ASU expected to be served $19 million suit

Ex-health chief says athlete medical rights neglected

By GARIN GROFF
STATE PRESS

The attorney for ASU's former director of student health is expected to serve a $19 million lawsuit against the University this week, alleging the health chief was forced to resign because she drew attention to what she called a dangerous student athlete medical policy.

VOLLEN

Dr. Lorrie Vollen, represented by Phoenix attorney Kimball Corson, stated in her suit that ASU Athletic Director Charles Harris put student athletes in danger when he revamped the policy for the health care of student athletes in August 1992.

In a complaint filed in conjunction with the suit, Vollen stated that the new policy gave athletic department trainers — rather than physicians working for ASU student health — control over medical treatment for student athletes. The suit was filed in Maricopa County Superior Court on March 9.

Harris said he could not comment on the suit because University policy requires legal counsel to discuss all matters in litigation.

ASU administrators did nothing to stop Harris when Vollen complained, according to the complaint.

"Instead, she was told that, under no circumstances, should she interfere with or oppose the wishes and desires of Charles Harris," the complaint states.

Harris or his staff, with University approval and protection, engaged in the unlicensed practice of medicine on behalf of its own agenda, the suit says.

"Quality health care became an incidental concern of that agenda, which too often entailed neglect or affirmative abuse of student-athletes' medical rights," the complaint states.

The suit also states that Harris gave preferential treatment to athletes in money-making sports, violated NCAA rules and broke state law and University policies. Paul Ward, ASU general counsel, said he could not comment on the suit because neither the Arizona Board of Regents nor the University have received the complaint from Vollen's attorney. The University, however, has hired Phoenix lawyer Ronald Lebowitz as outside council in anticipation of hey hide in parking lots and on side streets, sometimes in groups and sometimes alone. They are a drunk driver's worst nightmare, and on St. Patrick's Day they were out in full force.

They are the Tempe Police Department's motor unit.

On Thursday, the motor unit formed a 10-man task force with the ASU police department in an effort to crack down on drunk drivers.

"Our concern is getting impaired drivers off the roadway," said Lieutenant Ralph Tranter, the head of the Tempe Police Department's Traffic Division. "Forty-seven percent of accidents last year involved alcohol."

The motor unit is made of solo motor officers — motorcycle cops — who work with the DUI van. The van could best be described as a mobile police station dedicated to processing DUI arrests.

People arrested for DUI are taken to the van where they are booked, cited and released in a quarter of the time it takes to perform the same tasks at the police station.

The van is operated by volunteer Kevin Wolfe, a 31-year-old airplane mechanic who drives the van Friday and Saturday nights.

Wolfe's job is to stay with the van and assist officers with their paperwork as they process an arrest. On a busy night he will park the van in a central location and officers will bring the suspects to him. On slow nights, he drives the van to the officer where they complete the arrest.

"Our job is to do things that don't require a certified officer. It cuts down their response times," Wolfe said. "It frees up the police officer. They can go to calls that they need to."

Wolfe isn't an officer and he does not carry a weapon but officers treat him like an equal.

"We couldn't be as successful as we are without Kevin," Tranter said. "I'm just amazed by his commitment and dedication."

The van provides a convenience way for suspects to be picked up by friends and family, instead of waiting at the police station.

ASU East step closer after committee passes bill 7-0

By SHAWN BOYD
STATE PRESS

Expansion of ASU through a campus in the East Valley came one step closer to reality when the Arizona Senate's Education Committee passed a bill authorizing a new ASU branch location Monday.

The committee, chaired by Republican Sen. Bev Hermon of Tempe, voted 7-0 to support the bill, with two absent for the vote.

Sen. Stan Furman, D-Phoenix, enthusiastically supported the bill, comparing the benefits of an East Valley campus at the now-closed Williams Air Force Base with ASU West.

"I'm excited about this bill," Furman said. "ASU West is in my district and I cut my political teeth getting it out there."

The West and Northwest Valley has received a boon from that campus, established about a decade ago, he said.

Sen. John Huppenthal, R-Chandler, said the site at the former air force base benefits an ASU campus.

"I had an opportunity to visit the site this weekend at the air races, and I can't imagine a better academic setting," Huppenthal said.

The bill considered by the Senate committee Monday was a stripped-down version of the original bill introduced into the Arizona House of Representatives early in the session.

Originally the bill included an appropriation of $2.157 million to begin operations at the branch campus if the Air Force decides to hand over 600 acres of the base as requested by ASU.

Subsequent amendments to the bill, totaling more than $5 million, jeopardized the legislation, which is supported by heavyweights such as House Speaker Mark Killian.

The bill, skinned of all appropriations, passed the House 56-2.

For the first time, the Arizona Students' Association spoke out on the bill Monday.

Pat McWhortor, executive director of the organization, said the university students of 1994 are endorsing the bill.

"We know the enrollment growth we're looking at for the

TODAY

The Today section is a daily calendar of events printed as a service to the ASU community. Requests are printed according to the space available each day.

Campus clubs and organizations may submit written entries to the State Press in the basement of Matthews Center, Room 15. Requests will not be taken over the phone. Entries must contain the full name of the group, a description of the event, date, time and the full address of the location. All requests are subject to editing for content, space and clarity.

Deadline for entries is noon the day before publication.

- Alcoholics Anonymous — Closed daily meeting, noon, basement of the old church at the Newman Center, northwest corner of College and University.
- KASR Radio — Free concert: Wise Monkey Orchestra, 2-5 p.m., Student Recreation Center lawn.
- Arizona Outing Club — Weekly meeting, 7:30 p.m., MU Pima Room 218, second floor.
- Fellowship of Christian Athletes — Open weekly meeting, 7:30 p.m., UAC 35.
- Eckankar Society — Workshop: "Male and Female Aspects in Dreams," question and answer session, 7 p.m., MU Hohokam Room 208B.
- ASU Art Museum — Free performance by HIV Education Through Performance (affiliated with the ASU HIV Studies Network), 1:30 p.m., ASU Art Museum, Matthews Center second floor.

the lawsuit. Vollen has 10 boxes of documentary evidence in the case, including correspondence, records of meetings, University policy documents, police arrest records and notes of telephone and face-to-face conversations.

"It's going to be very difficult for somebody to persuasively lie at any length in regard to these materials simply because there is too much paper," Corson said.

Corson said the suit will be served to ASU pending a judge's approval or rejection of an order that would prohibit the University from destroying records related to the complaint. Corson said he fears the University will destroy evidence because he thinks the University may have destroyed information missing from a computer. He said he expects the University will fight the suit, which could last two to four years.

According to the complaint, Vollen protested the policy instituted by Harris on numerous occasions. On one occasion, at an Aug. 24, 1992, meeting attended by Vollen, Harris and Christine Wilkinson, vice president of student affairs, Vollen told the others that the policy placed student athletes at risk.

"In reply, Wilkinson explained that Vollen had 'to make Charles happy — it is his department,'" according to Vollen.

At another meeting on Feb. 26, 1993, with Wilkinson and Provost Milton Glick, Vollen issued a "whistle blowing report," the complaint stated.

The University retaliated against Vollen on March 9, 1993, the complaint stated, when Wilkinson gave Vollen a letter stating that she would be removed from her position unless she resigned.

Wilkinson said she would not comment because the matter is pending litigation.

ASU President Lattie Coor ordered an investigation after he heard Vollen's accusations in a March 1993 meeting.

"There were no violations and the University and all parties functioned in an appropriate manner," Coor said.

Vollen's departure was not related to "whistle blowing," Coor said.

Corson said the University's attempts to investigate Vollen's allegations were for show, not serious attempts to find the truth.

The suit states that Vollen and team physician Steve Zonner opposed Harris' policies and were dismissed "to protect the interests and agenda of the athletic department, but at the expense of student athletes."

According to records obtained from the University by Vollen, Harris tried to intervene with Vollen's authority as student health director on June 24, 1992, when he wrote a memo attempting to place Zonner, an employee of student health, on administrative probation. Harris did not give the reprimand, Vollen stated, because ASU legal counsel intervened.

But Harris did succeed in giving Zonner a critical written evaluation that month, in which he called Zonner well intentioned but aggressive.

"He makes decisions that transcend his authority and responsibility, therefore creating substantial strain on the system," Harris' evaluation states.

Vollen's 90-page complaint stated that the treatment she received from ASU injured her emotionally and caused her to require treatment by psychologists. Vollen accused the University of fraud in the inducement, wrongful termination, defamation, destructive discharge, breach of covenant of good faith and intentional infliction of emotional distress.

Earlier reports erroneously placed the lawsuit at $53 million, but Corson said the total value is $19 million: $3 million in compensatory damages, $15 million in punitive damages and $1 million in compensatory damages against the ABOR for collateral negligence.

The suit states the ABOR is negligent because it did not investigate Vollen's dismissal and the allegations of wrongdoing by Harris and Wilkinson.

next 15 years requires more seats in more classrooms and more professors," he said.

McWhorter said it is necessary to maintain "access to the universities for all qualified students."

Doing so requires looking at the future with expansion such as ASU East, he said.

Allan Price, associate vice president of University relations, said the bill must next go through the Senate Appropriations Committee, despite a lack of appropriations in the language.

Price said there may be two explanations for the bill's next stopping point.

- Because the bill went through the House Appropriations Committee, or;

- Because ASU East will involve money appropriated from the state in the future.

