

Mecham to face House: Governor's defense scheduled for committee

By VICKIE CHACHERE
State Press

PHOENIX — Gov. Evan Mecham will go before the House select committee today to defend himself on charges that he tried to hide a campaign loan, interfered with a state investigation of death threats in his office and embezzled state funds.

Mecham will appear at 10 a.m. today and deliver a sworn statement to the six Republicans and four Democrats on the panel. Mecham had asked that he be allowed to address the full House in its chambers, but committee chairman Rep. Jim Skelly denied the request, saying the governor will appear in the committee's regular hearing room as other witnesses have.

"I'll cover the facts," Mecham told his fellow Republicans at their annual convention in Phoenix Saturday. "I've been tried in the press for the last 3½ months . . . and I'll have my opportunity, and I hope you'll be tuned in so that you can get my side of the story."

The governor's testimony will wrap up more than a week of hearings on a report by House special counsel William French that outlines the charges. The House is expected to vote on whether to enact articles of impeachment against the governor later this week.

Thirty-one of the 60 House members need to vote in favor to begin the impeachment trial. In that trial, the Senate will serve as the jury, as Arizona Supreme Court Justice Frank X. Gordon will preside.

Saturday, Mecham held fast to his vow not to resign when he told Secretary of State Rose Mofford he will run in the first recall election in Arizona history rather than step down.

Mofford, who opened the letter at 6 p.m. Saturday in accordance with Mecham's wishes, would have assumed the governor's post had Mecham resigned. But the embattled Glendale Republican said he intends to stay.

"I was legally elected by the people of Arizona and I intend to fulfill my responsibilities as governor of the state until those same people vote to remove me from office, whether it be by a recall election in 1988 or in the general election of 1990 if I run for re-election at that time," Mecham wrote.

He added, "I have broken no laws."

Mofford said she would order a special recall election for May 17. Gubernatorial candidates will have to collect 3,336 valid petition signatures between Feb. 17 and March 18 to have their names appear on the ballot.

Democrat Carolyn Warner, who lost to Mecham in the three-way race in November 1986, has said she will run in the recall election. Former U.S. House Minority Leader John Rhodes, a Republican, is considering whether to run.

The governor, who also faces six felony charges stemming from his failure to disclose a $350,000 loan from Tempe developer Barry Wolfson, filed his 1988 personal finance disclosure statements Friday.

The statements list the loan from Wolfson and the names of 13 individuals who signed $50,000 promissory notes to back the loan. A 14th backer, Warner Stevens, was not listed on the form.

Babbitt lashes out at Democratic opponents' policies

By VICKIE CHACHERE
State Press

Bruce Babbitt, the former Arizona governor turned presidential hopeful, launched a new attack on the Democratic front-runners this weekend, just one week before the crucial Iowa caucus.

"The risk now is to be cautious," said Rick Martin, Babbitt's deputy press secretary in Iowa. "He who hesitates finishes fourth."

Babbitt needs to finish at least third in the Feb. 8 Iowa caucuses to attract the necessary media attention and financial support needed to continue his bid for the Democratic nomination, political analysts say.

Babbitt began his attacks Saturday when he questioned Illinois Sen. Paul Simon's loyalty to the Democratic party. Simon received the endorsement of the Des Moines Register, the state's largest newspaper, Sunday. In a speech planned for Sunday afternoon, Babbitt planned to question Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis' platform and will criticize Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt today, Martin said.

In his Saturday speech, Babbitt said he doubts Simon's assertion that he is a "real Democrat," because Simon voted in favor of the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget legislation and supported the reinstatement of investment tax credits that have saved corporations about $24 billion.

"Paul Simon's platform is so irresponsible and so far beyond the bounds of economic reality that sensible people are forced to wonder, 'Does he not understand, or does he not care about the consequences of what he is saying?'" the 49-year-old Babbitt asked.

He added that Simon's social program platform is, "the most expensive public works project since the Egyptian pyramids."

Pat Mitchell, Simon's Iowa campaign coordinator, said, "Being called unfaithful to the principles of the Democratic party is like being called forgetful by Ronald Reagan."

"Basically, what Babbitt's doing is trying to deflect attention from his own problems. Everyone here thinks he's gone off the deep end."

Babbitt had planned to add some "spice" to his campaign during the last week of campaigning to go along with a television ad blitz so that the average Iowa viewer would see Babbitt campaign spots six or seven times during the next week.

Scott Phelps, a deputy press secretary in Babbitt's Phoenix campaign headquarters, said the speech was not intended to be hostile, but Babbitt wanted to point out the differences between himself and Simon.

"Somewhere along the line what has gotten lost is that a candidate puts all his cards on the table and lets the voters look at them," said Phelps, who served as Babbitt's press secretary during Babbitt's last year as governor.

On Feb. 8, about 250,000 Iowans will turn out at precinct caucuses to indicate their preference for president.

Robert Beckel, former campaign manager for Walter Mondale and now an analyst with Washington-based National Strategies, said: "Babbitt is poised to have some significant breakthrough this week, and he knows what he needs to do. He's obviously moving in Iowa."

FIJI president hopes to nix 'Animal House' image

By SCOTT LUCK
State Press

After a massive reorganization that cut ASU's Phi Gamma Delta (FIJI) fraternity's membership by two-thirds, the FIJIs hope to dispel their "Animal House" image and rebuild a responsible organization.

"We don't want to maintain the image of an animal house. We want to maintain the image that we're a philanthropic house — that we're the people who do the community service," ASU FIJI President David Martin said during an informal Sunday interview.

The FIJIs are on disciplinary probation for the next two years and will have to move out of their Old Row home June 1 because of hazing violations that occurred before Martin assumed the house presidency.

After momentarily discussing the mysterious disappearance of the house "tiki" ornament Saturday night, Martin and active member Karl Roessler, clad in a "FIJI" sweatshirt, departed for a casual breakfast interview at an Apache Boulevard restaurant.

The FIJI brothers related how several members broke house regulations last semester, and 26 were subsequently expelled from the fraternity, and many friends of the de-activated members withdrew, thus cutting the membership from about 120 to 40, current active Roessler said.

Martin, a political science senior, said the fraternity plans on "beefing up" its membership but is shooting for a relatively small total of 70 to 80 members, to keep up the unified feeling of the house that was generated during the hazing investigation.

Martin said the fraternity has experienced the same depressed pledge interest that has been evident throughout ASU's Greek system during this semester's Rush Week. He added the amount of negative press may have affected pledge interest.

Two prospective Jewish pledges decided not to join the house because of reported anti-Semitic incidents, Martin said. The Jewish incidents were instigated by members who were kicked out of the fraternity, according to a FIJI counsel response document to the University's statement of charges.

This semester, Martin said the fraternity would like to attract 15 to 20 "unique" individuals to join the tight-knit FIJI family.

"It's a family feeling because we've been through hell together," Roessler, a communications senior, said, alluding to the struggle the fraternity began last January to successfully restore unity after in-fighting separated the house into two factions. "It was the worst year of my life."

Martin and Roessler stressed that the benefits of the reorganization were well worth losing the FIJIs' campus home.

Even though the house faced the loss of its registration as a campus organization last semester, an evaluator from the national headquarters in Lexington, Ky., said that the house had improved "11" on a scale of one to 10 in the past year, Martin said.

Although Martin and FIJI house members had to deal with constant inquiries concerning hazing accusations, the FIJIs were always polite, and

world/nation in brief

Iowa's largest-circulating daily newspaper endorses Dole, Simon

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa's largest-circulating daily newspaper on Sunday endorsed Republican Bob Dole and Democrat Paul Simon in the state's Feb. 8 presidential caucuses.

