

House to investigate embezzlement charges

By VICKIE CHACHERE and BEN McCONNELL
State Press

PHOENIX — The House select committee will begin its investigation into embezzlement charges leveled against Gov. Evan Mecham this week when it calls former Mecham Chief of Staff Jim Colter to testify.

Mecham has been accused of illegally withdrawing $80,000 from the governor's protocol fund to help his financially-ailing car dealership make payments on property in Tacoma, Wash.

Committee Chairman Jim Skelly said Sunday that Colter will be among three witnesses called to testify on the governor's handling of the fund.

Colter, who resigned as Mecham's chief of staff last fall, signed over the $80,000 check from the protocol fund to Mecham Pontiac and then granted a 60-day extension on the loan repayment.

Warner Lee, attorney for the Mecham Inaugural Committee and a former assistant attorney general, and deputy Maricopa County Attorney Howard Schwartz also will be called before the committee.

House special counsel William French, in a report released to the House Jan. 15, contends that the protocol fund contained state monies and that loaning funds to a private business controlled by the governor constitutes embezzlement.

Murray Miller, Mecham's attorney, contends the protocol fund is private money and for use at the governor's discretion.

Friday, the committee was told by Lt. Beau Johnson, former head of the governor's Department of Public Safety security detail, that Mecham lied during a KTVK-TV Channel 3 interview when the governor said he knew nothing of death threats made against a former aide.

Johnson, an ASU justice administration graduate student, was transferred from the gubernatorial security staff — a post he had held off and on for nine years — by Mecham after the alleged death threats were reported to state Attorney General Bob Corbin.

The threats were reportedly made by Lee Watkins, former prisons construction chief, against Donna Carlson, Mecham's former legislative liaison, who had been testifying before a state grand jury investigating Mecham's handling of a $350,000 loan from a Tempe developer.

Watkins allegedly relayed the threats through Peggy Griffith, Carlson's friend and director of the governor's Office of Women's Services.

In sworn testimony, Johnson told the 10-member committee that he notified the governor of the threats on Friday, Nov. 13 during a meeting also attended by Mecham Chief of Staff Richard Burke and Fred Craft, Mecham's Washington D.C. representative.

Two days later, during a live interview on Channel 3, when KTVK anchor Cameron Harper asked "Did you know about that threat?" Mecham responded, "No, I didn't."

Johnson, 39, told the committee that once he heard of the alleged threats, he thought it was necessary to inform the governor because of Watkins' past.

Johnson was responsible for running background checks on possible Mecham appointees and learned early last year that Watkins had been convicted of robbery and assault.

"First of all, they (the alleged threats) were a possible felony and I knew Mr. Watkins and was aware of his past background," Johnson told the committee. "I took it very seriously."

"In my mind, I knew the governor knew that it was possible felony conduct on the part of someone in his administration."

Tempe honors slain officer

By MIKE BURGESS

Red, white and blue balloons waved under the backdrop of a bright blue sky Sunday, as a memorial plaza at Tempe's new police-courts complex was dedicated to Lt. John Bradshaw, the city's first police officer slain in the line of duty.

More than a dozen police officers, with their silver badges shining against their black uniforms, and almost 200 others — including the department's bloodhound, Buford — attended the ceremony at the $12 million complex.

"I'm really glad to be able to thank the police department, the city council and the community who have been so supportive," Bradshaw's wife Diane told onlookers before unveiling the slate-blue plaque with Bradshaw's picture drawn in copper.

"I'm grateful of the establishment of this plaza as a place where police officers will be remembered," she said. "It will be a place where his grandchildren can see how he was honored."

Lt. Bradshaw, a 20-year veteran of the force and father of four, was slain Sept. 20 by Martin J. Curran, a 33-year-old Tempe elementary school teacher.

Curran, who took a hostage and commandeered a motorcycle, was killed minutes later by three shotgun blasts fired by highway patrol officers.

A police report on the incident said Curran had suffered "job-related stress" and had been having problems with his girlfriend.

According to the report, Curran had suffered a nervous breakdown in New Orleans several years ago.

Mofford officially to ask Mecham if he will resign

By BEN McCONNELL
State Press

Gov. Evan Mecham, who often has openly expressed his anathema to stepping down, would not say Sunday if he will stay aboard his rocky ship of state when Secretary of State Rose Mofford formally asks him this week if he wants to resign.

Mecham, contacted at his Glendale home Sunday afternoon, said: "I plan to make no statement about that at this time . . . I think I'll just keep my peace at this time."

After certifying a sufficient number of recall signatures, Mofford is required by law to ask Mecham if he wants to resign. Mofford said Sunday that she will ask the governor in writing Tuesday if he wants to step down or stay in office. Mecham will have until Jan. 30 to decide.

The governor's comments Sunday differed from his usual objections to resigning, which he has said is "out of the question."

Those who have called for him to quit include some members of the Legislature, nearly all of Arizona's congressional delegation and former Sen. Barry Goldwater. Several opinion polls have shown that it would be in the state's best interest if Mecham were to give his notice. Meanwhile, an opinion on recall elections issued last week by Attorney General Bob Corbin has thrown some legislators for a loop.

Corbin's opinion said that even if Mecham resigns before a recall election is held, the election must go forward since there is no provision for the cancellation of an election.

Health officials from 145 countries to attend world AIDS conference

LONDON (AP) — Health officials from 145 countries are gathering in London this week for a world AIDS summit at which they will plan a global assault on the deadly epidemic.

The three-day conference, which opens Tuesday, will be the largest meeting of government ministers ever held on a single health problem, according to the World Health Organization.

The U.N. agency, based in Geneva, and the British government are co-sponsoring the event.

"The conference, we believe, is going to mark another critical turning point in the global mobilization against AIDS," Dr. Jonathan Mann, the American director of WHO's Special Program on AIDS, said.

Health ministers from 131 countries and government advisors from 14 others have registered for the World Summit of Ministers of Health on Programs for AIDS Prevention.

Attending from the United States will be Surgeon General C. Everett Koop; Dr. Robert E. Windom, the No. 2 official at the Department of Health and Human Services; Dr. Gary Noble, deputy director of the Atlanta-based Centers for Disease Control in charge of AIDS activity; and Dr. Peter J. Fischinger, AIDS coordinator for the Public Health Service.

Unlike conferences involving medical experts working on vaccines and treatments for AIDS, this summit deals mainly with government efforts to control the spread of acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Its stated aims are:

- To present WHO guidelines for AIDS prevention and control and consider how they can be used as part of a global strategy.

- To provide an update on the global AIDS situation, including its social and economic impact.

- To review national policies for slowing the spread of AIDS, with emphasis on public education campaigns.

Saturday's 'The Pick' winnings go to 3 winning lottery tickets

PHOENIX (AP) — Three winners will split a multi-million dollar jackpot in Saturday night's "The Pick" drawing, according to Arizona Lottery officials.

A Sunday check of the lottery computer showed that three winning tickets had been purchased, officials said, and each of those would be worth approximately $1,432,000 over the next 20 years.

Officials said they wouldn't know the identity of the winners until they came forward to claim their prizes.

There were five tickets that had five of the six winning numbers plus the bonus number, and officials said they were worth $31,575 each.

The lottery computer tallied 250 tickets with five of the six winning numbers without the bonus, and officials said they were worth $757 each.

There was a large number of tickets, 10,191, with four of the six winning numbers, and officials said Sunday they were each worth $30.30.

The winning numbers in Saturday night's "The Pick" drawing were: two, four, eight, 10, 18 and 35. The bonus number was 32.

Sandinista troops shoot down U.S.-backed supply plane

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Sandinista troops shot down a supply plane of the U.S.-backed rebels in southeastern Nicaragua, a Defense Ministry source said Sunday.

