By BEN McCONNELL
State Press

Gov. Evan Mecham's attorney added little new information during a television rebuttal Monday night to a House special investigation into the governor's activities, but said Tempe attorney Barry Wolfson suggested opening a second account to pay off the $350,000 loan Wolfson provided to Mecham's campaign.

Murray Miller, appearing on KAET-TV's (Channel 8) "Horizon" program, said Wolfson suggested opening a second account at Valley National Bank. French's report states that the account was to "launder" Wolfson's loan so its origin could not be traced.

Wolfson hotly disputed he suggested the second account. "That son of a bitch," Wolfson said. "I didn't ask him to open a second account, that lying sack of shit."

Miller claimed attorney-privilege confidentiality when asked by program host Michael Grant about whether Mecham denies talking to DPS Director Ralph Milstead and the governor's alleged efforts to convince Milstead not to cooperate with an attorney general's investigation.

"The truth will come out if the governor is allowed to testify before the House of Representatives," Miller said.

House Speaker Joe Lane, R-Wilcox, said he will not allow Miller to address the House but will allow Mecham to testify before a special committee that was formed Monday to hear the arguments of the case.

A vote on whether to proceed with impeachment proceedings could come this week.

The attorney general's investigation that Mecham allegedly tried to tamper with centered around an alleged death threat made by former prisons construction chief Lee Watkins against Donna Carlson, a former aide who quit in October.

Watkins' boss, Department of Administration Director Max Hawkins, called a Monday news conference to refute the alleged threat.

"There was no death threat," Hawkins said. "The French report is discredited."

Sundi Kjenstad/State Press

Murray Miller, the governor's attorney, prepares to defend Mecham on the air Monday afternoon at Channel 8 studios.

In a deposition, Milstead said Mecham told the DPS chief in a phone conversation not to cooperate with Attorney General Bob Corbin in the Carlson case because Corbin "is out to get me."

Meanwhile, the Maricopa County Recorder's office turned in nearly 200,000 valid recall signatures to the secretary of state's office Monday, pushing the total number of valid signatures to nearly 300,000 and virtually guaranteeing a recall election. Only 216,746 signatures were required to force an election.

Secretary of State Rose Mofford has five days to give her OK to the signatures. Monday was the deadline for all counties in the state to hand in recall signatures. After her verification, she will ask the governor if he wants to resign.

5,000 King supporters lobby for holiday

By VICKIE CHACHERE
State Press

PHOENIX — Bracing winds, bitter cold and a steady rain kept the large crowds away from Monday's Martin Luther King Jr. Day celebrations, but the day was highlighted by the introduction of two bills calling for the holiday and a renewed outcry against racism in Arizona.

About 5,000 people converged on the state Capitol to memorialize King and lobby for a state holiday. Several speakers, including Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., Phoenix Mayor Terry Goddard and the Rev. Warren Stewart, chairman of the state citizens group pushing for the holiday, criticized Gov. Evan Mecham for rescinding the holiday last year and said the governor's action has turned the state into a symbol of racism.

Organizers had hoped about 20,000 would show up for the second holiday rally. Last year, more than 15,000 turned out.

"The spirits are high and although the clouds are in the sky, the sun is shining in our hearts because of Martin Luther King Jr.," said Stewart, who led the mile-long walk from the Phoenix Civic Plaza to the rally site at Wesley Bolin Plaza.

Minutes after the rally ended and a wreath was placed at a small memorial to King at Wesley Bolin Plaza, Sen. Carolyn Walker, D-Phoenix, and Rep. Art Hamilton, House minority leader, D-Phoenix, introduced bills that would establish the third Monday in January as a holiday honoring King and the civil rights movement.

The bill would combine celebrations of Presidents Washington and Lincoln's birthdays.

The lawmakers, responding to critics who say the King day would be too expensive for the state, say under their plan no extra money would be spent honoring the slain civil rights leader.

"Don't let nobody turn us around," Stewart said. "We are a determined, dedicated group of people and we are going to have a Martin Luther King Day here."

Last spring, a similar measure creating a King holiday was approved by the House, but was voted down in a Senate committee.

Crime at ASU drops 30 percent in past year

Editor's note: This is the second in a three-part series on campus crime.

By MIKE BURGESS
State Press

While crime on America's college campuses is on the rise, crimes reported to police at ASU fell almost 30 percent in 1987, according to police reports.

According to the reports, crime at ASU has dropped in every category except larceny.

The crime with the most dramatic drop is arson, which is down 89.9 percent.

But ASU Police Chief, C. Russell Duncan doubts the drop in crime on campus.

"I wish it was true," said Duncan, who has been ASU's top lawman for the past five years. "They're just statistics; people at ASU aren't that good."

He calls the low number of rapes on campus "phantom figures."

"Reports of sexual assault are way under," he said. "Instances of date rape are not reported."

Statistics also show that violent crimes at ASU are down.

"ASU is not as violent as other campuses... not as far as homicides or suicides," Duncan said. "We're fortunate as hell that we've never had (a homicide)."

Duncan said most violent crimes on campus occur in residence halls and at fraternity houses.

Surprisingly, Duncan lists ASU's "party" image as one of the reasons for a decrease in violent crimes.

"People come here with a casual attitude," he said.

"They don't take life as seriously."

Duncan said the biggest crime ASU now faces is the drug business on campus.

"There's no lack of money here," he said. "Look out at all the Bimmers, Corvettes and Z-cars in the parking lots."

He said many students fall into the 18- to 25-year-old category, which is the age group that most drug dealers target.

Suspect in Utah church bombing remains holed up, heavily armed

MARION, Utah (AP) — A Mormon Church bombing suspect, along with 13 other people, held off law enforcement agents for a third day at the mountain compound where police killed his polygamist father-in-law, authorities said.

Adam Swapp vowed not to leave the home of John Singer until the polygamist leader is resurrected, a mediator said. Singer was killed by police trying to arrest him nine years ago today after he aimed a pistol at them.

Some 150 officers, including an FBI special weapons and tactics team, surrounded the 2.5-acre family compound in a mountainous ranching area about 60 miles northeast of Salt Lake City.

A half-mile away, in the parking lot of the bombed church, police set up three trailers as a command post.

Swapp and his family, six of whom are children, are "heavily armed. They've got ammunition and they've dug bunkers around the main house," said Jim Soter, a Summit County commissioner and Marion town councilman.

Soter said he received a call a month ago from a man identifying himself as Swapp. "He said only, 'You'll be destroyed,' and repeated it three times. I know Swapp is capable of destroying someone."

Authorities said they hoped to bring a peaceful end to the siege, which began shortly after the explosion that damaged the community's Mormon chapel and recreation room about 3 a.m. Saturday. Within an hour, authorities went to the Singer home.

Jewish refusenik leaves for Israel after emigration battle with Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — Jewish activist Josef Begun flew out of Moscow on Monday to join "3 million sisters and brothers in Israel" after winning a 17-year emigration battle that included years in prison and Siberian exile.

"Now that I'm going, I feel even more the wishes and dreams of those I leave behind, and who want to live as Jews," the gray-bearded Begun, 55, said before boarding Aeroflot Flight 151 at Sheremetyevo-2 airport.

Well-wishers crowded around Begun, his wife Inna, 52, and family members during their final minutes on Soviet soil.

"We will not forget those we are leaving," Begun vowed to fur-hatted Soviet Jews gathered in the airport departure hall. "That's the most important thing — not to forget."

Leaving on the flight to Bucharest, Romania, were the Beguns; Inna's mother, Dvoira Lazara, 79; and Begun's medical student son, Boris, 23, his wife and their two children. They will fly to Israel on Tuesday. "I am leaving many people near and dear to me, but I have 3 million sisters and brothers in Israel," Begun said.

He was one of the Soviet Union's most celebrated Jewish "refuseniks," — those denied permission to emigrate.

Begun taught Hebrew and Jewish culture in Moscow, and was in the forefront of the effort for Jewish immigration to Israel.

In 1983, he was sentenced to seven years in prison for anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda, and served more than three years of his term in Chistopol Prison in the Ural Mountains.

Stock market mixed, very quiet, bond market closed on King day

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in very quiet holiday trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 1.66 to 1,954.41 in the first half-hour.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 8 to 7 in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 539 up, 469 down and 460 unchanged.

Many investors observed a federal holiday for Martin Luther King's birthday. The bond market was closed.

House committee formed to investigate Mecham

By VICKIE CHACHERE
State Press

An Arizona House special committee was formed Monday to look into allegations of malfeasance made against Gov. Evan Mecham and will begin hearing testimony Wednesday evening.

House Speaker Joe Lane, R-Wilcox, has appointed six Republicans and four Democrats to the committee. The panel will be chaired by Rep. Jim Skelly, a Scottsdale Republican and chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

The committee will meet today to discuss procedure and will begin hearing testimony on special counsel William French's charges that Mecham tried to hide a $350,000 campaign loan, embezzled $80,000 in state funds and interfered with an investigation of alleged death threats made against a former Mecham aide who was testifying before a grand jury investigating the loan.

"We want every member's questions answered and we want everything to be brought out that can possibly be brought out in this context," Lane said. "But we don't want any showboating or grandstanding and being here forever."

"The taxpayers are paying for this, we'd like to see a good, thorough job done without taking forever to do it."

Mecham spokesman Ken Smith said the governor "will be happy" to testify before the committee. The committee will determine a date when Mecham will appear.

Other Republican committee members are: Gary Giordano, New River; Larry Hawke, Tucson; Mark Killian,

'I didn't find them (last week's letters) so threatening.'

— Jenny Norton

Mesa; John King, Phoenix; and George Weisz of Phoenix. Democrats appointed to the panel are: David Bartlett, Tucson; Jack Brown, St. Johns; Debbie McCune, Phoenix; and Richard Pacheco of Tucson.

Rick Collins, Lane's chief of staff, said the committee will meet in the evenings, allowing members to conduct regular legislative business and grapple with issues other than impeachment.

The committee will not be voting on whether to enact articles of impeachment but will be looking for Mecham's response to French's charges.

The House only needs to determine that there is probable cause to begin impeachment proceedings.