The Des Moines Register, in departing from a tradition of not endorsing candidates before the caucuses, rejected Vice President George Bush for supporting the Iran-Contra deal and said Democrats would not have to apologize if any of their party's candidates won, except Gary Hart.

The newspaper gave its approval to the two senators from nearby Midwestern states in side-by-side editorials and explained its decision to make the unusual endorsements in a separate column by editor James P. Gannon.

No other large Iowa daily so far has endorsed candidates in the precinct presidential selection process, which provides the first voter test for six Republican and seven Democratic candidates.

Foreign minister denies bribe offer by close friend of Meese

JERUSALEM (AP) — Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said he was not offered a bribe by a close friend of Attorney General Edwin Meese and "would have thrown the aide out the window" if he had been, a newspaper reported Sunday.

The daily Maariv quoted Peres as also saying in an interview that it was "just nastiness" to say a bribe was behind Israel's decision not to attack a proposed Iraqi pipeline.

Meese, under investigation for corrupt business practices, has been linked to the affair by a 1985 memo from his longstanding friend, E. Robert Wallach.

In the memo to Meese, Wallach, an American Jewish attorney, cited a plan to pay off a top-ranking Israeli official in return for a guarantee that Israel would not bomb the pipeline.

Anti-abortion amendment changes feminist view of civil rights bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Feminists who worked for years to win passage of a broad civil rights bill are trying to decide if they still want it now that the Senate has added an anti-abortion amendment likely to stick.

Legal experts say the amendment, sponsored by Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., has far-reaching implications that could outweigh the protections women would gain elsewhere in the Civil Rights Restoration Act the Senate passed 75-14 last Thursday.

"I think it has the potential for really allowing institutions to discriminate against women and girls (for having had an abortion)," said Judith Lichtman, executive director of the Women's Legal Defense Fund. "There is no way to describe the Danforth amendment but as a devastating defeat."

Tempe police chief retires after 20 years of service

By MIKE BURGESS
State Press

After nearly 20 years as Tempe's top cop, Police Chief Arthur Fairbanks hung up his holster for good on Friday.

"I've been a lawman for 43 years and it's just time to retire," Fairbanks said as he toyed with a small plastic police car during an interview in his second story office at police headquarters.

Fairbanks, 63, officially retires in April. He will spend the next two weeks aiding David Brown, 40, the new chief, who served 12 years on the Tempe force before becoming Yuma's chief of police in 1980.

He said although he is retiring, he doesn't want to leave law enforcement entirely.

"I want to do some consulting," he said. "I hope to do a little writing also."

Fairbanks, who was born in Baltimore and raised in the Valley, came to the Tempe Police Department in 1969.

Before taking over the reins of the Tempe force, he spent 22 years with the Phoenix Police department, where he reached the rank of deputy chief. He spent one year as chief in Yuma.

Fairbanks, who has done every police job except motorcycle patrol, is the city's third chief of police.

Under Fairbanks the department has grown from 40 to 250 officers. The department recently moved into a multimillion-dollar complex and has adopted a new high-tech communications system.

Fairbanks said during his years as chief, crime in Tempe has become more violent, which he said is caused by the city's growing population and ASU students.

"The college age-group is mostly involved," he said. "The fact is that when you have 40,000 in that age-group like ASU, chances are you are going to have more crime."

He also said the narcotics business in Tempe has skyrocketed.

Fairbanks' normally reserved demeanor changed when asked about his department's most publicized case — the 1985 murder of 13-year-old newspaper carrier Christy Ann Fornoff.

"There was so much conjecture in that case," he said, partly blaming the press. "That bothered me a lot. It made (the detectives handling the case) look like stumblebums."

Fornoff was sexually assaulted, strangled and left behind a dumpster in a Tempe apartment complex. Donald Beatty, a maintenance man at the complex, was convicted of the crimes.

During Fairbanks' years with the Tempe police he has gained a reputation as a disciplinarian.

He said he prides himself on the fact that the department has had only one major scandal under him.

In the late-70s two Tempe police officers resigned after they were arrested in Phoenix for soliciting prostitution.

Fairbanks' final year as chief probably was his most difficult.

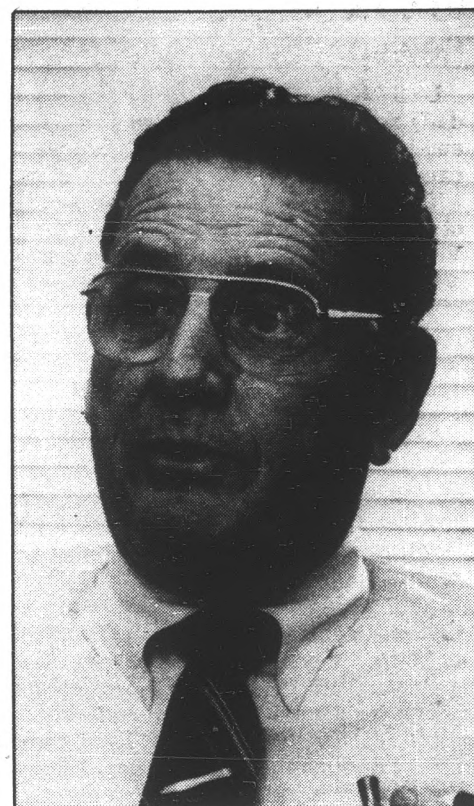

He lost his first officer in September when Lt. John Bradshaw, a 20-year veteran of the force and father of four, was killed by Martin J. Curran, a teacher at Tempe's Holdeman Elementary School.

Curran was killed minutes later by three shotgun blasts fired by highway patrol officers after he took a hostage and commandeered a motorcycle.

"I had always hoped that we'd never lose an officer," he said. "It was one of those things I really wanted to see. I almost made it. It was a great tragedy to the department."

Besides losing one of his men, Fairbanks was sued by one of his officers.

According to a $27 million lawsuit filed in October, Fairbanks and five other members of the department allegedly implemented a plan of harassment directed at Officer Gilbert "Fritz" Tuffli to cause his termination. The defendants falsely set up a permanent criminal investigative file charging Tuffli with making harrasing phone calls to the police department, the suit states.

State budget committee calls for funds increase

By KRISTI ELLIS
State Press

The Arizona Joint Legislative Budget Committee has recommended a 4.8 percent budget increase for the state university system, including a $22 million increase in general funds for ASU.

But the joint committee recommendation is still $14 million less than University officials say they need to operate the University and implement new programs.

The budget, which doesn't balance, includes an alternative plan which could cost the University $5 million.

A budget of nearly $170 million for the fiscal year 1988-89 was recommended for ASU, an $8 million increase over last year's approved operating budget. ASU West would be granted $10.7 million, a $3 million increase from 1987-88.

Frank Sackton, chairman of the ASU budget council, said: "I think the Legislature will be more inclined to select the budget prepared by its own staff, the JLBC. Historically, the Legislature has selected the JLBC budget."

The JLBC submitted a $2.97 billion budget Wednesday, requiring more than $248 million in additional funds.

Ted Ferris, staff director of the JLBC, said the budget he submitted Wednesday provides a starting point for lawmakers, who must consider raising taxes and other revenues or cutting services.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

The king is dead

Vengeance is the word of the day at the Arizona capitol

Hunter S. Thompson
North American Syndicate

"When you strike at a king, you must kill him." — Ralph Waldo Emerson.

