SO EASY, SO DEADLY

Ingredients for bombs readily available

BY DAVID PROFFITT
STATE PRESS

It's so easy, it's scary. Books like The Anarchists' Cookbook and TV shows like MacGyver show simple and easy ways to make explosives — and someone in Oklahoma City has been paying attention.

By using fertilizer and fuel oil, terrorists were able to kill dozens of people in a blast that rocked the Alfred Murrah Federal Building Wednesday.

Don Christian, a criminalist with the Arizona Department of Public Safety, said it would be easy to obtain enough material to make a bomb with the power to blast a crater eight feet deep and 30 feet wide, like the one in Oklahoma.

"Within an hour, I could have a 1,000 pounds of (bomb material)," Christian said. He said a blast comparable to the one in Oklahoma could be made with a relatively small amount of explosives.

The FBI announced Thursday that the bomb was a half-ton of home-made explosives inside a rented van that was parked in front of the building.

An axle believed to have come from the vehicle was found about two blocks from the bombing scene.

Authorities are investigating fertilizer purchases in Kansas, where the attackers rented the van.

A retired army demolitions expert in Phoenix, who demanded anonymity, said the directions to make this type of bomb could be found in sources as accessible as

Louganis forum to focus on AIDS education, prevention

BY PATTY KING
STATE PRESS

Greg Louganis' next platform will not be a diving board.

The two-time Olympic champion who recently revealed his homosexuality will speak in Tempe Sunday as part of a forum to educate high school students about AIDS awareness and prevention.

The forum, called "Talkzone Live," is scheduled from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Red River Opry in Tempe. It is geared toward a teenage audience, but 75 tickets are available for any ASU students who wish to attend.

Louganis will speak on a discussion panel with four Arizona young people afflicted with HIV or AIDS. Also speaking is an AIDS expert from St. Joseph's Children's Hospital in Phoenix, said April Schoenle, promotions director of the Marion Foundation, which is sponsoring the event. The foundation is a non-profit group that attempts to improve communications between teenagers, parents and teachers.

"We tried to format this as something like 'Donahue meets MTV,'" Schoenle said. "We wanted to give the audience an opportunity to ask as many questions as possible."

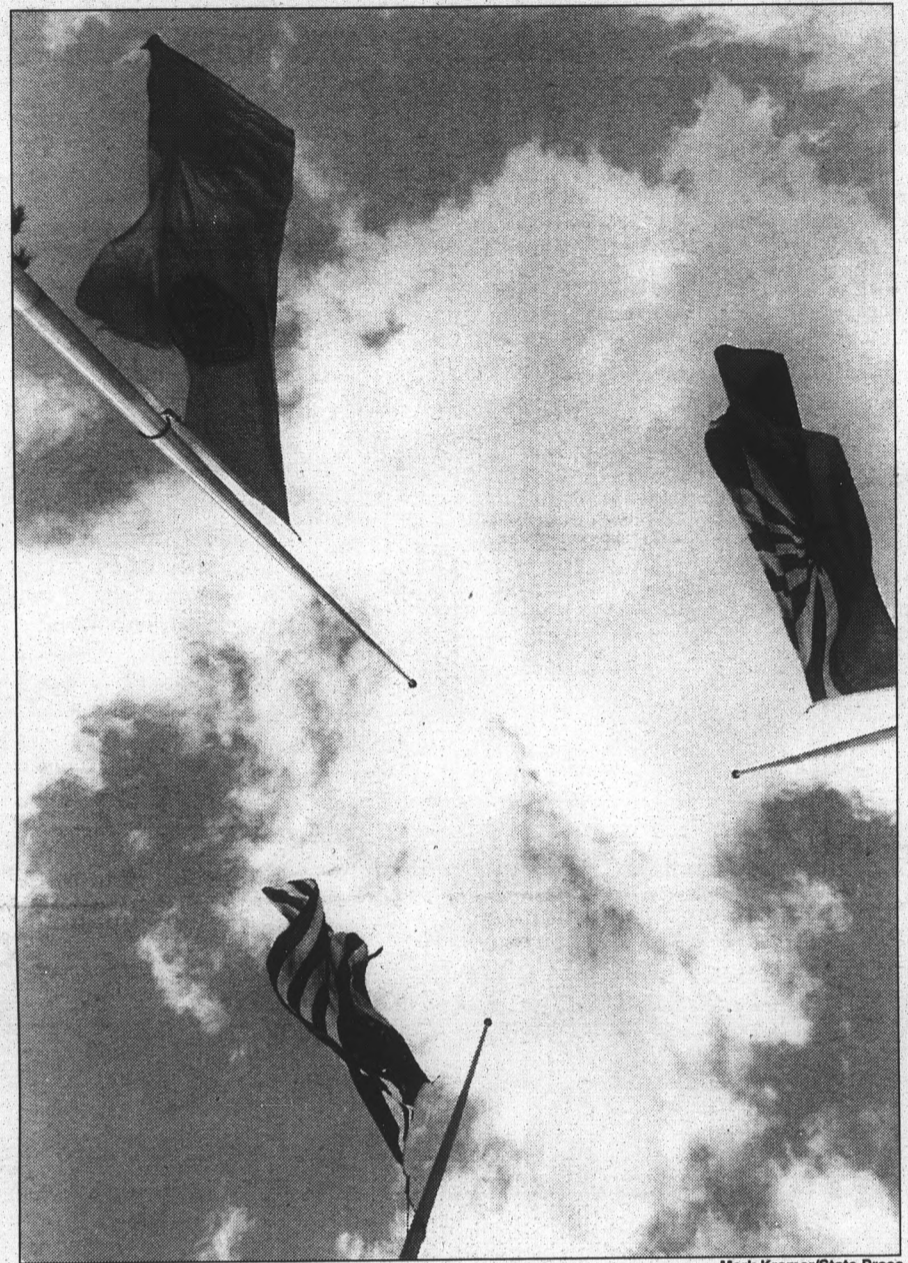

Television star Alan Thicke will host the event. He will be roving the audience with a microphone.

Louganis will also answer audience members' questions on other problems he has dealt with, including dyslexia, family abuse and low self-esteem, Schoenle said.

She added that Louganis does not plan to focus on his homosexuality when speaking

Alumni ice cream social keeps traditions alive

BY ANGELA MULL
STATE PRESS

In 1894, students arrived at Arizona Territorial Normal School amid the clatter of horse hooves and paid 50 cents to keep their animals on school grounds.

Today, students arrive at the same school, now called ASU, amid gas fumes and blaring horns and pay anywhere from $45 to more than $100 to park on campus.

Though some of the old ways have died, one has not: ASU's Alumni Association has reinstated the ice cream social tradition upon which it was founded in 1894.

"Part of the purpose of the ice cream social is to give people the opportunity to become more familiar with what the Alumni Association does and learn more about the alumni tradition," said John Fees, the association's associate director.

In honor of the association's 101st anniversary, alumni and other University officials will serve free ice cream cones to faculty, staff and students from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. by the fountain in front of Old Main. The ice cream social was brought back last year for the association's 100th anniversary.

Among the association's yearly activities are Homecoming and Founder's Day, which recognizes faculty and alumni for their achievements and service to the University and community. The association is also involved in student recruitment and scholarships.

"One of the primary purposes is to help graduates succeed and achieve their goals," Fees said.

With the purchase of either a $20 one-year membership or $250 life membership, graduates receive a "grad pack." It includes an alumni license plate, a discount book with resume services and a resource book of career programs. Fees said about 3,000 of the 15,000 paid memberships are for life. ASU has about 200,000 alumni worldwide, and about 8,000 students graduate each year, he said.

Provost Milton Glick said the association is key for forming long-term relationships with alumni.

"(It) is an important mechanism to keep connections to alumni and help us build a constituency so we can serve them throughout their lives," he said.

In addition to helping students, the association also made an impact on ASU in 1958 when it worked to change the name to Arizona State University from Arizona State College. In 1989, it initiated ASU license plate sales. Part of the proceeds go toward a scholarship fund.

