50 percent of Tempe 911 calls not true emergencies

BY GREG ZEMEIDA
STATE PRESS

If you want to know what time the ASU football game starts, if your next door neighbor's dog is barking too loudly, or if you lock your keys in the car, please don't call 911.

Les Strickland, spokesman for the Tempe police, said about half of all 911 calls are not true emergencies and should have been reported in another way.

He said some 911 calls are not urgent, but they appear that way in some people's minds.

"They know 911," Strickland said. "It's simple, so they call that."

Phil Cicero, Tempe police's communication supervisor, said people called Tempe's 911 lines an average of 258 times a day this year. Of those calls, 25 percent were true emergencies and another 25 percent required some type of police assistance, but were not life-threatening.

He said it is important to keep the department's nine emergency lines as open as possible for real emergencies.

"If we have people tying these lines up ... it may create a problem with someone else trying to get in," Cicero said.

So far, that has never happened, he said. If it did, Phoenix police would answer the Tempe 911 calls.

Tempe police are trying to cut down on the number of non-emergency 911 calls through several methods:

- Distributing 30,000 stickers with the non-emergency number (350-8311);
- Attempting to get that number printed in the front cover of the phone book;
- Putting out a brief story on the problem in Business, engineering schools make Top 30 in U.S. News ranking

BY BRIAN ANDERSON
STATE PRESS

ASU's business and engineering schools received high praise from college presidents, deans and admissions directors in a U.S. News & World Report annual guide to "America's best colleges" released Monday.

According to the report, more than 2,700 college administrators from 1,419 accredited four-year institutions ranked the business college and the engineering college 25th and 28th respectively. The business college tied with six other schools, including the University of Notre Dame and the University of Arizona. Ten schools were equally ranked with the engineering school, including the University of Arizona and the University of California at Davis.

Survey participants were asked to rank schools according to student retention, the school's overall reputation, faculty resources, acceptance selectivity, financial resources and alumni satisfaction, listed in order of descending importance.

Daniel Jankowski, associate dean of the College of Engineering and Applied Sciences, said he is happy with the high ranking, but added that work for advancement is not over.

"We're very pleased and thankful for all the hard work on the part of the faculty that made it happen," he said. "(But) there's always room for improvement, and we certainly are trying things to make us better."

Jankowski said the survey provides an objective look at the programs in the engineering college and gives students an idea of the type of education they are receiving.

"I think (the ranking) gives an independent, outside look at the programs here and says they're pretty good," he said. "I would think students would be happy to be going to a relatively inexpensive public institution and be receiving that kind of quality of education."

Larry Penley, dean of the College of Business, said he was also pleased with the survey results.

"We were excited (about the ranking)," he said. "We thought we should have been No. 1, but we were excited to be included."

Penley said he is optimistic the ranking will increase students' marketability upon graduation.

"What I hope it means is their (students') degrees will be more valued by employers, and employers will find this a more attractive place to recruit, will be willing to offer higher salaries to them and will be as excited as I am about the products of our program," he said.

The results of the survey have positive effects on ASU's reputation as a whole, Penley said.

"Any good news that we get in any area of the University tends to reflect well on the whole University," he said. "The ranking in engineering

University gives fork to non-athletic uses of Sparky

BY TIMOTHY TAIT
STATE PRESS

New trademark guidelines dictating the use of ASU's mascot have left some students on the short end of Sparky's pitchfork.

Although students have used the mascot for more than 60 years with few problems, the University has severely restricted its use by campus organizations during the past months.

"Any use (of Sparky) that differs from the (trademark) manual is prohibited," said ASU Trademark Licensing Coordinator Fernando Morales. "No one other than athletics may use Sparky."

Because Sparky is a federally-registered trademark, the University holds as much responsibility as the manufacturer for the quality of merchandise on which the mascot appears. ASU receives between $200,000 and $250,000 per year from licensing its mascot, all of which goes into the President's Special Projects fund.

The Walt Disney Studios designed Sparky for ASU in 1946, one of the first cartoon mascots for a university. It is also rumored that Sparky was modeled after Walt Disney himself, Morales said.

Although no misuses of the mascot have been reported yet, the University instituted the new regulations in July of 1995 to protect Sparky's and the University's image, Morales said.

He said the athletic department, under former Director Charles Harris, agreed to not alter Sparky's image in exchange for exclusive privileges to the mascot. For instance, Sparky must always face to the right, and cannot be modified or have any additions.

"It is kind of funny to point out that the football team uses him facing the wrong way on one side of their helmets," Morales said. "But it isn't funny to those who had petitions to use him rejected."

The Student Recreation Complex submitted a request to use Sparky, but was rejected.

SRC director Gerry Maas, who petitioned the president's office in an attempt to keep using Sparky, said he was disappointed that they would no longer be able to use will help the College of Business as I hope the ranking in business will help the liberal arts.”

ASU Provost Milton Glick said the ranking is evidence that ASU has improved and continues to improve even when facing adversity.

“We think those are both programs that have moved a long way in the past several years,” he said. “I think it shows that our schools have been very careful using their resources effectively. (The ranking) is just one more recognition of that.”

Penley also said even though these rankings are good measurements of the business college’s progress, they will not stop trying to reach the top.

“If we took those rankings and were self-satisfied as a result, that would be a terrible mistake,” he said. “By no means do I believe that we have reached a plateau. There’s a lot more to be done to make a better undergraduate program.”

this month’s issue of Tempe Today, a community newsletter.

Cicero said people have called 911 to complain about barking dogs or to ask if the Mill Avenue Bridge was open after some flooding.

He said some people use 911 as a general information number when they do not know who to call, especially after normal business hours.

“When people don’t know who to call, they call the police department,” he said. “People see us as the catch-all after hours.”

Even though he hears many unnecessary calls, Cicero said people should not get too worried about whether to call 911 or not. When in doubt, just call, he said.

“We would rather have people call us than not call us,” he said.

the mascot.

“I don’t think that there have been abuses,” Maas said. “It would be too bad if we will not be able to use Sparky.”

The SRC had pictured the mascot on various intramural team uniforms, some depicting an altered Sparky, such as Sparky holding a tennis racket or a volleyball. However, the sole reason given for the rejection was that only athletics is allowed to use the mascot, Maas said.

