ASA to lead battle against tuition hike

By TYRONE MEIGHAN
State Press

The Arizona Students' Association is organizing a petition drive at the state's three universities against potential university budget cuts that could lead to tuition increases.

ASU signature-seekers will be in front of the MU beginning today at 10 a.m. and petitions also will be circulated at the residence halls and in classes, said Brad Golich, executive director of ASA.

"We'd like to see 20,000 signatures out of ASU," Golich said.

The proposed 1989-90 university budget, currently being considered at the Arizona Legislature, calls for $610 million in total university expenditures. But the Arizona Board of Regents project that the universities need a budget of $628 million just to maintain the current level of services.

A Senate appropriation subcommittee recommendation, approved last week, calls for only a 1.3 percent increase in general fund appropriations to the universities, and calls for more than $12 million of the shortfall to be made up from the universities' "collections," or tuition monies. Some student leaders are concerned that this requirement could cause the regents to further raise tuition costs.

Golich, along with other student leaders, will present the collected signatures to legislative leaders.

Associated Students of ASU President John Fees said individuals do not have to be students to sign the petitions.

Golich said ASA also is organizing a phone bank, which will begin next week at all three universities, to direct phone calls to legislators on the Joint Appropriations Committee.

The student reaction to the proposed cuts will culminate with a rally on April 12 at noon in front of the student unions at each university.

WEATHER

The forecast is for clear skies with a high in the mid-90s, rising to the low 100s by Wednesday. Lows tonight should be in the mid-60s.

Mecham to say if he will seek return to office

By TYRONE MEIGHAN
State Press

Exactly one year after he was ousted from the governorship of Arizona, Evan Mecham will announce today whether he will attempt to regain the office that took him 25 years to capture.

Today marks the anniversary of Mecham's April 4, 1988 conviction by the Senate Court of Impeachment on charges that he improperly used $80,000 in state funds - the "protocol fund" - to bail out his Glendale car business and interfered with a state investigation of a death threat made against one of his aides.

At a celebration hosted by Mecham at the Crescent Hotel in Phoenix tonight, the former governor will unveil his political plans. Many expect Mecham to say he will run for the Republican party's nomination for governor in 1990.

Recent actions by Mecham indicate that he will attempt a 6th gubernatorial bid.

Last week, Mecham sent letters to the donors of the protocol fund asking them whether they wanted their money back or if they preferred to give it to his election campaign if he runs again.

But whether the protocol fund goes to the State, the donors or stays with Mecham must still be decided by a court.

Chain letters clog ASU mail system

By SCOTT C. SECKEL
State Press

Everybody likes to get letters, but ASU Mail Services have been getting a few too many lately.

About 90,000 too many.

ASU Postmaster Joseph F. Barnett III said that a proliferation of chain letters on campus has increased the number of inter-campus mailings handled by ASU mail services by approximately 90,000 letters during the past month.

ASU Mail Services handles roughly 130,000 items every day, Barnett said.

Barnett said that the main reason for the jump in mail volume is that a chain letter, a piece of mail sent with a request to the reader to send out multiple copies to others, has been sent by several ASU employees to campus offices.

"You're talking about a lot of mail," he said. "There are 7,777 faculty and staff. If every one of them sent 20 letters, that's a lot of mail."

The chain letter does not ask for money. Barnett said he has been unable to trace the origins of the current round of chain letters.

The chain letter states that "it has been around the world four times."

"You will receive good luck within four days of receiving this letter - providing you, in turn, send it on. Do not keep this letter - it must leave your hands within 96 hours."

Chain letters have roamed the ranges of ASU before, Barnett said.

Barnett said after one incident he contacted the head of the department in which the letter writer worked and called attention to the activity. Barnett declined to release the name of the department, but said the employee was either transferred to another position or fired.

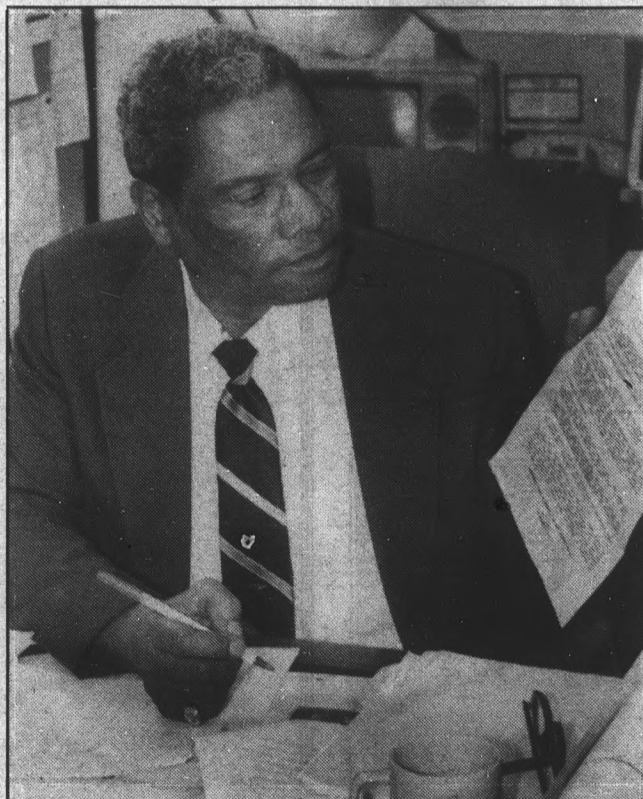

"(That person) is not causing any more problems," Barnett said. He added that other ASU employees have been caught in the past because they signed chain letters.

Employees in randomly surveyed campus offices, including the president's office, the Radiation Measurements Facility, the Department of Dance and the Department of Botany, said that they have not received copies of the letter.

Sian Ashendon, a Botany Department secretary, said that she had heard of the letter being circulated and was disappointed her office had not received a letter.

"I just wanted to see one," she said.

Nevertheless, ASU officials have taken the opportunity to remind employees that the misuse of the University mail system for other than official business is in violation of University policy and "may result in involuntary termination."

Witness quotes Casey saying North would handle Contras

WASHINGTON (AP) — A witness on Monday quoted the late CIA Director William Casey as saying President Reagan had designated Oliver North to handle the Nicaraguan Contras' military needs in the event of a congressional ban on official U.S. aid.

Vincent Cannistraro, a defense witness in North's trial, said Casey made the statement in the spring of 1984 during a meeting the CIA attended by CIA official Duane Claridge; the CIA station chief in Costa Rica, Joseph Fernandez and a Contra leader who was not identified.

The witness said at the outset of his testimony that he was knowledgeable about activities of the CIA in support of the Contras in the two years before the ban on aid went into effect; and he intimated, but never said, that he was with the CIA at the time. He said that in September 1984 he went to work for then-National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane and had an office next door to North's.

It had become obvious, Cannistraro said, that in the fiscal year starting in October 1984 Congress would cut off funds for the Contras.

"He, Bill Casey, speaking on behalf of the president of the United States, wanted to assure the freedom fighters that the U.S. government would find a way" to support them after the ban took effect, Cannistraro testified. "He said Col. North would not be subject to those restrictions." Casey died in 1987.