In July, Tempe Mayor Neil Giuliano was named interim executive director. The permanent position is expected to be named by next week. Giuliano said he has enjoyed working with the Alumni Association staff and volunteers and looks forward to assisting the transition to a new executive director.

"I know that because the organization is strong, under new leadership it will move further ahead," he said.

Bombs

an encyclopedia.

The only things required are a substance containing large amounts of nitrogen and other flammable material. When mixed, the solution is inert, and therefore easily transportable — a blasting cap or other incendiary device is required to ignite it, he said.

"An explosion is just a rapid burning, ... when it's contained it explodes," he said.

Police can determine what materials were used in the bomb by examining the chemical residue left in the crater, and failing that, simply guessing based on what materials are available to the general public.

One of the main criteria police use to determine what was used in a blast is easy access to ingredients that could have caused it.

"They have to look at what's easily obtainable," Christian said. "Ammonium nitrate (found in chemical fertilizers) is easier to obtain than C-4 (plastic explosive)."

He said the location and position of bomb fragments are also important to determine exactly where the bomb exploded and what it was made of. Rescue workers can disturb a site so much that it becomes almost impossible to tell anything from it, but when lives are at stake, "the rules change a little bit," he said.

"The poor people (working at the bomb scene) over there have a problem that they want to rescue people, but they also have to worry about disturbing evidence and finding out who did this," Christian said.

Finding evidence at a bomb scene is a "long, slow process," he said. Workers and investigators must move literally tons of rubble to find only a few fragments that can tell them anything.

Tempe Police said there has never been a major bombing in Tempe, yet Tempe DPS employs bomb experts ready to dispose of explosive devices.

In 1994, Tempe DPS received 31 calls concerning bombs.

Most of these calls are false alarms and no bombs are found, said Toby Dyas, Tempe Police public information officer.

"It's usually disgruntled employees who want to cause businesses some grief," he said.

to the teenage audience.

"I'm sure if someone asks him a question relating to that, it will be addressed, but briefly... and then we'll move on," she said.

Mike Brown, facilitator of Lambda League, an umbrella organization for ASU gay, lesbian and bisexual groups, said he wouldn't mind if Louganis discussed his sexual orientation or safe sex practices with high-schoolers.

"Most high schools in Arizona are definitely lacking in education on safer sex, particularly as it relates to gay men and lesbians," he said.

Marc Wendell, an openly gay member of the Associated Students of ASU, contacted the foundation to get tickets for ASU students. He said it is important for gays and lesbians, especially celebrities, to "come out" because it shows society that anybody can be homosexual.

"When a celebrity of (Louganis') stature comes out, it does a great service to the community," he said.

Brown said even if someone in the audience complains about Louganis' comments on homosexuality, it will be beneficial in the long run.

"Even negative reactions tend eventually to have a positive effect," he said. "If someone stands up in the audience and says something ridiculously phobic, it tends to make the phobic viewpoint look extremist and untenable. It helps the speaker's credibility."

Wendell said that students interested in attending the forum can call the ASASU main desk at 965-3161. They can then pick up their tickets at Red River Opry at 2 p.m. Sunday.

FBI fingers 2 suspects in bombing

Death toll continues to rise; possible witness detained in London

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Moving swiftly to solve the deadliest bombing in U.S. history, the FBI issued arrest warrants Thursday for two men suspected of renting the truck that blew apart the federal building with a half-ton of home-brewed explosives. The death toll rose to 52.

In London, a third man, a Jordanian-American described by U.S. officials as a possible witness in the attack, was put on a plane back to the United States for questioning. Italian officials said his bags, seized in Rome, contained possible bomb-making tools.

Jon Hansen, assistant fire chief, said 40 bodies were removed from the bombed-out Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building, and rescue workers searching a lower level came upon another group of corpses. He said rescuers stopped counting at a dozen.

About 150 people remained unaccounted for, he said.

Earlier in the day, rescue teams briefly suspended the search for survivors for fear workers could become buried; they resumed crawling through the nine-story hulk after shattered columns were reinforced with steel and concrete.

Gov. Frank Keating reported a firefighter told him: "You find out whoever did this. All I've found in here are a baby's finger and an American flag."

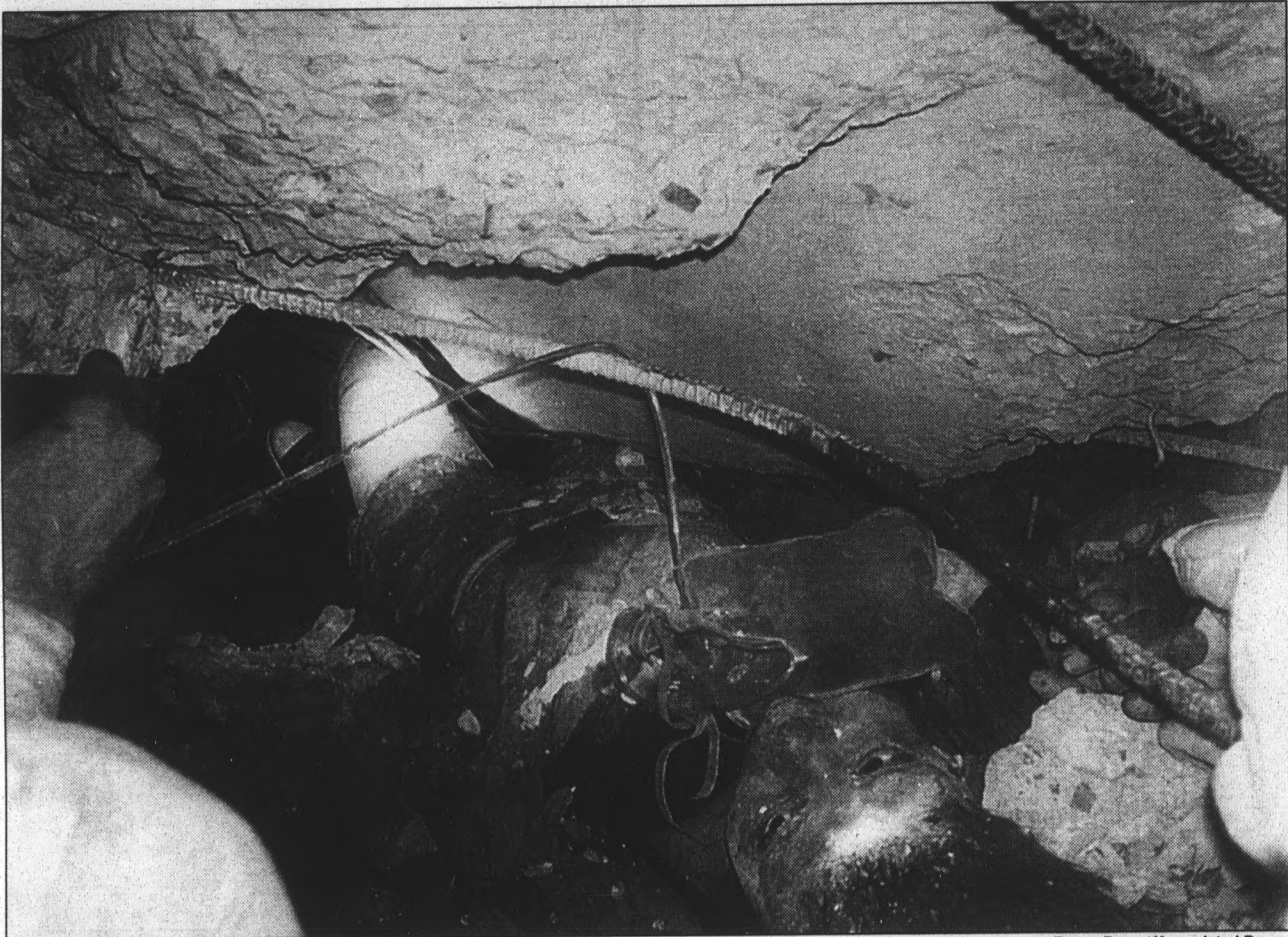

FBI Agent Weldon Kennedy said arrest warrants have been issued for two white men suspected of using aliases to rent the truck used in the car bombing Wednesday morning. The men's identities were not known, he said.