THE BUCK STARTS HERE.

It takes bucks, and plenty of them, to provide a first-rate education at ASU.

Some of those bucks come from students' fees, and some come from the state. But more and more it's private contributions that make the difference between "good enough" and great.

At ASU, "good enough" isn't.

That's where we come in.

We're the ASU Telefund.

We call alumni, parents, and friends, and ask them to help make ASU a great university.

And a lot of them say "yes". Thousands every year. We think even more would say "yes" if you asked.

So, for a great part-time job and the chance to make a real difference today and tomorrow why not give us a call?

Fort Huachuca soldier accused of murdering sergeant's wife

SIERRA VISTA, Ariz. (AP) — The Army has accused a Fort Huachuca private of killing a sergeant's wife, but he says she committed suicide, officials said Monday.

Pvt. Miles F. Edwards, 21, of Philadelphia, was being held in the shooting death Thursday of Terri Richard, 28, of Petersburg, Va., wife of Sgt. Earl W. Richard, 29, said post spokesman Tim Ellis.

Edwards, a student with the 309th Military Intelligence Battalion of the 11th Military Intelligence Brigade, also is accused of a post weapons violation in the shooting for having a gun in his room, Ellis said.

Edwards was being held Monday on murder and the weapons charges in the Cochise County Jail in Bisbee while the Army's Criminal Investigation Division continues its probe, Ellis said.

The shooting occurred about 1:30 a.m. Thursday when soldiers in a barracks reported hearing a loud noise, post officials said.

Edwards walked out of his third-floor room about 15 minutes later "in blood-covered civilian clothing saying 'she shot herself,'" said post spokeswoman Sharon Murphy.

Children of aging drivers try to revoke parents' licenses

PHOENIX (AP) — Children of aging drivers are moving to get their parents off the road.

Michelle Kolbe, head of the medical review program of the Arizona Motor Vehicle Division, says an increasing number of children are asking the state to revoke their parents' drivers licenses.

"We get calls every day," Kolbe said.

There aren't statistics on such calls, but Kolbe says they have been increasing steadily since she took over the department two years ago.

Arizona drivers under 60 have their licenses renewed every 12 years, including a required vision test. Drivers 60 and older must renew every five years.

Kolbe says most the calls are similar, with children saying they didn't think their parents should be driving.

Kolbe tells them to try and talk their parents into voluntarily surrendering their licenses, but they can write to the medical review office. Also, police officers can write to the state if they notice erratic driving.

"It's tough and you kind of wrestle with it when you find one on the edge," says Apache Junction police Officer Dick Vigil. "We don't want to see these old folks hurt, but it is the last bit of freedom these people enjoy."

President Clinton listens to a group of senior citizen volunteers on his arrival Monday in Deerfield Beach, Fla., where he conducted a Health Care Forum at the senior citizens' clubhouse.

Clinton begins health care blitz

Week of events opens in Florida

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Opening a weeklong health care reform blitz, President Clinton urged a friendly audience of retirees Monday to help his plan overcome stiff opposition by insurers and the "extreme right of the Republican Party."

"Make no mistake about it, the guardians of gridlock, the people who liked our national politics when it was about distraction, division and destruction are doing everything they can to stop health care reform," Clinton told a crowd of 9,000 at the Century Village retirement community. "If you will help me, it will be good for your health because we won't let them."

After a leisurely Sunday on an exclusive island off Miami, Clinton began the week looking to build more support for his plan among the elderly, a potent lobbying force on health care issues, and won the endorsement of the National Council of Senior Citizens for his efforts.

Repeatedly pounding the lectern, Clinton said his plan would reap savings from Medicare and Medicaid without cutting services, expand prescription drug coverages for the elderly and begin to offer more in-home care for senior citizens who now must enter nursing homes.

Clinton's speech broke no new policy ground. Instead, it was another effort by the White House to advance the health care debate, this one timed to get public attention as Congress prepares to head home for Easter recess.

After courting seniors Monday, Clinton is focusing on small businesses Tuesday, and then talking to health care providers on Wednesday.

To echo the president's message — and counter the well-financed opposition — the Democratic National Committee is planning a series of television ads touting Clinton's plan, and a crew filmed the Florida event.

Somali factions to announce agreement

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — After a week of meetings and several postponements, Somalia's factions are expected to announce an agreement Tuesday for a cease-fire and for choosing the next leaders of the lawless, war-torn country.

U.N. spokesman George Bennett said Monday that he was relatively confident the agreement would be announced by Somalia's principal warlords, Ali Mahdi Mohammed and Gen. Mohamed Farrah Aidid, and the leaders of 13 other factions.

An expected announcement has been postponed three times since Sunday.

The faction leaders have been meeting in Nairobi for a week with funding from the United Nations Operation in Somalia. Bennett said that if the faction leaders failed to reach agreement as promised Tuesday, "I don't think the U.N. is going to fund their stay for any longer in Nairobi."

Aidid and Ali Mahdi are the main figures trying to take control of Somalia. The United Nations also brokered a cease-fire in March 1992 after fighting between the two forces had destroyed three-quarters of the capital, Mogadishu, and killed up to 30,000 people.

The international community has feared that the country will revert to chaos after most Western forces withdraw from Somalia in the coming days. Aidid and Ali Mahdi previously have announced separate plans to set up a transitional government after foreign troops leave.

The United Nations last May took over the peacekeeping mission that began

December 1992 when U.S.-led multinational force arrived to stop the looting of relief food meant for hundreds of thousands of Somalis left to starve by the war and a drought.

But the humanitarian mission turned into a small war last June when Somali militiamen began killing peacekeepers they said were interfering in their country.

After 18 American soldiers died and 83 were wounded in an Oct. 3-4 battle with militiamen in Mogadishu, President Clinton ordered the U.S. withdrawal. Thirteen other nations followed.

Italian troops are leaving Mogadishu by ship this week and the Americans will complete their withdrawal on Friday. Germany, France, Belgium and a number of other nations have already pulled out.

South Korean president puts Army on increased alert

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The ground that had been gained in resolving the North Korean nuclear washed away Monday under a wave of threats, canceled talks and revived plans for war games and Patriot missile deployment in South Korea.

North Korea issued a strong warning that it would follow through on its threat last year to pull out of an international nuclear controls treaty. Hours later, South Korean President Kim Young-sam announced that joint military exercises with the United States will be held this year, after all.

The games had been canceled as part of an attempt to coax the isolated, hard-line Communist North into cooperating with inspections to determine if it is building nuclear weapons.

North Korea refused inspectors access to a critical laboratory this month. That prompted the inspectors' boss, the International Atomic Energy Agency, to refer the issue Monday to the United Nations Security Council, which could impose sanctions on North Korea.

Sanctions could make the xenophobic North feel increasingly beleaguered and worsen its already struggling economy.

The United States meanwhile canceled talks with North Korea that were to have opened Monday in Geneva. The talks were sought by the Pyongyang government, but were canceled because North and South Korea failed over the weekend to exchange envoys on the nuclear issues.

Each side accused the other of causing the breakdown in the envoy exchange, which was a key condition for the Geneva talks that North Korea sought. The talks were to cover improving economic and diplomatic relations, as well as the nuclear issue.

After the North-South talks broke down Saturday, Seoul's chief negotiator quoted his North Korean counterpart as saying: "Seoul will turn into a sea of fire."

South Korea lives in chronic fear of attack by its heavily armed arch-enemy. North Korea in turn contends that the presence of 36,000 U.S. troops in the south and their yearly joint exercises are threatening.

"Our security should be perfected to cope with every possible emergency," Kim said during an emergency national security meeting in which he announced the resumption of the "Team Spirit" exercises.

Kim also said Patriot anti-missile batteries will be deployed — a measure that had been postponed in an attempt to appease the North, according to spokesman Choo Don-shik.

Government officials said privately that a total of 38 Patriot batteries are planned to be deployed at U.S. military bases in the country.

The timing of this year's "Team Spirit" exercises will be decided after Kim visits Japan and China this week, the spokesman said. The nuclear problem is expected to be a major topic in talks between Kim and Japanese and Chinese leaders.

Kim noted that such military measures are in order, because the North has failed to honor its part of a deal with the United States, in which it promised to allow full nuclear checks and swap inter-Korea envoys, Choo said.

President Clinton sent a personal letter to Kim confirming Washington's firm security commitment to South Korea, Choo said.

In the letter passed through U.S. Ambassador James Laney, Clinton said Washington would consider any North Korean invasion of South Korea an invasion of the United States, the spokesman said.

In a strongly worded statement Monday, North Korea said it would make good on its year-old threat to withdraw from the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty, the 1968 international accord to check the spread of nuclear weapons technology.

The statement, by an unnamed North Korean Foreign Ministry spokesman, was carried by the North's official Korea Central News Agency and monitored in Tokyo.

After a series of talks with the United States last June, the

Tired of game playing

In a bold move to undercut the farce that has been made of the student regent selection process, ASU West's student government bypassed the Associated Students of ASU's game-playing and over spring break sent its three candidates directly to Gov. Fife Symington for consideration.

The decision to send the candidates without ASASU approval came despite the ASASU Supreme Court's March 10 issuance of a temporary restraining order, which was supposed to have prohibited both ASASU and ASU West from deciding on the candidates until ASASU Sen. Jason Rupp could sort out his thoughts. The order was in response to an injunction filed by Rupp — also a member of ASASU's executive committee — who said he was not given the proper information to decide on student regent selections.

