Baghdad orders troops to withdraw

White House dismisses Iraqi announcement

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — The American war machine, pushing deeper into Iraq and Kuwait, clashed Monday with the elite Iraqi Republican Guard. Hours later, Baghdad surprised the world by announcing it had ordered its troops to withdraw from occupied Kuwait.

The Iraqis, reeling before the advance of the U. S.-led alliance, fired a SCUD missile that struck a U. S. barracks here. Twelve servicemen were killed, 25 were wounded and 40 were unaccounted for, the U. S. military said.

The Baghdad radio announcement of a Kuwait pullout said Iraqi troops "have completed their duty of jihad," or holy war. But it did not specify a timetable, and it threw the diplomatic-military picture into confusion.

It appeared the Iraqis might attempt a retreat into their home territory under American fire. If successful, it could foil the desire of some alliance leaders to destroy more of Iraq's military power.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters Monday night that Allied forces "will not attack unarmed soldiers in retreat but we will consider retreating combat units as a movement of war."

Fitzwater said there was no evidence to suggest the Baghdad radio report was a genuine peace offer.

A senior Pentagon official said Monday night allied intelligence sources had reports of "some movement of (Iraqi) units going north."

"It's too early to say whether it's repositioning or withdrawal," said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The official Iraqi radio said President Saddam Hussein ordered the withdrawal in line with a Soviet peace plan. A Soviet plan last week was rejected by Washington, but the Soviets on Monday presented undisclosed new proposals at a closed U. N. meeting in New York.

In Washington, the White House dismissed the Baghdad announcement. "The war goes on," President Bush's spokesman said.

The war went well for the Desert Storm forces Monday, as they smashed scores of Iraqi tanks and scooped up thousands more prisoners, the U. S. command reported. Military officials said American units were having "tremendous success" in their first battle with the tough Republican Guard.

The forwardmost American troops were 75 to 90 miles into Iraq, said informed sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Before the deadly SCUD attack, the command reported U. S. losses so far as "extremely light" — four Americans killed and 21 wounded. It also reported the loss of four U. S. aircraft, three of whose pilots were rescued.

The command said 18,000 Iraqi troops were taken prisoner in the first two days of the all-out ground offensive to free

Coor hospitalized after complaining of chest pains

By JENNIFER FRANKLIN
State Press

ASU President Lattie Coor remained in serious but stable condition Monday after he was admitted to Desert Samaritan Medical Center in Mesa complaining of chest pains.

Coor, 54, was in the intensive care unit undergoing tests Monday afternoon. George Cathcart, director of ASU's News Bureau, said he was informed the serious listing was standard for anyone undergoing tests in intensive care.

Cathcart said he spoke to Coor at about 9 p.m. Sunday.

"I saw him (Sunday) night and I think he looked good. His color was really good," Cathcart said. "He was fully alert and in good spirits."

Elmer Gooding, interim vice president and provost, will serve as acting president until Coor returns.

It is not known when the president will return to work.

Cathcart said Coor's physicians were not yet certain if he suffered a heart attack.

"They're certain that they don't know what happened," he said.

Coor was bicycling Sunday afternoon when he felt the initial pain. He drove himself to the hospital at about 3 p.m.,

Cathcart said.

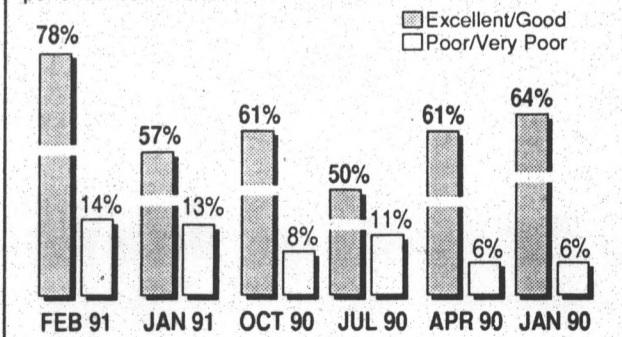

Information on Coor's medical condition is being dispersed solely through the University spokesman. Officials at Desert Samaritan declined comment.

Coor has served as University president since January 1990, succeeding J. Russell Nelson.

"We'll have to fill in the best we can," Cathcart said.

Bush, AzScam evaluated in recent poll

President Bush's popularity, as measured in terms of job approval, soared to a record 78 percent in the initial weeks of the Persian Gulf war, a poll released Monday indicated.

The results also showed a "devastating impact on public regard for the state Legislature" as a result of the AzScam sting that broke this month, ending in the indictment of 18 state officials.

A Rocky Mountain Poll surveyed 601 adult heads of household throughout Maricopa County between February 6th and 11th. The poll, conducted by Behavior Research Center, has a plus or minus 4.07 percent margin of error.

The figures for age, sex, race and political party were weighted to bring the statistics into line with their actual proportions in the population.

John Geer, an ASU associate professor of political science, termed the results "reliable."

The number of people rating Bush as "excellent" or "good" rose 21 percent from January's rating of 57 percent. Only 6 percent of respondents rated the president as "poor" or "very poor," and 14 percent rated him "fair."

But ASU officials said the results of the survey — conducted by telephone — were "not surprising," considering the conservative nature of Maricopa County.

"Given the successes of the ground and air wars, I think (Bush's popularity) will stay up," said William Crittenden, an assistant professor of political science.

Along party lines, 88 percent of Republicans and 63 percent

Goddard makes last attempt to garner votes

Irwin Daugherty/State Press

Gubernatorial Candidate Terry Goddard answers questions from students on West Lawn Monday afternoon. About 200 students and supporters were on hand to listen to him speak.

By JENNIFER FRANKLIN
State Press

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Terry Goddard fielded heated, last-minute questions from ASU students Monday at a lunch time campus appearance, in a final effort to garner votes for today's run-off election.

The former Phoenix mayor appeared relaxed as he spoke for 40 minutes to about 200 students on Hayden Library's West Lawn, claiming education would be his first priority if elected to the governor's seat.

"The universities need to be funded by multiple-year budgeting," he said, adding that University funding needs to undergo drastic changes if mid-year budget cuts are to be avoided.

The Arizona Legislature approved a $5.6 million dollar cut to ASU's budget in January, a move University officials called devastating.

Goddard suggested that universities be funded for two years at a time, enabling administrators to better plan how money could be used.

"The highways are funded for more than one year, and so is the corrections department," Goddard said.

While Goddard said he could not promise that tuition will never rise, he said he will work to ensure revenue from increases is spent at the universities.

"I will do everything I can to ensure that the money goes back into your education," he said.

But Goddard did promise that he would not forget the needs of ASU students if elected.

"I'll be here frequently to talk with students and with faculty members about what the (Arizona) Board of Regents happens to be doing wrong at the moment," he said.

Goddard was born and raised in Tucson. He received his undergraduate degree from Harvard University and his law degree from ASU, serving as mayor of Phoenix from 1984 to 1990.

Despite the typically low turnout among college-age voters, Howard Andari, president of Young Democrats of ASU, said students could make a difference in this election.

"The polls have tightened up, and if at least 60 percent of (registered) students vote, it will make a difference," Andari said.