A resolution calling for impeachment will be introduced on the House floor after the hearings have been concluded. Thirty-one votes are needed to impeach the governor.

An Arizona Republic poll indicated Monday that at least 12 members of the House already support impeachment.

Once articles of impeachment are enacted, the House will serve as a prosecutor, the Senate as the jury, and Frank X. Gordon, chief justice of the Arizona Supreme Court, will preside.

Tempe Rep. Jenny Norton, a Republican who has asked the governor to resign, said Monday evening that she had received three or four letters and about 20 phone calls from Mecham supporters urging her to support the governor.

Norton said none of the calls or letters were threatening. Last week, a Mesa group sent letters to Republican lawmakers threatening to vote them out of office if the legislators did not support Mecham.

Some lawmakers objected to the letters, prompting the state GOP chairman to condemn the group's actions.

"I didn't find them (last week's letters) so threatening," said Norton, who was accosted by a group of about 10 Mecham supporters Jan. 11 following the governor's State of the State address. The supporters told Norton they would see she was voted out of office unless she changed her views about the governor.

Norton told them she would not respond to threats and declined to discuss the governor with them.

"I guess I'm getting used to it," the freshman lawmaker said.

Rios criticized minority program at ASU, seeks fund transfer

PHOENIX — Arizona Sen. Pete Rios, angered by ASU officials' failure to increase minority enrollment, is asking state senators to consider cutting the University's budget and transferring those funds to school programs that help minorities.

Rios, D-Hayden, told his fellow senators that ASU administrators have only "paid lip service" to minority recruitment and retention programs, and that minority senators have a responsibility to protect their constituency.

Rios, who graduated from ASU in 1971, said despite years of studying why minorities do not enroll at ASU, nothing has been done to boost minority enrollment.

"I believe it's time, high time, that we as minority legislators and others that are concerned about this issue question our role in this whole process," Rios told the Senate last week.

"If a major part of our constituency is not being served by the universities, we need to look at what our priorities have to be.

"Maybe we should not allow ourselves to be taken for granted by the universities anymore. Maybe we need to take that money and look at putting it somewhere else."

ASU President J. Russell Nelson declined comment on the senator's statements. Last week, Ann Bergin, one of Nelson's assistants, said the president had not received a transcript of Rios' statements.

According to a report released by the Board of Regents in December, minorities represent about 10.5 percent of ASU's population, despite the fact that minorities make up 21.6 percent of the state's adult population.

The University invested more than $645,000 in minority recruitment programs last year.

In 1984, the Board of Regents ordered the state's three universities to begin active minority recruitment programs, but since then no ethnic group has seen increases of more than three-tenths of a percent.

Rios said he was angered by ASU officials who lobbied him for increased spending next year.

"The University staff, vice president or lobbyist will be coming to minorities in the Legislature and will tell us, 'You have to help us maintain our current budget because if you don't the people that will be hurt are minorities,'" Rios said.

Rios said he has continually received complaints from minority students and professors complaining about harsh treatment at ASU.

ASU administrators have identified the University's imposing size and a lack of minority role models — professors and high-level administrators — as reasons for low minority enrollment.

But Rios said he had learned that Hispanic professors who have applied for posts at ASU have never heard back from the University.

Resignation in Arizona's interest

Gov. Evan Mecham, who faces the wrath of Arizona voters in an impending recall election, the blind justice of a state court that will consider criminal charges filed against him and a legislature moving inexorably toward impeachment, ought to resign his office immediately.

It is simply a matter of what is best for Arizona. It seems we have a choice between the expense of a recall election, the distractions of impeachment, the disgrace of convicting a chief executive of felonies, or the relatively graceful departure of the governor on a voluntary basis — leaving the state free to get back to business as quickly as possible.

Arizona faces many problems: deadly air pollution, a drug epidemic, groundwater contamination and a funds-starved educational system — that must be dealt with now if we are to regain our status as a progressive state moving into the 21st century. If Mecham truly cares for Arizona, he would abandon the circus that has become his governorship and allow legislators, members of the media and the public to concentrate on improving the state.

But despite the pressing need for statesmanship on his part, we predict that Mecham will not resign, for a couple of reasons.

First, for Mecham to resign would be an admission that his current problems are mostly his own doing — not the work of what the governor calls a cabal of homosexuals and dissident Democrats.

But more than that, Mecham's resignation would spoil the drama — the Walter Mitty fantasy world in which our governor resides. It is the world of Cleon Skousen and the John Birch Society, a world in which the United States is a Christian nation with a divinely inspired Constitution. It is a world where Jews, blacks and other minorities are disdained — having not been present at the Epiphany in Philadelphia.

No, the only way Mecham can leave office is as a martyr for the extreme "kook" right — the "good people." He will be their martyr, and he will bask in their adulation. He will do quite well for himself on the John Birch Society lecture circuit, telling the story of his courageous fight against the liberals and homosexuals. He will be the most prominent, far-right spokesman in this country since George Wallace stood in a schoolhouse doorway.

But at least he has taught the state of Arizona the danger posed by far-right zealots working within the political system. Or of extremists of any stripe, for that matter.

And our motto will be: NEVER AGAIN!

Celebration

A law school memorial fit for a King

Darrin Hostetler
Opinion Editor

Arizona may be taking it on the chin from the national press corps, but rest assured that there are genuine "good people" in this state — and in significant numbers, too.

In spite of the image portrayed on network television and in eastern newspapers of Arizona as a bigoted, racist "good ol' boy" backwater — an image created primarily by the antics of Evan Mecham and his men — the majority of the citizens in this state are fair-minded, decent human beings. And Monday, on the occasion that marked a national holiday in the memory of Martin Luther King, Jr. in more than 40 states, a few students and local residents turned out at the ASU College of Law's Great Hall to hold their own celebration — and to give a demonstration of what this state and its inhabitants are really like.

The King celebration, hosted by the college and several student law societies, featured a slide presentation entitled "Dr. King and the Civil Rights Movement," comments by the Rev. Warren H. Stewart about King's life and the so-far futile effort to enact a holiday bearing his name in Arizona, and a soaring vocal performance by the First Institutional Baptist Church Choir. An event similar to many other King memorials being held nationwide Monday.

But in a state facing the prospect of being labeled "the new Mississippi," to borrow the words of Rev. Stewart, it is especially heartening to see an amalgamation of races, ideologies and interests such as were present in the Great Hall yesterday.

Arizonans want a King Holiday, not to memorialize the man himself, but for the purpose of setting aside a day each year to remember the past and to rededicate themselves to the cause of equality that King lived and died for.

Much has come to pass in the 30 years that have gone by since the beginning of the King era and the civil rights explosion — we no longer have segregated schools, bathrooms, restaurants or the phenomenon known as "the back of the bus." But there is much to be done before we can obtain the national goal, as is expressed in the Pledge of Allegiance, of "liberty and justice for all." We have work to do, and it is proper that we reserve a day to remember not only the sacrifices and successes of the past, but to plan for the future.

Those present in the Great Hall yesterday — black, white and brown, conservative and liberal, Republican, Democrat, Libertarian and Socialist — know this. And as they joined hands and sang together it was apparent that, as King said, his dream was and is deeply rooted in the American Dream.

"But there is much to be done before we can obtain the national goal, as is expressed in the Pledge of Allegiance, of 'liberty and justice for all.'"

Hats off to law students Len Munsil, Joe Rogers, Law College Dean Paul Bender and all the groups that sponsored the event for showing that ASU can join together people with striking political differences from all walks of life for one common cause. Perhaps we can begin to change our state while working from the cradle of the University.

And I would submit that if it is true that King challenged Americans to live up to the words of equality and liberty expressed in the Constitution, as was proclaimed at the celebration, then ASU should challenge Arizona to live up to its promise and duty by demanding a Martin Luther King, Jr. Holiday.

Baha'i plight

Editor:

The names of 12 Baha'is known to be in imminent danger of death in Iranian prisons were made public last month by a spokesman for the American Baha'i community, who urged the United Nations and other organizations to join in appeals to save the lives of innocent Baha'is jailed on religious charges in Iran:

"Twelve Baha'is, among the more than 200 now in Iranian jails, have been tortured and are threatened with execution, although they have not been formally tried," said Los Angeles' Judge James F. Nelson, chairman of the 100,000 members of the U.S. Baha'i religious organization.

A report issued this week by the United Nations Special Rapporteur for Iran cites actions against Baha'is among Iran's violation of human rights. "It is essential for the U.N. General Assembly... to adopt a strong resolution condemning Iran's abuses of human rights, with special reference to the Baha'i religious minority," the American Baha'i spokesman said. Similar resolutions were approved by the General Assembly in 1985 and 1986, following action in the U.N. Commission on Human Rights. President Reagan and members of the U.S. Congress have repeatedly spoken out in support of the religious rights of the Iranian Baha'is.

Congress has adapted two resolutions and is now considering legislation by Sen. Paul Simon (D., ILL) which urges the president to take all necessary steps to focus international attention on the plight of the Baha'i community.

There are more than 300,000 Baha'is in Iran, making it by far the largest religious minority in that country. The Baha'i faith originated in Iran (Persia) in the mid-19th century and has spread worldwide, with more than 4 million adherents.

We hope that publication of the names of the twelve will help save their lives. They are: Mr. Ehsanullah Ayadi, Mr. Farajullah Saadati, Mr. Sohrab Dostdar, Mr. Ramezan-Ali Amui, Mr. Behnam Pashai, Mr. Muhammad Dehqani, Mr. Ezzatullah Khorram, Mr. Mehram Tashakkor, Mr. Farid Zkiri, Mr. Vahid Qodrat, Mr. Shahroukh Hoveydaei and Mrs. Parvin Fanaiyan-Edilkhani.

We're on a crusade

Editor:

Certain Phoenix newspapers (whose names I will not mention) think they have a holy crusade to save Arizona from Governor Mecham.

Whether or not we vote for him this spring or in 1990, we as voters must be aware of the issues:

1. Gov. Mecham's wife once appeared in public with a run in her stocking. (For the benefit of those who just came in, seriously, this was a major issue here for about a week.)