The sun comes up late in Phoenix. It was still 7 in the morning when they threw me out of the Jacuzzi for being naked. I had complained that the water wasn't hot enough, so a man in a brown suit with a heavy RED voltmeter in his hand came rushing through the huge iron gate leading to the pool area and started yelling about all the things that were wrong.

"How far can they push me?" he shouted. "Who's making all these complaints? You're naked! The water's too cold, the guests went crazy, some rotten animal screw-head turned my lights out and screwed around with my temperature valves. . . I quit!" he screamed. "I hate my life!"

"Calm down," I said. "You're sick! You're a wretched lying whore! You're out of your mind! Get away from me! I have my own problems!"

I slid up from the water and down the cold slab stairs to my cactus-covered suit on the far edge of the parking lot, where the sheriff was waiting with two other men who said they were private detectives.

"These gentlemen want to ask you some questions," said the sheriff. "They represent the Evan Mecham Legal Defense Fund."

"Wonderful," I said. "Let's go outside." They shuffled out, saying nothing, while I reached into my golf bag and jerked out a 12-gauge Smith-Wesson riot gun, cranked one round of .00 high-brass buckshot into the chamber and followed them outside. There was a lot a quick screaming when they saw the weapon. Everybody ran. I put eight rounds into the front of their rented Buick, and after that it was quiet.

Nobody seemed to notice. These things happen in Phoenix. It is the only town in the world where people threaten to kill me every time I come to town. This time it was beaten to death, which is almost mild, in context, or compared to what happened to Don Bolles. Life is cheaper here than it was during the last days of Phnom Penh.

My bodyguard picked me up and we drove downtown to the state Capitol building, Mecham said he would appeal and stay in the office forever. And this talk of impeachment was just another scam to seize his money, ruin his life and make him a slave to pimps and liberals and yuppies. He brooded for a while, then went on the radio with a frantic, Oral Roberts-style appeal, begging for at least $200,000 to help pay his huge legal fees.

That pretty well sums up Mecham's situation. He is facing a serious recall election, six felony charges and a full-bore impeachment trial between now and June, and the mood in Arizona is vengeful. There is no such thing as paranoia in Evan Mecham's life these days. His worst fears and most insane suspicions are all true. They really are out to get him.

was on the run. . . When he accused his enemies of bugging his office with laser beam listening devices, the response among political staffers was to walk through the halls wearing tinfoil skull-caps and joking about "warding off laser beams."

It was like the time Jimmy Carter was attacked in his rowboat by a huge rabbit that came out of the water and went for his throat like a shark. That incident marked the end of Carter's effectiveness in the White House, and the laser joke was a death blow for Mecham.

The only problem now is how to make him disappear without heaping more scum and ridicule on Arizona's image. Even local Democrats are concerned because what Mecham might do to the hopes and dreams of the state's first alleged presidential candidate since Barry Goldwater — former Demo Gov. Bruce Babbitt, who is getting a free ride on the tumbrel these days, maybe all the way to New Hampshire.

But Mecham will not go away. He is like one of those big pack rats who will move into your house and decide to stay forever; he will build a palatial nest somewhere deep in the walls and spend the rest of his life stealing Bhat chains and gold Rolexes and anything else that glitters. . .

They have expensive tastes, and the only way to get rid of a pack rat is to lure it into the open — which is almost impossible — and blow its head off with a .22 Magnum or a .410 rat gun.

But you don't want to miss or slightly wound the beast or even poison him because then he will slink back into the walls and die, leaving you with a pile of death and disease and stinking black meat that will eventually poison the whole house.

Welcome to Phoenix: This is Mecham country.

'There is no such thing as paranoia in Evan Mecham's life these days. His worst fears and most insane suspicions are all true. They really are out to get him.'

where an ugly-tempered crowd had gathered in the main hearing room in the House of Representatives building to watch the impeachment hearings. They had already hung Mecham sometime around 8 that morning, but the body was still twitching when we got there around noon. Some of the governor's people had posted themselves outside the main door, handing out leaflets and crude cartoons about cowards, communists and sodomites.

The governor had been arraigned earlier that day on six felony charges. He pleaded "not guilty." After being photographed, fingerprinted and treated like a common criminal, he was quickly led out of the courthouse and whisked away in his limousine.

When I went down to the state Capitol building on Washington Street last week, the atmosphere was edgy and mean, but there was nothing uncertain about it. I have covered enough of these things from Nixon and the fiendish Wilbut Mills to Oliver North and Judge Bork to have a pretty good sense of the crowd and the governing mood, as it were, no matter who's on trial. . .

And there was no mistaking the mood of hardball finality in the Capitol. The witnesses called to testify under oath against the governor on felony obstruction-of-justice charges spoke with the confident clarity of men who had no fear. They have been cowed long enough by the threat of Mecham's cheapjack vengeance, but now he

Goodbye Jimmy

Editor:
On Jan 16, Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, a 12-year sports commentator, opened his mouth in an interview and the sky fell on him. After making some derogatory remarks about blacks, he was fired by CBS Sports. Snyder said that black athletes were superior to whites because during the Civil War, "the slave owner would breed his big black with his big woman so that he would get a big black kid." He also said that management is the only area of sports that whites dominate. He implied that whites would lose their stronghold on sports. These hasty remarks have cost him his career.

But who can blame him? He speaks the truth doesn't he?

Wrong.
His conclusion is based on completely false and unsubstantiated facts. But what troubles me the most is that the premises for his statements seems so logical. Many blacks, as well as whites, have subscribed to this belief. At first glance, it may appear true that select mating is the cause of black dominance in the "limelight" sports like football, basketball and track. A majority of blacks are on the lower economical wage bracket, and these are the most inexpensive sports. You tend to rule your own domain.

For example, imagine a financially disadvantaged black, who has attended inferior schools and deals with the trauma of a ghetto. This child will seek out football at an early age, playing every day with the utmost concentration. His role models are Jim Brown and Warren Moon, so he plays football — not because he envisions venturing from the ghetto, that would come later with age — but because the child would do what comes easiest to him. That is playing football, for it is human nature to use "Occam's Razor" to the shortest and easiest goals. For this reason, and this reason alone, have blacks evolved in the "media-hyped" sports.

To explain why a progressive civilization like this would have such Neanderthal ideas is simply to point to pure ignorance. I am not saying this to attack one person or group, because to be ignorant of the facts is easy when you don't care enough to logically base beliefs on concrete facts.

The law will concur: Ignorance is no excuse. Jimmy "The Greek" should have been fired for having been ignorant and eliciting his own racial biases on national television. A responsible journalist should not be able to speak, influence or manifest claims of ignorance and racial degradation to an impressionable public. The fact is that blacks merely want a chance to all the wealth maximizing tools that the Anglo-Americans enjoy.

Most would concur that blacks have endured enough prejudices and should be allowed to thrive in any chosen field. Anyone who would hold one's race in contempt for any reason should take a deeper look at himself. Fight the concept of institutionalized racism, the condoning of overgeneralizations and stereotypes that affect our thinking. Fight this ignorance that breeds such contempt. It should be clear that select mating has nothing to do with black dominance in these aforementioned sports.

To be or not to be: The Bard comments on Mecham

Ed Schubert
Asst. Opinion Editor

It's amazing how much Shakespeare knew about Arizona politics.

One can read much of the drama of Gov. Evan Mecham's impending fall in The Tragedy of Richard II, in which the playwright tells the story of a king who should have had a prosperous and peaceful reign, had he but followed the laws of England and acted sensibly.

