ASASU senator scorns street closure plan

By TEENA CHADWELL
State Press

An Associated Students of ASU senator said Sunday that an option discussed by ASU and Tempe officials to partially close McAllister Avenue, allowing only ASU service vehicles access to the road, is a waste of time.

"For them to spend all this money and go to all this trouble, they'd better be putting something over there or I would be opposed to the closing," said Adrian Fontes, ASASU senator for the College of Education. "If they do put something over there, sure."

Fontes said it does not make sense to close the road unless an academic facility is constructed in the area.

University and Tempe officials met Friday to determine which of three closure options would be most feasible. The options include partially closing McAllister Avenue between Lemon and Tyler streets, closing McAllister Avenue between Lemon Street and Terrace Drive, or closing McAllister Avenue between Terrace Drive and Tyler Street.

A complete closure of the avenue is not among the proposals.

These options are the culmination of a study by JHK and Associates, a Phoenix consulting group hired by ASU last spring to study traffic patterns in the area surrounding McAllister Avenue.

After reviewing the study, Jennus Burton, associated vice president for business affairs, said during the Friday meeting that a double left turn lane constructed at the intersection of Stadium and University drives would accommodate additional traffic created by the partial closure of McAllister Avenue.

After the possible closure, traffic would turn left onto University Drive rather than continuing south on McAllister Avenue as is the current practice.

Burton said the first phase of the closure would not involve the construction of buildings, but the second phase of the project would.

If the closure is approved, ASU officials will consider building a bicycle path on Tyler Street that would cross McAllister Avenue into the University area.

Jim Jones, director of Tempe's Public Works Department, said he is concerned the

Efforts to stop wet skybox plan not a legal threat

By KEVIN SHEH
State Press

An ASU legal consultant said Sunday that the State Liquor Board's "emergency" efforts to block a proposal permitting alcohol in Sun Devil Stadium skyboxes should not stand up to legal scrutiny.

Bruce Meyerson, a former ASU attorney consulting with the University on the skybox matter, said that under the emergency rule-making procedure, the liquor board must identify a particular rule that threatens the public health or welfare.

"And it's clear that they did not identify a particular rule at the hearing," he said.

State Liquor Board Chairwoman Kay McKay asked the state attorney general's office to go under the emergency rule classification at a public hearing Friday because the liquor board is under time constraints. McKay asked the attorney general for a decision by Sept. 21.

Normally, a state agency must go through a series of public hearings and state governmental reviews lasting several months.

Valley canals to be enhanced with help from ASU study

By MICHELLE ROBERTS
State Press

A study recently completed by the ASU College of Architecture and Environmental Design will serve as the framework for plans to enhance almost 200 miles of canals winding through Valley cities.

The ASU study, which is aimed at developing pedestrian areas and discouraging urban sprawl, unifies separate canal revitalization projects around the Valley with a set of guidelines that stress preservation, integration, accessibility, identity, continuity, diversity and safety.

"Canal development will create a strong identity for the Valley," said Michael Fifield, an assistant architecture professor and chairman of the ASU study. "Not many places in the world can claim 181 miles of developed canals."

ASU's Metropolitan Canal Study was funded by the National Endowment for the Arts, the Salt River Project and seven Valley cities. Tempe, Chandler, Mesa, Scottsdale, Phoenix, Glendale and Gilbert contributed to the funding.

The University obtained the grant in 1988, and since then, all cities have actively participated in formulating the study's regional concept and design guidelines.

The guidelines were developed by Fifield, planning Professor Madis Pihlak, graduate research associate Sharon Southerland and assistant planning Professor Edward Cook.

"This (the canal project) is different from other initiatives because there isn't a strain put on taxpayers," said Fifield. "Funding will mostly be taken up by private developers and existing parks and recreation budgets."

Tempe City Councilwoman Carol Smith said Tempe was aiming for this type of program to enhance its canals for more than 20 years.

"We would like to see jogging trails and bicycle paths created along the canal banks that eventually connect with Rio Salado," she said.

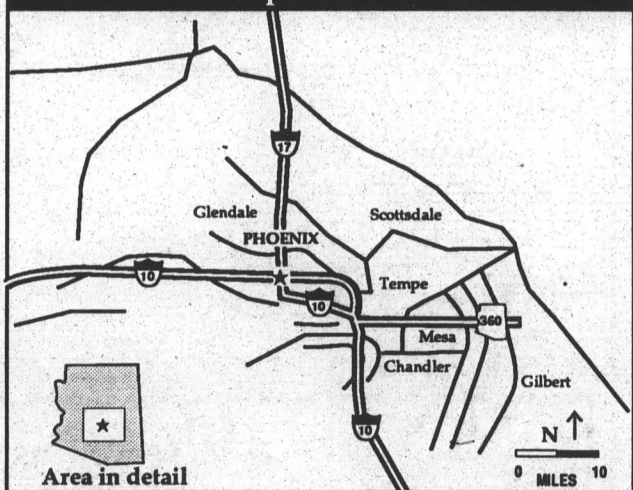

Tempe came to an agreement with the Salt River Project in 1972 to allow people to use the canals for walking, horseback riding and other recreational purposes.

Prior to the decision, the canals were seen as a utility off-limits to residents.

Tempe is seeking an updated agreement with SRP to allow

Steiger hoping to revamp higher education system

This is the sixth in a series of seven articles highlighting Arizona's gubernatorial candidates. The primary election is Tuesday.

By KELLY PEARCE
State Press

For Republican gubernatorial candidate Sam Steiger, throwing one's hat into the political arena and studying textbooks at a university have much in common.

"Politics is just like being a student," he said sitting in his office suite in Phoenix. "You don't know much beforehand, and you learn everything through experience."

Steiger is matched against Bob Barnes, Fred Koory, Evan Mecham and J. Fife Symington in the Republican primary Tuesday. Terry Goddard and Dave Moss will face-off in the Democratic counterpart.

As the 61-year-old Arizona native reflected on the demise of higher education in the state, he described Arizona as the "dumping ground" for students who can't cut it in other universities.

"It is out of control," the republican said, adding that he would reverse this trend by imposing stringent admission standards at the three state universities and capping enrollment.

Steiger said the Arizona Board of Regents' budget needs to be reduced from $6 million to under $1 million, and its staff should be decreased from its current 80 or more people to half a dozen.

"It (the board) needs to be stopped from being an empire," he said.

To address the skyrocketing student tuition dilemma, Steiger said cost should be determined by how much someone can afford, adding that a work ethic needs to be instilled in the university population.

"I come from an era where working was a part of going to school," he said. "I'm always glad I did (work). It made me bust my ass in school."

Steiger, who has no campaign motto because, he said, it "demeans an already demeaning process," worked toward an undergraduate animal husbandry degree at Colorado A&M and later spent two years at Cornell University.

The retired Prescott rancher began a different kind of education when he ran for a seat in the U. S. House of Representatives, holding a spot from 1966-76.

Later in 1976, Steiger was unable to achieve a seat in the U. S. Senate and in 1982, failed to gain the Arizona governorship as a Libertarian.

But politics once again became an integral part of Steiger's life when he became an aide to Gov. Evan Mecham where he was later convicted of theft by extortion after Mecham's impeachment — a crime that was later overturned.

If elected, Steiger said he would reform primary and secondary education by abolishing the state board of instruction and school districts so that each individual school could gain autonomy.

In addition, the candidate said he would evaluate the budgetary process and reduce the number of state employees.

Steiger said, however, that he won't make any bets on election results.

"This (the gubernatorial race) is the first one nobody can call," he said.

Bush, Gorbachev confer in Helsinki, consider possible penalties for Iraq

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — President Bush and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev joined Sunday in an extraordinary condemnation of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, and said they agreed in seven hours of summit talks that "aggression cannot and will not pay."

Gorbachev emphasized the need for a "political" solution, insisting that his former ally, Saddam Hussein, is headed "into a dead end" by struggling to hold Kuwait against stiff international sanctions.

Bush held out the possibility of using force if the embargo is not effective, but Gorbachev pointedly refrained from saying the Soviet Union would support a military move against Iraq.

Yet the Soviet president said he hoped to make it "quite clear to Saddam Hussein that if Iraq were to provoke military action, then the result would be a tragedy first and foremost for the Iraqi people themselves, for the whole of the region and for the whole of the world."