2. Gov. Mecham tried to appoint a man who, 30 years ago, as a police officer, killed a suspected felon.

3. Gov. Mecham appointed a man who, several years ago (drunk), shot a jackass.

4. But now they really have the goods on the governor: He failed to put down a loan on a campaign disclosure statement.

In my opinion, the fact that the Phoenix papers are trying to hang Evan Mecham with these minor things proves more about the papers than about the governor.

Twins: Bush and Dole have both protected the president

David Broder
Washington Post Group

WASHINGTON — There is a legitimate and important issue behind the challenge to George Bush to disclose his advice to president Reagan on the Iran arms sale decision. But it is a dangerous issue for Bob Dole to raise, because he may be equally vulnerable to the underlying question.

The real issue for both men is whether they have the courage of their own convictions. It is an issue for them as the Republican presidential nomination battle approaches its first tests next month, because Ronald Reagan has established a model, at least in the minds of Republican voters, as a president who acts on the basis of his beliefs. Arms-to-the-Ayatollah notwithstanding, Reagan is seen by most Republicans (and even a few Democrats) as a man who has stood up for what he believes.

In the contest for Reagan's inheritance, it is the trailing candidates who most clearly display that attractive and important Reagan trait. Pete du Pont and Jack Kemp, though far back in the polls, better reflect Reagan's readiness to adapt "radical" policy alternatives and sell them to an initially skeptical public. Along with Al Haig, they have not hesitated to say plainly where they disagree with existing policies — even when it has put them at odds with Reagan. And Pat Robertson has displayed far more than Bush or Dole his mastery of Reagan's patented technique for turning away angry criticism with soft answers and ready smiles — without trimming on policy.

These four men have been unable to exploit their "conviction politics" so far, because of other doubts about their leadership capacity. Their credentials as a former governor of Delaware, a member of the House, Richard Nixon's last chief of staff and a former television preacher do not get them over the threshold of presidential credibility in their first try for the office.

Bush and Dole have passed that threshold, once for the presidential nomination. But he has risen to higher and higher appointed posts by pleasing, flattering and serving men in power.

Such a career breeds caution, and Bush, from all the available evidence, was notably reticent when the crucial decisions were being made on arms sales to Iran. At first he Bush has not put that suspicion to rest. But he has been clever by demonstrating an almost aggressive readiness to challenge his critics on the issue. In every one of the debates so far, he has swung hard at the rivals or the journalists who pressed him on the question. He and his advisors have grasped the point that it's hard to prove a guy lacks backbone when he's telling you to put up your dukes.

Dole, on the other hand, has yet to demonstrate a clear instinct on how to handle his "conviction politics" problem. It, too, is rooted in his career. For 27 years he has been in Congress, for all but six years in the minority. He has mastered the art of the half-loaf, of trading advantageously with those who hold high cards, for whatever he could extract in policy or political terms. It's a necessary role for a congressional leader, but it rarely allows him to display his principles.

On many of the vital issues of the last seven years, Dole plainly has "risen above principle" to accommodate Reagan — the very sin of which he accuses Bush. As chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, he passed the deep tax cuts Reagan wanted in 1981 — against his better judgment — and has spent the past six years trying to repair the resulting drain of federal revenues.

In last week's Des Moines Register debate, Dole himself offered another example of his trimming. Asked about his 1986 vote to sustain Reagan's veto of the sanctions against South Africa — a veto the Republican-controlled Senate overrode in protest of the apartheid policy — Dole said: "If I were president I might have a little different view, but as Republican leader, I saw no need to pass it on and embarrass the President."

If the leadership issue between Bush and Dole is a matter of who stands up to the President on a matter of principle in foreign policy, Republican voters may have a hard time making up their minds.

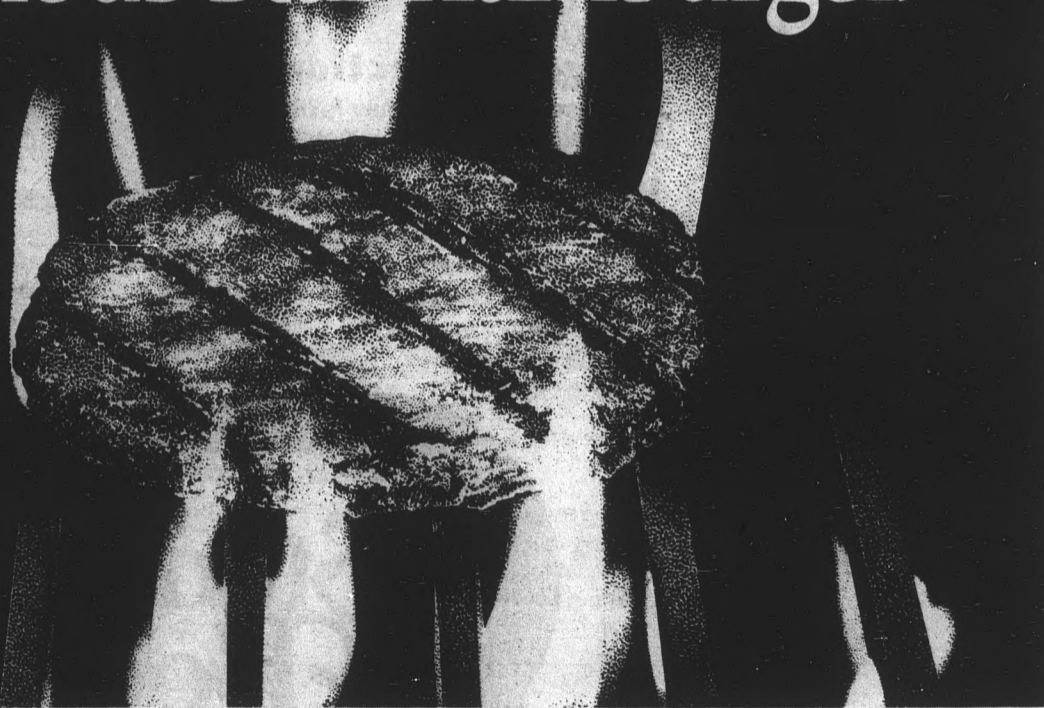

in part because they ran for president once before and because they already hold responsible positions as vice president and Senate Republican leader. Each is now attempting to win by suggesting that the other lacks the vital ingredient of leadership embodied in the notion of principle and conviction.

Those doubts are inherent in Bush's career. It raises questions about his ability to stand up for himself and his beliefs in critical situations. Bush has been notably unsuccessful in gaining the elective offices he sought, failing twice for the Senate and pleaded ignorance, but the unfolding record shows he was present — and apparently largely silent — at meetings where Secretary of State George Shultz and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger expressed their strong opposition to the president's policy.

It looks like a clear-cut case of Bush's deference undercutting the critical judgment he might have applied as a former CIA director and as the administration's designated specialist on anti-terrorism policy.

Improv club opens in Tempe's Cornerstone mall

By J. MICHAEL HOEHN
State Press

As early as this spring, Tempe will play host to some of the biggest names in comedy at the new Improv Club to be located in the Cornerstone Shopping Center.

At their December 10 meeting, the Tempe City Council approved the Final Plan of Development for the Improv Comedy Club. Tempe will be only the eighth city in the nation to house one of the clubs which has launched the careers of such comedians as Jay Leno and David Letterman.

According to Mark Anderson, chief executive officer of MWA Arizona, Inc., which owns the Tempe club, construction will begin in about two months and should be finished by spring.

Anderson said he is waiting for the transfer of a state liquor license before he can begin construction.

The Club will be a dinner theater which will feature comedians trying to establish themselves or well-known comedians who wish to try out new material.

"It will be one show a night, except Friday and Saturday which will be two shows," said Sean Saunders, the future manager of the Tempe Improv. "Dinner will be included in the price of the ticket with some seats."

Anderson said the Tempe club will be the largest of the Improvs, seating 300 people. He said a balcony area in the club will allow seating to be expanded to 400 people for bigger acts.

"The balcony will give us the extra seating for the likes of a Jay Leno, a Robin Williams, or a Jonathan Winters," Anderson said.

Anderson said the Tempe Improv will be the "most popular and most beautiful," of the Improv clubs.

Anderson said the size of the Tempe locale and the height of its ceiling will allow the filming of cable and television specials.

Anderson said most of the filming takes place now at the Improv Club in Irvine, owns the Cornerstone Shopping Center, said the construction of the Improv will make Tempe "the premier entertainment center of the entire Phoenix area."

Saunders said he is really excited about the club.

Robin Williams is one of many famous comedians to launch his career in one of the Improv Comedy Clubs. Tempe's Improv will be opening at the Cornerstone Shopping Center this spring.

California, but that locale is really too small.

"(The Tempe club) is designed for television and filming capacity," he said.

"The club will have a larger capacity and a larger showroom. The room will have higher ceilings to allow filming and taping to take place."

Dan Ross, of Birtcher Properties which

"In all the towns its in, the Improv has put all other comedy clubs out of business because of the caliber of its talent," Saunders said.

One of the concerns the Tempe City Council had about the Improv Club being located in the Cornerstone was the congested parking situation that might result. Currently, lot capacity is 769 cars.

Estimates say that the Improve might require 172 of those spaces on a given night.

Ross said to help alleviate the expected congestion the Cornerstone will lease the parking lot north of the mall from ASU.

Ross said the mall will use the ASU lot except during special events.

"We plan to implement a variety of management systems to change the image of the parking lot," Ross said.

"We feel a parking problem is an empty parking lot versus a full parking lot," he said. "We would like very much for people to take that approach."

Ross said Birtcher Properties views a congested parking lot as a "successful problem."

Anderson said he is not worried about the parking situation.

"Parking problems are more managerial problems than anything," Anderson said. "I'm a comedy man, not a parking lot expert."

Anderson explained the Improv clubs usually attract couples instead of singles and this will cut down on the amount of cars using the lot.

"We expect couples will be coming together, probably two to three in a car," he said.

Ross said there are other measures he is considering to reduce congestion, including a valet service to be provided by Studebaker's Night Club and a security service to help direct traffic and prevent loitering.

However, Ross said the parking lot will still be conducted on a "first-come, first serve" basis.