Instead, Richard illegally confiscated the estate of a nobleman whom he feared and despised — an act of petty revenge — and in so doing angered and alienated all the nobility, whose support he needed in order to govern. But even before seizing Bolingbroke's estate, the king had already earned the contempt of the nobles by his habit of confusing his personal finances with those of the realm.

It need not have happened — Richard shorn of his crown, imprisoned and finally murdered in Windsor Castle — if only the king had listened to those who foresaw the impending disaster and urged him to change his course: to act, for once, in his own best interest.

But Richard was a man loath to take advice, except from a small group of cronies who were every bit as out of touch with reality as he was.

Does it all sound a little familiar?

In Act II, the Duke of York expresses the futility of trying to reason with the king. He could have been talking about Mecham:

*Vex not yourself nor strive not with your breath,
For all in vain comes counsel to his ear.*

But the tragedy of the drama is that, for all his failings, Richard was really not a bad man. His character had genuine strains of generosity and nobility, which were consumed with him in the calamity he brought upon himself.

Similarly, Mecham doesn't seem an evil man. A crook, probably; incompetent and bigoted, manifestly — nevertheless, the governor doesn't seem to intend harm. He really means well. It's not that he's bad at heart; he's just a poor klutz who's been hopelessly out of his depth since the day he was born. And it's hard not to feel sympathy for him as the end draws near.

And as he approaches the end of his rope, Ev demonstrates another characteristic in common with Richard II: crazy mood swings as events run out of hand. At one point the governor feistily insists that "resignation is not an option," but later, wearily says he will "keep his own counsel" on the subject. He continues to make abrasive statements and taunt minorities as if he were politically indestructible. But then he will pause to say that it won't be the end of the world if he doesn't complete his term in office.

Similarly, Richard is at first confident that his position is secure despite anything he does or omits to do:

*Not all the waters of the rough rude sea
Can wash the balm off from an anointed King.
The breath of worldly men cannot depose
The deputy elected of the Lord.*

Then, upon learning that his army of 20,000 has disbanded and fled, leaving him helpless before the troops of rebelling nobles, he panics:

*But now the blood of twenty thousand men
Did triumph in my face, and they are fled;
And, till so much blood thither come again,
Have I not reason to look pale and dead?*

But moments later, for no good reason, he has regained his confidence:

*I had forgot myself. Am I not King?
Awake, thou coward majesty! thou sleepest.
Is not a King's name twenty thousand names?*

And only moments later, as the desperation of his situation begins to sink in, Richard again desponds:

*For God's sake let us sit upon the ground
And tell sad stories of the death of Kings!*

Thus Shakespeare describes the bizarre psychology of an arrogant leader faced with extinction. It is a frantic state of mind that has not changed much in 500 years.

Mecham's position today is, if anything, more desperate than was Richard's toward the end of Act III. The omens predict that the end is near for the governor, as they did for the doomed king in the year 1400:

*The bay trees in our country are all withered,
And meteors fright the fixed stars of heaven;
The pale-faced moon looks bloody on the earth,
And lean-looked prophets whisper fearful change. . .
These signs forerun the death or fall of Kings.*

The National Security Agency is looking. We're in search of new professional relationships with both Mr. and Ms. Right. What we offer in return is a unique career that may well be the answer to your personal desires.

What we offer is certainly different. At NSA, our threefold mission is critical to our country's security. We process foreign intelligence information. We safeguard our government's communications. And we secure our nation's computer systems. A mission of that proportion requires a diverse range of leading technology and talented professionals.

Currently, NSA is searching for Mathematicians, Computer Scientists, Language Specialists and Electronic Engineers.

Our Mathematicians work with applied and pure math. They apply—and create—a host of advanced concepts from Galois theory and combinatorics to probability theory and astrodynamics.

Computer Scientists discover a variety of projects and technology that is virtually unparalleled. We use literally acres of computers, including hardware from every major manufacturer. Applications include everything from communications software to artificial intelligence.

Language Specialists in Slavic, Near East, and Asian languages contribute to our mission in many ways. NSA linguists tackle the challenges of translation, transcription and analysis. They use both their language skills and their knowledge of world events.

Electronic Engineers also find a vast array of specialties from Signal Processing and CAD/CAM to Speech Processing and Computer Security.

The mission is vital, the variety staggering. And the benefits are also impressive. Our employees enjoy competitive compensation plus the many advantages of the Baltimore-Washington area.

If you're in search of a meaningful career with variety and distinction, look to NSA. Schedule an interview through your College Placement Office. Or write to us at the address below.

NSA will be on campus Feb. 24th interviewing graduating seniors for Engineering, Computer Science, Math and Language positions.

ASU students urged to get measles vaccinations

By KELLY PEARCE
State Press

Epidemics spread like wildfire and colleges are prime targets for attacks, according to ASU health officials.

Although there are no cases at ASU, 60 measles cases have been reported at Fort Lewis College in Durango, Colo.

Dr. Monty Roth, ASU director of student health, said "The health department advises that students who have not received the (measles) vaccine and may be susceptible to measles avoid travel to the (Durango) area."

ASU students born after December, 31, 1956, must be vaccinated against measles before they can register for classes.

Roth said before the immunization requirement, there were "sporadic" measles cases at ASU which prompted the creation of the policy.

The requirement was enacted in Fall 1985 on a lenient scale, and enforced strictly by Fall 1986, Roth said.

The immunization is required at all three Arizona universities.

"The Arizona (university) system started the requirement as soon as most everyone else did," he said.

Last spring, NAU experienced almost 35 measles cases and had to administer a "crash program for immunization," Roth said.

The outbreak occurred because their immunization requirement was enforced after the one at ASU.

Roth said one of the most notable epidemics in the United States occurred three years ago at the University of Indiana, where the college closed classes for several weeks.

Roth said this is why the Colorado epidemic is not being looked upon lightly.

"I know that a lot of students go here (Durango) to ski," he said.

Measles affects people in early adulthood, first appearing as the common cold and possibly developing into pneumonia.

Most victims are over it in 10 days.

The measles vaccine was developed in the 1950's. Deon Rasmussen, nursing supervisor at the health center, described the ASU vaccine requirement.

Students must provide the date of their immunization, get the free vaccine from the student health center or obtain a temporary or permanent waiver before enrolling in the University.

Rasmussen said waivers are given to students with certain medical cases or religious beliefs.

Individuals born after January 1, 1957 are highly susceptible since many have not been exposed to or had measles.

Others have received a killed virus vaccine which was less effective than the live attenuated vaccine used since January 1, 1968.

The health center also encourages students to be immunized against rubella, mumps, tetanus and diphtheria.

Babbitt

"Babbitt is just about everybody's second choice behind the candidate they favor. If any of those candidates falter, he'll be right there."

Babbitt attracted a barrage of national media attention during the last month when he literally "stood up" for a tax increase during a televised debate on NBC.

The attention has translated into increased campaign contributions, but Babbitt has not attracted more than 10 percent of Iowa Democrats' support, according to recent polls.

William Schneider, resident scholar with the American Enterprise Institute in Washington, said, "He's caught on with everybody except the voters."

"He's getting a lot of attention, but not a lot of votes. He's honest and courageous, but once the voters hear what he has to say, it makes them nervous."

Babbitt, who has said he will increase taxes and institute a "means-testing" that would force wealthy senior citizens to pay taxes on Social Security benefits, won't be able to cut in on support for Dukakis, Gephardt or Simon, Schneider said.

But Beckel said Babbitt's straightforward approach to taxes could be "his greatest strength and his greatest weakness," attracting voters who appreciate honesty and are willing to face up to economic realities.

"People are more willing to accept that message now than they were in 1984," Beckel said.