In response, ASU West Student Forum President Valerie Jones said the ASASU Supreme Court has no jurisdiction over ASU West, and the organization then sent the names of Kevin Myer, Shannan Paul and Tom Hubbard to the Governor's office.

Jones and her colleagues have sent a strong message — they want to stay away from the petty politics ASASU has become notorious for playing.

According to ASU West Student Forum Vice President Chris Stallings, the selection was sent over spring break to Symington to allow the governor enough time to review the nominees.

The Supreme Court's restraining order can only serve to harm the selection process. With ASASU's continuing threadbare excuses and overall amateur handling of the entire selection process, Symington could very well disregard everyone and choose his own regent. That could be disastrous for ASASU's reputation as the voice of students, as well as an embarrassment for the student populations of ASU Main and ASU West.

Imagine: Fife is the disgruntled parent who tires of watching two kids bicker over who gets to play in the sandbox, so he lets neither of them play.

Luckily, government leaders at ASU West took matters into their own hands and sidestepped ASASU's newest obstacle to effective government.

So, while the Governor's office awaits a short list from ASASU, ASU West's student government can at least be rest assured that it has come through on its end of the bargain.

ASASU should follow suit. Promptly.

A few alternative definitions to media's "Generation-X" catch-all

The media continues to call college-age Americans "Generation-X" because, in their eyes, we lack identity, have no originality, and appear as misfits in a complicated society.

Who comprises this media? None other than the baby-boomers, those who are in the thirty-something club, or the fast rising "Me Generation" executives.

I tried to look for the origination of the phrase "Generation-X" and I found the source to be rock and roll's Billy Idol. His first band, in the late seventies, was titled "Generation-X."

It's bad enough that this title shows a lack of identity, but why Billy Idol? Is it the parachute pants he used to wear in the eighties? Hopefully, Generation-X is just another way of saying "fill-in-the-blank" because they don't know how to label us, yet. In just 20 years, our generation has seen some of the most rapid changes the world has seen — but I can't compare my life with my grandmother's of 87 years, who has seen all I have plus two world wars and the Great Depression.

My generation has seen: one undeclared war in the Persian Gulf; a gas shortage in the seventies; punk music in the eighties; all three Star Wars movies; Republicans and Democrats in office; computers taking over the world; the end of the Cold War; the Space Age as a daily factor; a near-assassination of President Reagan; the rise of MTV and other cable stations; the death of Elvis and John Lennon; the fall of the USSR and the Berlin Wall; Michael Jordan playing basketball; the movie-video industry boom; and, of course, parachute pants.

The idea that we lack identity must have come from some executive ex-hippie who had his tie dyes, bell bottoms, acid trips, and one cause in the sixties. They may have been successful in putting an end to the Vietnam "conflict" through their demonstrations, but we still don't have world peace. Most of our lives have been lived under a Republican administration and until recently, we have not had the opportunity to witness, first hand, a Democrat president, but that wasn't our fault. Not until we were able to vote did this change.

The one thing that our generation seems to be used to is change, so maybe we should be called the "Innovation Generation," who is always evolving through the introduction of something new. Take video games for example: first, Atari; second, PCs; third, Nintendo; fourth, SEGA; fifth, Super Nintendo; sixth, SEGA CD; seventh...? The only constant in our lives aside from the sun rising every day (and ASU football not going to a bowl game) is the continuous inconstancy, or change, which takes place around us.

SEAN O'NEILL
Columnist

If there is one title that we should not be given, it is the "twentysomething" group. If anyone has a big brother or sister, they can tell you how they hate being compared to him or her, and, with this title, we are all being cast in the shadow of that more famous "thirtysomething" group.

Instead of Generation-X, perhaps we're the "Generation Gap." Our parents and forefathers tried to solve problems, but we have our problems to solve as well. The ozone layer needs to be repaired. Lakes, rivers, and oceans need to be cleaned. Prejudiced attitudes need to be omitted. A new source of energy needs to be found. AIDS must be cured and stopped. And, world peace must still be pursued.

These are everyone's problems, but we seem to be the most aware of these, so why not call us the "Vexation Generation." I've heard professors tell me that I will be the first generation who will have a hard time making more than my parents. When we all graduate, we will have the whole world ahead of us, but they say we will struggle. No kidding! No one said life was easy!

With a little luck, we won't be identified as "Generation Grunge." The sound of the word "grunge" just seems filthy. Not to mention, this was just a trend that has already passed us by.

The other day, a friend of mine said something pretty interesting: "The thing about our generation is that we have to be artificially stimulated somehow. By either something simple, like a Coke, or by something as extreme as a trip down Acid Road." What was she saying? Should we be called the "Artificial Stimulation Generation?"

If there is one thing that can sum up our generation, it has to be a scene in the movie "Reality Bites." Winona Ryder remarks, "I don't understand why things can't go back to normal at the end of the half-hour, like 'The Brady Bunch.'"

Then, Ethan Hawke's character replies, "Because, Mr. Brady died of AIDS."

Wow. Lucky I'm in college, because it sounds like reality really does bite out there.

See ya, L.A. — Phoenix to be new West Coast hotspot

Instead of waking up in a pool of vomit on a sandy beach for Spring Break, I found myself in the town I had vowed never to return to — Los Angeles.

After seeing the damage and actually experiencing the recent 5.3 magnitude earthquake, I know now that L.A. is going down, and we here in Phoenix are going to get the worst brunt of the blow. Whether because of the mundane flight of Angelenos to Southwestern towns like Phoenix or the prophetic spectacle of L.A. sliding into the ocean, the L.A. metro area is declining.

And yes folks, Phoenix is in the process of becoming the next town to have a permanent dust cloud over it for all the people flying into Sky Harbor.

Phoenix is already beginning to enjoy the crowds with the desires for the baseball team, the upcoming Super Bowl and the "welcome snowbirds" banner flying over the city limits sign. The Planet Hollywood that is opening soon is not any help either.

Can't you all see it? Mill Avenue will become the next Sunset Boulevard. I think someone is writing a musical about it already. ASU will probably get an extended acting and movie-making program (it's already got the California students fleeing the decline and fall of the UC school system).

Hollywood Boulevard will be reborn on Van Buren. Every night the Hare Krishnas will come out in front of the Budget Inn, banging their tambourines and trying to get all the hookers to join them. Oh, yes, it will be a spectacle. They've already got the atmosphere there that Hollywood has now, so this process won't be too hard.

Tucson will be the next San Diego. I'd say to plan for the evacuation of Sun City residents to move down there.

Flagstaff has definitely got San Francisco written all over it. The mountains will lose that natural look and get townhouses built all over them. A monumental trolley will be mounted in the middle of the city for those to remember. I'm not exactly sure how the gay community is going to get there, but it's going to happen. And, of course, the Golden Gate Bridge can be transported to Lake Havasu and reassembled next to London Bridge.

With the evolution of Mill Avenue to Sunset, Tempe will fluctuate in apartment building and sales. Soon enough, they'll become all run down and every potential bar owner will try to rebuild them and open them up as underground bars. The Mann's Chinese Theater will become the Mann's Coffee Plantation. Stores will be stocking up on Arizona Stars that people can put stickers with their names on them. A new generation of stars, starting with the Gin Blossoms star, will be born on the corner of University and Mill. Oh, yes, and University will be changed to Macauley Culkin Avenue. With the rebuilding of Rural Road into Tempe's new Melrose Avenue, we can perhaps expect Rural Place 85281.

This will cause more of the immigrants to flock to Glendale, which will become more like Van Nuys, while Glendale, California, will easily be replaced with Scottsdale.

The Hollywood Hills will start reforming on South Mountain. The first built will be Charles Barkley's, of course. Former ASU graduates will be found on the street selling maps to the homes of the stars (at least it would be work).

The Suns won't have any trouble making their own fame, since they already have it, but don't be surprised if Jack Nicholson and Diahann Cannon start showing up at games and posing for the cameras. That baseball team that has been the talk of the town? It's most definitely getting up there, along with a couple more forming in Tucson and Flagstaff. As far as the Phoenix, oops, sorry, Arizona Cardinals go, they will be getting the most menacing reputation for being the nastiest team in the NFL. Sounds familiar, huh? Soon national gangs will sport "Buddy Ball" hats. Professional hockey will finally get to Arizona. The Mighty Ducks will ship to Tucson while the Tempe will get the Kings ala Wayne Gretzky. How about them Prescott Sharks?

Metrocenter will be getting more makeovers to appeal to the public. The Galleria will be extremely successful, once it reopens. After all, the rich buy rich. Fountain Hills will easily adapt to being Beverly Hills, home to the lucky and the bratty. Rodeo Drive will get a new home on Shea.

Frederick's of Buckeye will be famed for having the best scantily clad mannequins around.

Guns and Roses, Motley Crue, and all the rest of the bands will settle into the new rock community of Mesa. Expect the new capital for rock and roll records to pop up along Dobson Road.

Instead of the winter visitors coming in once a year, we'll be getting starry-eyed fans hoping to come to Phoenix and get a break with a new movie being filmed at Old Tucson Studios or the new MGM ones being taped at ASU.

The new theme park will be known as Sunnyslopendland! With the good-byes to Disney, the town of Sunny Slope will finally have something to brag about. This will soon be a failure to top that of EuroDisney.

