Staff Council: Pay system at ASU stinks

Staff merit pay increases unchanged since mid-'80s

BY LISA GONDERINGER
STATE PRESS

For the past nine years, Kay Winn figured all the hard work she put into getting high marks on her evaluations as an administrative secretary at ASU's College of Law eventually would pay off.

But in the last five years, she has watched as new employees were offered more money.

"It is really frustrating and demoralizing," Winn said. "Why should we break our backs to work hard when we're not rewarded for it?"

Winn is not alone in her disappointment. Robert Curry, president of the Classified Staff Council, said the current system of compensation for staff actually penalizes long-time employees while appearing to reward new ones.

"This is a big source of frustration among staff," Curry said. "There is no incentive to gain more skills or responsibilities."

Under the current system, there is no way to simply give more money to an employee who is performing well or taking on more responsibilities. The only way to raise their pay is to promote them to a higher-paying job classification, which often doesn't exist.

But even if there were a way to reward exceptional employees, there has to be money to finance the raises and the Legislature has not granted money for staff merit pay since the mid-1980s.

Another problem is that the University often will raise starting salaries to entice employees to work for ASU, masking the fact that staff salaries are on average 24 percent below equal jobs in Maricopa County. These starting salaries are often boosted relatively close to salaries of long-time employees who have waited years for raises.

Long-time faculty, who also had no pay raises for years, shared the same problem in the past as they watched the University entice faculty candidates with above-market salaries.

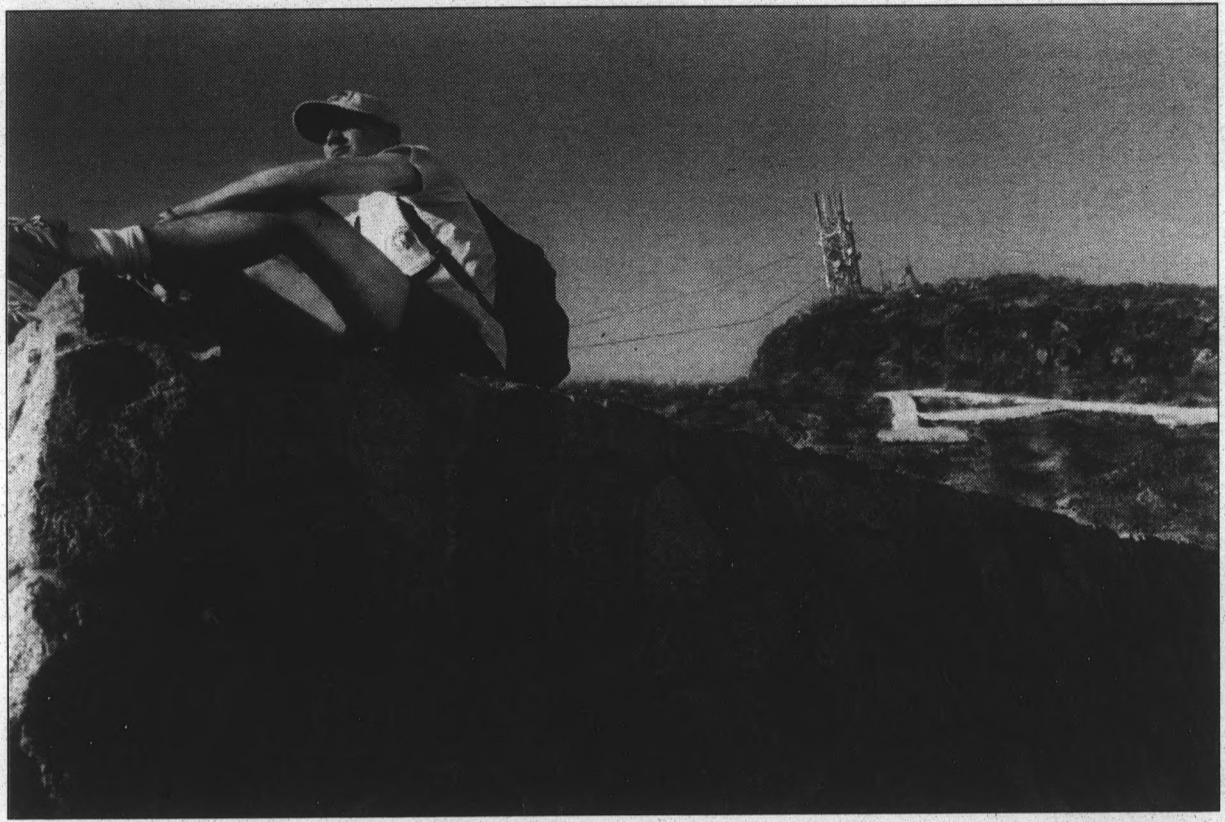

This July, the Legislature did grant funding for merit pay for faculty in an effort to help reward loyal, high-performance faculty, but classified staff received no merit pay.

Alan Carroll, director of ASU fiscal planning and analysis, said last year ASU's proposal asked for merit funding for both faculty and staff, but legislators funded only faculty.

"Last year was the first time I can remember when one group, faculty, got something that another, staff, did not," he said. "The governor recommended additional market equity funding for faculty only. The legislative staff recommended nothing for everyone. So I guess we were lucky to get something."

ASASU court to decide if appointee votes in Hendrickson petition case

BY DAWN DECHRISTINA
STATE PRESS

The Associated Students of ASU Supreme Court will decide tonight whether newly appointed justice Kevin Myer should vote in a case regarding campaign spending limits, an issue which Myer recently helped change.

Myer co-authored a bill that revised the election code, which included changing the campaign spending limit for executive officers from $500 to $600.

"I don't feel I have a conflict of interest," Myer said. "To me the whole issue is whether spending limits are valid."

The case in question involves overturning the Supreme Court decision which removed former ASASU President Marci Hendrickson from office this spring for violating campaign spending limits.

Central to the case is the court's 1981 Clark v. Cosgrove verdict, which abolished campaign spending limits because they were found unconstitutional and they were seen as a limit to students' freedom of speech.

The plaintiffs in the case, former ASASU representatives Chad Wolett and Jason Rupp, claim this 13-year-old decision should be applied to Hendrickson. They stated in their petition to the court that she should be absolved of all charges, clearing the way for her reinstatement.

Wolett and Rupp said Myer would be unlikely to overturn Hendrickson's case because he co-authored the revised election code which supports spending limits.

Rupp said Myer shouldn't rule on this case because the Supreme Court rules and procedures state that a justice should avoid political activity that may give rise to suspicion of political bias or impartiality.

"He (Myer) was a political activist for almost these same election codes (spending limits) and he will be asked if these

Proposal would fine departments for false fire alarms

Committee chairman: 'Wild goose chases' keep DPS from performing its daily duties

BY KAREN RIEDELL
STATE PRESS

University departments may have to pay for false building and fire alarms as part of the Public Safety Advisory Committee's effort to reduce the number of such alarms.

About 6,000 false alarms were reported last year, said Bill Reed, associate professor of aeronautical technology and chair of the committee.

Reed said that the 82 alarm systems on campus send police on a "wild goose chase" when they sound, and people become desensitized to them.

"People become complacent and think they're all false alarms," he said.

He said false alarms can be reduced by educating people on the proper use of alarm systems and improving antiquated systems or requiring that they meet specifications.

Reed said the committee wrote a proposal based on two strategies for reducing false alarms: education on the proper use of alarm systems and a system of permits to ensure the alarms meet guidelines.

"ASU police don't really want to punish anyone. They just want systems that are reliable," Reed said. "Someone proposed fines, but they (the Department of Public Safety) don't really want to do it."

Warning letters will be sent for the second false alarm in a one-semester period. Fines of $25 will be charged for the fourth false alarm, $50 for the fifth alarm and $75 thereafter. A similar system will apply to the two-semester period.