North maintained in congressional testimony that he acted in the belief that the ban applied only to intelligence agencies and not the National Security Council where he was an aide.

Charges against North include allegations that he concealed from Congress and former Attorney General Edwin Meese III his efforts on behalf of the Contras.

U.S. announces new measures to combat sky terrorism

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States announced new measures to combat sky terrorism Monday as relatives of passengers killed in the Pan Am Flight 103 bombing mounted a high-profile campaign to complain about aviation security and the government's "lack of compassion" following the disaster.

Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner, who along with President Bush met with several relatives of those killed in the explosion over Scotland, told a news conference that airlines will be required to install devices to detect plastic explosives in major U.S. and foreign airports.

Relatives of victims in the Dec. 21 explosion over Scotland, which has been blamed on a plastic device hidden in a radio-cassette player, praised Bush for concern shown in the meeting and said Skinner's announcement was a good first step.

Soviet, Cuban leaders meet, begin talks on differences

HAVANA (AP) — Presidents Mikhail S. Gorbachev and Fidel Castro went behind closed doors Monday for talks expected to air their ideological differences and highlight the problems of Third World nations.

A Soviet spokesman, asked whether Gorbachev would offer to forgive Cuba's massive debt to the Soviet Union, said that subject was not discussed specifically, although the leaders did talk about the "enormous debt plundering the economies" of Latin American countries.

The spokesman, Gennady I. Gerasimov, said Gorbachev's initial discussions with Castro and the Cuban Communist Party's Central Committee were held in a "friendly atmosphere."

He also said Gorbachev reported on the Soviet Union's recent multicandidate parliamentary elections, which were seen as a victory for the party's reformers. Castro, who has never allowed competitive elections in his 30-year rule, has openly criticized Gorbachev's reforms, saying they borrowed too much from the capitalist world.

Between ceremonial wreath layings at monuments to Jose Marti, the father of Cuban independence, and Lenin, the first Communist head of the Soviet Union, Castro and Gorbachev began their discussions in the Palace of the Revolution with members of their staffs facing each other across a conference table.

Corbin supports right to carry concealed weapons

By RICHARD LAMPING
State Press

Arizona Attorney General Bob Corbin said he supports laws that allow people to carry concealed weapons and said that he had carried a gun for protection during his investigation of former Gov. Evan Mecham last year.

Corbin, who is legally entitled to carry a concealed weapon as Arizona's top law enforcement officer, said that he knows other people who are not entitled to carry concealed weapons but choose to do so anyway.

"I know lawyers who carry guns in their briefcases; I know judges who carry guns," Corbin said. "During the Mecham thing, you bet I carried a concealed weapon."

Corbin headed the investigation of Mecham's handling of a $350,000 loan from a Tempe developer which resulted in the former governor's indictment on six felony charges.

Corbin, in a speech to about 40 law students Friday, said his life was threatened several times a week during his investigation of Mecham. He said he only carries a weapon when he feels his life is in danger.

Corbin said a past Arizona Legislature overstepped its bounds by making concealment illegal, and the lawmakers who now support reversing that law are merely making a correction.

The Arizona Senate is expected to vote on the concealment issue this month.

The 1917 Legislature never considered the Arizona founding fathers' decision not to regulate the carrying of weapons, but chose to legislate gun control anyway, Corbin said.

"I don't think the Legislature (had) the right to make a decision on concealed weapons," Corbin said.

Corbin said laws forbidding the carrying of concealed weapons does not take into account the fact that police cannot possibly protect the citizens adequately.

"We're just so short of people it's unbelievable," Corbin said. "We don't have the people to protect you."

"I don't have to be a sheep," Corbin said. "I have the right to protect myself and my family."

Corbin said everybody should have the right to self protection, and allowing private citizens the right to conceal a weapon is a means of lessening the crime rate.

"If you look at the cities with the toughest gun control laws, that's where they have the highest crime (rate)," Corbin said.

He cited Washington and New York as examples.

Corbin said he believes the crime rate will go down because criminals will "think twice" about committing a crime against a possibly armed civilian.

Corbin, who said he owns three guns which he uses for enjoyment, also said there has never been a case of a state-registered automatic weapon that was involved in a crime.

Corbin also said that Georgia, which has legalized the concealment of weapons by private citizens, has yet to have a crime committed with a licensed weapon.

He added that Vermont allows citizens to carry concealed, unlicensed weapons and that state's crime rate is lower because of it.

ASU kicks off Wellness Week activities today with MU lecture

Wellness Week is April 3-7 and is sponsored by ASU's Counseling and Consultation, Student Health Center, Counseling and Health Advisory Committee and BACHUS. The weeks activities include:

- Today: A Brown Bag Series, "Relationships on the Rocks" in the MU Yuma Room 11:15 to 12:15 p.m.
- Wednesday: A Brown Bag Series, "Developing Personal Wellness" in the MU Yuma Room 10 a.m. to 11.

Wellness, cholesterol and blood pressure assessments will be given along with mini-massage sessions at the Student Health Center from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Cancer prevention examinations part of community health program

As part of Cancer Awareness Week, the Community Health Services Clinic will offer a cancer prevention program. For $100 women can receive cholesterol and blood pressure screening, a breast exam, mammogram, pelvic exam, pap smear and colorectal exam. Appointments can be made Monday through Friday by calling 941-9283.

ASU's clinical lab to hold open house

ASU's clinical laboratory sciences program is presenting an open house April 11 from 4:40 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. in the Life Sciences Building, Room C458, as part of National Medical Laboratory Week April 9-15. Clinical laboratory sciences faculty members will be available to explain program entrance requirements and discuss job opportunities for graduates. For more information call Diana Mass at 965-7090.

Scottsdale counselors to host newcomers

Charter Counseling Center of Scottsdale is presenting a workshop and continental breakfast Saturday, April 15 from 9 a.m. to noon for people who have relocated to the Valley. The workshop will allow participants to make new acquaintances, learn coping skills, build self-esteem and find out area resources. The workshop fee is $20. For reservations call 451-8067.

Compiled by State Press reporter Stacy Haymes.

Refund on Reagan tickets available through Friday

Those who purchased tickets for former President Ronald Reagan's March 20 speech in the ASU Activity Center must redeem them by this Friday, April 7. Tickets can be redeemed by presenting the stubs at the Gammage Center Box Office or any Dillard's ticket outlet.

Almost $38,000 worth of tickets were sold to Reagan's speech before the former President waived his appearance fee. As of March 31, 1,100 tickets valued at $11,290 had not been redeemed.

For further ticket information call the Gammage Center Box Office at 965-3434 or the ASASU office at 965-3161. The Box Office hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Policy

Woe to poor students who run afoul of the 'Computer'

Carolyn Höfig
Columnist

Hello and welcome to ASU's semesterly lottery, also known as Early Registration.

The game for next fall started Friday, so grab an early-registration form — make sure it's not just the regular registration request slip — and get ready for fun and ulcers, Sun Devil-style.