The leaders spoke with reporters following the release of their joint summit declaration that said: "We are united in the belief that Iraq's aggression must not be tolerated. No peaceful international order is possible if larger states can devour their smaller neighbors . . .

"Our preference is to resolve the (Persian Gulf) crisis peacefully, and we will be united against Iraq's aggression as long as the crisis exists," they declared.

The statement stood in unprecedented contrast to Cold War bickering that accompanied crises during the past four decades.

The statement also said that once Iraq withdraws from Kuwait, the two countries will work with nations in the region to develop regional security structures and measures to promote peace and stability.

Afterward, as he headed home aboard Air Force One, Bush said he "couldn't be more pleased" by his talks with Gorbachev and the "clear signal" they sent to Saddam Hussein.

Asked how the summit had changed things, Bush told reporters: "I think he (Saddam) has been hopeful that he could divide and peel the Soviet Union away from the United States and from the rest of the world."

Bush said he hoped to meet again with Gorbachev late this year or early next year.

UoffF killer search: knife found in home

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — State agents who searched a suspect's home in the killing of five college students found a knife hidden in a milk carton, a newspaper reported Sunday.

The Gainesville Sun quoted two sources close to the investigation as saying the knife was found Thursday as agents searched the Indialantic home of Edward Lewis Humphrey, his Gainesville apartment and his car.

Police in Colby, Kan., said Sunday Humphrey was told to leave the town in western Kansas last month, about two weeks before the killings in Gainesville, because of his suspicious behavior, including arguing with a hitchhiker and later driving slowly through residential areas.

Humphrey, 18, hasn't been charged in the slayings but has been identified by police as one of eight suspects. They have refused to call him the prime suspect.

The Sun reported that the knife was found where Humphrey told investigators earlier this month it would be. Lab tests will be performed to determine if the knife is linked to the killings.

All of the victims died from multiple stab wounds, police said.

Also confiscated from the home, owned by Humphrey's 79-year-old grandmother, Elna Hlavaty, were books, videotapes, and clothing. Humphrey lived there with his mother and grandmother.

Gainesville police Lt. Sadie Darnell said Friday that "promising evidence" was found in the searches, but she refused to elaborate.

Meanwhile, police said the three apartments where the five University of Florida students were murdered have been released to their landlords.

Humphrey is being held in lieu of $1 million bond in the Brevard County jail in Sharpes for allegedly assaulting his grandmother the night of his return from summer school at the Gainesville campus, where he is a freshman. His grandmother said she wants to drop the charges.

Alachua County Sheriff's Lt. Spencer Mann reported Sunday that the crime scenes had finally been released by police.

"We feel at this point that nothing more is going to be gained. We have recovered all we are going to recover," Mann said.

In Colby, Kan., an officer intervened in an argument between Humphrey and a hitchhiker he had picked up Aug. 10, said Police Chief Randy Jones. Humphrey then asked the officer where he could use a certain gasoline credit card and the officer pointed out a station about three blocks away, Jones said.

"But he drove right past it and he was then seen driving slowly through some residential areas," Jones said. "The officer stopped him, asked him if he needed some assistance and they came to the mutual agreement that Humphrey would leave town."

U.S. evacuees arrive home safely

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP) — More than 300 weary U. S. evacuees from war-torn Kuwait sang "God Bless America" Sunday when their chartered jet landed after a flight from Jordan.

The 747 aircraft, which left Amman early Sunday, arrived at the Charleston International Airport 6:10 p.m. with 305 evacuees — mostly women and children, and a handful of men.

The plane was delayed several hours because of an unexpected stop in Halifax, Nova Scotia, to let off several people for health reasons, Mike Brennan of the State Department said.

One woman was suffering chest pains and three children from another family were feeling ill. All four, plus the children's mother, got off the plane in Halifax and were taken to a hospital, he said.

The passengers told harrowing tales of escape from Kuwait. They said they went into seclusion after Iraq's invasion Aug. 2 because Westerners were at risk if they moved freely. They also spoke of the brave but outmanned resistance fighters trying to battle Iraqi invasion forces.

"I was lucky enough and smart enough to get away," said Jimmy Hawkins of Dallas, who worked as an engineer in Kuwait. "Americans can't go out. No way. If you don't have Arab friends, you're stuck."

Oriole Hart of Denver, a computer analyst for a bank in Kuwait, described how she hid out for the last month before she could contact officials and get on the first evacuation flights.

Kuwait is devastated, she said, adding, "It's really a shame."

"Westerners are not safe there," she said. "We don't know what they (Iraqis) are going to do next."

Social workers, customs agents and other officials greeted the evacuees, many of whom were to spend the night in Charleston because they could not get connecting flights to other destinations.

"This is the same crowd that was gathered to handle the aftermath of Hurricane Hugo," which struck Charleston and much of the South Carolina coast in September 1989, Gov. Carroll Campbell said. "This is a much more pleasant assignment."

As the evacuees left the concourse and entered the main terminal, they could choose from an array of social service agencies.

The passengers were greeted with applause by those waiting at the airport. Children carried teddy bears, gifts from volunteer workers who met the plane.

The Art of Morality

Creative minds at ASU justified in saying no into corner over grant

Tenny Tatusian
News Editor

ASU's Creative Writing Committee has just proven that it can't be bought. Not even for $10,000.

The committee recently rejected a $9,965 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts because "the award offer contains restrictive language that has the potential to violate academic freedom." In other words, the NEA, thanks to ultra-conservatives like Jesse Helms, must now censor what artists can and can not do with the organization's money.

Earlier this summer, Helms and his gang of small-minded neopuritans — in an effort to sterilize the tastes of the American public — forced the NEA to censor the works it funded by excluding that which is obscene "including but not limited to depictions of sadomasochism, homoeroticism, the sexual exploitation of children, or individuals engaged in sex acts and which, when taken as a whole, do not have serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value."

The ramifications of this clause are frightening. Because as the rest of the world is continuing its struggle against governmental suppression, we seem to be giving into it.

By forcing the NEA to include this requirement, Helms and his partner in crime Pat Robertson and his Christian Coalition have won another battle in shaping the personal expressions of individuals. They want to be the ultimate protector against what is "evil." They want to play God.

And the worst part is — they are succeeding.

Through this clause, a group of self-appointed moralist leaders are putting boundaries on what talented artists can create. And if that isn't an infringement on human rights, it's hard to say what really is.

Why would we allow a public group — an organization funded by American taxdollars — to place boundaries on artists?

We are simply trying to buy them. We are stomping on their domain of creative expression.

Now if a private group, oh say something like the Helm's Coalition for Righteous God-Fearing Art, that is supported by private funds chooses to place guidelines on what it supports, then it is within its rights.

But Helms has yet to create such a private support for art and until he does so he has no other means to subject his morals on the American public. So, the NEA and creative minds must suffer.

And the last person I would want to dictate morality to me is Helms and his cohorts.

It seems I'm not alone in this one.

A Gallup poll taken earlier this summer showed that 75 percent of those surveyed do not want anyone imposing new laws on what they can see or hear.

And ASU along with the Public Theater in New York, The Paris Review and the University of Iowa, just to name a few, have refused to subject its creative minds to such pseudo-moralistic practices.

'Self-appointed moralist leaders are putting boundaries on what talented artists can create.'

These stiff-necked moralists, however, still contend that if you do not condone the restrictive NEA clause then you must surely condone obscenity. Helms and the rest of the art police would like you to believe that "perverted art" is just a half-step away from a homosexual takeover.

"You may find that the working folks in your district want you to use their money to teach their sons how to sodomize one another," said Robertson in a $200,000 ad campaign supporting the passage of the NEA clause.

But Alberto Rios, a member of ASU's Creative Writing Committee and a University English professor described these actions best: "It resembles a communist witch hunt."

These paranoid, "God-fearing" soldiers have returned to the mentality of the 1600s and they're trying to take us along for the ride. And if we all remember our history, the First Amendment wasn't around then. Freedom of expression had no place in society.

What a shame it would be if we were to return to the days of following other peoples ideas on right and wrong and not our own.

Lucky for Michelangelo that he finished "David" before Helms could interfere.

Nicole Perron
Managing Editor

It appears the creative writing program at ASU is unwilling to stand behind what it teaches.

The Creative Writing Committee rejected a $9,965 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, because it didn't like the conditions that came with it.