Investigators said the truck was rented April 17, packed with fuel-and-fertilizer explosives and parked outside the office building, where the blast tore away half the structure and blew a crater 8 feet deep and 30 feet across.

An axle thought to have come from the vehicle was found about two blocks away, said a police source who spoke on condition of anonymity. Major auto parts are marked with an ID number to thwart thieves. Two years ago, the vehicle ID number on a piece of axle enabled investigators to break the World Trade Center bombing case.

A federal law enforcement official, demanding anonymity, said investigators believe the truck was rented in Kansas and are checking fertilizer dealers in that state to try to trace the fertilizer used in the bomb.

Dave Russell, a Ryder Truck Rental official, said the FBI had contacted his company about a truck rented from Elliott's Body Shop in Junction City, Kan., about 270 miles north of Oklahoma City. Russell said he could not comment further.

The FBI issued sketches of the two suspects after sending an artist to Junction City to talk to witnesses.

In Washington, Attorney General Janet Reno announced a $2 million reward for information leading to arrests in the case.

CNN reported that three men were arrested — two in Dallas, one in Oklahoma City — on immigration charges and were being questioned in the bombing. The men had stopped to ask an Oklahoma Highway Patrol officer for directions Wednesday, and the officer was suspicious enough to write down their car's license plate number — which turned out to be registered to a rental car and not the vehicle they were driving, the network said.

However, an official at the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Washington denied INS had anyone in custody in Dallas or Oklahoma City.

A law enforcement source in New York told The Associated Press that one of the men named by CNN, Asad R. Siddiqy, a cab driver from Queens, arrived in Oklahoma City about an hour before the blast and is considered a suspect.

As for the man taken into custody in London, he was detained because he had "some incriminating stuff in his baggage" that apparently escaped notice at the airport in Chicago, said a U.S. counterterrorism official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

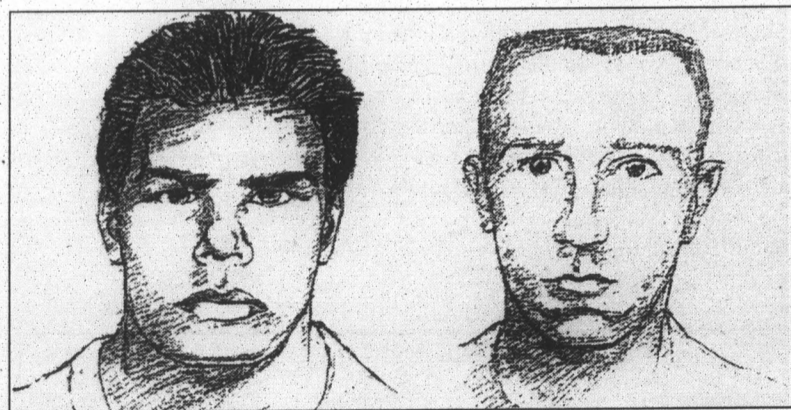

Italian officials said the three duffel bags contained electrical tape, silicone, a hammer, tweezers and a photo album with pictures of missiles and other weapons. One of the bags contained a luggage tag bearing the handwritten name Abraham Ahmad and an Oklahoma City address. Officials in London said Ahmad held a U.S. passport.

The government has received calls from people saying they were from various Muslim groups and claiming responsibility for the bombing.

Up until Wednesday, the deadliest bombing in U.S. history was in 1927, when a man fearful he couldn't pay his property taxes lined a school near Lansing, Mich., with

Clinton to bombers: 'There is no place to hide'

Associated Press

The Justice Department released these artist renderings of the men suspected in Wednesday's bombing in Oklahoma City. The government announced a $2 million reward for information leading to their arrest and conviction.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton pledged Thursday to track down the Oklahoma City bombers anywhere in the world, declaring, "There is no place to hide."

"Whoever did it, we will find out and there will be justice that will be swift and certain and severe," Clinton said at a Rose Garden news conference. Earlier he ordered tighter security at thousands of federal buildings throughout the nation.

"Nobody can hide anyplace in this country, nobody can hide anyplace in this world from the terrible consequences of what has been done," the president said. He said 200 FBI agents were working on the case in Oklahoma City.

Underscoring the gravity of the situation, Clinton said, "Make no mistake about it, this was an attack on the United States, our way of life and everything we believe in."

Out of respect for the bombing victims, Clinton ordered that American flags be lowered to half staff at federal buildings and grounds across the country. In Oklahoma City, rescue workers were still searching the rubble of the Alfred P. Murrah federal building for survivors.

Clinton urged Americans not to jump to any conclusion about the nationalities of the perpetrators, saying, "We should not stereotype anybody."

"This is not a question of anybody's country of origin. This is not a question of anybody's religion. This was murder, this was evil, this was wrong. Human beings everywhere, all over the world, will condemn this out of their own religious convictions."

Injured baby seen worldwide dead, firefighter says

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Unidentified in death even by sex, the baby who was carried from the smoking ruins of the federal building in a photograph displayed on front pages around the world ended up as just another of the bombing's victims.

The child was pronounced dead by emergency medical technicians, said firefighter Chris Fields, whose attempt to rescue the baby was captured by an amateur photographer and transmitted worldwide by The Associated Press.

The picture appeared in the State Press yesterday.

It's unclear exactly when the youngster died. Fields said emergency medical workers pronounced the child dead on arrival.

The child was believed to have been in a government day care center on the second floor of the building. Neither the center's operator nor a worker could identify the child from the photos.

Fields estimated the child was 6 months to 9 months old, but said he couldn't tell if the baby was a boy or a girl.

"Its little face was covered in insulation and dust," Fields said. "I couldn't tell if the skull was cracked — the head was cut open."

He said all he could think about was his own 2-year-old son.

Fields and his unit worked 13 straight hours pulling people from the rubble. Each time he stopped to catch his breath, Fields said, "the first thing that would come into my mind was that baby."

STATE PRESS Boos & Bravos

BOO — To President Clinton's ridiculous remarks that Robert McNamara's book, admitting that in hindsight the war in Vietnam was foolish, means that Clinton was correct to serve as war protester. In an obvious effort to attempt to dodge the draft dodger and coward labels that Republicans will gleefully slap on him in the 1996 election, Clinton has failed to learn the lessons of history that McNamara has achieved. Back to Oxford with you, Mr. President — it's not a black and white issue. McNamara, for all his past failures or misjudgments, is gutsy enough to come forth and admit that the government — that he himself — is capable of making mistakes. That's a lesson Clinton might want to learn.

BRAVO — To the Phoenix Roadrunners. Our local, under appreciated IHL hockey team is a hot prospect in the current league playoffs. One of the few local professional teams that doesn't make the cover of the local newspapers, oh, every other day, the Runners are due a little attention. Let's give it to them.

BOO — To the latest and hottest pog on the market, one featuring the face of O.J. Simpson. Since playing the game involves whacking the individual pogs with a slammer, across the nation young children are being taught to whack 'im. What's next, the O.J. video game? Perhaps a cameo in Mortal Combat? How 'bout the Who Offed Nicole? board game (ages 9 - 13): "Um, Kato in the kitchen with a wrench?"

BRAVO — To the end of a 12-month cruise of the USS Eisenhower — the first ship in the U.S. Navy which has sailed with women serving in combat positions. Although marred by a few, er, unexpected developments in the pregnancy department, the cruise serves to show that, yes, the integration of women into combat services is practical.

BOO — To the local television station which, in a desperate attempt to find a local angle on the Oklahoma City explosion, interviewed members of the Suns who are from Oklahoma. Kill two birds with one stone, eh?

BRAVO — To the 101st anniversary of the ASU Alumni Association. Good lord, is this university actually that old? Hmmm, with a century behind us one would think we'd have more traditions ... or perhaps, considering the attendance in some of the classes, they had some sort of "tradition orientation" when we were freshmen, and everyone missed it.