To play, you simply select with painstaking concern one to six courses that you desperately need to fulfill graduation requirements.

Write the course numbers on the early-registration application, obtain the appropriate battery of signatures, stamps and approvals, and submit the form to your adviser.

Then sit back until the last week of April, when you find out what new orifices the omniscient, omnipotent, omnivorous Computer has ripped in your program of study.

If your schedule of classes bears any resemblance to the course-request slip you turned in, you win!

However, if you don't rank among the winners, don't expect a consolation prize — not even an adequate appeals process.

You can't argue with the Computer. To be sure, your adviser will do everything he can to assist you in jostling options; the people who man the registrar's sites will be endlessly friendly and helpful.

But they are all humans and, consequently, powerless to alter the academic destiny chosen for you by the mindless brain of the Computer.

They will cite Policy, the nearest subrogation of reason that forms the Computer's judgments, and suggest, in so many words, that you grin and bear it.

They've all grown accustomed to remanding their authority to the Computer; you might as well resign yourself, too.

Actually, the system, which controls a student's stint at ASU from admission to alumnus-status, works reasonably well — as long as that student remains well within the pre-programmed parameters of everyday Policy.

Even early registration has a brutal fairness about it, in the same vein as, say, gladiatorial combat.

But if that student does something other than the expected, he can expect mass misery.

Consider the French 207 student who, unsure of his grasp of irregular verbs in the imperfect and the whole subjunctive mood, seeks to enroll in the 200-level French grammar review.

Policy dictates that the student can only move forward in the language sequences — if he wants credit for the class, anyway — which precludes him from taking French 201.

So the Computer kicks out his request. Or take the case of the business student

*'Then sit back until ... you find out what new orifices the omniscient, omnipotent, omnivorous
Computer has ripped in your program of study.'*

who transfers from the East Coast with two semesters to go. Or so he thinks.

Unfortunately, the course called "Financial Accounting I" in Pennsylvania does not transfer as "Introductory Financial Accounting" at ASU. Nor does "Marketing Principles" out East count as "Principles of Marketing" here. Evidently, the line numbers are different.

So the Computer rejects his business credits, leaving the student with 20-odd hours worth of useless elective credits and about four extra semesters of work to repeat.

Four extra semesters of out-of-state tuition.

Back in the old days when people still ran universities, the French student and the business student could sit across a desk from a human being and explain these singular circumstances. They could at least count on sympathy, if not special permission to bend Policy enough to accommodate their situations.

And the graduating senior who didn't get into the 100-level history course he had put off until his ninth semester probably could count on an override.

But the Computer is programmed for neither sympathy nor flexibility. It upholds pure Policy, blindly, unyieldingly, completely.

It stamps out ready-made educations for every ID number it is fed, regardless of whether the student attached fits the muster.

And those administering at ASU seem content to let it continue.

It relieves them of the responsibilities decision-making entails.

Perhaps the Computer's no-exceptions approach is democracy at its finest.

Perhaps it represents the technocratically induced assembly-line mediocrity in which America finds itself increasingly mired.

Perhaps the future is the red-tape hell Franz Kafka envisioned.

Perhaps the present is, too.

Pro-lifers should protect all life

Editor:

The unspoken connection between several of the letters printed in your March 16 edition prompted these ruminations.

Josephine Levy addressed the pain and suffering which animals undergo as a result of "agribusiness" techniques employed so that humans may consume their flesh, not to mention other uses. Her expressed sentiments on this issue parallel mine, as I have been a vegetarian for 18 years now and, having several pets, appreciate their keen sensitivities.

The thoughts of D. E. Livingston on another topic — concerning the point at which the fetus in the womb starts to develop human qualities — raises serious questions about the implications of abortions.

However, I wonder just how all-encompassing and substantive is Livingston's implied concern for the welfare of sentient beings ... or does it constitute hypocritical angling? Specifically, if Livingston and those who espouse the pro-life position really care so deeply about the effects of abortion on the fetus, where is the manifestation of that same compassion in their actions toward fully developed, living animals who, I submit, are at least as conscious as a five-week-old embryo? It's safe to assume that most pro-lifers are carnivores.

My point is that one cannot legitimately separate what is said from what is done. As we proclaim responsibility and affection for some (the unborn), let us not blithely trample upon the spirits of those we relegate to inferior status. As we accuse, let us be blameless.

Absolute stands on issues invariably coincide with vehemence in the repudiation of others' views. Until one can attain a pristine standard of conduct, perhaps a little understanding and empathy would soften the innumerable barriers in this planet: imagine a world where taking sides was not a perilous proposition. If I had my druthers, that's the kind of world into which I'd like to be born, and I'm sure one or two pregnant ladies might think so too.

'Street Sweeper' advances science of killing people

Mike Royko
Tribune Media Services

Just when I have found the weapon of my dreams, President Bush shows signs of turning into a gun wimp. So it will be a footrace to see if I can buy it before it is banned.

Before I describe the gun I intend to own, I will explain why most firearms are of little or no use to me.

Take the pistol. It doesn't matter if it is a revolver or an automatic, small caliber or a Dirty Harry blaster. Beyond two or three feet, I can't hit a thing with it.

One reason is that I can never remember to aim with my left eye, my right eye, or both eyes. A marksman told me to keep both eyes open. When I tried that, my eyes crossed and I saw two targets, which meant I was immediately outnumbered.

Besides, I have weak eyes. That's really why I find a pistol useless. By the time a murderous fiend was close enough for me to get a shot at him, he'd have me by the throat and I'd be doomed.

Why not get a rifle, you say? The same problem as the pistol. Weak eyes. You have to be able to see your target, aim and hit it. Why, even with an AK-47, the famous repeating rifle, if my home were invaded, I would probably blast my coat rack to pieces while the felon was making off with my CD player.

This is why I've argued for years that the gun laws should take into account the many weak-eyed people in this country for whom pistols and rifles offer little protection from those who are lurking outside our windows, waiting under our beds, and hiding in the branches of our backyard trees.

Years ago, I organized the Committee for the Total Legalization of Machine Guns, so that any citizen could buy them at their local K-mart, as the founding fathers obviously intended.

I sought the help of the National Rifle Association, pointing out that if every little old lady had a chopper mounted on a tripod in her parlor, ne'er-do-wells would think twice about stealing her best silverware.

But I received little cooperation from the NRA. Sometimes I wonder how dedicated that outfit really is.

The same thing happened when I called for the legalization of land mines. What better way for the weak-eyed person to protect hearth and home than to bury a few mines on his own property?

Naturally, I wouldn't be so irresponsible as to let the innocent step on them. You wouldn't want your neighbor's child or dog being blown over your roof. Could cause hard feelings.

My proposal was that land mines be sold to any reasonably sane adult with the requirement that signs be posted saying:

"Warning, land mines. Trespassers will be blown to bits."

The NRA didn't join me in that worthy endeavor, either, the pansies. And I was even criticized by educators, who said that the signs would do nothing to discourage illiterates.

It was the most ridiculous argument I've ever heard. If anything, blowing up a few illiterates would inspire others to improve their reading skills.