The fines would go into effect if DPS adopts the security alarm policy endorsed in September by the Public Safety Advisory Committee.

Craig Emanuel, ASU chief of police, said officials now will present the proposal to the ASU community to get more feedback in keeping with the department's community policing philosophy. The department's goal, he said, is to reduce the number of false alarms on campus.

According to the report, penalties will be charged for false alarms resulting from unintentional or negligent activation. Three false alarms will be allowed in a semester, and

Whatever the reason, staff members felt the sting of being left out of the raises.

"When faculty got merit pay and we didn't, that hurt," Winn said.

ASU Provost Milton Glick said the real problem in the case of both faculty and staff is the recent series of years in which no raises were given because of a lack of funding.

"I believe not having regular raises has disadvantaged the University," Glick said. "Our inability to reward employees has lost us some good people and made it very difficult on those who have stayed around."

Glick said several ideas are floating around for changes in the compensation system, but that no definitive plan has been set forth yet.

Curry said he has helped draft a plan that would allow for a are constitutional or not," Rupp said.

Myer would not say before the hearing if he supported spending limits because he did not want to show a bias on the issue.

"I have no questions to my own impartiality," he said.

Supreme Court Justice Donald House said this is the first time in about 10 years that the court has been asked to look at the constitutionality of campaign spending limits.

He added that the court will listen to the allegations against Myer, but Myer himself should determine if he is biased.

"I think he can judge for himself if he has a conflict of interest," House said.

He said this preliminary hearing will decide if further pro-five alarms will be allowed in a two-semester period.

According to the report, there are three types of security alarm systems on campus:

- Intrusion alarms, used to detect entry into an area;
- Panic alarms, designed to be activated for robberies and other emergencies and;
- Special service alarms, used to monitor environmental conditions, such as a chlorine leak alarm.

The report also establishes installation standards. Alarms may only be installed by an alarm contractor approved through more flexible system of raises, including a uniform system of evaluating staff.

"The Legislature might be more willing to let us use money how we see fit if there is an equal system of evaluation among departments, which there is not now," he said.

The Arizona Board of Regents has approved ASU's $292 million budget for 1996 fiscal year, part of which is designated for merit pay. But the plan still has to be approved by the Legislature before staff members will see the possibility of any pay raises beyond cost-of-living increases.

Meanwhile, long-time staff members like Winn will have to grit their teeth and hope all their hard work will eventually pay off.

"I really like working here and I will stay here because I think things will get better."

ceedings are called for.

ASASU President Alan Frost, who appointed Myer, said he thought there might be a conflict of interest on this case.

However, Frost said this is just one case and it shouldn't reflect on Myer's character.

"He was the best person for the job," Frost said. "Kevin is a very impartial person. He's really good at decision making."

If the Supreme Court rules that spending limits are unconstitutional, Frost will be pushed back to his original position, executive vice president.

"Maybe Alan doesn't want to leave his comfortable chair," Rupp said. "They (ASASU) like their cushy fat chairs."

DPS, and all labor must be done by alarm installers licensed by the state. In addition, the departments must provide DPS with all manuals related to the security system.

The departments also will be required to obtain an alarm permit by submitting a yearly application to DPS.

Bill Bess, director of ASU DPS, said the University's alarms need to be improved.

"False calls draw police away from daily duties. The goal is to reduce false alarms. I fully endorse their efforts, and I'm looking forward to their final recommendation."

U.S. sends ships, planes, troops to Persian Gulf

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States began massing "a formidable military force" of warplanes, high-tech missiles and ground troops in the Persian Gulf on Sunday as administration officials warned Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein any attack against Kuwait would be soundly defeated.

President Clinton interrupted a Columbus Day holiday weekend at Camp David and met for 90 minutes at the White House with his national security team.

"It looks as though there is hostile intent," said United Nations Ambassador Madeleine Albright, pointing out that Iraq had massed 60,000 to 70,000 troops near Kuwait — some within miles of the border — and that tanks were positioned to "indicate hostility, rather than just parking there."

"The main message ... to Saddam Hussein is, 'Do not make a mistake. Do not cross that border. Do not create circumstances that will force us to act,'" Albright added in an interview on CNN's Late Edition.

Meanwhile, 18,000 Marines from Camp Pendleton, Calif., were put on alert for possible deployment to the gulf and the first of some 4,000 Army soldiers from Fort Stewart, Ga., began boarding planes for the region.

Late Sunday, the aircraft carrier USS George Washington was slated to pass through the Suez Canal and enter the Red Sea, a position from which its combat aircraft could strike Iraq. And two amphibious assault ships with 2,000 Marines on board were already in the northern Persian Gulf.

Over the next several days, administration officials said, about 180 U.S. warplanes and support aircraft will be in position around Kuwait, ready to unleash an airborne attack against any Iraqi armored units that might cross the border.

"We have Marines on alert to go at an appropriate time. We have deployed many squadrons of tactical air — F-15s, F-16s, A-10s, AWACS," Defense Secretary William Perry told reporters.

"All in all, this is a formidable military force," he said.

Pentagon officials said Perry was referring to the F-15 fighter jets departing from Langley Air Force Base in Virginia; 24 A-10 tank-killers, 18 F-16s capable of dropping

Col. Bob Smalser speaks to reporters Sunday at Camp Doha, 18 miles north of Kuwait City. Under a 1992 defense agreement with Kuwait, the United States has placed equipment for a brigade-sized rapid deployment force in the country.

Kuwait rushes army to border

64,000 Iraqi troops amassed near Kuwait

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Kuwait moved the bulk of its 18,000-member army to its northern border Sunday while Baghdad proclaimed "the right to take any measures" to defend itself against a foreign "plot" to crush it.

Iraq's foreign minister said later that Baghdad preferred a diplomatic solution to its "crisis with the United Nations, but would insist on guarantees of a speedy end to the Gulf War sanctions."

U.S. troops, aircraft and warships headed for the Persian Gulf on Sunday to counter Iraq's unexpected military buildup near Kuwait's border.

U.S. officials reported that the movement of 20,000 Republican Guards toward the Kuwaiti border had raised the number of Iraqi troops in the area to 64,000. Some 700 tanks were also deployed or heading south.

The closest Iraqi troops were 12 miles from Kuwait. Pentagon officials said Sunday that Iraqi troops were continuing to gather near the border, but did not provide numbers.

Besselin Kostov, spokesman for the U.N. Iraq-Kuwait Observation Mission established after the 1991 Gulf War, said by telephone that the U.N. forces in the demilitarized zone had not observed any new military movements Sunday afternoon. The zone extends six miles into Iraq and three miles into Kuwait.

Baghdad insists the troop movements do not threaten Kuwait. But while within Iraq's rights, the deployment of troops near the Kuwaiti border has elicited a quick response from countries chastened by Saddam Hussein's surprise invasion of the emirate four years ago.

Perry himself refused to join speculation that Saddam's actions are just a bluff intended to win a relaxation of bruising U.N. sanctions punishing Baghdad for occupying its tiny neighbor.

Kuwait, which signed defense pacts with the United States, Britain, Russia and France after the 1990 invasion, began moving tanks and 15,000 of its 18,000 troops to the desert border, a highly placed Kuwaiti official said Saturday.

A British frigate, HMS Cornwall, arrived off Kuwait City on Sunday morning. Britain also has six Tornado fighters based in the region.

Thousands of people, meanwhile, were camped near the Iraqi side of the frontier, apparently herded there by Baghdad and directed to stage demonstrations to heat up the pressure on the border, U.N. officials said.

Iraq said they were some of the tens of thousands of stateless Arabs displaced after the Gulf War. But Kuwait maintained they were Iraqi soldiers dressed in civilian clothes.

