

$10 million ASU housing project planned

By SCOTT LUCK
State Press

To help meet student demand for campus housing, ASU officials are finalizing general plans for a $10 million project to build new residence halls and renovate old ones on south campus.

The south campus project is in the first of several phases to meet a University goal of adding 2,000 new student housing spaces by the year 2000, according to ASU officials.

South campus is comprised of the area between McAllister Avenue, Rural Road, Apache Boulevard and the railroad tracks. It includes Saguaro, Ocotillo and Mariposa residence halls and five fraternity houses.

Jim Knothe, associate director of Planning and Construction, said the first expansion phase should supply about 400 new bed spaces, with construction beginning in January 1989.

The Arizona Board of Regents in September approved the use of existing bond authority to fund the project, and Knothe said his department is conducting a study to determine "which lands (near south campus) should be acquired to fill out that whole area."

"There's open land plus some other possible acquisitions," he said.

As part of the land acquisition proposal, the University is seeking regent approval of a $600,000 purchase of two apartment complexes near south campus — Palm Vista, 1339 S. Sunset Drive, and Sunset apartments, 1342 S. Sunset Drive.

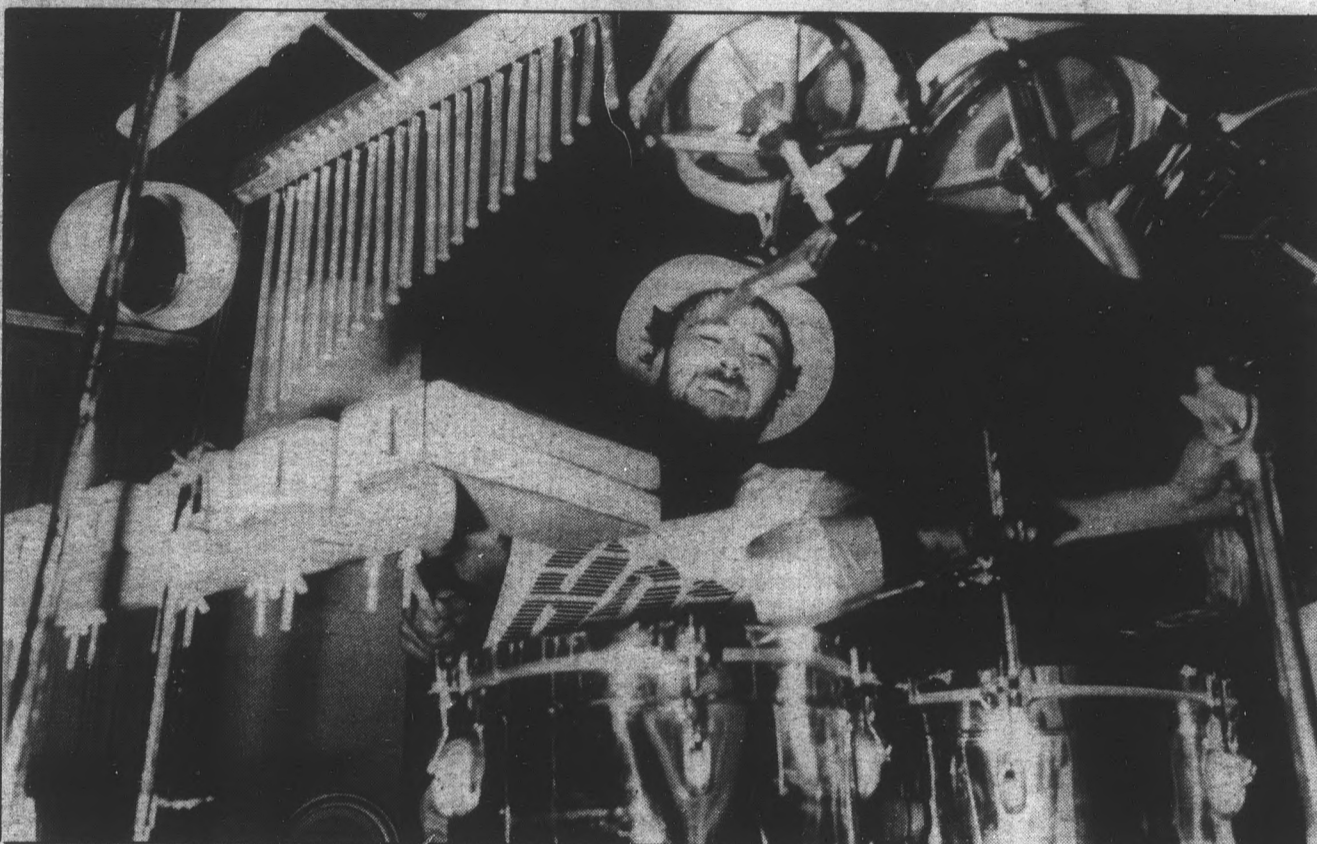

The regents are expected to make a decision during its meeting at NAU Thursday and Friday.

Residence Life Director Cliff Osborne said, "We traditionally have had an excess demand for the space on campus and will be in that condition until we are able to build those 400 bed spaces."

ASU officials project student enrollment to reach 60,000 within the next 10 to 12 years. Enrollment this semester is 42,968.

The University's goal is to provide housing for 15 percent of enrolled students, which the project should achieve, accounting for excess demand and future

Ream: 'A' plan lacks ASU commitment

By TRACY SCOTT
State Press

City Councilman Bill Ream, who has proposed that Tempe officials remove the "A" from the butte near Sun Devil Stadium, said the Associated Students' plan to stop defacement of the emblem lacks commitment and puts too much responsibility on Tempe.

"We're right back to square one," Ream said of the proposal, which calls for city warning signs, stepped-up police enforcement and heightened student awareness of laws against defacing public property. "All I see is that most of the burden is placed back on the city."

Ream suggested at a council meeting last month that the city staff draft plans to remove the almost 50-year-old symbol if students continue their creative paint jobs on it.

In response, ASASU members drew up the proposal for monitoring the "A," which asks the city to post signs near the emblem to warn students of the sentence — up to a $750 fine and/or four months in jail — for defacing public property.

The proposal also suggests leaders of the Student Programming Advisory Network inform students of existing ordinances against defacement at the beginning of each semester, and that ASASU establish a liaison with the Tempe Police Department to ensure violations are enforced to "the limits of the law."

But Ream said Friday the ASASU proposal lacked commitment and a definitive plan of action.

"I think we need more assurances from those people involved that they are going to take positive measures — not just educate and inform," he said. "They've been informed many times in many years. I want to see some more commitment."

ASASU President Karrin Kunasek said she believes people will quit the vowel vandalism once they are informed of the problems it is causing. She said students have rallied to show their support for the University symbol, and "now the ball's in (Ream's) court to make some concessions."

Ream also said he wants the University, rather than Tempe officials, to take action against offenders. "To make us (the city) prosecute for vandalism and guard the "A" on the butte . . . does not make sense financially or morally," he said.

The butte and the "A" belong to Tempe, but on campus it is the responsibility of the Student Athletic Board to keep it gold.

Although no one has proven who primarily is responsible for defacing the "A," Ream said he wants a pledge against defacement from the Inter-Fraternity Council.

"I would like the IFC to sign a pledge," he said, "I want to see a concerted effort on the part of the students that they won't do this."

Ream suggested probation or suspension for any fraternity caught defacing the "A."

But Kunasek said it is not only the fraternities or University students painting the "A" without proper authority. "Too many people jump to the conclusion that it's the Greeks," she said.

Ream, who is seeking student support for the emblem, was scheduled to meet with Kunasek and SPAN members last Wednesday, but he was in Mexico for the day.

Core-campus halls may be converted to academic space

By SCOTT LUCK
State Press

The convenience of inner-campus residence halls will become a thing of the past, ASU officials say, as they consider plans to oust student residents and input more academic space.

Jim Knothe, associate director of Planning and Construction, said McClintock, Irish, Hayden and Best Residence Halls, which house about 800 students in the core of campus, must be "phased out" and converted to academic facilities to accommodate campus growth.

"The goal is to eventually build enough housing on the periphery of the campus such that we can replace the housing that's in the core of the campus," Knothe said.

He said the halls have been targeted by the Planning and Construction department's "Campus Central Corridor Study," which seeks to identify campus buildings that can "eventually be phased out."