After these defeats, I gave up on ever finding a weapon that would suit my needs. Until recently.

While reading all the stories about the efforts to ban repeating assault weapons, I came across the gun that I've dreamed about but didn't know existed.

The weapon is called — what a colorful and appropriate name — the "Street Sweeper."

It is a shotgun, but not the old fuddy-duddy shotgun that you have to keep reloading every few shots, or pumping or pulling a lever. In other words, when the blood-thirsty fiends are upon you, there's no wasted time or effort.

The noble Street Sweeper takes a clip holding a dozen cartridges. And you can fire that dozen as fast as you can squeeze the trigger. In some tests, I've read, people with quick fingers have reeled off all 12 blasts in four or five seconds.

And because it's a shotgun, you can be a miserable shot and still blow away everything in sight, as well as anything that isn't in sight.

I know what some readers are saying: Why would a sane, peaceful, reasonable normal person want to own such a fearsome weapon?

Well, I have another motive. There is always the possibility that I will become deranged. But if that happens, what deranged act could I commit? Not much more than to hit my wife with a lamp.

You only go around once in life, and who wants to be remembered as the deranged man who hit his wife with a lamp? That wouldn't even make the local 10 o'clock news.

Ah, but with a Street Sweeper, I could become a nationally renowned loony. I could take out the whole neighborhood, plus a couple of saloons.

Actually, I fit the psychological profile of the deranged gunman. If you've ever noticed, after someone goes on a shooting spree, his family and neighbors almost always say: "He was a quiet kind of guy, a nice guy, really. I can't believe he'd do something like that." you never hear them say: "Yep, nutty as a fruitcake. I knew he'd kill a dozen people some day."

Well, that's what family and neighbors say about me. Quiet, pleasant, wouldn't hurt a fly. The perfect profile of a potential madman.

So if you are the quit, pleasant, harmless sort, now is the time to get your Street Sweeper. Maybe we'll meet on the 10 o'clock news.

ASU football team not known for crime problems

By KELLY PEARCE
State Press

The arrest of an ASU football player and a former member of the team may have given a "black eye" to the Sun Devil football team last week, but ASU has avoided much of the crime problems that have plagued university athletic teams across the country, ASU officials said Monday.

University athletic officials are saying that the infractions ASU athletes have been charged with are not serious, and would not have been mentioned by the media if the men were not members of the ASU athletic teams.

"ASU as a whole has fairly minute problems compared to other institutions," said ASU associate athletic director Herman Frazier. "This is happening all over the country."

In last week's incident, offensive tackle Mark Hayes was arrested Thursday on an Arizona Department of Public Safety traffic warrant for failing to appear in court. He was released the same day, posting a $96 bail.

Former ASU football player Michael Simmons was arrested at the same time as Hayes in their Tempe apartment in connection with the Feb. 26 theft of a handgun from ASU's Cholla Apartment complex. Simmons was released on his own recognizance early Friday morning, said ASU police Sgt. Bob Jones, head of the department's detective squad.

No court date or preliminary action has been arranged for Simmons, Jones said.

"Millions of people get picked up for this (Hayes' traffic violation) in the course of the day," Frazier said. "Because they're athletes, it's newsworthy."

ASU head football coach Larry Marmie said Hayes should be treated like any other person.

"He's just like anybody else on campus," Marmie said. "I don't see the athlete as any different. A young man that violates a rule, law or whatever — obviously he's responsible."

Of Simmons' arrest, Frazier said, "We have to realize that he's not on the team."

The athletic department received a call from ASU police about the arrests late Thursday, and disciplinary action has not been taken yet.

"When it comes to discipline, we take a recommendation from the coach," Frazier said. "It is usually accepted by the athletic director."

Marmie said Hayes will receive some sort of punishment, but said the punishment will not be severe.

"He had an outstanding traffic ticket and he didn't take care of it when he should have," the head coach said. "It won't threaten his status on the football team."

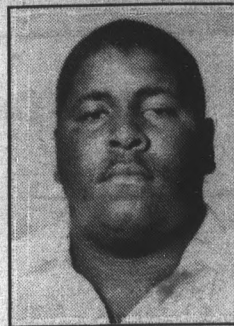

But Frazier added that the athletic director has the power to overrule football coach Larry Marmie's action if it is too harsh or not strict enough.

The last time an ASU football player was arrested occurred in May 1987 when linebacker Greg Clark was charged with aggravated assault of a police officer. In December of that year, Clark served a month in jail and had to pay $4,781.45 in restitution.

The incidents involving ASU's football players do not compare to charges filed against athletes at a number of universities nationwide, Frazier said.

For example, over the weekend two Iowa State athletes were shot by police after they allegedly robbed a Burger King restaurant in Ames, Iowa.

Basketball player Sam Mack and football player Levin White were shot when they attempted to flee the scene. Both were charged with armed robbery and more charges may be made later this week.

In Boulder, Colo., 30 University of Colorado football players have been arrested in the last two years — 11 of those occurring last semester. The charges against the football players have ranged from rape assault to missing traffic court dates.

At the University of Oklahoma, football quarterback Charles Thompson was arrested on a complaint of selling cocaine to an undercover FBI agent in February.

And several weeks earlier three Oklahoma football players were charged with first-degree rape following an alleged gang rape at the player's dormitory.

Racism course work proposal defeated by Michigan faculty

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A proposal requiring course work on racism was defeated Monday by faculty at the University of Michigan, site of several racial incidents in recent years.

The plan was defeated by about 140 to 120 votes, said Joseph Owsley, university information director. A second proposal, also calling for compulsory racism courses, was scuttled as well.

"It wasn't actually defeated, it was replaced," he said. A third motion, the Scott proposal, calls for asking the curriculum committee of the College of Literature, Science and the Arts to consider by next fall ways to address racism that wouldn't involve mandatory classes, Owsley said.

Philosophy professor Peter Railton, a spokesman for the group that proposed the required course work, said debate that preceded the vote left him optimistic.

"The debate was a substantive and good one. I think the discussion and the vote will have impact on thinking of the (curriculum) committee," Railton said.

The defeated proposal would have required students to take four credit hours of classes in which racism was studied. Classes could have been in economics, sociology or other fields.

About 5,000 of the Ann Arbor University's 32,400 students are minorities, some of whom say the campus has been plagued with racial and anti-Semitic graffiti and occasional tauntings.

Diseased mice "liberated" from UofA laboratories

TUCSON (AP) — Mice carrying a dangerous disease were among 1,231 research animals stolen, a University of Arizona researcher said in the wake of Monday's arson fires for which an activist group also claimed credit.

A group identifying itself as the Animal Liberation Front claimed responsibility for the "liberation" of mice, rabbits, guinea pigs, frogs and rats and for two early-morning arson fires that caused an estimated $100,000 damage.

Michael Cusanovich, university vice president for research, said the vandalism and thefts amounted to terrorism and "a direct attack on the health and welfare of the people of this country."