Kostov said the Arabs did not appear to be armed. But he said Iraq had notified the United Nations that as many as 20,000 of them were expected to stage an anti-Kuwait protest.

Baghdad Radio sharply heightened rhetoric Sunday, accusing the West of plotting to crush the Iraqi people.

The radio said the U.N. embargo had subjected Iraq to "an injustice of unprecedented proportions."

A main target of the commentary's invective was Rolf Ekeus, the head of the U.N. Special Commission charged with dismantling Iraq's weapons of mass destruction and installing long-term monitoring of Iraq's weapons program.

Ekeus, scheduled to report this week to the Security Council, met Iraqi leaders in Baghdad last week to discuss when the monitoring — a key condition for the eventual easing of the sanctions — would start.

It is not known what he told the Iraqis. But the southward movement of at least two divisions of Iraq's Republican Guard, a pillar of Saddam's regime, was first spotted after Ekeus left Baghdad on Thursday.

Cedras stepping down from power today, Haitian army says

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras will step down today as Haiti's military leader, transferring power to the army's No. 2 commander, the Haitian army said Sunday.

Maj. Gen. Jean-Claude Dupervalv replaces Cedras under a plan approved Saturday in Washington by Haitian officers and representatives of exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, said Col. Jean-Robert Gabriel, a spokesman for the Haitian high command.

Also set to leave is Brig. Gen. Philippe Biamby, the army chief of staff and a leader of the September 1991 coup that ousted Aristide. The resignations would pave the way for Aristide's expected homecoming on Saturday.

Gabriel, speaking to reporters from the second-floor balcony of army headquarters, said the ceremony would be held Monday morning. He declined to elaborate.

Cedras met Sunday with provisional President Emile Jonassaint, but details of their discussions were not disclosed.

Defense Secretary William Perry and Gen. John

Shalikashvili, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, met with Cedras on Saturday in Port-au-Prince, but U.S. officials had no immediate comment on the resignation date.

A Clinton administration official said Cedras indicated he was going to resign in the next few days. The official, speaking Sunday on condition of anonymity, didn't deny reports that Cedras will resign Monday, but said, "Nothing is clear until he does it."

Perry and Shalikashvili did not discuss whether Cedras would leave the country, although U.S. officials have said they expect he eventually will do so. Cedras has vowed to remain in Haiti.

Parishioners at St. Gerard Roman Catholic church cheered when the Rev. Gerard Jean-Juste, an official in the Aristide government that was toppled three years ago, announced Cedras' imminent departure.

"Tomorrow we should hear that Cedras has left," Jean-Juste said. "But don't clap your hands too much, there is still much work to do."

Under a U.S.-Haitian agreement that averted an invasion, Cedras and Biamby have to leave power by Saturday.

The Haitian sources said Cedras was working Sunday on final preparations for the power transfer.

In a sermon, Jean-Juste accused Haiti's military leaders of "sucking the blood of the people before going into hiding" by taking wealth obtained through corruption with them.

He urged parishioners to remain peaceful this week during pro-democracy demonstrations leading up to Aristide's return.

"We don't need to break down their houses in a violent uprooting," he said of the regime's supporters. "It would be better that they be saved and later used for clinics, hospitals, offices."

Aristide supporters' happiness was tempered by news Sunday that an outspoken pro-Aristide artist, Stevenson Magloire, was beaten to death in broad daylight.

Sources close to the artist's family said about 15 men attacked Magloire, 31, in front of his mother's house in the Port-au-Prince suburb of Petionville Saturday afternoon. His body was later found in a nearby gulch.

Get a life, Pauly

"Owwwww, bud-dy!"

ASU will pay Pauly Shore $12.50 every time he says these words on Oct. 27.

Now, how much would you pay for a first-rate, controversial and popular comedian like Pauly Shore to come to ASU?

$1,000? $750? $500?

How about $15,000! Yes, for a low, low $250 a minute, you'll have the opportunity to offer up two cans of food to charity to listen to Pauly be obnoxious for an entire hour!

Hey — now maybe you're thinking, "Why should I go see Pauly Shore on a Thursday night?"

Simple! Because of his hip shticks from Encino Man, Son-In-Law and MTV shows he's in-touch with our college generation. Hell, just 'cause we don't go to see his movies doesn't mean he's not funny! Yup — Associated Students, planners of the event, guesstimate that between 13,000 and 15,000 people will attend (of course, we still can't tabulate what percentage of those attending will be high school freshmen.)

But wait, that's not all! As a completely free bonus, you can enjoy Totally Pauly's latest comedy routines — homophobia and degrading women! Yes, it's not just for weird people who like to be annoyed anymore; Pauly's for bigots, too!

Just check out a typical line from his newest routine, Pink Diggily Diggily. "...Gay people like me. ... I thought about it, and it's probably because I call myself the weasel, and that's part of the gerbil family!"

Yuk, yuk, yuk! Yes, Pauly's a laugh riot! Gerbil, weasel — who cares if it's not biologically accurate! It's fun-ny!

And for the women of ASU — there's nothing better than Pauly's dildo jokes, vibrator humor and those great one-liners about fondling breasts! Hey — can you do better for $15,000 an hour?

Sure, there might be better things to do with $15,000, like pumping it into Safety Escort Service, hunting down the dustbunnies which have taken over Noble Science Library, or maybe even cooking us burgers (hey, it's been done). Or some really, really spiffy polo shirts.

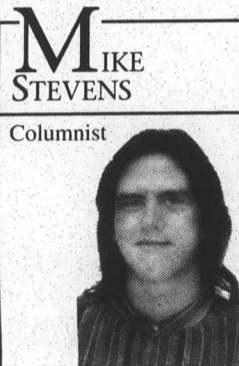

The idea that our glorious people's student government has brought us a California nerd-boy who hasn't grown up yet truly boggles the mind. What can you say? We can all only stand back in awe at the genius that brought us "the weasel" to Tempe. Well, at least it's for charity.

Our recommendation? Bring two cans of food and a big bag of tomatoes.

Watch out for farm town invasion

It would appear that our problems with illegal aliens are a bit more severe than we might have thought. Sure, we've always known about Hispanics creeping across the border at night. Yes, we are more than aware of Haitians and Cubans taking a voyage across the sea to boldly go where millions have gone before. However, the real problem may not be coming from neighboring countries, but rather, neighboring galaxies.

Mike Stevens
Columnist

In recent years, movies have been made on so-called true stories of alien abductions and crashed UFOs. These films, and the controversy surrounding them, have prompted media giants such as Larry King and Montel Williams to devote entire shows to the subject of extraterrestrials. More proof to the growing interest in alien activity is Art Bell. His radio show, which often focuses on other worldly beings, is the top-rated evening program in the country.

Of course, very few people have actually seen UFOs or Grays (a term commonly used for aliens) and those who have, for some odd reason, generally turn out to be inbred farmers who have spent too much time near the still. "Ugh, wahl ya see, it came over dem hills, like Betsy at grub time," the intoxicant will say.

Most of these farmers have tales of late night cattle mutilations. So, either these aliens hate Hindus, or they don't have Burger Kings on Mars. Along with the mutilations, there are tales of alien abductions. As seen in the Star Trek movies, people are literally zapped up from the earth and taken into the belly of large space ships. There, they are stuck with needles, knives and prongs. Some of the abductees even claim to have been raped by the Grays. Raped! Apparently, space can be a sexually frustrating place. Dark. Lonely. Void of a caring voice. After all of these years, we finally learn it wasn't home that ET was phoning. It was 1-900-976-BABE.