In order to obtain the grant, the program must agree to the conditions set by the NEA. The conditions restrict projects that "may be considered obscene, including but not limited to depictions of sadomasochism, homoeroticism, the sexual exploitation of children, or individuals engaged in sex acts and which, when taken as a whole, do not have serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value."

And in a statement, Ron Carlson said he thought all projects supported by the program are of "great scientific and social value."

So, where's the problem?

The actions of the committee belie its words.

Instead of taking the much needed funds, and showing that it has confidence in the merit of its projects, the committee said the grant was an infringement on "academic, social and artistic freedom."

Obviously, stuck for a reason why the government should not place guidelines on how it distributes our money, the committee has fallen back on screaming "freedom violations."

It says the obscenity clause is "irresponsible," turning this into a moral issue. However, obscenity has been defined by law and the NEA is following Supreme Court guidelines in its restrictions.

No matter how hard the committee tries to cloud the issue, this is not a personal attack.

The Creative Writing Committee has joined the many other groups who demand the God-given right to unconditional public funds.

Undoubtedly, this broad and restrictive clause does limit the artistic expression of those who choose to be on the federal dole.

So what?

If an artist does not like the conditions that his patron (the federal government) has set, then he is free to go elsewhere for funding. Patrons have always had the final say on artists' projects. It is not a violation of anybody's First Amendment rights.

At last glance of the Constitution, nowhere could I find that an artist has a Constitutional right to federal funding.

This is not to say that the NEA couldn't use better guidelines. The Supreme Court ruled that obscenity must be judged by community standards, and a federal agency is not in the best position to determine the standards of a community 3000 miles away.

Despite the controversial clause, the government is not censoring art, it is placing guidelines on the distribution of public monies.

Lack of government funding will not stop great art, art that initiates thought, beauty and even conflict, from being produced.

The Wooster Group, a New York group respected for its alternative theater performances, faced charges of racism and risked financial ruin to perform a controversial interpretation of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town."

Today the group that once had to 'pass the hat' during shows given out of an old garage is getting more than $50 a ticket for performances considered innovative and thought provoking.

How many people would be willing to pay for an 'innovative' show featuring a crucifix in urine? Probably not very many.

Unable to make it in the real world, Andres Serrano, the man behind this gem, has turned to cheap marketing tactics to pawn off this piece of pseudo-art to the public.

Of course he's going to scream about the lack of federal funding for this creation. He certainly does not want to take financial responsibility for it. Would you want your rent to depend on people willing to pay to see this absurdity?

Like yelling "fire" in a crowded theater he yelled "censorship", knowing that the nation's legitimate artists would rally around him, giving him an instant and fleeting piece of the spotlight that previously had to be hard won by the great artists of the past.

Throughout the centuries there have always been artists who have been ahead of their time. They had to take financial risks to present their art to communities that shunned what they didn't understand.

But out of devotion to their profession, they perused the boundaries of artistic expression without relying on the public to bail out their failures.

The artistic community should remember that risks are involved in everything, including artistic genius.

Mr. Rogers? Saddam's neighborhood is no place for kiddies

Mike Royko
Tribune Media Syndicate

The experts say that saving face is very important to Arabs, and we should consider that in our dealings with Saddam Hussein. They say his need to appear strong, fearless and proud makes him even more dangerous when cornered and isolated.

I can understand that, although "saving face" isn't a major element in American culture. When insulted or offended, we tend to hire lawyers and file lawsuits and seek damages. To heck with face — we grab for the cash.

We even fund countless local and federal agencies that listen to people who believe someone has insulted them. A man who might thoughtlessly say, "Hi, cupcake" to a female employee could end up groveling before the Federal Bureau of Sexist, Racist, Ethnic and Generic Investigations.

We're also a society of political negotiation, conciliation and deal-cutting, which Hussein doesn't have to bother with. Instead of cutting a deal, he cuts a throat. Saves a lot of talking.

Nevertheless, we should be sensitive to the ways of others, especially if it might help avert the dropping of bombs, firing of missiles, squirting of poison gas and getting a lot of people killed over the rising price of a fillup.

But if Saddam is really interested in saving face and looking proud, strong, fearless and all that other macho stuff, he's going about it in an odd way.

I'm referring to his recent TV performances as a sort of demented, blood-thirsty Mister Rogers.

If you've raised children in recent decades, you know that Mister Rogers is a kindly, thoughtful, decent man who slips on sneakers and a cardigan sweater and invites children to be his friend and to visit his fictional neighborhood.

He chats with kids, tries to raise their self-esteem and combines fun with education.

Because Saddam has a satellite dish that picks up all of our TV shows, I'm convinced that he has seen "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" and may have been inspired by it.

As you've probably seen, Saddam has recently been doing shows that could be called "Saddam Hussein's Neighborhood."

He gathers little American and English children around him, beams at them, pats their heads and chats with them through an interpreter.

If you didn't know what he was saying, you might think: "What a nice man. My, he obviously likes little children."

Unfortunately, he is not telling them why bunny rabbits raid gardens or how cookies are made or why it is important to brush their teeth morning and night.

No, he is telling them that as much as he regrets it, if worst comes to worst, the little tykes just might have to die. And if they don't have to die, they might have to go hungry.

Of course, he's not doing this just to scare the wits out of those kids. He's letting President Bush and the rest of us know that if we bomb his military installations, oil wells or poison gas factories, our bombs will also be blowing those little human shields to bits.

It's a shrewd move, since most Americans cringe at the thought of children being destroyed. And there is a certain warped logic in Saddam's threats. He's saying, in effect, that if American bombs fall, Iraqi children will surely die. So, if Iraqi children must die, why not Americans? Are his children's lives of lesser value?

Of course they aren't. Children, American or Arab, white, black, Asian, are the most wonderful, precious creatures on Earth. I believe that. Most of you believe that.

But I'm not sure about Saddam Hussein. If he believes that children are lovely, why did he order poison gas used on his own Kurdish children? Doesn't he think Kurdish kids are likable?

So, I don't understand Saddam's approach to saving face by threatening children with death or hunger. That's macho, bold and strong? In our imperfect society, those who abuse children are considered the lowest of the low. When they are imprisoned, they sometimes have to be isolated from the other inmates because some self-respecting bank robber or thief might stick them with a shiv.

Yet, Saddam is said to be viewed as a hero by Arabs in his own country and in others. That's a puzzler, and I would genuinely appreciate it if some Arab scholar would drop me a letter explaining the heroic nature of threatening children with death. And smiling while he does it.

In one of his recent outbursts, Saddam said he would like to go on worldwide TV and debate President Bush and Prime Minister Thatcher.

I have a better idea. Saddam should debate Mister Rogers instead. It would be devastating when the mild-mannered fellow in a cardigan looked him straight in eye and said: "Welcome to my neighborhood. Do you want to kill my children?"

What's he going to say: "To save face?" If that's saving face, he ought to buy a Halloween mask.

A letter to Anonymous:

By airing your criticisms of ASU's new student newspaper, the Arizona State Post, in the letters to the Editor section of the State Press, you place me in an awkward position of responding to your criticisms through a rival publication. However, I hope I might alleviate your confusion regarding what the State Post is about.

It is odd that you would characterize a newspaper that exposes students to the existence of Marxism, homosexuality, feminism and attacks against Free Speech as "cruel and unnecessary." That is tantamount to exclaiming that educating people in order to end their ignorance is cruel and unnecessary. The State Post will seek to end our ignorance by engaging in what Robert Maynard Hutchins calls the Great Conversation. By debating the merits of such issues, we are simply continuing the traditions of what a Liberal Arts education is intended to be. But maybe you would like to remain in the darkness of your ignorance. I hope you don't.

Students, faculty and staff will only benefit by having a second voice for news and views on campus. It is never in our best interest to have one source, such as the State Press, monopolizing what and how, academic or student issues are covered.

Perhaps, anonymous, you are a Liberal left-winger. Reading the news articles you became "livid" because of the content alone. You then applied (for no value judgments were made in those articles) that Marxism, homosexuality and feminism are bad. But you've been brainwashed to believe those things are good. That disturbs you because you really know its wrong yet, you have been indoctrinated to believe that its right. So you are confused by this logical absurdity created in your little mind. This logical absurdity consequently creates cognitive dissonance which, in turn, causes you emotional distress. There you have it: you are confused, logically absurd, small minded and emotionally distressed. Which is almost as bad as being "narrow-minded, pained, angered and unhappy." So, you see, it doesn't take much sophistication to paint an uncomplimentary picture of one you disagree with. When you do you bring the debate down to a simple level of ad Homeniem attacks.

