Escobedo fails to list $200 in contributions

By MICHAEL VAN DYKE
State Press

Associated Students of ASU presidential hopeful Mark Escobedo admitted Wednesday that he failed to list campaign contributions in excess of $200 on a financial statement submitted to the ASASU election coordinator's office on March 24.

ASASU Elections Coordinator David Cavecche said Escobedo's failure to indicate all sources of funding on the statement, as required by the ASASU Election Code, could lead to disqualification from the election.

Escobedo

Cavecche said if a complaint is filed, Escobedo's financial statement will be reviewed by the three-member ASASU Elections Commission. If the commission determines that Escobedo deliberately falsified the document, 20 "penalty points" may be assessed against Escobedo, resulting in automatic disqualification from the presidential race.

Escobedo's opponent, Paul Larson, said he was "quite shocked" that Escobedo failed to indicate contributions on his statement.

"I would be interested in hearing what his reasons for failing to list contributions are," Larson said. "I will talk with my staff before filing any complaints."

Escobedo would not comment on why the contributions were not listed.

In two financial statements given to Cavecche, Escobedo claimed he had spent $1,225 on his campaign, taken entirely from personal savings.

But Wednesday Escobedo said his personal expenditures were closer to $900, and that the rest of his funding came from contributors.

Escobedo said the majority of the unlisted contributions came from associates at Valley corporations — including U.S. West Communications — and family members.

Escobedo said he was able to speak to people at U.S. West and solicit contributions from them because of family ties at the company.

Related story, Page 3.

He said he plans to repay all of his debts owed to relatives after the election.

Escobedo also admitted that he solicited contributions from individuals by sending out a letter to possible donors.

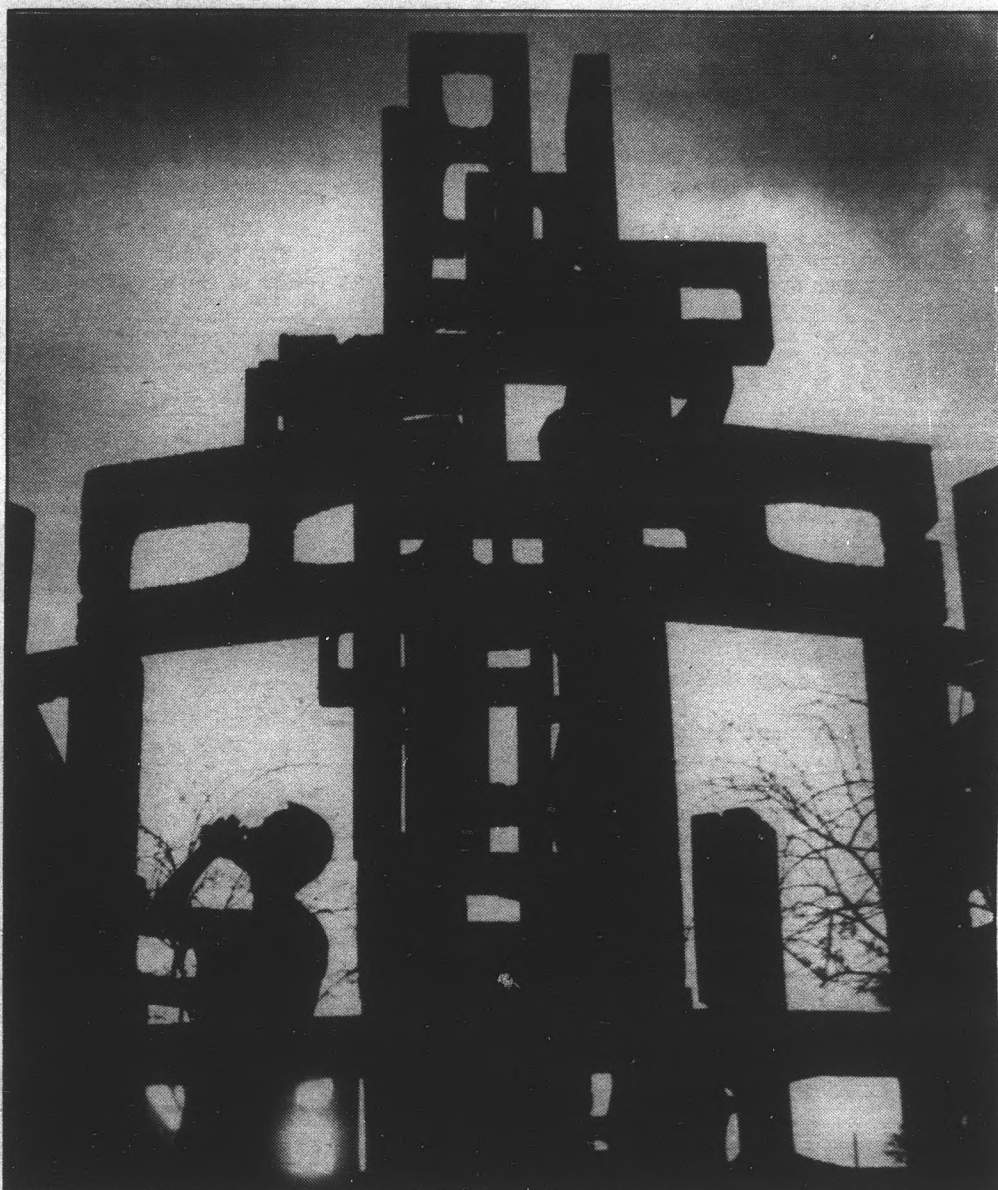

The three-page letter briefly describes Escobedo's background and platform, predicts that his "Rainbow Coalition will be victorious" in capturing the ASASU presidency, and urges contributors to "Please feel free to give anywhere from $1, $5, $10, $20, or $50," in checks made payable to the "Committee to Elect - Mark A. Escobedo."

Cavecche said a complaint filed by Larson's campaign staff alleging that Escobedo violated the election code by posting fliers in the MU bathrooms will be reviewed by the Elections Commission today.

Under the election code, candidates are not allowed to campaign or post fliers in the MU.

Penalty for failure to adhere to this code leads to a five-point deduction. A candidate who is penalized a total of 20 points is disqualified.

Larson aide Keith Woods said he has documented "multiple" examples of other violations by Escobedo's staff and may file further complaints.