The Salt River will get a brand new image. Tiny little ratty stores that sell incense and used clothes will sprout all down the river to assimilate the look of Venice Beach. Muscle Beach will be found on the rocky beach, too. A sidewalk will be built just to accommodate the rollerblading of the guy who insists you give him a dollar to make him leave you alone.

And, finally, the Arizona State Sun Devils and the University of Arizona Wildcats will have a rivalry similar to the one of USC and UCLA that will have the fans foaming at the mouth just to see the games.

Nah. That last one is just too far from reality.

ASU out-of-state students ostracized by "native sons"

I want to comment on the offensive cartoon which you ran in the March 8, 1994, edition of the State Press regarding out-of-state students who want residency privileges "to party."

While this stereotype may fit the situation of some out-of-state students, it is unfair to label all such students this way. I, for one, did not come to ASU to party and I know a lot of other people who came here for academic reasons. For example, graduate students — who are mostly from out-of-state — are usually too busy juggling the responsibilities of schoolwork and employment (and often spouses and families) to worry about pool parties and getting a tan.

The cartoon is also annoying in that it implies that students from Arizona wouldn't think of wasting their in-state privileges on partying. Like out-of-staters, there are probably some who do and many who don't.

I am particularly offended by the suggestion that we out-of-state students are a waste of valuable tax dollars. Who knows? Perhaps a few of us might eventually want to stay here permanently and become Arizona taxpayers, too. Surely the funding of out-of-state scholarships is less of a drain on Arizona's financial resources than a baseball stadium, which many do not even want.

This intolerable and unthinking attitude would be bad enough if this were a state like Massachusetts or Virginia, where there are many families who have resided in the state for generations. But for Arizonans to talk this way is outright hypocrisy! How is it that out-of-state students with scholarships are seen as freeloading off taxpayers' money while "Arizonans" whose families may have moved here just a few years ago are seen as native sons who apparently have a right to be allowed into a state college?

Except for Native Americans, we are all newcomers here. I am reminded of the intolerant nativism of the 19th century when WASPs complained about the influx of immigrants from Ireland, Italy and Eastern Europe while forgetting that they themselves were the descendants of immigrants. In a state of immigrants, holding malicious stereotypes of outsiders is downright un-Arizonan.

ASU West ignores ASASU injunction

Sends own nominees for Symington's approval

BY GREG ZEMEIDA
STATE PRESS

The ASU West Student Forum sent three candidates for student regent to Governor Symington for consideration during Spring Break, cutting the Associated Students of ASU out of the final decision.

ASASU members did not attend a meeting with the ASU West Student Forum to decide on March 10 the final three candidates because of a temporary restraining order issued by the ASASU Supreme Court.

The order prohibited "any and all activities" involving the student regent selection process by members of ASASU until this Wednesday.

It also included the ASU West student government, but ASU West Student Forum President Valerie Jones said the ASASU Supreme Court has no jurisdiction over ASU West.

The three candidates are Shannan Paul, a sophomore justice studies major, Kevin Myer, a junior philosophy major, and Tom Hubbard, a junior accounting major.

Chris Stallings, vice president of the ASU West Student Forum, said the three candidates were sent to the Gov. Fife Symington during Spring Break to ensure he has enough time to adequately review the nominees.

"In our opinion, (the ASASU) Supreme Court took (ASASU) out of the decision-making process," Stallings said. "In order to keep with the process and the timelines involved, we thought it was prudent to get this in as quickly as possible."

ASASU members are not permitted to comment on ASU West's action because of the ASASU Supreme Court restraining order.

ASASU Activities Vice President Chad Wolett did say before spring break that a joint decision by both schools is required to officially select any student regent candidates.

The governor may approve one of the three candidates for student regent sent to him or he may pick someone of his own choosing.

2 ASU students win Truman Scholarship

BY MIKA AKIKUNI
STATE PRESS

Two ASU students won the prestigious Truman Scholarship last week.

The winners, zoology major Mike Drescher and urban planning and environmental design major Nashua Kalil, both juniors, were among nearly 80 students to be awarded the scholarship this year, according to Bill Weidemaier, director of the Office of National Scholarship Advisement.

"I feel empowered to go out (to society) and achieve a level of excellence that this scholarship will support," Kalil said, adding that there were many difficulties she faced during her ASU years.

"One of the difficulties was that I was a returning student," Kalil, who was recognized by the Truman Committee for her volunteer work with many Phoenix-area communities, said. "Once you are an adult and have many responsibilities, it is very difficult to stop your life and come back to college."

The Truman Scholarship, Weidemaier said, is the nation's foremost leadership scholarship. Established and funded by Congress with a permanent endowment in 1976, the scholarship pays $3,000 for the student's senior year and $27,000 for graduate study leading to a career in public service.

Kalil said the scholarship package also comes with an internship at a federal department in Washington D.C.

Drescher, who was not available for comment Monday, received his Truman award in recognition of his public service work with the Muscular Dystrophy Association and for summer internships in which he worked on public health surveys in Montana and Utah, said Weidemaier.

Weidemaier said Drescher plans to use his Truman to pursue a masters of public health prior to entering either medical school or a Ph.D. program in some area of health sciences. James Collins, chairman of the Department of Zoology, said, "We are exceptionally proud that a student (Drescher) from our department has won the Truman scholarship. I think this is typical of the high quality of programs that we have in this department."

"I think that a combination of academic excellence and ability to persuade people made these two people win the scholarship," Weidemaier said. "We (ASU) had four finalists this year, more than any school."

WOULD YOU RATHER THINK ABOUT BIRTH CONTROL 365 TIMES A YEAR...

OR 4 TIMES A YEAR?

Many women wish they didn't have to remember their birth control every day. If you're one of them, you might want to know about Depo-Provera.

Some of the benefits of Depo-Provera.

Depo-Provera is an injection you get from your doctor or nurse, every three months. When taken as scheduled—just 4 times a year—it's more than 99% effective. So it's one of the most reliable contraceptives available.

Depo-Provera has been used for many years by millions of women in countries like England, France and Sweden. And Depo-Provera is reversible. Once you stop using it, you can usually become pregnant within one year. Depo-Provera from Upjohn is a prescription product that costs about the same per year as birth control pills.

But before you consider any birth control method, you should discuss the risks and benefits with your healthcare professional.

LEARN ABOUT YOUR BIRTH CONTROL OPTIONS:
CALL 1-800-861-8618.
ASK FOR OUR FREE BROCHURES.

Some of the side effects of Depo-Provera.

Most women experience irregular or unpredictable menstrual bleeding and weight gain. With continued use, many women stop having monthly periods, but your healthcare professional can explain why this happens and that it is not a medical problem. Use of Depo-Provera may be associated with a decrease in the amount of mineral stored in your bones, which may be considered among the risk factors for development of osteoporosis.

Depo-Provera is not right for every woman.

Women with a family or personal history of breast cancer, blood clots, liver disease, or those who think they might be pregnant, should not use Depo-Provera.

Remember, Depo-Provera does not protect against sexually transmitted diseases.

But it does provide highly reliable birth control you only have to think about 4 times a year. If you have any questions or concerns, talk to your healthcare professional.

Depo-Provera® Contraceptive Injection (sterile medroxyprogesterone acetate suspension, USP)

WHAT IS DEPO-PROVERA CONTRACEPTIVE INJECTION?

DEPO-PROVERA Contraceptive Injection is a form of birth control that is given as an intramuscular injection (a shot) in the buttock or upper arm once every 3 months. To continue your contraceptive protection, you must return for your next injection promptly at the end of 3 months. DEPO-PROVERA contains medroxyprogesterone acetate, a chemical similar to (but not the same as) the natural hormone progesterone, which is produced by your ovaries during the second half of your menstrual cycle. DEPO-PROVERA acts by preventing your egg cells from ripening. If an egg is not released from the ovaries during your menstrual cycle, it cannot become fertilized by sperm and result in pregnancy. DEPO-PROVERA also causes changes in the lining of your uterus that make it less likely for pregnancy to occur.

HOW EFFECTIVE IS DEPO-PROVERA CONTRACEPTIVE INJECTION?

DEPO-PROVERA is over 99% effective, making it one of the most reliable methods of birth control available. This means that the average annual pregnancy rate is less than one for every 100 women who use DEPO-PROVERA. The effectiveness of most contraceptive methods depends in part on how reliably each woman uses the method. The effectiveness of DEPO-PROVERA depends only on the patient returning every 3 months for her next injection. Your health-care provider will help you compare DEPO-PROVERA with other contraceptive methods and give you the information you need in order to decide which contraceptive method is the right choice for you.

The following table shows the percent of women who got pregnant while using different kinds of contraceptive methods. It gives both the lowest expected rate of pregnancy (the rate expected in women who use each method exactly as it should be used) and the typical rate of pregnancy (which includes women who became pregnant because they forgot to use their birth control or because they did not follow the directions exactly).

WHO SHOULD NOT USE DEPO-PROVERA CONTRACEPTIVE INJECTION?

Not all women should use DEPO-PROVERA. You should not use DEPO-PROVERA if you think you might be pregnant, have any vaginal bleeding without a known reason, have had cancer of the breast, have had a stroke, have or have had blood clots (phlebitis) in your legs, have problems with your liver or liver disease, or are allergic to DEPO-PROVERA (medroxyprogesterone acetate or any of its other ingredients). You will have a physical examination before your doctor prescribes DEPO-PROVERA. It is important to tell your doctor if you are taking any prescription or over-the-counter medications or if you have a family history of breast cancer; an abnormal mammogram (breast x-ray); fibrocystic breast disease; breast nodules or lumps; or bleeding from your nipples; kidney disease; irregular or scanty menstrual periods; high blood pressure; migraine headaches; asthma; epilepsy (convulsions or seizures); diabetes or a family history of diabetes; or a history of depression.