Meanwhile, a Rocky Mountain poll of 401 registered voters in Arizona indicates that Babbitt's home state support is slipping.

Babbitt is the favorite of 30 percent of the Arizona voters, down from his ranking of 43 percent in May and 32 percent in October.

Among the GOP candidates, Vice President George Bush is the favorite, followed by Kansas Sen. Bob Dole.

Arson fire guts abandoned restaurant

By MIKE BURGESS
State Press

An arson fire destroyed the rear annex of an abandoned Tempe restaurant late Saturday night.

The first alarm blaze at the Lunt Avenue Marble Club at 1212 E. Apache Blvd. was confined to a wood frame addition of the building, said Assistant Fire Chief Cliff Jones.

"There was heavy fire showing from the rear portion when we arrived," Jones said. "Firefighters were able to keep it from spreading."

Firefighters got the call at 8:46 p.m. Four engines and two ladder trucks had the blaze under control by 9:06 p.m., Jones said.

Jones said fire officials are still investigating the fire and could not provide a dollar loss.

In other incidents:

•A Tempe convenience store was robbed of an undetermined amount of cash early Saturday, police said.

A man entered the 7-11 store at 5082 S. Price Road about 2:30 a.m., pulled out a .25-caliber nickel-plated automatic handgun and told the clerk he wanted all the money, including the clerk's wallet, said Tempe police Sgt. P.J. Janik.

The suspect fled the store westbound on foot.

He is described as Caucasian, 5 feet 11 inches to 6 feet tall, 145 to 160 pounds with black hair, hazel eyes and several days' growth of beard. He was last seen wearing blue jeans and a plaid shirt.

•Tempe police recovered a stolen Suzuki Samurai early

police report

Saturday after a five-minute chase through the south side of the city, police said. The suspects fled the vehicle and escaped near Mill Avenue and Calle Monte Vista.

The chase began in the Warner and Ranch Road area after police responded to a burglary in progress call. The vehicle had been reported stolen from Phoenix a few hours earlier.

•A Phoenix man and three juveniles were arrested after they allegedly tried to steal a Ford Bronco from the parking lot of University Theaters, 1025 E. Broadway Road, Thursday night.

•Two ASU students were arrested early Sunday after they allegedly tried to steal a parking meter from a lot south of the Student Services Building.

Police said Brian William Radley and Brian Scott Hughes were charged with theft, booked and released on their own recognizance.

•Two men unaffiliated with the University were arrested at the east practice field for possession of marijuana Saturday, police said.

Police said Stephen A. Herron and Brett James White were booked and released on their own recognizance.

•A man was arrested for stealing a bicycle and bicycle parts from outside the Engineering Building, police said.

Autopsy performed on shop owner shows wound was self-inflicted

An autopsy performed on a Tempe transmission shop owner who was found shot to death Thursday determined the single gunshot wound was self-inflicted, but detectives are still investigating the case as a homicide.

"Just because they ruled it a suicide doesn't change our view of it," said Lt. Steve Graehling, head of the Tempe Police Department's criminal investigations division.

"We're still going to work on it." Graehling said police believe 47-year-old Norman E. Rahn of Scottsdale may have been killed during a burglary or robbery attempt although nothing was taken from the shop.

"We have nothing new to change our perception of what occurred," Graehling said.

Rahn was found shot to death inside Aamco Transmissions, 211 W. Southern Ave., shortly after a 911 emergency call was made to Tempe police at 7:02 a.m. He was found lying face up in a back office with the shop's front door open when the first officer arrived at the scene three minutes later.

Graehling refused to say why detectives think Rahn was the victim of a possible robbery attempt.

The autopsy, which was performed early Friday, showed that the barrel of the small-automatic handgun used in the shooting was resting against Rahn's chest when it was fired, which is typical of a self-inflicted wound.

FIJIs

Martin was prompt in returning calls.

"One thing we push in our pledge-education program is to be nice, be a gentleman," Martin said. He added that the fraternity is now stressing academics first and campus involvement, as well as the philanthropic activities.

The FIJIs are currently assisting in the Varsity Nurses' Book Sale — a program Martin says the fraternity members "plan on tackling aggressively."

Although Roessler and Martin said their house received a lot of negative feedback from other fraternities, they hope their house's travails during the past year help ASU's fraternities cooperate to confront their problems.

"I want the Greek system to read this well because our Greek system is not supportive of each other. A system works together," Roessler said.

"That's why they call it a system."

However, Martin said the University's sanctions against the FIJIs may "cause the fraternities that want to make changes not to, because they are fearful of the University cracking down on their house."

Although University representatives admitted that several of the 14 hazing charges against the fraternity were instigated by former members, the University took no action against the ex-FIJIs.

Martin said the current house members are happy with the settlement with ASU and did not mind giving up its campus house because "it's not a very nice house."

FIJI attorney Terry Davis said the fraternity would like to purchase a new house to avoid a landlord-tenant relationship.

As the two FIJIs enthusiastically discussed the fraternity's future on the short drive back to 406 Adelphi Drive, Roessler detoured to Jentilly Lane, where he pointed out a vacant complex of condominiums that the fraternity is contemplating leasing.

As Roessler had said, "Right now to be a FIJI, you must be a very, very unique individual, because we are a totally new house, and we can go anywhere with this," while Martin interjected, "The sky's the limit."

World According to Carlin

'Mundane' not a word in George's vocabulary

By LAURIE SMITH
State Press

It was 8 p.m. Friday and the crowd at Celebrity Theatre was in no mood to take things seriously.

The audience cheered when Glenn Super ("Mr. Bullhorn") opened the show, but the feeling throughout was excited anticipation of the outrageous George Carlin.

That anticipation was well rewarded. Carlin opened his show by focusing on "people I can do WITHOUT." He rattled off a list of generic brands such as "any man who mentions Jesus more than 300 times in a two minute conversation," and quickly had the audience laughing at their own personal experiences.

Carlin held the crowd captive from the moment he appeared. His mere presence on the stage was enough to fill the theater with excitement. Instantly his ability to transform the mundane into the hilarious turned a room full of adults typically consumed with everyday routine into a room full of giddy children completely at his mercy. His deliriously funny perspectives never failed to keep the crowd in tears, laughing at themselves and things they had experienced but had never before seen as quite so funny.

And that ability to make the common, not to mention the embarrassing, appear funny is the true secret of his appeal. Is there anyone who hasn't experienced the uncomfortable feeling of creeping BVD's?

It's that ability to poke fun at everyday occurrences that has made Carlin a stand-up hit, back from the the days when he amused college campuses with stoned analogies to his current more middle-aged, and even political, hazing. He hasn't gotten softer, but only older, and wiser. And more observant.

Who else could make driving a car sound so incredibly crazy but Carlin, with a face screaming paranoia, describing the

George Carlin

"automotive harrassment squad" that waits for him to hit the road. "OK, he's pulling out of the drive way now, everyone in position!"

He touched on everyone's fantasy when he imagined saying to the cop who pulls him over "Hey, don't I pay your salary? You're a public servant, get me a glass of water."

For close to two hours, Carlin never let his audience relax, but kept them laughing until bellies ached and delirium prevailed. He stayed loosely with tradition and satisfied his devoted fans with parodies on dogs and cats and actually managed to introduce new and more outrageous words to his famous "dirty words list."

George Carlin was at his shocking best and left his audience satisfied as they poured out of the theater feeling "high" and refreshed. Fans who missed the show Friday night will surely hear echos of it for days to come.