Today

The Today section is a daily calendar of events happening at ASU that is presented as a service to the University community. Any campus club or organization can submit entries for publication to the State Press, located in the basement of Matthews Center, Room 15. Entries must be legible, are subject to editing for content, space and clarity, and will not be taken over the phone. Due to space restrictions, the State Press cannot guarantee publication. Deadline for the entries is 1 p.m. the previous business day.

Iraqi SCUD destroys allied barracks

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — In the worst Scud attack of the Gulf War, an Iraqi missile on Monday demolished a barracks housing about 100 American soldiers. The U.S. military said 12 servicemen were killed, 25 wounded and 40 unaccounted for.

Baghdad radio hailed the attack, saying the missile struck "the coward traitors who mortgage the sacred places of the nation . . . and turn Arab youth into shields of flesh."

The single missile caused more casualties than Iraq's armies have reportedly inflicted in two days on the battlefield. U.S. military officials say four Americans died and 21 were injured in the first two days of a major ground assault.

Saddam Hussein's troops have hurled dozens of missiles at Israel and Saudi Arabia since the Gulf War began Jan. 17, but most have been knocked out by U.S.-supplied Patriot defense missiles.

It was not immediately clear if a Patriot was fired to intercept the Scud on Monday.

"It was gory, horrible," said Sgt. Arnel Bona, 23, assigned to crowd control at the blast scene.

After the blast, a chaplain moved among the survivors, consoling them. Some soldiers appeared to be in shock; others embraced each other in anguish. Many were in tears.

In the rubble, four pairs of boots poked out from under blankets. Sleeping bags and military uniform belts were scattered about on the charred floor. There was little left of the building but its steel girder frame.

"I have to prepare myself for this," said a U.S. soldier walking toward the scene.

Some survivors carried gas masks around their waists, but there was no indication Saddam had made good on his threat to arm a Scud missile with a chemical warhead.

George Manes, Middle East bureau chief for the military newspaper Stars & Stripes, said an air raid siren gave scant warning of the approaching Scud.

Manes, basing his account on military eyewitnesses, wrote that a large piece of the missile that apparently contained the warhead plunged straight down into the barracks, creating an orange fireball on impact.

The barracks was in an industrial area about three miles from the huge military air base at Dhahran. A singed sign at the entrance marked it as the home of the 475th Quartermaster Group, a reserve unit from Farrell, Pa., north of Pittsburgh.

The attack came at about 8:30 p.m., while some of the soldiers were eating dinner and after others had apparently gone to bed or were relaxing. Many survivors were in civilian clothes — some in sweatsuits or gym shorts.

Hours later, the U.S. military brought in lights, a backhoe and a team of engineers to clear the rubble.

Two trucks carrying about 25 members of a miners' company arrived. The workers donned leather gloves to search through the rubble, and some carried picks and shovels as they trudged down the road toward the building, still surrounded by many of its surviving residents.

During the early stages of the search, there were the sounds of small arms ammunition exploding in the smoldering rooms.

The search lasted most of the night, but appeared to be over by about 4 a.m., when bright searchlights were dimmed and only a few security guards could be seen standing around the wreckage.

A convoy of at least two dozen ambulances carried away the wounded, and at least two medical evacuation helicopters landed near the wrecked building. The Central Command said the injured were taken to the 85th Evacuation Hospital and the Air Transportable Clinic at Dhahran.

Initially, military officials said they had no confirmed figures on the number of dead. But early Tuesday, the U.S. Central Command issued a statement saying 12 military personnel were killed, 25 were wounded and 40 were unaccounted for.

Trevor Harrison, who lives near the barracks, said he heard the explosion and rushed out only to see the smoldering ruins. He said the servicemen were apparently eating dinner when the missile hit the top of the building.

Warsaw Pact over after 35 years of military rule

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — The Warsaw Pact effectively went out of business Monday, ending a 35-year confrontation with NATO that divided Europe between the two alliances and created history's costliest arms race.

Defense and foreign ministers of Warsaw Pact members formally dissolved the East Bloc alliance's military functions in a 20-minute ceremony at a luxury Western hotel on the Danube River.

Countries signing the agreement — the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania — agreed to meet in Prague by July 1 to disband the alliance's remaining structures.

A meeting planned later this week in Budapest to disband Comecon, the Soviet-led equivalent of the European Common Market, was postponed indefinitely.

Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh and Defense Minister Dmitri T. Yazov of the Soviet Union looked glum as they put their names to the document ending the alliance Moscow forged in 1955 as a counterweight to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

By contrast, Jiri Dienstbier and Lubos Dobrovsky of Czechoslovakia smiled broadly. Both men, foreign and defense minister respectively, are former dissidents who fought the orthodox Communist regime imposed by a Warsaw Pact invasion that ended the liberal "Prague Spring" of 1968.

"The military bloc system as such has come to an end today," Foreign Minister Geza Jeszensky of Hungary told reporters after the ceremony.

Poland's foreign minister, Krzysztof Skubiszewski, said: "When you deprive the Warsaw Treaty of its military essence, it becomes more or less an empty shell."

The documents signed Monday provide that the Soviet-dominated military command will be disbanded by March 31 and six secret agreements that bound Eastern Europe to Moscow will be annulled.

Dienstbier and Jeszensky of Czechoslovakia indicated the Warsaw Pact's other functions would be abolished by the end of the year.

Disagreements between the Soviets and their former East European satellites remained beneath the surface. The Soviets did not appear at a news conference after the meeting and Hungarian officials said they may already have left Budapest.

Soviet officials were reluctant to comment on the meeting. Their absence from the news conference suggested Moscow wanted the Warsaw Pact to die quietly. The Soviets also insisted that the agreements annulled Monday remain secret.

Dienstbier said the annulled documents were essentially uninteresting and that the continued secrecy showed the Soviets had not discarded old ways.

In a veiled dig at Soviet conservatives, Jeszensky noted in the closed meeting that "even at present, opinions emerge according to which the Warsaw Treaty is part of stability and military balance in Europe," according to remarks made available to reporters.

"More numerous are those, however, who characterize it as an organization resting on mistaken fundaments which has outlived itself," he added.

High court tackles new abortion clinic dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court tackled a new abortion dispute Monday as it agreed to decide whether protesters who block access to abortion clinics sometimes illegally hamper interstate travel.

The justices said they will review rulings that barred the anti-abortion group Operation Rescue and its members from blocking access to nine clinics in Northern Virginia.

The court's decision, expected sometime in 1992, will determine the availability of federal courts to abortion clinic owners seeking to combat the tactics of groups such as Operation Rescue.

"We're delighted to have an opportunity to show that no federal court jurisdiction exists for such lawsuits," said C. Peter Cornell, a lawyer for Operation Rescue. "These matters ought to be handled in the state courts."

But Alison Wetherfield, legal director of the National Organization for Women's Legal Defense Fund, said she hoped the court would use the case "to emphasize that (federal law) protects women's civil rights to travel in exercising their constitutional right to choose."

Ms. Wetherfield's group helped represent the abortion clinics involved in the case.

The Civil War era federal law at issue, known as the Ku Klux Klan Act, bans conspiracies aimed at violating the constitutional rights of certain people. People who invoke the law successfully are eligible to have the losing side pay their legal fees.

A federal trial judge and the Richmond-based 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals previously ruled that Operation Rescue's blockades interfered with the interstate travel rights of women who do not live in Virginia but sought to have abortions there.