The purpose of the study is to find room for the expected academic growth needed to accommodate student enrollment that University officials project will reach 60,000 in the next 10 to 12 years.

"After we catch up on (campus periphery) housing, those sites will be available for redevelopment in the campus core," Knothe said.

But Residence Life Director Clifford Osborne said any relocation of inner-campus housing residents is not possible in the foreseeable future. "Residence Life has no ability, nor is there land available for such a relocation to occur," he said.

Knothe said inner-campus housing will not be destroyed until proposed new housing projects are complete, but he could not give an approximate time frame because all plans are preliminary.

Osborne said other buildings that could be axed in the name of campus expansion include Mariposa and Saguaro halls, both on Apache Boulevard south of campus, and five fraternity houses on Adelphi Drive.

The University now is beginning a multi-million dollar project to construct 2,000 new bed spaces on south campus by the year 2000 to meet an excess demand for campus housing.

South campus is composed of the area between Rural Road, Mill Avenue, Apache Boulevard and the railroad tracks.

Osborne said, although the south campus plan is not official, certain buildings may be destroyed to accommodate the project.

He said Mariposa Hall, once a motel, probably will be razed, although renovation is possible.

The five fraternity houses also will be renovated or destroyed because they "occupy a large amount of space for a very few people," Osborne said.

Fraternity presidents on Adelphi Drive were either unavailable Sunday or did not wish to comment on the renovation prospects.

After the inner-campus housing space is eliminated, Knothe said former residents could be moved to the proposed south-campus hall space or other potential building sites.

If classroom facilities were constructed on the campus outskirts, he said students would need longer breaks between classes to allow them enough passing time.

Thousands of gay activists march against discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of homosexual activists, led by AIDS victims in wheelchairs and bearing signs carrying messages like, "Thank God I'm Gay," marched Sunday to demand protection from discrimination and more federal money for AIDS research and treatment.

U.S. Park Police estimated that 200,000 people participated in the march past the White House and rally near the Capitol. The crowd, carrying balloons and banners and wearing buttons and T-shirts, heard from speakers including Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson and former National Organization for Women President Eleanor Smeal.

"Let's find a common ground of humanity," Jackson, who announced his candidacy Saturday, told the rally late in the afternoon. "We share the desire for life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness, equal protection under the law. Let's not dwell on distinctions."

He brought the crowd to its feet when he called for an end to the AIDS crisis.

"We can fight AIDS and every form of death. Let's give life a chance," he said.

After his speech, Jackson spoke to a number of AIDS victims in wheelchairs near the stage. He shook their hands and said, "God Bless You."

The rally stretched along the mall for more than a dozen blocks.

"Here we are from California, Alabama, Florida, Arizona, Alaska, Seattle and Delaware — east, west, north and south — in numbers too large to ever be denied again," said Eleanor Smeal, former president of the National Organization for Women.

She also said, "We have stopped Bork," referring to federal Judge Robert Bork, whose nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court appears headed for certain defeat in the Senate. Marchers chanted anti-Bork slogans.

Iraqi aerial blitz continues; supertanker severely damaged

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq resumed its aerial blitz of Iranian oil targets Sunday, severely damaging a Liberian-flagged supertanker. Two crewmen were reported killed and four others missing in the attack.

An Iranian surface-to-surface missile exploded in Baghdad, the Iraqi capital, as Iran retaliated for the attack on tankers.

Two Exocet missiles from Iraqi jets crashed into the engine room of the 239,435-ton Rova, setting the ship ablaze, according to gulf-based shipping sources.

It was one of three raids announced by Iraq against tankers along the Iranian coast since Saturday morning.

Shipping sources identified one of the three targets as the Merlin, a 215,925-ton Cypriot-flag tanker under charter to Iran. An Exocet missile crashed into the ship but did not explode and damage was minor, they said. The unexploded missile was still aboard.

Burma plane crash kills 49, including 14 Americans

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — A Burma Airways plane caught fire and crashed about 20 miles short of a popular tourist town in central Burma Sunday, killing all 49 people aboard, including 14 Americans, the government said.

The official News Agency of Burma said 36 foreigners, nine Burmese passengers and four crewmen were aboard.

It was the airline's second disaster in less than four months.

The agency said twin-turboprop Fokker Friendship 27 "caught fire in midair" and crashed southeast of its destination of Pagan, a town whose ancient Buddhist temples attract many foreign tourists.

The brief announcement did not give the cause of the crash. The agency said besides the Americans, seven Swiss citizens, five Britons, four Australians, three West Germans, two French citizens and one Thai died.

U.S. competitiveness threatened by immigrants, economist says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the nearly full absorption of baby boomers and women into the nation's labor force, immigrants — both legal and illegal — have fueled at least one-third of the "great American jobs machine" of the past five years, a Cornell University economist contends.

Unless stemmed, that continuing tide of non-native and unskilled new entrants in the job market now threatens to overwhelm efforts to strengthen U.S. competitiveness and rekindle a rising living standard, economist Vernon M. Briggs Jr. said.

"We simply can't let sentiment and reverence for the Statue of Liberty guide our immigration policies in the 1990s as they did in the 1890s," Briggs said. "It's not a matter of closing our borders; it's that our policies should serve some economic ends."

Briggs, who has made a career of measuring the impact of immigration on the changes in the labor force, contends that the United States is the only country in the world that does not at least screen its immigrants according to the job skills they have.

Mecham, officials arrive in Tokyo; governor losing support at home

Staff and wire reports

Gov. Evan Mecham arrived in Tokyo Sunday to promote relations between the state and Japan, while his own relations with a few political influentials in Arizona appeared to be waning.

Mecham traveled to Japan with 20 state officials to promote interests in exporting Arizona products to Japan and also to find Japanese firms interested in doing business in the state.

Mecham and the delegation flew into Tokyo after a four-day visit to Taiwan, where the governor opened an Arizona trade office in Taipei last Friday.

But during speeches in Taiwan, Mecham sparked controversy back home when he was critical of Mexico and criticized its inability to "grasp free enterprise."

Democrat Carolyn Warner signed a recall petition Saturday afternoon after reading the comments attributed to Mecham in The Arizona Republic.

"I guess this morning I read the newspaper, and our governor made an unwarranted, unnecessary slap at our neighbors in Mexico to the south, and I think that's it," said Warner, a possible Mecham opponent in a recall election.

Meanwhile, former Sen. Barry Goldwater reaffirmed his call for Mecham to resign, saying the governor could save the state a lot of money by averting the need for a recall election.

Goldwater first offered his advice for the embattled governor while talking to a group of students at ASU last week.

"You can take so much," Goldwater said Friday. "I figured, what the hell, we're going to have a recall election. We'll probably have some Republicans and some Democrats running in the race. (Mecham's resignation) would save the state a hell of a lot of money."

But the state Republican Party on Saturday rejected Goldwater's advice and came out in continued support of the governor after a meeting of the party's executive committee.

GOP Chairman Burt Kruglick said, "It's obvious that the executive committee is not happy with some of the things that have been happening. But you've got to go out and support the governor."

Kruglick said the party will reassess its stance after the recall organizers file their petitions.

Ed Buck, founder of the Mecham Recall Committee, said he was pleased with Warner's move and Goldwater's comments and said the Republicans are committing political suicide in deciding to support the governor.

"It's OK to shoot yourself in the foot, boys, but don't point the gun at your head when you pull the trigger," he said. Mecham will return to the state Wednesday afternoon, after his weeklong visit abroad. In Japan, he will meet with officials of the semi-governmental Japan External Trade Organization and Japanese businessmen in Tokyo and Osaka, western Japan.

Bork controversy adding to Reagan's 'worst' year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The likely rejection of Robert Bork as President Reagan's nominee for the Supreme Court marks the low ebb in Reagan's worst year yet on Capitol Hill, and lawmakers say the president has responded to defeats by growing even more confrontational.

The White House apparently has concluded that, having lost control of the Senate in the 1986 elections, it is better to make a stand on principles and go down in martyrdom than to seek compromise from a weakened position.

"They are following a scorched-earth policy," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va. "Veto, threaten veto, vote no, filibuster, stall, delay. It's a no-win policy."

The year has yielded a string of losses for the administration, growing ever more visible. The year began badly when Reagan vetoed two major spending measures, the clean water bill and a highway authorization act. Both vetoes were overridden.

Later, Reagan sought to make budget reform a top domestic policy priority. But while campaigning for reform, congressional Republicans complained, the president was sitting out the real budget fight going on in Congress.