Oscar admires Felix in 'odd couple' of girls

By JILL HERBRANSON
State Press

Men beware: Daryl Hannah does not run around in the buff in this one.

In fact, there's not a fish to be seen in Miramax Films' latest release, "I've Heard the Mermaids Singing."

There are, however, some slimy octopus guts, which the klutzy protagonist sends flying across a Japanese restaurant.

But no mermaids.

What this movie does have is one Polly Vandersma (Sheila McCarthy), an "organizationally impaired" temporary worker who lives alone in a small bachelorette apartment, which is in a constant state of disarray. There are characteristic crumbs of food on Polly's furniture — and face — at all times, usually caused by some omnipresent saltines (Polly wanna cracker?). Her wardrobe makes her look as though K-Mart threw up on her. Her electric-red tousled hair is screaming for a keg of shampoo. All in all, Polly is a sweet, female version of "The Odd Couple's" Oscar.

Polly (Sheila McCarthy) has superhuman dreams in the movie "I've Heard the Mermaids Singing."

Enter Felix. Polly gets a temporary job at an art gallery, and is immediately taken with her new boss, Gabrielle St. Peres (Paule Baillargeon), who is often referred to simply as 'the Curator'. The Curator is the epitome of sophistication; her entire lifestyle is comprised of nothing but the best. Polly is intrigued and infatuated with Gabrielle, awed by everything from her fashionable style of dress to her insightful analyses of art. This attraction is furthered when Polly discovers that Gabrielle is involved in a lesbian affair with a much younger woman, Mary Joseph (Ann-Marie Macdonald).

After a few weeks of working together, the Curator, who has grown fond of Polly's quirky ways, offers her a permanent position. This proposal is made in the aforementioned Japanese restaurant. At this point, the octopus takes flight, landing with a graphic glitch! on the floor. With that, Polly cheerily accepts.

The women's friendship strengthens, and one night, while in a slightly drunken state, Gabrielle confides in Polly that it is her dream to create something beautiful that would last forever. She dismisses her own paintings as 'simple-minded', but is still obsessed with the desire for talent.

Polly convinces Gabrielle to show her the paintings. What she sees takes her breath away. Never at a loss for words, she exclaims, "It's so... it's so... nice!" She sneaks one home, and then into the gallery, where a critic sees it and writes a rave review about it. This brings Gabrielle the praise and adulation she had always wanted — but for some reason, she doesn't seem as happy as she should be.

The mystery is eventually revealed to Polly, and her idol is inevitably knocked off her pedestal.

So where do the mermaids fit in? Before she met the Curator, Polly, who often indulges in vivid daydreaming (the depictions of which are the most worthwhile parts of the movie), relates the beautiful voices of mermaids to the contentedness of her life. She loses this feeling under the Curator's influence, then regains it, along with her own identity, after seeing Gabrielle for what she really is.

In a time of overdone themes, overt sex and stale predictability in the cinema, "I've Heard the Mermaids Singing" is fresh, new, and eccentrically humorous.

Eat your heart out, Hannah. McCarthy's got the corner on the fish market.

Youth salve draws fountain of Americans to border city

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Hundreds of Americans seeking a cure for wrinkled skin have bought out supplies of a prescription acne cream that is available in this border city without a prescription for a fraction of the U.S. price, drug store operators say.

Buyers descended on Matamoros following reports that Retin-A cream can help restore wrinkled, sun-damaged skin, clearing the shelves and prompting pharmacies to order more.

"We have been out of stock of Retin-A since Sunday," said a clerk at Calderoni Pharmacy in Matamoros, "but we hope to get more sometime before the weekend."

A 10-gram tube available over the counter was going for about $1.20 when the acne medication sold out.

The prescription drug sells for $12 to $15 for a 15-gram tube in the United States.

The clerk, who declined to give her name, said most recent buyers of the cream are elderly U.S. tourists, known locally as winter Texans. Previously, she said, Retin-A buyers were parents purchasing the cream for their teen-age sons and daughters.

Ramon Esquivel, a clerk at the Farmacia Jardin, said the Matamoros store also has been sold out of the cream since Sunday, but he hoped to have a new supply by the weekend.

"Some of them come in asking for the pomade, some of whom called it the wonder cream," he said.

A U.S. Customs inspector at Brownsville's Gateway International Bridge, however, said not everyone will be able to bring the cream into the United States.

"If a prescription is required here and someone brings it across, we will require a prescription, too," Fred Drew, a Customs inspector, told The Brownsville Herald. "If someone brings it over and does not declare it, we will seize it."

University of Michigan researchers reported last week in the Journal of the American Medical Association that the cream repaired sun-damaged skin in 30 patients who used it daily for four months.

Some doctors have since cautioned that the drug should not be considered an instant fountain of youth.

Men gymnasts win; women lose to Utah

A much improved men's gymnastics team earned a narrow victory over Houston Baptist University in a dual meet, while the women's team fell victim to Utah in a four-team meet on Friday in the Activity Center.

Coach Don Robinson had said before the meet that a win over HBU would be like beating a country, not a collegiate team.

After good performances in the first two events, the ASU women's team became distracted by an injury to Sun Devil all-America Suzy Baldock.

ASU, ranked No. 5 in the country, lost momentum long enough to allow third-ranked Utah to win the meet by .35 points.

Mosley's free throw helps ASU beat UA

Forward Shamona Mosley hit a free throw with seven seconds left to lift the ASU women's basketball team to a 65-64 victory over Arizona Saturday in the Activity Center.

Mosley tallied 18 points and grabbed 17 rebounds for ASU (7-9, 2-5), only one short of her career high.

The Wildcats (4-13, 1-6) have only defeated the Sun Devils four times in the 25-game series.

Track teams split 2 with Lumberjacks

Lynda Tolbert posted NCAA qualifying times of 6.87 seconds in the 55-meter dash and 7.66 seconds in the 55-meter hurdles as ASU beat Northern Arizona, 58-46, in a women's indoor track meet at Flagstaff on Saturday.

The men's team lost to the Lumberjacks, 62-51.

Redskins blast Broncos, 42-10

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Doug Williams, Timmy Smith and Ricky Sanders ripped apart the Denver defense with a record 35-point, 356-yard second quarter as the Washington Redskins won the Super Bowl by routing the Denver Broncos 42-10 and shutting down John Elway.

Washington spotted Denver a 10-0 lead, then came from behind for the seventh time in 14 wins this year to give the NFC its fourth straight lopsided victory in the NFL's championship game.

It was the Redskins' second Super Bowl victory in five years. And it was an eerie reprise for the Broncos, whose coach, Dan Reeves, said they were haunted by their 39-20 loss to the New York Giants in last year's game, a contest in which they led at halftime then were outgained 200-2 over the next 20 minutes.

If that was a haunting, this one was a possession.

Consider this:

•Williams, the MVP, was playing less than 24 hours after root canal on a molar, and set a Super Bowl record with 340 yards on 18-of-29 passing, 306 in the first half. Only six other quarterbacks have passed for 300 yards in a full Super Bowl. The four TD passes by the first black quarterback to play in this ultimate game tied the record for a Super Bowl.

•The 35 second-quarter points — on just 18 plays — were 14 more than the Super Bowl record for a quarter and the most in a single period in NFL playoff history. They used just 5:47 to score them and scored on five straight possessions, failing only when Williams downed the ball on the last play of the half.

•Smith, a surprise starter for George Rogers, rushed for 131 yards in the first half, five more than he had in the entire regular season. He finished with 204 yards in 22 carries, including his first two pro touchdowns. That broke Marcus Allen's record of 191 set in the Raiders' 38-9 rout of the Redskins in 1984.