Such blockades, the appeals court said, "crossed the line from persuasion into coercion and operated to deny the exercise of rights protected by law."

The nation's highest court last May rejected a similar Operation Rescue appeal from rulings that the group's attempts to block access to New York City area abortion clinics violated interstate travel rights.

The anti-abortion group also has been hit hard by National Organization for Women lawsuits accusing it of violating a federal anti-racketeering law.

In the case acted on Monday, a federal judge in Alexandria, Va., banned Operation Rescue blockades at the nine clinics. He allowed the group's members to picket peacefully and hold other demonstrations at the clinics, so long as they did not interfere with patients' access.

The injunction, to remain in effect until next Sept. 24, was issued against Operation Rescue, group leader Randall Terry and members Jayne Bray, Michael Bray, Clifford Gannett, Patrick Mahoney and Michael McMonagle.

VOTE TODAY

As polls open today, all registered voters will be casting their ballots for the best candidate.

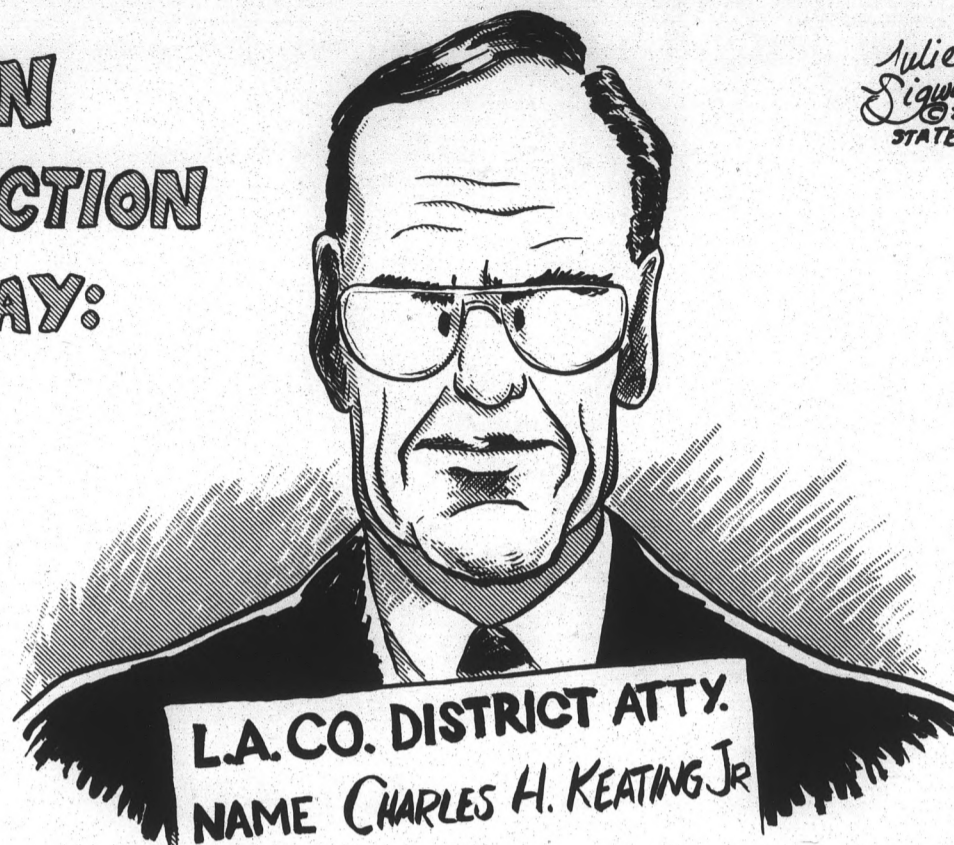

And if you haven't decided who that person is, think of these facts:

- Terry Goddard considers himself the education governor. He knows what public education is all about and he is willing to make it a priority.
- Fife Symington was born and bred (emphasis here on the word bred) in the East. If he knows anything about education it has to do with Harvard University and private schooling in Arizona.
- Goddard ran Phoenix like a clock. It may be in part because he was able to surround himself with competent assistants. But that's what being in charge is all about: delegating authority.
- Symington is currently running his multi-million dollar business like the nationwide S&L fiasco. He even had a hand in a local failed S&L — and made millions of dollars off it. If he's willing to take money from members of a bank he's involved with, who knows what he'll do to the residents of Arizona.

Clearly, Goddard is the best choice for governor of Arizona. While his track record is not spotless, it is certainly not as messy as Symington's.

And even if you don't agree with this, thanks for voting anyway.

Restoration will solidify injustices in liberated Kuwait

Cody Shearer

WASHINGTON — The war in the Persian Gulf may not be over yet but Kuwaiti officials in exile are busy gearing up to rebuild their devastated kingdom.

Already the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE) has elicited from U. S. contractors to carry out emergency construction work. A week after the war began, the USACE signed a $45 million contract, on behalf of the U. S. Defense Department, with the Kuwaiti Emergency Reconstruction Program (KERD) to provide planning, assistance and contractors for goods and services for the emergency phase of reconstruction.

While other foreign firms, particularly German and Japanese, will surely be involved in the physical reconstruction of Kuwait, Bechtel and the Ralph M. Parsons Company are but two of the American concerns that have begun negotiations with the KERD office.

Though Iraqi opposition leaders have been wined and dined by the British Foreign Office, its Kuwaiti equivalent has been told to shut up by almost everyone. The Kuwaiti pro-democracy movement has been deprived of all rights and courtesy because the United Nations resolution only provides for the restoration of Kuwait's "legitimate government." It doesn't matter whether this government is democratic or not, given that the ruling of Al-Sabah family remains in power.

When some Kuwaiti opposition leaders were in London recently they asked Bader al-Yacoub, Kuwait's Minister of Information if it would be possible to hold elections after their country had been liberated. Absolutely not, they were told. If anything, al-Yacoub said, "We may need a martial law government."

The Amir, Jaber Al-Ahmad Al-Sabah has ruled the constitutional monarchy of Kuwait since Dec. 31, 1977. The country's 50 member rubber stamp National Assembly has been dissolved since July 3, 1986.

With the ruling house of Al-Sabah in firm control, it's no wonder this royal family won't let domestic political opponents even sit on a national unity reconstruction committee. The Al-Sabah family has gone so far as to advise the estimated 400,000 Kuwaitis abroad, a quarter of the country's population, to stay away for at least a few months after the liberation.

One particular fear among the Kuwaiti pro-democracy movement has been what happens to the hundreds of thousands of Palestinians that stuck out the war in Kuwait. Members of the Kuwaiti ruling family have suggested there may be reprisals against those Palestinians who collaborated with occupying forces.

Dawlat Al-Kuwait, the official name for the state of Kuwait, has only been an independent entity since escaping from British control in June 1961. But, in the decades since independence, it has demonstrated no great democratic legacy or major contribution to the development of world civilization. That Kuwait's leaders managed to secure the military assistance of so many allies, all who failed to come to the aid of Hungary or Czechoslovakia during earlier decades, may have more to do with indigenous oil and money than any formidable social development within Kuwait's 6,880 square miles of territory.