He said, "We are extremely dismayed that a number of significant research projects have been disrupted or ruined. The animal research carried out by our investigators contributes in a major way to alleviation of suffering and the prevention and the cure of illness of the people of Arizona and around the world."

The group claimed in a statement issued to various news organizations that it had saved the animals "from certain torture and death."

Charles Sterling, a veterinary sciences professor, said 30 mice about a week old were infected with the parasite cryptosporidium, which affects the gastrointestinal tract of humans and many animals. The mice were in a locked room with warning signs posted, he said.

Another researcher working on developing a vaccine for a parasite-caused swine dysentery was similarly affected, he said.

The group's statement said the animals, "many of whom were found with open sores and wounds and dying from overdose injections of various substances, are being placed in good homes around the country where they will live free from the invasive curiosity of researchers and vivisectionists."

Cusanovich said animal research is conducted in strict compliance with all federal laws. He said the university has offered no incentives for the animals' return, but would "certainly consider that."

Sterling said the 30 mice were part of a research study seeking ways to control, diagnose and treat the disease cryptosporidiosis, which causes severe diarrhea for two to three weeks or even longer.

He said the animals were at the stage of infection "where they might be expected to be passing large numbers of this particular organism, so the people who have taken these animals themselves obviously are at risk of infection."

Sterling said lab workers wore face masks and protective garments to prevent inhaling cysts that might be transmitted through feces.

"There is no treatment," he said, other than oral rehydration to control loss of fluids.

He said those contracting the disease could pass it on to others.

"The disease itself is not really fatal," he said, but it depends on the immune status of the individual; malnourished children, immunosuppressed people such as organ transplant recipients or people who are immunocompromised, such as AIDS patients, are particularly prone. "Many AIDS patients have been known to perish from cryptosporidiosis," he added.

Sterling said the mice will overcome the disease in a week to 10 days but remain infectious until then. He said there probably would be less risk for infection if the animals had been let loose into the wild.

Research has "come to a screeching halt" and been put back "at least four to six months," he said.

Bob Barnett, a 1986 heart transplant recipient and a spokesman for a pro-animal research group, Incurably Ill for Animal Research, said, "I'm outraged. The vast majority of the population support animal research." He said the public supports such work, "and there are a lot of us walking around alive today who are here simply because someone did some animal research."

A three-alarm fire about 3:45 a.m. on the top floor of the five-story Pharmacy-Microbiology Building destroyed two labs and damaged two others and class space, while causing an estimated $90,000 damage, officials said.

Tucson Police arson Detective William Briamonte said the fire was started in a hallway where someone had piled combustible material.

Another deliberately set fire broke out about 6 a.m. in a converted residence housing the Division of Animal Resources' lab animal-procurement offices, causing about $10,000 damage, university police Sgt. Brian Seastone said.

He said a bottom-floor office of the Shantz Animal Sciences Building also was broken into and ransacked, with walls and floors spray-painted with graffiti, as were the walls in a sixth-floor laboratory of the Biosciences West building, where doors and windows also were broken out and more animals taken.

No injuries were reported.

John Mulder, director of animal care resources, said 1,160 mice, 42 rats, 16 rabbits, nine guinea pigs and four frogs were taken.

In January, another animal rights group claimed credit for taking seven research dogs from the Veterans Administration, three of which subsequently returned on their own, an official said.

In its statement, the Animal Liberation Front said it "conducted the liberations both as an act of mercy and compassion for the individual animal victims, and also as part of a larger international campaign against the scientific-medical industry's misguided, anti-human, anti-earth, profit-oriented practices of vivisection, biotechnology and synthetic pharmaceutical research."

Former ASU football player arrested for alleged assault

By MIKE BURGESS
State Press

Former ASU football player Jeff Joseph, who played cornerback on the Sun Devils' 1987 Rose Bowl winning team, was arrested Monday in connection with the assault of a female athletic trainer whose arm was dislocated when she was shoved against a wall, police said.

Joseph, 22, of Tempe, was arrested about 1:45 p.m. outside the Intercollegiate Athletic Complex at the south end of Sun Devil Stadium. He was booked on charges of assault and criminal trespassing, said ASU police Sgt. Bob Jones, head of the department's detective squad.

The incident occurred when Joseph, a senior physical education major, was reportedly using a telephone in an athletic department office where he was not allowed, Jones said.

Jones said when an athletic trainer told him to hang up the phone and leave, he refused, and allegedly pushed the woman when she tried to hang up the phone herself.

The athletic trainer, who Jones declined to identify, did not need medical treatment, he said.

police report

ASU police also reported on Monday:

• A woman reported that her 14-year-old son was assaulted Sunday night by a man in Hayden Library who accused him of stealing his bookbag. The youth was not injured and charges are pending review by the Maricopa County attorney's office.

Tempe police earn national accreditation

After four years of polishing their badges to perfection, the Tempe Police Department gained national accreditation on Sunday, becoming only the second law enforcement agency in Arizona to do so.

The Police Department obtained accreditation from the Commission of Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies during a ceremony in Hartford, Conn.

Only 100 other departments in the United States have gained CALEA's endorsement and the Phoenix Police Department is the only other Arizona agency to win accreditation.

"Everyone is very pleased," said police spokesman Sgt. Al Taylor. "It's quite a feather in our cap to be one of only a few accredited departments."

CALEA, a non-profit corporation based in Virginia, is made up of various national police organizations and was formed in 1979 to develop uniform standards for law enforcement agencies.

Tempe police spent $500,000 to upgrade their department and had to meet more than 900 performance and equipment standards. A team of CALEA assessors came to Tempe in January and inspected the department.

Taylor said the CALEA accreditation is a major boost to the Police Department and their public image.

"It gives credibility to our professionalism," Taylor said. "We had an independent party take a look at us and say we perform to national standards."

Critics of the accreditation program have said that once a police department applies for approval by CALEA they are never denied it.

Mecham

State GOP Chairman Burton Kruglick, who wrote a letter to Mecham last week urging him not to run again, said he has no indication what the former governor's political future will be.

"I really don't know what his ultimate decision will be," he said. "He has the right to run."

Kruglick told Mecham in the letter that the state's 710,000 Republicans "might be better served" if someone other than Mecham ran.

Kruglick further wrote that he will not support a candidate in the 1990 primary, but will work for the party's nominee in the general election.

The former governor was convicted of charges that he misused a protocol fund and attempted to block an investigation into an alleged death threat made by then Mecham aide Lee Watkins against Mecham's former legislative liaison, Donna Carlson.

The conviction brought to an end Mecham's stormy 13-month reign in which the state's residents were sharply divided in their allegiance to Mecham.

Mecham began his stormy tenure and captured national attention during his first month in office by announcing that he intended to rescind a state holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr. because he believed that his predecessor, Democratic Gov. Bruce Babbitt, had created the holiday illegally through an executive order.

He further drew criticism for his comments about homosexuals, Chinese, Jews and working women. Some of Mecham's appointments to fill his office staff and head state agencies came under fire for their past conduct, including one appointee who had an outstanding warrant for his arrest on murder charges and another who had failed to pay taxes.

