiency in the required 24 units ASU athletes must earn per academic year for player eligibility.

Jennings and former faculty athletic representative Milton Schroeder, who initiated the policy in 1981, said the policy should be retained.

The policy excludes all correspondence courses, including ASU's, from counting toward athletic credit, although the courses are accepted for academic credit.

Although Nelson overruled the policy in Harvey's case, he said it was a "one-time exception," and he would not do it again.

Jennings said two athletes from "non-revenue" generating sports had similar cases involving correspondence course credit, but their cases were not appealed to Nelson.

She suggested Harvey's stature as a football star influenced Harris' decision to make the appeal.

When queried about the possibility, Harris said, "I've really said all I have got to say about that particular case."

When asked if he thought the correspondence policy should be repealed, he said: "The president has said he's going to have (investigator) Mike Slive come in and look at the circumstances involved in this particular case."

"Based on Mr. Slive's experience, I'm certainly not going to pass judgment on the net effect of the investigation."

Harris added he supports the investigation and personally respects Slive.

Slive, a Chicago attorney and former assistant executive director for the Pacific-10 Conference, was appointed by Nelson to investigate the Harvey incident and evaluate the role of academics in the ASU athletic department.

He could not be reached for comment Thursday, and the ASU president's office did not respond to questions about his salary for the investigation.

Harris said he believes the investigation will have some positive effects.

"I think anytime you have a circumstance that calls in a question of how your affairs are conducted, it's probably causative, and the ability to take a very introspective look into your affairs is always positive," he said.

Vince Micone, Associated Students campus affairs vice president, said part of the correspondence question stems from a lack of clarity in the ASU Bulletin, General Catalog description of correspondence study.

Micone said the wording on page 409 was confusing. The description was written by John Edwards, the executive director of off-campus academic services.

The first paragraph of the description under the heading "Correspondence Study" says: "College credit correspondence courses offered by ASU are specifically designed for the student unable to attend classes in person."

"They are offered for those who are seeking to fulfill degree objectives as well as for those who wish to increase their occupational, professional and intellectual skills."

The restriction on athletes is not mentioned in any part of the description, though Schroeder said correspondence courses are not intended to be used toward athletic eligibility.

Officials in the athletic department said the policy does not treat athletes as equal to regular students.

Harris said athletes are not able to drop and add classes without adviser approval, unlike many of the University's colleges.

ASU assistant basketball coach, Frank Arnold, said one of the primary reasons he came to ASU from his University of Hawaii head coaching job, was Head Coach Steve Patterson's emphasis on academics.

Charles Harris

"We don't believe our athletes should receive preferential treatment," Arnold said. "But that does happen at certain campuses throughout the country. I believe that's wrong; it's evil."

"On the other hand, I believe (athletes) shouldn't receive unusual punishment that is not given to all students. In other words, I guess we should treat them as students."

Patterson said, "From the standpoint of it being a legislative ruling for ASU to have more stringent standards for athletes than students as a whole, I think it's dangerous, it's unfair."

Harris and Patterson said academics in the ASU athletic department have improved since their tenures.

"There have been tremendous strides made in this department as far as academics are concerned," Patterson said.

"Our athletes are doing a very good job in the classroom, and they are accountable for class attendance, and if they don't perform academically, they don't play."

Patterson said all of his basketball players must maintain a 2.0 GPA, while University policy stipulates freshmen must have a 1.6 GPA and sophomores, a 1.8 GPA.

"I would match our team GPA against the student body's, with what I think would be positive ramifications," he said.

Patterson said players with less than a 2.5 GPA and all of his new players must attend a study hall three times a week. The study sessions are attended by tutors, an academic adviser and a coach.

America is not ready to put democracy on the line

David Broder
Washington Post
Writers Group

WASHINGTON — Here is an end-of-summer thought for you: "The ability to vote on public policy while snuggled under an electric blanket or munching on corn chips does not demean the system. On the contrary, the system can be enhanced and the American tradition honored."

The source of that remarkable thought is Richard S. Hollander, a Baltimore television broadcaster and author of the newly published "Video Democracy" (Lomond Publications, Inc.). He foresees — and embraces — a future in which local governments have been abolished. Citizens use two-way communication channels, through cable television linked to computers in their homes, to rule themselves.

In Mediaville (his imaginary, renamed Middletown), the city council was abolished and its "chamber converted to a TV studio . . . when the entire town had been wired for two-way cable. Each home had a computer which interacted with the cable TV system."

And in Hollander's example, Joe Citizen, bored with TV baseball and too broke for video gambling, punches the "public and civic affairs" button on his cable TV and finds the director of public works on his screen. On impulse, Joe walks to his computer and messages in a motion to require that all the potholes on Main Street be filled within 30 days. The proposal is put up for debate and quickly brought to a vote. Despite the grumbling of the department head, the watching citizens approve the instant referendum, 1,567 to 985.

Arguing that the needed technology is available, Hollander says the concept "is utterly practical and eminently democratic." State and national governments are still needed to deal with complex policy choices, he concedes, but small and medium-sized cities can adopt "direct democracy" and thereby cure official corruption, end public cynicism and gain "better, more efficient local government."

Well, it's a wonderful dream but, as always, there's someone around to wake you to reality. The skeptic in this case is F. Christopher Arterton, dean of the Graduate School of Political Management in New York. His book, "Teledemocracy: Can Technology Protect Democracy?," was published last month for the Roosevelt Center for American Policy Studies by the Sage Library of Social Research.

He studied 13 local experiments in the use of interactive communications technology (including all the examples cited by Hollander) and came to a far more cautious conclusion: The new technology can improve citizen access to decision-makers and broaden participation in public-policy decisions. But it cannot bypass government to achieve direct democracy, Arterton says.

The experiments, held in various locations from Hawaii and Alaska to Reading, Pa., were interesting and, in their own terms, heartening. Whether they took the form of electronic town meetings, newspaper-ballot referenda after televised discussions of policy problems, teleconferences of legislative hearings, or regional forums on health policy and planning issues, these ventures broadened participation, helped spread information and gave government officials a clearer sense of public attitudes.