Mike Royko
Tribune Media Syndicate

"Hey, do you ever get to feeling nostalgic for the good old days?" Slat's Grobnik asked. "You know, when times were more simple and we didn't have to worry so much?"

Are you talking about the 1950s?

"No. I mean July 1990."

You feel nostalgia for last July? That was only seven months ago.

"Is that all? It seems a lot longer than that. Ah, those were the days. Sit around and talk about how Donald Trump is making everybody happy by going broke. Now I don't even remember his girlfriend's name, although I never forget a bod. What ever happened to Donald?"

I don't know. Last I heard the banks put him on an allowance.

"And there was all that hype about those creepy rappers, what's their name — 2 live shoes?"

2 Live Crew, I believe.

"Yeah. I couldn't understand what the big fuss was. I heard them once and I couldn't understand what they were saying. How can people get upset about some guys who sound like they talk with their mouths full of food? Are they still around?"

Who knows? Maybe their album will be sold on cable TV as this year's Golden Oldies hit.

"And that Hubble telescope, the one we sent to outer space to see what's doin' out there, but it had a bum lens. They probably had it made by the same guy who did my glasses."

A waste of a couple of billion dollars.

"Didn't matter. If that telescope spotted something living in outer space, they wouldn't be anybody I'd want to move into my neighborhood. And speaking of that, what ever happened to the gays? I can't remember the last time I saw any gays on TV being real upset about anything. They used to be there every night. I think that back in July, the good old days, they were all worked up because gays couldn't be in the Army."

I think they might have put that particular issue back in the closet for a while.

"You know what I really miss? Remember the S&L crisis?"

How could you miss that? At the time, you were outraged.

That's because I didn't appreciate it."

What was there to appreciate about billions of dollars down the drain?

"Well, you got to admit that the guys who ran those S&Ls never shot off any SCUD missiles."

That's true.

"And they never committed any naked aggression on their neighbors. Every one of them I saw was wearing nice clothes."

Of course, we don't know what they did at night. Naked, I mean.

"So what happened to the S&L crisis? Did it go away? Can we forget about it now?"

No, it will be back some day. But there is no need to worry, since our children and grandchildren will have to pick up the tab.

"Yeah, that's the nice thing about having kids. You got somebody to inherit the debts. That way the ingrates can't say you didn't leave them anything. And speaking of kids, what about Bush's son, the one in the S&L business. Back in the good old days he was big news too. Is he still in the S&L game?"

I doubt it. Maybe he has switched to oil.

"And what about Mayor Barry in Washington? Boy, that was something. The guy goofs up once and the FBI shows it on TV, and the hotel and motel industry probably loses millions in quick-stop day revenue. In the good old days, he was big news. Now, I don't even know what happened to him."

Me either. Maybe he and The Donald have become homeless people together.

"Yeah, the homeless. They're even quieter than the gays. I can't remember the last time I turned on my TV and saw a family of 10 living in a compact car. And what about the war on drugs? Is it over? I don't even remember — did we win, lose or get a draw?"

I don't know, but Wolf Blitzer hasn't mentioned it, so maybe there's a lull in the fighting.

"You know who I just remembered? George Steinbrenner."

Ah, yes, a name from the dim, distant past.

"Sure, in July, the good old days, more people hated him than Saddam Hussein, and Steinbrenner wasn't a naked aggressor, either. What happened to Steinbrenner? Did we hit him with a Patriot missile?"

Beats me. Maybe he's out there somewhere with Trump and Barry.

"Something else. The budget deficit. Yeah, I used to turn on the TV on Sunday mornings, pour myself some coffee and watch all the Washington guys — you ever notice how they all look like George Will? — talking about the budget deficit. Then I'd switch to a channel that's got old Cisco Kid movies. So did they ever do anything about the deficit?"

I lost track. Maybe we will pass the hat at the U. N.

"Well, those sure were simple, innocent times. I wonder if we'll even be like that again."

You never know. Maybe next month you'll be nostalgic for this month.

"I wouldn't bet against it."

Getting what they want

Editor:

After spending a fair amount of time angry, bitter and perplexed at America's enthusiasm for this war, one thing remains unfortunately crystal-clear: Polls show an overwhelming majority of citizens support the "Liberation of Kuwait."

Within these borders, majority rules, and whether we like it or not, if eight out of every 10 Americans want their children turning green inside body bags, well then democracy will give them exactly that.

What can you say to a cannibal who drinks his own blood?

Letters keep us sane

Editor:

I am writing in regards to Michael LaMantia's letter printed Feb. 20 in the State Press. I have several friends who are serving in the gulf as I write; I keep in close contact with many of their families. They, as well as myself, wait breathlessly by the mailboxes and phones to hear something from our men overseas. These calls and short notes are the only things that keep us from going insane! Yes, the thought of never speaking to them again scares us all, as does the fear we hear in their voices and vague letters, but it is better to know that they are well enough to make the call or write the letter than have the unbearable doubt lingering in our minds. Every day I worry that I will never get to see my friends again, and every night I pray for their safe return, as well as the other brave soldiers. To "censor or stifle" the only way we can be sure of their well-being, would do more damage to the homefront than does the fear it brings. We should not tamper with communications. If there are to be any such restrictions, let it come from the service men and women themselves.