Caldicott says 'Earth will die' from nuclear weapons

By SCOTT C. SECKEL
State Press

Nobel Prize nominee Dr. Helen Caldicott said Wednesday that if immediate action is not taken against the destruction of the environment and the proliferation of nuclear weapons, the Earth is destined to die within the next decade.

The author, pediatrician, teacher and leader of a movement to disarm the world told an audience of about 560: "I feel the Earth is going to die. We've got maybe 10 years to turn (the destruction of the Earth) around."

Caldicott, who has won a host of awards for her work in protesting the arms race, lectured in the MU Arizona Room for over half an hour on the destruction of the ozone layer, the Greenhouse Effect and the increase of pesticides and toxic chemicals in foods as well as the environment.

The lecture was sponsored by the Associated Students of ASU Political Union and Students For Environmental Awareness.

In referring to toxic by-products of plastic production and dioxin in white toilet paper and tampons, Caldicott said the effects of the chemicals on people can be deadly.

"We don't need all this crap," she said. "And that's what it is — crap."

The founder of the 22,000 member Physicians For Social Change organization compared the number of nuclear weapons in the world — 55,000 — to the number of major cities in the northern hemisphere, 240.

Caldicott graphically described what would happen if Palo Verde Nuclear Plant melted down or if a nuclear missile hit Tempe, whether by accident or design. She said human beings would be vaporized into gas.

One trillion dollars is spent per year on nuclear and conventional weapons, she said, adding that at the same time one-third of the world's children starve.

In an exclusive State Press interview, Caldicott spoke at length on a variety of issues.

Caldicott pinpointed the catalyst for beginning her crusade against proliferation as the reading of "On The Beach" by Nevil Shute, a novel about nuclear war's aftermath, when she was 15 years old.

"That scared the bejesus out of me," she said. "From that time on I never felt protected by adults."

"I suppose it infected my mind. I was aware of the threat of nuclear war and I saw them just building more and more weapons in a crazy fashion."

But the pediatrician said she does have hope in the theoretically logical process of government. Her first brush

New facts about Halley's Comet uncovered

By RICHARD A. VIGIL
State Press

Halley's Comet is made up of a mixture of chemicals that is different from the rest of the solar system, suggesting that the comet may have originated in another part of the galaxy, according to a study by an international team of researchers that included two ASU scientists.

Susan Wyckoff, an ASU astronomer and a member of the research team, said the findings could unlock secrets about the formation of the solar system.

"The wonderful thing about comets is that they have clues locked inside of them as to the conditions 4½ billion years ago," Wyckoff said.

The team of scientists from the United States, France and Australia studied the comet when it passed close to the Earth in April 1986. Using a 74-inch reflecting telescope at Mount Stromlo, Australia, the scientists gathered data about the comet's spectrum to analyze the amounts of two different isotopes of the element carbon.

The team found that the ratio of carbon-12 to carbon-13, the two most common forms of carbon found in the solar system, is 65-to-1 in Halley's Comet. The rest of the objects in the solar system have a ratio of 89-to-1.

The research, funded by the National Science Foundation and NASA, will be reported in the April 1 issue of The Astrophysical Journal.

ASU astronomer Peter A. Wehinger, another member of the research team, said the solar system formed out of a cloud of gas and dust called the "proto-solar nebula," which was uniformly mixed.

Federal authorities smash drug money laundering operation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal authorities have smashed a billion-dollar international operation laundering drug money and forced Colombia's Medellin cartel to alter the way it handles drug profits, the Justice Department said Wednesday.

Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, FBI Director William Sessions and other top law enforcement officials said their "Operation Polar Cap" has ended with charges against 127 people and two Latin American banks.

But Justice officials said one of the defendants eluded capture in Panama by the Panamanian Defense Forces after he holed up in a bank there Wednesday. U.S. authorities had relied on the defense forces for assistance, despite the fact it is headed by Panamanian Gen. Manuel Noriega, who is himself under a federal indictment for drug trafficking.

Thornburgh called the investigation "the largest money-laundering crackdown ever carried out by the federal government."

Agents seized a half ton of cocaine and $45 million in cash, jewels and real estate, and filed civil actions in an effort to seize as much as $412 million more in assets of the banks, Banco de Occidente of Panama and Banco de Occidente de Colombia, that are deposited in U.S. bank accounts.

The cartel is responsible for as much as 80 percent of the cocaine flowing into the United States, according to federal drug officials.

Moslem leader, aide connected to Rushdie killed in Brussels

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The leader of Moslems in Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg and his aide were shot and killed Wednesday, five weeks after the imam distanced himself from Iran's death sentence for author Salman Rushdie.

Imam Abdullah Al Ahdal, a 36-year-old Saudi Arabian and moderate Moslem, and Salem El Behir, a 40-year-old Tunisian who headed the Brussels mosque's social services and library, were shot at close range in the imam's office in the mosque, police said.

No one immediately claimed responsibility, and no arrests were made. Police said there were no witnesses and that no one heard the gunshots.

The two men each were shot twice, once in the head and once in the neck, police said.

Reagan objects to appearing as Oliver North witness

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Justice Department official testified at Oliver North's trial Wednesday that in the early frantic search for facts about the Iran-Contra affair, no one bothered to ask the boss — President Reagan — about a possibly illegal 1985 arms shipment to Iran.

"Did anybody think to ask this man whether he approved the transfer of missiles?" asked North's lawyer Brendan Sullivan, pointing to an easel where he had written in 2-inch-high letters: "PRES."

"The questioning of the president was going to come after we had questioned everybody else," said Charles Cooper, a former top aide to then-Attorney General Edwin Meese III.

Sullivan's intense cross-examination of Cooper underscored the defense's effort to have the former president appear in court to testify for the former White House aide. North has subpoenaed Reagan but U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell has not ruled whether he will enforce the summons.

Reagan's lawyer filed a paper with the court Wednesday insisting that North's defenders say precisely why they want him as a witness and what questions they will ask.