BRAVO — To Earth Day, which celebrated its 25th anniversary this week. In a world where environmental degradation continues apace, it's important that we put some time aside each year to consider what impact we might have on the planet.

Pushing views onto others will only result in retaliation

One morning before class last week I was sitting on one of our campus's marvelously comfortable concrete benches when, from out of nowhere, I was besieged by a radical Christian bible-thumper who virtually begged me to join his Sunday school group for some sort of prayer session. When I politely told him no thank you, he persisted. He began asking about my religious beliefs and was sure to mention that "Jesus Christ died for your sins."

JIM MAHIN
Columnist

Once more I insisted, this time rather adamantly, that I was really not interested. He seemed somewhat shocked and offended as he sullenly walked away. Imagine how he would have felt if I hadn't suppressed my initial impulse to deck him.

After classes that day, I was approaching the fountain near the Memorial Union, only to be assaulted by the tirades and ravings of one of our infamous mall evangelists. Talk about obnoxious. Don't these guys realize that their antics are defeating their purpose by turning people off from religion, not on to it? When has yelling and getting in peoples faces ever been the way to convince someone of your rightness?

Never ceasing to be amazed by the audacity of people, after rejecting my complimentary Bible from the old guys who quietly and regularly distribute them, I got in my car to begin the long trek home. As I did, I paid special attention to notice the scores of religious proclamations contained on everything from bumper stickers to license plates to those cheesy little window hangers that popularized such idiotic themes as "Baby on Board!" Real intellectual stuff. Just as knowing that a baby is riding in the car next to me will do nothing to alter my aggressive driving habits (should I be more willing to wreck my car if there is no baby present?), tacky advertising of one's faith and their views on abortion, prayer and God will hardly effect a change in my, nor anyone else's, religious or social practices.

Later that day, after popping open a nice cold brew, the happiness in my day was once again shattered, this time by the knock of a couple of bicycle-wielding Mormons who proceeded to try to garner my interest for their religious views. After offering them a beer, which they obviously rejected, I explained to them that temperance was in contrast with my religious beliefs, and I asked them to please leave.

After their departure, I began to wonder just what it is that leads a group of religious practitioners to peddle their beliefs door to door. It seems to relegate their importance to the level of a high-powered vacuum cleaner.

Still entrenched in thought, I turned on the nightly news to check out the day's events that I had missed while encountering all of this religious fanaticism. But what did I see? More religion, this time in the realm of politics. The religious right was at it again, proclaiming the need to instill their morality into legislation for all, as if we didn't have enough laws based on morality already. Give me a break.

I'm sick and tired of people trying to coerce and mandate that others adopt the same practices, values and belief systems that they hold dear. We have far too much codification of moral judgments already. If the things that an individual chooses to partake in offends you, than you are more than free not to participate in such activities. We, as a society, should only become concerned when a person's acts somehow infringe on the rights and liberties of others. Being offended, appalled or outraged simply doesn't cut it.

In other words, mind your own damned business. Leave others to worry about theirs.

Still learning after all these years

This is my last column of the spring semester and I'd like to use it to reflect on some of the things I've done since coming to ASU.

One of things I am most proud of is my lonely voice heard echoing throughout this column every few Fridays. I chose this particular day because I had witnessed only a handful of students roaming the campus by the end of the week and even less reading the State Press. To my surprise, a few of you actually read it. So... thanks.

I had hoped that someone would read my column on Republican gay-bashing and voice their support but none did.

I was pleasantly surprised to be approached by not one but three professors who added my last column on media ethics to their curriculum. I knew I would hit a couple of nerves with that particular column but I was shocked to find that those in media denied what they had done was "unethical" and those in academia praised my insight and candor. It appears something is being lost between here and there.

And I think I know what it is.

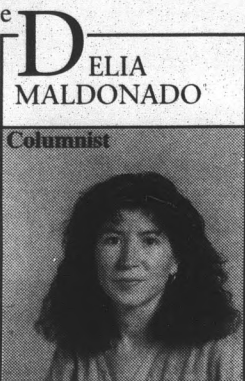

We develop many things as students here at ASU: a sense of accomplishment (graduation), a group of friends who share the same ideals and who we will hopefully know for the rest of our lives, and unfortunately, if we are not

Affirmative action should not be compared to apartheid

In the opinion section on April 13, an article titled "Down With Mutant Bean Counters" appeared to me to be the most sickening article ever printed in the State Press. Barry Kelley's argument lacked class and insight on affirmative action and also race relations in America. In his own twisted way, he tries to compare affirmative action to apartheid in South Africa. Imagine this: all whites at ASU can't vote, speak against any minority and are not allowed in the MU at all. All whites are to have passports that will classify where they work, and live along with other important facts. Upon request by any minority, whites must furnish their passport; if they don't, they will be subject to jail, a beating or even death. If whites are ever caught out of their designated area (say, Best Hall) without permission from someone of authority (minorities), they may be subject to a public whipping, which may lead to death. All this plus the regular mysterious murders, rapes and kidnappings that will haunt all ASU whites. And to top it all off, people who write articles like Kelley's will be sentenced to 27 years in prison (like Mandela was!).

Until things like this happen regularly, affirmative action can never — ever — be compared to apartheid in South Africa. Affirmative action is an ingenious program started to help repay minorities who have been ill-treated in the past. It's no coincidence that Blacks, Native Americans and Hispanics have very low numbers in the college ranks. This has a lot to do with the lack of role models, programs and people in general who are sympathetic with their plight. Affirmative action is in place to help underprivileged minorities compete in racist America. The whites stole land from the Native Americans and moved them to "reservations" (the only thing that is being reserved is racism), small portions of land compared to what they once owned. The whites also shipped Blacks to America for centuries in conditions that could not accommodate dogs (they were shackled, less than inches that separated them and they were forced to sleep in their own and others feces), not to mention being oppressed for centuries after. And whites wonder why we want some type of reparations. Kelley believes that "affirmative action is not the cure for racism but the instigator." The real instigator of racism is the lack of more programs like affirmative action for all minorities. The real instigator of racism is the population of crybabies like Kelley who fear minorities would take their jobs and make them poor people who would be treated as social pariahs. Now wouldn't that be a damn shame!

careful, we develop an ego that lets us think we can do anything. This ego is what gets in the way of all the good things professors try to teach us here. This ego is what turns one of us into one of them.

I was guilty of falling into the ego melting pot a couple of weeks ago and I have suffered for it and will continue to do so.

I thought that, as a teaching assistant, I had certain responsibilities to this institution which gave me this privilege. I believed it was my job to judge people as I would expect to be judged. I felt it was my duty to prevent students from falling into the ego melting pot. Instead, they dragged me down with them.

So what does this say about the loss of ethics when these students enter the workplace? I guess it says that it's happening right before our very eyes, right here before the eyes of our righteous professors.

In all fairness, graduating seniors are only reflecting what they see on television and what they read in print because they want to be a part of it. Sadly enough, we can't depend on these students to change. They want to get a job when they leave here just like you and me.

But there is hope.

Sometimes I see a kid who sits quietly in the back of the classroom and listens to everything I say and then when he walks out the door, he actually remembers my instructions and follows them. Sometimes I see a kid whose sense of self-worth isn't based on the opinions of others. He doesn't have an excuse for not turning in his assignment even though he works forty hours a week and carries fifteen credits. He's the type of kid that looked into the ego melting pot and offered me a hand out. A strong hand, one that won't let go or threaten to fall in after me.

Because of kids like this, I will keep writing about what is fair and just and I will keep teaching students to set their standards higher than what they see around them.

Finally, I've had lots of other wonderful and not-so-wonderful experiences here and I look forward to more of the same next year, including: the torture of researching a final project, the financial endurance test of turning 20 dollars a week into two or three meals a day, gas money and still have a few bucks left over for happy hour. Then, of course, the final reward for all my hard work: graduation.

The only thing I have to get past before I reach the above goals is summer school, and how bad could that be? It doesn't really get that hot here, does it?

Delia Maldonado is a graduate student studying broadcast journalism.