Lessons enriched lives

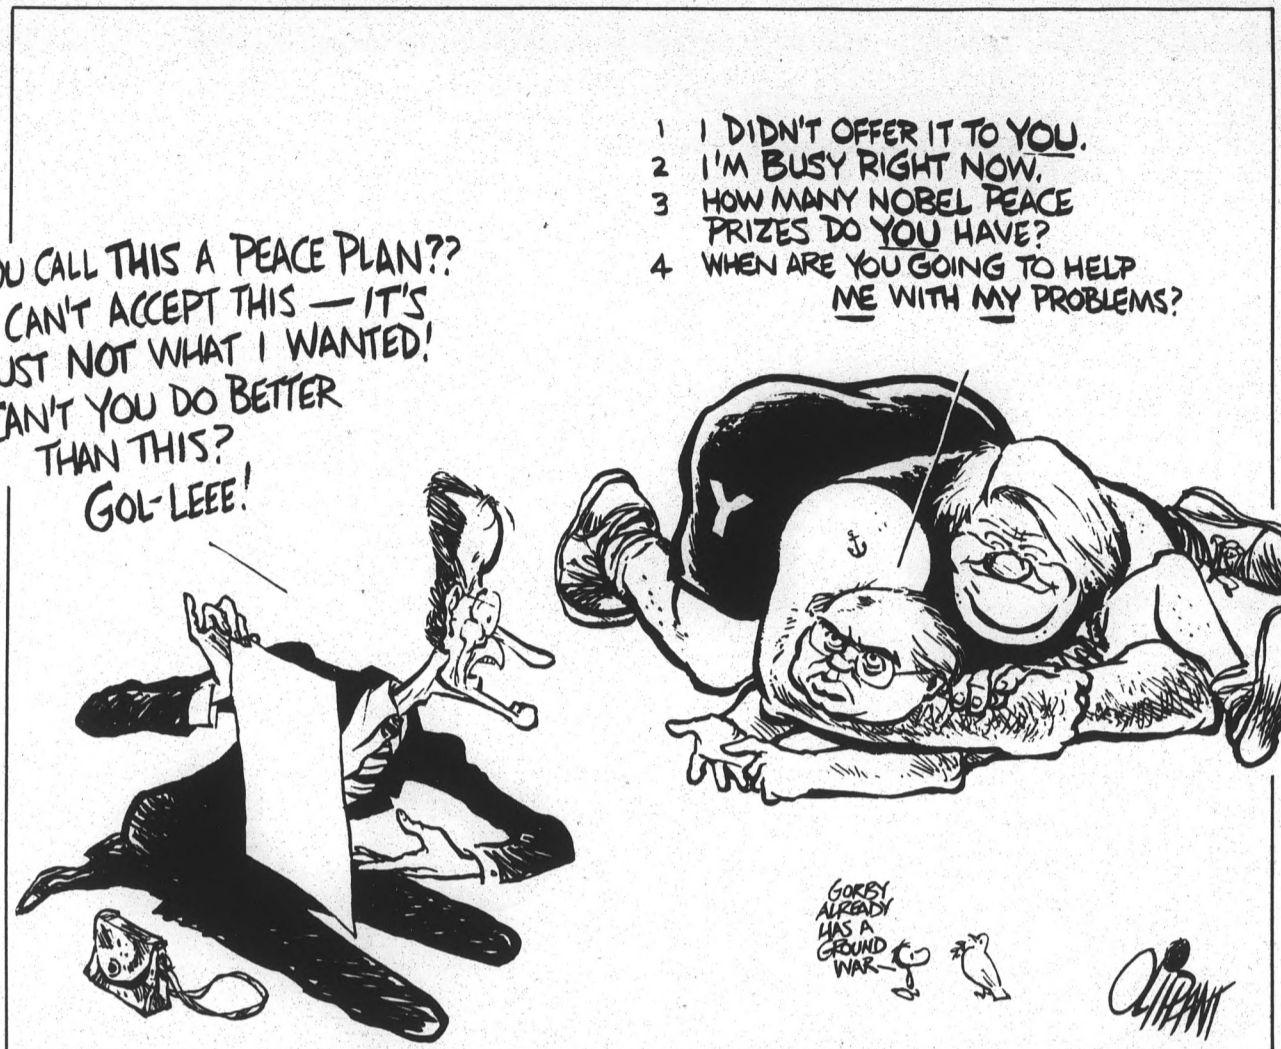

Editor:

In regards to Lesley Anne Polka's critical evaluation of a version of a letter which I wrote that appeared in the State Press last week, I heartily agree.

The summarized, paraphrased, excerpted version of my original open letter, which Dr. Calleros cited in his letter to the State Press, does indeed contain form and grammar errors.

The letter had been transcribed at least twice since my draft, and in the process the integrity of my original letter was unfortunately, and unintentionally, compromised.

In regards to the grammatical correctness of the student

Callerification

Editor:

Thank you for printing my letter on "political correctness," appearing in the Feb. 25 issue of the State Press. Of three minor typos in your edition, however, two humorously affected the substance of my letter and beg correction.

Toward the end of the letter, you had me referring to the undergraduate breadth requirement as a "gambit;" of course, I was talking about "issues within this ambit."

In the previous sentence, your edition left out a line in my letter, suggesting that I raised a question about "tolerating the College of Law." Instead, my letter referred to tolerating the risk of "political correctness" in traditionally required courses.

"Even traditionally required courses cover issues that raise a danger of 'political correctness,' yet we have tolerated the risk. Criminal Law is a required first year course at the College of Law, and our criminal law faculty normally cover the 'battered women's syndrome' defense We trust our faculty to invite and encourage full exploration and free discussion of such topics"

I concluded that free exchange of ideas is important in all our courses and that we should not single out multicultural courses as the special object of our fears.

I thank the State Press for providing a forum for the rich variety of views on campus.

CET Chair

essay which I quoted in my letter, this was a "personal reaction" paper, an informal type of essay which I neither correct nor grade, allowing students, in this way, some room to express themselves without worrying too much about formal language conventions.

Needless to say, I am never delighted to see something of mine in print which is a misrepresentation of my original work. However, that disappointment is of no concern to me in light of the greater issue, the issue of appreciating cultural diversity, which was the content of my student's essay and my letter and Dr. Calleros' letter, and which Ms. Polka, in her critique, ignored.

I am pleased that the work I have done in helping increase my students' awareness of and appreciation for cultural diversity is as important to people outside my classroom as it is to me.

But, what is most important is that the students themselves have said that this kind of learning (the learning about people, as well as the lessons on commas and syntax and how to write a good research paper) has, in whatever small or greater way, enriched their lives.

Poll

of Democrats surveyed rated Bush as "excellent" or "good." In addition, 81 percent of women, compared to 78 percent of men, rated Bush highly.

Crittenden predicted the president's popularity will remain high because "people like winners."

However, Kim Kahn, an assistant professor of political science, disagreed, saying Bush's continued popularity would depend on the number of casualties and the time frame of the ground war.

"If a lot of kids come back in body bags then it (Bush's popularity) will decline," she said.

The repercussions of AzScam also were evident in the poll's results.

Fifty-five percent of those surveyed countywide rated the state Legislature as "poor" or "very poor."

Earl de Berge, research director at the Behavior Research

Center, said the percentage of respondents who typically give negative ratings to the Legislature is "about 25 to 30 percent or slightly lower."

"There has been a significant impact (because of AzScam)," he said.

Sixty-eight percent of Republicans polled and 53 percent of Democrats considered the Legislature "poor" or "very poor." Sixty percent of respondents aged 35 to 54 and 55 or older also rated the Legislature poorly, compared to 45 percent of respondents under the age of 35. Sixty percent of retirees also gave the Legislature a thumbs-down rating.

In addition, recent coverage of the Persian Gulf war and AzScam has boosted public opinion of the media, particularly of local radio and television stations.

Fifty-eight percent of those polled expressed "much confidence" in major radio stations, along with 52 percent expressing the same opinion of major television stations and 46 percent approving of major daily newspaper coverage.

War

Kuwait of Iraq's control.

Marines and U.S. paratroopers tightened their grip around Kuwait City. But one U.S. official said "it's going to be a while" before the Americans or allied Arab troops fight house to house to retake the capital.

Saudi commander Lt. Gen. Khalid bin Sultan said the Iraqis continued a reported terror campaign of "rape, murder and torture" in the city, and warned they would be "held responsible before an international court."

In Washington, Bush, continuously updated by his generals on the progress of the war, told a White House audience the campaign was "on course and on schedule."

In bomb-battered Baghdad, meanwhile, where residents were shaken from their sleep by thunderous explosions overnight, military communiques claimed unbroken triumphs for Iraq's troops.

The ruling party's newspaper urged Iraqi soldiers to "strike with all your force to salvage the nation from the abyss of slavery."

The Desert Storm offensive was launched early Sunday along a 300-mile front stretching from the Persian Gulf coast deep into the western desert.

Under cover of fighter-bombers, columns of tanks and troops from the United States, Saudi Arabia, France, Britain and seven other nations rumbled across the Saudi border, kicking up billowing clouds of dust as they rolled up mile after mile of Iraqi-held territory.

The unfolding strategy appeared aimed at pinning down the Iraqis in Kuwait City with Marines and Saudi and Kuwaiti forces, while sending powerful allied armored forces through Iraq to loop around Kuwait's western borders and confront the Republican Guard units dug in along its northern frontier.