WHAT IF I WANT TO BECOME PREGNANT AFTER USING DEPO-PROVERA CONTRACEPTIVE INJECTION?

Because DEPO-PROVERA is a long-acting birth control method, it takes some time after your last injection for its effect to wear off. Based on the results from a large study done in the United States, for women who stop using DEPO-PROVERA in order to become pregnant, it is expected that about half of those who become pregnant will do so in about 10 months after their last injection; about two thirds of those who become pregnant will do so in about 12 months; about 83% of those who become pregnant will do so in about 15 months; and about 93% of those who become pregnant will do so in about 18 months after their last injection. The length of time you use DEPO-PROVERA has no effect on how long it takes you to become pregnant after you stop using it.

WHAT ARE THE RISKS OF USING DEPO-PROVERA CONTRACEPTIVE INJECTION?

1. Irregular Menstrual Bleeding
The side effect reported most frequently by women who use DEPO-PROVERA for contraception is a change in their normal menstrual cycle. During the first year of using DEPO-PROVERA, you might have one or more of the following changes: Irregular or unpredictable bleeding or spotting, an increase or decrease in menstrual bleeding, or no bleeding at all. Unusually heavy or continuous bleeding, however, is not a usual effect of DEPO-PROVERA, and if this happens, you should see your health-care provider right away. With continued use of DEPO-PROVERA, bleeding usually decreases, and many women stop having periods completely. In clinical studies of DEPO-PROVERA, 57% of the women studied reported no menstrual bleeding (amenorrhea) after 1 year of use, and 68% of the women studied reported no menstrual bleeding after 2 years of use. The reason that your periods stop is because DEPO-PROVERA causes a resting state in your ovaries. When your ovaries do not release an egg monthly, the regular monthly growth of the lining of your uterus does not occur and, therefore, the bleeding that comes with your normal menstruation does not take place. When you stop using DEPO-PROVERA your menstrual period will usually, in time, return to its normal cycle.

2. Bone Mineral Changes

Use of DEPO-PROVERA may be associated with a decrease in the amount of mineral stored in your bones. This could increase your risk of developing bone fractures. The rate of bone mineral loss is greatest in the early years of DEPO-PROVERA use, but after that, it begins to resemble the normal rate of age-related bone mineral loss.

3. Cancer

Studies of women who have used different forms of contraception found that women who used DEPO-PROVERA for contraception had no increased overall risk of developing cancer of the breast, ovary, uterus, cervix, or liver. However, women under 35 years of age whose first exposure to DEPO-PROVERA was within the previous 4 years may have a slightly increased risk of developing breast cancer similar to that seen with oral contraceptives. You should discuss this with your health-care provider.

4. Accidental Pregnancy

Because DEPO-PROVERA is such an effective contraceptive method, the risk of accidental pregnancy for women who get their shots regularly (every 3 months) is very low. While there have been reports of an increased risk of low birth weight and neonatal infant death or other health problems in infants conceived close to the time of injection, such pregnancies are rare. If you think you may have become pregnant while using DEPO-PROVERA for contraception, see your health-care provider as soon as possible.

5. Other Risks

Women who use hormone-based contraceptives may have an increased risk of blood clots or stroke. Also, if a contraceptive method fails, there is a possibility that the fertilized egg will begin to develop outside of the uterus (ectopic pregnancy). While these events are rare, you should tell your health-care provider if you have any of the problems listed in the next section.

WHAT SYMPTOMS MAY SIGNAL PROBLEMS WHILE USING DEPO-PROVERA CONTRACEPTIVE INJECTION?

Call your health-care provider immediately if any of these problems occur following an injection of DEPO-PROVERA: Sharp chest pain, coughing of blood, or sudden shortness of breath (indicating a possible clot in the lung); sudden severe headache or vomiting, dizziness or fainting, problems with your eyesight or speech, weakness, or numbness in an arm or leg (indicating a possible stroke); severe pain or swelling in the calf (indicating a possible clot in the leg); unusually heavy vaginal bleeding; severe pain or tenderness in the lower abdominal area; or persistent pain, pus, or bleeding at the injection site.

WHAT ARE THE POSSIBLE SIDE EFFECTS OF DEPO-PROVERA CONTRACEPTIVE INJECTION?

1. Weight Gain
You may experience a weight gain while you are using DEPO-PROVERA. About two thirds of the women who used DEPO-PROVERA in clinical trials reported a weight gain of about 5 pounds during the first year of use. You may continue to gain weight after the first year. Women in one large study who used DEPO-PROVERA for 2 years gained an average total of 8.1 pounds over those 2 years, or approximately 4 pounds per year. Women who continued for 4 years gained an average total of 13.8 pounds over those 4 years, or approximately 3.5 pounds per year. Women who continued for 6 years gained an average total of 16.5 pounds over those 6 years, or approximately 2.75 pounds per year.

2. Other Side Effects

In a clinical study of over 3,900 women who used DEPO-PROVERA for up to 7 years, some women reported the following effects that may or may not have been related to their use of DEPO-PROVERA: Irregular menstrual bleeding, amenorrhea, headache, nervousness, abdominal cramps, dizziness, weakness or fatigue, decreased sexual desire, leg cramps, nausea, vaginal discharge or irritation, breast swelling and tenderness, bloating, swelling of the hands or feet, backache, depression, insomnia, acne, pelvic pain, no hair growth or excessive hair loss, rash, and hot flashes. Other problems were reported by very few of the women in the clinical trials, but some of these could be serious. These include convulsions, jaundice, urinary tract infections, allergic reactions, fainting, paralysis, osteoporosis, lack of return to fertility, deep vein thrombosis, pulmonary embolus, breast cancer, or cervical cancer. If these or any other problems occur during your use of DEPO-PROVERA, discuss them with your health-care provider.

SHOULD ANY PRECAUTIONS BE FOLLOWED DURING USE OF DEPO-PROVERA CONTRACEPTIVE INJECTION?

1. Missed Periods
During the time you are using DEPO-PROVERA for contraception, you may skip a period, or your periods may stop completely. If you have been receiving your DEPO-PROVERA injections regularly every 3 months, then you are probably not pregnant. However, if you think that you may be pregnant, see your health-care provider.

2. Laboratory Test Interactions

If you are scheduled for any laboratory tests, tell your health-care provider that you are using DEPO-PROVERA for contraception. Certain blood tests are affected by hormones such as DEPO-PROVERA.

3. Drug Interactions

Cytadren (aminoglutethimide) is an anticancer drug that may significantly decrease the effectiveness of DEPO-PROVERA if the two drugs are given during the same time.

4. Nursing Mothers

Although DEPO-PROVERA can be passed to the nursing infant in the breast milk, no harmful effects have been found in these children. DEPO-PROVERA does not prevent the breasts from producing milk, so it can be used by nursing mothers. However, to minimize the amount of DEPO-PROVERA that is passed to the infant in the first weeks after birth, you should wait until 6 weeks after childbirth before you start using DEPO-PROVERA for contraception.

HOW OFTEN DO I GET MY SHOT OF DEPO-PROVERA CONTRACEPTIVE INJECTION?

The recommended dose of DEPO-PROVERA is 150 mg every 3 months given in a single intramuscular injection in the buttock or upper arm. To make sure that you are not pregnant at the time of the first injection, it is important that the injection be given only during the first 5 days after the beginning of a normal menstrual period. If used following the delivery of a child, the first injection of DEPO-PROVERA should be given within 5 days after childbirth if you are not breast-feeding or 6 weeks after childbirth if you are breast-feeding. If you wait longer than 3 months between injections, or longer than 6 weeks after childbirth, your health-care provider should determine that you are not pregnant before giving you your injection of DEPO-PROVERA.

A Special Message to ASU Students:

"ASU students were the foundation of The Honda Doctor. We'll stop at nothing to keep your loyalty."

"Since I started The Honda Doctor 7 years ago, I've always strived for highest quality service, with completely honest and straightforward dealings with our customers.

You and many other East Valley Honda and Acura owners have rewarded us with their loyalty and referrals, and we've grown to two shops, 12 technicians, and over $2 million a year in honest business. In fact, many times we've become too busy to schedule you in as quickly as you - and we would like. So here's what I'm doing about it.

First, after numerous delays by land developers, our third East Valley location is finally near opening. This will immediately relieve scheduling problems at our Tempe shop because over 1,000 of our regular customers there will shift to the new shop because it will be more convenient for them.

Second, we've expanded our Tempe shop again, and created a brand new service:

The Honda Doctor's Fast Lube-Oil-Filter, a new lift 100% dedicated for 10 daily appointments for our Original $15.95 Castrol Oil Change only.

So if all you need is your all-important regular 3,000 mile oil change, we can accommodate you quickly. And if you have other maintenance or service needs, we'll be able to schedule you in sooner for that, too.

I extend my heartfelt personal thanks to the students of ASU for reinforcing for me over the years that our Blue Ribbon Service Policy of Quality, Integrity and Fair Prices Everyday is the way you really like to be treated. You have my promise that The Honda Doctor will continue to do whatever it takes to service you best.