•Sanders, who caught two of the four TD passes, had 131 yards on receptions in the first half and finished with a record 193 yards and nine receptions.

The 356 yards gained by Washington in the second quarter was just 17 less than its season-long average for a full game and its six touchdowns set a Super Bowl record.

It didn't start that way.

The Broncos scored on their first offensive play, a 56-yard pass from Elway to Ricky Nattiel, and added three more points on their second possession on Rich Karlis' 24-yard field goal.

But then came the boom, an offensive noise louder than the noise from the formation of jets that flew over Jack Murphy Stadium at the close of the national anthem. It was equaled by a defense that limited Elway to two completions in 15 attempts during that period, sacked him four times and picked off three of his passes.

Fifty-three seconds into the second quarter, Williams threw an 80-yard touchdown pass to Sanders. Less than four minutes later, it was a 27-yarder to Gary Clark, followed by a 58-yard TD run by Smith, his first pro touchdown; a 50-yarder to Sanders and an 8-yarder to Clint Didier.

It hardly looked like that at the start.

Beginning with the 56-yard touchdown pass from Elway to Nattiel on their first play from scrimmage, the Broncos befuddled the Redskins in the first quarter with just about everything in their diverse playbook.

But the Broncos couldn't finish off what they started.

Sun Devils fight off late rally to down Utah

By CHRIS DORSEY
State Press

A slight glimmer of light shone through the dark cloud that has rested above the ASU basketball team Saturday night after defeating Utah, 62-60.

The Sun Devils (12-7, 5-4 in the Pacific-10) were able to muster only their second win in the last six games. But the Utes made ASU earn the victory as they challenged the Sun Devils until the final horn sounded.

"We have really pushed them in the last 48 hours and they have responded," Sun Devil Coach Steve Patterson said. "The antedote for depression is hard work. You can't sit back on your heels and cry. You've got to buckle down."

It appeared in the early going that ASU had not recovered from its 40-point thrashing at the hands of No. 1-ranked Arizona after falling behind to Utah by five points, 13-8, with 13:48 left to play in the first half.

But Eric Holloway (13 points and 10 rebounds) began to bring ASU back and, with the help of Trent Edwards off the bench, the Sun Devils regained the lead and never relinquished it.

ASU changed defenses to keep the Utes off-balance and the transition resulted in an 11-0 run by the Sun Devils.

"We played predominately man-to-man but threw enough zone in there to keep them off-balance," Patterson said.

"We showed we have the ability to bounce back whether it is a one-point loss or a 40-point loss," Holloway said.

The win was needed to gain momentum going into two conference games this weekend with Stanford and California on the road.

Lyle wins Phoenix Open in sudden death

SCOTTSDALE (AP) — Scotland's Sandy Lyle made two bogeys on the 18th hole of the TPC at Scottsdale Sunday.

But the first one, on the 72nd hole of regulation play, was good enough to force a sudden death playoff for the $117,000 first prize in the Phoenix Open Golf Tournament. And the second bogey, on the third hole of that playoff, was enough to beat Fred Couples.

"He kind of gave it to me there at the end," Lyle said.

Couples said nothing at all. At least, not for publication. He fled the course immediately after the playoff and was not available for comment.

"He was a bit unlucky," Lyle said. "With the pressure on, he got his right hand over a bit and pulled it."

He did it twice.

Once on the last hole of regulation play, once on the last hole of the playoff.

Sun Devils continue undefeated with sweep

By DEAN GYORGY
State Press

The Sun Devil baseball team continued their winning ways over the weekend, sweeping two games from Cal-Riverside and raising its record to 5-0.

Steve Willis and Kevin Higgins homered in Saturday's game to lift the Devils to a 4-3 win. On Friday, Linty Ingram pitched a five-hit shutout for his second victory of the young season.

Saturday's game provided some anxious moments for the 1,563 fans in attendance. The Highlanders (0-2) got the tying run to third base with two out in the ninth before left-hander Rusty Kilgo came in and put out the fire.

"A game like today we get a lot of satisfaction from," Willis said, "because we had to fight for everything we got."

Cal-Riverside sent their first hitter of the game around to score, but Willis brought the Devils even with his second-inning solo shot to left-center field. Willis also doubled deep to left in the sixth, showing some of the power he possesses.

"They were breaking balls," Willis said. "I do try to turn on that pitch instead of taking it the other way, because you can't create any pop that way."

Willis has hit safely in all five games this year.

Higgins made the score 3-1 on the wings of his second home run of the year, a momentous blast he sent sailing toward Rural Road.

Tim Spehr singled through a drawn-in infield in the sixth to produce the fourth Devil run of the game.

ASU starter Kurt Dempster (2-0) had control trouble early, but eventually found his rhythm and looked strong. He pitched seven innings, giving up four hits and walking four.

With Friday's shutout, Linty Ingram (2-0) has now pitched 18 innings without yielding an earned run.

"Every time Linty goes out, no matter who we're playing against, he has the potential to throw a shutout," Willis said. "He'll be an All-American this year."

Ingram breezed through the innings, facing 31 men, just four more than the minimum 27.

"Some games if you're not going real smooth you just try to get through the nine innings," Ingram said. "But today I was thinking shutout all the way."

The Devils collected 12 hits, including three each by Mike Burrola and Dan Rumsey.

Burrola's injured back took him out of left field this weekend. Coach Jim Brock made him the designated hitter, a spot where he feels "very comfortable." But the move did require some mental adjustment.

"You have to stay a little more involved on the bench," Burrola said. "Out there in the game, you're into every pitch. Sometimes it's hard to stay into it."

ASU hosts Cal State-Northridge at 2:30 p.m. today and Tuesday at Packard Stadium.

Devils continue dominance, sweep 3 weekend matches

By DAVE BIGOS
State Press

The ASU men's tennis team continued its domination of the courts this weekend at Whiteman Tennis Center.

The Sun Devils (5-0) beat New Mexico, 6-3, on Friday, UC-Santa Barbara, 6-3, on Saturday and the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, 9-0, on Sunday.

The Devils' toughest opponent of the weekend was UC-Santa Barbara, but assistant coach Ford Oliver said he was not worried about some of the mistakes the team made.

"We had some sore kids out there yesterday," Oliver said. "They had a tough match Friday and it was a little stressful. Whenever the situation is stressful, you're gonna get more errors."

ASU had clinched Sunday's match with UNLV during the singles events. Doug Sachs beat Mark Coronado and Ken Kuperstein defeated Lee Rosenthal each by the scores of 6-3, 6-2.

Brian Gyetko downed Richman Mahlunga, 6-3, 6-1, and Mike Holten beat Crombie Hatfield, 7-5, 3-6, 6-1.