In response to your other personal criticism of me, many of my Left-leaning friends would disagree with your claim that what I do is "hate-filled." Those that know me can attest to my love and tolerance of those I disagree with.

The fact that you requested to have your name withheld illustrates your contempt for openness. However, I don't really blame you. If I had made such an inarticulate, accusatory and baseless attack, I wouldn't want to sign my name to it either.

In the future I hope you keep your name calling to the playground where you learned it. At ASU we expect you to make well-formed and supported arguments to those things that you disagree with.

A modest proposal

Editor:

After reading the articles by Nicole Carroll and Sonja Lewis, I thought you might be interested in the voter registration drive by ASASU.

I am a Deputy Register and secretary of the College Republicans of Arizona. When I saw the shape the drive was in, I offered my help and submitted the following proposals:

- Offer free tickets to the ASU vs. Baylor football game to students who have proof of voter registration.
- Offer discounts on the Spark Yearbook for proof of voter registration.
- Organize a series of activities combined with various groups like the College Republicans during primary week.

- Offer discounts from local businesses for registering to vote.
- Organize related rallies to spark interest and involvement by candidates.
- Allow the use of ASASU facilities (rec rooms, typewriters, copy machines) for voter registration.
- Organize a party and/or dance for all students who become registered voters.

All of these ideas were rejected and further communication has not been encouraged.

Doesn't want to be killed

Editor:

A note to Koren Zupko:

When Iraq invaded Kuwait the Saudis did not ask for U. S. troops, Secretary of State James Baker had to ask permission to get U. S. troops in.

Also, ask yourself why Iraq has one of the largest and best equipped armies in the Middle East. Because countries like the United States and Soviet Union built up the Iraqi military during the Iran/Iraq war, which was started by Iraq.

Editor:

I've always felt that Americans like to stand up for decency and fairness in the world. There have been occasions in the past when our government has failed to represent our basic desires and has merely flamed our fears and acted on our strongest emotions that we would later regret.

For the past eight years, the Saudis, Kuwaitis and the government of the UAE have flooded the world market with oil. While helping the U. S. economy grow for a record time with no major recession, this flood of oil also robbed the Iraqis and the Iranians of vital cash.

My argument is not a justification of the invasion of one nation by another. As an ex-Air Force sergeant my concern is for the brave American troops who

It is time for the U. S. to stop thinking imperialistically and to stop playing cops and robbers. Keep this in mind Koren, you and I could be drafted and sent over to fight Saddam Hussein's army and die for only 5 percent of America's oil intake.

I don't know about you, Koren Zupko, but I don't want to be killed over oil. Because at the rate we use oil, it will be gone in 20 years anyway.

volunteered to protect their nation from foreign threat. My concern is for the 3000 Americans now in the war zone. My concern is also for my brother who is in the Middle East on a business trip.

If my brother dies because President Bush refused to talk to Hussein, will I forgive or understand him? If my brother dies because the American government refused to use, or encourage alternate fuels, will I forgive or understand? If my brother dies because we refuse to judge ourselves as harshly as we judge others, will I forgive or understand?

I don't think so.

Skyboxes

McKay said Friday a recent proposal by Liquor Department Superintendent Hugh Ennis, which allows patrons to possess up to 24 ounces of beer, 6 ounces of wine or 6 ounces of distilled spirits in the skyboxes during Phoenix Cardinal games, discriminates against people in the stands.

Ennis' policy would create a new classification of public facilities that would put the skyboxes in the same category as small restaurants.

Small restaurants without liquor licenses can obtain a permit allowing patrons to bring alcohol on the premises, but they cannot serve liquor.

Ennis' proposal will be subject to public scrutiny at a hearing today at 10 a.m. at the liquor board offices, 800 W. Washington St. in Phoenix.

Under McKay's proposal, "any publicly-owned facility or facility operated by government entities not licensed shall permit all persons to possess on an equal basis and may not participate between classes of patrons."

Assistant Attorney General Richard Albrecht said there might be some question as to whether the situation involving the State Liquor Board's proposal constitutes an emergency. "The agency is free to submit their rule," he said. "But I believe there are problems in meeting that at this time."

Possible third campus site debated at political forum

By JENNIFER FRANKLIN
State Press

District 27 legislative candidates debated the feasibility of rural and urban locations for ASU's proposed third campus at a political forum Friday.

"I support it (another campus), but I want to see it go to a rural area," said Sandra Dudden, a Democratic House candidate.

Dudden suggested an area like Gila Bend because it would have more economic impact than it would in an already urbanized area.

The six candidates spoke to almost 100 people in the MU Ventura Room at the last of a three-part series presented by the Task Force for Legislative Communication and Associated Students of ASU.

Incumbent Rep. Leslie Johnson, R-Mesa, said she approves of a third campus but would like to make sure all of the options are weighed.

Republican senatorial candidate Matt Salmon said he strongly favors a third campus.

"Hopefully it will be in the East Valley," he said.

Incumbent Rep. Stan Barnes, R-Mesa, also said he thought the campus should be constructed in the East Valley because of the area's rapid population growth.

"We're going to have a million people out here real soon," he said.

The candidates also agreed that finding more money to improve education in the state should be a top priority.

Salmon said lawmakers are using money slated for education ineffectively.

"I feel the Legislature has to be more aggressive in seeking out existing funding," he said.

His opponent, Sen. Bill Hegarty, D-Mesa, said part of the education problem is that teachers are underpaid.

"We must rise to the occasion and make sure they're not lured away (by better paying jobs)," he said.

Johnson said that by solving the education issue, other dilemmas will be resolved.

"To me, the only way to change the problem of poverty is through education," she said.

When the candidates began discussing same-day voter registration during the forum, Daniel Cardenas, a Democratic House candidate, not only supported the idea, but said voters should be able to register by phone.

Same-day registration would allow people to register to vote and cast their ballots on election day.

"It would definitely help to get more people to vote," Cardenas said.

Johnson said she supports shortening the time between registering and voting, but does not support same-day registration.

BICYCLE SAFETY

DID YOU KNOW THAT...

- In 82% of all bicyclist accidents in Tempe, the rider is injured or killed.
- Wearing a helmet will reduce your chance of a serious head injury by 85%, and is much cheaper than a trip to the hospital.
- The majority of bicycle-car accidents occur at intersections and in 65% of the accidents, the bike rider was at fault.
- 31% of bicycle accidents are caused because the bicyclist did not ride with the traffic flow.

AVOID BEING CITED ...

- All bicycle or pedestrian citations will cost you $40 or more.
- On sidewalks and streets always ride with the traffic flow, not against it.
- Obey all traffic control signs and signals.
- At night, ride with a white light on the front of your bike and a red rear reflector on the back of your bike.

ALSO ...

- Yield to traffic when you enter crosswalks.
- Slow down when approaching busy intersections.
- Do not assume you are safe because you have the right-of-way in a car-bike collision, the bicyclist always loses.

MAKE IT A SAFE SCHOOL YEAR

Follow the traffic laws. Failure to do so can cost you more than a ticket... It can cost you your life!

Canals

private investors and businesses to use canal banks for commercial purposes.

Gary Meyer, senior planner for Tempe's canal project, said Scottsdale's commercialization agreement with SRP last year spearheaded proposals for Valleywide canal revitalization. Scottsdale's plan allows businesses and private investors to buy and develop property along the city's main canal, which runs through its downtown area.

Meyer said Tempe plans to follow suit with a proposal for a waterfall designed to empty treated water from the Western Canal into a lake in South Tempe's Kiwanis Park.

Meyer said the waterfall will contain an aeration system that uses air bubbles to keep the lake water from becoming stagnant.

Meyer said Mike Costello, the project's cultural coordinator, is currently looking for an artist to draw plans for the waterfall.

Construction, he said, is expected to begin in the spring of 1990.

The Valley's water delivery system is a desert legacy developed by the Hohokam Indians. Jack Swilling, an early settler, rebuilt remnants of the prehistoric canals in 1860, using them as an agricultural water supply.

The modern-day canals are an updated version of the original canal system.

Hobart Rowland contributed to this report.

I would've bought a Macintosh even without the student discount.