Comet

The fact that Halley's Comet is not the same as the rest of the solar system, Wyckoff said, suggested two theories to the research team:

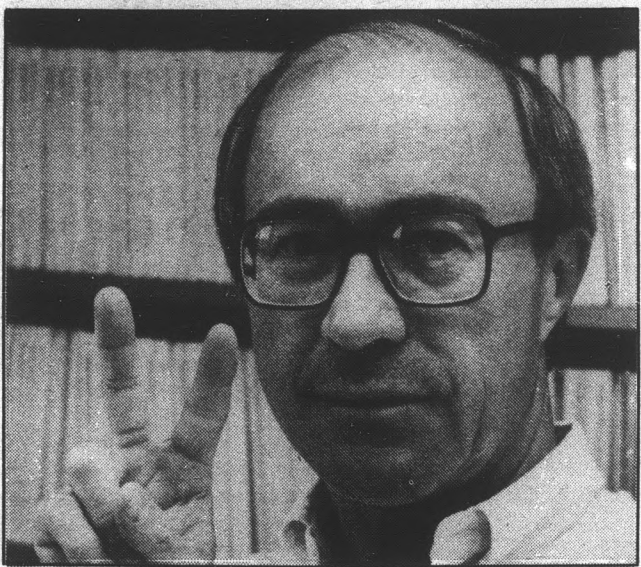

•Halley's Comet may have been captured by the sun out of deep space and is not a part of this solar system.

The fact that Halley's Comet orbits the sun in the opposite direction of almost every other body in the solar system would tend to support this theory, she said.

But Wyckoff added that the probability of the sun capturing an object from deep space is "extremely small."

•A star may have exploded nearby when the solar system was forming, spraying the nebula with different elements, and Halley's Comet was formed in a relatively unaffected section of the cloud.

Wehinger said the different ratio could indicate that the comet was formed on the opposite side of the cloud from the exploding star or could have been blocked from the other star's ejected matter.

Escobedo accuses Larson of censorship, avoiding issues

By MICHAEL VAN DYKE
State Press

In a last-minute change of campaign strategy, Associated Students of ASU presidential hopeful Mark Escobedo went on the offensive Wednesday, accusing opponent Paul Larson of avoiding the issues and censoring free speech.

"Larson and his staff simply will not take a prudent stand in public," Escobedo said, making his remarks during a Cady Mall "press conference" that he said was not intended to address students but to provide the State Press with information on his campaign.

A State Press reporter was the only person to attend the afternoon conference at the Fountain, as Escobedo read a speech describing his platform.

In a handwritten press release, which included references to Larson as "Dave Larson," Escobedo stated that Larson lacks the ability to "make tough decisions" and that the Larson staff has attempted to prevent Escobedo from making a public speech to ASU students.

Larson's staffers objected on Tuesday and Wednesday to Escobedo's plans to deliver a speech on the mall between the MU and Hayden Library, citing University regulations which prevent the use of a public address system in the area. Escobedo moved to a site in front of the Fountain Wednesday afternoon and delivered the speech.

"We're not preventing (Escobedo) from making a speech," Larson aid Keith Woods said. "We want him to speak out on the issues.

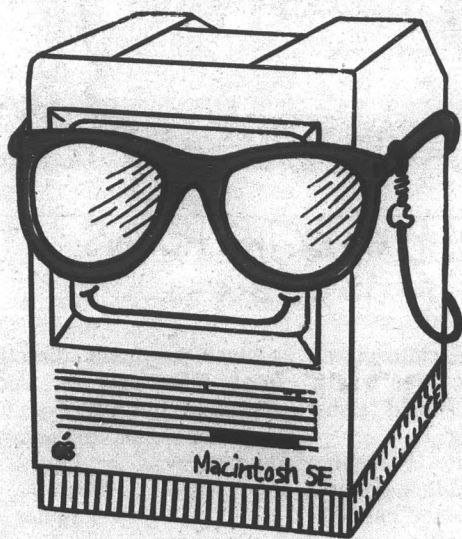

"But we also want him to follow the same guidelines and regulations as we have to. He has a tendency to stray from the rules slightly."

Larson said he did not question Escobedo's right to make a speech and that the only action taken by his staffers was to ask ASU administrators if the place and manner in which Escobedo planned to make the speech was allowed.

"No one can accuse either Mark or I of avoiding the issues," Larson said.

Today is the final day of a three-day run-off election between Larson and Escobedo for the ASASU presidency. Election results will be announced Friday.

Addiction

Widespread drug abuse the symptom, not the disease

Ed Schubert
Columnist

Should cigarette vending machines be banned from the ASU campus?

The question was answered "aye" by an overwhelming majority of the Faculty Senate on March 20, and their resolution to that effect has gone on to President Nelson.

The Faculty Senate is right, but not for all the reasons some supporters of the resolution have cited. It has been argued that a university campus is an inappropriate place to sell a product that is known to cause cancer.

But the University is as good a place to sell cigarettes as the local drugstore — both places are frequented by people equally free, responsible and knowledgeable about the effects of nicotine. To ban cigarettes at ASU would be an arrogant infringement on the rights of thousands here who smoke, and such a ban is not the intent of the present resolution.

Cigarette vending machines, however, should be banned from campus for the same reason they should be banned everywhere — children can use them.

That we allow machines to vend a dangerous, albeit legal, drug to anyone with a few quarters demonstrates how our free-market economy can undermine our civic values.

How many fewer people might be smoking today if they had not had easy access to cigarettes as kids, when curiosity and peer pressure play so dominant a role in behavior?

And bad as the present teenage alcohol epidemic is, how much worse would it be if beer were as readily available from vending machines as cigarettes or Coca-Cola?

But the question over cigarette machines at ASU is just the latest reminder that we are in the midst of a double crisis. The first and most obvious is the drug epidemic. The second is our failure to address the drug epidemic rationally.

Many who clamour for a crackdown on crack, heroin and marijuana are themselves abusers of socially acceptable drugs. Even our drug czar, William Bennett, chain smokes two packs of cigarettes a day — at a time when the surgeon general has pronounced nicotine to be as addictive as heroin.

What's going on here? How do we account for our schizophrenic, hypocritical attitude toward drug abuse?

My theory is that the pervasive use of drugs is a result of stresses within our culture, and that drug abuse will never abate as long as we remain a stress/anxiety-based culture. Which is to say: drug abuse will never abate.

Consider ASU, where 45,000 of us dance a daily dance with the clock — rushing to class, wolfing down a Big Mac between classes, waiting impatiently for class to end so we can rush on to our jobs.

And when we aren't preoccupied with the daily dance, there is the weekly, monthly, life-long juggling game we play with the calendar — papers due, apply for financial aid, find time to study for finals, hurry and plan your schedule for next semester.

And so it goes . . . Or as science fiction writer Harlan Ellison puts it:

"And so it goes. And so it goes. And so it goes. And so it goes goes goes goes goes tick tick tick tick tick and one day we no longer let time serve us, we serve time and are slaves of the schedule, worshipers of the sun's passing, bound into a life predicated on restrictions because the system would not function if we don't keep the schedule tight."