A rebel spokeswoman said the craft was a DC-6 and 11 crew members were killed. No Americans were aboard, the spokeswoman said.

Members of the Pedro Altamirano battalion downed the plane about 10 p.m. (11 p.m. EST) Saturday near Acoyapa in Chontales province, 115 miles southeast of Managua, the Defense Ministry source said, speaking on condition he not be identified.

Sandinista army troops were searching the area Sunday for the wreckage and possible survivors, he said.

Express train derails in China; 90 dead, 66 seriously injured

BEIJING (AP) — An express train derailed early Sunday in the mountains of southern China, killing 90 people and seriously injuring 66 others, the official Xinhua News Agency reported.

It was China's sixth major transportation accident in a month. A total of 314 people have been killed.

The No. 80 Kunming-Shanghai express derailed and overturned at 1:35 a.m. as it traveled between Qiewu and Dengjiacun stations, 220 miles from Kunming, capital of Yunnan province, Xinhua quoted the Ministry of Railways as saying.

Mecham asks radio listeners to complain to KAET-TV

By BEN McCONNELL
State Press

Gov. Evan Mecham has singled out another enemy: Public Broadcasting Service affiliate KAET-TV (Channel 8).

The embattled governor, who often says the Arizona Republic and the Phoenix Gazette are working to railroad him out of office, urged radio listeners Saturday to call KAET, which broadcasts from ASU, and complain about its coverage of him.

"When you have the numbers of times the media, who are there hammering me week after week after week, probably it would be good for a lot of people to call in Channel 8 and ask them, 'What's happening to our tax money and why do we have to put up with this?'" Mecham said on his semi-monthly show on KTAR.

"It is interesting that the public television station, a tax-supported institution, and a, with ah . . . If I looked into Channel 8, they would put me on the front page saying, 'Mecham is trying to kill Channel 8.'"

"Horizon," KAET's news program, often features commentary from journalists about the governor. Mecham made his comments to radio listeners after responding to a caller's complaint about the station.

Mecham reaffirmed his comments

Committee coverage:
Radio
KFYI 910 AM (full live coverage)
KTAR 620 AM (full live coverage)
Television
No live coverage planned.

Sunday, saying, "They run the French report in its entirety, then they only give Murray Miller 29 minutes?" Mecham said from his Glendale home. "Then afterward, ('Horizon' host) Michael Grant gets to cross-examine Murray? Do you call that fair?"

Mecham declined to say whether he has placed any complaints with the station or if he plans to.

Grant said Mecham's comments did not surprise him because, "I've known for quite some time that the governor was not happy with Channel 8's coverage."

The station "went out of its way" to give time for Murray Miller's response after the station aired William French's report to the House on Mecham's alleged improprieties, Grant said, adding KAET also aired the governor's State of the State address in its entirety.

"I get kind of used to it," Grant said. "When I get feedback like that, it kind of shows us we're doing our job."

ASU student to lose lower legs to frostbite

By MIKE BURGESS
State Press

Jami Goldman, an ASU student who spent 10 days stranded with a friend in a snowbank in northern Arizona's White Mountains before being rescued Jan. 2, will have both her feet and part of her legs amputated early this week.

"This is her best option," Jami's father Michael Goldman said Saturday. "She's taking it as good as anyone could."

Goldman said doctors decided Saturday to amputate after they discovered infection had set into her frostbitten feet.

Jami Goldman, a 19-year-old sophomore business major, will undergo surgery either Monday or Tuesday night at Scottsdale Memorial Hospital-Osborn, where she was moved out of intensive care two weeks ago. Doctors will amputate her legs just below her knees.

Goldman's friend, 18-year-old Lisa Barzano of Phoenix, was released from the hospital last Wednesday and doctors say she still might lose some tissue from her toes.

Michael Goldman said the family has already met with a prosthesis expert. "There's nothing she won't be able to do,"

Goldman said.

The women's ordeal began Dec. 23 when they were returning home from a Colorado ski trip and apparently took a wrong turn on Arizona 273, a road normally closed for the winter.

Goldman's Chevrolet Blazer then got stuck in the snow near Crescent Lake, about 25 miles south of Springerville, some 20 miles from the nearest highway.

The women survived by eating melted snow, a cinnamon bun and leftover peanuts until they were rescued by two snowmobilers.

Treaty

A proposed solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict

Ed Schubert
Asst. Opinion Editor

Last night, I had a most unusual dream.

Like many dreams, the images were chaotic and illogical, and thus it is hard to describe. But it seemed to be about a peace conference between Israel and the Palestinians, and there was a distinct sense of euphoria as Arabs and Jews freely talked and floated about an immense, shining conference hall while Meir Kahane and Abu Nidal furiously denounced the proceedings from the confines of a cage.

Anyway, at one point I dreamt I passed a baklavah vendor who was handing out copies of a treaty. I took one and put it in my pocket, and when I awoke this morning — and this is the truly unusual part — I still had it. And here it is:

A TREATY OF PEACE BETWEEN ISRAEL AND PALESTINE

We, the undersigned representatives of the government of Israel and representatives of the Palestinian residents of the West Bank and Gaza Strip, henceforth to be known as Palestine, hereby declare an end to the state of hostility that has existed between our two peoples.

The governments and peoples of Israel and Palestine pledge to one another that they will live together, side by side, in a relationship of peaceful, creative and symbiotic coexistence. The general provisions of this peace shall be as follows:

JERUSALEM

Jerusalem shall be the undivided, shared capitol of both Palestine and Israel.

BORDERS

Understanding that the need of a people for statehood, as expressed by a national flag and lines on a map, is essentially psychological in nature, the border between Israel and Palestine shall be designed primarily to satisfy said psychological need. However, most of the practical functions of borders separating most other states shall not be operative as applied to the Palestine/Israel border. There shall be no checkpoints or other devices to inhibit the free passage of individuals between the two states. Borders shall be indicated by signposts for the sole purpose of indicating the limits of the domestic jurisdiction of the laws of Israel and Palestine.

'The governments and peoples of Israel and Palestine pledge to one another that they will live together, side by side, in a relationship of peaceful, creative and symbiotic coexistence.'

Borders will be determined by a joint task force of the governments of Israel and Palestine, and the dominions of the two states shall follow the demographic patterns of Jewish and Arab population. Every ten years, a census shall be taken for the purpose of redefining national boundaries.

CITIZENSHIP

Any individual, irrespective of race, ethnic background, language or religion, may elect to become a citizen of either Israel or Palestine. Citizens of either polity may change citizenship by following appropriate procedures to be established by both states. The purpose of citizenship in one or the other state shall be to determine in which polity the individual chooses to vote, pay taxes, serve in the armed forces, be selected for jury duty and otherwise exercise the civic rights and responsibilities of citizenship. Citizenship in either Israel or Palestine shall not in any way limit an individual's freedom of movement or residence in either state.

LAW OF RETURN

The Law of Return of the State of Israel — allowing Jews to become citizens of Israel immediately upon application — has made Israel a haven from persecution for Jews throughout the world. It is therefore anticipated that the first act of the State of Palestine will be to promulgate a Palestinian Law of Return for similar purposes. To facilitate the orderly immigration of Jews, Palestinians and others into Israel and Palestine, a permanent joint commission of both states shall be formed to regulate said immigration in an orderly manner.

COMMUNICATION

To facilitate communication between citizens of Palestine and Israel, it is agreed that the educational curriculum of both states will emphasize language instruction in Arabic, Hebrew and English.

JUSTICE

Legal claims and torts arising out of injustices and injuries sustained in the violent past, if they cannot be satisfactorily resolved within the legal systems of Palestine or Israel, may be appealed for binding arbitration by the International Court of Justice in The Hague, Netherlands.