I felt it was my duty to prevent students from falling into the ego melting pot. Instead, they dragged me down with them.

Differing viewpoints do not constitute ignorance

This letter is in response to Dale Ashlock's, D. Jordan Paulk's and Karen Love's respective letters.

After reading everyone's letters, I have to disagree with some of what D. Jordan Paulk states.

Ashlock states that some homosexuals do not want "extra rights." This statement amazes me. I guess he has not heard of their special interest groups. They do ask and demand rights that are not afforded to heterosexuals. Ashlock should look into these groups before he gives them his support and applause. Homosexuals should have the same civil rights as others, but should not be afforded special rights due to sexual preference.

Lastly, I am tired of people who call others ignorant just because they do not believe in a particular cause. Not everybody is interested in what many groups are trying to shove down people's throats. Any group that tries this tactic is one that I will not listen to.

SPM journalist not qualified to cover art show

As I was turning the pages of the State Press April 13, I came upon the State Press Magazine. I then decided to read Ken Collins' "Buffet" article on the senior BA/BFA photography show. I was impressed that the show received recognition in the paper. However, I was extremely insulted by your (Collins) lack of intelligence in critiquing art.

I do not know your background in art, but from the contents of your article it clearly shows you need to enroll in an art appreciation class. The article starts with a paragraph about how the artists in this show are "struggling to remain true to themselves while upholding the dictates of dialectical materialism." I think you need to put away the thesaurus and write like your intellect speaks.

The next paragraph explains that the show contains work that represents the constructivists and those who have taken vacations in Mexico. This is where you show that you are a complete a*****! I think you need to come to Matthews Hall and look me up. The two bodies of work that contain pictures from Mexico are in no way snapshots that you would see in the family photo album. The third and fourth paragraphs tell how there are a total of two artists with creative talent in the photography program. It is sorry to see that your opinion of a good artist consists of one that makes you laugh. The final flaw you mention is from the collaboration of Randal A. Ortiz's series on family life. Your claim is that Ortiz is limited by his own medium by not appearing in all of the photographs. You have no clue that everything in his work is there for a purpose. Maybe it would be wise for you to speak with each of the artists before interpreting and degrading their work. In your eyes, the rest of the show is "tame" and the work displayed in The Step Gallery was of a higher caliber. What you failed to research is that the very same artists were represented there. You are also degrading the art faculty when you degrade the show because all of the work had been juried by them. The remainder of your column was devoted to an employee of the State Press and his friends, whose work is currently displayed in the M.U.

It might be wise for the advisors of the State Press to send qualified journalists to report on topics they are familiar and knowledgeable about.

POLICE REPORT

ASU police reported the following incidents Thursday:

- A male employee reported that someone stole four computers from the Computing Commons.
- A female student reported that she lost 15 keys belonging to ASU.

Tempe police reported the following incidents Thursday:

- A 42-year-old woman was arrested for driving under the influence at Concorda Drive and Mill Avenue. She admitted that she was "hammered" after having drunk three rum-and-Cokes.
- A 27-year-old man and a 21-year-old woman were arrested for possession of stolen property at 1645 N. Scottsdale Road. They had her roommate's car, reported stolen to Phoenix police on April 17, without her permission.
- A 22-year-old man was arrested for assault at Club 411 at 411 S. Mill Ave. after he punched a woman in the mouth and eye while they were in the women's restroom.

• A 34-year-old man was arrested for shoplifting at ABCO at 1700 E. Elliot after he took three cases of beer from a display in the store.

• A 31-year-old man was arrested for shoplifting at Smitty's at 5100 S. McClintock Road. His wife was later found to be in possession of dangerous drugs and drug paraphernalia. An inspection of their vehicle showed that their license plate was fictitious.

• An unidentified man approached another man in the parking lot of Bank One at 1744 E. Southern Ave. and grabbed a bank bag out of his hand. As the man turned to follow him, he pulled out an "uzi-type" weapon and pointed it at the man. He then got into a baby-blue minivan and fled northbound on McClintock Road. He got away with about $400 cash and $3,000 in checks. He has not been apprehended.

Lowrider lowdown

Owners of lowrider cars, bikes show off creations

By BETTY MIHALOPOULOS
STATE PRESS

Driveable art on wheels.

That's how Raúl Monreal, an engineering major at ASU, proudly describes his bright-purple, customized, 1964 Chevy lowrider, a vehicle that can now be considered a family heirloom — passed down from two generations before him.

Lowrider cars and bicycles were displayed on Hayden Lawn Thursday as a part of the activities offered during Latino Cultural Week, held through today.

Monreal said he is not certain of the history, but he knows that lowriders have been a part of his culture for many years. He said the first customized lowriders started cruising the beach areas in California in the 1960s and 1970s.

"It's just a way of showing the people that this is my hobby, this is what I believe in, this is what I take pride in and it's a part of my culture," Monreal said.

His "hobby" won him a first place trophy last month at the Mesa Society Car Club Show, a national show that was partly sponsored by Lowrider magazine.

"There was a lot of competition there from different states like California, Nevada and Texas — so I was happy to get that first place," Monreal said.

Monreal said he arranged to have the cars displayed on campus because he wanted to dispel some stereotypes that people make about lowriders and their owners.

"A lot of people think of a lowrider as a primed car driven by drug dealing gang members looking to cause trouble," said Monreal, who is a member of an ASU Chicano organization, MEChA, and former president of the Society of Hispanic Professional Engineers. "I'm proof that's not true."

One of the cars, owned by an 18-year-old high school student who called himself only Hector, was a 1964, gold-painted Chevrolet Impala displayed with one wheel suspended in air and the other three resting firmly on the ground.

"It's holding itself up with the use of hydraulic pumps and six batteries in the trunk," Monreal said. "He has 10 switches so he can actually move the car front and back, side to side, tilted on three wheels — he can actually make it bounce up and down."

The colors, the detail painting and additions to the vehicles make each one unique, but Monreal said there is stiff competition among serious owners and the basic styles change according to what is considered to be "in."

"Five years ago, you had to have a chrome bumper, chrome grill, chrome this and that. Now if you notice you have to have a gold plated bumper, a gold plated grill because there is so much competition," Monreal said.

Maintaining the lowriders and keeping up with the latest styles is an expensive hobby. Monreal said his truck is valued at $17,000. The truck is even equipped with a small television set that Monreal said works fine, but he doesn't watch it while he's driving. It's only to help get more

Lowriders are not just for adults. Youths work just as hard and have as much dedication as the car owners, even though they work with bikes.

Monreal said it is a good way to keep kids off of the streets.

"You give them a hobby," he said. "The kids go home instead of going out into the streets getting involved with drugs and gangs. They actually started a bike club and they just go home and start polishing their bikes and they can't wait to buy a new fender or another reflector."

Schwinn Bicycles are a necessity for the "proper" lowrider bicycle and the banana seat is a must. The youths dress up their bikes with small mirrors on the handlebars, seat covers and even tiny metal steering wheels that work.

Michelle Vasquez, a 13-year-old member of the Mesa Bike Club, said there aren't many girls in the club, but she became interested in them through her brother.

"My brother started getting really into so I started too. I named my bike 'Hairspray' because of the picture of the woman painted on it with her hair blowing back in the wind," Vasquez said.

Lowrider trucks line Hayden Lawn as part of Latino Cultural Week, which runs through today. Raúl Monreal, an engineering major at ASU, says that his truck, in front, has been passed down for two generations. A 1964 Chevy lowrider, it won a first place trophy at the Mesa Society Car Club Show.

PHOENIX (AP) — Gov. Fife Symington wrote to Oklahoma Gov. Frank Keating on Thursday, offering his condolences and whatever assistance Arizona might be able to provide in the wake of the federal building bombing in Oklahoma City.

"Arizona sends you our prayers, along with any material assistance we might provide," Symington wrote. "Please let me know of anything we can do to help."

A 62-member search and rescue team from the Phoenix Fire Department went to Oklahoma City on Wednesday to help search for victims of the Wednesday bombing, which claimed at least 62 lives.