Greg Gallent
Consumer Economics and Housing
Cornell University

"The first time I saw a Macintosh, I was immediately hooked. It's a work of art. I saw the student pricing and my next move was obvious: get one.

"Some other computers are cheaper, but they're a pain to learn, and working on them can be a grueling experience. Last year, a friend bought another kind of computer against my advice and has used it for maybe 15 hours. What a waste.

"Macintosh, on the other hand, is a logical extension of the mind. It lets you concentrate on what's in your paper, not on how to get it on paper. You can create professional-looking documents in minutes, and you lose the fear of learning new programs because they all work in the same way.

"Once you've worked with a Macintosh, there's no turning back."

Police Report

ASU police reported the following incidents Friday:

- A thief stole a student's backpack and its contents, valued at more than $300, from the Engineering Building.
  - A thief stole a student's wallet from her backpack in the Classroom Office Building. Loss is estimated at $17.
  - A thief stole a student's wallet from her purse in the Language and Literature Building. Loss is estimated at $90.
  - A vandal threw a rock through the window of a room in Best Residence Hall causing $75 damage.
  - Vandals caused $125 in damage at the Student Recreation Center.
  - Oranges were thrown from 601 Alpha Drive onto passing cars on Sixth Street. None of the drivers filed a report.
- Tempe police reported the following incidents Friday:
- A Tempe man was critically injured when he fell 36 feet from the Scottsdale Road Bridge. The man was with a friend when he crawled over the railing and fell to the river bottom. He was listed in critical condition at Scottsdale Memorial Hospital Osborne.

widened left turn lane will not solve the problem and, instead, create a massive traffic backup on University Drive.

"The delay for people would be enormous," he said.

Jones added that University Drive might have to be widened to three lanes creating increased costs in addition to the estimated $305,000 and $600,000 cost of partially closing McAllister Avenue.

Tempe would have to pay for the cost of widening University Drive if they decided it was necessary, Burton said.

Jones said the partial closure plan should be put on hold until the ASU Master Plan, which will determine long-range plans for future ASU growth, is completed in a year.

McAllister Avenue will not be partially closed unless the master study deems it necessary.

"It's like putting the cart before the horse," Jones said.

ASU and Tempe officials will meet again in several weeks after they once again review the possibilities for McAllister Avenue.

High pollen, mold counts plague ASU allergy sufferers

By ANITA CARCONE
State Press

Recent Valley rains, a cool reprieve from the sizzling heat, can be a curse to allergy sufferers at ASU.

Dr. Pamela Tom, director of the Student Health Center, citing an increase in allergy complaints so far this semester, predicted that 17 percent of ASU students will get hay fever and 5 percent will contract asthma.

The increase in allergy symptoms is related to the massive amount of mold that has developed because of excessive rain and humidity this year, said Dr. Robert Hellmers, allergy specialist at Arizona Allergy Associates in Phoenix.

"There will probably be many more sufferers this spring because of the rains and high pollen counts this fall," he said. "Compared to last year, pollen and mold counts have increased significantly in Arizona."

For many, Hellmers said, the traditional treatments may not be enough and a shot may be the only solution.

"People that are candidates for allergy shots are those who are allergic to things they can't avoid, such as a pet or something in their house," Hellmers said. "Allergies caused by mold and pollen usually cause people to need an injection."

Although allergy sufferers experience the same itchy eyes, nasal congestion, runny nose, coughing and sneezing symptoms as people with colds, allergies usually last longer and are not accompanied by fever.

While the ASU health center does not offer allergy testing, students suffering from mild cases of allergies can get antihistamines and decongestants from the facility.

Eye drops, decongestants and nasal sprays help relieve some of the symptoms. But if over-the-counter antihistamines do not get rid of the symptoms, an allergy shot may be needed.

The Student Health Center gives allergy shots for students who bring their own prescriptions. Full-time students must pay $1.50 and the cost for part-time students is $3.

Private doctors and allergy specialists usually charge

Allergy Tips

- DO keep windows closed at night; use air conditioning.
- DO minimize morning activity when pollen count is high.
- DO keep car windows closed when you drive.
- DO stay indoors when windy, humid or pollen count is high.
- DO avoid areas where rag weed grows.
- DON'T mow the lawn or be near freshly cut grass.
- DON'T hang laundry outdoors to dry. Pollen may collect on it.
- DON'T ignore your symptoms, if they persist see a doctor.

between $12 and $15 per shot.

Recent surveys indicate that unseasonably high counts of mold and pollen in the air plagued allergy sufferers in late August.

Seminar offered to help fight the 'Freshman 15'

By ANITA CARCONE
State Press

The "Freshman 15," the common occurrence of new students to gain weight, can be avoided if students replace a diet consisting of soda pop, chips and chocolate bars with well-balanced meals, an ASU nutritionist said.

"It's the first time that the incoming students have to be responsible for their own food choices, and there is no one there to make the decision for them," said Karen Moses, a nutritionist at the ASU Student Health Center. "Now that they are responsible for their own diet every day, they must make adjustments and change their old high-school habits of eating junk food to more well-balanced meals."

The Wellness Center will sponsor a free nutrition seminar from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the ASU Student Recreation Complex conference room in an effort to educate and inform students on how to fight the "Freshman 15."

Moses, a registered dietician, will host the event.

The seminar will address the significance of "Freshman 15" and how students can avoid and overcome unhealthy eating habits.

Moses will outline specific steps and give advice on how freshmen can learn how to make wise food choices from the start instead of attempting to lose weight later when it is too late.

She said entering freshmen who expose themselves to the many social aspects of college life will experience definite nutritional changes.

"All of the parties and social events offered to incoming freshmen are centered around food in some way," she said. "Party foods such as chips, cheese and crackers are high in fat and sugar and can contribute to weight gain."

The TI-68.

The engineering calculator designed to handle tough technical problems.

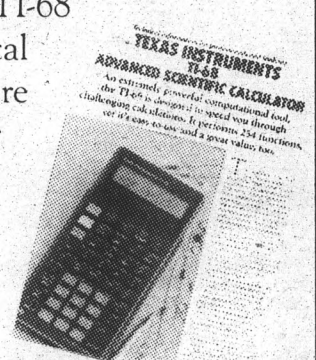

The further you go in engineering, math or other technical courses, the more you need a scientific calculator that speeds you through complex problems. With 254 powerful advanced scientific functions, the TI-68 from Texas Instruments is both a smart choice and an exceptional value. The TI-68 easily solves up to five simultaneous equations with real or complex coefficients. It evaluates 40 complex number functions. It allows polar and rectangular forms for entries and results.

You can perform operations in four number bases, one and two-variable statistics, and Boolean logic operations. And, the polynomial root finder calculates real and complex roots of quadratic, cubic, and quartic equations.

A convenient last equation replay feature lets you check your answers without re-entering your equations. Formula programming provides up to 440 program steps for as many as 12 user-generated formulas.

Only the TI-68 delivers so much functionality, value and ease in one compact, advanced scientific tool. For more information on what the TI-68 can do, pick up a free copy of the TI-68 technical brochure at your bookstore.

SPIRITUAL SAY-SO

Psychiatrist translates child development

By PATRICIA MAH
State Press

Pulitzer Prize-winning child psychiatrist Robert Coles said the study of Hopi children has taught him much about his own life.

"I translate from one world to another," he said. "When you study others, you learn about yourself."

Coles will speak at 8 p.m. tonight on the "The Spiritual Life of the Hopi Child" at Galvin Playhouse.

In addition, he will sign books from 11:40 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the ASU Bookstore.

Coles is known for his examination of the moral and spiritual development of children. His many books include his five-volume series Children of Crisis, The Moral Life of Children, and The Political Life of Children.

His stay at ASU is part of the Centennial Lectures series, which is endowed by the Flinn Foundation and organized by the University Honors College in recognition of the 100th anniversary of the University.

Coles will be on campus through Sept. 11 and will return Feb. 9-13.

In February, Coles will read poetry, and give a seminar about education for ethnic diversity, and deliver a lecture titled "The Iconography of Western American Art and Photography."

Coles is the second person to speak in the Centennial Lectures series. Author Carlos Fuentes spoke last year as ASU's first Centennial Lecturer.

The University's official centennial celebration was in 1985, but the lecture series did not get off the ground until 1989.

Ted Humphrey, dean of the Honors

Jeorgetta Douglas/State Press

Pulitzer prize-winning psychiatrist, Robert Coles, discusses child development.