Maas added that the president is reconsidering their petition.

“Sparky is a great representative of athletics, but he has taken on a greater meaning,” Morales said.

“Clubs on campus have used Sparky for years, and we just want to continue,” Maas said. “Many people feel that the mascot represents the University as a whole.”

He said it was unfair for the students to lose their privilege to use the familiar symbol.

“How tight the administration will be in the future with this policy, we will have to wait and see,” he said. “There is a real need to be flexible.”

Morales also said he remains optimistic that the regulations will be relaxed, adding that the athletic department’s exclusive rights to the mascot is not a done deal.

“Students here have used the mascot better than anywhere,” he said. “Other schools have had problems.”

Associated Students of ASU President Chris Weber agreed that students should have access to Sparky.

“Sparky is for the students, not just athletics,” he said. “It really isn’t fair to cut the students off.”

“After half of a century, Sparky is imbedded in the spirit of the University.”

Mesa group pushing for paid MLK holiday

MESA (AP) — A group supporting a paid municipal holiday honoring slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. wants to put the issue before Mesa voters again next year.

Mesa does not formally observe the King holiday, which is celebrated at the federal and state levels on a Monday close to King's Jan. 15 birthday.

The Mesa City Council enacted a municipal King Day in July 1992, but a petition campaign forced it onto the ballot, where it was defeated at the polls in November of that year.

In that same election, Arizona voters approved a state King holiday.

A group called Concerned Citizens of Mesa has scheduled a Sept. 19 meeting to begin organizing an initiative campaign.

Group spokesman John Goodie said it is not yet determined if Mesa's primary election in March will be targeted for the initiative of the November 1996 general election.

Most Hopi challenges to land division rejected

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal appeals court on Monday rejected most of the Hopi Tribe's challenges to a judge's division of Arizona reservation land between Hopis and Navajos, but increased the Hopis' ownership of religious shrines.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals largely upheld U.S. District Judge Earl Carroll's 1992 ruling giving the Hopis about 60,000 of the 128,000 acres they claimed in the Navajo Reservation in northeastern Arizona.

A 1934 federal law added 7.5 million acres to the reservation for the benefit of the Navajos "and such other Indians as may already be located thereon." Forty years later, Congress authorized the Hopis and Navajos to settle their land dispute by suing one another.

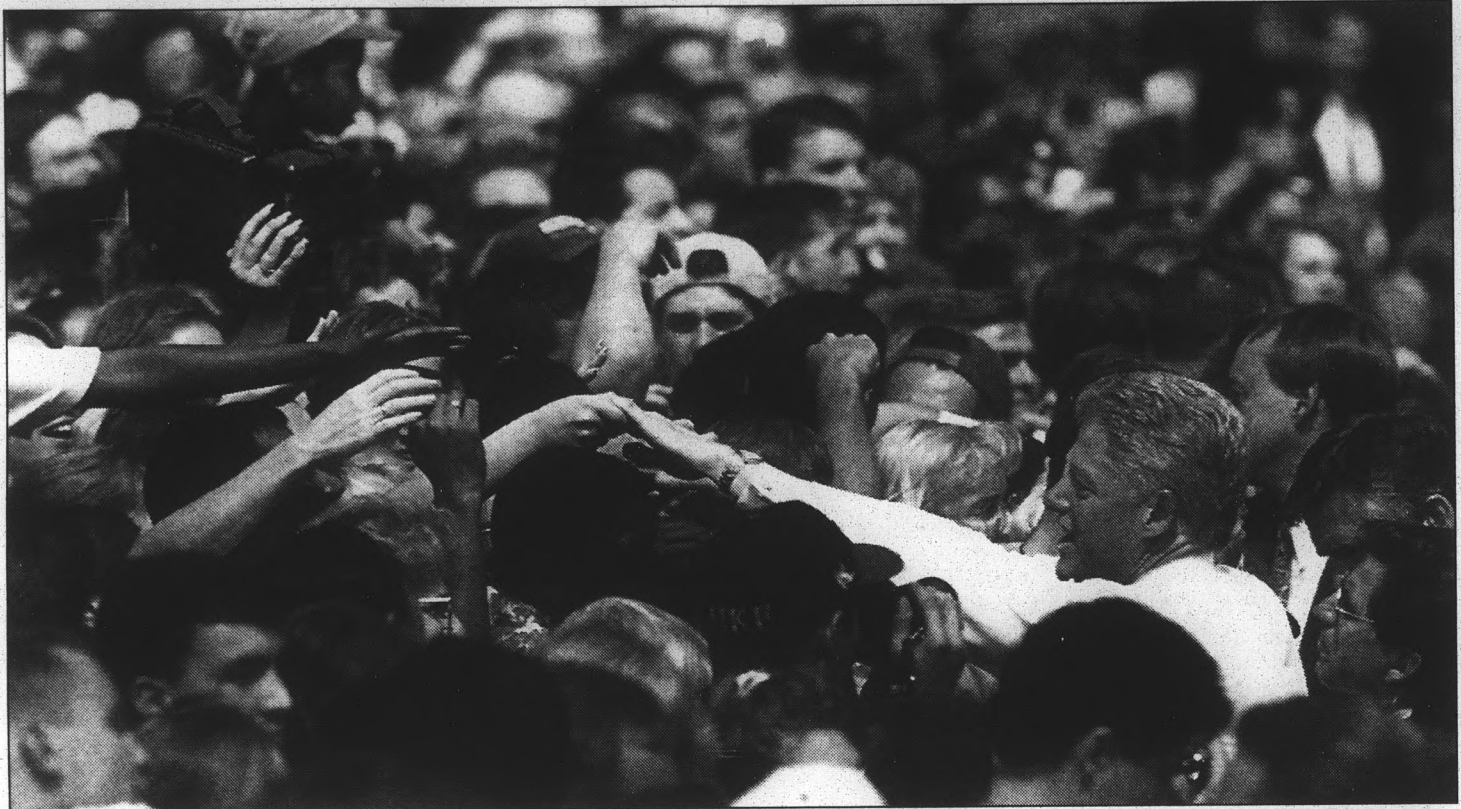

In rejecting more than half of the Hopis' claims, Carroll ruled that various traditional Hopi land uses within the reservation, such as gathering plants and wood, were not so regular or extensive as to show that Hopis had been "located" on the land.