Firing of 'Greek' by CBS undeserved, Cosby says

NEW YORK (AP) — Entertainer Bill Cosby says sports analyst Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder didn't deserve to be fired by CBS for saying blacks make better athletes because of selective breeding before the Civil War.

Cosby, in a telephone call to The Associated Press early Sunday, said he "didn't want people to hang the man. It's not that I think he's a wonderful guy — we don't hang out together — but these hangings that are going on don't make us better human beings. On the eve of celebrating Martin Luther King Day, we should be more forgiving." CBS dismissed Snyder on Saturday, a day after he said blacks were bred during the days of slavery to be better athletes.

"He said he was truly sorry, and if someone explains to him how what he said was wrong, he shouldn't lose his job over it," said Cosby.

Hohokam village found near stadium south end

By VICTOR BARAJAS
State Press

ASU archaeologists said they discovered and have begun excavation on a Hohokam village that is partly situated in the south end of Sun Devil Stadium, an area currently under construction.

ASU officials contacted archaeologists Saturday after a groundsperson discovered artifacts in gravel that was dug-up and being towed. Construction officials had been digging a trench to locate the source of a water leak.

"There definitely is a Hohokam village," said Glen Rice, project director for the excavation and ASU associate professor of anthropology.

He added that the area is part of a much larger village that extends around Tempe Butte. Artifacts include pieces of pottery, broken shell jewelry, broken stone tools, floors of houses and early pottery estimated at existing between 700 A.D. and 1450 A.D. Chunks of charcoal were found that implies a roasting oven nearby.

Tom Collins, ASU assistant athletic director, said arrangements have been made for archaeologist and construction officials to work together without too much inconvenience.

"As soon as we find out how big this area is, we'll fence it off and let them do what they have to do," Collins said. "We're sensitive to their needs. We want to help them as much as we can."

The six-story, 100,000 square-foot expansion project is already faced with a tight schedule, but construction officials said there will be no delays.

"It's more of an inconvenience to us than anything else," said Ray Nitti, vice president for Joe E. Woods Inc. in Mesa, which is contracting the project. "We don't anticipate any problems."

Rice said the actual building will not cover any artifacts, since that particular ground is mostly bedrock. He anticipates the excavation to last about one week, barring any more rainy days.

"We know where the site is; we were able to define it fairly tightly," Rice said.

Brenda Shears, ASU program coordinator of anthropology, said the information from the artifacts will help recreate history.

"It has an impact on the cultural resources of the state, and therefore it is necessary to access that . . . to make sure there is no damage to it, so we can scientifically get the information that exists as a result of uncovering the Hohokam site," Shears said.

Collins said he was not surprised by the findings because it wasn't the first time artifacts were found during a construction project.

"It wasn't a total shock to us," Collins said. "We were somewhat prepared . . . we discussed this possibility to some length a long time ago."

ASU not yet reimbursed for rental of stadium during papal visit

By KELLY PEARCE
State Press

Pope John Paul II may have left the Valley in his popemobile close to four months ago, but the Catholic Diocese of Phoenix still has not completely reimbursed ASU for the rental of Sun Devil Stadium.

The Catholic Diocese owes the University $183,998.43 for the papal Mass held in Sun Devil Stadium on Sept. 14. The diocese gave the University a $15,000 deposit in August when the contract was signed for the stadium.

The Monsignor John McMahon, head of St. Theresa's parish, said the bill will be paid by the end of the fiscal year. "The whole thing will be cleared up in a couple of weeks," he said.

McMahon said the total Phoenix papal visit cost the diocese $1.5 million and the ASU bill stood out because of its complexity and the numerous people involved.

Bill Shover, chairman of the papal finance committee and director of community and corporate services for Phoenix Newspapers, Inc., said he was not aware of the bill until last week. "I didn't think we would go into debt."

On the other hand, Charles Bethea, ASU assistant director of open public events, said the University anticipated the debt.

He said ASU knew from the start the Phoenix Diocese would owe $37,000 for the stadium rental and $150,000 for direct costs.

McMahon and Bethea said the deal to bring the St. Louis Cardinals to Phoenix delayed the papal bill.

"The people who are reviewing the bill at ASU are the same people who (were) trying to bring the Cardinals to the Valley," McMahon said. "They (couldn't) devote too much time to the diocese bill."

But Bethea said, "The diocese hopes to take care of this as soon as possible."

Shover said a meeting between Jim O'Connell, ASU executive director of public events, and diocese officials will take place next week.

Diocese officials said there is less than $10,000 in the papal visit bank account.

In an effort to raise money, the diocese is selling souvenir videocassettes and books outlining the papal visit to the Valley.

If the diocese raises $75,000 from the souvenirs, they will still fall short by more than $100,000.

The agreement between the diocese and ASU stated that the University would be reimbursed for expenses and a rental fee of 50 cents per ticket distributed, O'Connell said.

ASU's rental policy is 50 cents per ticket if the tickets are less than $7 and $1.50 for each ticket sold at $7 or more. The diocese distributed tickets to the Mass free of charge.

The 72,635 tickets distributed by the diocese made up $36,317.50 of the total bill.

The remaining $162,680.93 accounts for security technicians, stagehands, ticket takers, ushers, field preparation, use of ASU vehicles, catering, paramedics, chair rentals and related expenses.

Rundle's Market to relocate; owner emotionally distraught

By J. MICHAEL HOEHN
State Press

As part of Tempe's University Plaza redevelopment project, the building that houses Rundle's Liquor and Market is to be demolished, despite owner John Russell's complaint that the city condemned the building as a "way of gaining property over a large area."

The building, which Rundle's has occupied since the 1950s, was to have been vacated by Jan. 15.

But according to Russell, the City of Tempe is not yet ready to demolish the building and has given him until Feb. 15 to move out.

He said it is going to be difficult for him emotionally to leave his present location and said there was no way to forestall the building's demolition.

"The city has condemned it and has owned it for over a year," Russell said.

David Fackler, Tempe's deputy director of community development, said the city gave Russell the extension to assist him in his relocation efforts.

"We realize his liquor license is still in the process of being transferred," Fackler said.

Fackler said the city is ready to destroy the building as soon as Rundle's and another tenant, Restaurant Mexico, vacate. Fackler said both businesses have until Feb. 15 to find new locations.

Russell, who has owned the liquor market since 1969, said he has found another location but is not happy about the move or the deal he has received from the city.

Russell said the city is giving him $10,000 in moving expenses, but he said it is not enough.

"Of course I don't feel this is enough, not for a smaller building," Russell said.

Russell said Rundle's new location will be at 1324 W. University Dr. and the new building is "about a quarter smaller" than his present location.

Russell expects the move to cut his revenues by "20 to 25 percent" since he will lose a lot of the trade he received from ASU. He estimated more than 60 percent of his business comes from ASU.

Destructive storm causes power loss in parts of Arizona

PHOENIX (AP) — The worst winter storm of the season dumped up to 20 inches of new snow on parts of the state by late Monday, said National Weather Service officials.

"It's the strongest storm so far this winter," said Larry Riggs of the National Weather Service Flagstaff office.

As many as 15 thousand customers had been without electricity for varying periods, according to utility company officials.

The snow closed U.S. 89A over Mingus Mountain, between Prescott and Jerome. Chains and snow tires were being required for travel in some areas of northern Arizona in the Payson and McNary areas, and recommended for travel in other parts of the state.

Maricopa County Sheriff's deputies Monday morning located seven people who were reported missing late Sunday and were feared drowned at Bartlett Reservoir. The party, consisting of four adults and three children, told deputies they had trouble with their boat's engine, but had a boat cover and a heater, and simply spent the night on the boat.

If the governor declines, Mofford will call a special election, which must be held within 120 days. Mofford has indicated an election would be held in mid-May.

County Recorder Keith Poletis said his office had finished verifying the signatures last Wednesday and spent the remaining time double-checking petition lists.

A total of 253,905 signatures were gathered in Maricopa County by recall leaders. Poletis said 23.4 percent, or 59,479 signatures were ruled invalid.

"It is my hope that this certification is not another step toward division and strife, but toward final resolution of these most difficult times facing our state," Poletis said.

Recall founder Ed Buck said the validity rate of the signatures, which Poletis said beat most campaigns by an average of five to 10 percent, is "phenomenal" because "it shows the strength of the (recall) movement."

The county spent $80,000 verifying the signatures, Poletis said, adding that no "fraud or abuse" was discovered among the nearly 44,000 pages of documents.

The announcement virtually guarantees a recall election and Mechem has no plans to challenge the signatures, according to the governor's spokesman, Ken Smith.

The governor has come under further fire for his attorney, Miller, who appeared on television Saturday night to refute French's investigation. Legislators called the appearance "entertaining" because of his dramatic gestures that were reminiscent of a trial. Miller was more restrained in Monday night's appearance.

Miller also insisted the governor's protocol fund was an account for private use by the governor, a point he made Saturday. Nearly $92,000 was raised for Mechem's inaugural ball. French's report insists, as does a letter from Maricopa County Attorney Tom Collins, that the fund was public and not for personal use.

French's report says Mechem violated the law when he borrowed $80,000 to use for his Glendale auto dealership. The governor used $20,000 of the money to partially pay off a business debt in Tacoma, Wash.

When Grant asked why the $80,000 was not listed in the Mechem Pontiac check ledger, Miller said, "I can't answer that, Mike... I think that's begging the question."

Miller also insisted the so-called "smoking gun" evidence, in which the notations "show Evan borrowed money" and "don't show borrowed money" were "doodles" and were not applicable. The governor has stated the document would be "laughed out of every court in the country."

The $350,000 loan, which was not listed on Mechem's campaign disclosure forms that contain 849 entries, was lumped together with two other transactions that were listed as $465,000 loan from Evan Mechem.

After the interview on KAET, which is located next to Stauffer Hall on the ASU campus, Miller would not respond to questions about the "don't show Evan borrowed money" notations on the "smoking gun" memo, saying only, "I just try to present the facts as I know them."

Do you see yourself?

Eating disorders show up in many ways, and are not always obvious. This checklist can help determine if an eating disorder is controlling your life, or the life of someone you love.