But Arterton finds two big problems with all of them. It takes a lot of work (and cost) to bring government decision-making into living rooms or scattered meeting halls through cable TV or leased phone lines. The people who pay the costs or make the arrangements naturally want to have a big say in setting the agenda. Net result: What purports to be an exercise in democracy ends by being an operation manipulated by some elite.

"All of these," he notes, "are political . . . problems of plebiscitary teledemocracy, but I found no instances that offered hope that they could be mitigated by technology."

The second problem is apathy. A large proportion of us simply don't want to shoulder the daily burdens of making public policy from our homes. Reviewing the local experiments, Arterton says, "I found little support for the notion that citizens have the interest necessary to sustain near universal participation; in practice, too few are interested enough in politics to make plebiscites a feasible means of policy-making . . . Most citizens, probably around two-thirds, will not participate."

Hollander acknowledges the problem. "The bottom-line question in a direct democracy concerns participation," he says. "Obviously, government cannot be effectively run by a small cadre of dedicated activists. It demands mass popular support. In many communities, citizen participation in public affairs is an embarrassment."

He holds out the hope "that people do care and that they want to participate in decision-making that affects their lives." But in the mythical Mediaville referendum, he has only 2,552 of the city's 50,000 residents voting. Some participatory democracy! Where were all the others? Probably snuggling under their electric blankets or munching corn chips.

Ed College

Editor:

In a recent column (Aug. 25) it was stated that the College of Education had a "human" problem, and it was suggested that motivated students start an active National Education Association chapter. I would like to propose an alternative way of getting involved.

There is already a program in place which brings education majors together, allows students, faculty and administration to work together and which facilitates communication between students and staff. This program is capable of bringing in professionals in the field to give lectures and workshops, as well as sponsor mixers for students and faculty. This program can help its members develop valuable contacts in their field as well.

So what is this wonderful program? It's the Education College Council. Right now the only thing that keeps us from accomplishing our goal of involving all of the willing education students is a lack of exposure and awareness. Anyone within the college can be involved, and I strongly encourage them to watch the kiosks and bulletin boards near the Payne and Farmer Education buildings for notice of first meetings.

As president of the Education College Council, I welcome all Education students to a productive, energetic and involved semester!

Nelson Notes

Editor:

I am pleased to learn of J. R. Nelson's recent interest in serving the needs of students. For years at this educational institution, students have been the victims of poor advising. My guess is that these students' needs were not served because they were in non-revenue-generating bachelor, master or doctoral degree programs. If J. R.'s recent action can be interpreted as a firm commitment to serving the needs of all students, maybe the first problem on his "roster" that he will "tackle" will be academic advising.

It is good to be king

Editor:

This letter comes to acknowledge the Aug. 31 editorial by Bob Heiler.

I fully recognize the desirability of having first amendment rights. Further, the matter of a free and uncensored press is paramount to a modern and progressive society.

To that end, it is my desire, on the part of the Athletic Department, to respond to the issues raised in the form of questions that were never asked.

Who established the alcohol policy for Sun Devil and other university stadiums in the State?

The policies concerning all alcohol consumption on University properties are developed and promulgated by the Arizona Board of Regents.

Who said the NFL must have a long-term lease?

The theory of a long-term lease is one that was developed by the Arizona Board of Regents with the support of ASU. The basic components of any lease arrangement, as outlined by the Arizona Board of Regents, are that it must be commercially viable, it must not have a negative impact on the existing programs and finances of athletics at the University, and it must be long term.

Who decided students could only get 10,000 tickets for Sun Devil games?

There are really several answers to that question. Some could suggest it is the students that made that decision. In view of the fact that this is the first year in the history of student tickets there have been more than 8,200 requests for tickets. On the matter of distribution, the policy this year is no different that it has been in the past five. Clearly, those policies need to be addressed. I fully anticipate appropriate review and study for next year. It will be different next year!

Did the Athletic Department stop Bruce Springsteen from coming?

In the final analysis, the concert could not come except for the week of the USC game, and on a Wednesday night. The University has a policy that prohibits concerts that conflict with class nights.

Who schedules MudBogs?

Mud Bogs are scheduled by the same people who bring you Bruce Springsteen — the Office of Public Events.

Most of life is a debate, but I am sure Thomas Jefferson would want, at a minimum, the facts to be correct.

Recall II?

Editor:

We are writing in reference to Darrin Hostetler's opinion editorial of Sept. 3, 1987, regarding the wasteful spending of student funds by ASASU. As members of a fledgling student organization which has had to beg and plead for funding in the past year, we are outraged by the fact that ASASU can be so irresponsible and frivolous with those same funds. Our organization did eventually receive money in the form of a "loan," for which we are very grateful. Thanks to Mr. Hostetler, however, we have been enlightened to the fact that ASASU has lavishly spent 10 times the original amount they loaned to us — a loan promptly paid back.

The money we needed went to propel our basic survival. What was this money spent for? Can four $2,500 computers really be considered essential to ASASU's survival when they already utilize one of the foremost computer systems on campus? Do these elected representatives vote for these or simply fill out a requisition form? If the latter is true, where can we get a few? Aren't we as students rightfully entitled to use these computers that we graciously paid for? If not, Merry Christmas, ASASU.

Now concerning Campus Affairs Vice President Vince Micone, how can Vinny possibly justify dishing out $50 — count 'em — $50 for a simple appointment book when one can be had at ASU's bookstore for only $4.95. Was the line too long for the computers and the appointment book too? Maybe it is just us, but this seems completely out of line. Mr. Micone said this would save the students $500. As we see it, with four computers and one appointment book minus $500 that Vince claims will be spared, the grand total for summer expenditures stands at $9,550! Hmmm.

To the ASASU Executive Officers: we would like to invite you to defend yourselves against the allegations that you have unfairly allocated student funds to further enhance your sense of power and majesty. Should you fail to legitimately explain your actions to the students of ASU, we just may initiate the collection of signatures for the second recall movement of 1987.