College, is delighted to welcome Coles to ASU.

"The fundamental goal (of the lecture) is to bring persons of unquestioned distinction to campus," Humphrey said.

Elizabeth Tregor-Dokken, program coordinator and development officer of the ASU Honors College, said Coles' visit is an exciting event.

"It generates a tremendous amount of excitement to have somebody of that stature coming onto our campus," she said.

Humphrey said there were more than 200 additional requests for tickets than the the number of seats available for the lecture.

Though he is delighted by the response, he was disappointed that there were not enough seats to accommodate the number of people interested.

On Tuesday, Coles will conduct a seminar titled "Public Service Opportunities for University Students and Faculty" from 2 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Architecture Lecture Hall.

Sunday afternoon, Coles was the special guest of "Lunch With the Dean," an informal forum held at McClintock Hall. About 45 people gathered in the Honors College Lounge to hear him speak.

Coles fielded questions from the audience and used his hands to express points he was making.

Among other things, Coles discussed his studies in the South during desegregation, moral values in schools and the spiritual life of children.

He said children can acquire a moral education in school by reading great writers such as Leo Tolstoy, Mark Twain, Robert Frost, and J. D. Salinger.

Chad Menning, a freshman education major, said Coles was "soft-spoken, to the point and very animated."

Kristine Hart, a sophomore journalism major, said she was glad she attended.

"It (Coles' discussion) goes with my classes," she said. "It fits in with what I'm thinking about lately."

Laura Jebnikar, a freshman majoring in broadcast journalism, said Coles, "broadens the scope of how you look at things."

"He gave different angles of how people think of things," she said.

Taking a ride on Advocate Avenue

By KRAMER WETZEL
State Press

"There are three kinds of lies — lies, damned lies and statistics." — Mark Twain

You've seen them, the people that act as a pep squad for ASU, the Devil's Advocates. They walk backwards and lead prospective students around the campus. Perhaps you've even had a chance to listen to these nice people recite some of their statistics. Remember what Twain said.

Now, I've been at ASU for a couple of years, I know a thing or two about the campus and, I've listened with irreverent ear when the tour guides go walking by. After all, as a seasoned student, I know that the "perfect climate control" of the buildings really isn't so perfect. There was lecture class in Murdock Hall last spring. Miserable conditions. Repeatedly, the professor implored the students to help him affect a change by complaining to the appropriate authorities. The problem was not solved that semester. When I hear the "perfect climate control" comment, I can't help but snicker.

But I approached this guided tour with an open mind, checking my cynical wit at the door.

I joined the standard 9:00 a.m. "orientation" tour one day. There were four Devil's Advocates present that morning, and the group was split into three smaller groups. I decided to tag along with the group lead by David Lu and Michele (that's with one "l") Hardy. A mother was dragging her four young children with her. What better way to really test the patience and tolerance of the Devil's Advocates than four young kids in tow?

The tour started at the Student Services building, and the group wound its way around the education buildings, with a brief mention of the "award winning design" of the Nelson Fine Arts Center. "It is finished," they assured us.

The tour group itself was a pretty diverse mixture of prospective students including one or more parents. Michele and David fielded questions with calm reassurance. The pair was also well-versed in the rhetoric and mundane statistics about campus life.

"How many students live on campus?" asked the mother. "14 percent" came the quick answer and cheery smile.

"How many students is this fall's enrollment?"

"Well," the pair hemmed and hawed, "it's over 43,000."

LEGISLATIVE INTERNSHIP APPLICATIONS

Applications for the 1991 Legislative Internship Program are available now in the Office of the Provost, Administration Building, Room 211. This program is coordinated through the Arizona legislature in conjunction with ASU and other Arizona colleges and universities.

To be eligible, students must have achieved at least the first semester senior status by January. Interns will receive academic credit and stipend of $2,400 from the state legislature for the session. ASU students will be given tuition/fee waivers. Students from a wide variety of academic and technical disciplines are encouraged to apply.

Approximately 40 interns will be selected for the 1991 program.

To date, more than 600 university students have participated in the program in its 20-year history. Students get first-hand knowledge of the working world and actively participate in the lawmaking process, while legislators profit from the students' fresh ideas and perspectives.

For information and applications, ASU students should contact Norma Talamante, Office of the Provost, 965-8380. Applications are due on October 8. Applicants for the internships will be screened and then recommended by the ASU Screening Committee to the legislative selection committee. Names of those selected will be announced the third week of November.

Law students interested in applying as law interns with the 1991 legislature should contact the Office of the Dean, College of Law.

ASU Faculty and Staff are encouraged to recommend students to apply.

Devil

Sounds like a game called stump the tour guide.

To their credit, the guides do have some interesting yarns that are part of the history of ASU. The design for Gammage Theater was won in a poker game, or so it was implied. When Tempe Normal was founded in 1886, there were 33 students.

Sparky is a Disney creation: Walt's daughter was here when Arizona College became Arizona State University, and the mascot was changed to Sparky, drawn by Disney.

The two guides were calm, assured, casual, and appeared relaxed. When one of the small children accompanying our group tried to climb over a rail, David nervously held the child and waited for the mother. Advocate training might not include the handling of children; it was the only time an Advocate appeared ill at ease, and even then, he was just a little flustered.

One other question that stumped the pair was what happened in "Bicycle Traffic School." The best they could surmise was that it must be like traffic school, only for bikes. They let it stand at that.

And, in almost the same breath, came the astonishing fact that some 23,000 people walk through the intersection of Cady Mall per day.

David also allowed that "ten minutes between classes is enough." There are more than a few students that might not agree with that.

"Manzanita is the tallest building in Tempe. That's the dorm with triangles," Michele said.

In the Life Science building on Palm Walk was the reptile collection which contains a two-headed snake.

Also, ASU has a couple of the largest: the largest clean room in the state is here. And the Rec Center contains one of the largest weight rooms in the state, all 9,000 square feet of it.

The clean room, a room where computer stuff is assembled, has given birth to a chip that "thinks," David told us.

Michele watched as I jotted down notes. She was quite thoughtful and spelled "kiosk" for me.

"That's K-I-O-S-K; write that down," she said.

Michelle pointed out another computer site, a 24-hour room, just in case you need to type a term paper. Yes, even the illustrious Devil's Advocates fall prey to the normal foibles of being a student.

David pointed out that a student "doesn't really need a car," while Michele was unsure of the figure but she seemed to remember that Hayden Library had "3.1 million books." But don't quote her on that.

Having actually never been there, but also having heard the horror stories, I was surprised to find out that Lot 59 really is in Tempe. All this time, I was lead to believe it was in Scottsdale. Imagine that.

Big Surf's Mini-fest benefits leukemia

By AARON LEVY
State Press

Give the people waves, live music, three free beers and quarter beers after that, and you're giving the people a rock-and-roll musicfest at Big Surf.

2,700 people turned out for the First Annual Summer Splash Bash at Big Surf, Friday, Sept. 7.

John Langvine, one of the coordinators of the event, said he and Steve Sogard, another coordinator, knew they wanted to do something to benefit Leukemia research. Unfortunately, their motives are personal — both have relatives who are suffering from the disease.

"We wanted to have a good time and make some money for the cause," Langvine said, "and we want to do it every year from now on."

At 7:30 p.m., Ritual took the ten foot Big Surf stage and gave people a taste of what was to come with their own mixture of original and cover tunes.

At 8:30 p.m., Ritual said goodbye, and hundreds more poured into Big Surf awaiting Walt Richardson and the Morning Star Band. Meanwhile, there was plenty of beer and food, as well as dancing hosted by the Windy City D.J.s.

By the time Walt Richardson took the stage at around nine, a couple thousand people had arrived ready to reggae and rock. The people got what they wanted and then some. They got a bona fide party.

Walt Richardson was Walt Richardson. His band has been around forever, and they just keep delivering. After distributing the solos, Walt took his rhythm acoustic guitar, and led the band to a finale arriving way before its time. Walt said goodbye, and the people were still dancing to his songs.

Around 1:00 a.m. a black banner with two white seagulls facing each other unravelled in the back part of the stage, followed by the rising of gray and orange smoke.

Were they worth the wait? Well if you're going to have a party you have to have a surprise. Here's a band who was tossed into the limelight with one song, "I ran", and then they disappeared.