The appeals court upheld Carroll's conclusions, rejecting a Hopi argument that the judge's definition of "located" was too narrow.

The court also upheld Carroll's decision to award the Hopis only one-fourth of the land jointly used by the tribes, leaving three-fourths to the more populous Navajos. The joint-use land amounts to about 38,000 of the Hopis' allotment of 60,000 acres.

The court said Carroll was entitled to reject a 50-50 split and conclude some other division was fair, by considering such factors as avoiding relocation of families and disruption of grazing areas.

The 60,000 acres are in and around the Navajo town of Tuba City and the adjacent Hopi village of Moenkopi. The land is separate from the Hopi Reservation but is linked by state Highway 264.

President Clinton reaches into a crowd of students after delivering a speech on the topic of student loans at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, Ill. Clinton led an administration-wide attack on proposed GOP education cuts, accusing congressional Republicans of caving in to the bank lobby in voting to ditch his direct college loan program.

Clinton assails anti-loan efforts

Criticizes banks, GOP at university speech

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — President Clinton led an administration-wide attack on proposed GOP education cuts Monday, accusing congressional Republicans of caving in to the bank lobby in voting to ditch his direct college loan program.

"It is true that they (bankers) are worse off. They lost a lot of business" because of his 1993 legislation, Clinton told students at a campus round-table discussion. "But the students are better off."

Republicans, in turn, accused the White House of stacking the audience to silence opposing views, excluding one student leader because he showed GOP leanings.

Law student William Karrow, 24, president of the Southern Illinois University graduate student council, contended he was bounced from the panel after telling a White House aide he was skeptical about the Clinton loan program.

The White House acknowledged it had screened students on the 12-member panel for their political views.

The student in question "didn't cut the mustard," said White House spokesman Mike McCurry. But in light of the controversy, he added that it was probably a mistake to exclude him. "We should have just let him rant and rave," McCurry said.

Clinton's appearance at Southern Illinois University kicked off a four-day administration blitz around the country — by 47 officials including Vice President Al Gore and much of the Cabinet — to criticize proposed Republican cuts in education funds.

Clinton's remarks were fed by satellite to campus audiences at 50 other sites.

The administration hopes it can persuade the Senate to soften some of the cuts made by the House. A key vote is planned for Thursday in a Senate subcommittee.

GOP leaders said that Clinton is misrepresenting their attempts to close the deficit and that their plans would not rob students of eligibility for loans or interest rate reductions scheduled to take effect in 1998.

"President Clinton and his hired hands have proven that they will say anything in order to save his failed program, even if it means scaring students and their parents," said Rep. Bill Goodling, R-Pa., chairman of the House Education Committee.

Clinton said the House's proposed seven-year balanced budget plan would cut educational programs by $36 billion — he called that "penny wise and pound foolish" — while his ten-year plan would increase spending by $40 billion.

"We shouldn't cut education to balance the budget," Clinton said in his main speech, to an audience of about 10,000. "We don't have to do it and we shouldn't do it."

The 1993 program makes government loans directly available to students, eliminating banks from the process. Clinton wants to expand the program while Republicans want to either cap it or eliminate it, with a continued role for banks.

The White House says the program has saved taxpayers $6.8 billion by reducing bank fees and lowering interest rates for students. It also allows students to repay the loans as a percentage of their after-school income.

Parachute-flight crash kills 12 in Virginia

SHACKLEFORDS, Va. (AP) — Gina Arbogast had climbed aboard the plane ready to make her first formation jump with her skydiving friends. They, like her, lived to plunge thousands of feet toward Earth.

But something went terribly wrong Sunday shortly after the twin-engine Beechcraft made its way into the sky in a gathering dusk.

The plane banked, then dived into a house in a dense pine forest, killing all 11 people on board and a man who was sitting on his back porch, watching his son play.

Arbogast, a 28-year-old nurse from Virginia Beach, had recently completed training with the Peninsula Skydivers, a club based at the West Point Airport, where the plane took off. Everyone on board but the pilot was a club member.

"She loved the beach, and she loved skydiving," said Arbogast's mother, Cathy Arbogast of Charlottesville. "It was a passion."

The skydivers club had leased the plane since June, said club treasurer Carol Clay. The plane had no record of crashes or safety problems, according to Federal Aviation Administration records.

Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board arrived Monday to pick through the charred wreckage along a country road about 40 miles east of Richmond.

At a news conference Monday evening, NTSB vice chairman Robert Francis said two pilot witnesses reported "some sound of the engine malfunctioning" as the plane took off. Those witnesses said the aircraft turned right after climbing to somewhere between 500 feet and 1,000 feet, then banked sharply and turned nose down, he said.

Francis said there was evidence in the badly damaged cockpit controls that the right engine had been turned off, but he said the engines needed closer inspection. Investigators have records of the plane's engine maintenance, but have not yet reviewed them.

Investigators hoped to wrap up their on-site investigation Tuesday, but a final report on the cause of the crash will take about six months.

This aerial photo shows the site of a Virginia plane crash that killed 11 members of a skydiving school and one man who was sitting on his porch.

Packwood's escape

Sen. Bob Packwood finally resigned his Senate seat last week, seemingly forced out by widespread accusations of sexual misconduct.

So why aren't we happier?

We could say that Packwood's resignation was a death blow to a prevailing attitude in many workplaces — that sexual harassment is acceptable behavior.

But it wasn't. Packwood slipped quietly away, avoiding any real punishment.

Expulsion would have meant the loss of all benefits and pensions associated with a past career in the Senate. Packwood was given the option to resign in order to avoid that fate. By doing so, he kept his retirement pay and health benefits, and will continue to have access to the Senate floor for the rest of his life.

Let's see. Packwood gets to leave and live off a hefty senatorial pension? In other words, he does nothing worse than retire?

Exactly where is the justice in that?

Moreover, Packwood's resignation is far from immediate. It seems that Bob will be hanging around the Senate for at least a month, even getting to keep his prized Finance Committee chairmanship during his remaining days.

And far from blasting their colleague for his atrocious conduct, Packwood's fellow Republican senators rose one by one to congratulate him on his Senate career, and to grieve his parting.