CONCLUSION

We undertake this unprecedented step in peaceful cooperation, recognizing that a bold departure from the assumptions of the traditional nation-state system is the only alternative to continued violence and injustice to all peoples living in this region.

Realizing our responsibility before history, and that the freedom and integrity of all peoples in the region will be advanced only if this quest for peace is successful, we pledge to that quest our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor.

Notes from the impeachment circus

Darrin Hostetler
Opinion Editor

It's the greatest show on earth — or in town, anyway — and it's playing all week under the big top of the Arizona capitol dome.

While the historic House of Representatives impeachment hearings don't feature bearded ladies or trapeze artists, the legislative inquiry into whether to impeach Gov. Evan Mecham does highlight a substantial number of strange characters and oddities. Deducing from the testimony of witnesses so far, there is also plenty of proof Barnum was right — there is a sucker born every minute, and most of them live in Arizona and voted in the last gubernatorial election.

The House has cleared out three adjoining hearing rooms for the impeachment proceedings, yet most every seat was occupied Friday for Day Two of the Capitol Death Watch. There is a definite sense of history here, a feeling that this is where the attention of the entire state is focused.

Perhaps that is because, as far as state government is concerned, the impeachment hearings are the only thing happening. Legislative action has ground to a halt, and sources at the capitol say nearly every representative and their staffs are preoccupied — almost exclusively — with the impeachment.

Friday's witness, Department of Public Safety Lt. Charles "Beau" Johnson, the head of the gubernatorial security detail for governors Castro, Bolin, Babbitt and Mecham, before the latter fired him in November, came off strong and believable — the unimpeachable witness.

Johnson is a true Boy Scout, a man with clear eyes, a steady, commanding voice and a background in law enforcement that would have qualified him for membership in the "Untouchables." The man is so clean he squeaks, and when he says the governor is lying, well, people listen.

Which is what they did Friday, as Johnson, in response to questioning from Rep. Larry Hawke, R-Tucson, refuted the governor's claim, made during an interview with KTVK's Cameron Harper, that he hadn't been informed about a threat Lee Watkins allegedly directed toward former Mecham legislative liason Donna Carlson.

Johnson insists that he clearly informed the governor of the seriousness of the threat, while Mecham claimed "Beau hemmed and hawed around" and didn't clearly detail the incident.

Four times Johnson was asked if statements Mecham made to Harper, denying that he knew about the threat, were true, and four times Johnson said: "No, that is not a true statement."

He didn't "hem and haw."
And it doesn't get any clearer than that.

But more shocking than the firm confirmation from Johnson that Mecham has lied was the slice of life from the governor's office that was also revealed in his testimony.

Johnson told legislators that Mecham had made plans to instruct DPS officers to forcibly remove Phoenix Gazette columnist John Kolbe from a press conference.

Johnson seemed embarrassed as he related how Mecham told him that officers were to eject Kolbe, the man who the governor had labeled as a "non-person" for his columns critical of the administration, when Mecham "gave the signal."

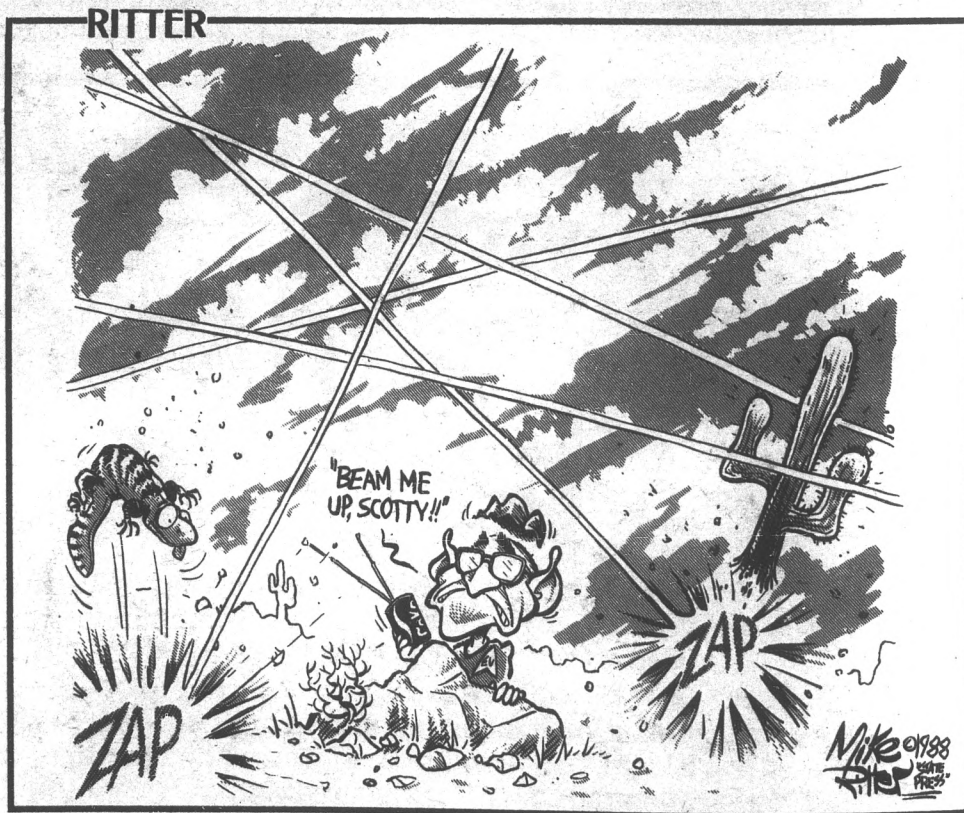

Johnson looked down as he said: "I informed the governor that was against the law . . . we could not legally do that."

The members of the press corps in attendance shook their heads in disbelief as Kolbe leaned against a table, quietly taking notes.

Is the governor ignorant of simple law and of basic rules of civility? Or did he endeavor to turn DPS officers into hired thugs and direct them to muscle a reporter out of the room because of all-consuming paranoia?

Very strange. And as the impeachment hearings continue today, you can bet we will be hearing more stories of bizzare and frightening behavior.

Stay tuned.

One of the reasons that blacks are better athletes is that during the Civil War the slave owner would breed his big black with his big woman so that he would have a big black kid. That's where it all started. — Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder

ON SOME NIGHTS the system goes sideways, and Friday night was one of them. It was somewhere around three in the morning when I got the news about The Greek. We were right in the middle of lashing together a memo about Living and Dying in the 60s, which is an easy gig and very chic these days, but it raises certain problems for me, because I am still alive and I have all the tapes: from the first civil rights demonstration in front of the Cadillac store on Van Ness to the Hells Angels' gang rape down at Kelsey's place in La Honda and the death of Mother Miles and Richard Nixon talking smart about football on the Massachusetts Turnpike at three in the morning.

The editor, Mr. Heem, was wedded to the notion of a montage of abstract riffs on the 60s, but suddenly the AP wire belched out one that was nowhere near abstract. My old friend Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder had gone crazy at Duke Ziebert's in Washington and raved about a 100-year-old plot to breed huge black men who would eventually take over all management positions in professional sports.

I was shocked. The Greek seemed too slick for that. What made him do it?

He was senile. Last year, he picked St. Louis to win the Super Bowl. They finished whatever he wanted. I felt too rich to worry.

Strange memories on this nervous night in Las Vegas. Five years later? Six? It seems like a lifetime, or at least a Main Era — the kind of peak that never comes again. San Francisco in the middle 60s was a very special time and place to be part of. Maybe it "meant" something. Maybe not, in the long run... but no explanation, no mix of words of music or memories can touch that last. But I liked him. He was what he was: a hustler, a gambler, an aging lounge lizard with slicked-back hair. What do you expect?