Well, toss them back in.

Founder, keyboardist, lead singer, and chief lyricist, Mike Score stood center stage over his ivories and belted out a powerful love ballad, "Setting Sun", for the second song. Score definitely kept the show on an emotional level with his crisp, soprano voice.

The Seagulls were consistent with easy, yet powerful rhythm, incorporating a certain weirdness in their music. Most of this psychedelic sound sprang from Ed Berner's jumping guitar.

Rounding out the English quartet is bassist Don Burford, and drummer Mike Israel.

The band's mixture of power keyboards and psychedelic sound is an interesting and original mixture. Throughout their live show they have a smooth, easy sound.

Highlighting the show were songs like, "Is this the Fool", an intense march, and a familiar one to Seagull fans, "The More You Live The More You Love." The band went 10 minutes overtime and ended with an exciting version of "I ran", sending the eager yet happily exhausted crowd to the parking lot with something to remember.

"Next year we want to make it an all-day thing," said Langvine, "with five bands, and one big band. An all-day party for a good cause."

TOCCOA, Ga. (AP) — Yoga is a form of New Age mysticism that can lead to devil worship, says a man who led protests that forced officials to cancel a city-county sponsored yoga class.

"The people who are signed up for the class are just walking into it like cattle to a slaughter," said Philip Lawrence. "Half of yoga is a branch of Eastern mysticism, and it has strong occult influences."

Lawrence said he is opposing the yoga class as a Christian. He said other people opposing the classes are from Baptist, Lutheran and Church of God congregations.

The class, sponsored by the Toccoa-Stephens County Recreation Department, was scheduled to begin Monday. It was canceled Aug. 31 after city and county commissioners received a number of complaints from church members in Toccoa.

"The different commissioners got together on the phone, and the majority decided the class should be canceled," Mayor Bill Harris said. "Some felt that they were under too much pressure."

Leonard Greenspoon, a Clemson University religion professor, said yoga has become a secularized form of exercise and relaxation.

"There's certainly no necessary connection between yoga and devil worship," he said. "Anybody who's equating Eastern religion with devil worship has made a big mistake."

Sun Devils thrash Baylor in season opener

By PAUL CORO
State Press

ASU rushes for 271 yards, allows just three first-half first downs and rolls to a 34-13 thrashing of a respected Baylor team.

How's that for openers?

Sun Devil coach Larry Marmie's preseason wishes were granted Saturday night in front of 69,617 fans at Sun Devil Stadium when ASU unveiled a consistent rushing attack and a physical defense.

"You'd like to look that way every night," Marmie said.

"They went out with a very physical attitude about things on both sides of the ball. We won some of the battles that had to be won on both sides of the line of scrimmage."

Most impressive was the way the Sun Devils came out of the gates and scored on their first four possessions behind a balanced offense and surprising offensive line.

"We came out and stuffed it down their throat," junior strong tackle Mike Ritter said. "I'm not going to give any credit to the Baylor defense."

The same Bear defense that finished ninth in the nation last year and held Nebraska to 13 points the previous week let ASU run rampant with its best ground performance since 1987.

"With the way the offensive line played tonight, it was easy because the holes were so big," said junior tailback Leonard

Russell, who rushed nine times for 53 yards behind redshirt freshman starter George Montgomery's 15-carry, 87-yard performance.

On the first drive of the game, ASU ate up over seven minutes as it marched 78 yards on 14 plays. Senior quarterback Paul Justin completed three passes for 53 yards on the series, which was capped with a one-yard touchdown run by Montgomery.

The Sun Devil defense stopped Baylor three-and-out on its first possession as sophomore inside linebacker Brett Wallerstedt came up with a third-down stop at the line. Junior Phillippi Sparks then blocked the Bears' punt to give ASU the ball on the Baylor 20.

"I felt it," Sparks said. "After watching film, I noticed they're kind of lazy on their special teams."

Sophomore placekicker Mike Richey followed with a 23-yard field goal to increase the Sun Devil lead to 10-0 7:46 into the game.

On the ensuing Baylor possession, junior outside linebacker Darren Woodson deflected a quick pass by quarterback Steve Needham into the hands of junior inside linebacker Scott Woodford to give ASU the ball again in Bear territory.

Four plays later, Russell went up the middle and broke right into the secondary untouched for a 15-yard touchdown on the first play of the second quarter to put the Sun Devils up 17-0.

"As we scored quickly, I think they got down," Wallerstedt said. "That gave us a lot of confidence, stopping them on their first few series."

After holding Baylor in its own territory again, ASU took over on its own 13 and rushed eight times for 52 yards to move to the Bear 13. Montgomery then baked Mike Welch and ran over Charles Bell for a 24-0 Sun Devil lead with 5:24 left in the half.

Baylor tried to make it interesting a minute later as Michael Moore outran a reserve-filled ASU defense on a 77-yard touchdown option.

Following an interception of Justin in the end zone, the Sun Devils regained possession on the Baylor 46 after one of several poor Bear punts.

ASU moved into striking range, but because of confusion as to how much time was left, Marmie opted for Richey to kick a 43-yard field goal with 30 seconds remaining to give the Sun Devils a 27-7 halftime advantage.

"If we had it to do over again, I would

ASU establishes running game

By DAN ZEIGER
State Press

One of the first questions fielded by ASU coach Larry Marmie following his team's 34-13 victory over Baylor Saturday was what he thought of possibly having the Pac-10's best running game.

A stirring inquiry, indeed.

The Sun Devil backs, who had been questioned throughout the preseason, turned in their finest rushing effort since 1986. ASU amassed 282 yards on the ground against a Bear defense which was impressive against powerful Nebraska last week and is regarded as the best in the school's history.

"We've been saying all year that all the offensive line has to do is get on somebody because we have the kind of backs that can make things happen," tailback Leonard Russell said. "Our backs have the ability to see things well, so even if our linemen miss a block, we'll be able to re-adjust our course and turn something bad into something good."

Most of the pre-game speculation centered around whether the Sun Devils could run the ball against Baylor, who allowed the Cornhuskers 335 yards total offense, 40 yards less than they averaged rushing last year.

But on the game's first play from scrimmage, ASU tailback George Montgomery provided a glimpse of what was to come on a nine-yard gain to the right side, where he outfought three Bear defenders for four extra yards to the ASU 31. Montgomery, a redshirt freshman who won the starting job from Russell, the highly-touted junior college transfer, was the game's leading rusher with 15 carries for 87 yards and two touchdowns.

One of the biggest reasons for ASU's rushing success was the fact that Baylor's defense was forced to play cautiously against the run due to the Sun Devils' passing ability.

"I thought they played cautious because they have to recognize who Paul Justin is," Montgomery said. "I think that made them slack off in defense to our running game. I think they spent a lot of time preparing for Paul and our running game surprised them."

The Sun Devils are one of the few pro-set offensive teams Baylor has faced in the last two seasons. With the exception of Houston, the Southwest Conference is composed of primarily running teams. Also, Nebraska attempted only eight passes against the Bears a week ago.

"Baylor plays in a conference where they don't see a lot of pro-type offenses like we run," Russell said. "They usually don't have to contend with the pass so they can tighten up on defense and bring everyone in. When you have a guy like Paul, the defense has got to spread out, and that opens up the running game."

Volleyball takes fourth in tournament after winning first two

By GREG ZELE
State Press

ASU posted a fourth place finish in the 1990 Asics Grand Prix Volleyball Classic over the weekend at the San Diego State University.

The Sun Devils (5-4) finished in the middle of the eight team classic which included teams from UC-Santa Barbra, San Diego State University, Pepperdine University, University of San Diego, Hofstra University, United States International University and Providence College. UC-Santa Barbra was the overall champion.

The teams were divided into two brackets of four teams. ASU's bracket consisted of SDSU, USD and Hofstra. The top two teams from each bracket went to the championship round while the bottom two went to a consolation bracket.

The Sun Devils opened play on Thursday against USD. After winning a close first game 15-13 ASU breezed by USD 15-1 in the second game. The Sun Devils dropped a tough third game to USD 16-14 before thrashing USD 15-2 in the fourth. Senior middle blocker Tina Berg recorded three solo blocks and seven assists.

ASU continued play on Friday against

Cardinals lose to Redskins in Bugel's debut as coach

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mark Rypien threw three touchdown passes and the Washington Redskins used four interceptions to beat the Phoenix Cardinals 31-0 Sunday and spoil Joe Bugel's head-coaching debut.