Grieve? Grieve for what?

Let's get this clear — Bob Packwood deserved his fate. He should not be mourned — he should be shunned.

The Senate Ethics Committee recommended his expulsion for three very valid reasons.

First, the committee found that he had committed numerous acts of sexual harassment and misconduct over a period of 21 years. That, in itself, should be grounds for expulsion.

Second, Packwood tried to cover up the committee's investigation into the matter by "withholding, altering and destroying" his dairies. Sounds Nixonesque to us.

Third, in an attempt to avoid alimony payments, Packwood used his influence to try to get his estranged wife a job from people who had an interest in legislation before him.

These are damning charges. Expulsion was the only honorable way to deal with such a man.

By wringing their hands over Packwood, senators are sending a sickening message to the American public — the message that Packwood really didn't do anything unusually bad, but simply got caught up in a whirlwind of public furor.

Packwood grossly abused his position of authority as a U.S. senator. By doing so, he defamed the Senate and himself.

The American public is not greatly trusting of the federal government right now. Seeing Packwood get away with a slap on the wrist and a thousand tears will only further erode that trust.

So long, Bob Packwood. We're glad to see you gone, but we wish you had received the punishment you deserved — loss of all senatorial retirement benefits and public censure.

As long as sexual harassment is tolerated in the halls of Washington, it will not fade from the workplaces of America.

'JUDGE ITO WOULD LIKE YOU TO COME BACK INTO COURT, MR. SIMPSON — APPARENTLY THEY'RE STARTING TO GET SERIOUS AGAIN.'

What is up with that?

A football flop: While attending my last Arizona Cardinal fudybuddy ball game this past Sunday, something mind-boggling spewed out of the play-by-play announcers' mouths ... no, it wasn't touchdown Cardinals either.

It was something like "Ladies, now is your opportunity to partake in a new program — NFL101 ... just for women. Cardinal coaches, players and NFL referees will be on hand to explain to you the fundamentals of game, what the penalties mean and answer any questions you may have."

How exciting.

Isn't that just nice of the ol' NFL and Cardinal organization to offer us poor, uninformed women the chance to obtain more knowledge of the game?

Please.

For one, with the continued miserable play of the Cardinals, I surely wouldn't want them telling me about the fundamentals of football. I don't think they've figured that out yet.

Two: Excuse me, but I happen to know plenty of women who are quite knowledgeable about football and sports in general.

Maybe what the NFL and the Cardinals should do is take a class called GAC 101 — Get A Clue 101. In that class, these entities will be taught to be a little more sensitive about what they consider to be 'helpful' programs.

Instead of singling out women, which to me is sexist, they should offer a class to people who want to come learn more about the game, period.

Good riddance: Let's see. For more than two decades, Senator Bob Packwood made unwanted sexual advances to numerous women — including former staff aides — while he was married.

His story — the one about the accusations, the diary and his plight to reduce his alimony by improperly asking people with legislative interests to hire his estranged wife — kept changing like the Cardinal quarterbacks.

CHRISTINA BAILEY
Opinion Editor

First, the Oregon Republican denies any wrongdoing, even though he changed his diaries and refused to give over his original copy to anyone but his lawyers.

Then he said he was too drunk to recall most of the incidents cited. If they did occur, though, he said he was sorry.

As if being drunk is an excuse for his deplorable actions. Did he actually expect people (with the exception of the Republicans) to say, "No problem Mr. Packwood, please continue to represent us and make decisions in the best interest of all the organizations that have a vested interest in you?"

I think not.

Finally, after a closed hearing he was given the ultimatum — either resign or be expelled.

His expulsion would be the first since the Civil War and would eliminate his retirement pay and health benefits. So he decided to resign.

But wait, it gets better.

The Republicans won't give a date on when Packwood will relinquish his office duties and continue to dilly dally around with whether he should remain the finance chairman.

Hello?

Here is a man who has committed numerous criminal acts that would land most others in jail and they're still talking about him holding a position of power.

Are we for real here?

The Republicans should not even be entertaining the idea of keeping him on as finance chairman. Moreover, Packwood should not even have the option of keeping his benefits.

Why?

Because he has yet to take responsibility for his actions. He has yet to make amends to the state he misrepresented and the women he forced himself on.

To give him his benefits, to keep him in positions of power even for another day is, in a sense, saying it's OK.

There is only reason I can rationalize the praise, empathy and excuses Packwood's peers are bestowing upon him.

Most of them have probably been there and done that. They just don't have a diary to prove it.

Injustice against Native Americans ignored

The Mark Fuhrman tapes have reminded all of us about the problems in police departments across the country.

Fuhrman talks of planting evidence and of beating up suspects. When we listen to Fuhrman, vivid images of the Rodney King beating come to mind.

But ask yourself this — if the beating of King had occurred on a reservation and he had been a Native American instead of a black man, would there have been such an outcry?

Would his name now be a household word that symbolizes police brutality and abuses against minorities?

Probably not. The Bureau of Indian Affairs has a long history of brutal behavior that has been widely ignored.

For instance, a young girl had her fingernails pulled out by a Bureau of Indian Affairs teacher. The teacher managed to get away and still has not been found.

Sonny Phillips, a 37-year-old white man, was beaten to death while hog-tied by BIA officers. Investigators didn't inform his family of his death for 30 hours.

A Native American woman was shot in the back of the head on a reservation — and her death explained away as due to "natural causes."

Richard Makil, 26, was knocked down by a truck driven by a BIA reserve officer. While lying on the ground, another BIA officer shot him. When Makil tried to get up he was shot again, this time fatally. The officer who shot him was given a commendation. Witnesses who saw what happened disagreed with the BIA version — but for some reason, they were never interviewed.

Shannon Laws, 21, was Makil's nephew. A few months after his uncle's death, he was chased into a house and shot by BIA officers while attempting to hide under a baby crib. Officers said they had to shoot him because he attacked them with a knife. The knife was never produced. Once again, witnesses who disagreed with the BIA version of the shooting were never interviewed.

Terry Heller, 37, was "endangering his own life by running into traffic," so, to protect him, they shot him — in the back. The BIA said the shooting was justified because Heller was throwing rocks at them. However, they never explained how Heller could have thrown rocks at officers while he was running away from them.