And when the long-awaited end of the day finally arrives — out comes the six-pack, the jug of wine, the stash of marijuana, or some combination of the above.

We have unhealthy habits because we live in an unhealthy culture.

And we live in an unhealthy culture because, in the course of our social evolution, the cultures that prevailed were not those that were best, those concerned primarily with human beings and their well being, but by those which were most successful in competing with and subjugating other cultures.

Thus the American Indian cultures succumbed before the more technologically advanced, organized and synchronized cultures of Europe. And the result, in the United States, has been unparalleled prosperity, scientific advancement and political stability.

But it has come at a price.

We live in a culture where we prepare children for adulthood by training them for 12 years to move from one classroom to another at the ringing of a bell.

And drug abuse will be the constant, inevitable result of the road we have taken in our social evolution — in which we have abandoned rhythms for schedules and simplicity for success.

Smokers have rights too

Editor:

In a recent article in the staff newspaper Insight I noticed that the ASU Faculty Senate is calling for a ban on the sale of tobacco products on campus.

I am sick and tired of people telling smokers where to smoke and when to smoke, but I still abide by their rules. We smokers have rights, too. While I appreciate the fact that the rules were made regarding where to smoke to protect those individuals who do not wish to inhale secondary smoke; where in the world do people get off telling us that we cannot buy cigarettes on campus? Should vegetarians band together to prohibit the sale of meat or Mormons band together to prohibit the sale of caffeine and other stimulants?

I think these smoking restrictions are going a little bit too far when banning the sale of tobacco is considered. This is the United States — a free country! I'll abide by the rules on where to smoke, but don't try and help me kick the habit by not selling cigarettes. If I want to stop I will, but not because you ban selling tobacco on campus!

Paper should provide information, not endorsements

Editor:

I am writing this letter in regards to the endorsement section in last week's paper. I am not exactly clear as to why the paper endorses candidates at all. If the State Press is going to hand pick candidates, then why don't they let the lucky few know ahead of time so they can save themselves the hundreds of dollars it takes to run a campaign. Candidates need to address students and shouldn't have to preoccupy themselves with the libelous remarks of the State Press.

If the State Press needs to play a part in elections, then they should interview candidates and let the voters infer what they will. The State Press should also stress the importance of voting.

Elections are important. Fifteen students will decide how a million-dollar budget will be spent. If the voter cannot control the funds directly, he should at least take part in deciding who will represent him. If the students choose to stay uninvolved and uninformed, then they deserve what they get.

Forbidden fruit: Nothing is good for you anymore

Mike Royko

After the waiter took our orders, the blonde stared across the table at me and coldly said: "Why did you do that?"

Do what?

"You ordered the veal shank."

That's right. I love veal shanks. That's why I ordered it.

"But you know it isn't good for you. It is high in cholesterol."

I nodded and waved to the waiter. He came to the table, and I told him I wanted to change my order.

"What will you have?" he asked.

I said I wanted the pork shank instead of the veal shank.

When he left, she said: "Why did you do that?"

Do what?

"You know perfectly well what. The pork shank has even higher cholesterol than the veal shank."

Then you should have left well enough alone when I ordered the veal shank.

"That's not the point. You shouldn't be eating any of that stuff. Pork shanks, veal shanks, red meats. They are all bad for you."

I slammed my fist down on the table, causing the silverware and bread basket to bounce. A couple at the next table stared at me. I smiled apologetically and explained that I had killed an ant.

But to the blonde I said that enough is enough. I am no longer paying any attention to what any experts say about anything I eat. From now on, when I want a pork shank, I'll eat a pork shank, and to hell with the cholesterol.

"You should eat fish or chicken. You know that. Ask your doctor. Ask any doctor."

Oh, sure. Ask the doctors. I suspect that America's doctors secretly own all the chicken farms and fishing boats, that's what I suspect.

Even the apple, that most humble and American of all fruits, is suspected of being dangerous to our health.

We have tested this, tested that, analyzed, studied and made life miserable for millions of mice.

And it appears that everything is bad for us. I don't know if they have tested thumbs yet, but it wouldn't surprise me if newborn children will soon have their thumbs tattooed with the words: "Warning, do not put in mouth. Can cause premature baldness."

Just the other morning, I was shaving while having my first cup of coffee (more than four cups a day increases the possibility of a heart attack), when I heard a terrible scream from the kitchen.

My heart pounding, I ran downstairs, expecting to do battle with a burglar.

The blonde was standing there staring at a plastic bag of grapes.

I asked her why she had screamed.

She said: "These grapes . . . these grapes are from Chile."

Have you eaten any of them?

"No. I bought them yesterday."

Then why are you screaming?

"Because I could have eaten them."

I seized the bag, tore it open, and shoved a handful of my grapes in my mouth. Then another. I stuffed so many grapes in my face that juice was oozing down my chin.

"What are you doing?" she said.

I told her what I was doing. Those grapes weren't going to kill me. What might kill me, though, was hearing loud shrieks of terror even before I had my first cup of coffee in the morning.

To the best of my knowledge, my father never ate one can of tuna packed in water. (I suspect that the doctors own all the tuna packing plants, too.)

No, the old man ate pork shanks, pork chops, slabs of beef smothered in gravy.

At age 80, he duked it out in a bar with two young punks who weren't a day over 65, and he came out with a split-decision draw.

No tuna eater would have done better.

When the waiter brought me my pork shank, I reached for the salt shaker.

The blonde said: "You know what they say about too much salt."

I called the waiter over and told him to bring another pork shank.

Free at last.

Escobedo has broken barriers, earned respect of all

Editor:

This letter is in response to the Tuesday, March 28 editorial which suggested that ASU students should vote for Paul Larson on the basis of his looks: "Even the most cursory look at Escobedo and Larson should draw all of us to an obvious conclusion . . ."

I can't imagine any student in this University who would vote on such irrational motives. The State Press has failed to remain objective about the elections this year. Funny thing, editorials about the elections have been endorsing Larson all along. The question is: Should our school newspaper be the deciding factor in student elections? We are given a one-sided view of a candidate and told to vote for him. Fortunately, ASU students are not as naive to fall for such propaganda. One is left to wonder what kind of fears motivated so much endorsement for Larson. Could it be because of lack of confidence on his own merits?

Mark Escobedo has successfully broken down the barriers of ethnicity in this campus and has won the respect and support of many students from all ethnic backgrounds. And he has done so himself without the constant buttering of the State Press.