OATMAN, AZ (AP) — Oatman residents predict their beloved family of free-roaming burros will head for the hills when crowds of motorcycle lovers converge on the Old West mining town this weekend.

For the past six years, Harley enthusiasts have been dropping in on the town of about 200 during an annual rally in nearby Laughlin, Nev. This year, Mohave County Sheriff's deputies are bracing for unruly behavior and crowds of motorcycles glutting Oatman's single street.

But their planned precautions — which include sobriety checks and possibly shutting down the lone street — don't make all the townspeople happy.

"We're damn mad that the sheriff interfered," said Sherry Tonioli, who owns the eight-room Oatman Hotel with her husband, Tony.

"All we asked for was a little bit of traffic control. We make a lot of money off this weekend, and it's probably not going to happen for us. We're all going to go broke."

But others say some kind of law enforcement is needed during a weekend that in the past has resulted in drunken driving deaths and some public nudity.

PHOENIX (AP) — A public interest law firm that has sued the state over a variety of environmental issues was back in court Thursday, seeking to force public bidding for grazing leases on state lands.

The suit filed in Maricopa County Superior Court by the Arizona Center for Law in the Public Interest asks that a state law allowing more than eight million acres of land to be leased without public bidding be overturned.

"The enabling act requires public bidding," said Tim Hogan, executive director of the Center, referring to the law that allowed Arizona to become a state in 1912.

Group threatens suit over Maricopa pollution plan

PHOENIX (AP) — Although Maricopa County's plan to deal with particulate pollution has been approved by the Environmental Protection Agency, a public interest group said the plan is worthless and is threatening to file a lawsuit over it.

County planners were supposed to meet federal health standards for particulates by the end of 1994, but now will have seven more years to do so.

Bob Pallarino of the EPA said the federal agency has determined that the county's air quality planners have done a reasonable job in implementing measures to address the haze problem in the Phoenix area.

But David Baron of the Arizona Center for Law in the Public Interest said Thursday that the county's plan is "grossly inadequate" because "virtually nothing has been done to control particulates" which cause the wintertime brown cloud over the Phoenix metropolitan area.

Baron said his advocacy organization may file suit against the EPA to force an aggressive effort to clean up the county's air.

An earlier lawsuit by Baron's group forced the county to control carbon monoxide pollution.

As a result of the EPA's decision, the county's air will be reclassified to serious from moderate for particulate pollution — the bits of smoke and dust that cause haze, red eyes and runny noses.

The reclassification won't bring any penalties and only requires the county's air quality to come up with more stringent measures to reduce particulate pollution.

State Department of Environmental Quality officials said those measures likely would include tougher anti-pollution measures, such as a stepped-up program to pave the county's dirt roads.

dynamite and blew it up. Forty-five people, 38 of them children, were killed.

Worried friends and relatives of the missing gathered at St. Luke United Methodist Church, where the Red Cross posted a victims list. Clutching photographs of the missing, some stayed to eat, talk to counselors or sleep.

"It's just not knowing," said Carl Johnson, 44, awaiting word of his mother, who worked in the federal building. "I hope she's alive. But if she's still in the building, there's not much hope left."

The dead included at least 12 children. Two toddlers were burned beyond recognition, and one was decapitated; the bodies of others were mangled.

More than 400 people were injured in a blast so powerful that flying glass pierced lungs, slashed one man's throat and cut another 100 times. Many were buried helplessly under doors, walls and concrete beams. One woman had her leg amputated so she could be freed.

Volunteers told of hearing little children screaming, seeing tiny faces covered with blood and plaster.

"I'm 33 years old and I have lived my life. ... They haven't even started theirs," Robert Buckner said. "I would have gladly given my life for one of those lives ... just one child."

No one knows how many people were in the building when the bomb went off at 9:04 a.m., but officials expect to find more bodies. Sen. Jim Inhofe, R-Okla., estimated there were 810 people — 560 employees and 250 nonemployees.

More than 700 people have called special telephone numbers to notify authorities that they were safe.

ASU to celebrate Earth Day with speakers, band, dancers

By LISA CARY
STATE PRESS

The state Legislature's recent passage of a bill allowing the production and use of Freon in Arizona is not surprising, said an ASU professor who plans to speak at today's Earth Day celebration on campus.

Ronald Hardert, associate professor of sociology, said he plans to discuss how the Arizona Legislature has attempted to reverse environmental laws.

In addition to Hardert, five other ASU professors will speak about environmental issues at the event, which is scheduled from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Hayden Lawn. The professors will speak from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Earth Day is sponsored by the Associated Students of ASU. Christina Vail, ASASU environmental issues director, said 25 tables will be set up with vegetarian food and "earth-friendly" vendors. There will also be a gourmet chef giving free cooking lessons.

Knot, a local band, will perform at 11:15 a.m. The Dancers of the Dreaming, an aboriginal dance group, will perform from noon to 1 p.m.

"It's a celebration," Vail said. "It's an informative day where we get as much information out to the public to make them aware of the different environmental issues on their campus and in their community."

ASU President Lattie Coor plans to speak at 11 a.m. to discuss the significance of the 25th anniversary of Earth Day.

"While some progress has been made, more needs to be done," he said. "We need to encourage students to take advantage of this day."

Vail said ASU officials are currently trying to add more outdoor recycling bins and expand academic environment education within each college. She said ASU officials are also looking at an energy saving program that calls for replacing old lighting on campus with new, cost-efficient lighting.

"It's out on the table, but it's not happening yet," Vail said. She said she also wants to expand the indoor recycling program to the Memorial Union and get better education in sorting for the residence halls.

ASU professors who plan to speak at Earth Day:

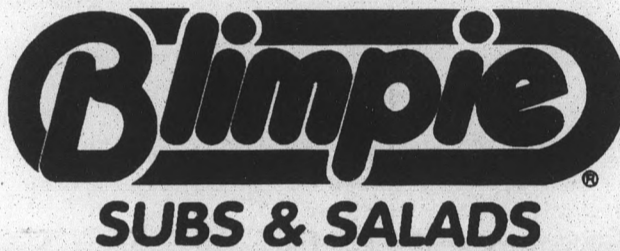

- Ronald Hardert, associate professor of sociology, will speak about the backlash of anti-environmentalists. He said the Arizona Legislature has attempted to reverse environmental laws.
- Jonathan Fink, professor of geology, will speak on rain forests. He said he normally studies volcanoes, but many volcanoes are in rain forests. He is going to compare common issues that the desert shares with rain forests, such as uncontrolled developments and political apathy.
- W. Dennis Clark, associate professor of botany, will discuss carbon dioxide and the greenhouse effect.
- John Brock, professor of environmental resources, will speak about pollution control using wetland plants.
- Lou Weschler, professor of public affairs, will discuss the successes of the Clean Air Act.
- Mark Reader, associate professor of political science, said he will speak about environmental and social health

NEW YORK (AP) — Placido Domingo is pulling a double of sorts on Saturday.

The tenor will sing the title role in Wagner's 5-hour Parsifal at the Metropolitan Opera on Saturday afternoon and conduct Puccini's Madama Butterfly in the evening.

"It was coincidence," Domingo told The New York Times.

When the Met's schedulers realized what they had done, they offered to replace him as conductor. Domingo declined.

"I will have two and a half hours between," he said, "during which I will rest a bit, put myself to sleep, I hope, and then have a light meal."

FORT LEE, N.J. (AP) — If they ever make James Earl Jones' life story, who does the Sonorous One want to play him? Why, Sir Charles.

"Charles Barkley must play James Earl Jones. I wouldn't have anybody else do it," the actor says in an interview for broadcast Saturday and Sunday on CNBC's The Dick Cavett Show.

Jones, the voice behind villain Darth Vader in Star Wars and poppa lion Mufasa in The Lion King, also reveals that having once stuttered, he's never quite mastered the art of ad libbing.

"I have no presumptions or arrogance about my voice," he said. "It's the most unfaithful lover I've ever had. ... It fails me often."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Christian Slater is being sued for palimony by a woman who says he promised to give her half his earnings during the time they lived together if they ever split up.