Mecham was indicted in January 1988 on six felony counts of fraud, perjury and filing false documents in con-

Jack W. Bosley Jr./State Press

Mecham recall organizer Ed Buck jokingly displays Mecham's signature on a recall petition. Opponents of the governor obtained enough signatures to force a recall election, but it was never held because Mecham was impeached by the Arizona Senate on April 4, 1988.

nection with his failure to disclose a $350,000 campaign loan from Tempe developer Barry Wolfson.

Mecham eventually was acquitted of those charges, but his indictment prompted several prominent Arizonans and Republican members of the state's congressional delegation to call for his resignation.

The Senate's conviction removed Mecham from office, giving the governorship to then Secretary of State Rose Mofford, a Democrat. But the Senate failed to impose the "Dracula clause" that would have banned Mecham from ever holding office in Arizona again.

Rep. Lela Steffey, R-Mesa and a staunch Mecham supporter, has requested Arizona Attorney General Bob Corbin's legal opinion on whether Mecham can run in the 1990 election.

"I am of the opinion that everybody has the right to run as long as it is legal," Steffey said, adding that she has not received a response from Corbin yet.

Corbin said Monday that his office will release a decision within the next two weeks. But he said, "Our opinion is just that, our best legal opinion."

Corbin said he has no qualms with Mecham running again.

"It is his right," he said. "If he can legally run, fine." Steffey said she doesn't think Mecham will hurt the state if he runs again.

"I did not think it hurt the state before," she said. "I appreciated a man of his conviction being in the governorship."

Former House Speaker Joe Lane, R-Wilcox, who was successfully targeted for ouster from office in the November general election by Mecham supporters, said if Mecham runs in the GOP primary and wins the nomination, the Democrats could retain the governorship.

"I think it is going to be very divisive for the Republican party," he said. "I think Mr. Mecham should finally get the message."

Mecham has remained politically active in the year since he was forced from office, speaking frequently throughout the state and often raising money for the Forward Arizona Political Action Committee, which he formed to defeat his enemies from the Legislature.

Rep. Jenny Norton, R-Tempe and an outspoken Mecham critic who once called him a "stumblebum," said Monday that she thinks Mecham has a good chance of winning the Republican party nomination if he decides to run.

"It doesn't surprise me that he will run again," she said. "He consistently has shown around a 30 percent favorability rate at the polls. I haven't seen it decrease. He is very persuasive and very powerful."

Although only in office for 13 months, much of Mecham's legacy remains.

Arizona still has no paid holiday honoring King, although Mecham did proclaim a Sunday holiday for the slain civil rights leader.

Portions of Mecham's war on drugs program that required appropriations from the attorney general's office is still in effect and parts of it have been adopted by Mofford.

The 13 months Mecham was in office was one of the few years the state did not increase taxes, Steffey said.

And Mecham's suggestion that the state prison at Florence be turned into a "prison city," with most inmates held in one central location, was mentioned by Mofford in her "State of the State" speech in January.

Former student regents downplay vote

By RICHARD A. VIGIL
State Press

Former student members of the Arizona Board of Regents said that future voting rights for the student regent will not change the Board's view of the students or give them more power, but will be a boost to the student's status among members of the general public.

Paul Julien, a Tucson attorney who served in 1984-85 as student regent from UofA, said the student regent already is respected by other Board members.

"The vote is meaningless as far as the credibility and the respect of the Board is concerned," Julien said. "I don't really see that it will make much of a difference."

Legislation giving student regents voting rights gained final approval Friday when it was approved by the Arizona Senate. Howard Boice, Gov. Rose Mofford's press secretary, said Mofford wants to sign the bill into law "as soon as possible."

The bill creating the student regent position in 1978 originally called for the student member to have full voting powers. But a legislative compromise made it possible for the Board to exclude the student from its executive sessions and did not allow the student regent to vote.

In 1987, the position was made a permanent part of the Board and not subject to periodic legislative review.

Former student regent and UofA law student Joe Mikitish, who served during the 1987-88 school year, said he does not know of a situation where the student member was excluded from an executive session.

"That, I think, attests to the fact that the Board considers the student regent a full member," Mikitish said.

Current Student Regent Pat McWhortor, an ASU public administration graduate student, said he is "very pleased" that his successor will be a full member of the Board.

"I think it will have an impact and it will make a difference," McWhortor said.

He said the student regent will take a much more active and visible role on the board because now people will pay more attention to the student regent.

Mikitish said future student regents likely will feel more pressure from outside groups because they have voting powers.

"(Voting powers) will change the image mostly to outsiders," Mikitish said. "People will respect the office."

Julien said future student regents will have to familiarize themselves with conflict-of-interest rules, because sometimes the Board considers policy having direct consequences for students.

"It's a whole new arena that students have never had to deal with," he said. "As a voting member, you have to shoulder the responsibility of your vote."

He said the student regent likely would face a conflict of interest when the regents are considering a change of the curriculum directly affecting the student's major or when the Board votes on tuition increases.

The issue of conflict of interest was one that threatened to derail the idea of a student regent when the idea first came before the Legislature.

"Really, that was the only legitimate argument against it," Julien said.

Michigan earns title on last-second free throws

SEATTLE (AP) — Rumeal Robinson made two free throws with three seconds left in overtime Monday night to give Michigan its first national championship and cap the improbable ride of interim head coach Steve Fisher with an 80-79 victory over Seton Hall.

Fisher had taken over the Michigan team just two days before the NCAA tournament began and coached them to the six victories needed for the national title.

The championship game was the fifth to go into overtime and the first since Loyola, Ill., beat Cincinnati 60-58 in 1963.

Glen Rice was the player who carried Fisher and the Wolverines to the title with 31 points in the final, giving him an NCAA tournament record 184, breaking the 24-year-old mark of 177 set by Bill Bradley of Princeton.

Robinson, who finished with 21 points and 11 assists, got his chance to be the hero when he was fouled by Gerald Greene, who had missed the front end of a one-and-one with 1:17 remaining and Seton Hall leading 79-76.

Terry Mills made a turnaround jumper with 56 seconds left to bring the Wolverines within one. Seton Hall worked the 45-second shot clock down and John Morton, who finished with 35 points, tossed up an airball with 11 seconds left.

Michigan brought the ball downcourt and Robinson began a drive to the basket when he was fouled before shooting. Robinson nailed the free throws and, after two Pirate timeouts, Daryll Walker's final desperation 3-pointer banged off the glass and rim and Michigan had its first national championship in three title-game appearances.

Michigan lost to UCLA 91-80 in 1965 and to Indiana 86-68 in 1976.

Rice opened the overtime with a jumper that was answered by Andrew Gaze's 3-pointer, his first field goal of the game. The teams exchanged leads three more times, with Seton Hall's final lead coming on a

ASU gymnasts tumble, place third at regionals

By CHRIS DORSEY
State Press

An unexpected turn of events led to a third-place finish for the ASU women's gymnastics team at the Midwest Regional over the weekend.

The Sun Devils suffered falls on the balance beam and uneven bars by the top performers which resulted in a 190.00 overall score.