As part of the western push, U.S. airborne troops leaptfrogged by helicopter at least 50 miles into Iraq on Sunday to establish a forward support base.

A U.S. command spokesman, Marine Brig. Gen. Richard Neal, characterized Iraqi resistance Monday as light to moderate.

The picture of battlefield activity remained sketchy. The command was issuing only limited operational information, and dispatches from reporters in news pools at the front were slow in reaching rear areas.

Neal said 270 Iraqi tanks had been destroyed in the operation's first two days, including 35 of the top-line T-72s, the Republican Guard's main battle weapon.

The Marines engaged an Iraqi armored and mechanized-infantry force in Kuwait late Monday morning, and destroyed 50 to 60 tanks, Neal said.

In a later action, Army tanks operating with Marines battled more than 150 Iraq tanks and personnel carriers and "initial reports indicate again tremendous success," he said.

Another senior U.S. military official said the second clash involved a unit of Republican Guard tanks — but it was not known whether they were being knocked out by U.S. warplanes or tanks.

Said Neal: "We're running into a substantial number of tanks and defeating them. We're enjoying success. They're being beaten."

But Iraq retained powerful weapons. SCUD missilemen fired off one of their ballistic weapons Monday evening at this Saudi city and military center 200 miles south of the border, and it struck a U.S. military barracks, demolishing the building.

It was the deadliest SCUD attack of the war: 12 servicemen dead, 25 wounded, 40 unaccounted for, according to U.S. figures. One witness said it hit as some servicemen were eating dinner.

Hours later, military engineers and other troops were still combing the ruins for survivors and bodies.

The U.S. command said the SCUD may have broken up in flight and scattered debris over a wide area.

Other Iraqi missile crews had bigger targets in their sights — at sea.

The Iraqis fired two shore-to-ship Silkworm missiles at allied vessels operating in the northern gulf. One fell into the sea, and the other was intercepted by missiles fired by a British destroyer.

A Royal Navy commander said he could not identify the missiles' target, but noted that the destroyer, HMS Gloucester, was "riding shotgun" for the battleship USS Missouri.

Sixteen-inch battleship guns continued to pound Iraqi coastal positions Tuesday, but there were no reports that the 17,000 Marines afloat in a gulf amphibious task force were making any move toward shore.

Outside Kuwait City, 50 miles north of the border, paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division who were dropped over the capital's outskirts Sunday were holding positions around the international airport, military sources reported.

Police Report

ASU police reported the following incidents Monday:

- An ASU student's car caught fire while parked in Lot 38. Estimated damage is $400.
- A gray attache case, valued at $165, was stolen from Lot 59.
- A $206 black bicycle was stolen from the bike racks on the southwest side of Ocotillo Hall, where it was secured with a U-type lock through the wheel and frame.
- A mountain bicycle, valued at $210, was stolen from the bike racks on the east side of the Physical Science Building, where it was secured with a chain lock.
- A $250 gray Schwinn bicycle was stolen from the bike racks at the rear of 601 Alpha Drive, where it was secured to itself with a U-type lock.

Tempe police reported the following incidents Monday:

- Police arrested an 18-year-old ASU student Saturday and charged him with disorderly conduct after he allegedly refused to leave Sport Rock Cafe, 1320 E. Broadway Road, and started hitting vehicles in the parking lot and fighting with his girlfriend.
- In connection with the incident, the student's 18-year-old girlfriend, who also attends ASU, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct after she allegedly tried to intervene when her boyfriend allegedly hit vehicles in the parking lot. Police said she swung at bar employees and kicked them in the groin.
- Police arrested a 19-year-old ASU student Saturday at Flakey Jake's, 715 S. Rural Road, and charged her with being a minor in possession of alcohol after an officer saw her allegedly sitting at a table with a glass of beer in front of her. She was booked, cited and released.

•Police arrested a 20-year-old ASU student Saturday at 1111 E. University Drive and charged him with being a minor in possession of alcohol, unsworn falsification and for giving false information to police.

•An ASU student, 21, was arrested Friday and charged with disorderly conduct at Wendy's, 1314 S. Rural Road, after he allegedly fought in the restaurants' parking lot.

CRETE, Neb. (AP) — Residents are divided over whether they want a flock of about 25 turkeys to continue wandering through their town, so the mayor says he'll appease both sides by getting rid of half.

The flock moved into this rural community of about 4,800 people a little more than a year ago. Wildlife experts believe they were released by a breeder.

At first they amused residents as they walked single file across roads and added their gobbling to the barking of neighborhood dogs.

But now, residents say, they've gotten destructive, scratching out lawns and breaking television antennas.

"I thought they were nice to have around until they did damage," said local resident Bob Slama, who said the big birds tore up his lawn recently.

Mayor Harlyn Crisman, who has been flooded with complaints about turkey vandalism, said last week the city would trap about half the turkeys and give them to a breeder in nearby Dorchester.

"We're trying to please everybody," Crisman said. "The turkey-lovers will have a few turkeys and the turkey-haters won't have so many of them tearing up everything."

Wrestlers surpass goal, win Pac-10s

By LORENZO SIERRA Jr.
State Press

If things would have went the way ASU wrestling coach Bobby Douglas thought they would, he would have come home with a second-place trophy from the Pac-10 Championship.

Things did not go the way Douglas had anticipated. Instead, he and the Sun Devils returned from Palo Alto, Calif., this weekend with their seventh consecutive conference title.

"We wrestled with a lot of courage and a lot of pride," said Douglas. "I was really proud of the way we wrestled in the conference."

For ASU, the road to Palo Alto took several detours through the injury ward. Virtually every wrestler who competed in the conference championship for the Sun Devils was bruised or battered in one way or another.

"This year due to injuries, we had to realistically look at the possibility of not being able to compete for the conference championship," Douglas said. "With this success at the conference level, it should be a motivating factor for our preparation for the nationals."

And the NCAA Championship is next on the Sun Devil list. ASU will compete with the nation's best programs in three weeks at Iowa.

This time, if things go the way Douglas anticipates, the team will meet with positive results.

"Historically, every time we win the Pac-10 we've done well in the nationals," Douglas said. "If history is true, then we should do well."

Last year, the Sun Devils did well by winning second place in the national tournament.

If this year's Sun Devils are to be successful in Iowa City, all seven qualifiers will have to compete at peak level.

Individually, ASU picked up two conference champions who helped it get by second-place Cal State-Bakersfield's 112-101.5. Despite injuries, sophomores Ray Miller (158) and Marco Sanchez (134) won their first conference titles.

Miller was doubtful in the days before the tournament with a sprained ankle.

"We were really concerned that he might not be able to compete for the national tournament," Douglas said.

Miller knew the situation he was in and went into the conference tournament with one focus.

"My intentions were to do the best I could," Miller said. "I now have three weeks to recover and get into top form."

For the national tournament, Miller said he can do well if he mends himself.

"If I'm in top form and wrestle the way I can, I have high hopes," Miller said.

Sanchez was also hampered with an injury on his way to a Pac-10 title. Sanchez has been suffering with rib problems all week and wrestled in pain during the conference tournament.

"Marco wrestled with tremendous pain,"

Douglas said.