Slater, whose recent films include Interview With The Vampire and Murder in the First, said through a publicist he knew nothing about the lawsuit.

Nina Huang says in the suit, filed Wednesday, that she lived with Slater off and on in Van Nuys from 1990 until she was barred from his home last week.

Huang contends she gave up her career to help Slater with his and they had an oral agreement she would get half of everything he earned during that period.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Hell didn't freeze over, but it still took 10 months for the Eagles to make it to Nashville on their long delayed tour.

"Nashville, we finally got here," singer Glenn Frey said at Wednesday night's concert. "It's all my fault, I know."

Tickets went on sale last June for two Eagles concerts originally scheduled for September on their "Hell Freezes Over" tour.

Frey developed diverticulitis, an intestinal problem that required surgery and forced the concerts to be postponed.

A second concert will be held Friday.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rocker Bob Seger's got a new girl.

Seger's wife, Nita, gave birth Sunday to Samantha Char, who weighed in at 8 pounds. The family lives in suburban Detroit.

She joins the Segers' 2-year-old son, Cole, for whom Seger wrote "In Your Time," one of two new songs on his Greatest Hits compact disc with the Silver Bullet Band.

The disc features photos of the band members and their children.

ASU looks to trample UofA in stretch run

Junior Steve Goodell launches a shot against the California Angels in a game on March 1. Goodell and his ASU teammates host UofA at 7 p.m. today at Packard Stadium.

BY LEE NEWMAN
STATE PRESS

The Sun Devil baseball team enters the stretch run of their Six-Pac schedule this weekend with hopes of a win, place or show.

The top three teams in the Six-Pac are all but assured of post-season play and that's what fourth-place ASU aims for, beginning tonight when UofA comes to Packard Stadium at 7 p.m.

With nine divisional games remaining, ASU finds itself in a fourth-place tie with UCLA at 10-11. That puts the Sun Devils 3 1/2 games behind division leading California (13-7), three games behind USC (13-8) and 2 1/2 behind Stanford (12-8).

A three-game sweep of last place UofA (4-17) would boost ASU's cause, but Coach Pat Murphy insists the Sun Devils can't look that far ahead.

"We have to play one game at a time. At this time of the year in this conference, we can't worry about sweeping anybody," he said. "They (UofA) have everything to gain and nothing to lose. We have everything to lose if we go in with the attitude 'We're going to sweep.'"

The Wildcats only have four Six-Pac wins this year, one of those came against the Sun Devils on March 3 in Tucson. In that game, ASU squandered an 8-3 lead in the ninth, losing 9-8. The Sun Devils did take the final two games of that series in Tempe, 5-2 and 11-7.

"We just have to play consistent and play the way we did in the first series," Murphy said. "We outplayed them all three games in that first series."

UofA has been led this season by Scott Kidd and Menno Wickey. Kidd had four home runs, 29 RBIs and leads the team with a .358 average, while Wickey owns a team high six home runs, 31 RBIs and a .337 mark.

ASU's top hitter is senior Randy Betten, who owns a .346 average. Junior Darren Troilo leads the team in RBIs

Sun Devil women look to come out swinging vs. UofA

BY DAN MILLER
STATE PRESS

Everything is stacked against them. They are on a three-match losing skid. Their senior No. 1 player hasn't swatted a ball since April 2. Their senior No. 4 player was blindsided by an illness two days ago and is still feeling the effects. And, on top of everything, third-ranked UofA is coming to town.

Needless to say, the seventh-ranked Sun Devil women's tennis team will have its work cut out against the Wildcats in its last home match of the season on Saturday. The first ball will be tossed at 1 p.m. at Whiteman Tennis Center.

"We didn't play very well down there," ASU Coach Sheila McInerney said of the Sun Devils 5-1 loss to the Wildcats on March 28 in Tucson. "We're starting to get beat up a little bit now, but traditionally we play better at home."

ASU top singles player Kori Davidson suffered a partial strain in the patella tendon in her left knee in her match with Wisconsin three weeks ago. Since then, she hasn't practiced and is listed as "extremely doubtful" for Saturday's contest. Sun Devil No. 4 Kara Schertzer was stricken with flu-like symptoms earlier in the week and sat out of team workouts for two days. However, Schertzer is expected to return to practice today and suit up against UofA.

"I really want to win especially because it's UofA and it's our last home match," Schertzer said. "I think we're playing pretty well right now, but it will be tough to play without Kori."

Sophomore No. 6 player Anna Moll, who is 20-8, was the only Sun Devil to pocket a point in the Tucson derailment. Vicky Maes (No. 1), Eva Maria Schurhoff (No. 2), Stephanie Sammaritano (No. 3), Angela Bernal (No. 4) and Melody Falco (No. 5) each posted UofA victories.

Senior Joelle Schad, who will play No. 1 for the Sun Devils in Davidson's absence, said the final home match had her wondering where all the time went.

"It really flew by," Schad said of this year's 13-8 season. "I was talking to Sheila

Sun Devil track team battles Wildcats, Lumberjacks for state bragging rights

BY HEATHER SNOW
STATE PRESS

The ASU track and field teams are back at home this weekend, as the Sun Devils host UofA and NAU at Sun Angel Stadium on Saturday.

According to Coach Leonard Braxton, bragging rights for the state of Arizona will be at stake in Saturday's meet.

"This meet is kind of like the state championships between the three universities," Braxton said.

Braxton expects a good performance from the women's team, which should compete with the Wildcats for first place.

"The women will fair well, but UofA will be very competitive and either team could win," Braxton said.

On the other hand, Braxton said the men's team will have a struggle with both UofA and NAU.

"The men will have their hands full with both teams," Braxton said. "This will be a very challenging meet for the men's team."

Braxton said, individually, there will still be good performances coming from both the men's and women's teams.

"There will be highlights from both sides and some strong individual performances," Braxton said.

With the Pac-10 and NCAA Championships around the corner, Braxton said this meet will set the stage for the championships.

"This is a good lead up to the bigger meets," he said. "This meet will assist me in my judgment of where we stand right now and what we need to improve before the championships."

The field events begin at 4 p.m. and the running events begin at 6 p.m.

Stanford 'team to beat' for ASU at golf tourney

BY HEATHER SNOW
STATE PRESS

The ninth-ranked ASU men's golf team begins play today at the U.S. Intercollegiate Tournament at the Stanford Golf Course.

According to Coach Randy Lein, the tournament field is very big.

"It's a large field consisting of 27 teams," Lein said. "Stanford didn't have its usual fall tournament, so there will be a lot of teams that usually play in that tournament."

Along with the host team, Stanford, and ASU, the majority of the field consists of teams from the Pac-10 and all over the west coast.

Lein said Stanford and ASU are the only two top-10 teams competing in the tournament, so the overall competition won't be that strong and Stanford will pose the biggest threat.

"The competition won't be nearly as strong as it was at last weekend's tournament," Lein said. "But with Stanford at its home course and being ranked one or two in the country, it's definitely the team to beat."

Lein expects Stanford to play tough, especially after last week's tournament at ASU.

"Stanford has something to prove from last weekend's tournament here," he said.

The lineup will consist of seniors Todd Demsey and Larry Barber, junior Joey Snyder and sophomores Chris Hanell and Scott Johnson.

According to Lein, Demsey won this tournament last year and would like to win it again.

"Todd won there last year and is looking to repeat," Lein said. "I would really like to see him repeat too."

Along with Demsey, Lein also expects a good performance from Hanell.

"Chris has been playing great golf all spring," Lein said. "I'm looking for him and Todd to win medalists honors."

Weather permitting, Lein is looking for good golf and low scores.

"This is a good driving course, and if weather permits I'm looking for a lot of low scores," Lein said.

With the Pac-10 Championships in a week, Lein believes this would be a good win for the Sun Devils.

"This would be a good win leading into the Pac-10 Championships," he said.

The tournament begins today and runs through Sunday.

"I really hope I can do my best."