So now there's no reason to be lured to other shops for the promise of low prices, only to discover that not all promises are created equal."

POLICE REPORT

ASU police reported the following incidents Monday:

- A male ASU student was arrested, cited and released for failing to stop for a police officer at 620 Alpha Drive.
- A male ASU student reported his wallet stolen from the Student Recreation Center. The loss is estimated at $13.
- ASU DPS assisted Tempe police with the pursuit of a fleeing vehicle in the Salt River Bottom. Police caught the man and transported him to Tempe City Jail where he was booked for felony flight.
- A woman unaffiliated with ASU reported that she was struck by someone driving a red sports car while she was walking in the parking lot of Tempe Center at the corner of Mill Avenue and University Drive.
- A male ASU student reported that someone stole his fanny pack from the Memorial Union.

Tempe police reported the following incidents Monday:

- Tempe police arrested a 23-year-old Window Rock man and charged him with disorderly conduct after he approached a woman at 710 S. Hardy Drive and asked her to have sex with him. She refused at which point he called her a "bitch" and threatened her.
- Tempe police arrested a 21-year-old Tempe man and a 20-year-old New York man at 155 W. Third St. after an officer observed the Tempe man passing a marijuana cigarette to the second man. Both were charged with possession on marijuana.

• An 18-year-old Tempe woman reported that a man tried to kidnap her from the front of the Mission Springs apartment complex at 1311 W. Baseline Road. She was on her way home when a man parked his car in a driveway in her path.

As she attempted to walk around the car, the man jumped out and grabbed her from behind. She reported that she was able to break away, knocking the man to the ground in the process.

She said that she then kicked him in the head and the body. As he tried to crawl back into the car, she said she slammed it on his head causing him to fall back and roll toward the rear tire. The woman then fled home.

When police arrived the car was gone and they found no evidence of the struggle.

The man is described as an Hispanic, 35-37 years old, 5-foot-4, 180 pounds with thick black hair and a heavy mustache. The vehicle was a 1976-77 white two-door Buick.

Convicted murderer accused of molesting 4-year-old Oregon girl

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — A convicted killer and sex offender who was released from prison over the objections of his victims' relatives was arraigned Monday on charges of molesting a 4-year-old girl.

Russell Obremski did not enter a plea during his brief court appearance. He was ordered held without bail on charges of sex abuse and sodomy.

Obremski spent 24 years in prison for the 1969 killings of two women in southern Oregon before being paroled 4 1/2 months ago.

"The parole board notified me they could hold him for life — now," David M. Koch, branch manager for the Oregon Department of Corrections, said Monday.

Obremski, 49, was on parole from a 20-year sentence for the statutory rape of a 14-year-old girl in Washington state when he murdered Laverna May Lowe and Betty Ann Ritchie in February 1969.

He was sentenced to two life prison terms, and was first scheduled for parole in August 1983. His release was delayed five times as relatives of his victims campaigned to keep him behind bars. He was finally released from prison Nov. 8.

Koch said authorities believe Obremski had been drinking before his latest arrest, although counselors reported he had been taking monitored doses of a substance that causes severe nausea if alcohol is consumed. Taking the substance was one of the terms of his parole.

"Somebody ought to put a bullet in his head and get it over with," said Bill Ritchie, son of one of the murder victims. "But then, that puts us at the same level as him."

Obremski was arrested Friday at the halfway house where he lived.

Official: 'Whistle-blower' law often misused

By GARIN GROFF
STATE PRESS

The Arizona law intended to protect state employees who "blow the whistle" on their employers is increasing in its use and is often used illegitimately, according to an Arizona assistant attorney general said.

"From what I have seen, it's a way for marginal employees to try and hold on to their jobs a little longer," said Pam Culwell, assistant attorney general.

The law applies to public employees and intends to protect whistle-blowers when they reveal information of how a state organization has violated a law, is mismanaged, wastes money, or abuses authority.

However, she said the law is fair for employer and employee.

"I think that the law is drafted so that it tends to protect whistle-blowers and punish anyone who acts against them," Culwell said.

Both lawyers who represent employees and employers agree the law is fair to both sides.

"From a defense perspective, I like the fact that to maintain a whistle-blowing claim under the statute you have to complain to someone. That makes it harder to use the law to cover up for an employee's shortcomings," said Valley lawyer Robert Haws. He has dealt with whistle-blowing cases during his five years defending businesses.

"I think it's a pretty good one," said Mike Napier, a Phoenix lawyer who represents employees, including faculty at the Maricopa County Community College District and Phoenix Law Enforcement Association.

The law came about in the interest of protecting employees who act in a way that would benefit the public, Napier said.

"I think, of course, that's necessary because you might be taking an unpopular position vis-a-vis your employer and there has to be some rather strict protections that are developed to make sure that you can act with impunity," Napier said.

Paul Ward, ASU general counsel, said no whistle-blower litigation has taken place against the University for at least 10 years.

That record may soon change. Former ASU Student

Health Director Laurie Vollen filed suit against the University March 9, alleging that she was fired after blowing the whistle on ASU Athletic Director Charles Harris' interference in medical decisions concerning the health of student athletes. Vollen told the State Press last spring that her direct supervisor, Student Affairs Vice President Christine Wilkinson, fired her after she refused to ignore Harris' interference in the medical decision making process of the Student Health Department. Wilkinson refused to talk about the incident at the time citing as her reason that it was "a personnel matter." Vollen's attorney, Kimball Corson said he intends to serve the suit on ASU "sometime this week."

For state employees to take steps against what they feel is improper action by their employer, they must complain in writing to a board authorized by their organization to hear such complaints. The board determines if the complaint is valid and if the employer retaliated against the employee.

Employees and employers can appeal the first decision to the court. This can be a problem because of the length of the process, according to Culwell.

The case may not be heard in court for one to two years, a process that often follows a six-month wait at the organization's board. The court sometimes takes months to decide as well, she said.

Haws said the court only overturns the case if the previous decision was arbitrary or capricious. It does not hear new witnesses or evidence.

State universities have their own boards to hear whistle-blowing situations. University proceedings in Arizona can undergo closer scrutiny because the law says employees are entitled to a new trial in Superior Court. Here, new evidence is admitted.

Haws said penalties for retaliating against employees are strong because employees who have a legitimate complaint will be fully compensated.

According to the law, courts can fine the employer a civil penalty of $5,000. Also, it can award attorney fees, costs, back pay, general and special damages, and reinstatement.

Brian Fitzgerald/State Press

DUI

Sgt. Tom Stubbs said the van also saves DUI suspects from facing the general population at the jail.

"There's a lot of first-timers and that can be a frightening situation," Stubbs said.

Once inside the van, the suspect is seated next to a breathalyzer and handcuffed to the wall. Officers must observe the suspect for 20 minutes before administering the breath test, allowing alcohol residue left over from any recently consumed beverages to dissipate.

During the observation period, the arresting officer does paperwork and explains the DUI booking process to the suspect.

A suspect can choose to take a blood test. In that case the officer is required to drive the suspect to Tempe St. Luke's Hospital where a doctor will do the test at the suspect's expense.

Breath tests are free of charge.

If the results of either test reveal a blood alcohol content above a .10, the suspect's license is suspended for 90 days. If the suspect refuses to take a test, his license is automatically suspended for one year.

Attempts to cheat the machine, such as not blowing at the required pressure or covering the tube with the tongue, are treated as refusals.

Thursday night, Wolfe parked the van at the ASU Visitors

Center, across the street from the Vine Tavern. The bar had fenced off its parking lot and hired a band for their St. Patrick's Day celebration.

The taskforce processed eight arrests at the van and a few more were sent to the station.

Bar patrons filtered in and out of the parking lot throughout the night. Some saw the van and chose to park elsewhere.

Police officers usually wait for two traffic violations before they pull someone over for a suspected DUI.

"You need probable cause for a stop, such as no lights, no signals, failing to stop at a stop sign, weaving in a lane," Wolfe said.

Stubbs said the van processed 50 DUI arrests in the first quarter of 1994 and the police department averages about 67 arrests per month.

Despite the success of the van, Tranter admits that his unit is only getting a fraction of all drunk drivers.

"There has to be a risk and there has to be a penalty," Tranter said. "For every arrest we make, who knows how many we are not getting. It's questionable how much effect we are having on the problem."

"Drinking and driving is 20 years behind the smoking/health issue. I wish DUI had that same (public) concern."

Mexican police officer held in shooting deaths of 2 men

YUMA (AP) — A Mexican police officer was being held in the deaths of two men who died from gunshot wounds that capped a high-speed chase last week, a newspaper reported Monday.

The Yuma Daily Sun said Monday that Javier Cano Gerardo and Roberto Barrera Ruiz, both 22-year-olds from the border town of San Luis Rio Colorado, Mexico, were killed.

The newspaper said Salvador Javier Gomez Bustamente, commander of Sonora state judicial police, was being held in the case.

Cano and Barrera were riding in a pickup truck when they were shot after the chase that began in Baja California and ended in San Luis, the newspaper said.

Barrera died in the shooting. Cano died later at Yuma Regional Medical Center.

Francisco Gonzalez Cortez, a Mexican judge in San Luis, said Gomez was charged with homicide in Barrera's death and likely would be charged with the second death, the newspaper reported.

The judge also said Gomez faces charges of abuse of authority.