ASU had several other wrestlers who placed in the top three in the tournament.

Rex Holman (190), who won his division last year, took second place. Holman had not practiced all week due to the flu.

At 167, G. T. Taylor came within one point of winning the title, but settled for second place.

At 126, Shawn Charles won third place and an automatic bid to the national tournament by defeating Harold Zinkin of Fresno State 3-2. According to Douglas, Charles' weight class was the toughest in the conference.

Andy McNaughton (142) was ASU's other third-place finisher and has been slowed by injuries this season like all his other teammates.

Rob Holland (177) beat Eric Schwartz 4-2 for fifth place.

As for the key to national success, Douglas points to one factor — health.

"We have to get healthy to have a legitimate shot," Douglas said.

Sun Devils return to Packard, host pair against Rice

By DAN ZEIGER
State Press

ASU baseball fans finding it difficult to cope during their team's five-game losing streak should take heart from a little bit of history.

In three of the last four seasons, the Sun Devils struggled out of the gate but still advanced to the NCAA tournament, including College World Series appearances in 1987 and 1988 when they began with 1-5 and 2-7 conference marks, respectively.

ASU (10-9 overall, 0-3 Six-Pac) hopes to get a start on continuing the tradition when it hosts Rice for a two-game series beginning today at 2:30 at Packard Stadium.

The Sun Devils have also maintained the faith of the staff of Baseball America magazine, who only dropped ASU six spots to ninth in its top-25 poll after its three-game sweep at the hands of Stanford this weekend.

"We obviously didn't play well," Sun Devil coach Jim Brock said. "I think we did better offensively, but we struggled with our pitching. (Stanford) is a very tough place to play when you're going well and an impossible place to play when you're not. But we certainly had a chance to win the last ball game."

ASU's lost weekend in Palo Alto came to a horrifying end Sunday when it failed to hold on to an early 8-1 lead as the team's bats suddenly went cold over the last six innings.

Sun Devil pitchers also walked 14 batters in helping Stanford come back for a 9-8 victory to complete the sweep and add more uncertainty for the troubled ASU staff. The Sun Devils are last in the Six-Pac in team ERA (6.51), walks (121) and home runs allowed (21).

"There is no way our pitching staff can have success at all unless they start throwing a higher percentage of strikes," Brock said. "No matter how well you play defense or work your offense, you can't have a shot when you put up to 15 batters on base from walks. It puts too much pressure on the offense."

Brock's concerns have been founded as each of the ASU hurlers are having their individual problems at the same time. Sean Rees is hoping to regain the curveball that helped make him an All-American last season and Gary Tatterson is continuing to have control problems with his fastball.

Both will have another opportunity to regain their forms this week as Rees (1-1, 7.79 ERA) is scheduled to start today with Tatterson (2-2, 3.35 ERA) getting the call Wednesday. Brock said he was hopeful the two could regain confidence during the break from league play.

ASU's Todd Steverson is called out during last year's series against Rice in which the Sun Devils won two of three. Steverson was reinstated Monday after being sent home early from this weekend's Stanford series for violating a team rule.

"We don't have anyone pitching consistently well right now," Brock said. "We're just hoping that a couple of guys can get going and the momentum from that will get a couple of others going as well. But unfortunately, we're at a severe negative momentum now."

ASU will also feature changes in its lineup for the pair of games against Rice, which is 7-10 after taking one of three games from Cal State-Fullerton this weekend.

Brock said that he had reinstated outfielder Todd Steverson after a meeting with the sophomore Monday morning. Steverson missed the last two games of the Stanford series after being sent home by Brock for violating a team rule.

Steverson will play right field today while Jim Austin (.363, two HR, 11 RBI) stays at third base after a solid defensive effort this weekend.

"We thought Austin played very well at third last weekend," Brock said. "He made some fine plays. We hope it can be permanent because we think it's in his best interests in regard to his career to be there. We tried to do it last year, but he wasn't an established player yet."

The Sun Devils will start freshman Bill Dunn (.231, two HR, eight RBI) at second base ahead of struggling Mike Scialo. Dunn was 3-for-8 with two homers and four RBI in two games against Stanford.

Best of ASU track boasts solid individual performances

By MARTY MURPHY
State Press

The Sun Devil track team was separated across the nation this weekend to qualify more athletes and compete in a host of indoor track meets in preparation for the NCAA Indoor Championship in two weeks.

At the Alex Wilson Invitational in South Bend, Ind., ASU junior All-American Todd Lewis ran a provisional qualifying mark of 8.05.88 in the 3,000 meters and Sharette Garcia ran a 4.55 in the women's mile. Garcia's mark was not quite quick enough to qualify her for nationals.

While Lewis and Garcia were at Notre Dame, junior Thomas Koech and senior Ed Lovelace were in Reno, Nev., hoping to improve on their times. Koech ran an automatic qualifying mark in the 400 meters of 46.98 and Lovelace ran a provisional mark of 21.53 in the 200 meters.

Senior Robert Rucker and freshman Michael Sulcer were in the open 400 meters Saturday at the NAU Holiday Inn-Invitational. Rucker ran a 47.49 and Sulcer a 47.55. Both had posted faster times this season.

Also in Flagstaff, freshman Shanequa Campbell finished first and ran a provisional mark of 24.28 in the 200 meters in doing so. Nick Hysong, a freshman, pole vaulted 17-feet-6½ for a provisional mark too.

The women were trying to qualify a second 4x400 meter relay team for the NCAAs, but were restricted in doing so because of an injury to senior Toinette Holmes.

"Toinette's hamstring was bothering her," Coach Tom Jones said. "We've got to have her ready for nationals, so we didn't want to take a chance of getting her hurt real bad."

In the 800 meters, junior Eric Walbot finished second with a 153.78 while junior Jeff Sorkness was third with a 153.81.

Freshman Lenny McGill had a triple jump of 50-feet-10, missing a provisional mark by two centimeters.

Freshman Shelly Choppa high jumped 5-feet-8, but could not clear the 6-foot pinnacle.

"She took one jump at 5-8 just to get one jump in," Jones said. "Then she passed at 5-10 and took three attempts at 6-0. She has really bad shin splints so we are trying to save her legs for a big jump at 6-0."

Jones added that Choppa almost got her goal of 6 feet.

"She was over with it, but just hit it with her hand," Jones said.

Lemon paces ASU; golfers finish 3rd

By AMY SLADE
State Press

The weather in Hawaii for the John Burns Intercollegiate Golf Tournament was inconsistent, but the scores of the top-ranked Sun Devil men's team were the opposite.

"We played three consistent rounds even though the conditions weren't great," ASU assistant coach Tom Brill said about the Sun Devils scores (292, 290 and 291) over the weekend that earned them third place.

A combination of rain and wind marred the tournament's first two days, but the greens stayed soft and the playing conditions were perfect for Friday's final round.

The Sun Devils entered the last session tied with USC for the team lead, but posted four bogeys late in the round to finish three strokes behind UNLV.

The No. 6 Rebels posted an even-par score of 288 on the final round after a shaky start of seven-over-par in the first round to capture the team title with a score of 870.

The No. 7 Trojans finished two strokes off the pace to wind up in second.