The result was that Reagan was forced to sign a renewal of the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law last month in which he had little say.

Added to those failures has been the Iran-Contra hearings, disputes over more aid to the Contras and the sale of Maverick missiles to Saudi Arabia, and the Bork nomination, which some Republicans said wasn't pushed hard enough.

"I don't think they used the tools of the trade in a way to be successful," said Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa. "If they had done half as much as the left did, he would have been approved."

But more than a White House failure, the Bork vote illustrates a new partisanship on a Capitol Hill where both houses are under Democratic control, said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah.

"There is a desire to defeat the president on everything up here," he said. "I think they (at the White House) are being conciliatory with Congress. But there are some things you just have to stand up and fight on."

Other Republicans, however, say Reagan has consciously chosen not to cooperate, which may backfire on those who, unlike the president, have to run for re-election next year.

Be Afraid

'Character proof' candidates present frightening choice

Ed Schubert
Columnist

Rev. Jesse Jackson and Rev. Pat Robertson are presently the leading contenders for, respectively, the Democratic and Republican presidential nominations.

That scares me. It should scare you, too. Now, I'm well aware that the conventional wisdom holds that extremist candidates are always washed out during the presidential primaries.

But the conventional wisdom did not prevent George McGovern from being nominated by the Democrats in 1972, or Barry Goldwater by the Republicans in 1964.

The conventional wisdom couldn't even keep Ev Mecham out of the governor's office.

It is the purpose of this column to suggest a scenario in which both Jackson and Robertson could maintain their leads through the primaries and emerge as winners during next summer's conventions.

Consider the question of "character" that has already forced two Democratic candidates — Gary Hart and Joe Biden — out of the race. Consider this question in the light of several false claims Pat Robertson has made for himself (as reported in the Washington Post Weekly Edition, Sept. 28): •Robertson claims to be a member of the board of directors of the "multibillion-dollar" United Virginia Bank.

In fact, he is one of 400 people asked to serve on a local advisory board that has no authority over bank management.

•Robertson has claimed to have been a graduate student at the University of London.

In fact, he took one introductory course on British art offered to visiting American students, for which he received no graduate credit.

him as "a Yale-educated tax lawyer."

In fact, he did graduate from Yale Law School. But Robertson has never practiced tax law or any other form of law, having failed his bar exam.

Now, isn't this exactly the sort of self-misrepresentation that forced Joe Biden out proof."

Biden and Hart, by contrast, were competing for a traditionally liberal Democratic constituency which neither could claim as his personal property. In a crowded field, Democratic voters had no motive to extend any personal loyalty to a candidate who stumbles and falls. There are too many others to choose from.

With the exception of Jesse Jackson, the other Democratic contenders are equally vulnerable.

But why is Jackson different?

Well... suppose that, say, Sen. Paul Simon were to journey to Tunisia, and there publicly embrace Yassir Arafat. Chances are he'd be ridden out of the Democratic race overnight, branded a man of dangerous views and abysmal judgment.

Yet Jackson can embrace and even play kissy-face with Arafat — or Fidel Castro, or Syria's Hafaz Assad — and come out smelling like a rose. Like Robertson, Jackson over the years has built up his own loyal constituency for whom he can do no wrong. Like Robertson, Jesse Jackson is character-proof.

Now, what's going to happen as the "character issue" picks off the Democrats, one by one? None of them are perfect, after all, and perfection of character seems to be what is demanded of candidates these days.

And what's going to happen when the "character issue," as it inevitably must, jumps party lines and starts taking out otherwise qualified Republican candidates?

Well, it could be that the only survivors will be the two candidates who are immune from questions of character. If that is the case, Jesse Jackson will be the Democratic candidate in 1988. And Pat Robertson will be the Republican nominee.

And then you will have to make a decision, my fellow average voter. What will you do? What will you do?

Rev. Jesse Jackson

•Robertson claims the finances of his Christian Broadcasting Network "have been completely open and on the record."

In fact, CBN has been more secretive than other large ministries, and has never joined the Evangelical Council for Financial Accountability, which sets voluntary standards for financial disclosure.

•Robertson's official biography describes of the race?

How is it that Robertson steams ahead so serenely, impervious to the "character" issue?

The answer is simple. Robertson has built up his constituency over his years as a television evangelist. He has a dedicated cadre of starry-eyed supporters for whom he can do no wrong. He is "character

Feminist furor

Ye olde State Press

Editor:

Once again, medieval thoughts abound on the opinion page of the State Press. Bob Heiler has managed to complain about his textbooks only to reveal himself as capable of wasting a printed page on drivel (Oct. 8). Just exactly what were you saying, Bob? "Hey, it's OK to be a feminist, but don't oppose patriarchy? Honey, just sit back, look cute and peep 'Equality' once in a while?"

Though some of the selected quotations in that book ("The Feminist Dictionary") seem a bit extremist, have you ever thought about why women are demanding their fair share and trying to change traditional views? Just take a look at (Mike) Ritter's accompanying cartoon: There is the big, bad-ass, butch Dyke and the wimpy little cowering female. Is this how you view women?

It's how women have been viewed for centuries past. Women were subservient wenches whose sole purpose was to be wife and mother. Any female deviating from this prime directive was ostracized, looked down upon and/or burned as a heretic witch.

In today's world the fight to be equal is very hard. We are still told by the ruling patriarchy what we are supposed to do and be. For example, both Reagan and the pope are opposed to abortions (and thus a woman's right to control her own body). They are saying if you are pregnant you stay that way until birth. The pope won't even let women use birth control, just abstinence. Do I hear laughter in the back?

Then there is the other pressure to be married, to settle down, create a home. If you have a job, don't compromise the traditional role, just add the 40-hour work week to the rest. Be a Superwoman!

The demands on women are tough, and we are blocked by patriarchal thinking in every direction. If a woman doesn't marry and decides on a career and remaining single, she is considered unnatural, and whispers run amok — "Is she, can we say this on prime-time print, you know, a lesbian?" Why is it that lesbians are stereotyped and feared (like their male counterparts)? Why is it people seem to think they are all man-haters, ugly, bulky and so totally "butch?"

If women seem a bit angry, hostile and frustrated, could it be because they are tired of fighting the stereotyping, of being pushed around and told what to do, of being "barefoot and pregnant," of watching men control and dictate and royally screw things up (this planet isn't in the shape it's in due to female guidance, you know)?

It's time for new definitions, though perhaps not the ones from "The Feminist Dictionary." We need more women like Corazon Aquino, Mother Theresa and Indira Ghandi. The time for medieval minds like Reagan's, John Paul's and even our dear ol' Ev's is coming to an end.

Bob, you were right when you said: "The only way to fight deception is with truth." Well, the truth is that women are fighting for equality, and if they stand up with other women who may be outspoken and loud, don't you deceive yourself by calling them a quasi-feminist. Who made you the authority on feminists, anyway?

She who rocks the cradle, can also guide the world.

Senior, Anthropology

Heiler shames all

Editor:

In a recent opinion column (Oct. 8), Bob Heiler used the book "A Feminist Dictionary," which he claimed is required for an ASU class, as a take-off point for a diatribe against feminism. The quality of Mr. Heiler's research is perhaps best demonstrated by pointing out that this book in fact is not required or even optional reading in any ASU class.

Although you would never know it from Heiler's description, the dictionary is not intended to provide authoritative definitions. Rather, it is more a book of quotations, like "Bartlett's." For some entries it simply provides witty aphorisms while for others it provides a variety of competing definitions.

One of the main points the book teaches, in fact, is the diversity of feminist views. Reflecting this fact, the compilers of the dictionary (scholars who have spent many years studying feminism) state that there is no one "correct" feminism. I make the same point in the class I teach on feminist and anti-feminist theory; the same textbook we use is an anthology that provides sharply divergent feminist viewpoints on a variety of subjects.

Mr. Heiler's "research" has led him to a different conclusion, however. To suit his own purposes, he has chosen to quote only some of the most radical statements that appear in the book and to describe those statements as characteristic of "real" feminists (his term). He dismisses any women who believe in gender equality but do not hold such views as merely the dupes of these "real" feminists. I find his attitude exceedingly patronizing.