- Is dieting the most important area of your life?
- Has food become a power struggle between you and your family or friends?
- Are you unable to eat in a normal social setting with other people?
- If you have lost or gained a great deal of weight, do you feel powerful because of it?
- Do you feel depressed about your body image?
- Have you felt isolated from your family and friends?
- Do others try to get you to eat more, even though you think you look "fine"?

If you answered "Yes" to one or more of these questions, call to set up an appointment for an evaluation. 941-8002. If you have questions for us, please call.

We'll help you get control of your eating so you can get control of your life.

King

Former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt created the holiday in 1986 by executive order, but Mecham rescinded that holiday after Attorney General Bob Corbin issued an opinion saying the holiday was created illegally.

Hamilton — interrupted by cheers of "Give the state a holiday, Mecham five to 10," referring to the governor's indictment on felony charges less than two weeks ago — said, "No matter what anybody says, there is not enough water here to dampen our spirits. There will never be enough rain in Arizona to quench the fire that burns in us as we strive for freedom and justice in this state."

Goddard, whose employees have the day off, urged all other cities and towns to declare a holiday.

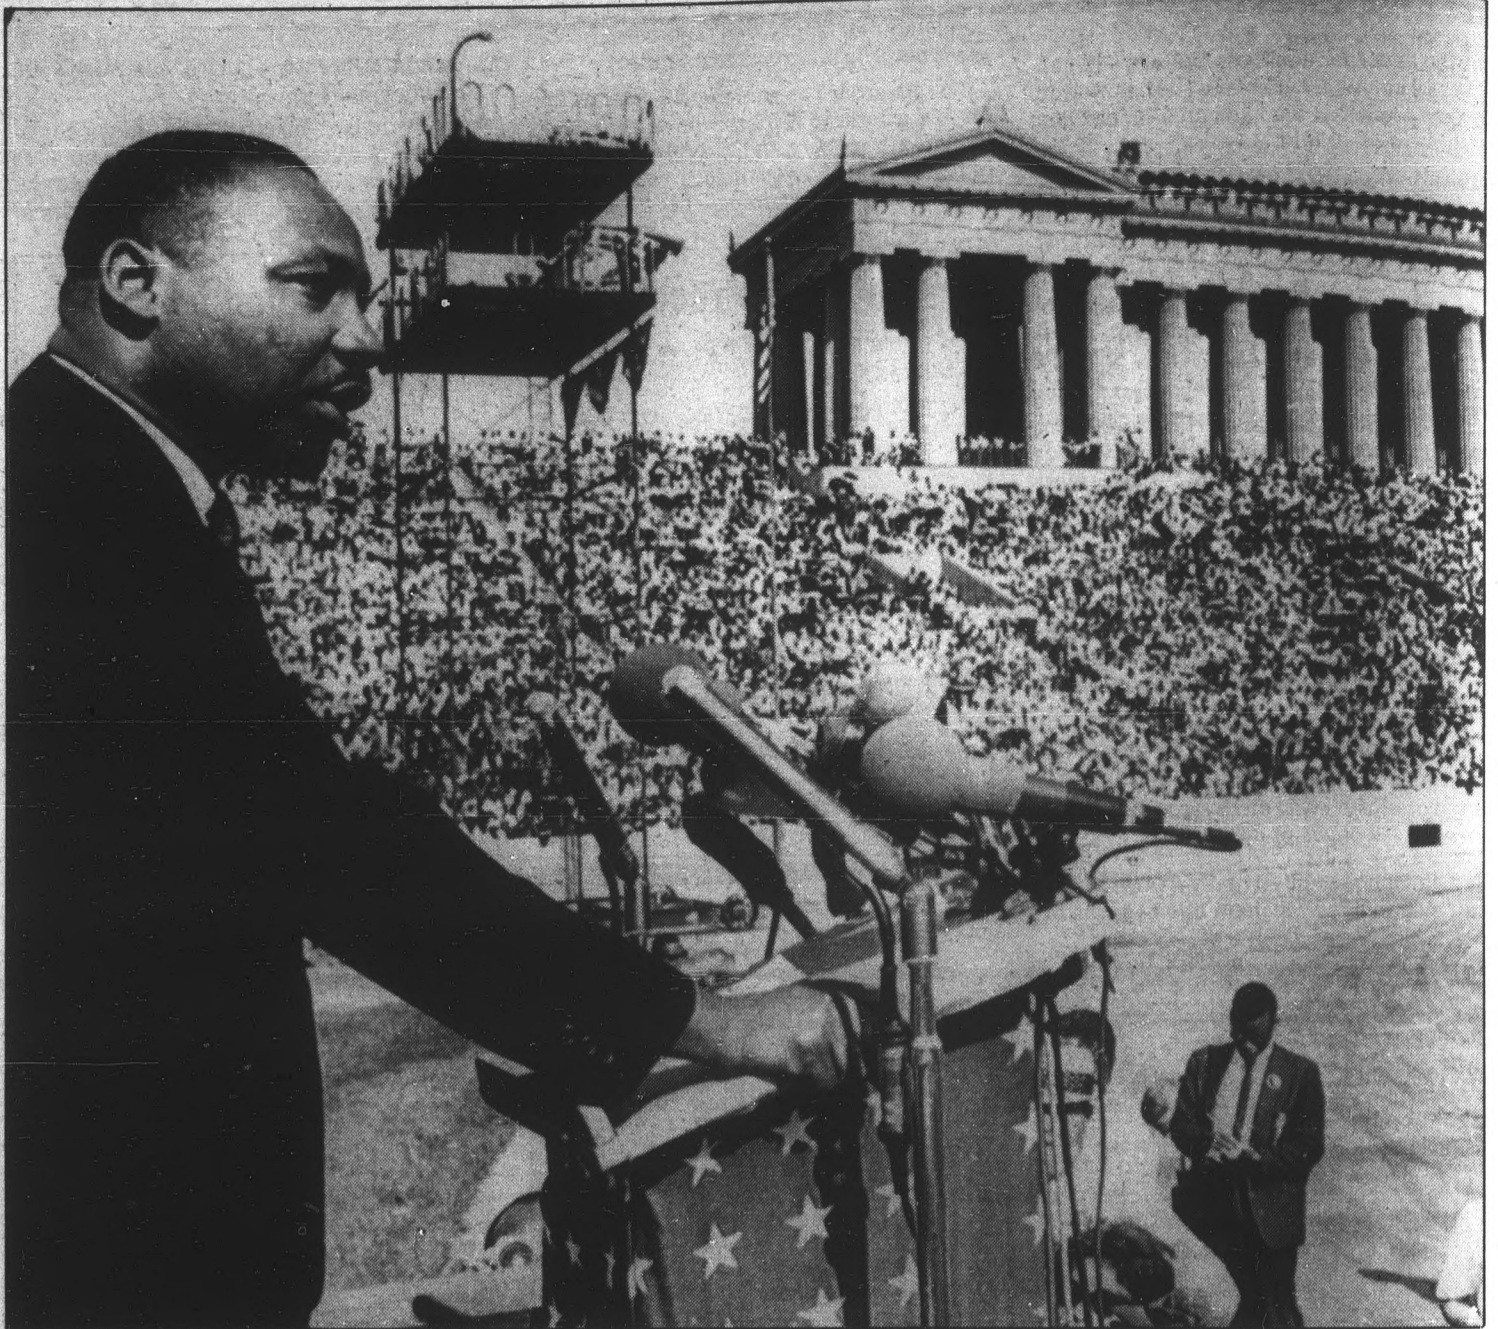

"This state has done so much and made so much progress," Goddard said. "We've got to stop having the rest of the country only thinking of us as the site of a three ring circus."

Tommy Espinoza, former director of Chicanos por la Causa, a Hispanic activist group, said, "They (holiday critics) don't seem to understand that Dr. King was not just a black leader.

"There is a disease that Dr. King has stood against for the last 20, 30 years, and that disease is racism. This is a spiritual disease that is starting to cause some of the major problems in the state of Arizona."

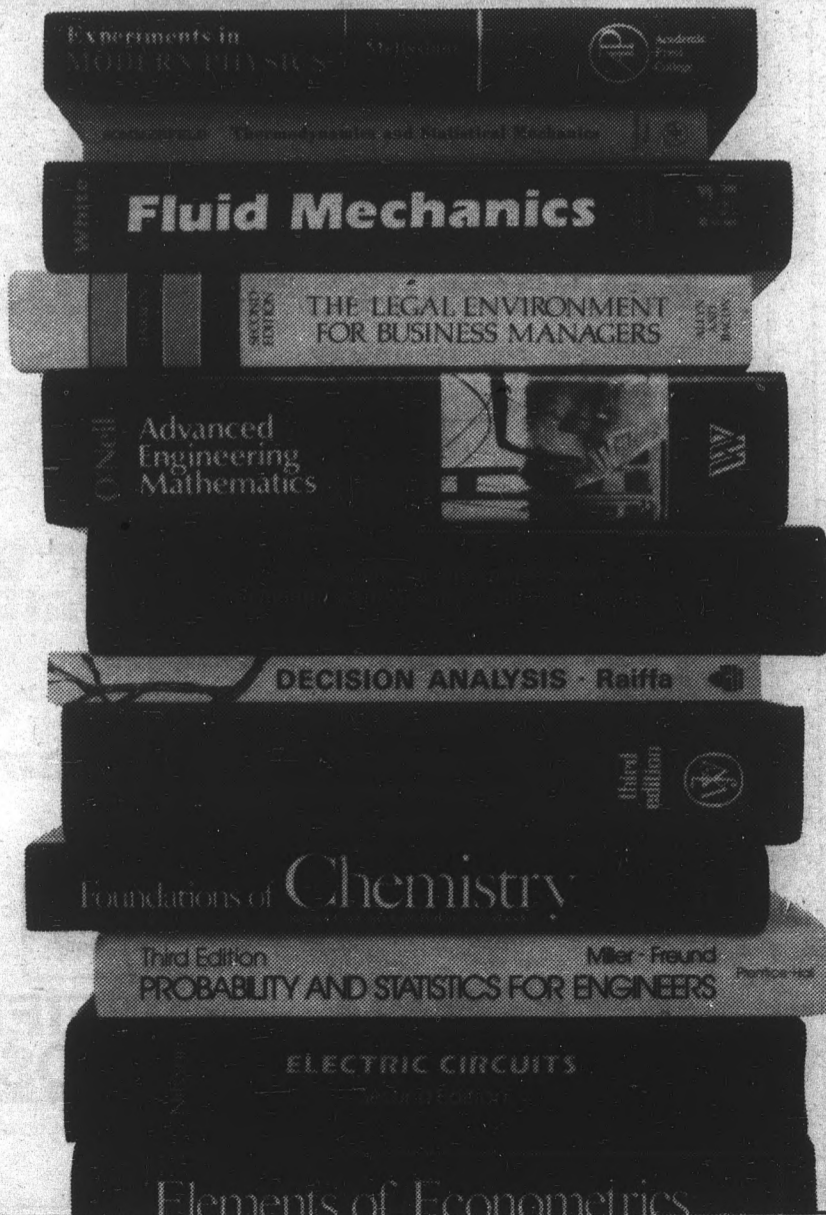

Stewart, reacting to Mecham's Friday apology for some of the events of the past year, said he accepted the governor's apology, and offered his own apology for any "unjust and unfair statement we have made in response to his actions against the man who's birth we celebrate today."