ASASU angels

Editor:

I was disappointed to read Mr. Hostetler's editorial on ASASU on Sept. 3. Although Darrin definitely did his research for the editorial, many important facts were left out.

It is perhaps true that the amount spent for computers in the executive offices was high (although the total cost was $7,103, not the $10,000 that Darrin reported). Unfortunately, the article and the cartoon by Mike Ritter portrayed Associated Students as an organization of students going on "shopping sprees," buying things that can't "be justified to the average student." This is far from the truth.

One important fact that the editorial failed to point out is that these computers will be very instrumental in helping the executive officers monitor the budgets of their departments. By having the ability to examine budgets immediately, officers can determine whether or not expenditures represent the wisest use of funds. Mr. Hostetler faithfully reports that Will Daly spent $150 to rearrange the ASASU office, a project that he admits has created a "more open and functional workspace." He doesn't mention that by using student instead of professional architects Mr. Daly probably saved two or three hundred dollars.

Additionally, the fact is that people who work at ASASU are paid at minimum wage and typically work two to three times the amount of hours for which they are paid. Over the summer, the same executive officers which Darrin calls "irresponsible" spenders worked 40-50 hours a week and were paid for only 20 hours a week. In reality, they were paid only slightly more than a dollar an hour.

The point should be made that although Mr. Hostetler found fault with one action that represents less than nine-tenths of one percent of the ASASU budget, on the whole the organization is making a large attempt to spend funds reasonably and responsibly.

We are not saints, but we aren't sinners, either. We are just a group of students trying to make ASU a better place.

If every student, staff and faculty member donated one dollar, we could keep ASU's carts for the disabled running.

A funding shortage has left the future of Disabled Student Resources cart system in question.

Disabled Student Resources needs to raise at least $50,000 to continue transporting disabled and temporarily disabled students, faculty and staff around campus.

Please help us continue an invaluable service to ASU. You'll never know when you'll be temporarily disabled with a sprained ankle and need to be transported around campus!

Please help us keep ASU's carts for the disabled running by making a donation today. Mail or bring in your check made payable to Disabled Student Resources to:

Channel 5 picks up Bears-Giants game to air opposite pope

By MARISSA HALLARE
State Press

New York's ABC announced Thursday that Arizona's Channel 5 will televise Monday Night Football after Channel 3 relinquished its claim to feature Pope John Paul II's 24-hour visit to Phoenix.

General Manager of KPHO-TV 5, Dick DeAngelis, said the station is pleased Valley football fans will be able to watch the game.

"There are a lot of interested football fans out there, and we're delighted to be able to view the game live," he said.

The two other stations competing for the right to televise the NFL game between the Super Bowl champion New York Giants and the former champion Chicago Bears were Fox affiliate KNXV-TV (Channel 15) and independent KUTP-TV (Channel 45).

DeAngelis said Channel 5 was quite confident its station would be the "logical choice."

"We're in a position to reach more viewers than the other TV stations," he said.

KPHO Sports Director John Britson said: "We're certainly looking forward to it. I was pretty confident since we had the strongest signal compared to the other TV stations vying for the claim."

KTVK-TV 3 Station Manager Bill Miller said station officials gave up its claim to the game to fulfill the demands of TV viewers.

But he said: "The pope's visit is too big a story to not carry it on live time. We think it's the biggest story in Phoenix history."

Channel 3 also will use closed-captioned for the hearing impaired to report the pontiff's visit, Miller said.

The pope will kick off his visit in Arizona with a welcome at St. Joseph's Hospital and Medical Center and a parade in downtown Phoenix. He also will lead a mass at Sun Devil Stadium.

Tempe man shot during fight outside bar

A 25-year-old Tempe man remains in serious condition after he was shot during a fight outside a bar while his assailants remain at large, police said.

Roger William Mester of the 2000 block of E. Apache Blvd. was shot in the left shoulder Wednesday night by one of two suspects after he followed the two men outside the Tiny Tavern at 2058 E. Apache Blvd., Tempe police spokesman Roger Clay said.

Mester was taken to Scottsdale Memorial Hospital and is listed in stable condition.

Clay said Mester had apparently caused a disturbance inside the bar and was being harassed by the suspects after a bartender told him to be quiet.

Mester followed the suspects outside the bar around 9:30 p.m. and started fighting with one of them while the other fetched a handgun from a pick-up truck, he said.

Clay said the suspect then pointed the gun at several witnesses who had gathered to watch the fight before firing one slug into Mester, who was still fighting with the other suspect.

The suspects then fled west on Apache Boulevard in a new model red pick-up truck with a white tool box in the back.

Police described the suspect with the gun as Caucasian, 25- to 27-years-old, 150 pounds with brown curly hair. He was wearing a sleeveless T-shirt.

police report

The second suspect also is Caucasian, 29-years-old, 180 pounds with brown hair and a mustache. He was wearing a red T-shirt.

In other incidents:

•A pizza delivery man was robbed of a large cheese pizza at gunpoint early Thursday, police said.

Craig Cottrell, 19, was delivery the pizza in the 100 block of West Geneva Circle when an unidentified man displayed a chrome-plated handgun and demanded "Your pizza or your life," police spokesman Roger Clay said.

Clay said Cottrell handed the $14.57 pizza to the man and an accomplice.

Police described the suspect with the gun as Caucasian, 19- to 20-years-old, 6-feet-2 inches tall, 220 pounds with short, dark brown hair. He was wearing a T-shirt with camouflage pants and combat boots.

The second suspect is described as Caucasian, 19- to 20-years-old, 5-feet-6 inches tall, 150 pounds with shoulder-length blond hair. He was wearing an earring in his left ear, a black T-shirt, pants and combat boots.

Police to patrol for freeway marksmen

TUCSON (AP) — State and local law enforcement officers said Thursday they will beef up marked and unmarked patrols of Tucson-area freeways and press for vigorous prosecution to try to deter shootings at motorists.

The joint announcement by the state Department of Public Safety and the Pima County Sheriff's Department came a day after two shooting incidents, one of which left a former Oklahoma man injured.