ASU captured a third-place tie with Oklahoma Saturday in Salt Lake City. The pair finished behind Utah (192.80) and Nebraska (192.40).

"We hit our first two events then had falls on bars and beam," Sun Devil sophomore Michelle Colavin said. "We did well but not as good as we could have."

ASU coach John Spini is now making travel arrangements for Athens, Ga., where the Sun Devils begin national competition next week. ASU will enter the meet as the 10th seed and participate in the afternoon session.

"We are kind of disappointed with being in the second rotation," ASU junior Molly Carpenter said. "But it is the last meet, we just need to do our best and place the best we can."

Carpenter boasted the highest all-around score for the Sun Devils, as she placed seventh with a 38.35 mark.

"It started out good on floor and if everything goes good in the first event it sets the pace for the rest of the meet," she said.

Carpenter claimed team honors in the vault and uneven bars with a 9.55 and 9.65, respectively. The San Jose, Calif., native scored a 9.55 or better in each of the four events.

Sun Devil Karli Urban rounded out the top finishers in the all-around with a 38.10 score to give her a tie for 10th place.

Urban suffered a fall on the the balance beam, but fought back to post a 9.25. The senior performed a near-perfect floor routine as she scored a 9.75. In other events, Urban chalked up tallies of 9.50 on the vault and 9.60 on the uneven bars.

Trailing in Urban's footsteps was Colavin, who finished 12th, .05 behind the senior with a 38.05 score.

Colavin tabulated a 9.45 on the vault, 9.55 on the bars, 9.40 on floor exercise and tallied the best ASU score on the balance beam with a 9.65.

Spini saw junior Colette Anderson hand in a consistent performance. On the night, she scored 9.50 on the floor exercise and

Robinson asks for respect; team deserves NCAA berth

By GARY JACKSON
State Press

ASU men's gymnastics coach Don Robinson is appealing for a reconsideration of the Sun Devils' final ranking in hopes of qualifying for the April 13-15 NCAA Championship meet in Lincoln, Neb.

ASU is the No. 10 team in the nation and is being threatened of losing its spot in the championship meet.

Under normal circumstances, the top 10 teams in the nation compete in the national championship, but No. 13 Penn State is being moved up to No. 10 so that a team from the East will be represented in the meet. There already are four teams from the West.

The final statistics are tallied two weeks before the NCAA competition. At that point, the conference representatives at each school communicate during a conference call and decide who will compete at nationals.

Last year ASU was bumped from its No. 10 position to allow No. 11 Penn State to move up for the same reason it has been advanced this season.

But the Sun Devils have found a clause in the rule books that may keep them in the lineup.

Under NCAA rules, ASU could challenge UC-Berkeley for its No. 9 spot, if the average of its top five scores of the season were within one point of the Bears.

The Sun Devils finished with a 274.91 average, exactly one point behind Berkeley's 275.91.

Sun Devil baseball team hits highs and lows in California

By DEAN GYORGY
State Press

Five days in Riverside brought the fourth-ranked ASU baseball team the Baseball Invitational tournament championship but with mixed efforts along the way.

"It was a time of extremes," Sun Devil coach Jim Brock said. "The bad was very bad, and the good was very good."

In the opening game against Washington State, ASU committed six errors allowing five unearned runs.

But the Devils rebounded with two 18-run games, collecting 19 hits in each. They also scored 14 against Brigham Young in the championship game.

"Overall, it was a breakthrough offensively," Brock said. "Our offense has been fairly effective all year, but we've had a lot of close games."

"This was the first week where we really scored a lot of runs. Everyday was like Sunday in the Six-Pac."

Leading the ASU attack was shortstop Anthony Manahan who was named Pac-10 Southern Division Player of the Week.

Hitting from his comfortable second spot in the order, Manahan went 17-31 for a .531 average. He added a team-high 12 RBI, with four doubles, a triple and his fourth home run of the year.

His season batting average went from .328 to .369, putting him on top of that statistical category.

"(The second spot) seems to work very well," Brock said. "He's been just red hot. They were all hit very hard."

Manahan has flourished offensively since being moved to No. 2 during the Arizona series March 23-25. Brock said a direct correlation cannot be made, but he does see better pitches than he did when hitting in the bottom third of the order.

"We've always thought he was a good hitter," Brock said. "It started in Taiwan when he hit .500. They do have to pitch to the number-two guy, there's no way around that." ASU junior Oscar Rivas was named Pitcher of the Week.

Rivas was 2-0 in three appearances, posting an ERA of 0.79. In 11 and one-third innings, he allowed one earned run on six hits; walking two and striking out 15.

"Oscar pitched brilliantly in some tough situations," Brock said.

ASU will play an exhibition game tonight against the Phoenix Firebirds, and Rivas will start and throw three innings. Game time is 7 p.m. at Phoenix Municipal Stadium.

"It's a good chance for our kids, especially our seniors, to be seen against AAA pitchers," Brock said. "Scouts seem to be able to judge them better than they can against college pitching."

Note: Catcher Eric Helfand broke the fifth metacarpal (the knuckle on his pinky finger) in his right hand when he was hit by a foul tip in Saturday's championship game. Helfand will wear a splint and is expected to be out two to four weeks.

standard requirements before the position is taken from Bears and given to the Sun Devils:

- Final regional results
- Head-to-head competition
- Score of final meet
- Strength of schedule and overall standings

"We've got a pretty good argument," ASU associate athletic director Herman Frazier said, "but it's up to the committee to make the decision."

The final ruling will be made today, but after making a few calls Monday, Robinson appeared confident.

"As far as I'm concerned," Robinson said, "I'm celebrating. We meet all four criteria."

"I talked to three committee people and they said, 'don't lose any sleep.'"

ASU assistant coach Scott Barclay said the higher-ranked teams in the nation are guaranteed of trip to the NCAAs, while the lower teams are hanging on by a thread.

"I'm not sure how hard their (the Bears) schedule was, but I'm sure ours was tougher," Barclay said, noting that ASU competed against eight of the nine top-ranked teams in the country. "According to the rules, it looks like we're going."

ASU's biggest advantage over Berkeley is its head-to-head results.

On Jan. 1, the Sun Devils outscored the Bears, 269.45-256.50, at the University Activity Center. In the March 24 Pac-10 Conference Invitational, ASU finished in third place with a 277.55 score, ahead of fourth-place Berkeley, who scored a 276.65.

Robinson said the team was crushed last week when it was informed its ticket to the NCAAs was cancelled.

"It killed them," he said, "it took the wind out of their sails."

Barclay said it was difficult for the Sun Devils to work out in the gym.

"On Thursday and Friday the team didn't want to work out," Barclay said.

"They were saying, 'why do we have to practice our routines when we're not going anywhere?' There were a lot of emotions in the gym."

But now the Bears may be the victim of NCAA politics.

Berkeley coach Sho Fukushima said that he did not think about the rulings until his team was involved in the situation. There are various loopholes that can move a team up or down in the rankings, he said.

"It's unfortunate, but I think it's unfair to criticize the system," he said. "We never thought we would qualify for the NCAAs — we consider it a bonus."