I have defined myself as a feminist since 1970. However, few of the statements Heiler quotes — some of which are indeed quite radical — reflect my views. Yet I believe there is great value in studying radical ideas. For this reason, I have both radical feminists and members of the Eagle Forum speak in my class. For those of us unafraid of new ideas, exposure to radical views can help us to see the world in new and different ways, forcing us to think about our own unchallenged assumptions.

Sometimes we change our views in response. Other times, exposure to new ideas allows us to clarify and strengthen our original position. Surely the point of a university education is to expand our ideas and knowledge. Mr. Heiler shames all of us who teach here by using his "knowledge" simply as a tool to ridicule and dismiss.

growth, Osborne said.

He said about 550 students were turned away from full residence halls this year, and another 300 housing applicants were not accepted by the University in time to be accommodated.

Knothe said the exact project details will face regent approval in January, then the University will select an architect and construction manager. Construction usually begins approximately one year after regent approval, he said.

Knothe said the University will construct new housing before renovation of existing residence halls, "so we don't have to displace anybody until we get to about the third phase."

Process Oriented Design should complete its general south campus project proposal within the next couple of weeks, Osborne said. The company was hired to determine the most efficient use of south campus land.

Osborne said the new south campus housing will offer an "alternative lifestyle" to students' current living conditions.

He said he wants to group students more comfortably by offering suite-style and kitchenette accommodations, along with adequate leisure and recreation space.

"We cannot make that area so dense that we lose any aesthetic value or recreational value," Osborne said.

Knothe said the south campus project is part of a long-range plan to relocate inner-campus student housing to the campus perimeter.

As part of the land acquisition proposal, ASU is seeking regent approval of a $600,000 purchase of two apartment complexes near south campus — Palm Vista, 1339 S. Sunset Drive, and Sunset apartments, 1342 S. Sunset Drive.

Prof attending international conference

J. MICHAEL HOEHN
State Press

ASU political science professor Yung-Hwan Jo leaves for San Francisco today as one of only four American academicians chosen to speak at an international conference on North American/Pacific Rim relations.

The three-day conference will bring together business and political representatives from Canada, the United States, Japan, China and South Korea to analyze current economic relations between North America and Pacific Rim Nations.

Jo, who is an ASU Asian specialist and an internationally recognized authority on Korean politics, will speak among 23 specialists at the conference, including the consul-general of China, members of the U.S. State Department and representatives of several large American businesses.

The conference, sponsored by the International Business Consortium, is designed for American and Canadian business leaders to learn more about the political and economic situation in Asia, including the future of trade between North America and Pacific Rim countries.

Jo said his lectures will target political changes in the Pacific Rim nations and their effect on the countries' economic future. Specifically, he said he plans to speak on the current social and political upheavals in Japan, China and Korea.

Jo will join Stanford Erickson, editor of The Journal of Commerce, and Michael Swaine, project manager of Unison International, for a panel discussion on the Asian political changes.

In an interview this weekend, Jo said Japan faces great social upheaval as a younger generation takes over its business.

In Japan, younger Japanese do not want to work as many hours nor put as much effort into Japanese industry as their parents did, he said.

But in China and Korea, Jo said it is the unstable political developments that could damage their economic growth.

Jo said he also will discuss at the conference ways for the United States to catch up economically with the Pacific Rim nations.

He said American industries should concentrate more on research and development, although he added the United States benefits from its stable political situation.

"We don't have to worry about a revolution or revolt, unlike the Asian countries," Jo said.

Physical Plant may adopt T-shirt uniforms

By MARISSA HALLARE
State Press

Physical Plant officials want to buy T-shirts for plant employees to wear instead of uniform shirts during the hot summer months.

"If the recommendation passes, we could expect to see the new T-shirts within 30 to 60 days," said David Brixen, acting director of the Physical Plant. "These new shirts give the staff more variety."

Brixen said the department still is studying the impact on its budget before it purchases the T-shirts.

The uniform shirts are leased at about $5 per person each month or about $24,000 a year, Brixen said. The new T-shirts will cost an additional $4,800, he added.

If the new T-shirts are purchased, each employee will be given three to go along with five uniform shirts.

Brixen said that traditionally, each employee is given new uniform shirts every year, but if the T-shirts are purchased, employees may be given a new uniform shirt only if the old one is badly soiled.

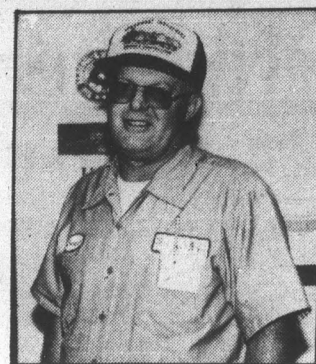

When the new uniform shirt policy was instituted last year, two custodians were fired for refusing to be fitted. The two custodians said they felt there is no need to have to wear uniform shirts, which act as labels to show what they do.

But David Rhees, a custodian at ASU for the last three and a half years, said the uniform shirts look professional.

"Personally, it doesn't bother me," he said. "I don't mind being signified as a custodian because at least people know who I am versus not knowing if I'm a student or visitor on campus."

David Valdez, acting supervisor for the custodial department said he likes the idea of the uniform shirts but not T-shirts.

"T-shirts won't be advisable because of the summer work," Valdez said. "At least these shirts we have now have air balance inside. But with T-shirts, you suffocate because it hugs your skin too much and gets uncomfortable when working."

Latin American experts meet in Tempe for research convention

By SCOTT LUCK
State Press

About 300 Latin American experts gathered in Tempe this weekend to present their research in the 33rd annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Council on Latin American Studies.

Topics during the three days of meetings, lectures and discussions ranged from the economic, social, and political problems of Latin America, to its history, literature and drama.

The convention, held in the MU Friday and at Tempe Mission Palms Hotel Saturday and Sunday, included a look at U.S. foreign policy toward Latin America by ASU professor Lewis Tambs, a former ambassador to Costa Rica.

The event was coordinated by PCCLAS president and treasurer Jerry Ladman, an ASU professor.

Arturo Flores, an assistant professor of Spanish at Texas

Christian University, said, "This is an important opportunity for people with different perspectives to share their research on Latin American topics."

Flores did his master's work at ASU and received his doctorate at the UofA. He was the chair for one of the all-Spanish portions of the convention, called "Crisis Y Renovacion en el Teatro Latinoamericano."

Janet Proffitt, of El Cajon, Calif., said she is not fluent in Spanish but attended an all-Spanish presentation anyway. She said the program was interesting because of the slides used to enhance understanding of the concepts, concerning Latin American visual art.

Her husband, Ted, a professor at Christian Heritage College, said participants often make lasting friendships and are introduced to sources they otherwise would not have met.

"Another value this program gives is we can also share resources, for example, bibliographies . . . for people from other parts of the country that don't even know those resources exist," Ted Proffitt said.

Most participants praised the organization of the convention and were impressed with the friendliness of convention organizers. Most impressed were the participants who visited ASU and Tempe from Baja California.

Antonio Mendez, of Mexicali, Baja California, said, "I'm really happy that everyone was so friendly and excited to be attending my first conference."

Mendez, of the Universidad Autonoma de Baja California, said Mexicali will host next year's conference.

The 23rd Hubert Herring Awards to recognize Latin American research were awarded to three writers: Margaret E. Crahan, best article or article-length manuscript; Carlos H. Waisman, best book or book-length manuscript; Peter Leslie Hudis, best masters or senior thesis.

14-year-old boy injured in car accident

By MIKE BURGESS
State Press

A 14-year-old Phoenix boy was critically injured in an accident early Sunday when his head slammed into a car windshield, police said.

John M. Schlador, of the 5800 block South 44th Place, suffered massive head injuries and was flown by helicopter to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he is listed in critical condition, Sgt. Jim Norwood said.

Schlador and a relative were traveling in a 1978 Toyota Celica when they collided with a 1987 Toyota pickup at University Drive and Rural Road around 2:27 a.m.

The driver of the Celica, 18-year-old Mark D. Schlador, was taken to Tempe St. Luke's Hospital and is listed in stable condition. The driver of the pickup, 19-year-old Thomas D. Ramson Jr., suffered minor injuries.

In other incidents:

•An ASU police officer received seven stiches near his left eye Friday after he was assaulted while assisting Liquor Control Board agents at a Tempe bar, police said.

Police said Eric Russell Scott, 20, of the 200 block of South Ash Avenue, was arrested after he allegedly hit officer Mike Kappel in the parking lot of the Dash Inn, 731 E. Apache Blvd.