Needless to say, these stories are rarely given much credence, and for good reason. People get bored pretty damned easy in the country. Some of you might remember an incident that occurred a couple years back in Russia. A farming community was complaining that aliens were landing in their corn. Indeed, all of the local farms had large circles (some the size of a football field) carved through their crops. However, it was later learned that these circles were created by a couple of old men, an excess of the commonwealth — vodka — and a rather large tractor mower.

Not all sightings are by crackers from the bible belt, though. Aliens and their crafts have been seen in cities, towns and rural districts all over the world. Still the government denies that they have any knowledge of alien existence.

This denial has led many star gazers to form their own opinions on the nature of these close encounters. One popular belief is that mankind is simply an experiment and the Grays are merely recording our progress. This directly contradicts the Bible, though. In response, religious leaders such as Pat Robertson and Oral Roberts are declaring that aliens are demons and that the church will need lots of money to ward these bastions of hell off.

Another belief is that the aliens are in cahoots with our government. The aliens gain access to a large food source (us) and the government gains access to extraterrestrial technology. With this technology, the government has developed such wizardry as the Hubbell Telescope, the Stealth Bomber and LaToya Jackson's breasts.

Still, others stand by the fact that aliens don't exist at all. These flat earthers believe that people have made up UFOs to take their minds off of the horrid realities of life. After all, the notion of facing an invading army of Grays does help to make parking at ASU more tolerable. Well, maybe.

The facts surrounding extra terrestrials may never be known. Reports are sketchy, witnesses are hallucinogenic and the few flying saucers captured by photo are generally covered with country gravy. Despite the lack of substantial proof, UFO sightings occur every day, everywhere and by all walks of life.

Reportedly, aliens have pale skin, short, stubby bodies, a large head and long, pointy ears. Folks, I just want to let you know that's not an alien. It's Ross Perot. Though he may be seeking world domination, I doubt he's after your cows.

Some say, thanks to Jon Kyl, 'Moses' is Republican

Hollywood film veteran Charleton Heston, famed for his role as Moses in The Ten Commandments, who most recently starring with fellow strong Republican Arnold Schwarzenegger in True Lies, was one of several Republican celebrities who spoke Saturday, Sept. 24 in Mesa for a fund-raiser at The Rockin' R Ranch for Senate Republican candidate, Jon Kyl.

"I planned a nice afternoon for you, but I didn't mean for it to be this hot. ... It's not that easy, especially without the stick," Heston said, referring to his role as Moses. "Let my country go," he said as a roar of the crowd more than 600 people applauded Heston.

"We are about to have our country taken from us, not by a foreign country, but by the federal government. The Clinton Administration is trying to control everything that happens," Heston said.

"This state (Arizona) is going to help take the Senate away from this administration," he continued, commenting on the prediction of Jon Kyl's victory over Sam Coppersmith in the upcoming Senate election to replace the current democratic seat held by Dennis DeConcini.

Phoenix Suns guard Danny Ainge and Republican representative candidate J.D. Hayworth held a raffle for Kyl's campaign to start the afternoon's presentations in a fun-spirited atmosphere before a more conservative and serious air would overthrow the fun and games and the more important issues of our government would come into play.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, the only Republican who has stated his official candidacy for president in '96, explained his Contract for America.

"... The contract consists of seven items that can and will be passed within 100 days given the Republicans take the

RICHARD CUNNINGHAM
Guest Columnist

Senate back from the Democrats," Gramm said.

The seven items in the contract go as follows: 1) passing a balanced budget amendment with line item veto authority for president; 2) doubling the tax credit for families with children; 3) reforming health care without government control; 4) restoring national defense; 5) putting real penalties in the crime bill. "For example, enhancing the penalties for criminals using a gun in the crime bill, but unfortunately this proposal was struck out by a democratic subcommittee," Gramm explained; 6) reforming welfare; and 7) repealing Clinton's proposed tax increase of social security benefits. Sen. Gramm stated, to the delight of the crowd, that Clinton's health care plan is dead until after the election in November.

Congressman Jon Kyl, R-Arizona, was the last to speak at the rally. Kyl hammered two key subjects: opposition to Clinton and the need for Republicans to gain control of the Senate. "If the Republicans gain control of the Senate, the Senate can enforce the investigations into Whitewater and other illegal scams, the same way the Democrats investigated Reagan and Bush in The Iran Contra Affair hearings..."

Lately there has been criticism of the Republican Party for obstructing Clinton's proposed programs. But as Americans, one thing we should always remember is when the integrity of the Constitution is threatened with socialistic programs and a draft-dodging president who feels free to send troops into countries that have no use to the United States, (not to mention the billions of tax payer dollars to finance policing the world) obstructionism is a blessing.

Richard C. Cunningham is a senior journalism and pre-med major.

Republicans need simple lessons in democracy, taxes, crime epidemic

As another election draws closer with each tick of the clock, I find myself becoming more concerned than ever before. Why is this, you ask? The answer is as simple as Rush Limbaugh's brain: Republican politics.

Once again, I (or "we," if I didn't recognize myself as the only liberal in Arizona) am faced with the garbage that is spewed from the Republican camp. You know, the same old garbage about decreasing taxes, handing out guns to 2-year-olds, giving rich people vouchers to send their rotten kids to private schools and executing any man, woman or child for committing even the smallest crime. The list of foolish ideas is like the Energizer Bunny, it keeps going and going and going.

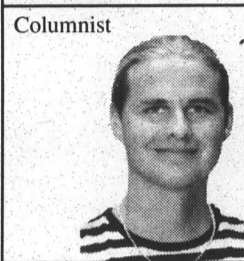

There are many reasons why another Republican (Fife old boy, Kyl with a smile, Hayworth ...) should not be elected for any particular office. One reason is the distribution of vouchers to rich people so they can ship their kids out of the public school system. This all goes back to the "good old boy" network of yesteryear, when politicians gave all sorts of gifts to their comrades because they wanted to keep the constituency happy.

I wonder what genius thought up the idea to give the richest people vouchers to send their kids to private schools. How about giving some inner-city kid the opportunity to attend a so-called superior school? Or even better yet, let's look into making some changes in the public school system instead of pushing it aside to rot.

Another reason why a Republican should not be elected is taxes, or the lack thereof.

How about a simple lesson about a democracy? A government needs to tax people because it needs to provide programs and services to citizens. Fife Symington claims he will eliminate the Arizona state income tax. This is an absurd idea! With Maricopa County more than $62 million in the hole, I cannot see why anyone in their right mind would want to get rid of taxes! I assume that the idea coincides with the percolate-up theory, which is: give tax breaks to the rich, then they will invest in businesses which will create jobs. Blah blah. It's still a bunch of trash. I think I will make a run at being governor on the tax-and-spend ticket. Do you think anybody would vote for me?

BRIAN ANDERSON

The next reason against a Republican for office is the crime "epidemic." Republicans claim that we must be "tough on crime" in order to protect the citizens of this country. Maybe we should start injecting every criminal with the death poison that would end his or her life. That would work until you got pulled over for speeding. (After all, speeding is against the law; hence, you're a criminal.) Besides, who says there is a crime epidemic in the first place?

Republicans have been spouting their incompetent garbage too long. They had 12 long years to reform the system that was not broken before Reagan came in and screwed everything up. Now people are claiming that the Clinton administration has had plenty of time to turn this country around. How can Clinton get anything done with boobs like Bob Dole and Phil Gramm in his way? Get the Republicans out of the House and the Senate and we will be on the road to recovery, baby!

Anderson's 'fanatics' view deserves other studies

This letter is in response to the State Press column by Brian Anderson titled "Fanatics running loose can spook the masses." I want to say that I praise Brian for his insight. I am in agreement with him but we have to look at religion and religious "wackos" dialectically.