'But even without being sure of "history" it seems entirely reasonable to think that every now and then the energy of a whole generation comes to a head in a long fine flash.'

It was ugly, and The Greek was instantly fired by CBS, leaving the network without a gambling analyst.

I was still brooding on it when the phone rang: It was Brent Musburger, who offered me the job. It was weird, but it made perfect sense. I had known The Greek for years. I was, after all, a gambler.

Heem was unimpressed. He was ripping pages out of my own book, "Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas," looking for his ode to the long lost 60s. I told him to use sense of knowing that you were there and alive in that corner of time and the world. Whatever it meant...

History is hard to know, because of all the hired crap, but even without being sure of "history" it seems entirely reasonable to think that every now and then the energy of a whole generation comes to a head in a long fine flash, for reasons that nobody really understands at the time and which never explain, in retrospect, what actually happened.

My central memory of that time seems to hang on one or five or maybe 40 nights — or very early mornings — when I left the Fillmore half-crazy and, instead of going home, aimed the big 650 Lightning across the Bay Bridge at 100 mph wearing L.L. Bean shorts and a Butte sheepherder's jacket...

There was madness in any direction, at any hour. If not across the Bay, then up the Golden Gate or down 101 to Los Altos or La Honda... You could strike sparks anywhere. There was a fantastic universal sense that whatever we were doing was "right," that we were winning...

And that, I think, was the handle — that sense of inevitable victory over the forces of Old and Evil. Not in any mean or military sense; we didn't need that. Our energy would simply "prevail." There was no point in fighting — on our side or theirs. We had all the momentum; we were riding the crest of a high and beautiful wave...

So now, less than five years later, you can go up on a steep hill in Las Vegas and look west, and with the right kind of eyes you can almost see the high-water mark — that place where the wave finally broke and rolled back.

Meanwhile, 20 years later, down in Phoenix, Arizona, Gov. Evan Mecham, a used-car dealer under six felony indictments and facing recall, was still hanging tough, refusing to make the birthday of Martin Luther King Jr. the official state holiday. In Washington, rumors circulated that The Greek was seeking political asylum in Arizona.

Tempe bank robbed by gun-toting bandit

By MIKE BURGESS
State Press

A bandit armed with a stainless steel handgun robbed a Tempe bank of an undisclosed amount of cash Friday, police said.

The gunman entered Great American First Savings Bank, 6225 S. McClintock Drive, about 1 p.m., asked a teller for change, then pulled out the handgun and demanded cash, said Tempe police Sgt. P.J. Janik.

Janik said the suspect fled on foot in a northwest direction. Police described the suspect as a Hispanic male, 30 to 35 years old, 5 feet 10 inches, 170 pounds with acne scars on his face. He was last seen wearing blue jeans, a light blue t-shirt and white tennis shoes.

In other incidents:

•Two Tempe men were arrested and charged with attempted murder after they allegedly broke into a house, axed the walls with a hatchet and fired four gunshots at the owner early Saturday, police said.

Michael Cruthoff, 40, and Richard Martinez, 35, both of the 700 block of East Solana Drive, were booked into Tempe City

police report

Jail and also charged with first degree burglary and criminal damage, Janik said.

Janik said the incident occurred about 1:30 a.m. in the 1700 block of South La Rosa Drive when Cruthoff and Martinez allegedly broke into the residence and began punching holes in the walls.

When the owner of the house, 25-year-old Timothy Wright, confronted the men, Martinez allegedly pulled out a .22-caliber semi-automatic handgun and fired four shots which pierced a bedroom wall near Wright's roommate, Janik said.

•A Tempe man was arrested after he allegedly robbed a restaurant cashier at knifepoint of an unknown amount of cash Saturday, police said.

James Young, 29, of the 500 block of West Duke Drive, was booked into Tempe City Jail and charged with armed robbery, Janik said.

MAKE IT A POINT TO SEE THEM BOTH!

Trial

Sen. Alan Stephens, D-Phoenix, the legislator who requested the opinion, said he is furious with the opinion and will fight it with a new statute.

"The bill would allow for a special election to be called off if the office holder the election is aimed at resigned or was removed," Stephens said, adding that he has recruited the support of Sens. Greg Lunn, R-Tucson, and Carolyn Walker, D-Phoenix.

Corbin's opinion puts Mofford, a Democrat, in an awkward position. Since Mofford would assume the gubernatorial reins in the event of Mecham's resignation or his being ejected from office via impeachment or criminal conviction, she would have to face a recall election, according to Corbin's opinion.

Mofford said that she has gotten calls "from all over the state, from both Republicans and Democrats alike," challenging Corbin's opinion.

"My name wouldn't even be on the ballot," she said, adding that the issue likely will be settled in court.

Meanwhile, the governor's legal bills continue to pile up.

During his twice-monthly talk show on KTAR radio Saturday, Mecham asked his supporters for donations to combat mounting legal fees from battling a near-certain recall, possible impeachment and criminal proceedings.

The governor said he would like to raise $200,000.

A Gov. Mecham Legal Defense Fund was opened last week at Valley National Bank, but Mecham said he did not know how much money has been raised so far. Mecham would not say how much legal debt he has accumulated but several lawyers contacted by the State Press estimated that Mecham's legal expenses may already top $250,000.

"I've spent, at this point, quite a lot of money," the governor said.

Although he is battling three fronts working to remove him from office, Mecham said on KTAR that the problems are "not taking any of my time."

"The affairs of government are moving along. Lawyers are doing the majority of the work."

On Friday, Mecham pleaded innocent to six felony counts handed down Jan. 8 by the state grand jury. It was the first time in the state's history that a governor was arraigned on criminal charges.

Mecham and his older brother, Willard, who also was arraigned, will go to court again Feb. 17 for a pre-trial hearing. A trial date for both men was set for March 9 with Maricopa County Superior Court Judge John Seidel presiding.

The court stipulated that the governor may leave the state for official business but must inform the court if he plans to leave for personal reasons.

Feb. 17 is the day Mecham's attorneys will be able to file a delay motion in what many expect to be a long process of requests for additional time to gather evidence.

House

Mecham denied that Johnson informed him of the threats, saying Johnson "leems and haws when he talks."

According to Johnson, after the meeting the matter was referred to Max Hawkins, director of the Department of Administration and Watkins' boss. Johnson told the six Republicans and four Democrats on the committee that he never learned of the results of Hawkins' investigation because the governor had him transferred two days later.

"I knew that if the attorney general's office learned of this incident, I was gone," Johnson said.

"I had good relations with Gov. Mecham," Johnson said. "He treated all my guys very nice . . . until Nov. 15."

"I always felt that during the controversy of the past year, that he (Mecham) felt that I was the pipeline for my department," he added. "Not to sound like I'm standing on a soap box, but I if couldn't give up my life, or members of my detail couldn't give up their lives for the governor and his family, I wouldn't be there."

Committee chairman Skelly, R-Scottsdale, said Johnson's testimony underscored the statements given by DPS Director Ralph Milstead, who charged that the governor ordered him not to cooperate with Corbin's investigation.

Skelly, who has obtained an unsigned statement from Griffith which may be entered into evidence today, said, "In my mind, I have no doubt that what they are describing constitutes a crime."

He said Griffith's statement does not contradict either Johnson's or Milstead's testimony.

"We have to wait and we have to give the governor an opportunity to address this committee; it would be unfair of us if we didn't do that," Skelly said. "But, I think that the evidence thus far presented is extremely damaging."

Cherstruck

The beat still goes on — 20 years later

By GREGORY ROBERT KRZOS
State Press

On Friday, Nov. 13, the audience in the NBC-TV studio probably could not believe what they were seeing.

That was the day Cher appeared on "Late Night with David Letterman" and sang "I've Got You Babe" with Sonny Bono.