DPS and Sheriff's officials said they would increase patrols by uniformed officers in marked cars and undercover officers in unmarked cars for an indefinite period beginning Friday. They did not say how many officers would be assigned.

Investigators reported no progress, meanwhile, in their hunt for a sniper who they believe wounded Jerry L. Norbury, 46, on Interstate 10 northwest of Tucson and shot at another motorist's car.

In a separate incident, authorities investigating reports of shots fired at motorists on Tucson-area roads arrested a father and son from Marana on Wednesday after stopping their truck and finding spent cartridges in it, the sheriff's office said.

Norbury, whose hometown in Oklahoma was unknown, had been working in Tucson for three months, authorities said. He was hospitalized in stable condition Thursday after being shot at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday near Avra Valley as he drove a pickup truck toward Tucson. Norbury and a friend, James Curran, 44, had been coming back from dove hunting at the time.

"We were just having a good ol' time when we heard a shot," Curran told a reporter, quoting Norbury as having said "My God, I've been shot."

Regents

"Debt counseling" should be improved at the universities so students are aware of how the loan will affect them, Woodard said.

Bannister said complicated forms may be discouraging many students from applying for loans and other aid.

"The whole issue of access and tuition-setting is influenced by the amount of financial aid available," Mikittish said. "We haven't set a policy yet on where financial aid is going."

Although the new tuition policy was not adopted, Regent President Donald Shropshire said he wanted a policy that would promote a proper "financial aid-tuition balance."

"It's possible that we can't do that right out of the chute," he said. "But it could be worked on more."

Shropshire said he was concerned about the half-percent leeway of the proposed tuition plan.

"I think it should be set at some particular percent, and then we can make adjustments," he said.

The goal of the plan is to provide predictability for future tuition increases.

"Predictability is a relevant goal," Shropshire said. "But in reality, you can't be precise."

Committee member and Regent Ralph Watkins described the meeting as "one of the most informative sessions I've been to since becoming a regent."

"I'm learning a lot," he said. "And I'll give (students) a fair shake, I assure you."

Committee Chair Esther Capin closed the meeting, saying, "We're not ready to make a (tuition) recommendation yet."

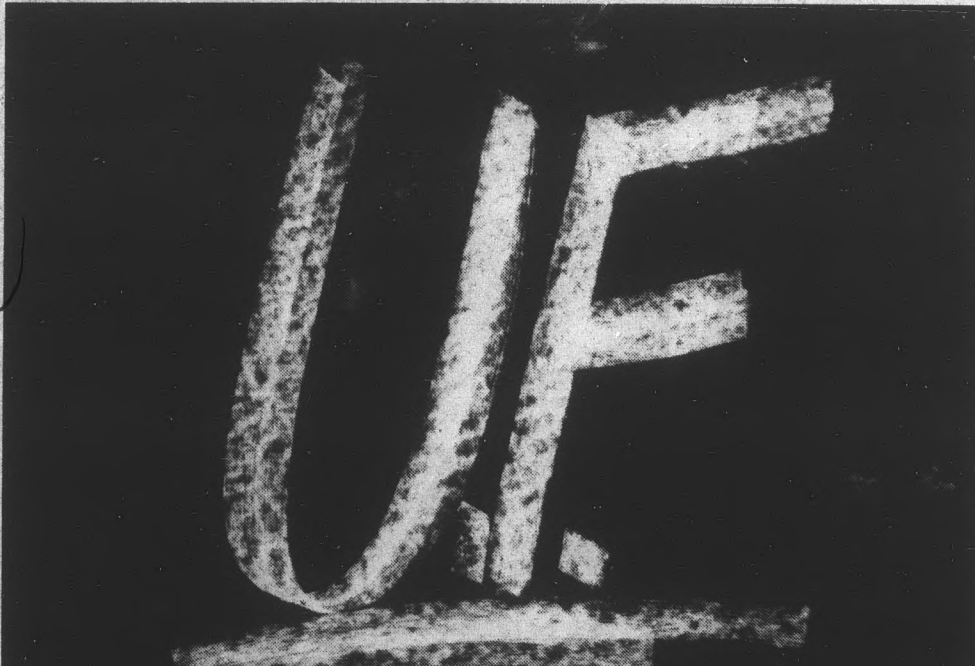

She suggested the committee attend study sessions to familiarize themselves with current financial aid policies and the tuition formula.

Lot 59 decal holders overlooking 'yellow spaces'

By VICTOR BARAJAS
State Press

Lot 59 decal owners who can't find a parking space are not looking in the right place, according to Richard Landreth, assistant director of ASU's Parking and Transit Department.

Parking spaces with yellow bumpers and name imprints north of the football stadium are legal for any decal owner when there is no football game.

But Landreth said, "There's nobody parking there." Instead, decal owners choose to park on red curbs, block other cars and block access areas, he said. The result is an $18 citation.

Landreth said about 1,000 spaces go unnoticed and unused by students every day.

Luis Lujan, a Lot 59 decal owner, thought the spaces were reserved, but he said he wouldn't park in the "yellow spaces" anyway.

"Those spaces are practically in Scottsdale," he said. Lot 59 is the largest parking area on campus, with 4,433 parking spaces covering more than 35 acres.

The department does not set a limit on the decals sold for

Lot 59 decals, so the number surpasses parking spaces available.

Landreth said about 9,000 Lot 59 decals have been sold. But he said any ASU decal-owner can park in any University lot after 3 p.m. Most evening students with Lot 59 decals park in closer areas, so the perimeter lot usually is not full, he said.

"The number of Lot 59 decals sold is not a true indicator of the true usage of it," Landreth said.

But Landreth predicts Lot 59 will be the cite of a multi-level parking structure within 20 years.

"People laughed and said, 'oh sure,' but I'm being semi-serious," he said.

John Porter, ASU associate director of management and financial analysis, predicts ASU's population in 20 years will reach 50,000.

Landreth said ASU is planning to add more parking structures to accommodate the university's growth.

"It's the thing of the future," he said. "We've got to continue making plans and build parking structures to replace surface lots when they are converted to new facilities."