Kappel and officer David Zimpher were called to help control crowds that had gathered around three undercover liquor agents who were issuing citations to about five minors in possession of alcohol.

Scott was booked into the Maricopa County Jail in Mesa on charges of aggravated assault, resisting arrest and criminal damage.

•Tempe police are searching for the identity of a woman who lies in a coma at Scottsdale Memorial Hospital after being struck by a Jeep Friday night while walking her dog.

The woman was walking at the intersection of Baseline Road and Hardy Drive around 10:11 p.m. when she was struck by a 1987 Jeep Cherokee, Sgt. Jim Norwood said.

Norwood said the woman, whom police believe is in her 30s, is 5 feet 11 inches and 110 pounds. She was wearing blue sweat pants, a white shirt with the word "Navy" and a pair of tennis shoes. She also was carrying a key chain with the words "Little Germany."

The driver of the Jeep, John Bruno of Tempe, has not been cited for the accident, Norwood said.

•A student was arrested early Saturday after he was seen walking on the hood, roof and trunk of an ASU police car, police said.

The student was cited and released but the pair of tennis shoes he was wearing were impounded as evidence.

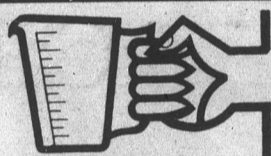

Special note to bicyclists

ASU police will be concentrating enforcement of University biking rules at Orange Street and Cady Mall today. Nighttime enforcement of Arizona traffic laws requiring bike headlights and rear reflectors will begin Oct. 20.

On the Mark

D.C.'s jokester picks a peck of politicians

By TOD McCOY
State Press

For 20 years, comedian Mark Russell was the cornerstone of political humor in Washington, D.C. During that time, he watched five presidents, one war and enough highbrow scandals to draw material without ever having to write his own jokes.

In fact, he claims to have 535 writers — 435 in the House of Representatives and 100 in the Senate.

The self-titled "political cartoonist for the blind" checked out of the Shoreham Hotel in downtown Washington, D.C. six years ago taking to the road to promote his "livelihood" and his own particular style of backbiting and satirical humor — delegated from Washington, of course.

Russell moved to the nation's capital after high school where, he said, "you can't help but become politically involved."

His "mediocre" piano playing eventually got him a 20-year stint at the Shoreham, a regular PBS show, national recognition and nationwide appraisal as the resident Washington comedian and currently a national tour.

But, he says, traveling can get tiresome. "I enjoy it once I get off the airplane. It gets worse and worse now, I mean, if your luggage makes it on the same plane, that's a good day."

"But it is a lot of fun," he is quick to add. "Once you're there, in front of the audience, then everything falls into place."

Russell will be appearing at noon today in the MU Cinema as part of the Associated Students Lecture Series and is free with a student ID.

In a recent telephone interview, Russell candidly answered a few topical questions.

State Press: What's your opinion of the Iran-Contra affair?

Mark Russell: "Well, its over with now. (But looking back) for six years we've been saying to Ronald Reagan, 'You're out of touch,' and he said 'No, I'm in charge.' Now, we say to him, 'Ah, you were in charge' and he says 'No, I was out of touch.'"

About Reagan:

MR: "This is an actual Reagan quote: a reporter asked him 'Did Casey carry on covert operations without you knowing about it?'"

"He said 'Not to my knowledge.'"

SP: Do you think Bob Woodward is telling

Mark Russell

the truth?

MR: "I picture Woodward at Casey's bedside, he says 'Mr. Casey, can you hear me?' and Casey says, 'No.' He says 'Why?' — 'I'm dead.'"

SP: How about Bork?

MR: "Reagan's been saying this all week: he said, 'Bork will be defeated over my dead body.'"

"Well, he's right about that."

SP: Who do you think will win the '88 presidential election?

MR: "I don't think anybody is. They are dropping off so fast, that we may just make it without anybody in command, which is what some people say is what we've been doing for six years anyway."

"The country wouldn't stop overnight. It's like when you cut a chicken's head off, he doesn't stop running around the yard for awhile."

Reiner's fractured fairy tale flies high

By SCOTT C. SECKEL
State Press

By now we all know that a fairy tale begins with a specific set of circumstances and ends with everything being set to rights, i.e. lovers getting hooked up with the perfect mate courtesy of a kind of medieval dating service, all human rights abuses being abolished, tyrannical presidents-for-life (they were called kings back then) overthrown, etc . . .

What makes a fairy tale fresh and interesting nowadays is what is put in between the two stolid bookends of tradition, and director Rob Reiner's "The Princess Bride" breaks some ground in this direction.

Walt 'raps' Tempe around fingers

By DAVE MILLER and BARB MULLIGAN
 State Press

It's a cool thing when your roommate says "Hey, let's kick on some socks and put the cat out and drink beer and go jammon'. Walt Richardson's in town."

I like it when that happens. I especially liked it Saturday night, when Walt and his buddies got together at Minder-Binders, 715 S. Hayden Road, to tear up the carpet and serve up some smoke for about seven zillion Tempe reggae fans.

I know they liked it too. It was pretty obvious. Parking was a mess and the lines were long. But that deterred no one.

Walt be jammon', mon'. Walt be jammon' in a serious way.

It didn't look that way at first. It was crowded and everybody's shoulders were chafing. Apparently the organizers smuggled illegal aliens as a day job.

Walt took the stage in gregarious fashion. This is a man who loves what he does. His mile-wide grin lit up households in Mesa.

With that going for us, and Minder-Binders backyard sand giving the place that "Give me something with an umbrella in it darling" Jamaican feel there was no doubt we were in for a whoopin' good time.

They didn't disappoint us. Tightness prevailed and Walt's infectious good humor made even the bouncers smile, a little.

"I don't know. I think I smell something funny in the air," Walt said, laughing. "I think some people here are doing something they shouldn't."

review

Walt made no bones about that, though. He simply tore through cover versions of Bob Marley tunes, and a few sounds from his upcoming "Double Bridge" LP.

The only thing missing was Spiderman. "Here's to Spiderman (longtime band member Ken Singleton)," Walt said. "We're sorry he's not here but I know you can feel him with us tonight."

And then there was his hair. "He's got the most bitchin' dreadlocks I've ever seen," said my roommate, Jo. "He could sound like crap and he'd still be good because of his dreadlocks."

Walt does have bitchin' dreadlocks. But he also has much more than that.

"He's such a happy man," Jo said. "He plays with the audience. And he gives his band members a lot of credit. He's got a great mystique."

"He just seems so happy to be here," she said. After the show, we went to a local nightclub. It was a bad move.

"Studebaker's was a huge buzzkill," Jo said later. "It was like we were in Jamaica for a while and then we had to come back to Phoenix."

Yeah, but we were still "in Jamaica" for a while, and that's enough. Pass me something with an umbrella in it, darling.

SP: Do you think politics and religion can mix?

MR: "I was just thinking of a couple days ago, when a lot of big names in TV evangelism testified before a congressional committee, and I figured they wanted emergency federal funds for Christendom."

SP: What's the funniest thing you've seen any president do?

MR: "Each president had his one thing, and that's why I suggest that in addition to putting their picture on money, you put them on bubble gum cards, so you can trade."

"I'll trade you a Gerry Ford wind button for a Jimmy Carter killer rabbit. That's why it doesn't matter to me who the president is, because I know he's going to be funny."

SP: How about our own governor Mecham?

MR: "I was the first person to do a Mecham joke before a national audience. It was way last summer, and I do my PBS shows from Buffalo, (which are) shown nationwide. And it was a gamble. I was so far away from Arizona when I said it, and I was talking about the candidates, and about Babbitt, and how I wish he were still governor because he was replaced by a real piece of work named Evan Mecham."

"I said how Mecham's birthday was a national holiday in South Africa."

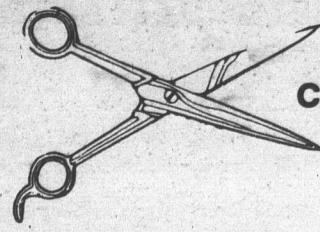

"So a few weeks later I was in Arizona, talking to a friend of mine, and he said what was really scary about that, is that everyone laughed at that joke."

"But I think he's good for you, because he's the most famous governor you've ever had. And so this keeps Arizona from getting mixed up with New Mexico."

"Don't worry about it. Governors are supposed to be funny. As we've seen in recent history, it prepares some of them for the presidency."