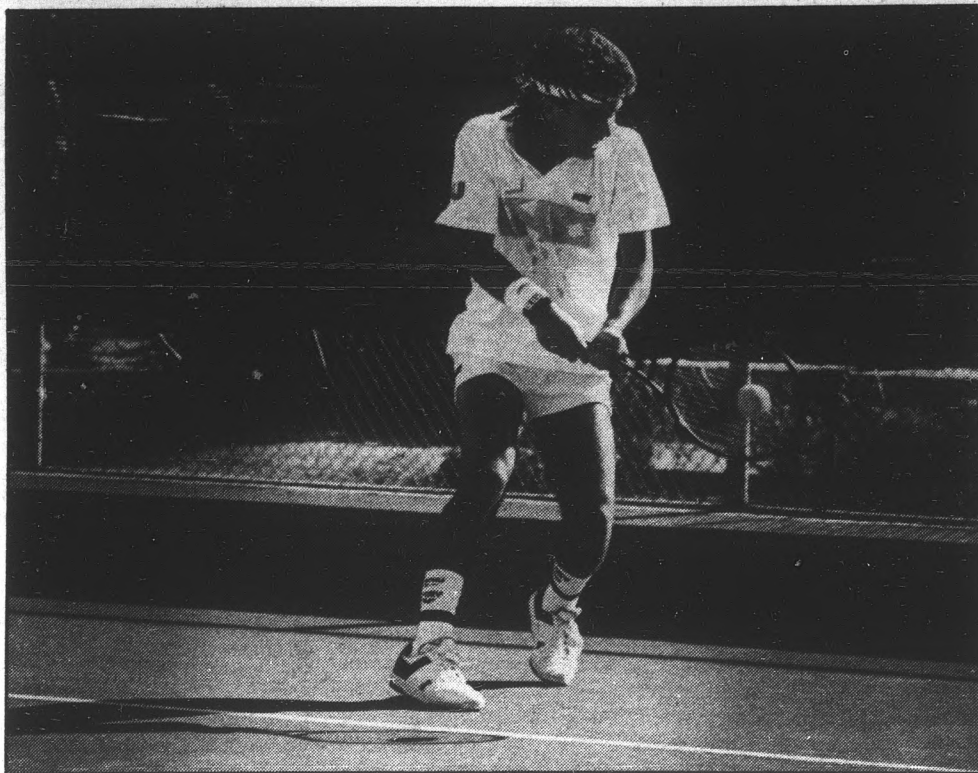

The five and six positions faired just as well as Jeff Wood breezed by Yuta Tsunoda and Lance Stanley defeated Robert Tomiyasu, 6-2, 6-1, and 6-4, 6-2, respectively.

After the singles matches were over, coach Lou Belken changed his doubles line-ups to give some playing time to non-starters. The substitutes showed Belken that his team has a lot of depth.

Len Gyetko and Stanley beat Mahlunga and Hatfield, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3. Scott Lambdin and Joel Finnigan quickly finished off Rosenthal and Tomiyasu, 6-3, 6-0.

Gyetko and Holten beat Coronado and Tsunoda, 6-4, 6-2, to remain undefeated in doubles this year.

On Thursday, the two will begin competing in the Rolex National Indoor Intercollegiate Tennis Championships and coaches Belken and Oliver are confident that they will do well.

Basketball

Offensively, sophomore Tarence Wheeler sparked the Devils with 19 points. The mark equaled a career-high mark set Dec. 22 against Pac-10 foe Washington.

ASU's point guard scored 14 points in the second half to pace the Sun Devils to the victory. It was the eighth straight game in which the Detroit native has reached double figures.

But Utah guard Chris Fulton also had a career night. The senior went into the contest averaging 5.7 points a game and finished the evening with a personal best of 16 points.

The Sun Devils led the entire second half but were tested in the final two minutes of play.

In front of a crowd of 5,240, the Utes came back from a 10-point deficit with 5:40 remaining.

ASU led by two points with 1:04 left in the game and Utah began to make a game of it.

But as the Sun Devils have been able to do all year long, their ability to hit clutch free throws saved the game.

Holloway and Wheeler teamed up to hit three and two free throws, respectively, to secure the victory.

Sophomore Mark Becker also ended the night in double figures with 12 points, and added nine rebounds.

For the Utes, Mitch Smith and Watkins Singletary scored 13 and 11 points, respectively.

ASU lacrosse club loses opener to UA

By CHRIS PIRKEY
State Press

In its first match of the season, the ASU lacrosse club lost to UofA on Saturday in Tucson, 14-13, in what coach Clark Mercer called a "disappointing" loss.

The Sun Devils had possession with 45 seconds remaining in the game, but could not score. Mercer said the match was close but that UofA played consistently. Combined with ASU's lack of hustle, the Wildcats held on for the win.

"They performed the basics well," Mercer said. "The UofA is not an outstanding team, but they are consistent. They out-hustled us, and our general will to win was lacking."

Juniors Greg Walaitis and Dave Dague combined to score nine out of the 13 goals for ASU, with Dague scoring seven goals and Walaitis scoring two. Walaitis also had four assists.

While both are returning players, Mercer doesn't want to discount the efforts of the non-veterans on the team.

"The younger players performed above and beyond what can be expected," Mercer said. "Our mental attitude just wasn't what it should have been."

Mercer said he felt practices had been going well last week and the team had enthusiasm going into Saturday's game. He also said the team was prepared physically and had endurance, but they just failed to perform the basics.

Traveling to the match was another factor Mercer attributed to the Sun Devils' loss. He said that unlike the varsity sports, who travel together, the club teams have to provide their own transportation, often getting to matches in their own vehicles.

"Playing away affects them," Mercer said. "They can't hop on a bus or plane to get there, they have to drive themselves."

Mercer said the ultimate goal of the team is to make the playoffs again and possibly host one of the playoff games. To do this, the team must win three of its five league games.

"We have so few games we rely on to make the playoffs," Mercer said. "We made the playoffs last year, and this year we want to improve upon that."

The team faces the Wildcats again on Friday and San Diego State on Saturday. Mercer said the team will be preparing all week to avenge their loss to UofA, as well as to defeat SDSU.

"We are going to be working on their offense and defense, reiterating the basics and what they learned last year," Mercer said.

"I'm surprised," Lyle said after the bizarre finish.

Lyle had finished at 15 under par and was standing by the green when Couples, in the last group, went to the tee on the 72nd hole needing only a par to win it outright.

He hooked his tee shot into the water, made bogey and gave Lyle a second chance.

After two extra holes were halved in par, they went to the 18th at the TPC at Scottsdale for the third hole of sudden death.

Lyle drove into a fairway bunker. And Couples hooked his tee shot into the same pond for the second time in less than an hour.

After a drop, he hit his third into a bunker. From the fairway bunker, Lyle missed the green.

Couples came out of the greenside bunker to the back of the green, some 30 feet away. He missed the bogey putt.

Lyle chipped to about 10 feet, missed for par but tapped in for the winning bogey.

Lyle, who came from seven shots back with a closing 65, scored his third American victory in as many years. It was worth $117,000 to the former British Open title-holder.

Couples played the last round in a 1-under-par 70.

South African David Frost came on with a 68 and was third at 271, two shots out of the playoff.

Davis Love III, two strokes in front of the field at the end of three rounds, collapsed on a string of four consecutive bogeys beginning on the eighth hole. He struggled home with a 76 and was at 273.

Ken Brown of Scotland, Bob Lohr, Ken Green and Dr. Gil Morgan were at 274. Lohr's 66 included a 29 on the front side. Brown shot 67. Green and Morgan each had a 69.

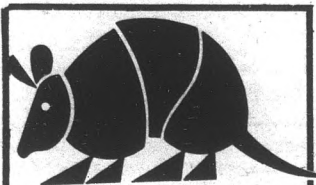

A wrist injury forced PGA champion Larry Nelson to withdraw after 15 holes.

Lyle tied Couples for the lead with birdies on the two back-nine par-5 holes, the 13th and 15th. The long-hitting Couples failed to birdie either of them.

Couples, however, coaxed in a 12-footer for birdie on the 16th to go one in front — for a moment.

Lyle, playing in front of Couples, drove the green on the 305-yard, par-4 17th and two-putted for the birdie that tied it again.

Couples came along and also drove the green. But he 3-putted for par from long range, maybe 90-100 feet.