Most students who bought car decals at the semester's start were left with little choice. With the exception of Lot 59, all parking structures and lots for students were sold-out in mid-June.

According to Landreth, a record 5,500 pre-paid student decals were sold, up from 1,500 last year.

Revenue from decal sales and ticketing also have increased.

Landreth said during the 1986-87 school year, parking services collected almost $3 million from decal sales and ticketing.

During the 1983-84 school year, revenues totaled about $1.5 million.

"Decal revenue has gone up not because of price increases, but because more people have been buying decals," Landreth said.

Lot 59 is the cheapest parking area, costing $37. A space in an ASU parking structure costs $90 per year.

Sci-fi convention beams down into Valley

By TOD McCOY
State Press

The denizens of the science fiction world will make a rare convergence as the 1987 North American Science Fiction Convention unites in Phoenix this weekend.

The convention, known as CactusCon, is taking place through Sept. 7 at the Phoenix Civic Plaza, the Hyatt Regency, the Adams Hilton and the San Carlos Hotels.

Activities will include discussion panels and a writers' workshops geared to assist aspiring authors to improve their writing and find markets for their stories.

"The writers' workshops are . . . for those that want to do short stories or novellas," said Greg Ampagoomian, public relations director for the event. "It's for those who haven't successfully got there yet. It helps the writer to find a market and improve their own writing."

More than five dozen other workshops are scheduled for readers and writers alike, discussing topics ranging from "Comics and Comic Art" to "Star Trek: The Next Generation."

Distributed between the four hotels are a galaxy of activities and games, such as trivia contests, computer games, fantasy war games, two costume contests and special arrangements for attendees to play the "Photon" phaser game at the facility in Tempe. Dances, parties and multimedia shows are also scheduled.

The Professional Guest of Honor will be Hal Clement, whose noted works include "Mission of Gravity" and "Star Light."

Included on the guest list are noted authors Larry Niven, L. Sprague De Camp, Jerry Pournelle and Stephen R. Donaldson.

These authors and others will make up the discussion panels to discuss various subjects. Panels include "How not to sell your work," "Business of Hollywood," "They bought my book, now what?" and "Improving your writing."

"There are panels that discuss different subjects written within the different genres," Ampagoomian said. "There's fantasy, sword and sorcery and hard science fiction such as the kind Ray Bradbury writes."

Science-fiction movies will be shown as well, including "Logan's Run," "The Rocky Horror Picture Show," "Aliens" and two new movie premieres — "The Princess Bride" and "Blue Monkey."

Sci-fi nostalgia buffs will be drawn to the Hucksters' Room, which is loaded chock full of knick-knacks and bits of science fiction history for sale.

Fifties-style eatery boogies into Tempe

By SCOTT C. SECKEL
State Press

A '50s-style fast-food joint, Burger Haven, has "La-bambaed" into Tempe. While those halcyon prices of yesteryear have gone the way of Buddy Holly, the quality of the grub has more or less remained static.

Located at 112 E. University, Burger Haven's decor is impressive; owner Lianne Moreland goes to auctions in California to pick up the authentic movie promo stills from "Zorro" and "Rawhide" that share the walls with old Coke ads, car photos and the cover of the Memphis Press-Scimitar from the day Elvis died.

Chrome mini jukeboxes are in each booth and a big Rockola rests in the corner, awaiting repair, according to Moreland. Until then, the relics of the past are serenaded incongruously by the icons of the present.

Any student could probably recite the menu in their sleep by now: burgers (with and without cheese, singles and doubles), fries, shakes in the three omnipresent flavors, coffee, milk and sodas. A point to relish: no new Coke served here.

A sample meal consisted of a cheeseburger, fries and a chocolate shake. The burger bun, a sesame, was fresh, as was the lettuce and tomato. Unfortunately, the only place suitable for grainy, pale hot house tomatoes is on an airplane (hopefully the same one that Buddy Holly was on). The burger patty itself was thin and tasteless. If and when this burger improves, then it will be worth the buck twenty-five price tag.

A generous helping of fries arrived hot and thick. These babies are handmade every morning and the extra work shows; truly the French fry of the gods.

Burger Haven is the home of one of the better shakes in Tempe. This one was rich with chocolate malt and ice cream. It was big and tasted like most would imagine those shakes in the '50s tasted like — honestly.

Service is friendly here, unlike the bigger chains. The booths are cleaned after every customer leaves, and the floor shines.

Hey Kool Aid!

Valley's 'Good Humor Man' can't stop biting the comedy pie

By CERISE WILSON
State Press

Former ASU student and comedian David Goodman is on a diet.

"I've lost five pounds on a new diet," he said. "I figure five more and I'll be ready for one of those Speedo bikini bathing suits."

Goodman, who does a great deal of jokes about himself — specifically his weight problem — headlines MUAB's first Comedy 101 show of the season, today at 12:30 p.m. in the MU Cinema.

Goodman has been doing stand-up comedy for only nine months, starting with local clubs and moving on to The Comic Strip in New York and Coconuts in Tampa, Fla.

But he has known for some time that he would go into comedy.

"I was always the guy in class with a wisecrack to make people laugh," the 22-year-old said. "I'd get kicked out of class."

Goodman said he spent a year and a half "partying and not studying" before he left the University for Scottsdale Community College, where he brought his grades up. After becoming the sports editor for the newspaper there, he decided to take a semester off, work and make some money.

"I knew that within some time in that semester I would try comedy," he said.

He was right.

A gig at Scottsdale's hip bar, Anderson's Fifth Estate, followed, but he had a hard time breaking the news to his parents.

"I'm Jewish and you can tell your mom you want to be a lawyer or a doctor, but not a comedian," he joked.

When you laugh at yourself and people can laugh with you — this is what Goodman feels great comedy is about. This idea worked well for him when he was chosen as one of the top five comedians in Arizona's Star Search competition.

"Sometimes I get the audience laughing and that will crack me up. That's when I enjoy it the most."

This may be especially true with another Goodman joke.