Augmenting multicultural involvement in student has been one of ASASU's goals. Unfortunately, there are still some narrow-minded people who are trying to discourage these efforts. ASU students should see that student elections are based on their personal choice and not on biased editorials.

Maria Arvizu

Where's the democracy?

Editor:

Why the bother to hold student elections for three days here on the campus of ASU, a democratic environment, when the editorial board of the State Press on March 28th would rather see the "crown" passed on to its "legitimate heir"? To think students are led to believe that they have a right to choose and that their votes count in a democratic society! Indeed!

Students beware! Take the time to make your vote count NOW while you still have a chance. Otherwise, you may not have another chance if the State Press continues to hold such a narrow regard on student elections.

Larson not 'God'

Editor:

The purpose of this letter is to serve as a rebuttal to the "Larson for God" editorial on the opinion page (March 28, 29). I guess if the State Press throws an apple at Escobedo, I can use the same tactics and throw a tomato at Larson. For example, I can question his ulterior motive in putting off medical school and his career for a whole year. Perhaps he couldn't get into medical school and needs something that looks good. Being president of the fifth largest student body in the country and being in control of over a million dollars will certainly give his resume a boost. Furthermore, I can classify him as one of those cut-throat pre-meds — you know the kind who would sell his mother to get an A in organic chemistry. But these accusations are just as unfair and unfounded as the ones flung at Mark.

The State Press has accused Mark Escobedo's policies more in the past week than it has dealt with any single issue. Why does the school paper feel that it must push its candidate so much? Isn't the newspaper supposed to tell both sides of the story? For example, how Escobedo, while president of MEChA, rallied support for minority retention not by asking for more money but by putting responsibility on minorities themselves. Mark works part-time and is a full-time student like 70 percent of ASU students. And while juggling school, work and ASASU, he has been one of the most dedicated people in student government.

One final point; using the school newspaper by Larson's buddies to push him off as a sort of god hurts all of us. The editors certainly have a right to choose, but to slander in such a vicious way is "strike one" against everyone associated with the paper. Supporting Larson is strike two. I urge the students to pitch strike three by ignoring the opinion page of a paper in which any decent fish would be insulted to be wrapped.

'Big Horn' case could ensure Indian water rights

By MICHAEL LEWIS
State Press

The favorable outcome of an upcoming U. S. Supreme Court case involving priority water rights for Native American Indians is important for ensuring the groups' future agriculture, a lawyer for the Indians said Wednesday.

Susan Williams, an attorney for the Albuquerque, N.M.-and Washington D.C.-based law firm of Gover, Stetson, Williams & West, is preparing to argue the case, which will be heard by the Supreme Court April 26.

"Basically, what is at issue is the method of computing the amount of water to which Indian tribes are entitled in order to fulfill the purposes of the United States in setting aside Indian reservation lands for agricultural activities," she said.

Williams described the implications of that upcoming ruling before a group of about 25 ASU students in the Great Hall of the Law Building as part of the ASU American Indian Culture Week activities.

Williams said her upcoming case, referred to as the "Big Horn" case, will impact how water is distributed to both Indians and non-Indians in the United States.

The priority for water claims during droughts has historically been given to those with the oldest claims, Williams said. She added that the Indians' claims date back to 1868, while most non-Indian claims date after 1905.

Williams, a graduate of Harvard Law School, said the case will make the legal standards clear for future decisions on contested water claims. The lack of a definitive ruling in the past has led to Indian water claims being ignored in favor of non-Indian claims, she said.

"For just the Gila River itself, there are still 60,000 (water) claims outstanding including the Indian claims," she said.

Williams said if the Supreme Court decision favors the tribes, the ruling will end the lack of direction that has plagued discussions and negotiations over water rights between Indians and non-Indians.

Williams said the Indians have made an effort to be reasonable and share their water resources.

"Most of the tribes I have worked with are sensitive to other claimants," she said. "We just executed a one-year state/tribal agreement, under which we agreed, for next summer, if we have a shortage we will share that shortage with everybody.

"That to me demonstrates the absolute fairness and reasonableness of the Indian tribes."

Williams predicted that based on the Supreme Court justices past voting records on Indian issues, she should win the case by a 6-3 majority.

Lyndee Wells, a third-year ASU law student and Native American Indian, said losing the case could negatively effect the outcome of future court cases.

"It could have a dramatic impact on tribes across the country," she said. "Those tribes negotiating or looking at bargaining positions would become weaker."

Williams said there have been 30 cases involving Indian issues heard by the Supreme Court since 1980. In those cases there have been 15 pro-Indian decisions and 15 against, she said.

For the hearing of the Big Horn case, Williams said she has targeted those justices she feels will rule in favor of the Indians.

"There are clearly pro-Indian and anti-Indian members of the Supreme Court," she said.

with the exercise of democracy came almost two decades ago.

"It wasn't until 1970 that I came back from three years in America to Australia to find out that the French were blowing up bombs in the air in the Pacific Ocean," she said.

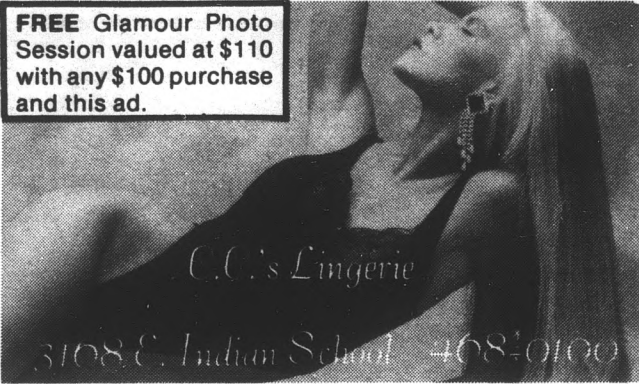

"We were getting a lot of fallout in Australia. I went on television to talk about radioactive fallout, babies' leukemia and French tests.

"Within nine months 75 percent of Australians rose up and said, 'We won't have the French dropping bombs in our area of the Pacific.'"

She said through this experience she saw a democracy behave responsibly by the education of the populace, which was Thomas Jefferson's ideal.

"I've always had a lot of faith and hope in democracy since that time."

Weekend clinics to address women's self-defense

By STACY HAYMES
State Press

As part of Self Defense Awareness Week, Residence Life, Pi Sigma Epsilon and Taekwondo USA are giving five self-defense clinics Friday through Sunday to inform women on how to protect themselves.