The same Sonny of the defunct Sonny and Cher singing group.

The same Sonny she was married to — and fought so hard to be unmarried to — in the early 70s.

And yes, the same Sonny who's running for mayor of Palm Springs.

But the evening was more than a singing "mother and child" reunion. It was the night millions of people saw Cher in a fascinating new light.

A nostalgic Cher.

A liberated Cher.

A surviving Cher.

A super Cher.

But for this rockin' show biz gypsy, it's all hype. In the course of 20 years, she has proven herself — six hit movies, 11 gold albums, three platinum albums and two charming children. If anything, Cher will continue to beat a powerfully successful drum.

And of her current success?

1987 has been a triumphant year as "The Witches of Eastwick," "Suspect" and "Moonstruck" all became attention grabbers. That's not to mention her return to the music industry after a six year absence with Cher, the Geffen Records-produced LP that is giving her yet another pop hit with "I Found Someone."

"It's so bizarre," says Cher. "I couldn't become an actress for five years because I was a singer. Now everyone is worried people aren't going to accept me as a singer because I'm an actress. But those labels don't mean shit to me."

And such has been the case with the former Cher Sarkesian LaPierre. Since her initial arrival in show business, Cher had always been sharing too much.

Not anymore.

She married Salvatore "Sonny" Bono in 1964, when she was 16. The duo hit the music scene and fame right on target with 1965's "I Got You Babe," an LP which sold over four million copies. Then came "The Beat Goes On" and "Laugh at Me," and the two free-flowing hippies of the 60s became a phenomenon.

In the early 70s, "The Sonny & Cher Comedy Hour" allowed the duo to hit new peaks. But after a few years, Cher wanted to nix the "scamp, a tramp and a bit of a vamp" format, take their daughter Chastity and divorce Sonny for more independence.

She wound up in a slew of relationships in the 70s — record producer David Geffen, singer Gregg Allman (with whom she had a son, Elijah Blue) and legendary KISS member, Gene Simmons.

Her musical hits prevailed with songs like "Gypsies, Tramps & Thieves," "Half Breed" and "Dark Lady" topping the charts.

Eventually, she became the target of the media — a proclaimed wild woman, streaking her hair wild colors, dressing (or not dressing) all too vibrantly. Somehow, she wasn't taken seriously, and she was tired of managers and agents telling her what to do.

After all, that is why she left Sonny.

The 80s brought her even more independence. She decided to finally become an actress.

And it was done.

Cher packed up the kids, headed for New York City and tried out for Robert Altman's play, "Come Back to the Five and Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean." Suddenly the world took notice — "That's Cher up there, and she's acting."

Turn to Cher, page 13.

Shine on harvest 'Moonstruck'

There is nothing quite as charming as Dean Martin's classic tune "That's Amore" being piped through the opening credits of "Moonstruck."

"Tacky," you say?

Hardly.

You will be awestruck with "Moonstruck."

In Norman Jewison's screwball comedy, all that is Italian is brought together to form an abondanza of entertainment — mostly from Cher, the chic, slick, dynamite-of-a-woman who sprinkles onto the film a flavoring of remarkable proportions.

Cher is Loretta Castorini, a dowdy widow who eagerly accepts a sappy, unromantic wedding proposal from the equally sappy, unromantic Johnny Cammareri (Danny Aiello). Before the marriage, though, Johnny must fly to Italy and tend to his dying mother. He asks one request of Loretta — that she reach his brother Ronny and invite him to the wedding (the brothers have had "bad blood" between them for years).

Nicolas Cage is Ronny, the unforgiving brother who eventually falls for Loretta, takes her to his bed and tells her he's in love with her the next morning. Immediately, she slaps his face and tells him to "snap out of it." But Loretta can't fight her feelings for Ronny, either.

Their romance, along with several odd ones going on in her very Italian home, put the real zest in this film — all the way up to the hilarious point when Johnny finally returns from Italy.

Obviously, "Moonstruck" is not just your average love story. It is the epitome of everything Italian — the romance, the wine, and the motto, "everything out in the open."

Cher, to put it bluntly, is simply stunning. Her performance here has already earned her a Golden Globe nomination, and talk of an Oscar has Hollywood humming.

But the tunes of excellence go to Jewison, who has directed one of the year's spicier stories.

Now that's Italian.

Prof proves childhood mythos not load of horse manure

Professor Ron Carlson, inset.

By BRUCE PETERSON
State Press

Is there really a Santa Claus?

While you may have formed a negative response to this question long ago, ASU writing professor Ron Carlson keeps this myth alive in his latest book of short stories titled, "The News Of The World."

One of the stories, "The H Street Sledding Record," portrays a man who throws horse manure on his roof every Christmas Eve to convince his children Santa had been there.

Carlson, whose work has appeared in many newspapers, magazines, and on the stage, will read selections from "The News Of The World" and host a discussion on the current state of the short story at 2 p.m. Tuesday at ASU's Kerr Cultural Center in Scottsdale.

Illusions portrayed in the "H Street" are preserved by Carlson in this collection of stories dealing mainly with ordinary people and the pleasures found in the simple rituals of life.

One of the stories, called "Milk," was published in "The Best American Stories of 1987." It deals with missing children pictured on the back of milk cartons, and about new fears that parenting brings.

Carlson, who has been writing fiction for 20 years and teaching it at ASU for almost two, feels the short story has become more popular than ever.

"It's a vital time for the short story now; many people are writing," he said.

At the Kerr Center, Carlson plans to talk about the broad spectrum of stories and the way he writes.

"I feel it is part of our job as writers — we're always looking for intelligent listeners," he said.

Although he is familiar with both short stories and novels and currently has three published books in print, Carlson has also written a considerable amount for the stage and has had work produced at the Sundance Playwright's Institute, the Ensemble Studio Theatre, the Philadelphia Festival Theatre and the Salt Lake Acting Company. He feels stage writing is different from other types of fiction.

"There is no place to hide; you are writing something to go in a mouth. The words spoken are vital," he said.

Carlson has also had material published by a variety of newspapers and magazines, including Harper's, McCall's, Sports Illustrated, The North American Review, Triquarterly, The Village Voice and the New York Times.

Despite this variety of publications, Carlson said it is rare for him to tailor a story for a magazine or newspaper.

"I write the best story I can, then worry about publishing later."

Critics have praised his stories in "The News Of The World" as being uniquely pleasurable, due to the simplicity, vitality and realism they deal with.

Carlson confirms this. "I wrote honest stories that were affirmative and realistic."

While he didn't specify a favorite type of fiction, he said he's currently writing a novel. He noted, however, that the short story temptation is always there.

Because he teaches fiction writing classes at ASU, Carlson was asked what his best advice is to students wishing to achieve success in fiction writing.

"Stay healthy, get plenty of exercise and don't watch TV."

His Tuesday presentation is a part of the Friends' Showcase, a series of lectures hosted by various members of the ASU faculty and staff. The presentation is free to the public.

Guadalcanal Diary serves up songs not quite of the south

By SCOTT C. SECKEL
State Press
Georgia.

That particular state's name tends to conjure up images of civil rights violations, jacked-up Mustangs roaring down back roads full of good ol' boys and bloodhounds with a canine resemblance to "Ed" on the Bartle's and Jaymes' spots.

Little magnolia, you are so wrong.

The embodiment of this new South, Guadalcanal Diary, a band with nary a twang to its detriment and a sound solely its own, will be coming to Chuy's nightclub in Tempe at 9 tonight. The four-member group is on tour in the United States and Canada following the release of their new album, 2 x 4.

The Diary was written in Marietta 6½ years ago. Authors Murray Attaway (rhythm guitar, vocals), Rhett Crowe (bassist), John Poe (percussion, vocals) and Jeff Walls (lead, vocals) attended high school together. All except Crowe were playing at a tender age. Crowe, 29, who performs entirely by ear, says he started playing bass "when I was 23, and everyone else was playing at six."