Religion can be an "opiate of the masses" as the great Karl Marx said or it can be a tool for the liberation of the people. Let's look at the latter. Jesus Christ was a revolutionary who used religion to fight against the oppression of the Jewish Rabbis and Roman conquerors. Nat Turner was a Baptist preacher who used religion to mobilize the slaves to fight against slavery. During the Haitian Revolution, voodoo was used to mobilize the masses to fight against slavery. The list goes on. I am not negating the millions of wackos that use religion to rip off people. During slavery, slave masters told slaves that God ordained the African race to be "hewers of wood and drawers of water." I live in the ghetto and everywhere there is a church, yet my neighborhood (South Phoenix) is infested with poverty, violence and despair. I agree that every religious pimp, hustler and con artist that use the name of god or Allah to oppress the masses should be killed. I also agree that religion can be both positive and negative; this is what I mean by looking at it dialectically. By the way, I am an atheist.

Loud-party ordinance may fine hosts $1,000

BY BETTY MIHALOPOULOS
STATE PRESS

A Tempe City Council subcommittee tabled for further review Friday a proposed loud-party ordinance that would fine party hosts up to $1,000.

The ordinance was passed unanimously but tabled by the Tempe Public Health and Safety Committee. It will not face the Tempe City Council for at least one month, until the committee studies the proposal and passes its recommendations to the council for a final vote.

Committee members said they liked the ordinance, but wanted to study it for one month. Councilman Dennis Cahill said he has received many calls from constituents backing the proposal.

Tempe police received 5,697 calls complaining about loud parties in fiscal year 1993-1994, according to City of Tempe Police Chief David Brown. Police could not estimate the cost of sending police to the parties.

"One of the things we have noticed over the years is a loud preponderance of noise within our city," said Lt. Steve Graehling of the Tempe Police Department. "It puts a tremendous drain on our resources when we generally have to send at least two officers, if not more, to every loud party."

The ordinance, which defines a party as five or more people gathered together, will help to recoup some of the expenses of continually responding to loud parties, Graehling said.

When police respond to a party the first time and determine it can be a potential problem, the person responsible for the party or whoever owns the residence will be given a copy of a police service fee report, but not charged.

"In the case of a juvenile, officers will ask for the parent's name because the parent will be responsible for the fee," Graehling said. "What the notice says is that your party is a problem and if we return, we are going to be charging you a fee."

Parties would not be charged for the first police visit because that response is considered a normal police service, said Jill Kennedy of the Tempe City Attorney's Office.

If the party has to be responded to a second time, the police chief's office will base the fee on the number of officers required to close down the party, the hourly wage involved and any damage to city property.

Graehling said the second response is more expensive because officers are going there with the intent of breaking up the party as opposed to getting it under control.

"In the first incident there will be two officers sent and in the second probably four," Brown said. Also, he said officers may get to the party and determine it has become larger than the first visit, causing more officers to be requested.

Graehling said repeat calls account for about 25 percent of all complaints.

The ordinance will initially reduce repeat calls in half, he said, and even more once people have to pay fines because of their loud parties.

"What we are talking about is the neighborhood where we have college students or young people who throw a party and invite 20 of their closest friends," Graehling said. "What invariably happens is those 20 people tell 10 other people about the party and suddenly we have gone from a party with 20 friends to a party of 200 to 300 people."

Graehling said high school students as well as college students make money by throwing the parties because anybody can attend them as long as they pay. Party hosts buy kegs of beer and charge people $2 or $3 at the door.

"We have even had cases where after the beer runs out, they will call us to report a loud party so we can come and clear all the customers out," Brown said.

Such parties attract a diverse range of people, leading to problems, he said.

"This is when we start having fights and the neighbors obviously get upset about the noise, the trash in the neighborhood, people urinating in the front yards and underage drinking," Brown said.

POLICE REPORT

ASU police incident reports were not available Sunday. Tempe police reported the following incidents Sunday:

- A 36-year-old man was arrested for shoplifting after he was observed stealing a pair of jeans from Mervyn's. He attempted to obtain a refund with a bogus receipt from another Mervyn's store. He was placed under arrest for shoplifting after he signed the exchange voucher. He claimed that he had a mental disorder and that he was taking lithium.
- A 23-year-old man was arrested for trespass, possession of forgery devices and theft. An employee asked him to leave the premises of the Sun Devil Car Wash at 1212 S. McClintock Drive, but he refused to leave. Upon contact, he was found in possession of false IDs and checkbooks not belonging to him.
- A 35-year-old Tempe man was arrested for disorderly conduct. He was yelling and screaming profanities inside Sammy B's restaurant, 1420 N. Scottsdale Road. After being escorted outside, he began pounding on the doors and windows of the restaurant. He then went across the street to the 7-11 store, 1405 N. Scottsdale Road, where he attempted to buy beer but was refused because he was intoxicated. He also verbally abused a customer who would not buy beer for him.
- A 21-year-old man was arrested for disorderly conduct at The Sawmill bar located at 933 E. University Drive after he was pulled out of the bar for an ID check. During the investigation, he verbally challenged the police by saying twice,

"This is a joke."

- A 21-year-old Tempe man was arrested on one count of domestic violence/disorderly conduct. During an argument with his wife, he punched a countertop and kicked a hole in the living room wall. He was transported to the Tempe City Jail, where he was booked and held to see a judge.
- A 23-year-old Tempe woman was arrested for domestic violence/disorderly conduct. During an argument, she threw a telephone across the living room at her husband. The phone broke a drinking glass on the floor. She was taken to the Tempe City Jail, where she was booked and held to see a judge.
- A 25-year-old Tempe woman was kidnapped and sexually assaulted at 7:45 p.m. Oct. 6. The victim was washing her car at the Soft Suds car wash, 1201 S. Terrace Road, when she heard a noise behind her. She looked back and saw the suspect directly behind her. He pointed a gun, demanded she go with him and forcibly put her in her car. He then forced her to drive to 1851 E. Pima Road, to the rear of Reeve's Auto, where he made her walk into the river bottom. He then sexually assaulted her and took her car, a 1991 Ford Tempo. The victim was left alone and walked to the overpass at McClintock Drive and the freeway. The suspect is described as a white male, 5-foot-10 inches tall with a thin build and crooked teeth. He was wearing a "Casper" Halloween mask.

Congress ends year in bill flurry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Large portions of the California desert will be preserved and Persian Gulf veterans with "undefinable illnesses" will be paid under legislation approved in some of the final acts of the 103rd Congress.

The Senate also approved a string of last-minute bills, all sent to President Clinton for his signature, on which unanimous agreement had been reached before adjourning Saturday. Congress plans to return briefly for a special post-election session devoted to ratification of a world trade pact.

The House completed its regular business shortly after midnight Friday.

A bill that would have allowed governnors to control the amount of interstate garbage coming into their states fell by the wayside. Supporters said one senator had put a hold on the legislation, blocking its passage.

Another last-minute piece of legislation will allow the Securities and Exchange Commission to continue operating. Without the $305 million appropriation, the agency would have been forced to shut down Tuesday.

Early Saturday, the Senate gave final approval to a bill that would require makers of dietary supplements to show they are safe and drop claims that the products cure or prevent illness.

laser-guided bombs and 14 C-130 transports being dispatched from Pope Air Force Base in North Carolina to bolster the more than 100 aircraft now in the region.

Also, KC-10 and KC-135 tankers, AWACs radar planes and C-141 transports were also being sent, military officials said.

RC-135 reconnaissance aircraft from Offutt Air Force Base in Omaha, Neb.; U-2 spy planes from Beale, Calif., and EC-130 communication jammers from Davis-Monthan Air Force Base in Arizona were also being deployed, they added.

But Perry also noted that two of Iraq's premier Republican Guard units were still moving into position, and would not be ready to mount a strike against Kuwait until the end of the week.