Gomez said the shooting was accidental and occurred as he was trying to cut off the pickup truck, driving with one hand and holding an AK-47 assault rifle in the other, the newspaper said.

Gomez said the gun went off during a fast turn and bumps in the road.

The judge said the pickup truck had six bullet holes.

Police were trying to stop the truck for reckless driving, the newspaper said.

Record turnout expected in today's mayoral election

By Jason Hill
STATE PRESS

Noise pollution, increased air traffic from Sky Harbor Airport, gridlock on Tempe's streets and the restructuring of city government are all issues that could change with newly elected officials in Tempe's primary election today.

Channel 11 (Tempe's public access cable station) will be showing debates held previously between council members and mayoral candidates today at noon to 2:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. for voters who want to know more about the candidates before voting.

After watching the debates, students who registered as Tempe voters before Feb. 21 can vote for candidates running for mayor and council until 7 p.m. tonight at the local polls.

"This will probably be the largest turnout ever in Tempe," said Tempe City Clerk Helen Fowler.

Fowler said that of the 84,175 registered voters she expects 16,800 (20 percent) to vote in the primaries.

"We only had 46,000 registered in 1982 compared to the 84,175 registered today," said Fowler. Tempe has a population of approximately 140,000.

"I think the voting is going to be heavy. We've passed out a record number of absentee ballots (721). That is another indication that voting will be heavy," Fowler said.

An increase in absentee ballots, which the city has experienced, is considered an indication that citizens are interested in participating in the election.

David Berman, an ASU political science professor specializing in state and local politics, is hesitant to agree with Fowler's 20-percent voter turnout prediction.

"I think it's great that they think they are going to get that many voters but I really doubt it will be that large," Berman said.

Tempe will prove it is politically active compared to other cities in the nation if the city obtains 20 percent of the registered voters in the primary, Berman added.

In Tempe's primary election, any or all candidates receiving a majority of the votes cast (51 percent) will be declared elected without having to run in the general election, Tuesday, May 10.

All three mayoral candidates - Don Cassano, Neil Giuliano and Barbara Sherman - said that it is unlikely that Tuesday's primary will determine who will be Tempe's next mayor.

Seven candidates are competing for three four-year terms in city council seats, and three candidates are seeking the two-year remainder of another council member's terms.

The seven candidates hoping to obtain four-year council seats are Ben Arredondo, Jay S. Golden, Barb Jones, Merle Loftus, Roman Martin, Carol Smith, and Linda Spears. The three candidates desiring a two-year council member's term are Quinton Kubicek, Frank Plencner and Joseph Spracale.

Students interested in finding out where their voting districts are located can call 350-8400.

High-tech billionaires chase dream to link world

PHOENIX (AP) — It's been a dream in telecommunications for decades: how to link everyone no matter where they are.

Bill Gates and Craig McCaw, two of America's best known high-tech billionaires, think they've found the way, a $9 billion plan to launch 840 satellites over seven years.

Their company, Teledesic Corp., would create a system bringing video, voice and data transmissions to millions of people in remote parts of the world that are bypassed by the Information Superhighway.

But beyond the initial enthusiasm their proposal has spawned are many competitive, technological and regulatory challenges.

Teledesic asked federal regulators Monday for approval to use the airwaves in putting forth their plan. It will eventually need approval from foreign governments as well, and there is the issue of raising the $9 billion.

But the proposal received a lot of attention at PC Forum, an annual gathering of personal computer industry leaders in Phoenix.

"This says to all of the hundreds of other groups in the world capable of building this same kind of satellite network that there's a business here," said John Gage, director of the science office at Sun Microsystems Laboratories Inc., a unit of the workstation manufacturer.

Some said Gates and McCaw could succeed where others might fail because they are taking an entrepreneurial approach rather than trying to unite existing businesses.

"It's easier for two individuals to do this than big companies," said Esther Dyson, a consultant and publisher who sponsors PC Forum.

Gates and McCaw aren't the first to envision a global satellite communication system. Motorola Inc., in conjunction with McDonnell-Douglas Corp. and partners in several countries, has embarked on a similar $3 billion venture.

Called Iridium, it would use 66 satellites to provide portable voice, fax and paging service around the world by 1998.

Teledesic is designed for fixed locations, like the phone on the desk. Gates and McCaw also want to incorporate data and video signals, which will take more satellites and more money.

Both men, who were out of the country when Monday's Teledesic announcement was made, are enormously wealthy and presumably would back the venture with some of their own money.

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

UNFORTUNATELY, THIS IS WHERE PEOPLE ARE PUTTING TOO MANY RETIREMENT DOLLARS.

Every year, a lot of people make a huge mistake on their taxes. They don't take advantage of tax deferral and wind up sending Uncle Sam money they could be saving for retirement.

Fortunately, that's a mistake you can easily avoid with TIAA-CREF SRAs. SRAs not only ease your current tax-bite, they offer a remarkably easy way to build retirement income—especially for the "extras" that your regular pension and Social Security benefits may not cover. Because your contributions are made in before-tax dollars, you pay less taxes now. And since all earnings on your SRA are tax-deferred as well, the money you don't send to Washington works even harder for you. Down the road, that can make a dramatic difference in your quality of life.

What else makes SRAs so special? A range of allocation choices—from the guaranteed security of TIAA to the diversified investment accounts of CREF's variable annuity—all backed by the nation's number one retirement system.

Why write off the chance for a more rewarding retirement? Call today and learn more about how TIAA-CREF SRAs can help you enjoy many happy returns.

Benefit now from tax deferral. Call our SRA hotline 1 800-842-2733, ext. 8016.

Women's tennis downs UW

The 11th-ranked ASU women's tennis team thrashed Washington 9-0 Monday at the Whiteman Tennis Center.

The Sun Devils were lead by junior All-America Kori Davidson, who beat Paige Stringer 6-4, 7-6. Davidson's overall record now stands at 21-6, while her dual record is now 10-2.

The Sun Devils look to chalk up another victory today as they take on Kansas at Whiteman Tennis Center at 1:30 p.m.

Golf 3rd going into final round

The ASU men's golf team headed into the clubhouse Monday in fourth place after two rounds of the Cleveland Golf/Morris Williams Intercollegiate Golf Tournament.

Heading into today's final round, the Sun Devils trail first-place Oklahoma State by eight strokes, 591-583, with Nevada-Las Vegas and Florida in second and third place, respectively.

Two Sun Devils finished the two rounds Monday among the top 10. Chris Stutts' score of 142 (72-70) put him in third place, while Todd Demsey completed the day in ninth with a score of 147 (73-74).

MILD, MILD WEST

When the ASU basketball team fell to BYU in the first round of the National Invitational Tournament, it was typical of the poor performance of Pac-10 teams in the postseason. Only UofA won a tournament game among the seven schools from the conference.

Pac-10 taking heat after poor Tournament outings

By JULIE REUVERS
STATE PRESS

For ASU fans who grimace at the thought of wishing any good fortune upon UofA in the NCAA Tournament, the Wildcats are the last hope for Pac-10 basketball to regain the respect which dwindled when three teams were abruptly eliminated.

Of the four teams the conference sent to the tournament — UofA, California, UCLA and Washington State — only UofA, the No. 2 seed in the West, survived the first round. And the National Invitation Tournament, with bids given to ASU, Stanford and USC, had no Pac-10 teams moving past the fatal first round. (ASU lost 74-67 to BYU on March 17).

When UofA faces Louisville on Thursday in the West regional semifinal, it will be the only team from either the Mountain or Pacific time zones still alive in NCAA Tournament play.

Five western conferences — the West Coast, the Big Sky, the Western Athletic, the Big West and the Pac-10 — went a combined 1-for-9 in the first round of the tournament. Pepperdine, Boise State, Hawaii, New Mexico and New Mexico State all failed to advance.

If the Wildcats successfully secure a spot in the Final Four (they are in the Sweet Sixteen after having beaten Loyola of Maryland and Virginia), it will mark only the third time since 1976 that a Pac-10 team has made it that far.

Thanks to UCLA, which collected 10 national championships in 12 seasons from 1964 to 1975, the conference still boasts more NCAA titles (13) than any other conference in the nation. But with tournament representation into the second and third rounds becoming a rarity, that claim may be in jeopardy.

Wrestlers place 8th at NCAA

2 Sun Devils earn All-America accolades at Championships

FROM STAFF REPORTS

The ASU wrestling team managed an eighth-place finish at the NCAA Wrestling Championships in Chapel Hill, N.C. last weekend.

The Sun Devils tied for eighth place with 36 points, making this their third straight top-10 finish, and their ninth in the last 10 years.

Oklahoma State took first place with 94.75 points, followed by Iowa with 76.5.

ST. JOHN

Sophomore Steve St. John placed highest among the five wrestlers when he placed fourth in the 134-pound division.

This finish allowed St. John to earn his first All-America award. St. John defeated Virginia's Mike Krafchick 6-5 Saturday to move on, where he lost to top-seeded Cary Kolat of Penn State. St. John was pinned in 5 minutes, 49 seconds.

Defending National Champion Markus Mollica placed fifth in the 158-pound division with a 7-5 decision over Aaron Moran of Purdue. However, he did pick up his second straight All-America honor with the finish.

Junior Jeff Theiler also claimed his first All-America award, placing sixth in the 150-pound division. Theiler lost two consolation matches on the tournament's final day, 3-2 to No. 2 seed Jacob Newby of Oklahoma State and 6-5 to Fresno State's Terry Watts.