Their sound has been compared to R.E.M., but it actually resists comparison. Influences are from everyone to no one for the Diary. As Crowe says, "I don't like funk, rap, or new heavy metal. I like it the way it was back in the early seventies; I like Led Zeppelin and Alice Cooper." He also listens to jazz and classical music "to calm down."

'The God of Money came in the form of a contract with Elektra Records in May of '85 . . . Ahhh. Success. Well, maybe Robin Leach isn't wailing like a chipmunk in heat for an interview just yet.'

Their first album, Watusi Rodeo, was released in 1983 on the E.O.D. label along with a video the American Film Institute was enamored of. 1984 brought Walking In The Shadow of The Big Man. The LP took off like the Diary's native area, away from the rest of the sluggish, stale traditions that bore and drag away followers and interested parties.

Shows?
Into the heavens.
Reviews?

Sung by the gods.

But what about the most important god of them all, he who provides the impetus that allows songwriters Attaway and Wall to transform their world into something like "Hieronymous Bosch reads the tabloids?" What about Mammon, ancient god of money?

He came in the form of a contract with Elektra Records in May of '85 and the re-release of the re-mastered Shadow of The Big Man. Ahhh. Success. Well, maybe Robin Leach isn't wailing like a chipmunk in heat for an interview just yet.

The band does work hard for a living. The tour is a hectic one, playing New Orleans one night and Austin the next. When asked about the band's goals five or 10 years from now, Crowe simply says, "We're lucky to look to June. I just say, 'What are we doing tomorrow?'"

The Diary has embarked on their manic journey in a brand new bus, which is a big improvement over riding in a van "with our shit on the floor and our knees in our laps. We can actually get up and walk around," says Crowe.

Chuy's is a little smaller club than Crowe likes to play; he personally prefers smaller theaters or larger clubs because they have the the PA equipment required for good sound and "the stages have room to dance around on."

The band's name comes from the first piece of American propaganda out of World War II. The "Guadalcanal Diary" was supposedly the notes of a journalist on the island during the first battle won against the Japanese. It is a wry choice of name, considering that the United States is now an economic colony of Japan. Typical of the group's humor.

Uncategorical and individualistic.

Cher

A movie version followed, and in 1983, she took her abilities one step further, playing a lesbian in an Oscar-nominated performance in "Silkwood," with Meryl Streep. The following year brought "Mask," the true story of a biker-woman whose son was deformed.

But the talk of Hollywood these days is how refined, fresh and rivoting the current Cher is. More specifically, it seems everyone is becoming a little moonstruck.

And with just cause. In "Moonstruck," her latest movie hit, Cher plays Loretta Castorini, a widow who falls in love with her fiance's brother. The screwball comedy has the country buzzing with talk of an Oscar.

But whether or not Oscar will occupy a comfy seat on her mantle is not really the issue. What is, is that Cher's branching out.

"No matter how much I try to fit in, I just don't," she said recently, "Hollywood doesn't think I'm a part of it. Neither does the music business. Nobody really thinks I'm part of any of it. Somehow I manage."

And the beat still goes on.

Fewer than 3,000 tickets remain unsold for the Pac-10 Conference Basketball Tournament, March 10-13 at McKale Center in Tucson.

UA has sold nearly 7,000 tickets in the Tucson area and the remainder of the league and the Pacific-10 sponsors account for about 3,500 tickets.

The only way to get tickets is to call the UA ticket office (open weekdays from 9 a.m.-4 p.m.) at 1-621-4163. Tickets are $85 for the entire tournament (five sessions), and Visa and MasterCard are accepted.

The ASU/UA basketball game on Feb. 27 at the Activity Center is sold out for the general public.

But there are still about 1,200 tickets remaining for full-time ASU students. The tickets are being sold at the Sun Devil Ticket Office, located on the west side of the Activity Center.

Devils come back to edge USC

By CHRIS DORSEY
State Press

Prior to the start of this season, ASU basketball coach Steve Patterson praised the depth of his squad, and in the heat of battle, it was Patterson's bench that was responsible for the 78-74 victory over Southern California Saturday night.

Forwards John Jerome and Mark Carlino both came off the bench to spark the Sun Devils' come-from-behind victory over the struggling Trojans (3-13, 1-6 in the Pacific 10 Conference).

Jerome had his chance to shine after starter Joey Johnson got into foul trouble. Jerome, a starter of the first seven games, had not been playing well lately.

But it was a different Jerome who took the floor against the Trojans. He concentrated on the inside game instead of focusing attention on his perimeter game.

This sudden change resulted in 17 points, 11 rebounds and a victory.

But Carlino played a different role in ASU's (11-6, 5-3) first win in its last four games. When sophomore Mark Becker left the game after being poked in the eye, Carlino rose to Patterson's call.

Down the stretch, Carlino, a 58 percent shooter from the free-throw line, hit three crucial free throws in four tries.

The Sun Devils played the final 10 minutes of the game without starters Eric Holloway, Becker and Johnson.

Holloway played sparingly throughout the game. He had a season-low two points in 14 minutes.

ASU looked like a different team in the first half. USC, the loser of its last six games, pulled out to an 18-point lead with 5:46 remaining to play in the first half.

ASU appeared to be feeling the effects of the UCLA loss. The Devils were outthrustled and, by way of Andy Oliverez, trailed the entire first half.

Oliverez, a junior who only averaged four points a game prior to the Trojans' 92-48 loss to Arizona on Thursday, scored 18 points to lead USC, 13 of them in the first half.

But Patterson switched to a zone defense and ASU began to cut the margin. At halftime, the Devils trailed by only eight points, 40-32.

"I thought the zone worked very well," Patterson said. "We may be a pretty good zone team."

Senior Arthur Thomas took charge in the opening minutes of the second half, scoring six of his 19 points to keep the Sun Devils within striking distance.

ASU began its run with 14:03 remaining in the game. They finally tied the game, 59-59, at the 7:37 mark after Jerome's three-point play.

But the Sun Devils would not take the lead until the 4:52 point when Jerome hauled in an offensive rebound and put it back up for two points.

The Sun Devils did not fold under pressure. When they fell behind for the last time in the game with 1:05 left, Tarence Wheeler canned two free throws to put ASU up, 72-71.

ASU sweeps opening series with Gauchos

By DEAN GYORGY
State Press

The Sun Devil baseball team opened the broom closet early this season as they completed a sweep over Cal-Santa Barbara.

ASU broke open a close game on Friday, winning 9-3, and pummeling the unraveling Gauchos, 15-2, on Saturday.

Dating back to last season, the Devils have won 11 consecutive games at Packard Stadium, bringing their all-time record in the friendly confines to 418-122.

"I wouldn't want to open (the season) on the road at Packard," ASU coach Jim Brock said.

Gaucha head coach Al Ferrer must have gone home feeling the same way.

On Saturday, Ferrer watched his pitching staff give up 12 walks and 13 hits to the Devils, making for a very long afternoon.

ASU began its scoring onslaught in the second inning. RBI singles by Ricky Candelari and third baseman Matt Lagunas brought home two runs. The third run of the inning was scored courtesy of a Gaucha wild pitch.

Third base for the Devils continues to be in transition. Brock moved John Finn from third back to his comfortable center field position and inserted Lagunas, a junior from Mesa.

Lagunas played well, and is expected to battle with Anthony Manahan for playing time. Manahan currently is out of action with stitches in his left hand.

The Devils scored three runs in the fourth, four in the sixth, four in the seventh, and capped it off with one more in the eighth.