"We beg to differ with his continued characterization of the former Martin Luther King Jr. state holiday as illegal. For just as he continues to claim that he is innocent of the felony charges against him until proven guilty, the Martin Luther King Jr. state holiday that he tried, convicted and executed was innocent until it could have been proven guilty in a court of law."

Martin Luther King Jr. addresses a civil rights rally in Chicago's Soldier Field on June 21, in 1964.

Good Grief.

Whether you're into business, science or engineering, a TI calculator can make your courses easier to take.

Every year, thousands of hapless students watch their course load become an overload. And every year, the smart ones among them pick up a TI calculator and take a load off.

TI calculators have all the right functions you need. We offer everything from advanced scientifics that clock your performance to programmables that speak your language to a solar-powered calculator that highlights your answers, even in lowlight conditions.

And the large, color-coded keys and simple keyboard layouts make TI calculators easier to use than any other. Maybe that's why more students rely on TI calculators than any other brand.

King honored by ethnically diverse ASU crowd

By VICTOR BARAJAS
State Press

Almost 20 years after his death and almost one year after ASU rejected a holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr., the slain civil rights leader was the center of attention Monday afternoon in Armstrong Hall.

About 150 people from various ethnic backgrounds gathered in Great Hall to pay tribute to King, who was shot in 1968. Only four schools in the Pac-10 were closed for the national holiday.

"We look forward to the day when the whole state of Arizona, especially our university systems, are given the responsibility of training our young people to join with the rest of the nation in celebrating the holiday," said Rev. Warren Stewart, chairman of the state committee urging a paid state holiday which would include closing the state's universities.

'It's appropriate that we have this in the law school. . . . Dr. King had a diametrically opposite interaction with the law.'

— Paul Bender

"I would have hoped that one of the largest universities in the world (ASU) would have stopped to at least celebrate the light and legacy of one of the most significant people that this country has seen."

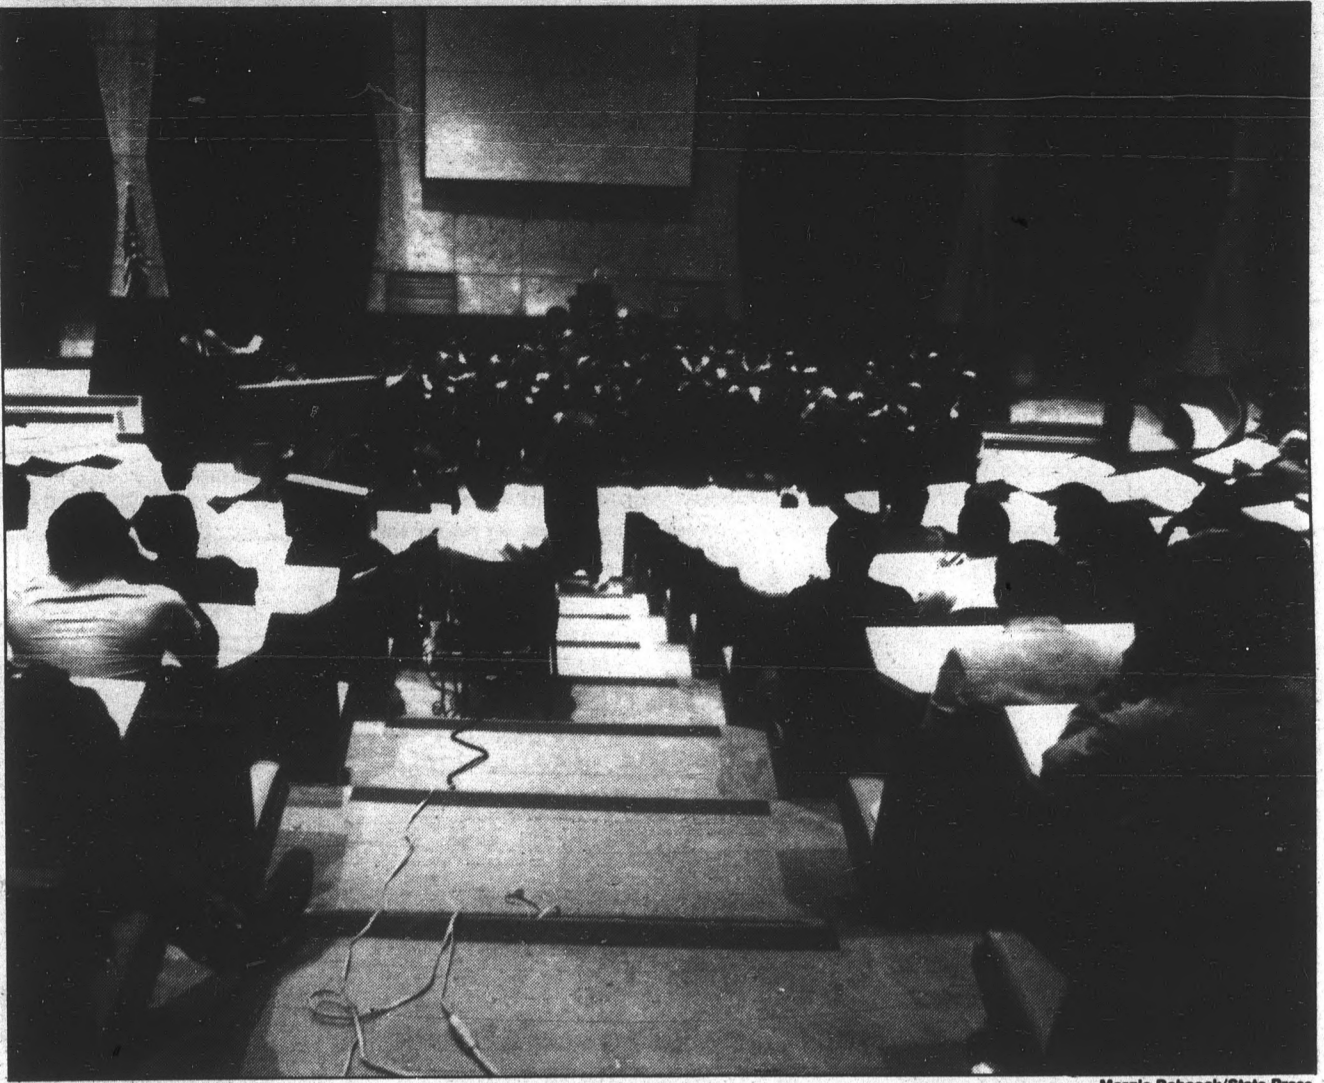

Paul Bender, dean of ASU College of Law, pointed out the many diverse groups with "every possible political viewpoint" that helped put the program together. Seven law groups and the College of Law planned the event.

"It's appropriate that we have this in the law school. . . . Dr. King had a diametrically opposite interaction with the law," Bender said. "As a result of Dr. King, we have seen a dramatic change in the law."

Included in the two-hour program were a slide presentation, selections by the First Institutional Baptist Church Choir and a candlelight tribute. Toward the end of the program, the audience stood and held hands while singing We Shall Overcome.

Len Munsil, president of the ASU Federalist Society, said it is important to "rejoice and celebrate the great strides this country has made towards ending racial bigotry."

He added that the law organizations put their political viewpoints aside and "united today to celebrate the life and the word of Dr. King."

Stewart quoted the U.S. Constitution repeatedly to prove King was obeying and enforcing the law. "Martin Luther King Jr. is America," he said repeatedly to a standing ovation.

"Tell me, if you can, what other American in the 20th century has served as a catalyst to such positive progressive revolutionary changes which led America to become a more perfect union through the law," Stewart said.

Joe Rogers, a second-year law student and chairman of the event, gave a dramatic, imitative version of King's "I Have A Dream" speech in Washington D.C.

Tempe man smashed in head with brick during party

By MIKE BURGESS
State Press

A Tempe man was smashed in the head with a brick during a party at his home Sunday, police said. Two men were arrested in the incident and charged with aggravated assault.

John Husted, 20, of the 1100 block of East Orange Street suffered a deep cut and was taken to Tempe St. Luke's Hospital where he was treated and released.

Anthony S. Hall, 19, 4407 E. Maldonado, and Ontario R. Williams, 19, 4326 E. Vineyard, both of Phoenix, were arrested, police said.

Police said an altercation began at Husted's apartment after he refused to let Hall and Williams into the party. Williams allegedly pulled out a butterfly knife and waved it at Husted.

police report

The two men fled the party on foot after Husted was smashed in the head with the brick. They were arrested in a parking lot in the 1000 block of South Stanley Drive, police said.

In other incidents:
•A 30-year-old Tempe man was arrested and charged with assaulting a Tempe police officer, police said.

Shane A. Lowell, 30, of 1800 block of East Apache Blvd., was arrested after he allegedly assaulted officer Mike Powell, who responded to a criminal damage report at Marty's Aardvark Saloon, 1825 E. Apache Blvd., police said.