Ten certified Tae Kwon Do black belts will be illustrating how women can use pressure point control tactics to defend themselves against an attacker.

Pressure points are various spots located on the body where, if one-half to two pounds of pressure are applied, high intensity pain can be given.

Mark Kaup, a certified Tae Kwon Do instructor said the group is sponsoring the clinics to educate women on the facts of date and acquaintance rape.

"We want to help people feel more comfortable about where they are, for example, if they are in a bar," Kaup said.

Kaup said the pressure point tactics are legally and medically safe, but the tactics protect the victim by creating "intense pain."

Michelle Cornille, a first-degree black belt in Tae Kwon Do and a pressure point tactics specialist, said the tactics are easy to learn and remember when faced with danger.

"I would use pressure point tactics before Tae Kwon Do if I were pinned down or in close contact with an attacker," said Cornille, who has been training in the martial arts for four years.

The tactics cause temporary muscle dysfunction, three to seven seconds of being disillusioned and mental stunning, Cornille said.

Cornille said if a victim has been taught these tactics, they can mentally get out of an attack situation.

Cynthia Gorton, ASU's date and acquaintance rape program coordinator in Residence Life, will be speaking Sunday on how to avoid acquaintance rape.

The Tempe Police Department and ASU's Department of Public Safety will be speaking on the procedures taken when a rape is reported.

Each of the clinics will be four hours long with two hours devoted to illustrations of actual defense techniques.

Tickets are $20 and may be purchased in front of the MU until Friday. Tickets will also be sold at the door.

Correspondence course cost may rise

By TYRONE MEIGHAN
State Press

ASU administrators are seeking the Arizona Board of Regents' approval of a $12 per-credit-hour hike in correspondence course fees that would make it the first such increase since 1984.

The increase would require students enrolled in correspondence courses to pay $45 per credit hour, up from the current $33 per-hour charge.

The University tuition rate for regular classes is $67 per hour.

John Edwards, executive director of Off-Campus Academic Services, said although he agrees correspondence course fees should be lower than regular tuition, the current $33 fee is too low.

"We are losing money," he said, adding that the $12 increase in correspondence fees could generate $50,000 more for the University.

ASU has the lowest correspondence course fees of the state's three universities, with NAU's fee set at $67 per credit hour and the UofA's set at $58 per hour.

The proposal also states that correspondence tuition fees should be 66 percent of regular tuition fees. This would mean correspondence tuition fees would increase each time the regents raise regular tuition.

Currently, the University requests correspondence course tuition increases independent from regular tuition.

Bob Lawless, regents' associate director for finance, said he thinks the increase is justified.

"It hasn't been done for several years," he said. "ASU is considerably lower than the other two schools."

Student Regent Pat McWhortor said he has not heard any complaints from students about the fee increase, but acknowledged that many do not know about it yet.

"I don't think it is all that measurable of an increase," he said. "I don't have any problem with it."

ASU offered 86 undergraduate correspondence courses in the 1988-89 academic year to an estimated 1,150 students, Edwards said.

Enrollment in 1987-88 was 1,134 for the correspondence courses, which consists of eight lessons per semester hour.

Edwards said he doesn't think an increase in correspondence course fees would deter students because ASU's current fee is minimal compared to other universities.

"Thirty-three dollars per credit hour is a bargain," he said.

In 1987-88, Brigham Young University enrolled 10,508 students in its correspondence program and charged $52 per credit hour, Edwards said.

Students from all over the world enroll in the correspondence course program from ASU, he added.

International business club to hold career seminar

By SCOTT C. SECKEL

State Press

ASU's only international business club will be having its first annual career seminar next month.

AIESEC, a French acronym for International Association of Students in Economics and Business Management, will offer two seminars on insight and preparation for a career in international business.

The free seminars are scheduled to feature international businessmen who are based in the Valley, including a lawyer, a trade consultant, and a member of the foreign commerce service.

Panel one will give insight into what international business actually consists of, how the speakers started their careers, and advice.

Panel two will focus on preparation: how to apply a particular degree to an international career.

Each year AIESEC undertakes a special project, according to Brett Goble, the seminar coordinator. This year's project is the seminars.

The organization's stated purpose is "to provide practical business experience for the students while increasing the international awareness of the business community."

AIESEC's mainstay is the International Traineeship Exchange Program. The program "matches the overseas experience of an international internee with an Arizona business," Goble said.

Overseas members intern in Arizona and ASU chapter members, who number over a hundred, work outside of the United States. Because the program is reciprocal, the number of ASU chapters members who go abroad is dependent on the number of trainees accepted by Valley firms, said Goble.

Three people worked overseas last semester, according to Goble, in such diverse countries as Czechoslovakia, Finland, and Haiti.

Involved with AIESEC are more than 550 universities in 67 countries, ranging from Singapore to France to Zimbabwe.

Working abroad is contingent for ASU chapter members on an appointment and review board process. A point system is used to determine who gets accepted. Officers, conference attendants, and flexibility, on the more countries a member is willing to go to and the range of jobs willing to be undertaken, determine points awarded.

Goble said that knowledge of a foreign language is very important and is taken into consideration in determining who goes.

While ASU offers several international business courses, according to John Kraft, dean of the College of Business, a degree in international business is not currently offered. Students wishing to study that aspect of commerce can attend the American Graduate School of International Management in Glendale.

"I think they provide information to students and an alternative to other clubs," Kraft said. "It's a good organization."

Membership, which is not restricted to business majors, costs $30 per semester. Meetings are held every two weeks, with speakers from the international business community.

Barbara Barret, former undersecretary of the FAA during the Reagan administration, spoke at the last meeting, Goble said.

AIESEC has had a chapter at ASU for eight years. The career seminars will be held on Sat., April 8. AIESEC will have a table on Cady Mall for tickets from April 3-7.

ASU and UofA softball teams split twin bill

KYLE D. ENG
State Press

ASU and UofA split a softball doubleheader Wednesday night at the Sun Devil Club Stadium.

The Sun Devils (24-12, 1-5 Pac-10) captured the first game 1-0, while the Wildcats (22-10, 1-5) took the second game 3-0, in front of a crowd of 392.

In the first game, ASU lost catcher Christi Seritella for the season after she broke the second finger of her left hand on a head-first slide into home with one out in the third inning.

Right fielder Yvette Baltazar hit a sacrifice fly to right field and Seritella tagged up and scored from third, breaking her finger on the slide.