The Redskins drove for scores following the first three interceptions of Timm Rosenbach and Alvin Walton returned the fourth 57 yards for the final touchdown.

Rypien completed 17 of 31 passes for 240 yards to ruin Bugel's return to Washington, where he had been an assistant to Joe Gibbs from 1981 through last season.

It was Washington's first opening-game shutout since 1973.

Rosenbach, a second-year player starting his second NFL game, was 20-for-39 for 228 yards and was sacked three times.

His first two interceptions came on consecutive series in the first half. Rypien capitalized by hitting Ricky Sanders on a 37-yard scoring play and Earnest Byner for a 4-yard TD.

The Cardinals' first drive ended when Rosenbach's pass deflected off receiver J. T. Smith's hands to Darrell Green at Washington's 21.

Sanders capped a seven-play drive when he took a short sideline pass, sidestepped two defenders and cut into the end zone for a 37-yard touchdown.

Two snaps later, Rosenbach tossed a fluttering ball as he was hit by Charles Mann and Martin Mayhew got the first of his two interceptions at the Cardinals' 38.

Byner caught Rypien's pass just above the turf on first-and-goal from the 4, struggled out of Eric Hill's grasp and crawled in.

Mayhew ended the Cardinals' opening drive of the third quarter when he intercepted Rosenbach's pass in the end zone and Rypien drove the Redskins 80 yards, finishing with a 43-yard pass to Gary Clark for a 21-0 lead.

Walton made it 28-0 when he took Rosenbach's pass that tipped off the shoulder of Johnny Johnson and returned it untouched for the score.

Chip Lohmiller added a 29-yard field goal in the fourth quarter.

some extra yardage on occasion as did Leonard Russell," Marmie said.

On defense, Marmie said he was pleased with the aggressiveness and the gang tackling ASU displayed, especially sophomore tackle Bryan Hooks and Woodford.

"I thought the kids just really flew around," Marmie said. "We did not have a missed tackle in the secondary."

Now, Marmie said he is not sure whether the win will increase his team's desire or make it feel at ease in practice this week. However, many of the players said they were looking forward to today's practice.

"After a win like this where we went out and put it down their throats, practices will be more intense and we can really have a goal to set our sights on doing something big this year," Russell said.

Paul, the defense has got to spread out, and that opens up the running game."

Russell ran nine times for 53 yards, including a 15-yard touchdown run in the second quarter. The juco All-American exhibited the ability expected of him on the scoring run by finding a hole over left tackle and racing untouched to the end zone.

Fullbacks Kelvin Fisher and Jeff Simoneau also had impressive outings by combining for an average of 5.2 yards per carry. Fisher ran 15 times for 83 yards, including a 14-yard effort which helped set up ASU's first touchdown. Simoneau added 32 yards on seven carries.

While ASU's rushing production was the highlight of the game, the Sun Devil backfield was quick to share the spotlight.

"The offensive line really made a difference," Russell said. "They did a lot for the running game by blocking and opening holes, which makes our job easier. We really didn't have to worry about being touched until we were five yards down the field."

ASU center Paul DeBono said the Sun Devils were able to handle Baylor's front seven by keeping their blocking schemes simple. ASU's offensive line stuck with four basic patterns and was able to base-block effectively throughout the game.

"The game plan wasn't too complicated from a center's standpoint," DeBono said. "It was just a matter of getting up to the ball, recognizing the defense and making the hits."

In addition to the performance of the ASU running backs, another reflection of the offensive line's play was Baylor's inability to sack Justin.

Hofstra winning the match 3-1. Hofstra opened up strong against the Devils taking the first game 15-13. ASU battled back to win the second, third and fourth games 16-14, 15-0 and 16-14.

Friday nights match against SDSU was televised on ASPN. The Devils won the first two games 15-10 and 15-9. SDSU took the third 17-16 and ASU won the fourth 15-7 to complete a sweep of its bracket. Sun Devil outside hitter junior Mindy Gowell played an outstanding match recording a team leading 25 kills.

The Sun Devils headed into Saturday's championship round undefeated. ASU took on UC-Santa Barbra and lost 3-2. The games were scored 15-4, 13-15, 15-1, 11-15 and 17-16. ASU then played Pepperdine in a match for third place match. The Sun Devils lost a close match in four games 15-6, 9-15, 16-14 and 16-14.

10th ranked UC-Santa Barbra beat 16th ranked SDSU in three games to win the Classic compiling a 7-1 record overall. Two Sun Devils, Gowell and Freshman setter Tiffannie Johnson made the all-tournament team.

Golfers win invitational; Mickelson finishes 1st

From staff reports

With a one-two finish by junior Phil Mickelson and senior Jim Lemon, the Sun Devils proved they intend to be a dominating force in collegiate golf once again.

On the road to defending ASU's NCAA title, Mickelson and Lemon led the Sun Devils to a 17-stroke victory over second-place USC in the Colorado University-Fox Acres Invitational in Red Feather Lakes, Colo. on Sunday.

Mickelson shot six-under par-71 (68-70-69) in the 54-hole tournament and Lemon finished one stroke back at five-under (69-68-71). Southwest Louisiana's Ulfar Johnsson placed third at two-under.

Sophomore Keith Sbarbaro came in at two-over par in 11th place while junior Brett Dean tied for 15th with a three-round score of 218. Senior Dave Cunningham, coming off a redshirt season, tied for 26th place.

Rounding out the ASU squad was sophomore alternate Cade Stone who finished in a tie for 49th place at 16 over par.

Host team Colorado closed the tournament in sixth place.

Advertising
Sales
Reps . . .

The State Press is looking for several new advertising sales representatives. The rewards are many...you'll gain valuable experience in sales, layout, design, production and communications. This job is not for everyone, however. It's highly demanding and requires every spare moment of your time...25 to 35 hours per week. And you must be an advertising, marketing, communications or business major with an incredibly strong desire to learn about advertising and the insight to understand the benefits to this pre-professional opportunity. If you have a demanding class schedule or lots of extra-curriculars, this job's not for you. BUT...if you have a sense of pride in doing a good job; are creatively inclined; feel you can handle 30-40 local accounts, as well as your classes and a rather dull social life; don't need anyone to get you going every morning and above all, operate well under the pressure of a daily deadline...WE NEED YOU!!!
Is this you? Contact Jackie Eldridge today at 965-6555 for more information.

FOR TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1990

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)
You could be touchy as the day begins and need to guard against arguments with co-workers. A long time business project begins to pay off for you. P.M. is best for you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20)
Creative types are blessed by the muse now. Dealings with agents and advisers are favored. Travel is a plus. Don't spoil an outing by arguing about money.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
You could have good news about an investment or money due you may come in now. However, avoid excessive spending on the home and keep peace with other family members.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
For romantics, it could be love at first sight today. Some singles are now ready for a permanent commitment. Watch irritability and accent togetherness.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22)
Your hard work and patience pay off now as you receive recognition for work done in the past and new opportunities for financial gain. Relations with a friend may be touchy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)
Don't let a little thing be a source of contention between you and a higher-up. New romance is possible now. The bond between parent and child grows stronger.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)
You may not see eye-to-eye with an adviser today. A long standing problem involving home is resolved to your satisfaction. Entertaining guests is favored tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)
A quarrel about money could erupt today. You may be renewing a friendship from long ago. Group activities are favored. Tonight could bring a pleasant surprise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)
You'll be pleased with career gains made today, but there may be some difficulty getting along with a personal tie. The financial picture brightens considerably!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19)
Work-related problems could occur now — minor but irritating nonetheless. Some of you may sign up for a course of study, while others make plans for travel.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18)
You could be at odds with a child or a romantic interest for a while today. Investments of a long term nature are favored. Financial developments now are positive.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20)
Recognition could come now in connection with a club activity. New friends may enter your life today. A family member could irritate you in some way, but try to keep the peace.

YOU BORN TODAY are an inspired and dynamic individual. There's a bit of the visionary about you and you often become a charismatic leader. You have creative talents and are capable of work that's ahead of its time. Though you can succeed in business, you'll do better in an artistic milieu. Financial security is very important to you. Once you overcome temperament, you do well in partnership ventures. Birthdate: Anne Seymour, actress; Alfred van Loen, sculptor; and Jessica Mitford, writer.