Lowell was also charged with resisting arrest and possession of marijuana.

Powell suffered minor cuts to his hands when he was allegedly shoved by a suspect who fled after being confronted by Powell.

•Two Tempe youths were found hiding at a shopping center after police spent eight hours searching for them.

Jeremy Brower, 10, and Karley Brower, 7, both of the 1400 block of South College Avenue, were reported missing after they disappeared from a vacant lot behind their house where they had been playing.

•A 19-year-old Tempe man was arrested and charged with auto theft and possession of stolen property, police said.

Brian Fleming, of the 300 block of South Westfall Drive, was booked into Tempe City Jail.

•An unknown person stole $750 in cash and jewelry from an unlocked desk in a room at Palo Verde Main Residence Hall Sunday, police said.

Police said the suspect made off with $200 in cash and several gold necklaces. There are no suspects or leads.

•An $85 blue 10-speed bike was stolen from the west side of the Physical Science Building F-Wing, police said.

Police said the theft occurred between Friday at 6 p.m. and Sunday afternoon.

•An unknown person broke into a room at McClintock Residence Hall and stole $47 in jewelry, police said.

•A purse was stolen from a room in Manzanita Residence Hall, police said.

Police said the white purse, which contained cash, traveler's checks and a Minnesota drivers license, was stolen between 10:30 p.m. Friday and 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

ASU opens new student services building

By VICTOR BARAJAS
State Press

Despite some "bugs" that need repair, the new $9.5 million Student Services Building, designed to centralize student assistance, is open for its initial semester at ASU.

The three-story, 107,000 gross square-foot building, located east of Gammage Auditorium and west of the Academic Services Building, has been recently plagued by electrical and computer hookup problems.

But construction officials, who describe the building as "substantially completed," said the problems are minor, and that the project will be completed in early February as planned.

"Just like any other job . . . there's work that isn't done the way it should be," said Lionel Diaz, ASU planning and construction administrator.

"There are always problems," according to James O'Connell, executive director of ASU public events. "This is a big, brand new building. There are always wires where they're not supposed to be, or equipment that doesn't work. I wouldn't say there are any significant problems."

Jim Knothe, ASU associate director of planning and construction, said only "punchless items" need completion, changing or redoing.

Most of the equipment from the 14 departments was moved into the building during Christmas break, but some departments, such as registration and admissions, decided to wait a few weeks to avoid added confusion to students.

"They decided not to make the move because they would be making it during the opening of the school and that would be a disruption to students," said Paul Barberini, director of Student Financial Assistance, which moved from Matthews Center to the second floor of the new building.

Barberini said there will be a lot of remaining space for students to study. "We're really hoping it works out for the students—that's why we designed the building this way," he said.

Lowell Crary, assistant to the vice-president of student affairs, said the new building is a definite plus to students. "It will centralize everything so people won't be wandering all over campus to find things," he said.

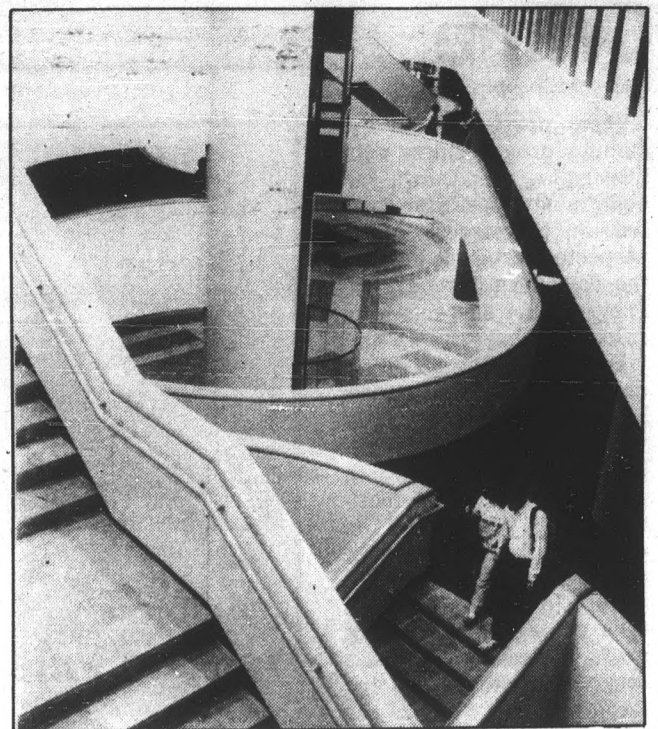

Currently, the building bears temporary magic marker signs to help students become familiar with the building.

"I'm sure it will lessen the long walks students have become accustomed to," said Luis Lujan, a junior liberal arts major. "It's also visually appealing and unique."

•The first floor will consist of undergraduate admissions, registration, residence life, and an amphitheater.

•The second floor includes financial assistance, student life, International Student Program, student cashiering, student accounting, student information systems, educational development, minority recruitment and a study lounge.

•The third floor accommodates career services, counseling and consultation, and the Educational Support Program, which will include classrooms for tutors, a computer lab, and math.

officers put a dent in the campus drug business with "Operation Pop-Quiz", an eight-month operation that led to the arrest of 18 suspected drug dealers in the downtown Tempe area. Eleven of the suspects were ASU students.

During raids on dormitories and apartments near campus, more than $1 million in drugs, cash and cars were seized.

Duncan said the most-frequently committed crimes on campus are bike and backpack thefts.

He said most bike thefts take place on the campus malls, while backpack thefts occur mostly in the MU and libraries.

Computer thefts, which are also on the rise, are costing the University thousands of dollars, Duncan said.

Ingram anchors strong pitching staff in '88

Editor's note: This is the first of a three-part series previewing the ASU baseball team.

By DEAN GYORGY
State Press

Weeks of preparation are about to turn into weeks of execution as the ASU baseball team nears Thursday's season-opener against Cal-Santa Barbara at Packard Stadium.

Being the home team means that some lucky Devil will take the mound and hurl the first pitch to get the season underway. That one throw, whether a ball or strike, may be insignificant in itself. But it will be the first of thousands thrown, and the magnitude of those as a whole cannot be underestimated.

A solid pitching staff is a necessary, integral part of any successful baseball team. It is the propeller to the boat. The axle to the wheel. The mustard to the hot dog.

Last year's moundsmen contributed to the Devils' strong finish and a berth in the College World Series. To return to Omaha, head coach Jim Brock and pitching coach Dub Kilgo must mold and nurture the given talent of this year's pitchers.

The top returner is right-hander Linty Ingram, who won 10 games last year with a 3.78 ERA. He began last season in the bullpen, making his first 18 appearances in relief, but later found a home in the starting rotation.

It was Ingram and Mike Schwabe who formed the dynamic duo that swept Arizona at home at the end of the year and vaulted the Devils into post-season play. During that series the Devils really gave the fans their money's worth.

Two extra-inning victories and one in the bottom of the ninth would rouse the most lukewarm of fans.

Ingram pitched the opening game, going 10 innings and giving up just four hits. Schwabe pitched 12 innings for the win in the second game, and Ingram picked up his second win of the weekend by finishing with three strong innings on Sunday.

Schwabe went on to sign a major league contract with the Detroit Tigers.

Last season it became apparent that Ingram pitched more effectively on little rest.

"As we found out along the way, the only way Linty can get hit hard is if he hasn't pitched in a week," Brock said. "As long as he's pitching every other day he's fine."

Don't look for Ingram to be both the first and third man in the rotation, but he should be the workhorse and pile up a lot of innings.

"We'll run him out there everytime we can," Kilgo said.

Kurt Dempster is a name that will be more familiar by the end of the season. He's a hard-throwing right-hander who sat out all of last year due to major arm surgery. He was hampered with the injury in 1986, when he went 6-6 with a 6.60 ERA.

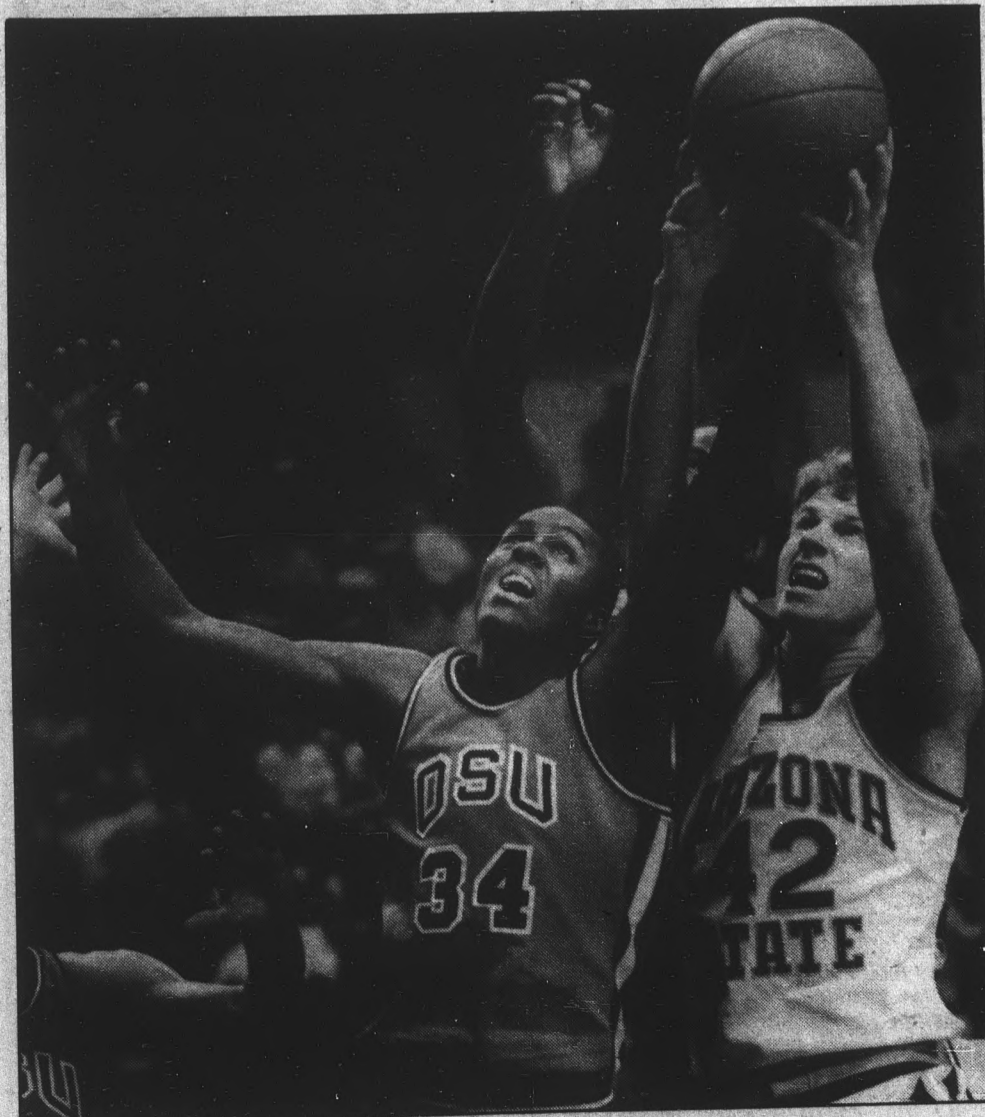

The surgical procedure entailed taking a tendon from the wrist and grafting it onto the injured arm. The rehabilitation process is often long and difficult, as both physical and ASU's Mark Becker battles with Oregon State's Joe Harge during action with the Beavers last season. Becker led the team in scoring Saturday against OSU with 14 points.