Fukushima said the coaches decided on what qualifying system to use, so they should not be upset if they are a victim of a downfall. However, he said he wishes the rules were not so complex.

"I would like straight forward rules rather than having lawyers interpret them," he said.

In addition to ASU and Berkeley, Iowa falls in the same category of not yet knowing what its final ranking will be.

"Iowa is less than four-tenths ahead of us," Fukushima said. "I'd certainly like to challenge the system also to reconsider our ranking."

"I feel that if we are strong enough, we have a right to go."

Since the top five scores of the season qualify a team for the NCAAs, the strength of a team is not as clear as when there is a seasonal record to determine standings.

Fukushima said he wishes Berkeley had played Iowa during the season in head-to-head competition to make the decision more clear for his team to advance.

"Arizona State can not challenge Iowa because there is more than one point difference," he said. "But they beat UCLA, Ohio State and Iowa during the season, showing their strength to the point where they deserve to go."

Some of the problems of qualifying for a spot at the 1990 national competition may be solved by the newly created East and West regional divisions.

Under the current system of four divisions, at least one team from each regional area will qualify for the national meet.

"Next year the NCAA is switching to a regional championship," Fukushima said. "The top four teams from each region will vault while posting a 9.55 on the balance beam.

All-American Suzy Baldock notched a 9.60 and 9.40 on the balance beam and vault, respectively. The junior suffered a fall on her strength, the uneven bars, and finished with an 8.90.

Freshman Tracy Butler scored a 9.45 on the floor exercise in her inaugural regional meet and added scores of 8.95 on uneven bars and 8.70 on the balance beam.

Two Sun Devil juniors also contributed to the third-place finish by adding a 9.40 or better in their respective events. Heather Carter turned in a 9.55 on the uneven bars and 9.40 on the floor exercise while Marika LeSieur garnered a 9.40 on the vault.

3-pointer by Morton with 2:41 to play.

Morton scored 22 of Seton Hall's last 28 points in regulation, including a 3-pointer with 25 seconds remaining to tie the game 71-71. Michigan led 59-49 on a 3-pointer by Rice with 8:26 to go. Seton Hall ran off eight straight points, Morton scoring the last six. And after an exchange of free throws, Rice hit a 3-pointer that gave him the NCAA tournament scoring record and the Wolverines a 64-59 lead with 6:05 to play.

With Michigan leading 66-61, Morton scored six straight points as Seton Hall's defense came away with two steals, and the Pirates had their first lead of the second half with 2:14 to play. Walker's free throw gave the Pirates a two-point advantage and Rice once again got the lead back for Michigan with a 3-pointer with 1:03 to play.

After Morton's airball with 53 seconds left, Michigan ran the clock down to 34 seconds before Sean Higgins made two free throws for the three-point lead that was erased by Morton's 3-pointer.

Michigan had a chance for victory in regulation, but Rice missed a long jumper with two seconds to play.

Higgins added 10 points and nine rebounds for Michigan, 30-7. Rice added 11 rebounds.

Walker and Greene each finished with 13 points for Seton Hall, 31-7, which was making its first Final Four appearance in just its second NCAA tournament.

Seton Hall stayed outside in the first half with 14 of its 32 field-goal attempts coming from 3-point range, while Michigan decided to test things inside.

The problem for the Pirates, who averaged 14 3-pointers per game in the regular season, was that they made only four of the long jumpers. The last two — by Greene and Morton — capped a 12-0 run that turned a six-point deficit into a 26-20 lead with 6:48 left in the first half.

Michigan answered with an 8-2 run to tie at 28 with 4:12 to play as Rice surrounded two driving hoops by Robinson with two free throws and a jumper.

Ramos gave the Pirates their final lead of the first half with one of their few drives of the half.

Rice then hit Michigan's only 3-pointer of the half 19 seconds later and the Wolverines, who took 19 of their 30 shots in the half from 10 feet or closer, ended the half with a 6-2 run for the 37-32 halftime lead.

Seton Hall finished 7-for-23 from 3-point range.

get to go to the NCAAs. That is unfair because the West is stronger than the East. "I think any system they use is going to be wrong."

Fukushima said the opportunity for smaller teams to compete in the NCAAs will be more difficult next year because they will have to be one of four teams in a region instead of one of 10 in the nation. "We've been at a survival state for the past five or six years," Fukushima said, adding that several other schools are in the same predicament. "I wish the rest of the coaches in the United States understand that."

Robinson, on the other hand, said there are benefits to having only two divisions. "One good thing about the regional meet next year is that it won't be pitting the East against the West," Robinson said. "They won't be boosting scores so an East team can go to the NCAAs instead of a West team."

Also, Robinson said an undeserving team like Penn State, who is in a weak conference, will not be able to slide by as it has in the past.

"Penn State is going to get a rude awakening," Robinson said. "They're going to be put in a conference with Ohio State and Nebraska."

"If you want to be the best you have to compete with the best."

But the focus is still on this year, and Robinson said the future successes of the ASU team will be greater if the team can compete in the NCAAs in April.

"It's real important for the team to go to nationals so they can see the big meet," he said. "These guys are going to know what it's like and want to go back."

PERSONALS

AAA RUSH Dinner, Sigma Nu Fraternity. Come meet the Brothers of Sigma Nu, 5:30 Wednesday, April 5th.

ADPI CHRISTINE and Molly: Here's your personal. No matter what they say, always go for the touchdown. Luv ya, Lori and thanks.

APRIL FOOLS: Kristi, Ziesser, Teeters, Yikester, Launa, Eurika, J.J., Ice, Flex, Barney, Bill- We raged! Lauren has the bruises, Joan the swollen eye, and m&me the bumps and pictures to prove it! It was a blast- the sun, suite, beer, stripper, cham pagne, stripper, jacuzzi, stripper, etc!! Thanks for making my birthday special! You are the best friends ever! I love ya all! Devri (PS- I am not a lush!!).

ATO MARK. We nominate you for geek man of the year. F.L.H.C.

BEN GOREN: Happy Birthday Bud and welcome to 19. May you live through it successfully. Take care. Kurt and Hil. PS- How could they think W/S/T! Floppy.

CHRISTINE/GREGORY: Twelve- eleven-ten- nine- eight- seven- six- five- four... it's coming! The final presentation of T.W.T.W. and of course the "small" event that takes place a week later, can't forget about that. C.P.'s surprise event continues with the biggest one yet just around the corner (the final one before you go out to big Bell in the north) and the last episode of T.W.'s mini-series. I know you'll be sad to see it end. In previous episodes our characters have had quite a few problems, but T.W. was right there to lend a hand, would you expect any less? Prepare yourselves for the exciting and dramatic conclusion of T.W.T.W. in just a few weeks. Our East Valley critic gives it five stars. Watch your mail for more details. You two are great! Your friend, D& Christopher.

DONATE to the "fishbowls" on the mall today, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. All proceeds go to Valley Big Brother/Big Sister.

DON'T BE left out of the tradition. Order your Yearbook today. Call 965-6881 now for more information.