Each of ASU's three all-America winners will return next season, along with Danny Felix, a 118-pound wrestler and Pat Lynch, who wrestles at 177.

Both Felix and Lynch participated in the NCAA National Championships. Felix defeated Penn's Gary Baker before dropping matches to 10th-ranked Mike Mienna of Iowa and Tom Sinacore of Old Dominion. Lynch defeated two opponents Thursday before falling to No. 7 Doug Zembiec of Navy. On Friday, he was eliminated when top-ranked Les Gutches of Oregon State prevailed 10-2.

Brian Fitzgerald/State Press
Jake Steinkemper has filled in very well at catcher during the absence of Todd Cady because of injury. Steinkemper, a product of Phoenix Brophy Prep, is batting .372 with a home run and 18 RBIs. The Sun Devils will play an exhibition game tonight against the California Angels.

Not just a game, it's a holy war

Brock vs. Buck in Devils/Angels exhibition at Diablo Stadium

By MIKE BRANOM
STATE PRESS

Although tonight's exhibition game between the 11th-ranked ASU baseball team and the California Angels was scheduled months ago, the timing couldn't be better for the red-hot Sun Devils.

ASU, winner of five straight games and 11 of its last 12, will strut its stuff in front of major-league scouts and coaches at Tempe Diablo Stadium at 7 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the stadium box office, TicketMaster outlets or Dillard's department stores.

If ASU (22-9 overall, 5-4 Six-Pac) plays the Angels with the same skill and intensity it has shown over the last two weeks, the California front-office types may jump onto the field, fat contracts in hand.

Almost everything has come together for the Sun Devils, as they are dominating opponents with both hitting and pitching. In its last 12 games, ASU is averaging nearly 10 runs, and over 13 hits a game. The pitching has been even better, as the Sun Devils are allowing less than four runs and nine hits a game.

The pitching has been so dominating as of late — in the past week Sun Devil hurlers tossed back-to-back shutouts (the first time since 1977) and threw two one-hitters and a three-hitter — that coach Jim Brock joked about not sending any front-line pitchers to the mound against the Angels.

"We've got to pitch somebody they have a shot at hitting," Brock said. "I like these exhibitions. It would be pretty embarrassing if we shut them out. They might not want us back."

The Sun Devils resume Six-Pac action Friday night when they open a three-game series against California (15-16, 6-3). The Golden Bears are currently tied with USC for the top spot in the conference.

ASU women's swimming strong down stretch

Sun Devils capture 13th place at NCAAs

By JEREMY STEIN
STATE PRESS

The 10th-ranked ASU women's swimming and diving team (7-3 overall, 2-3 Pac-10) closed out its season with a hard-fought, yet disappointing, 13th-place finish at the NCAA Championships in Indianapolis last weekend.

KASZUBA

The team's showing fell short of Coach Tim Hill's preseason goal of finishing among the top 10 at the NCAAs. But considering the Sun Devils' slow start this season, it was quite an accomplishment to finish in the top 15.

At the season's halfway point, ASU was only 3-2 overall and 0-2 in the Pac-10. The Sun Devils finished the season in style, winning four of their last five regular season meets and capturing a surprising second-place finish at the Pac-10 Championships.

"Overall, I was pleased with the final result ... In the fall, we struggled a little bit as a team, but we got better as the season went on," said Hill.

Sophomore breaststroker Beata Kaszuba also felt that the team's refusal to lie down and play dead made the season a success.

"I would say it was a really good season. We made really good progress as the season went on."

While it took a complete team effort for the Sun Devils to finish with a No. 10 national ranking, two sophomore swimmers, Kaszuba and Chris Jeffrey, stood out.

Kaszuba made waves at both the local and national level during her record-breaking campaign this season. Besides setting an ASU record in the 200-meter breaststroke this season, Kaszuba also led all Sun Devils at the NCAAs.

JEFFREY

Kaszuba set a U.S. Open NCAA record in the 100 breaststroke with a first-place time of 1 minute, 46 seconds, which also marked the first individual NCAA Championship for a female ASU swimmer. She also took second in her only other event, the 200 breaststroke, and finished ninth overall in individual scoring.

"This season, I think, was the best season of my life," said Kaszuba. "I could see that I was progressing well all season."

Jeffrey, a returning All-America, captured ASU's only first-place finish at this year's Pac-10 Championships in the 400 individual medley. At the NCAAs, Jeffrey was the only other Sun Devil besides Kaszuba to capture a top five finish, taking third place in the 400 IM. Jeffrey also came in 15th in the 500 freestyle.

Finale typifies women's season

Devils fall to UofA in 35-point shellacking, finish 4-22 overall

By TODD KELLY
STATE PRESS

The ASU women's basketball team lost its final game of the season to the UofA Wildcats on March 12, 104-69, and put an end to an arduous season.

ASU finished the season at 4-22 overall and 2-16 in the Pac-10. The two conference victories came at the expense of Washington State. Only one game was won on the court, however, as the Cougars forfeited a game to the Sun Devils when the team was struck with a virus.

Jacqueline Hullah, ASU's first-year head coach, moves her overall mark to 142-117 in nine years of coaching. She arrived at ASU from Dartmouth last summer, replacing Maura McHugh.

Molly Tuter started for the Sun Devils for most of the season, and was the only freshman to finish among the Pac-

10 leaders in steals. Tuter eyes next year with anticipation.

"I'm looking forward to next season. We'll be more experienced next year," she said, but added, "We'll need some height."

There are two departing seniors from this year's team, Nikki Thompson and Melani Francis, who were significant members of ASU's frontcourt. On Dec. 31, Francis scored 41 points against New Mexico, and on Jan. 22, Thompson recorded 20 rebounds against USC.

Thompson also became adept at stealing the ball this year. She entered the finale with 97 steals on the season, needing three to tie the single-season Pac-10 record of 100. Thompson grabbed the record with seven steals, finishing with 104.

Thompson will graduate with a degree in marketing, but ends her career with mixed emotions.

"I'm sad and happy," she said. "I hope for the sake of the players here next year that things improve. The Pac-10 will be tough. (ASU) definitely needs some post players."

Wild West

Cougars fell 67-64 to Boston College, denied Monday that the Pac-10's trend of tournament misfortune labels the conference as weak.

"I thought we represented the Pac-10 well ...," he said. "It was a great college game and to say losses like that darken the image of the Pac-10 Conference doesn't even make sense."

"The most you can say about the Pac-10 is that Washington State went in there and played their butts off and a (potential NBA) lottery pick, Bill Curley, made a big shot at the end."

Boston College went on to upset North Carolina, the No. 1 seed in the East, 75-72 on Sunday.

Danette Macri, Pac-10 public relations intern for men's basketball, acknowledged that the NCAA Tournament — full of upsets and "surprises" — should not serve as grounds to measure whether or not a conference is strong.

"I think just the way the tournament is, there are always surprises, like Boston College beating North Carolina," Macri said. "It's just unfortunate because the (Pac-10) teams that lost are definitely a lot better than they looked in the tournament."

Your INDIVIDUAL HOROSCOPE

FRANCES DRAKE

For Tuesday, March 22, 1994

ARIES

(Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)
You could easily become aggravated with people who are evasive in business. However, a home matter is settled to your satisfaction. Fun and leisure are highlighted tonight.

TAURUS

(Apr. 20 to May 20)
You'll be receiving some mixed messages today and you'll have to read between the lines. Partners work well together, however. Home life is rewarding after dark.

GEMINI

(May 21 to June 20)
Use good judgment in financial transactions. Don't let yourself be imposed upon. Monetary prospects improve in business. Tonight brings a social success.

CANCER

(June 21 to July 22)
You may wish that an adviser would speed things up. A partner's behavior may seem a bit odd to you. In business, though, you'll meet with a wonderful success.

LEO

(July 23 to Aug. 22)
You may be uncertain about a situation at work. At times today you may seem withdrawn. Tonight, however, you're back in form and making important future plans.

VIRGO

(Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)
Things may be unclear in romance today or dating plans may be subject to change, but a bond of friendship will grow stronger. Financial backing may come.

LIBRA

(Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)
Unexpected developments at home may upset your schedule today. A long-range career plan is brought to fruition. Spend enjoyable times with partners and friends tonight.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)
Some people will be difficult to reach by phone today. Travel and educational interests are highlighted. Business gains are also likely to accrue.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)
Do some comparison shopping before making a decision about a major purchase. You may receive an investment tip. Tonight favors dating and leisure pursuits.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 19)
Morning hours may find you reluctant to make a commitment. Later you'll be sharing happy times with friends and partners. Tonight accents domestic interests.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 20 to Feb. 18)
You may be uncertain about a private concern. Your determination will lead to career gains. You'll also be enjoying a warm rapport with a loved one.

PISCES

(Feb. 19 to Mar. 20)
Social plans may be subject to change. Avoid bossy behavior with children. Say yes to a travel invitation. You're on the right track in business.

YOU BORN TODAY do best in work that measures up to your ideals. You are perhaps more reflective than the typical member of your sign, though at times you need to guard against impatience and impulsiveness. Inventive and highstrung, you need times by yourself to recharge your batteries. Both the arts and sciences are liable to appeal to you, and you're capable of achievements that are ahead of the times. Birthdate of: Marcel Marceau, mime; Stephen Sondheim, composer; and Chico Marx, comedian.