"Don't be too hasty about (the recall), you're better off with him. At least people know who you are, or they'll go to Albuquerque by mistake."

"You can put a sign out on the highway, 'Welcome to Arizona, the laughs are on us.'"

Vamps, scamps and tramps cloud DEG's 'Near Dark'

By JESSIE SIMON
State Press

For bonus points, name the missing component — Great Acting. Fine Directing. Electrifying Special Effects, and (. . .).

The correct answer is plot. For those who guessed correctly, the score is now, Audience — 1, DEG's latest, "Near Dark" — 0.

Not that "Near Dark" is a bad film, it is just sort of a "nowhere" one, which makes little if any conclusions. Actually, the film lies in its own pool of blood — stabbing itself with its own double-edged sword.

Within the first several minutes of the film, we're introduced to Caleb (Adrian Pasdar of "Made in U.S.A."), a seemingly normal guy who picks up on a very unusual woman. After they begin making out, he discovers she is a vampire. By this time, he has already been "turned" and must learn the ropes of the vampire world.

In the past, this task seemed easy enough to accomplish on film, but in "Near Dark," it is the focal point. In fact, Caleb finds he isn't cut out for the cutthroat lifestyle at all and decides to rectify his situation.

His new love, the vampiress Mae (Jenny Wright of "Out of Bounds"), tries to teach him the ropes of bloodsucking as Mae's late-night crowd voices disapproval of the new member.

A great deal of the film is spent in this vein, with a side plot slowly seeping its way to the forefront — one which centers on Caleb's father (Tim Thomerson) and little sister (9-year-old Marcie Leeds) driving across the country trying to locate Caleb.

Father and sister go on a trek to find the missing devil-of-a-son, and end up, by some strange occurrence, in the same hotel as Caleb and his new crowd.

Lo and behold, the night marauders stumble across the innocents and a scuffle ensues.

What results is a fast escape and the transformation of Caleb from vampire back to human.

Eluding the band of vulgar vampires does not go over well, and they seek revenge. Well, most of them anyway.

A movie without a love interest just won't flow, so Mae comes back to Caleb.

Touching? Well, not really.

This does nothing to improve the mood of the vampire's, and one more escape scene follows. Unfortunately for the vampires, nature has a way of righting the world, and when the dawn breaks, a picturesque view of burning bodies is provided.

Young cowboy-turned-bloodsucking-ghoul saves the girl, transforms her into a young-bloodsucking-human, and they live and die happily-ever-after.

Sigh. After 95 minutes of introduction, though, the film never seemed to get anywhere. It was interesting, had a few funny lines and would be worth the matinee price.

"Near Dark," rated R, is playing at Sun Devil Theaters in Tempe.

Princess

audience and through the boy's eyes.

Westley (Cary Elwes) loves Buttercup (Robin Wright), but has to get some money so they can be married. He leaves, goes overseas and is reported to have been killed by pirates.

Buttercup is heartbroken and the pompous Prince Humperdinck (Chris Sarandon) plans to take her as his bride. In a twist of fate, she is kidnapped by three fortune hunters (Andre the Giant, Mandy Patinkin and Wallace Shawn) and the action begins.

The twist to this fairy tale is that every so often the story is interrupted by the boy bemoaning an impending death or, even worse, a kiss. The tale switches, people get saved and the morality of small boys intercedes to the chagrin of kissing fans everywhere.

The humor in this flick is a bit too sophisticated for kids, but suits adults just fine. If the filmmakers had gone a step further trying to satisfy either age group, the clarity of directing in "The Princess Bride" would have been resolved.

There are some very witty scenes with sharp dialogue here. When these are juxtaposed with some overly simplistic events, the result tends to clash and the viewer wonders how to interpret this movie.

The subject matter is treated with care and fortunately there is no humor a la Mel Brooks.

The scenery is top-notch. Because of the filmmaker's special attention to detail, one would predict a lot of enthusiasm was involved in all parts of creating "The Princess Bride."

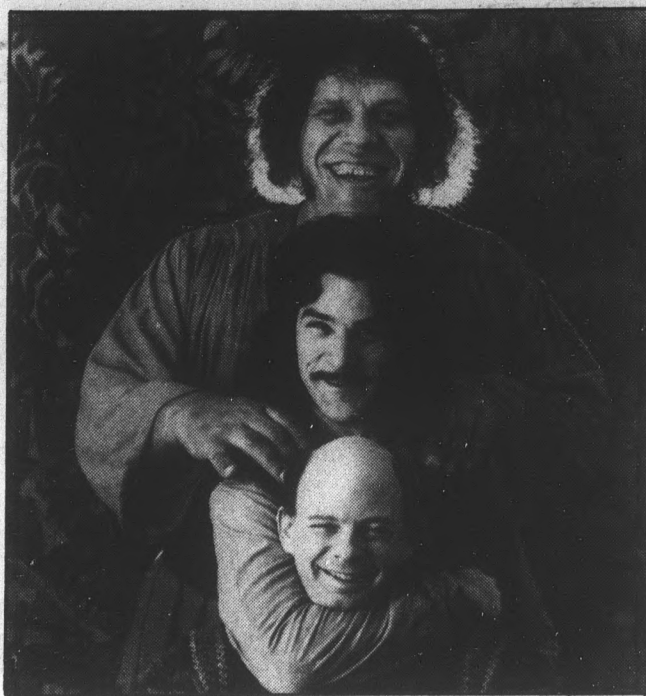

The acting is as good as it should be; the characters are two-dimensional stereotypes and are necessarily everything but real in this genre film.

The cameos by Peter Falk and Billy Crystal (playing an old Miracle Man) are great. Falk is sharp as a laconic grandfather who knows what's what. Crystal cuts deals and gives exceptional bargains on miracles, even though he's retired — "Don't go in the water for two hours, well one, after you take this (miracle pill)."

Author William Goldman, with the help of Director Rob Reiner, has made a nice transition from the pages of his novel to the big screen. Here the story remains intact and strong, and it is this quality which carries the picture instead of overused, pedestrian special effects.

Adrian Biddle's photography — shot on location in England and Ireland — is above average. Biddle takes advantage of misty green meadows and shadowy torture chambers — which make for good fairy tales.

"The Princess Bride," rated PG, is playing at AMC Lakes Theaters, located at Rural and Baseline roads in Tempe.

From top to bottom, Wallace Shawn, Mandy Patinkin and Andre the Giant are dastardly villains in "The Princess Bride."

Devils lose conference opener to Huskies

Husky defense, crowd lead to 27-14 pounding

By STEVE BRENNAN
State Press

SEATTLE — For University of Washington fans, Saturday was a perfect day: rare October sunshine, a new stadium addition and a chance to watch the Arizona State Sun Devils get fed to the Dawgs.

The fired-up Huskies, fueled by 73,883 screaming fans, held the Sun Devils (3-2, 0-1 in the Pac-10) to just 10 yards total offense in the first half and survived a third quarter comeback to defeat ASU, 27-14, in the Devils' Pac-10 opener.

"The crowd was definitely a factor," ASU coach John Cooper said. "The game is played from the eyebrows-up."

"They played like we did (against Washington) the last couple of years (ASU defeated Washington in Tempe in 1985, 36-7, and 1986, 34-21)," he said.

On the first possession of the game, ASU quarterback Paul Justin, who had been selected to start after the Sun Devils' win last week over Texas-El Paso, was intercepted by Husky linebacker Bo Yates, who returned the ball 25 yards for the first score with 14:17 left in the quarter.

This turn of events set the tempo of the game as the Sun Devil offense was unable to produce a first down until early in the third quarter, even after Justin was benched in favor of Daniel Ford.

"Paul Justin didn't play very well," Cooper said. "He was very nervous. We didn't have any success calling audibles, and we had a lot of motion because of the noise."

"They played an excellent game," he said. "They were prepared."

Washington coach Don James was elated by his team's effort.

"That statistic (ASU's first-half total offense) is mind boggling," James said. "I've never seen 10 yards at the half against a great team."

"I can't say enough about the 12th man (crowd)," he said. "I asked for their help and they responded."

ASU flanker Chris Garrett said the crowd was an important obstacle to moving the ball in the first half, but poor field position made it worse.

"It was a hostile environment," Garrett said. "It was too noisy and guys were hearing false calls. I've seen how the crowd can be a factor. We're not used to it."