Wayne Austin, 29, was killed by his neighbor. The BIA investigators of this incident left the body uncovered for several hours. His family had a clear view of the body but were not allowed to go to it. Members of the neighbor's family, however, were allowed to kick and spit on the body. The killer was eventually convicted of involuntary manslaughter, and given 60 months probation and a $1,000 fine.

These are but a few instances of the brutality and incompetence of the BIA and its "investigators." There are so many cases of disappearances and murders that have been ignored or blatantly covered up that I could take pages and pages to list them all. The American Indian Movement has a list of more than 120 group members who have disappeared or died mysteriously. There is no way of knowing the actual count of people who are the victims of police brutality on the reservations.

In many cases, families are not given any information about what has happened. They are not allowed access to the police reports or anything related to the case. If the family tries to find out what is going on, they are "discouraged" from continuing.

The BIA, funded by tax dollars, is allowed to do things that make Fuhrman look like an angel. Don't get me wrong, there are employees of this agency that work hard and try to help Native Americans as much as they can. Unfortunately, there are more who would rather use their power to murder, rape, steal, lie and cover up all of it.

The whole country was outraged at what happened to Rodney King. We should be equally outraged at what is happening on the reservations. The BIA, the reservation police and "investigators" should be held accountable for what they are doing.

Does anyone care what is happening? Or is the attitude of "Oh, it's just the Indians" still around after 500 years?

Unfortunately, many believe that it is. Larry Phillips is one of those that believes it. After a year of trying to get something done about his son's death he said, "I've given up on the system. It's broken and nobody is going to fix it."

I tend to agree with him.

Police officers duty to protect not play God

Last March, former Philadelphia steak house owner Joseph Morris was released from prison after serving time for a crime he didn't commit. The evidence that put him in jail was primarily from the sworn testimony of Philadelphia Police Officer Steven Brown.

What led to his freedom was Brown's conviction on federal charges involving 25 cases, including fabricating evidence that cost Morris 2 1/2 years of his life.

"I can't understand why these people (the police) can do anything they want and get away with it," Morris said.

Citizens across the country are echoing that sentiment. Investigations into crimes committed by police officers are meriting big headlines lately — with good reason. The one-time benevolent boys in blue have become objects of scandal, and it's increasingly obvious that America's police officers are not always worthy of their citizens' blind faith.

An extensive Time magazine articles focusing specifically on the Philadelphia police department notes that to date, six Philly cops have "pleaded guilty to such charges as setting up innocent victims, selling drugs and beating and threatening people." Other cities, including Los Angeles, New York City, New Orleans, Minneapolis, Detroit and Washington, have also come under investigation for their police force's misuse of authority.

Locally, 50 Phoenix police officers are being investigated for their part in illegally purchasing and reselling high-tech rifles that are otherwise unavailable for use by the public.

Even closer to home, an ASU student accused ASU Department of Public Safety officers of unwarranted brutality during an arrest for disorderly conduct.

What's a nation to do when its police officers can't even protect themselves? As citizens, we depend on police to protect us and maintain peace, and hope they use their unbiased judgment when making arrests or testifying against suspects.

Unfortunately, when it's their word against ours, we're the ones who get the short end of the stick, and if they're lying, we're punished unjustly.

When law enforcers become criminals, too, it's enough to inspire citizens to take the law into their own hands. I don't know about you, but I don't think that a world full of disgruntled, and paranoid gun-toters hell-bent on a search for their own brand of justice makes for a desirable scenario.

One problem is that police who do come under investigation are investigated by their own kind. In light of the accusations of ASU student Michael McVerry, a recent article in the State Press investigated the frequency of complaints against ASU DPS. The article asserted that complaints against ASU DPS are few and far between, and that most of them are unfounded anyway.

Who provided the reporter with that information? ASU DPS, of course.

There is still a code of silence among police officers. For all of the corruption that is brought to the surface, there is still much hidden or stifled by officers who don't want to step forward and be branded by their peers as a snitch.

More disturbingly, cops who do come under fire for alleged crimes and allegations of police brutality are not always punished accordingly. The Christopher Commission, a panel set up in L.A. to reform the police department after the Rodney King incident, identified 44 officers with histories of complaints and problems, among which was the use of excessive force to subdue suspects. Until very recently, 33 of these "problem" officers remained on the force, with 19 of them still dealing with the public on a regular basis.

Of course, every police officer in the country is not trading in his badge for a prison uniform, and the very fact that the public eye has become so focused on police department reform is a step in the right direction.

But I think it's about time that the "good" cops swallow their pride and think about the well-being of their citizens rather than their reputations among their fellow officers.

Sure police officers have tough jobs. I wouldn't want to be one, and I wouldn't want my mother, father, sister or significant other to be one either.

Jim McDevitt, vice president of the Fraternal Order Of Police in Philadelphia, states in the Time article: "A lot of times you're arresting people who are out-and-out cold, hard criminals, and they're out on the street on bail before you've done your paperwork. That gets very, very frustrating." I can understand how it may be tempting for otherwise decent cops to plant evidence or brutalize criminals they fear will slip through the judicial system.

But police officers have an obligation to the citizens they swear to protect, and it is not for them to pass judgment on the suspects they arrest or testify against. They have a job to do, and are paid to do it well.

Nowhere in their contracts does it say that they have a right to play God.

Law college tax program earns award

BY BRIAN ANDERSON
STATE PRESS

ASU's Volunteer Income Tax Assistance program received top honors from the American Bar Association for providing the best school-sponsored tax preparation in the country.

The College of Law program got the award in mid-August for its work during the 1994-95 academic year. It was the third time in five years VITA has received top billing from the association.

Kristin Gentile, VITA's former director and a third-year law student, said she was pleased to have won because the College of Law's tax program offers many options other programs do not.

"(The program) was a lot of work," she said. "I'm very happy that we won. We've done a lot of things that other law school VITA sites don't do."

Pam Jensen, VITA director for 1995-96 and a second-year law student, said Gentile earned the award because of her untiring dedication to the program.

"I think it's great," she said. "I think Kristin did a lot of work last year. I just have to keep it up."

Jensen added that she plans to have more help available in mid-February so taxpayers won't have to be turned away.