Individually, senior All-American Jim Lemon was the top golfer for ASU, finishing in a tie for fifth place at one-over 217.

"We are happy to see that he's back on track after the tough fall that he had," Brill said. "We need his leadership. He's a key to our squad."

The Sun Devils were again without the services of two-time defending NCAA champion Phil Mickelson, who made the cut in Miami this weekend at the PGA Doral Open. However, Brill said it has gotten to the point where Mickelson's name is not even mentioned.

"I'm happy with him (Mickelson) and his performance," Brill said. "It's a tough call and it's not really fair to say if we could have won with him."

"Once he gets past the Doral, we'll be seeing a lot more of him."

Brill added that Mickelson showed his concern for the team and checked in every day with Coach Steve Loy.

UC-Santa Barbara's Dereck Gilchrist had a third-round score of two-over 74, but held on to win medalist honors by one stroke over Bob May of Oklahoma State. Gilchrist recorded a 54-hole score of three-under 213.

Brill said ASU juniors Brett Dean and Scott Sullivan, who finished 11th and 14th respectively, have been the "studs all year."

According to Brill, the Sun Devils could have won the tournament, but the combination of lack of knowledge of the Bermuda greens and not stroking the ball well cost them a first-place finish.

"We tried to perform to our best capabilities," Brill said. "If we keep giving it our best shot, sooner or later we'll pick up a victory."

Sun Devil archers win U.S. West Indoor title

By LORENZO SIERRA Jr.
State Press

The Sun Devil archery squad concluded the indoor portion of its season right on target by winning the 1991 U.S. West Regional Indoor Championships in Tulare, Calif.

ASU won both the women's and men's team title as well as the mixed team title. The men's team scored 3,315 points to outdistance second-place Long Beach State. The women's side scored 3,220 points in its victory. The Sun Devils scored 4,379 in mixed competition.

ASU archers won the top three spots in both the women's and men's divisions.

Junior Janet Schaffer won the women's title and was followed by teammates Susan Doran in second and Heather Collins in third. Both Doran and Collins are freshmen.

In the men's division, sophomore Jamie Loesch took first place. Freshman Tim Huedepohl took second and sophomore Chad Connor won third.

Even with all the success the team has had in the indoor part of the season, the Sun Devils look to the outdoor half to pull away from the rest of the country.

"It was a long indoor season for them and they're ready to get outdoors," ASU coach Sheri Rhodes said. "We have such nice weather and it's nice to be outside."

One archer who would rather be competing under the Arizona sun is defending national champion Connor.

"Chad's definitely one of those who prefers outdoors to indoors," Rhodes said.

According to Rhodes, Connors biggest threat to his title could be one of his teammates.

"Maybe he'll get a little more competition from team members this year," said Rhodes. "If he was going to look for competition, he would find most of it here."

Connor, however, is not the team's only defending national champ. Schaffer also won the title last year.

Suns put sting on Hornets, 128-108

PHOENIX (AP) — Tom Chambers scored 30 points and helped spark a decisive third-quarter rally as Phoenix beat the Charlotte Hornets 128-108 Monday night for the Suns' 13th consecutive home victory.

Kevin Johnson finished with 23 points and 14 assists for the Suns while Dan Majerle had 20 points, Jeff Hornacek 16 and Xavier McDaniel 15.

Phoenix has a 21-4 home record this season and hasn't lost here since Dec. 21 — a 130-128 overtime defeat to San Antonio.

Rookie Kendall Gill scored a season-high 28 points and J. R. Reid had 24 for the Hornets, who lost their ninth straight road game.

Charlotte, trailing 70-57 at halftime, used seven points from Gill to close to 81-76 with 7:36 left in the third quarter.

McDaniel had six points and Chambers four in a 12-0 run for a 93-76 lead with 4:25 left.

Phoenix closed out the period with a 12-7 spurt capped by Chambers' stuff with two seconds left to make it 105-83.

The Hornets never got within 15 points in the fourth period.

Charlotte, which is 1-6 in the all-time series against the Suns, led 33-32 after the first period on Kenny Gattison's two free throws with 0.2 seconds remaining.

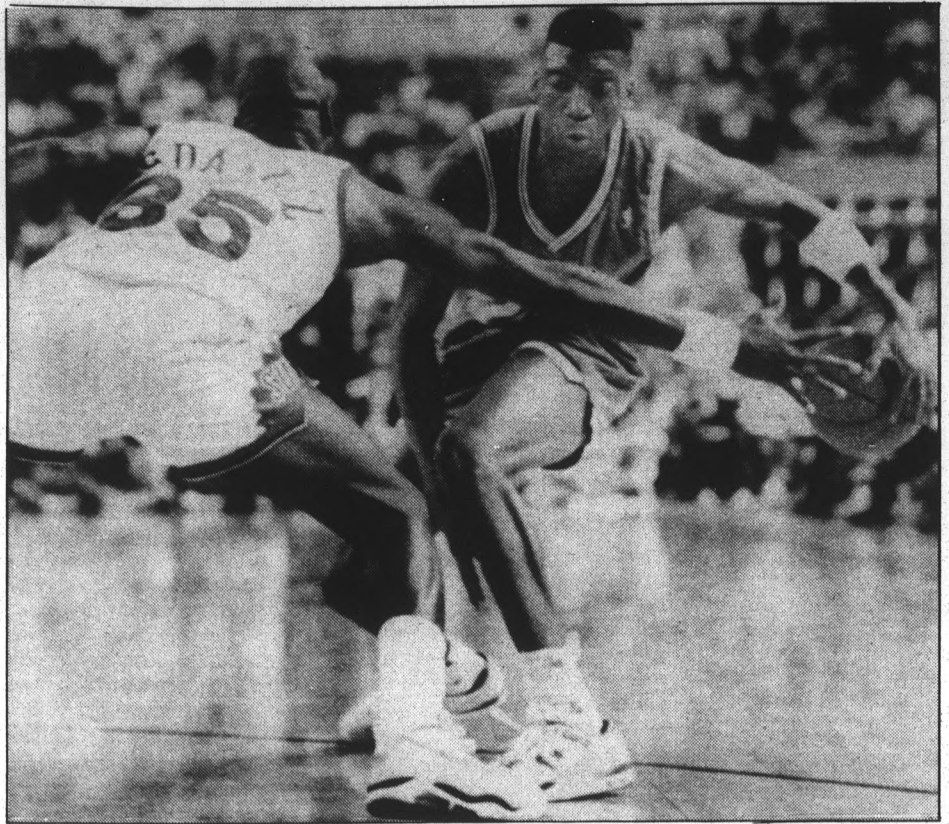

Johnson had a jumper and a layin in a 6-0 run to start the second quarter to put Phoenix ahead to stay.

Majerle had 10 points in the period, Chambers nine and Hornacek's 3-point goal with 0.9 seconds left capped a 10-0 spurt to close out the half for the 13-point lead.

Chambers had 19 points at halftime.

The Suns shot 55 percent from the field on the night, hitting 51 of 86 attempts, while they connected on five of six 3-point attempts with Hornacek and Majerle each making two.

Dell Curry was the only other Hornet in double figures outside Gill and Reid as he netted 17 points.

Phoenix Sun forward Xavier McDaniel extends himself completely against Charlotte's Johnny Newman at the Coliseum Monday night.