Asked whether U.S. forces might attack Baghdad, Perry declined to answer, saying only, "We're prepared to respond with robust force, and we would be very successful in that response. ... If the Iraqis enter Kuwait, they will be soundly defeated."

Top administration officials left no doubt they intended to be ready, no matter what action Iraq took.

"We are not going to allow the mistakes of the past to be repeated," White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta told NBC's Meet the Press. He said Iraqi leader

Saddam Hussein "shouldn't underestimate the resolve or the will of the U.S."

Appearing on CBS's Face The Nation, Perry said more than 60,000 Iraqi troops have been positioned along Kuwait's northern border.

Perry said equipment from Camp Pendleton was already on the way to the gulf by ship so U.S. military leaders would have the option of moving troops to the gulf by air later, "if the crisis still continues."

Other forces moving included 180 Army soldiers from Fort Polk, La., to operate two Patriot missile batteries now located in the gulf, and about 300 Marines from Pendleton who will prepare weapons on board several supply ships headed toward the gulf from Diego Garcia, an island in the Indian Ocean.

On Saturday, Clinton warned Iraq not to misjudge "American will or American power" and ordered the 4,000 Army soldiers from the 24th Infantry Division based at Fort Stewart to head to Kuwait to counter the threat.

Saudi Arabia has more than half a dozen high-tech air bases that served as jumping off points during the Persian Gulf War.

Perry noted that several Navy ships armed with Tomahawk attack missiles were in the Persian Gulf, within easy reach of Iraq or its capital, Baghdad.

TRUMAN SCHOLARSHIP

IN PUBLIC SERVICE

The Harry S. Truman Public Service Scholarship was established by Congress as the nation's premier leadership award. In the past four years ASU has led all public universities with eight Truman Scholars.

Eligibility:

- Full-time juniors who will graduate in December 1995, May 1996, or August 1996.
- Commitment to a career in public service or private nonprofit service organizations.
- Grade point average of 3.5 or above.
- United States citizenship.
- Proposed graduate study relevant to a career in public service. (Law degrees are not included.)
- Strong record of leadership and public service on campus or in the community.

Awards: Scholarships pay $3,000 for the senior year and $27,000 for graduate study. Up to 85 awards will be made nationally in 1995. The ASU Truman faculty committee nominates up to three applicants.

Applications may be picked up in McClintock Hall, Room 135 or 112b. An 800-word public policy memo is a required part of the application.

ASU deadline is October 26

GOLDWATER SCHOLARSHIP

IN MATHEMATICS, THE NATURAL SCIENCES AND ENGINEERING

The Barry M. Goldwater Scholarship was established by Congress as the nation's premier undergraduate award in these disciplines. In the last two years ASU has achieved one of the best success rates in the country - 7 winners in 1993 and 1994! This ranks us in the top 5 per cent of participating institutions.

If you are an outstanding sophomore or junior student in mathematics, the natural sciences or engineering, then please be advised that there will be three informational meetings on the 1995 Goldwater Scholarship during the week of October 10:

Monday, Oct. 10, 7 - 8 pm,	McClintock Hall, room 138
Wednesday, Oct. 12, 1 - 2 pm,	MU Navajo room 219
Thursday, Oct. 13, 4 - 5 pm,	Physical Sci. bldg., room PS A302

All three meetings will relay the same information, etc., so plan on attending only one of them.

A Goldwater scholarship provides $7,000 a year for tuition, fees, books, and room-and-board for 1 or 2 years. The ASU Goldwater faculty committee nominates up to four applicants.

ASU deadline is November 15

ASU breaks trend, pulls out win in 4th quarter

Baker's field goal seals victory for Sun Devils

BY TODD KELLY
STATE PRESS

The fourth quarter of Saturday's ASU-Stanford game started out like a recurring nightmare for the Sun Devils.

In losses to Louisville and California, the Sun Devils faltered in the fourth quarter and lost two tough games.

This game had all the makings of another heartbreaker.

Brian Manning caught a 24-yard touchdown pass to start the fourth quarter to put Stanford up 28-27.

Less than a minute later, ASU's Jake Plummer threw his only interception of the game. After a penalty, the Cardinal had a first down on the ASU 7-yard line.

Three plays later, Stanford scored again and took an eight-point lead with 12:27 left in the game.

So the setting was familiar, but how the Sun Devils responded was the difference.

While Stanford's Steve Stenstrom broke John Elway's school record for career passing yards in the second quarter, it was Plummer who pulled an Elway-like miracle out of his hat. Plummer rallied the Sun Devils to a thrilling 36-35 victory in the fourth quarter in front of 49,051 fans in Sun Devil Stadium.

On the game-winning drive that covered 58 yards in 5:14, ASU (2-3 overall, 2-1 Pac-10) converted on fourth down three times.

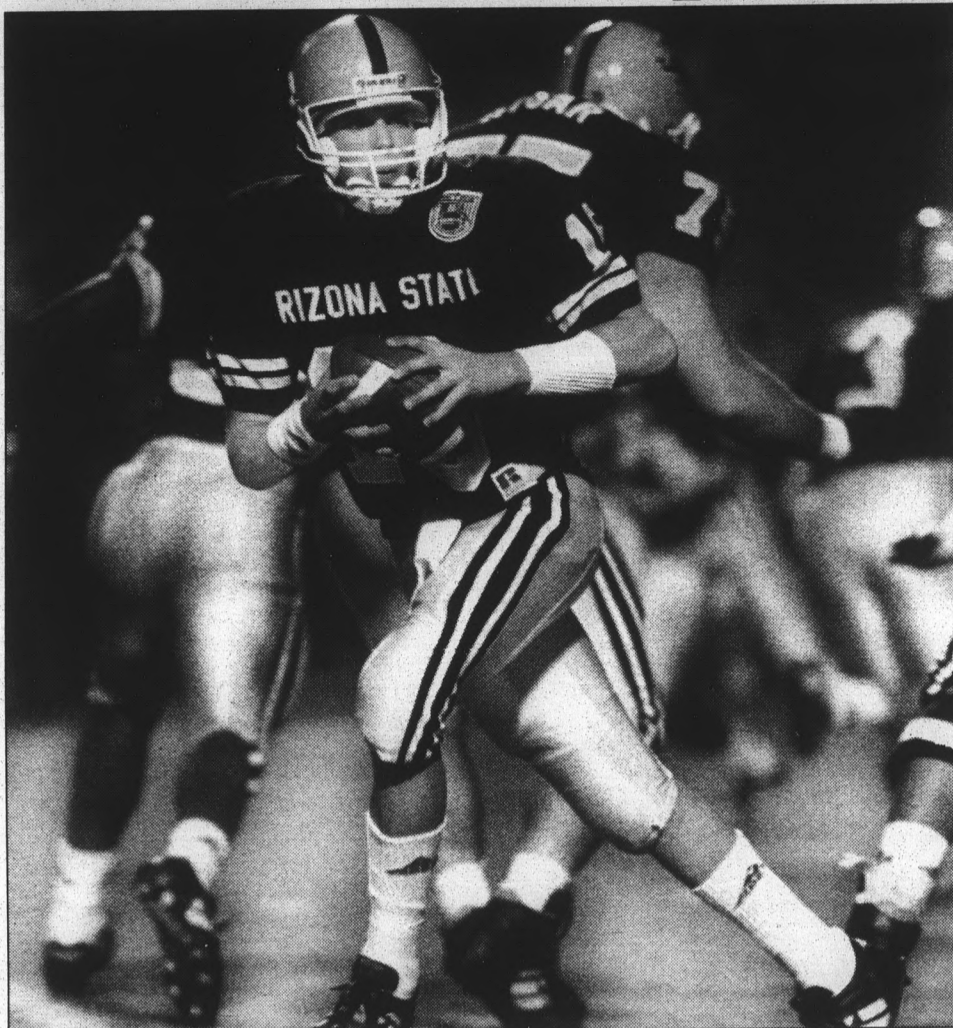

Jon Baker sealed the win with :06 left with a 38-yard field goal.