"This year we're going to make sure more people are available to prepare the returns because last year I know it was just a zoo," she said. "Last year we had to turn some people away, and this year we don't want to do that."

There are many free tax preparation services nationwide, but there are only 120 law school-sponsored programs, Gentile said.

She said there were 40 law-student volunteers who prepared about 700 returns for students, the homeless and victims of domestic abuse last year.

She added that the dedication of the volunteers, especially on overwhelmingly busy evenings, made the program succeed.

"On Thursday nights we did foreign taxes," Gentile said. "Our hours were from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. and a lot of times we would have 50 to 60 people at 6:05 p.m. The volunteers were terrific. They were very dedicated."

She said all the volunteers had to attend a training session taught by a local attorney and two accountants, then successfully complete a five to 10-hour Internal Revenue Service exam.

Jensen said she enjoys working with the VITA program because she gains valuable contacts in the legal field and has the opportunity to help people that might otherwise not be able to afford tax preparatory services.

"I got involved because I figured it would be an easy way to help people," she said. "It definitely helps for contacts also, but it's also being able to help people, which is a big thing."

POLICE REPORT

ASU police reported the following incidents Monday:

- A man not affiliated with ASU was contacted at 706 Alpha Drive while placing dry ice in plastic containers and causing explosions. He was advised of disorderly conduct and left the area.
- A woman not affiliated with ASU reported that a man assaulted her on the northeast side of the Student Recreation Complex.
- One bike was reported stolen.

Tempe police reported the following incidents Monday:

- Two men attempted to kidnap a 24-year-old woman while she was walking in the 600 block of S. Myrtle Avenue. One of the suspects grabbed the woman and forced her into the front seat of his car, telling her to "come party with us." The woman jumped into the backseat and kicked the man in the face. She escaped out the back door and ran to a nearby bar. The man who grabbed her is described as a white male in his early 20s, 5 feet 8 inches tall, medium build with short, blond, wavy hair. The other suspect was not described. The car they were driving was an older-model, dark-colored, four-door Cadillac.
- A 21-year-old man was arrested for obstructing justice, disorderly conduct and intent to sell marijuana after he was contacted at 600 S. Mill Ave. about a unrelated theft case. The man gave police a fake name, then threw his backpack into the street and tried to run away. Police found two pounds of marijuana in his bag.
- A 30-year-old man was arrested for disorderly conduct with a firearm after firing a shot into his front yard with a .38 pistol. The man told police that he was upset because he was about to be evicted and his water was just shut off.

Rodriguez: 'There were violations'

Team members claim allegations against track Coach Braxton are true; women's team is focal point of internal investigation, source says

By DAMIAN SHAW
STATE PRESS

The allegations of NCAA rules violations by track coach Leonard Braxton are true, two track team members have alleged.

"There were violations," said sophomore distance runner Ari Rodriguez. "Everything that they're (the NCAA) saying is true."

Junior distance runner John Tyrell corroborated Rodriguez's words.

"The four main things that he's being accused of are true," Tyrell said. "But I can't comment on specific incidents."

Braxton is the subject of an internal investigation for NCAA violations in recruiting, illegal transportation of athletes, illegal payments to athletes and falsifying expense reports.

Both athletes said ASU compliance and eligibility coordinator John Park, who is heading the investigation, ordered them not to comment on specific violations they had seen.

Some athletes confirmed Park had interviewed them as part of the investigation.

Many athletes were reluctant to answer questions about the investigation because they are afraid of losing their scholarships. According to one male athlete, who asked not to be identified, the investigation may focus on some of the female athletes, as well as Braxton.

"It's the girls that they're looking into because it's the girls who are getting hooked up," the source said, adding that several of the women are considering transferring if ASU is placed on probation.

Senior women's track athlete Tike Jackson had already been interviewed by Park and senior Lorriann Adams is still scheduled to speak with Park, but both declined comment on the investigation.

"We have a very good relationship," Jackson said of she and Braxton.

"I'm not sure if I should make any comments," said Adams, adding she wanted to wait until her interview with Park before she made any comments.

Some team members said that since the investigation has begun, there has been animosity between Braxton

Junior inside linebacker Scott Von Der Ahe, who has 22 tackles this season, will be among the Sun Devil defenders trying to stop a Nebraska team that has piled up more than 500 yards in total offense in each of its first two games.

Few changes as ASU prepares for Cornhuskers in the games that they play offensively.

Nebraska's star junior I-back Lawrence Phillips may be out of commission for Saturday's game with ASU, but Head Coach Bruce Snyder said the news of Phillips' absence hasn't changed ASU's preparation one bit.

"It will not change the play calling and it won't change the defensive game planning and I don't think it will change the spread," said Snyder, whose Sun Devils (1-1) face the defending national champion Huskers Saturday in Lincoln. "So I don't think there's any change."

Added Snyder: "He is the best back they have, but I don't think that's going to change anything. They're very confident in their other runners. They're going to play their offense."

If No. 2 Nebraska (2-0) does play its standard offense, the Sun Devils' defense will arguably be faced with its toughest test of the entire season.

"Each individual unit has got to play the best that they can play," said Snyder. "I think the biggest challenge we will face is when our defense and their offense is on the field. They have been so dominant That's the key I think."

Snyder said he wasn't sure there was a better team in the country right now than Nebraska.

"I haven't seen Florida State play, but I can't imagine too many teams in America that are really as good as this team," Snyder said of the Huskers, who have already crushed Oklahoma State 64-21 and most recently Michigan State, 50-10. "I mean they are really dominate in virtually every area. I think it would be hard to have the same sense of confidence going into this game as we did going into Washington (two weeks ago)."

Plummer to rewrite history books?

If junior quarterback Jake Plummer, who has already accumulated 4,284 yards passing at ASU, duplicates his 1994 passing total of 2,179 yards, then he would become ASU's third all-time career passing leader. Plummer would be 602 yards short of second place and only 709 yards short of being the all-time passing leader in ASU history.

Phillips, Benning under scrutiny in Lincoln

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — It was a stunning development for a college program regarded as one of the nation's cleanest: Nebraska's top two running backs were arrested, accused of assaulting women in separate incidents.

Coach Tom Osborne kicked Lawrence Phillips off the defending championship team Sunday night, but hinted Monday that the junior's Nebraska career might not be over. The coach said he expected backup Damon Benning to play.