"It is also hard to start back so far toward the end zone," he said.

It looked as though it would not be a day for quarterbacks as Washington's Chris Chandler also threw an interception on the Huskies' first possession.

ASU defensive end Pat Taylor blocked a Chandler pass intended for split end Darryl Franklin, grabbed the ball in the air and returned it 12 yards to the 50-yard line.

But the Sun Devils were unable to move the ball on their second possession, and were forced to punt. ASU punter Mike Schuh, who had eight punts for 333 yards on the day, then placed the ball out of bounds at the Washington 10-yard line.

But the Husky offensive machine, which would eventually gain 372 total yards on the day, methodically drove the ball 90 yards on 12 plays to score again.

ASU quarterback Daniel Ford, No. 7, tries to escape the grasp of Washington's Travis Richardson, No. 58, during Saturday's game in Seattle. The Huskies used a record-breaking crowd and a tough defense to defeat the Sun Devils, 27-14.

Washington tailback Vince Weathersby took the ball on a pitchout from the ASU 16-yard line and scampered around the right side for a touchdown, making the score 14-0 with 5:16 remaining in the first quarter.

ASU defensive end Trace Armstrong said despite personnel changes in the Husky offensive line, the Sun Devils were not surprised; they were simply outplayed.

"There wasn't anything different," Armstrong said. "There were no surprises except that they knocked us off the ball."

"They would hit us on our weakest defenses," he said. "They are a good football team and a good offensive line."

Cooper said the Washington offensive line was the key to success against the Sun Devils.

"Their offensive line did a good job," he said. "They had a good game plan and executed to perfection. We didn't stop them on third down."

Ford was placed at quarterback for the ensuing ASU possession, but the Sun Devils were still unable to move the ball. Tailback Darryl Harris carried the ball twice for four yards and Ford was sacked for the first time (the Huskies would get to Ford seven times during the game), forcing Schuh to punt for the second time.

Washington (4-2, 1-1) again sustained a drive, this time beginning at its own 46-yard line. The Huskies drove to the ASU 6-yard line, alternating between running plays and short passes, but were forced to kick a field goal after ASU defensive tackle Shawn Patterson stopped Washington tailback Tony Covington for no gain on third down.

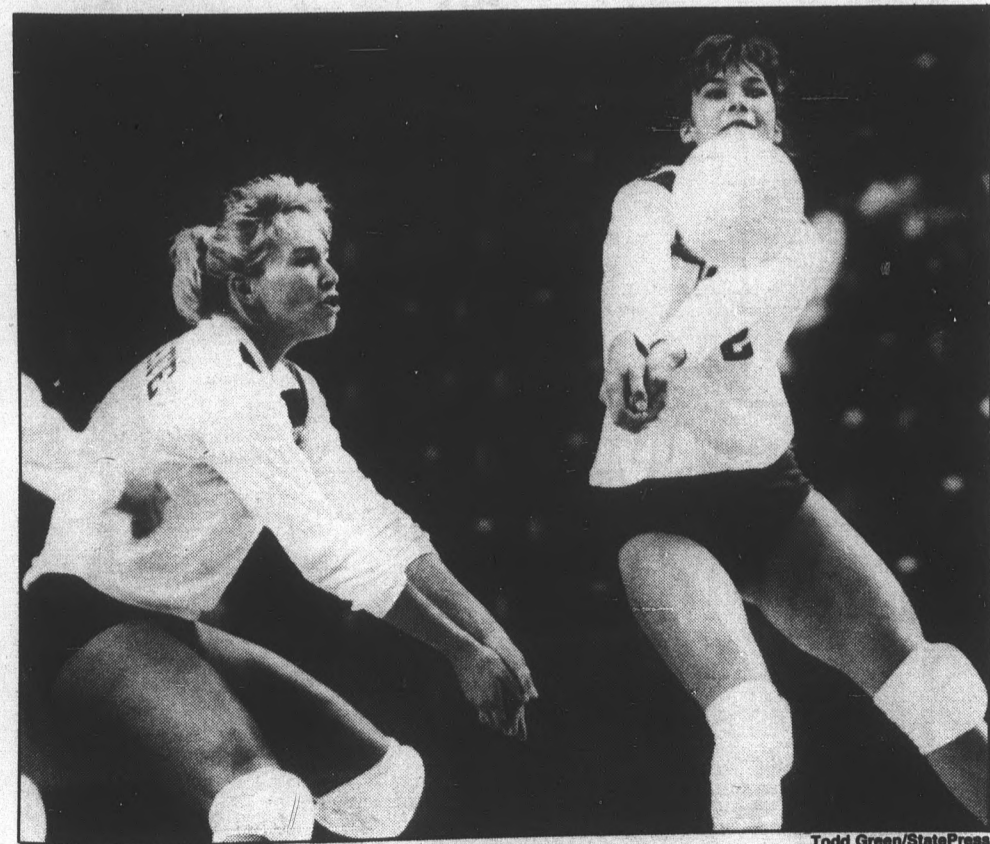

Washington kicker Brandy Brownlee converted the field goal, boosting the Husky lead to 17-0.

Both defenses tightened for the remainder of the second period.

Brownlee punted for the first time and a fake punt was intercepted by ASU cornerback Eric Allen in the end zone to

Spikers beat Washington, 3-2, in grueling match

ASU volleyball players Kelly Plaisted and Tracey Barberie move to dig a ball during the Sun Devils' win over Washington.

By JOAN MCKENNA
State Press

The ASU volleyball team's 3-2 victory over Washington Saturday was one people sat back and savored.

It was sweet — oh, so sweet.

Anything but a win after three hours of grueling play could have shattered the team's spirit, not to mention those of coaches and fans.

No one seemed in a hurry to leave. Middle blocker Sue Nord served the last two balls before a crowd of 805, spurred on by a section of ASU's band and cheering squad. It would be tough to say who worked harder — the players or the spectators.

Nord said it was a moment of reckoning for her. "I knew I had to get those serves in," she said. "I said to myself, 'I'm getting this serve in. . . nothing tough, just in.'"

Nord took over the ball with the score tied at 15, 45 minutes into game five. ASU had fought back from a deficit of 7-2 to go ahead 9-8, but fell behind again 13-9 before tying the game at 13 with the Huskies (14-6, 2-5 in the Pac-10).

Hitter Christy Nore said winning the match was more than just luck. "I just think it was meant to be," she said. "Our time had come."

Nore said the Sun Devils came into the match 100 percent ready to fight. "It was an incredible effort by everybody," she said. "We played out of our heads."

Driving the Sun Devils throughout the test of stamina was setter Regina Stahl, who never got a rest. Stahl set 168 balls for 90 assists (setting a new ASU record for assists in one match) and a .536 setting percentage. She also dug 15 balls, killed nine and the 5-7 Sun Devil blocked four for good measure.

Head coach Debbie Brown said her team gave everything it had. She stared in amazement at the game statistics, in which eight of 11 of her players broke or equaled at least one personal career record.

"We went into the match knowing this was the most important match we've played this season," Brown said. "And we knew Washington had great defense."

"We expected the ball would keep coming back over the net, and that happened a lot."

The Huskies dug 86 balls. The previous high by an opponent this season was 66 by Indiana.

Brown said the ability for the team to last three hours should be credited to the substitutes, who kept supplying fresh energy to the team. "The subs did a great job," she said. "We couldn't have done it without them."

Nord agreed and said hitter Debbie Lynch coming off the bench in games four and five was a key factor. Lynch scored eight points on kills, including the final kill to clinch game four, 15-11.

Lynch was speechless after the match.

Turn to VOLLEYBALL, page 16.

Volleyball

After a while, she said "Ahhh." Later she said, "When Debbie (Brown) put me in, I had to go for it all. Everybody was going for everything."

"It's kind of hard to explain." Lynch said the cheerleaders, band and fans really helped.

"When we were struggling really hard, they kept the momentum going," she said. "When Washington sided out, we were still psyched. We knew we were going to get it back."

Lynch said it was the kind of match that could turn around the rest of the season for the Devils (7-6, 3-4).

Nord said knowing they can pull together and fight should carry over to other matches. "I think we have the confidence now," she said. "We can win. Against UofA we were in the same situation, but we let it go."

"But we've got that confidence now." Brown said coming from behind has got to be a confidence booster and hopes the players will stop doubting their ability. "Hopefully they've learned to never give up, to keep fighting."