"... I was at the beach the other day and I was having a good time except these kids kept yelling 'Hey, KoolAid!'"

ASU students featured in noon readings

By CHUCK HADD
State Press

ASU students, faculty and local poetry and fiction writers will be featured in a series of lunchtime readings sponsored by the ASU Creative Writing Student Association.

One poet and one fiction writer are scheduled for each reading, said Kevin Dobbs, a member of the faculty creative writing committee. The readings will be held at noon every other Tuesday in the art gallery on the second floor in the Matthews Center.

They begin Sept. 8.

Most of the featured writers are current or former ASU students and have been published in various literary journals, Dobbs said. The show includes the works of Rob Hall, Rachelle Marmor, Greg Howard, Nancy Crough, Dean Stover and Stephanie Stressman.

Stover and Stressman will open the series Tuesday.

Stover, a poet, received his MFA in creative writing from ASU in 1986 and currently teaches in the valley.

Stressman, a two-time winner of the Swarthout Award for fiction, graduated from ASU last spring and publishes Fiction Review Quarterly, a new literary journal based in Phoenix.

'Dirty Dancing' skips plot holes

By TWYLA PUMROY
State Press

"Dirty Dancing," a "rite of passage" film replete with a schmaltzy ending has a little something for everyone, except for maybe the true plot-seeker.

The truth is that the movie doesn't need the world's greatest plot to make it wonderful; the joy and dancing hold it together just fine.

The story chronicles three weeks in the pubescent life of Baby Houseman (Jennifer Grey of "Ferris Bueller's Day Off"), during which she finds truth, sex and self-expression through "dirty dancing."

After Houseman's family takes a vacation to a resort in the Catskills, she falls in love and lust with a forbidden dance instructor, Johnny Castle, played nicely by Patrick Swayze.

Baby sees Johnny from across the dance floor when she sneaks into a staff party at the resort. She becomes involved with him when she offers to help his best friend and dance partner, Penny, played by Cynthia Rhodes, get out of "trouble."

Baby provides Penny with enough money to get an abortion but when it turns out that money isn't enough, she vows to take her place in a show that Penny and Johnny are to perform the following week. The result is hilarious and intense dance training for Baby and the beginning of the 17-year-old's first love affair.

In an innocent sort of way this movie is truly sexy. All that dirty dancing eventually takes its toll.

Set in the days when a dress was still a dress, (1963) Dirty Dancing has some value for those seeking a nostalgic peek at the pre-hippie era when Rhythm and Blues was still racy music.

Those who think a day without a dip is a dull day indeed are going to drool at all the back-bending dance action this Baby babe gets.

With music from The Ronettes, The Four Seasons, Otis Redding, The Drifters and The Shirelles, you could just go listen to the movie and feel you got your money's worth.

Practice in full force as Devils prepare for Illinois

By CAROL BOOS
State Press

ASU's football team has found a starting quarterback and tight end. All that's left is a winning game plan.

The Sun Devils have one week of practice and one week of planning before traveling to Champaign, Ill., to take on the Fighting Illini.

Head football coach John Cooper announced Dan Ford as the starting quarterback, but said there is a lot more work to be done.

"Now we can start game planning," Cooper said. "I think we know what Dan Ford can and can't do. We've got to do the things he can do."

At Wednesday's scrimmage, Ford completed 14 of 19 passes for 189 yards with one interception and one touchdown.

Despite suffering a concussion, redshirt freshman Paul Justin moved ahead of Ken Keifer for the No. 2 position. Justin should be ready to play in the season opener.

"I thought he (Justin) did some good things," Cooper said. "We've got a lot of work to do before we play. We got a lot of work done on different situations, but the players are tired. We didn't get the effort."

Injuries this season have outnumbered those of last season and could be a major factor in the performance of the entire team.

"From now on we've got to start tapering off," Cooper said. "here won't be a lot of contact. How they (players) perform in the game will determine the depth chart."

"We've had about half as much contact this year as last year, trying to avoid injuries. We don't have nearly the depth we had a year ago."

Definite first-game sit-outs will be junior nose guard Saute Sapolu nursing an eye injury.

Senior nose guard Richard Davis, who fractured his elbow Wednesday, underwent surgery today, and will be out for the season.

"It's fortunate he's at a position that doesn't require full motion of his elbow," Dr. Robert White, Davis' orthopedic surgeon said.

Mark Duckens, a transfer from Wichita State, will be moved from tackle to nose guard to fill in for Davis.

Freshman strong safety Nathan LaDuke might have secured a job after his performance at the scrimmage. He had one interception.

"LaDuke and Fields (Floyd) still have a chance to play," Cooper said.

Cornerback Jeff Joseph and defensive end Pat Taylor also had interceptions.

Redshirt freshman Victor Cahoon was the leading rusher with 73 yards on 11 carries, David Winsley gained 31 yards on six carries and Darryl Harris gained 13 yards on six carries.

Cooper said the worst part of the scrimmage was the lack of containment, forcing the quarterback outside a lot.

He said he was also disappointed in the kicking game.

"We have got to kick the ball better," he said. "The kicking game has to be strong."

Junior Kent Bostrom made five of eight field goals and sophomore Alan Zendejas made three of seven.

Junior punter Mike Schuh averaged 45.3 yards on 10 punts.

Cooper said Chris Dugan may travel with the team to Illinois instead of Zendejas.

"We can only take 60 (players), I don't see taking four kickers," Cooper said.

Dugan, a Scottsdale Community College graduate reported to practice Friday after problems with admission.

Ducks face problems with quarterback, defense

PREVIEW

Today: Oregon (1986 5-6)

Editor's note: This is the fifth in a nine-part series previewing each football team in the Pac-10 Conference

By DAVE HODGES
State Press

The Oregon Ducks will be struggling to keep their bills above water this year, as the team could find itself fighting to keep out of last place in the Pac-10.

Oregon has many problems to overcome: few returning starters, having to replace the best quarterback in Duck history, revamping a defense that allowed more than 30 points a game last season and surviving a murderous schedule that includes 1986 bowl teams for the first seven games.