"Obviously, we've lost a great player," Osborne said of Phillips. "Lawrence was playing as well as any I-back we've had in a long time ... Unfortunately, he will not play for quite a while, if at all."

Osborne said Phillips remains on scholarship. Asked if Phillips could return, Osborne said he didn't know.

"You never say never," he said. "But he's certainly got to get some things accomplished There's no time limit on his suspension. Obviously, if he did return, it would not be any time real soon."

The decision means No. 2 Nebraska (2-0) will go into Saturday's home opener against Arizona State (1-1) without the 20-year-old Phillips, an early season favorite for the Heisman Trophy. Phillips rushed for 359 yards and seven touchdowns in two games.

Osborne would not say why he dismissed Phillips on the team while other players, including Benning, who face charges remain on the team.

Phillips whereabouts were unknown Monday. His lawyer, Hal Anderson, did not return three telephone messages Monday but said Sunday that Phillips was upset.

Phillips was arrested on suspicion of misdemeanor assault of 20-year-old woman and trespassing at the apartment of another football player: Scott Frost, a quarterback transfer from Stanford.

Police Chief Tom Casady said Phillips apparently scaled the wall to reach the third-floor balcony of the apartment. Casady said Phillips allegedly assaulted the woman with his hands, then took her downstairs to the foyer of the building, where residents were able to pull him away from the woman. Casady would not identify the woman by name but police reports say she is a sophomore member of the women's basketball team.

Casady said she is out of the state for her own protection.

Benning, 21, was arrested at his Lincoln apartment early Saturday on suspicion of misdemeanor assault for allegedly grabbing a 19-year-old woman and pushing her around. He had stayed in Lincoln to recover from a pulled hamstring while the Huskers traveled to East Lansing, Mich., for a game at Michigan State.

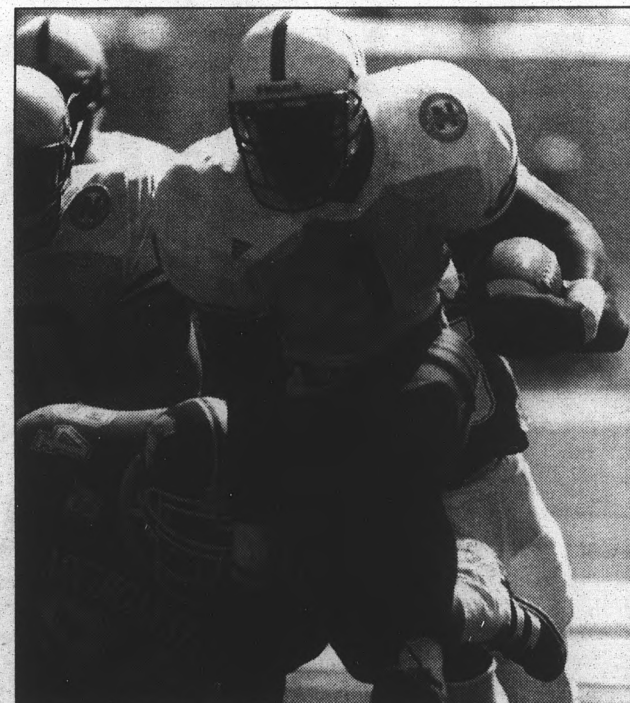

Both players were released after posting bond. Lancaster County Attorney Gary Lacey said he did not know when he would make a decision on what formal charges will be filed.

Phillips is scheduled to be arraigned Tuesday; Benning's and assistant coaches. Steve Lemke, Ken Lehman and Tom Doyle refused to sign an NCAA compliance form saying there have been no rules violations for the past year, which triggered the investigation.

"Now there's a lot of friction," Tyrrell said, referring to the coaches' working relationships with Braxton.

Tyrrell said the investigation will probably cause discourse with the team, although most of the athletes just want to get it over with.

"This has to do with the coaches. They're the ones doing things wrong — not us," he said. "I just came here to run, that's all. I don't want to worry about politics."

Sources on the team said Doyle has been conducting team meetings and is in charge of the squad on an interim basis. The team is scheduled to begin conditioning workouts Sept. 18.

The current investigation is not the first time Braxton has been accused of infractions in an athletic program. Braxton had been censured by the NCAA in previous years at Morgan State in Baltimore, M.D., where he was the athletic director and track coach from 1988-92. Several of the school's sports are still banned from post-season play and there are still scholarship restrictions for student athletes in place.

Attempts to reach Braxton and Park Monday were unsuccessful, and Christine Wilkinson, the interim director of athletics, was also unavailable for comment. However, she previously said she would not comment on the investigation until its conclusion, which is scheduled to be in one month.

ASU Football

Plummer also already has 31 completions this year and 292 for his career. If he averages only 15 pass completions per game for the rest of the season, he will surpass former ASU quarterbacks Danny White, Mike Pagel and Paul Justin and be second only to Jeff Van Raaphorst on ASU's all-time list. By the time UofA comes to town on Nov. 24, he would have 427 completions compared to Van Raaphorst's 503. White and Van Raaphorst both played only three full seasons.

In addition, Plummer, who has 30 touchdown passes to date, needs only seven more to move into the No. 5 spot for all-time career touchdown passes. The current record-holder is Danny White, who has 64.

Back-up quarterbacks

Snyder said he was satisfied with the play of both of his back-up quarterbacks in Saturday's game. Both sophomore Jason Verdugo and redshirt-freshman Steve Campbell saw action late in the ASU's 45-20 win. Verdugo led the Sun Devils on a 10-play, 53-yard drive in the fourth quarter which was capped by redshirt freshman Brian Singleton's 2-yard touchdown dive. Campbell, meanwhile, completed 3 of 4 passes for 37 yards in the fourth quarter.

"I think they're going to be better just from that little bit of exposure," Snyder said. "Verdugo—within our system—led the team down for a score. And Steve, he is a great gun. They (the passes) hit ya'. You don't want to take it full force right to the body because it really would hurt. I was pleased by both of those guys."