UofA threatened in the fourth with two outs when catcher Stacy Engel hit a shot to left field, but was thrown out trying to stretch her double into a triple.

ASU senior pitching ace Donna Stewart went the distance for the Sun Devils, yielding four hits, walking one and striking out six.

Stewart moved to 2-0 on the year in her first outing of the season at Sun Devil Club Stadium after coming off a broken foot suffered earlier.

"It feels real good, because when it comes down to your senior year, one of the main objectives is beat your arch-rival," Stewart said. "My change-up really kept me in the game tonight; it let me set up my other pitches."

The Wildcats made a final stand in the seventh inning when they put runners on first and second with one out, but Stewart downed the next two batters to end the game.

In the second game of the twin bill, UofA scored three runs in the third inning on two hits and two errors.

ASU threatened in the first, loading the bases with two outs, but the Sun Devils failed to score.

Wildcat pitcher Ginie Scheller went the distance, allowing five hits and striking out four.

Taking the loss for the Devils was relief pitcher Terri Carnicelli, who gave up all three runs in five innings.

She gave up six hits and struck out two.

The Devils loss was not injury-free. Catcher Karen Fifeild dislocated a finger in the third inning, leaving the Devils' catching situation bleak.

ASU was forced to play freshman Melinda Cook, who has not been behind the plate since high school.

"We're out of catchers," ASU coach Mary Littlewood said. "We're going to have to experiment and find another catcher for Friday."

"Donna did a great job for us in the first game. But having to put Melinda behind the plate hurt us because we need her pitching."

"It's almost to the point where we're out of (healthy) bodies."

ASU junior Stephanie May tags out UofA's Stacy Engel, who was attempting to reach third base on a hit to left field during the first game of a doubleheader Wednesday. The Sun Devils won the first game, 1-0, but lost the second 3-0.

Walk-on makes the best of golden opportunity

By VICKI CULVER
State Press

ASU head tennis coach Lou Belken was skeptical two years ago when he was approached by a possible team walk-on. Little did he know that sophomore Joel Finnigan would soon become one of his most consistent players.

"He got where he is through perseverance and hard work," Belken said of the Honolulu high school graduate.

Finnigan was one of approximately 300 possible recruits Belken received letters from. It was his persistence that sparked Belken to go see him play in the summer of 1987.

Although he is considered a walk-on, he was accepted on the team prior to tryout week.

"We hold all school tryouts every year, but for the most part, we have an idea (who will be on the team)," Belken said.

During his freshman year, Finnigan saw limited playing time. But, due to team injuries late in the season, he competed in four singles matches at the No. 9 seed. His experience that year came mostly from his doubles competition.

"When I first came here, I wasn't very good at all," he said. "I've improved so much in the last two years that it's scary."

Belken first noticed Finnigan's rapid improvement at the NCAA tournament last May.

"He ended up playing in the NCAAs. He worked his tail off and improved tremendously," Belken said. "He has a good ability to go all out."

This season, Finnigan has been playing mostly at the No. 5 seed. In a couple of matches, however, he got as high as No. 2.

He claims his success comes from an inner-motivational desire to prove to his friends in Hawaii, who said he would never play for a Pac-10 school.

"Here I am, playing five," he said. "I'm doing a lot better than everyone expected."

Finnigan says his most valued asset is his confidence. Belken agrees with this, claiming he is inspirational to the whole team.

"He's the cheerleader and motivator on our team," he said.

Finnigan said he and doubles partner, No. 7 singles seed Craig Purcell, are successful because of their competitiveness.

"We're not overpowering, we just fight hard and scrap out wins," Finnigan said.

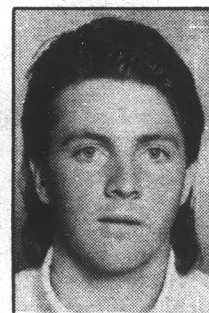

The biggest highlights of the twosome's season so far, Finnigan says, is their win against top-ranked UCLA, and their battle with Pepperdine, in which they lost 7-5 in the third match.

In Finnigan's next two years, he plans to improve on his volleys and serves. Belken would like to see him work on his baseline game as well as his confidence.

"He's just beginning to know himself as a tennis player," Belken said. "He's nowhere close to what he's going to be."

Although the team is young, Finnigan contends that the friendships between the players is deep.

"We're working hard on an awesome camaraderie," he said.

Joel Finnigan

ASU top-seed Krista Amend returns a shot against Jennifer Larking of San Diego in action Wednesday. Amend lost in three sets, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.

ASU captures fifth-straight; Texas to face Devils today

By KRISTI HOWELL
State Press

The ASU women's tennis team captured its fifth consecutive win Wednesday, defeating 16th-ranked University of San Diego 5-2.

"We played really well," ASU coach Sheila McInerney said. "They are a good team, no question about it."

The Sun Devils defeated San Diego 5-4 earlier in the season. At the Arizona Invitational in Tucson, ASU entered doubles competition 3-3 compared to Wednesday's 5-1.

"We've worked real hard as a team," McInerney said. "We beat them easier — that shows we're getting better in a part of the season where you want to peak."

The singles winners against San Diego were No. 2 seed Kristi Jonkosky, No. 3 Barbara Thompson, No. 4 Jennifer Rojohn, No. 5 Paola Conte and No. 6 Karen Bergan.

ASU's Jonkosky brought down Tonya Fuller 6-1, 7-5, Thompson defeated Aby Brayton 6-2, 6-0, and Rojohn beat Sakolwah Kacharoen 6-3, 6-0. In a three-set match, Conte scored a 0-6, 6-1, 6-2 win against Christine Schmeidel, and Bergan downed Christy Drage 6-2, 6-2.

The Sun Devils' No. 1 seed, Krista Amend, went three sets to lose to Jennifer Larking 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Amend was victorious over Larking earlier in the season with a 6-2, 6-3 win in Tucson.

"I hit more errors today than I usually do," Amend said. "She was tougher than I was in the second and third sets."

"I'm trying to do what's right, sometimes that takes losing a few matches. Every match at my spot is tough."

McInerney said the No. 1 seeds always provide strong competition and Amend played well in the match.

Only the No. 3 doubles match was played with San Diego's Jill Greenwood and Kacharoen defeating ASU's duo of Luann Klimchoc and Conte, 6-2, 6-2.

ASU had already secured the victory with the five wins in singles play. The No. 3 doubles teams began play while the No. 1 singles opponents were competing.