Brown repeatedly has expressed confidence in her team's talent.

A major strain on Sun Devil endurance was deflecting bullets from Husky hitter-blocker Laurie Wetzel. Washington set the ball to Wetzel 92 times and she scored on 41 of them. She made only five errors.

But team hitting collectively was even, .284 for Washington compared to ASU's .286.

The scoring was 13-15, 15-8, 13-15, 15-11, 17-15.

Stars for ASU included freshman Kelly Plaisted, who had a chance to show the home fans her arrow-straight serve and record three aces.

Hitter Tracey Barberie scored 20 kills, tying her personal best. Nore had 30 kills, a new career high that placed her in a third-place tie for ASU's record.

Dawn Meidinger scored a new best of 12 kills, and Nord also compiled a personal-high 24.

The victory resulted in a weekend sweep as the Sun Devils defeated Washington State Friday, 15-10, 15-6, 15-13.

ASU held it together while the Cougars (10-10, 1-5) made a lot of mistakes. All Brown said was, "It's a win."

Hitter Tracie Kistro turned in an excellent performance with a career-high eight kills against the team from her home state.

Kistro's grandparents drove down from the Northwest to watch the game. One of the Huskies, Laurie Davis, was a former high school teammate of Kistro in Spokane. She said those things affected her.

"I think the competition is greater when you're playing your home state team," she said. But Kistro said her game has improved just from more experience.

Kistro is the Jimmy Connors of the team. Since she swings left-handed, opponents are caught off guard. "Being left-handed is definitely an advantage. Most teams don't get to practice defense against it."

Kistro said it is a nice feeling for the team to be winning.

ASU plays Grand Canyon Tuesday night in the UAC before heading out of town for conference matches with Stanford Friday and Cal-Berkeley Saturday.

Hitter Mindy Gowell's status is still on hold, but trainer Joanne Dunnock said she would reassess the situation Monday.

"I can't let her go back until I test her on the cybex machine Monday," she said. "But she's working really hard. We're pushing for next weekend."

end drives for Washington.

Ford was sacked three more times by the Husky defense during the Sun Devils' next two possessions, leaving the score at the half 17-0.

The third quarter resembled more of the clash between Pac-10 powers that had been expected before the game, as the Sun Devils came out of the locker room tunnel with a rejuvenated offense.

ASU produced its first and second first downs of the game after its defense forced the Huskies to punt on their first possession.

After being sacked for the fifth time, Ford completed a 25-yard pass play to Garrett, moving the ball to the Husky 47. Harris then ran for 12 yards over left tackle for the Sun Devils' second first down, but the drive stalled after Ford received his sixth sack for a 13-yard loss.

But the Sun Devils took advantage of a Washington fumble, forced and recovered by nose-guard Mark Duckens, to score their first touchdown after three plays.

Ford found Garrett in the end zone on a third down play and completed a 9-yard pass to make the score 17-7.

"In the second half we had good field position," Cooper said.

Ford said the key was establishing a running game.

"In the third quarter we came out and were able to establish the run, so we could pass the ball," he said.

Washington was again forced to punt as the ASU defense tightened even more.

Ford then found a wide-open Aaron Cox running down the sideline on first down and, despite a tremendous hit as he threw the ball, connected on a 47-yard pass play to the Washington 12-yard line.

After three more plays, Garrett managed to break free over the middle and caught a Ford pass for the Sun Devils' second touchdown, making the score 17-14.

But Washington responded with a 73-yard, 11-play drive which led to a one-yard run by Covington to put the Huskies ahead, 24-14.

"When it is 17-14 somebody's got to make a big play for you," Cooper said. "But nobody did for us today."

ASU was unable to move the ball for the remainder of the game, as Ford could complete only one more pass and was intercepted for the second time by Yates with 2:09 left.

But the Huskies were able to drive one more time, and added a second field goal by Brownlee, making the final score 27-14.

Cooper said there was a positive side to the loss; the Sun Devils' know who they are and what must be done the rest of the season.

"We'll find out how good a football team we are now," he said. "We know what we have to do now."

Armstrong said the team must rebound from the loss.

"We've got to start living up to our reputation," he said.

"We've got to come out every week and start flying in practice."

The Devils will play host to Washington State at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Sun Devil Stadium.

Ford comes through in relief

By STEVE BRENNAN
 State Press

SEATTLE — ASU quarterback Daniel Ford found redemption Saturday, but it came painfully.

After a poor performance and benching against Texas-El Paso the previous week, Ford was given the chance to salvage the Sun Devils' hopes against Washington after his replacement, redshirt freshman Paul Justin, threw a crucial interception.

Ford responded to the call by completing eight of 14 passes for 117 yards and two touchdowns, despite being sacked seven times and harassed even more by the Washington defense.

But his effort fell short of saving the Sun Devils, as they lost to Washington, 27-14.

"You don't know what's going to happen," Ford said of his being put in the game so early. "We shouldn't have been in the situation we were in."

Justin, who felt the onslaught of a fired-up Washington team and a record-breaking attendance in Husky stadium, was intercepted by Washington linebacker Bo Yates on the second play from scrimmage, who returned the ball for a touchdown.

After two more Sun Devil possessions, Ford was given the quarterback duties.

"That's a tough-luck thing," Ford said of Justin's interception. "I feel for him. You don't ever want someone to go through that."

Ford, who was chased, trampled and sacked virtually every time he touched the football, praised the Washington defense.

"They did their job," he said. "They were doing smart things. We didn't expect them to come out like that."

"We couldn't get a first down," he said. "They just covered our people."

Despite the defense, Ford said he felt the Sun Devils could come back in the third quarter.

"I believed we were gonna come back," he said. "We established the run and pass. But they threw off our timing in the fourth quarter."

ASU head coach John Cooper said he was mostly pleased with Ford's performance.

"Dan did some good things," he said. "But he is still holding the ball too long."

"You have to give him credit, though. He took a pounding," Cooper said.

Ford said the crowd noise, which affected the Sun Devils as a team, did not bother him.

"They have great fans here," he said. "It bothers the rest of the offense because they can't hear the signals, but because I'm the one yelling them, it doesn't really affect me. I don't think the noise makes a difference."

According to Cooper, Ford has reclaimed the starting quarterback position for next Saturday's game against Washington State.

"Daniel Ford is our quarterback," he said. "I'm not going to go through a situation like that again."

Valley duo wins volleyball tourney

By JOAN MCKENNA
 State Press

The 1987 Sun Devil Volleyball Weekend tournament concluded Saturday evening with a showdown between California and Arizona.

This time, the Zonies won.

Phoenix residents Doug Redshaw and Shelley Huffman won the inaugural tournament at ASU's University Activity Center before Saturday's ASU/Washington volleyball match, 15-11.

They defeated Tim Muret and Lisa

Hudson, a mixed-doubles pro-beach team recruited from San Diego by I Dig Sportswear for the competition.

Muret and Hudson had advanced to the finals from Minder-Binders' 23 entries. Redshaw and Huffman qualified from What's Your Beef's 11-team field.

Redshaw said Huffman called him a week and a half ago and they decided to sign up for the tournament.

"This was a fun tournament," he said. "We had a good time and met a lot of people." He said free beer was a nice bonus.

Two great ways to cruise through the semester.

The hand on the left is poised on what could be the most essential part of your education.

A Macintosh™ computer.

And the hand on the right is gripping pure, simple, unadulterated fun.

A Honda Scooter. One we're giving away.

All you have to do for a chance to drive it away is visit your campus computer center and fill out an entry form. While you're there, take a Macintosh for a test drive.

Because Macintosh can help you write term papers, categorize elements of the periodic table, plot the rise and fall of pork-belly prices, compile computer code, and talk to other computers.

And the first 250 people on campus who get behind a mouse, so to speak, will receive a free Apple® memo board.

So head over to your campus computer center today. And ask about our Student Financing Program.

Who knows? You may soon find yourself cruising a little farther than you expected.

Apple. Test drive a Macintosh. HONDA
You may ride away on a Honda Scooter.

Enter through October 30 ASU BOOKSTORE For purchase information COMPASS TRAILER 3 PALM WALK

Certain restrictions apply; visit your campus computer center for complete promotional details. One free Honda Elite™ 50 Scooter will be awarded per participating school; only registered students and faculty are eligible to win. Odds of winning vary depending on size of school and number of contest entrants. No purchase necessary.