"Fright Night" update

Redshirt-freshman safety Mitchell "Fright Night" Freedman, who was held out of Saturday's game with UTEP due to a thigh contusion, did not practice Sunday like Snyder anticipated. However, Snyder said he is still hopeful Freedman, who hasn't practiced in over a week, will be ready by Saturday. Snyder said Freedman made a last-ditch effort to play just before the start of the UTEP game.

"He put on a little show," he said of Freedman. "He knew it wasn't the right thing to do. So the logic was easy. And you could tell by how he was resisting that he knew it was right also."

If Freedman is ready to play Saturday, he will start at strong safety and sophomore Thomas Simmons will start at free safety. Simmons lost his starting job last week to senior B.J. Alford, who injured his shoulder against UTEP and is questionable for Saturday.

court appearance is scheduled for Sept. 27.

Osborne said it was "very painful" to dismiss Phillips, who has had three brushes with the law, from the team.

"I care very much about Lawrence," he said. "But it's something that needed to be done at the time, so we did it."

NCAA officials said disciplining players in trouble with the law was the school's business. It's an area that has clouded Nebraska's football program for months.

At least five other current players have had brushes with the law over the last two years; none has been dismissed from the team. Cornerback Tyrone Williams faces felony weapons charges.

Backup receiver Riley Washington is scheduled to be back in court Wednesday on an attempted second-degree murder charge. He was ordered Friday to stand trial on the charge that stems from an Aug. 2 shooting at a Lincoln convenience store. He has practiced with the team since he was released from jail.

Behind Benning on the depth chart is Clinton Childs, a senior expected to play at full-back and special teams, sophomore James Sims and freshman Ahman Green. All have played, but none are like the 6-1, 220-pound Phillips.

ATTENTION ASU FOOTBALL FANS: IT'S WEEK THREE

As a reminder, the State Press sports department is sponsoring the weekly "PICK IT AND WIN" contest for ASU football games. Last week's winner was senior business management major Brandon Jenkins.

To win, contestants must correctly predict the winner and final score of the ASU football games on Saturday. The Sun Devils' next game is Saturday against defending national champion Nebraska in Lincoln.

The weekly winner receives: an ASU cap courtesy of The Cap. Co. on 6th St and Mill Ave., an autographed Jake Plummer poster schedule of courtesy of ASU athletics, a head-shot in Monday's State Press sports section and a bonus prize.

If none of the contestants in a given week predict the exact score, then the winner will be determined by which contestant comes closest.

In the event of a tie, the winner will be drawn out of a hat. However each person in the tie will be recognized.

Entries must be either faxed to 602-965-8484, "Attn: Sports Editor," or dropped off at the State Press offices in the basement of Matthew's Center. Valid entries should include full name, student #, year in school, major and daytime phone # where you may be reached. Winners will be contacted the Sunday after the game.

The entry deadline each week is Thursday at 5 p.m. Entries received after the deadline will not be considered. Telephoning the State Press is not a valid form of entry.

NOTE: All ASU faculty and staff members are welcome to join the contest.

CORRECTION: A picture of ASU receiver Isaiah Mustafa was incorrectly identified as being senior tailback Chris Hopkins on page 16 of Monday's State Press. The State Press regrets the error.

We need your HELP

Every weekday, we give you the State Press absolutely free. Great news. Great features. Even a magazine. Crosswords and horoscopes. Not to mention the huge savings from all the coupons.

We do this for you every day. Will you do something for us? Good! Thanks!

When the State Press has inserts, they tend to flop to the ground and create a safety hazard as well as an eyesore. Would you be so socially correct as to bend over and pick an insert that might slip out of your State Press? Thanks.

We appreciate your help. And so does the earth.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST by Sydney Omarr

Tuesday, September 12, 1995

Dolly: She is 73 years old, her smile and voice known to millions. Asked about possible retirement, she laughs her famous laugh, answering, "Retire to what?" Carol Channing, Aquarian star of "Hello Dolly," continues to capture hearts of audiences. Being an Aquarian, Carol Channing is no stranger to astrology. She is creative, talented, stubborn and continues to ridicule question of retirement. When people call "Hello Dolly" they are invariably imaging Carol Channing.
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Financial deal ready, brook no unnecessary delay. Focus on initiative, courage, originality, personality. Wear red, make bold entrance. Money will not be withheld! Count it.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cycle high, obtain hint from Aries message, begin building program. Focus on desire to settle down. Be attentive to security, partnership proposal, marital status. Libra involved.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): People will say, "You're acting just like a Gemini!" Take it as compliment, accent diversity, intellectual curiosity, humor. Secret allies are backstage, they will appear when most needed.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Focus on intention to rebuild, to strengthen structure of basic concepts. Lunar position highlights ability to win friends, influence people. Speculative venture succeeds - reason to celebrate!
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Some will comment, "You can write your way in and out of anything!" Focus on flirtation that could get out of hand. Protect valuables, don't compromise principles despite temptation.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Focus on music, ability to please public, changes in domestic life, including marital status. Long-forgotten debt paid by someone residing far away. Taurus, Libra persons play roles.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Check Virgo message. See places, relationships as they are, not merely as you wish they might be. Be aware of element of deception. Dispute could arise concerning ownership, inheritance.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't falter! Legal opposition collapses sooner than anticipated. Position strong, focus on pressure, opportunity to hit financial jackpot. Marital status in picture. Capricorn plays role.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Long-anticipated journey closer each day. Do some planning, get priorities in order. Focus on idealism in romance, lending helping hand to one who is loyal. Aries in dominant role.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Despite objections, you get your way - it is right way. Lunar position highlights creativity, excitement of discovery, physical attraction. Emphasize independence, originality, romance.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What appears to be easy turns out to be healthy challenge. Focus on direction, motivation, food, marital status. Some will comment, "One never knows what to expect of you!" Keep 'em guessing!
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Just like you wanted it to be! Triple play - love, money, health. Focus on travel, self-expression, joy of living. Relative grudgingly admits, "You were right all along!" Gemini featured.
IF SEPTEMBER 12 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are perceptive, sentimental, versatile, people say, "You are fun to be with!" Gemini, Sagittarius persons play significant roles in your life. You are super-sensitive concerning appearance, body image. Current cycle emphasizes travel, universal appeal, study of language, crossroads for relationship, including marriage. During October you make fresh start, you'll be told, "Being in love with you is never humdrum!" November, month of surprises!