ASU starter Brian Dodd went 6 2/3 innings, giving up five hits and walking only one. Dodd is a left-hander with a deceptive move to first base, which he exercised in picking off two runners.

Taking over for Dodd was Blas Minor, who struck out five Gauchos in 2 1/2 innings of relief.

"It's encouraging that our pitchers seem to be in as good a shape as they are," Brock said.

Dan Rumsey awaits a pitch during Saturday's 15-2 Sun Devil victory over Cal-Santa Barbara. The victory enabled ASU to sweep the three-game series with the Gauchos.

Suns blown out by Pacers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — With the Indiana Pacers' reserves nearly matching the starters' point total, John Long wasn't worried as he watched from the bench in the fourth quarter of Sunday's easy 128-109 NBA victory over Phoenix.

"I was still under the weather a little (from a cold) but felt pretty good," said Long, who played only 23 minutes — two minutes in the second quarter and none in the final period — but hit eight of 13 shots from the field and led the Pacers with 24 points.

"We played good defense, moved the ball around well," said Long.

"It was a matter of me playing good defense and my teammates getting me the ball in the right place. When you can get ball without rushing the shots, it makes it so much easier."

The Indiana reserves, led by Wayman Tisdale with 19 points and rookie Reggie Miller with 17, had 63 of the team's 128 points. Phoenix scored only 36 off its bench.

"We needed to keep the consistency of our game Friday (in a 113-104 victory over New Jersey)," Indiana Coach Jack Ramsay said. "We did that. Our defense in the third period was as good as any period all year."

"Everybody was good. We got production from everyone," Ramsay said. "If we can bottle that, the end result will be positive for us."

Phoenix Coach John Wetzel said, "We talked about the defense going into the game and what we needed to get done, and then we went out and failed to do it. We are not helping out, we're not playing team defense at all.

"We're 36 games into the season and not nearly as solid as we should be," Wetzel said. "We're letting teams get offensive rebounds and not being aggressive and going after rebounds."

Indiana never trailed in the second half, bursting from a 60-53 lead to 69-57 in the first four minutes of the third quarter on a basket by Chuck Person and seven points by Long.

The Pacers built the lead to 16 points after three quarters and took their biggest lead at 127-105 on a streak of seven straight points by reserves Greg Dreiling, Miller and Stuart Gray.

Phoenix, losing its fifth straight game, was led by Eddie Johnson and Walter Davis with 27 points apiece and rookie Armon Gilliam with 19 points and 13 rebounds.

There were nine lead changes before a pair of free throws by Miller put Indiana on top for good at 28-26 after one quarter.

The Pacers held the Suns' leading scorer, Larry Nance, to four free throws in the first half and steadily widened the margin through the second quarter.

Three-point plays by Miller and Tisdale helped Indiana to an eight-point lead midway through the period, then a layup by Miller gave the Pacers their biggest first-half lead at 53-44 with three minutes to go.

ASU tennis team opens '88; begins year with pair of wins

By DAVE BIGOS
State Press

ASU tennis coach Lou Belken used to wonder how well his players would work as a unit.

"We've got a lot of guys putting in good results," Belken said. "Now we'll see if they can mesh together as a team."

On Friday, the Sun Devils did just that as they beat NAU, 9-0, at the Whiteman Tennis Center.

By Saturday afternoon, Belken was wondering no more as the Devils beat Utah, the defending Western Athletic Conference champions, by a score of 8-1.

Anchoring the team this year will be Brian Gyetko and senior Mike Holten. The two are rated as one of the finest doubles teams in the country and have been selected to participate in this year's Rolex National Indoor Intercollegiate Tennis Championships.

Holten and Gyetko were two of only 32 players chosen nationally by the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association for the event.

Against NAU, Holten and Gyetko beat Lorin Dils and Marco Scalise, 6-2, 6-4. In a tougher match played Saturday, they downed Utah players Eric Chin and Johan Hogstedt, 7-5, 6-7, 6-4.

In singles play, Holten beat Hogstedt, 6-2, 7-6. Gyetko dispelled with NAU's Scalise, 6-1, 6-4, and Utah's Chris Entzel, 6-2, 6-1. Holten, in order to give Belken a chance to see some of his other players perform, did not play against NAU.

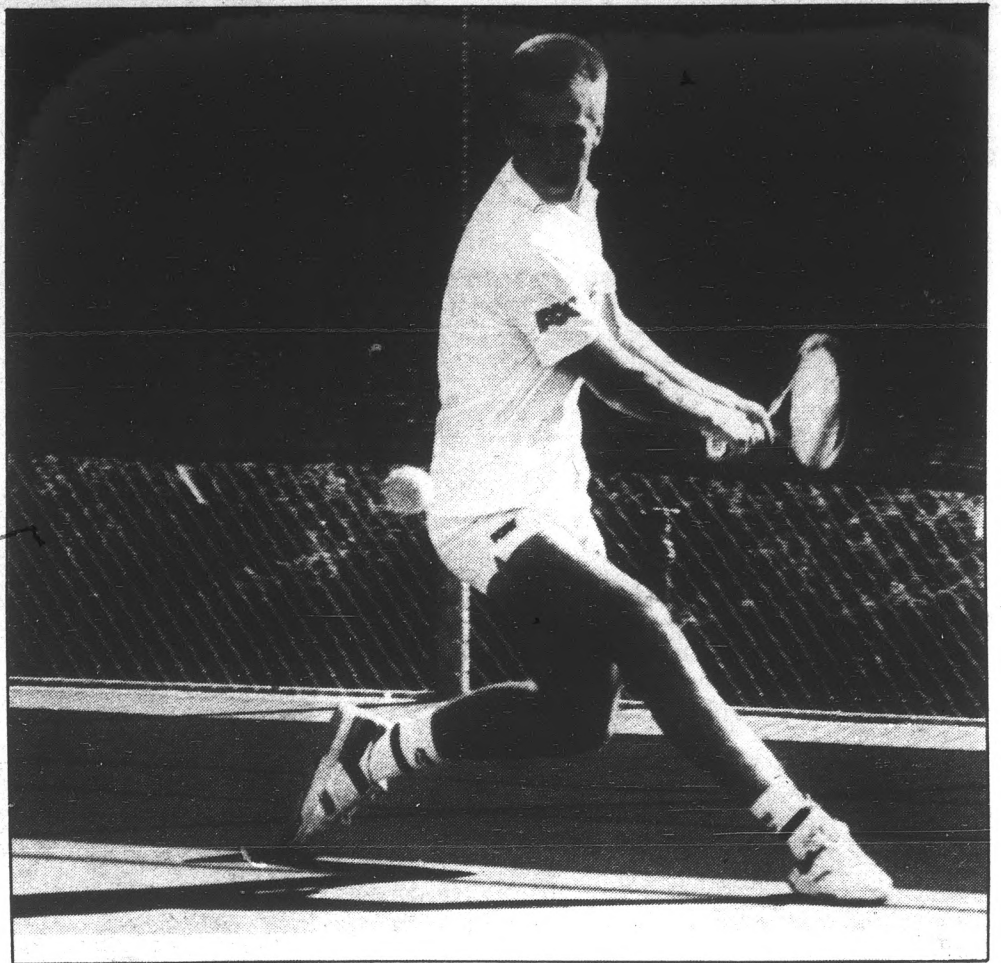

Although Gyetko is only a freshman, he shows signs of being a future star.

"He's been in real tight situations before and he's a freshman playing like a senior," Belken said. "When we played in Milwaukee, where they seat 5,000 people, Brian was the most mature kid on the court."

In other singles play, ASU junior Doug Sachs beat NAU's Dils and Utah's Jari Koho, 6-1, 6-2, and 6-3, 6-4, respectively. Ken Kuperstein, a junior, beat NAU's Olin, 6-1, 6-0, and Utah's Chin, 6-1, 6-1.