It is enough to wonder why head coach Rich Brooks would want to enter his second decade of coaching at the school. He has proved in the past he can always find a way to win more games than the so-called experts say they can.

But this year he has his work cut out for him.

The Ducks return only 10 starters — the fewest of any Pac-10 team — and 42 lettermen from a team that finished 3-4 in sixth place in the conference (5-6 overall).

But Chris Miller, the All-Pac-10 quarterback the past two years and the first-round draft pick of the Atlanta Falcons, will be the hardest to replace.

The Miller-led Oregon offense last year averaged 362.2 yards per game, with 69 percent of it coming on the strength of Miller's arm. When the Ducks did run, almost 75 percent of the ground yardage came from the tailback position. Brooks said he wants a more balanced attack this season.

"We plan to change the emphasis of our offense of our offense, not as much of the quarterback throwing the ball, but the backs running it more, trying to come back more into balance," Brooks said. "We want to balance up the fullback-tailback running game, rather than have the tailback having 26 carries and the fullback having six."

Former Oregon quarterback Chris Miller (12) eludes Craig Turner (47) of California last season. The Ducks must find a good replacement for Miller in order to stay out of the Pac-10 cellar this season.

"We want to take the pressure off the quarterback position because we're losing not only a talented player, but an experienced one."

Sophomore Pete Nelson, Miller's backup, was expected to take over the starting position, but a spirited spring by redshirt freshman Bill Musgrave complicated matters. Musgrave apparently has the edge to start Sept. 12 at Colorado.

The Ducks have some young talent at running back to ease the quarterback transition. Sophomore Derek Loville led Oregon in rushing last year with 544 yards and seven touchdowns, and finished second in receiving with 35 receptions for 236 yards and three more touchdowns.

Oregon had another talented freshman tailback last year in Latin Berry, who, despite his 5-10, 189-pound size, will move to fullback this season in order to team up with Loville in the backfield.

"Berry will play some tailback," Brooks said. "But he will predominantly be a fullback."

While Oregon is short on experience at quarterback, the Ducks are long on talent at wide receiver with a half-dozen wideouts capable of contributing: J.J. Birden, redshirt freshman Tony Hargain, sophomore Terry Obee and seniors Rod Green, Sam Archer, Jan Cespedes and Eric Elliott.

Kick boxer strives for world title

By CHRIS DORSEY
State Press

ASU has a North American champion, and no one knows who he is.

Sophomore Dino Homsey holds the honor of being the North American World Karate Association (WKA) cruiserweight champion.

The WKA is a branch of the PKA, professional kick boxing. With one title under his second-degree black belt, Homsey plans on staying on top. He said he has one more goal: the World Championship.

"I fought for the world title in Perth, Australia," Homsey said. "I fought the heavyweight champion, Maurice Smith, and I stopped after being unable to defend him kicking my legs."

The career has been a long one for Homsey. He has been associated with self-defense for 15 years, beginning with boxing.

Exposed to boxing by his father, a golden gloves champion, Homsey picked up the sport as a hobby while growing up touring in the carnival. As a youngster, he fought in several amateur and golden gloves tournaments.

"For my 16th birthday I was enrolled in a self-defense class," he said. "I began to get into tournaments and I won. I decided to stick with kick-boxing because I didn't get abused as much."

Homsey (6-1-0) is currently ranked second in the world in the cruiserweight division, after a short stint as number one. He was voted Star System Newcomer-Fighter-of-the-Year for 1987 by American Karate magazine.

The fight that brought him into the spotlight was with fourth-ranked Don Nielson.

"It was in his hometown of Reseda, Ca.," Homsey recalled. "The house was packed, and I was all keyed-up and hungry. I was determined to win and nothing was going to stop me."

"I knocked Nielson down three times in the first round," he said. "He came out strong in the second round and that surprised me. The referee called a break and he kicked me."

The same occurrence happened in the fourth round while Homsey was on the canvas.

"Following the fouls, it was Dino's crowd," he said. "In the course of the fight I knocked him down 11 or 12 times and put him down for good in the fifth round."

The sport is very expensive. It has little financial backing and the fighters are unable to profit. Homsey fought the World Championship bout for $1,500.

Unlike boxing and professional wrestling, kick-boxing is not as publicized and promoted.

"Greed is hurting the sport," Homsey said. "The promoters are trying to make money for themselves. The sport could go places; it needs management."

His dream of becoming the world champion is not far down the line.

"I want to be the world champion," Homsey said. "I will have to get (Jerry) Rhone (the number one contender) out of my way first."

In the sport Homsey is known as "Mr. Devastation." He feels the nickname does him no justice.

"I am a nice guy," he said. "Mr. Devastation makes me sound like a bad guy."

When not in school or training for his next fight, he spends time working with children and teaching self-defense classes.

"My long-term goal is to work with troubled children and show them a positive way of life," Homsey said.

Homsey is a man who knows what he wants, and knows that hard work is the only way to achieve it.

Old man Jimmy Connors keeps on winning, even at age 35

Jimmy Connors just keeps plugging along. On his 35th birthday Wednesday, his tired and aching body (mainly his foot) on his mind more than ever, he celebrated another step toward his fifth U.S. Open championship. But despite the aches and pains, age seems to be wearing pretty well on him. Who would have expected him to take his 80th career singles victory Wednesday, competing with all those kids nearly half his age? With names like Ivan Lendl, Boris Becker, Pat Cash and others in the limelight, the tennis world had all but forgotten about Jimmy the last few years. Until last June at the All-England Lawn Tennis Club. Connors, expected by no one to make it anywhere near the final against the likes of Becker, Cash or Lendl, opened eyes at Wimbledon by advancing and advancing, often, as in the case of his dramatic comeback win over Mikeal Pernfors, by the skin of his teeth. It could have only been done by Jimmy. Having spent the last two weeks of June in London, I was surprised to see the way the British felt about Connors. He is a well-liked man over there. "Jimmy Connors is a wonderful chap," an English friend told me. "He is so much nicer than McEnroe. I hate McEnroe." And when he began his near-successful climb to centre court, everyone in the country was behind him. Nobody seemed to care much about Lendl or Becker (who had been eliminated by then, anyway). But here they are at the Open; Cash was upset by Peter Lundgren of Sweden, and Becker was forced to take Tim Wilkison into five sets before advancing past the first round. Lendl, on the other hand, is angry. He wants to win badly, and made that point with a cruel pasting of Barry Moir: 6-0, 6-0, 6-0 on Tuesday. I hope Connors will stick around long enough to play in another Wimbledon. That seems to be his theater. One only has to watch past highlights to see him at his best; his sense of humor, his temper, and his tremendous hustle.