The Sun Devils face a home encounter against 17th-ranked Texas at 1:30 p.m. Thursday at the Whiteman Tennis Center, and then travel to play No. 3 UCLA and No. 9 USC this weekend.

"Today's win will help us for tomorrow and this weekend," McInerney said. "One down, three more to go."

ASU men swim today at NAAs

By CHRIS NACKINO
State Press

The ASU men's swim team heads into the season's toughest competition today through Saturday at the 53rd annual NCAA Championships in Indianapolis.

Eleven swimmers will represent the Sun Devils, including only one senior and six underclassmen.

Last year, the Sun Devils finished 17th in the competition, however ASU head coach Ron Johnson said he hopes to surpass that performance.

"It all depends on how they handle this kind of pressure, but we are looking to finish within the top 12 teams," Johnson said. "For a young team, it is a realistic goal."

The lone senior to represent the Sun Devils is Rich Shinnick, who will compete in his fourth national championship. He will swim in the 400-yard individual medley, 200-yard butterfly and the 1650-yard freestyle.

A trio of former Olympians will represent the Sun Devils and bring experience to the competition.

Freshman David Le Blanc will compete in the 100- and 200-yard breaststroke along with the 200- and 400-yard individual medley.

Junior Paul Howe, who swam on Great Britain's bronze medal-winning relay team in 1984 and also represented Great Britain in 1988 at the Summer Olympics will compete in two relays along with the 200-, 500- and 1650-yard freestyle.

The final returning Olympian, sophomore Ross Anderson

Devils achieve Pac-10 honors

From staff and wire reports

ASU wrestling coach Bobby Douglas and 158-pounder Dan St. John were named the Pac-10 Coach and Wrestler of the Year, Commissioner Thomas C. Hansen announced Wednesday.

Douglas, who has won Pac-10 Coach of the Year honors five consecutive years and seven years total, led the Sun Devils to their fifth straight Pac-10 title in 1989 and a second-place finish in the NCAA Championships.

St. John became the fifth consecutive Sun Devil to win Pac-10 Wrestler of the Year honors. After winning his second straight conference title at 158 pounds, the junior from Cleveland went on to win the NCAA Championship. It marks the first time a Pac-10 Wrestler has won an NCAA Championship since 1985 when ASU's Eddie Urbano won the title at 150 pounds.

Baseballers outclass Harvard in 18-2 romp

By TOMI McELROY
State Press

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — In the UC-Riverside Baseball Invitational, ASU sophomore shortstop Anthony Manahan hit six for seven during the Sun Devils' 18-2 victory against the Harvard Crimson Wednesday.

ASU senior Steve Willis hit a three-run homer in the first inning and senior Dan Rumsey hit a two-run homer in the fifth in the Devils' victory.

Manahan, who had been put in the No. 2 hitting spot last weekend, said he likes the change.

"I like the No. 2 spot," Manahan said. "I get more chances to hit and more at-bats."

Manahan hit four singles, a double and a three-run home run in the sixth inning for his fourth home run of the year.

Manahan's six hits puts him in the lead for the most hits in one game by an ASU player. He beat the record Hubbie Brooks had held since 1978.

Left-handed pitcher senior David Cassidy started the game for the Sun Devils and pitched six scoreless innings to earn his first win of the season.

Cassidy had suffered a pinched ulnar nerve last fall and had not been consistent in his previous outings this season. He has made progress overall, he said, and his best pitch Wednesday was his fastball.

"If I make a mistake I know it," Cassidy said "I'm starting to feel a little better. My fastball is moving now — it had some good sync to it."

Cassidy gave up one hit, five strike-outs and three walks before being relieved by freshman Steve Brodie in the seventh.

"Cassidy was very stong," ASU coach Jim Brock said. "He has to keep working to have success."

This was Brodie's first varsity appearance for ASU.

"I was kind of nervous," he said. "I was anxious to get in and I wanted to keep the shut-out for Cassidy."

Brodie sent all the batters down in the seventh and eighth innings, but Harvard senior Dan McConaghy led off the ninth with a home run to right-center field.

Crimson sophomore Jay Jakimczyk then got a base hit and scored soon after on junior Tim Hurley's single down the right foul line.

Brodie struck out Ted Decareau earlier in the inning and closed the door by stiking out two more.

"My fastball and split finger were working," Brodie said. "My fast ball had pretty good pop to it and my split finger was really good."

Brodie struck out five, walked one and gave up three hits in his three innings of relief.

In Tuesday's game, ASU lost to Washington State, 7-6.

Senior Rusty Kilgo, who started for the Sun Devils, gave up a home run in the second and was pulled four runs later after pitching 5½ innings.

Junior Oscar Rivas came in for relief and finished the game. While Kilgo struck out one, walked one and gave up five runs, Rivas struck out two and gave up two.

In the ninth inning the Sun Devils were trailing 7-3, but rallied for three more runs before falling to the Cougars.

ASU freshman Mike Kelly hit his ninth home run of the year after blasting a fast ball over the left center-field wall.

will swim in five relays, the 200 butterfly and the 100-yard backstroke.

"We are going to have to fight for every point — we can't go in with a complacent attitude and expect to win," Johnson said. "Right now our key events will be the relays."

Making their debut NCAA appearance will be freshman Keith Dennison (200 and 400 IM, 200-yard freestyle relay), Le Blanc and Richard Tapper (200, 500 and 1650 freestyle and 500 freestyle relay).

In addition to the three freshmen, sophomore Scott Benesch (four relays) and junior Chris Jantz (500 free relay) will compete for the first time at the NCAA.

Action begins today with Tapper and Howe swimming in the 500 freestyle and junior David Fix in the 200 IM. ASU will also swim in the 200 medley and 800 freestyle relays.

Friday's actions begins with the 200-yard freestyle relay event followed by the 400 IM (Shinnick and juniors Yan Cardineau and David Fix), 200 freestyle (Howe and Tapper), 100 breaststroke (Le Blanc) and the 400 medley relay.

The competition concludes on Saturday with Le Blanc in the 200 breaststroke followed by three Sun Devils — Anderson, Fix and Shinnick in the 200 butterfly.

The final two events for the Sun Devils will be the 1650 freestyle (Cardineau and Howe) and the 400 medley relay.

"This team has performed well in the pool and I think we are more confident that we were at the Pac-10 meet (ASU finished sixth)," Johnson said. "Everyone is enthusiastic and looking good . . . all we have to do is go in with a fighting attitude."