Sophomore forward enjoys fulfilling childhood fantasies

By CHRIS DORSEY
State Press

Dreams can become a reality; for sophomore Mark Becker, his dream came true.

As a seventh-grader, the young Becker attended all the ASU home games and his one wish was to play basketball for the Sun Devils.

At that time he wore a McKemy Junior High uniform and would go on to be named Player-of-the-Year in Arizona his senior year at Tempe McClintock High School.

"I can remember coming in seventh grade with Drew Metcalf (Sun Devil linebacker) and thinking someday I would like to play here," Becker said.

Becker has worked his way into the starting lineup and has averaged 26.7 minutes a game. But at the beginning of the season, he was playing a different role. After starting 17 games as a freshman, the 6 foot 9 center was asked to give valuable minutes off the bench.

"I was not frustrated with it," Becker said. "If it was my role to come off the bench I would do it and do my best."

He got off to a rough start and was not playing well, but in 11 weeks Becker has emerged as a young star in the Pac-10 conference. In six games, the Sun Devil has averaged 11.3 points and 5.5 rebounds.

"I did not deserve to be starting at the beginning of the season," Becker said. "But now the coach has awarded me for my improvement by starting me."

ASU coach Steve Patterson said he feels Becker plays a vital part in the team's success.

"Mark Becker is playing well," Patterson said. "He is showing improvement and is maturing game by game. If anyone is emerging as a leader it is Mark, which is unusual for a sophomore."

And Becker is trying to help the team on the floor, with his play and leadership.

"I try to be the leader more and more," Becker said. "I don't do anything that will hurt the team."

The style of play has changed somewhat, according to Becker.

"I am much more assertive," Becker said. "I am going to the basket harder and I am more aggressive offensively. Now I make passes and plays I would not have made before."

On the recent Oregon tour, Becker scored 24 points and pulled in nine rebounds. The sophomore pumped in a team-high 14 points against Oregon State in the losing effort.

"Mark Becker was the solid cog in the machine," Patterson said. "Although I know he was disappointed in his performance. That's what I like about him. He's never satisfied."

But Patterson is not the only person critiquing his play and giving helpful solutions. His father, Art, talks basketball with him every time the two speak.

The elder Becker is a former ASU basketball star and went on to play professional basketball in the ABA.

Becker has two years of eligibility remaining; in that time the chance of securing a shot to follow in his father's footsteps may not be a dream, but a reality.

Women gymnasts hope victory lays solid foundation for season

By GARY JACKSON
State Press

The women's gymnastics team established a strong foundation to build upon for the season when ASU defeated the University of Denver on Sunday in the Activity Center, 182.10-176.30, in the team's season-opener.

If the Sun Devil victory is any indication of the upcoming season, they should have a successful year.

"We wanted to win — that was number one," assistant coach Lisa Zeis said about the goals for the meet.

All-American Suzy Baldock finished first overall (37.50), winning at the vault (9.50) and the balance beam (9.65).

Michele Hanigsberg, who has been unable to compete for a year because of a back injury, returned to the ASU line-up. Hanigsberg will be an asset to the Devils' success, Zeis said.

Seeing the freshmen in action against other colleges was another benefit of the meet.

"This was the first time the freshmen competed for ASU," Zeis said. "Now we know we can count on them in the future."

Michele Colavin competed in all four events, finishing second overall (36.70 total points), and winning the floor exercise with a 9.40 score.

"We had troubles on the bars and lost about two points," Zeis said. "During practice this week, we'll concentrate on the uneven bars, and try to prevent unexcusable misses."

Zeis said that the women usually water down their performances in the beginning, and don't go all-out in the first meet. Instead, they go for a flawless win at an easier skill level and save some of their better moves for later in the season.

"We'll throw in a little more difficulty against the UofA on Friday," Zeis said.

The Devils had four women competing in the floor exercises for the first time, and suffered two misses by the team of five girls.

Marik Lesieur had one, having to drop out of the competition because of a sore knee that she had injured earlier in practice.

"We had a good lead, and coach Spini doesn't like to take chances with the girls," Zeis said. "She'll be fine by UofA."

Even with all the women healthy, the Devils should have some difficulty against the Wildcats in Tucson on Friday. The home-field advantage has always been a factor in the outcome of the rivalry.

Pitching

psychological hurdles must be overcome.

"We've been very pleased with his progress," Brock said. "It's really been handled with a great deal of care and we've brought him back slowly."

"I believe he's throwing harder now than he ever has in his life. The only thing he needs now is some innings. He has the potential to be an extremely high draft pick."

Rounding out the staff will be left-handers Brian Dodd and David Cassidy.

Dodd is not a stranger to ASU. He was with the team last year, but through a clerical error he was declared ineligible to compete. He played at Mesa Community College in 1986, where he struck out 82 in 93.3 innings.

"He didn't get a chance to pitch last year, so he's kind of like Kurt in not being out there much, but he did do very well in the fall and we're pleased with his progress," Brock said.

Cassidy is not an overpowering thrower, but is effective by picking his spots. As Brock puts it, he "knows how to pitch."

Rusty Kilgo (Dub Kilgo's nephew) and Blas Minor appear to be the leading candidates coming out of the bullpen.

Bowl teams seek 2nd chance

WASHINGTON (AP) — If at first you don't succeed... A year ago, the Washington Redskins dominated just about everyone — except the New York Giants, who beat them three times, including 17-0 in the NFC title game.

A year ago, the Denver Broncos won the AFC title with the kind of drive that fell short for the Cleveland Browns Sunday, then got steamrolled by the Giants, 39-20, in the Super Bowl.

With the Giants done in by injuries, the strike and the standard post-Super Bowl blah, Super Bowl XXII in San Diego in two weeks might also be called the Consolation Bowl, an opportunity to make up for past failures.

Conditions had to be just right, and they were.

For one thing, there was no "hot" team this season like the Giants and Bears the past two years. Minnesota, which lost to the Redskins 17-10 in the NFC title game Sunday, took care of that. They dispatched San Francisco a week ago after the 49ers had become everyone's favorite by finishing 13-2 and winning their last three regular-season games by a combined score of 124-7.

The Broncos, who joined the 1982-83 Redskins as the only team in this decade to make it to two straight NFL championships, were immediately installed as 3-point favorites after their 38-33 win over Cleveland.

This is the first time in at least five years that the AFC team was the opening line favorite — the last two years the were double-digit underdogs. Moreover, the NFC team romped the last three times — by 22, 36 and 19 points.

In this case, the game involves two teams who, in a season interrupted by the 24-day strike, may not be as good as they were a year ago when they could not get by the Giants.

"We've been very spotty," the Redskins' Charles Mann said before the victory over Minnesota that sent Washington to San Diego for its third Super Bowl appearance in six years.

"Sometimes we've played well but we seem play in halves rather than in full games."

Mann played well, emerging from Dexter Manley's shadow to have his best season.

"It's seemed like we're always in a hole that we have to climb out of," said Joe Gibbs, whose 1986 team was 14-5 overall, with three of the losses to the Giants.

This year's team is now 13-4.

But three of those victories were by the replacement Redskins and four others required late comebacks.

Moreover, Jay Schroeder, whose 4,109 yards a year ago were the 10th most in history, completed just 48 percent of his passes this season. He has been replaced by Doug Williams, who has been inconsistent himself. He was just 9 of 26 for 119 yards against Minnesota, although two of the nine completions were for touchdowns.

Denver, 13-5 before its Super Bowl loss a year ago, is a largely different team with one common thread — John Elway, a one-man team in at least half the Broncos' 12 victories. The Broncos are 12-4-1 going into the Super Bowl.

Bowl wagers flood in as betting line is set

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Gamblers, impressed with John Elway, put their money on the Broncos Monday and made them even stronger favorites to win the Super Bowl than the oddsmakers did when they opened Denver as a three-point choice over the Washington Redskins.

Most legal sports books had the Broncos a 3½-point favorite by Monday, after bettors jumped on the three-point spread with some large wagers.

"They're betting the hell out of it," said Vic Salerno, owner of Leroy's sports and race book. "The public is making a comparison of quarterbacks and they feel Elway is the better quarterback and can beat them in so many different ways."

Several sports books reported some unusually big bets soon after the first lines were put up following Sunday's games, and oddsmakers were delighted with the pace of betting for the big game.

"This year there was more action than normal," said Scott Schettler, manager of the sports book at the Stardust hotel-casino. "Usually, the bettors just look at the number and ignore it for a week or so."

The heavy early betting had oddsmakers optimistic that this year's Super Bowl will match or exceed last year's game, when an estimated $25 million was wagered legally on the game between the Broncos and New York Giants.