Steve Brennan

Ducks

"You know the saying," Brooks said. "If it ain't broke, don't fix it." It's broke, so we're going to fix it."

The key man on defense is senior nose tackle Rollin Putzier (6-4, 279), who will be counted on to plug up the middle. He will be flanked by a pair of junior ends in Matt Brock (6-4, 279) and Devin Fitzpatrick.

The secondary lost three starters from last year, but the one returnee, senior strong safety Anthony Newman, is a dandy.

The Ducks are also faced with replacing All-Pac-10 punter Mike Preacher and place kicker Matt MacLeod, the No. 2 scorer in Oregon history.

A brutal schedule will just about sink the Ducks' hopes for a winning season. After opening at Colorado and Ohio State, Oregon hosts toughies San Diego State, Washington and USC. In all, the first seven opponents were in bowl games last season.

The Ducks will try to avenge a 37-17 loss to ASU when they visit Sun Devil Stadium on Nov. 7. The Devils are 7-0 against Oregon.

"We're going to be a very young team next year," Brooks said. "This is going to be one of the smallest groups of seniors I've had in a long time."

"We need to get good leadership out of the seniors that we have. There are some really good players in that group."

We shall see.

Until now, beer this real came only from a keg.

Draft beer is as real as beer gets. Since it's not heat-pasteurized, heat can't change its rich, smooth, real taste. Miller Genuine Draft is as real as that. It's not heat-pasteurized like most other beers in bottles and cans. Instead, it's cold-filtered so it's as rich and smooth as only real draft beer can be.

NFL labor talks stumble over protection of player reps

NEW YORK (AP) — The NFL labor talks stalled Thursday because of an impasse over protection for player representatives, although both sides agreed they would continue to work on avoiding the second player strike in the last five years.

After meeting for 4½ hours on Wednesday in Washington, the two chief negotiators — Gene Upshaw for the NFL Players Association, Jack Donlan for the league's Management Council — spoke by telephone for an hour and a half on Thursday.

John Jones, a spokesman for the Management Council, said Donlan flew back to New York after Upshaw told him didn't want to continue negotiations "absent pay protection for player reps."

"From this time on," Jones said, "the Management Council will put its time and effort to prepare a proposal for settlement."

Upshaw, meanwhile, characterized the talks as "on hold."

The contract between the union and the league expired on Monday, although the union cannot strike until Sept. 15 because it didn't give its 60-day strike notice to the league and the National Labor Relations Board until July 15.

On the day the contract expired, the union's executive committee set a strike date, reported to be either the second or fourth week of the regular season. It will be voted on next Tuesday by the player representatives for the 28 teams.

The NFL season begins Sept. 13. Five years ago, the last time the contract was negotiated, the players struck after the second week of the season and stayed out for 57 days, eliminating seven games of the 16-game regular-season schedule.

Although the union's demand for unrestricted free agency is expected to be the stickiest issue in the talks, the player-rep protection issue moved to the forefront Tuesday. That's when Brian Holloway of the New England Patriots, a three-time Pro Bowl offensive tackle who had represented the union on national television Monday night, was told by Coach Raymond Berry to either retire or be traded.

U.S. continues track rebound with 2 champs

ROME (AP) — Sprinter Calvin Smith and hurdler Greg Foster defended their titles Thursday as the United States continued its comeback at the World Track and Field Championships.

Silke Gladisch of East Germany became the first double gold medalist of the meet as she won the women's 200-meter dash with a spectacular time of 21.74 seconds, the second-fastest ever.

East Germany also got an upset victory from Thomas Schoenlebe, who beat Nigeria's Innocent Egbunike and American Butch Reynolds in the men's 400-meter dash, and an easy win from women's intermediate hurdler Sabine Busch.

Meanwhile, Britain's Daley Thompson, the two-time Olympic decathlon champion and world record-holder who has been plagued by a groin injury, got off to a poor start in defense of his title.

Smith needed all his resourcefulness over the final 100 meters to score his 10th consecutive victory in the men's 200-meter dash.

Apparently out of contention in fifth place after the first 100 meters, Smith edged France's Gilles Queneherve.

Both were timed in 20.16, with early leader John Regis of Britain, who thought he had won, placing third in 20.18.

"I knew it was close," Smith said. "I hoped I had enough strength."

Smith, without competing, lost his world record in the 100 to Canada's Ben Johnson last Sunday. So winning the 200 gold for the second straight time had to salve some of the bitter wounds.

Foster's victory was just as redeeming.

Ranked No. 1 or No. 2 in the world in the 110-meter high hurdles for each of the past nine years, Foster had been the victim of two unfortunate mishaps this year.

He fell during the World Indoor Championships in March and he went sprawling in the Pan American Games last month when clipped by teammate Cletus Clark.

This time, Foster had no trouble staying on his feet, although he did clobber the ninth hurdle, and won in 13.21, one-hundredth of a second off the championship record he set in Tuesday's semifinals.

Britain's Jon Ridgeon finished second in 13.29 and his teammate, Colin Jackson, edged American Jack Pierce for third, 13.38 to 13.41.

"I had a bad start," Foster said. "I concentrated on catching them, and I got them. I prepared a long time for this day. Now I've got it."

"I've had bad luck indoors and outdoors this year, every year. That is why I am so elated with this win."

Gladisch, winner of the women's 100 last Sunday, took the 200 with a lightning-quick burst coming off the final curve.