Sun Devil junior Jeff Wood, coming off a serious water-skiing accident that left him hospitalized for nine days, beat NAU's Greg Krogh, 6-0, 6-2. He gave up ASU's only loss on Saturday, going down to Utah's Brendan Bowyer, 3-6, 2-6. But Belken was not worried about the loss.

"There are things he needs to work on because of the accident," Belken said. "But he kept competing. He fought 'til the end. That's what is important."

Jerome's rebounding leads Devils past USC

By GARY JACKSON
State Press

During a season of ups and downs, John Jerome is hoping that his latest upswing is an indication of things to come.

The 6-foot-8 Sun Devil forward led the Sun Devils with a season-high 11 rebounds on Saturday in ASU's 78-74 victory over Southern Cal.

Before he stepped in and took charge during the game against USC, Jerome had sporadically alternated from having career-high games to low single-figures in scoring and rebounding this season.

"I thought I was due," Jerome said. "I thought I had to redeem myself after UCLA."

Jerome shot 0-5 from the floor and 0-2 at the free-throw line, while grabbing only four rebounds, during the 94-81 loss to UCLA Thursday.

"I was so embarrassed — It (UCLA) was the worst game of my life," Jerome said after the USC game. "I was killing myself at the perimeter. Tonight I started going to the glass."

In the game against UCLA, three of Jerome's five misses were launched from around the three-point line. Two nights later, against USC, Jerome would sink six of nine field goal attempts, making four layups and two shots from inside the paint as the second-leading Sun Devil scorer.

Jerome scored 17 points, 10 of which were recorded in the last nine minutes of the game, during the come-from-behind victory for ASU.

With nine minutes remaining Saturday, Jerome followed up on his own missed shot and put the rebound back into the basket to bring the Devils within one point, 56-55.

On the Devils next trip to the basket, Jerome converted a three-point play to tie the score, 59-59. The Trojans fell behind before again tying the score at 63.

Jerome's rebounding and scoring were crucial during the last few minutes of the game. After missed free throws by Sun Devils Trent Edwards and Mark Carlino, Jerome muscled his way in to steal the rebounds and convert two points each time.

"He really played a good game," coach Steve Patterson said. "He scored points strictly on hustle."

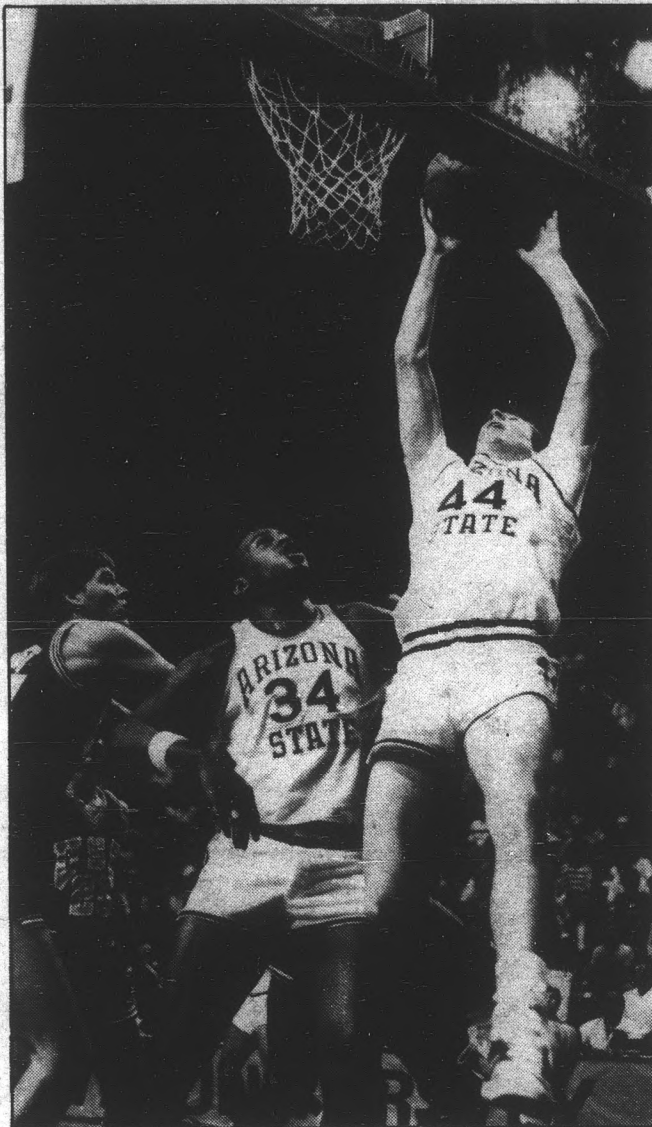

"He has been struggling the last few games, but he played well on defense, got some boards and was super on offense tonight."

"I hope to continue to do well and concentrate more mentally," Jerome said. "It's what I haven't been doing — I've got to start."

"It (the win) makes me happy. Hopefully we'll have a winning season. It's time for an upswing."

As a junior in his first year at ASU, Jerome has had to adjust to playing at the university level.

Last year, Jerome averaged 15.9 points and 7.6 rebounds a game at Mesa Community College and finished in second John Jerome, No. 44, pulls down a rebound while teammate Trent Edwards looks on.

Jerome was ranked as the fourth-best junior college player in the country last season by The Sporting News and earned all-tournament honors as the fourth-leading scorer and rebounder at the junior college national tournament.

"The only difference is the hoopla, the media, the court size and the crowds," Jerome said about the two schools. "Don't get me wrong — the talent is better."

Hoops

Wheeler turned in a 16-point performance while dishing out nine assists.

For the Trojans, Chris Munk and Chris Moore each scored 14 points in a losing effort.

The Sun Devils are currently in second place in the Pac-10 standings behind unbeaten Arizona (8-0).

USC missed several opportunities in the closing seconds, but Wheeler and Carlino capitalized at the free-throw line to give the Sun Devils a victory going into Thursday's clash with No. 1 ranked Arizona.

Tennis

Lance Stanley beat Jason Purcell of the Lumberjacks, 6-1, 6-1, and Utah's Jeff Weichers, 7-5, 6-4. Freshman Joel Finnigan beat NAU's Brian Clark, 6-3, 6-2, to round out the singles play.

Doubles teams were just as solid as Wood and Finnigan teamed up to beat Krogh and Purcell, 6-4, 6-0, on Friday. Saturday they downed Utah's Koho and Weichers, 6-4, 6-3.

The third doubles match against NAU had Len Gyetko and

"This is definitely the best team I've had so far," Belken said.

Also falling into that category is Kurt Dempster, who started Friday's game for the Devils.

Dempster sat out all of last season recuperating from major arm surgery. A tendon from his left wrist was grafted onto his right arm. His performance on Friday was not stellar but was a good indication of things to come.

Dempster's fastball was, well, fast. He throws in the upper 80 mph range and should chalk up his share of strikeouts. His curveball was not breaking sharply in the early innings, but that will come in time. Physically, Dempster is in no pain and is past the tentative stage. Now he is working on "getting in the flow."

"Actually, I'm stronger now than I've ever been," Dempster said. "I was a little disappointed that I didn't have my rhythm, but I guess that happens."

"He's certainly not ready at this point to go out and pitch a big ballgame for the world," Brock said. "But he's right on schedule."

Friday's game brought some uncharacteristic power from the Sun Devil bats. Their three home runs were the first of the season. Kevin Higgins, Mike Burrola, and Tim Spehr did the honors.

"We're going to sneak up on some people who don't expect us to hit the long ball," Higgins said. "We'll surprise people with our power, I think."

Those surprised Friday included Brock.

"Higgins hadn't hit one out during batting practice," Brock said.