"We just came out and did what we had to do," said Plummer, who had special praise for the offensive line. "We got it done when we had to."

"We needed this win like we needed any win," Baker said. "This puts us back on the way up. This team was looking for something, and I think we found it tonight."

What the Sun Devils found was the determination to win a game that they truly deserved to win.

After leading 20-8 at the half and 27-15 halfway through the third quarter, Stanford (1-3-1, 0-2) stormed back behind the arm of Stenstrom and the running of fullback

Newsome makes presence felt in 1st action of season

BY DAN MILLER
STATE PRESS

Starting cornerback Craig Newsome made his presence felt in the ASU secondary for the first time this year in ASU's victory over Stanford Saturday.

Newsome, a 6-foot, 183-pound senior, was forced into the role of a spectator for the first four games of the season after he was declared academically ineligible.

"It was tough for me just to sit there and watch," he said. "But I'm back now. It felt good to be out there playing with the team again."

Newsome posted five solo tackles and three assists in the Sun Devils dramatic 36-35 win over Stanford.

"I'm just gonna take it one game at a time now," Newsome said. "I was a little bit slow out there. I still have a couple of things to work on."

Stanford quarterback Steve Stenstrom and his fleet of receivers rarely challenged Newsome's side of the field in the first half. But with 5:20 left in the third quarter, Newsome was flagged on a 12-yard pass interference call that gave the Cardinal the ball on the ASU 5-yard line. The Cardinal scored on the next play to cut ASU's lead to 27-22.

"I'm not sure what happened on that (play)," Newsome said. "I was just going up for the pick and I made contact."

It became clear that Newsome was back before the game even began when he triumphantly re-assumed his duty of wielding the team flag during the Sun Devils' charge onto the field.

ASU Coach Bruce Snyder praised Newsome's comeback debut.

"I think he did a great job," he said. "He hits a ton. He's a great leader. (He played with) a lot of emotion for the game. I thought he did really well considering it was his first game."

Jim Poulin/State Press

Senior cornerback Craig Newsome (7) resumed his duty of carrying the ASU flag onto the field before Saturday's game against Stanford. Newsome saw his first action of the season against the Cardinal.

ASU defeats No. 22 WSU after falling to unranked Washington

BY LEE NEWMAN
STATE PRESS

The 13th-ranked ASU volleyball team is on a roller-coaster ride it can't seem to get off of.

Last weekend, ASU had "a definite turn in the season" with its victory over UofA, according to ASU senior Leanne Schuster.

This weekend, the Sun Devils lost in four games to unranked Washington, 8-15, 15-11, 11-15 and 0-15, and just escaped with a five-game victory against 22nd-ranked Washington State, 15-12, 15-8, 10-15, 10-15 and 15-9.

Friday night, ASU (9-5 overall, 4-3 Pac-10) was beaten almost single-handedly by Washington's Dragana Djordjevic. In four games, Djordjevic led the Huskies with 27 kills and a .511 hitting percentage. The Sun Devils were led in kills by junior Christine Garner with 14. However, Garner also led the team with 10 errors and had a .098 hitting percentage. Schuster, who averages 3.36 kills per game had only six kills in the match and a negative hitting percentage.

Washington (9-6, 4-3) shutout ASU in the final game. A game in which ASU recorded only one kill and had a .154 hitting percentage.

"Washington is very unpredictable," ASU Coach Patti Snyder said. "They're a real all-or-none type of team."

Saturday night, it looked like the Sun Devils had turned things around winning their first two games against Washington State (11-6, 4-4). The Sun Devils lost their next two games but were able to hang on in the fifth and final game to come out with the victory.

ASU improved in every offensive category, including notching 29 more kills than the night before. Garner improved her hitting percentage to .286 and once again led the Sun Devils in kills with 23. Schuster led the team in digs with 24. Senior Kathy Culbreath had a good game, recording 20 digs and a .356 hitting percentage, while sophomore Kirstin Mattson grabbed nine total blocks and five block solos.

Before the matches, Garner said that if the Sun Devils

Cowboys crush Cardinals in Ryan's worst defeat

By DAN MILLER
STATE PRESS

The World Champion Dallas Cowboys massacred the Arizona Cardinals 38-3 Sunday in Irving, Texas, handing Cardinals Coach Buddy Ryan his worst defeat as a head coach.

"Our defensive game plan stunk," Cardinals Coach Buddy Ryan admitted. "I made some bad calls that hurt the defensive team, so put the hat on me."

The Cowboys (4-1) began the annihilation on their opening possession. Four Cardinals penalties fueled a seven-play, 83-yard drive that culminated with a two-yard touchdown toss from Troy Aikman to full-back Darryl Johnston.

The Cardinals (1-4) were penalized a total of 10 times for 92 yards in the game, which solidified their prior distinction as the most penalized team in the NFL.

"We had to show the world we're a good football team," Ryan said. "Today we didn't prove that on national (television). It's embarrassing."

Quarterback Jay Schroeder made friends with the Dallas secondary early, firing the first of his three interceptions to safety Darren Woodson on Arizona's second drive of the game.

Cowboys running back Emmitt Smith, who played with an ailing hamstring, scored his first of two touchdowns three plays later to give Dallas a 14-0 lead.

Midway through the second quarter, Schroeder gift wrapped another pass to former ASU star Woodson, giving Dallas the ball at the Cardinals 26.

Aikman found Michael Irvin on a 12-yard touchdown pass three snaps later to give the Cowboys a 28-0 halftime advantage.

Still, Ryan remained optimistic. "I told them if Dallas can score 28 points, we could score 28 points — the score was 0-0," Ryan said of his halftime speech. "I think we went out and got after people pretty well."

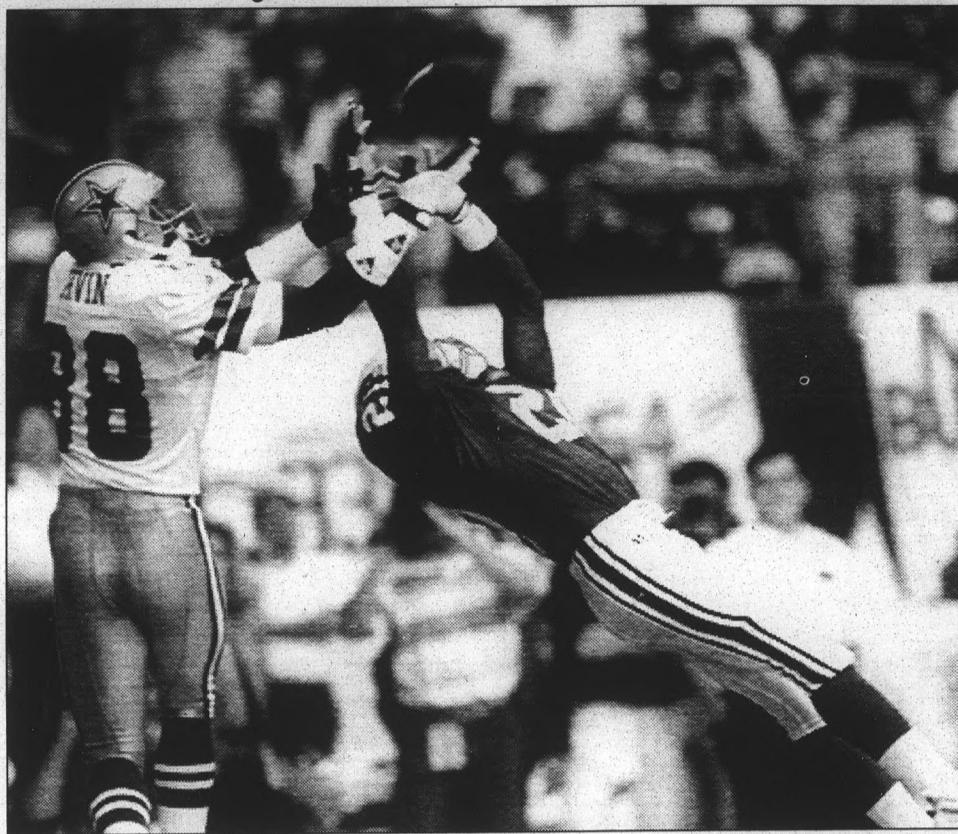

Back-up quarterback Steve Beuerlein was summoned to sort through the wreckage after Schroeder exited with shoulder and elbow injuries. Beuerlein didn't fare much better, throwing two interceptions of his own before Dallas called off the dogs.