ASU freshman Stephanie Lansdorp, who will likely play No. 4, said she is anxious to get another shot at the Wildcats.

"I'm psyched," she said. "I really want to beat them. Sheila was saying that we haven't lost to them twice in one season since her first year (coaching) here (1985)."

ASU freshman Reka Cseresnyes, who has a team-best 24-8 record, will also be in action. Cseresnyes is rated the fifth best freshman in the nation. Sun Devil junior Julie Coppinger will likely handle the duties at No. 6.

Underdog Devils to face 2-time champion 'Cats

Lance D. Terry/State Press

Freshman Roxanne Tsosie fires in a pitch against Tulsa on Feb. 26. The ASU softball team travels to UofA tonight and hosts the Wildcats at 6 p.m. Saturday at Sun Devil Club Stadium.

BY DAMIAN SHAW
STATE PRESS

Rocky Balboa vs. Apollo Creed. John Daly vs. the world. The 69 Jets vs. the Colts. David vs. Goliath. The 94 Nuggets vs. the Sonics. Buster Douglas vs. Mike Tyson. ASU softball vs. UofA.

Get the picture? The Sun Devils will face the Wildcats four times this weekend, twice in Tucson on Friday and again at Sun Devil Club stadium in doubleheader action Saturday. But their task will be a formidable one, taking on a UofA squad that sports a record of 43-4 and touts a ranking of No. 2 in the nation.

Freshman second baseman Karla Contryman says ASU at 27-18 is looking forward to being in the underdog role.

"It's going to be good for us to go in a play against that type of competition. I think it will help us step up to the level that we need to play at," Contryman said. "I'm excited. I can't wait."

Although the Wildcats are two-time defending national champions, they recently were unseated by UCLA, which won three out of four games with them earlier in the year. Coach Linda Wells believes this year's team has just as much offense but may lack the pitching that propelled it last year.

"I don't know that they're the same team they were last year," Wells said. "I don't think that they have the pitching. The way that you play Arizona is you just go in trying to score as many runs as possible because you know that they're going to score."

The Wildcats own a good chunk of the Pac-10 offensive statistics. They have a team batting average of .377 to lead the Pac. They also have four of the top-10 spots in individual batting average. Seniors Amy Chellevoid and Laura Espinoza have the top two hitting spots with 77 and 65 hits on the year, respectively. Espinoza and junior Jennifer Dalton out pace everyone else with 26 and 20 home runs, respectively, followed by teammate Leah Braatz in third place at 12.

Sophomore Lisa Dacquisto thinks a lot of the statistics have gone to the Wildcats' heads.

"They're all cocky. They're so confident with themselves, I think we need to knock their attitudes down to size," Dacquisto said. "If we do win it would be a great accomplishment for our team. I know that they think they're going to come in here and clean up, but I honestly think if we play our game that they're going to have trouble doing that."

Junior Alyssa "A.J." Johnson knows ASU will have to play strong in all aspects of the game, but she is inspired by UofA's recent faults at the hands of the Bruins.

"To win we need to go in and make all the plays. We know that obviously UCLA beat them three times, so that gives us a little incentive to know that we do have a chance if we play our best ball," Johnson said.

As for the added pressure of facing such a talented team, Contryman feels it will only fuel the Sun Devils' desire to win.

"I know it's going to be a pressure situation, but I think we play a lot better under pressure situations so I think we should do pretty well against them," Contryman said.

Critchley predicts 'bagels' against UofA

BY DAN MILLER
STATE PRESS

ASU junior tennis player Dave Critchley said it best. "I told Coach (Lou Belken) to cut back on the bagels because we're gonna bake a few of our own on the court," he said of the 20th ranked Sun Devils final match of the season with UofA.

Critchley and company will take their act to Tucson's Robson Tennis Center to engage the Wildcats at 1 p.m. on Saturday.

In an effort to get accustomed to the faster courts at UofA, Belken took his troops to Western Reserve Club in Tempe Thursday for an afternoon practice session.

"Our courts are basically just too good," Belken said. "UofA will be rough match. They're always rough down there. They've had some incredibly bad luck."

"They've got a good team and their record is not indicative of how good they are."

ASU punished the Wildcats in its previous meeting on April 5 in Tempe. The Sun Devils won four of six singles matches and the doubles point in the 5-2 defeat. ASU No. 1 Sargis Sargsian, No. 2 Sergio Elias, No. 4 Tsolak Gevorkian and No. 5 Critchley were winners for the Sun Devils.

One Sun Devil who may be looking to settle a score is Wolf von Lindenau, who lost to James Rey, an old acquaintance the last time out at No. 6 singles.

Sun Devil Paul "Caveman" Reber dropped his match with Chris Jenkins in three sets in their last meeting. He said the faster courts will play right into the Sun Devils' hands.

"It's more of an advantage for us," said Reber, who will play No. 3. "Plus we beat 'em before."

With the Pac-10 Championships next week and the NCAA Regionals soon after, Belken assessed the team's current state.

"I think we've made a lot of improvement," Belken said. "There's never a perfect season, but we really have come a long way."

Baseball

with 46, while juniors Robbie Kent and Steve Goodell share the home run lead with six a piece.

ASU's tentative rotation this weekend, which will conclude with two games in Tucson Saturday at 7 p.m. and Sunday at 1 p.m., will consist of Billy Neal tonight; Jason Bond, Saturday; and Mike Corominas, Sunday.

UofA will counter with Zach Pringle and Kirt Kishita. Sunday's starter is undetermined.

NOTE: Former ASU star Barry Bonds is scheduled to throw out the first pitch in tonight's game. Bonds played at ASU from 1983 to 1985 and was named to the All-America team in 1985. He is one of only three Sun Devil players to have his number retired. Reggie Jackson and Oddibe McDowell are the other two.

LATE NIGHT STUDY SNACKS

For Friday, April 21, 1995
ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
Extra office work could be on your agenda, causing you to put in longer hours. You should be able to ward off distractions for a day of accomplishments. Be self-indulgent later on.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
If you spend careful time and attention on a special project, you'll get much accomplished. What looks like a routine meeting of group is anything but that. You'll be pleasantly surprised by the ideas you come up with.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
You could be in an independent mood, but when traveling, you'll want company and companionship. Partners are in sync with each other and are busy making plans. Don't be afraid to ask for help if you need it.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
You'll do your share of socializing, but you'll also want to spend time on your own for research about a career matter. Keep plans under wraps for now. Others are waiting to capitalize on your ideas.
LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22)
Career developments are positive, but discussion of these matters with close ties could lead to arguments. Higher-ups need to be handled tactfully. You're just the person to do this.
VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)
Overfamiliarity works against you. A wonderful travel or publishing opportunity comes. Everyone around you seems to have an idea, but you are the right one to sort these out.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)
Morning hours bring accomplishment, but a delay in connection with a travel plan is a possibility. Be straight-forward in dealings about romance and your innermost feelings. You need to trust a love one more.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)
Unexpected expenditures could arise. However, be sure to accept social invitations. Singles meet with romantic introductions, but nasty rumors abound after dark.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)
Morning hours are best for work gains. Later, distractions and the unexpected could throw you off course. Scrutinize new propositions carefully.

SERVICES

CASH FOR COLLEGE. 900,000 grants available. Qualify immediately. 1-800-243-2435. (Processing fee $79 if you qualify. No fee, if you don't qualify.)$1500.00 guaranteed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19)
Although romance is highlighted, there could be a mix-up about getting together. A future getaway could lead to romance. Some career aspirations are out of line.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18)
Despite some last-minute hitches, travel is auspicious. Once again, you're sought after and in demand socially. Be careful that you do not let work obligations slide.
PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20)
You're unclear about how to handle a domestic concern. However, be sure to save time for recreation, but avoid self-indulgence. Daydreaming leads to no good at this time.
YOU BORN TODAY crave excitement in your work and you could change jobs frequently. You should guard against expediency and let your ideals show you the way. Art, music and poetry are natural inclinations. Your way with words and people is an asset in business. You work well in partnerships and are a good booster of other people's talents.