"I knew with the game getting out of hand that there was a chance I might be going in," he said. "I feel like I'm throwing with a lot more confidence now, but I still made some bad decisions out there."

Beuerlein did engineer a 10-play, 48-yard drive in the third quarter that ended with a Greg Davis 47-yard field goal that hit the right upright and fell over the crossbar, saving the Cardinals from being blanked.

But the Cardinals comeback effort was short-lived as the Cowboys' Kevin Williams returned the ensuing kickoff 87-yards for the game's final tally.

Aikman left in the fourth quarter after completing 16-of-22 passes for 231 yards and two touchdowns. Irvin had a field day with 138 yards on eight catches.

Adam Salina, who scored three of Stanford's five touchdowns.

Salina's last touchdown of the night appeared to be the dagger in the heart of the Sun Devils. It gave the Cardinal a 35-27 lead.

ASU had already lost right tackle DeMario Vaughn and defensive rush tackle Shawn Swayda to injuries.

Stanford's eight-point lead seemed too steep a mountain to climb.

But Plummer, tailback Chris Hopkins, flyback Parnell Charles, receivers Clyde McCoy and Keith Poole, as well as the entire offensive line, would not let this one get away.

Plummer was 5 for 7 passing on the final drive, including a gutsy 13-yard scramble.

"I think we learned our lessons the last two games," Poole said. "We went into the fourth quarter with the lead, and we shouldn't have lost those games. And I think that gave us the drive to win this one.

"We knew we blew the last couple of games. We weren't going to blow three in a row in the fourth quarter. That's what gave us the strive to win it."

"It's all about a win and how you're going to come down with it," Hopkins said. "And I think that's what we did out there."

The key fourth down conversions on the final drive impressed Hopkins the most.

"That showed a lot of poise and a dedication to win. I'm just fortunate to play on a team with these kind of guys with this kind of character and heart," he said.

"I'm really proud of this team because this season so far has been very painful," ASU Coach Bruce Snyder said. "If you put this next to that (the previous losses), the degree of emotion is almost indescribable.

"I'm very proud of the team and I think that they know they're better than their record is right now."

Men's golf to compete in Friendship Match in Japan

BY DAWN WAGNER
STATE PRESS

The ASU men's golf team starts play in its first international competition today in Tangura, Japan. The Topi Cup/Friendship Matches is a tournament pitting the best of Japan against the best of the United States.

The match, which was originally called the U.S./Japan Friendship Matches, will be held on the par-72, 6,648-yard Sangura Golf Club. In its 11th season, the tournament hosts a total of 14 teams for three days of competition.

The Sun Devils are one of only four teams representing the United States. With three of the top four NCAA teams traveling to the tournament, top-ranked Stanford, No. 3 UNLV and fourth-ranked ASU, Coach Randy Lein said he is expecting a good show from the Americans.

"This is the strongest group of American teams to go over there in a while," Lein said. "For the past two years, Japan has won the title. So hopefully, with three of the top four teams in the nation competing, that won't happen this year."

Of the five players competing for ASU, senior Larry Barber, junior Joey Snyder and sophomores Chris Hanell, Scott Johnson and Hunter Johnson, only one has been to Japan before.

Snyder traveled to Japan this summer for an exchange program and said he is excited to make the trip back.

"They treat us really nice over there," Snyder said. "They fly us over, they take us to the course and then all we do is play golf. That's all we're going to have time to do is play golf."

Expectations run high for Lein, who coached the USC team in the Friendship Matches in 1984.

"The course is one I know already, and it is very short and hilly," Lein said. "Distance isn't a necessity, just placement."

"The format is pretty much like the play here. You play 54 holes and take the top four out of five scores for each of the three days. We should do pretty well. We've got a couple of guys who have been playing well so far this fall."

The competition remains a mystery for the Sun Devils who have never seen their competition play.

"I don't think any of the Japanese teams I played against this summer we'll be playing against, so I don't know really what to expect," Snyder said. "I just hope that we play well."

However, Snyder does know one thing for certain about the trip.

"We're expecting to be very tired," he said.

were to be successful they had to take control early and that proved to be the case. In game one of ASU's victory over Washington State, the Sun Devils committed only three errors and had a .326 hitting percentage compared to the Cougars' .169 hitting percentage and 14 errors. However, in game one of ASU's loss to Washington, the Sun Devils committed 10 errors and were beaten by the Huskies in kills and hitting percentage.

This weekend, ASU faces two more Pac-10 foes, including Saturday night's test against the No. 1 team in the country, Stanford.

Your INDIVIDUAL HOROSCOPE
FRANCES DRAKE

For Monday, October 10, 1994
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)
At first, it looks like the day will slip by without much progress. Then, you get inspired and it's full speed ahead. In business, you're on top of things now!
TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20)
A negotiation may be difficult to start with, but then agreements are happily reached. Partners are on the same wave length. A friend appreciates your advice.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
Not only are you able to make a fine start now with a project, but you'll also finish it with a flourish. Self-discipline and mental acuity combine effectively.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
Dealing with someone who is overly sensitive may be trying early in the day, but you and a partner will definitely click now. Together, you're the dynamic duo!
LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22)
Work efforts may be a bit muddled as the day begins, but later, you're a fountainhead of efficiency. Once you apply yourself, there's no stopping you.
VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)
You and a partner will be working on something today and you'll be pleased with what you accomplish together. Joy comes through hobbies and time spend with children.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)
It's not the best day for shopping or entertaining guests, but home-based activities will be rewarding. You'll make progress with a do-it-yourself project.

WANTED
I NEED CD's, you need cash!! Any condition - will comt to U. 1-800-551-3907 or 1-800-835-7712

TUTORS

COMPUTER HELP - Serving ASU since 1983. 838-5966.

MATH AND Computer Science tutoring. 5+ years experience. $10/hr. Royce, 438-0252.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)
Your ability to call a spade a spade could get you in trouble, unless you voice your views with tact. You're insightful now and your judgment is excellent.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)
This is a good day for handling chores and getting things done around the house. You may derive more pleasure from mental interests than from socializing now.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19)
You'll want to stay away from superficial types now as you'll be in a serious frame of mind and will seek to share your views with those who are also serious.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18)
A few interruptions could delay your progress for a while today, but, later, you'll rise above distractions and will accomplish what you set out to do.
PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20)
You may have to pay extra attention to details at work today. Stay focused and it will be a day of progress. Socializing will do you a world of good after dark.
YOU BORN TODAY are both independent and cooperative. You can succeed in business for yourself, and usually are successful because of your diplomatic manner. You are philosophic in outlook and often drawn to such fields as counseling, writing, law, and religion. Businesses related to the arts often appeal to you, though you may be artistically talented as well. Birthdate of: Helen Hayes, actress; Tanya Tucker, singer; and Johnny Green, songwriter.
