Frat members furious over DPS' handling of Southard investigation

BY TIMOTHY TAIT
STATE PRESS

Some Sigma Chi fraternity members are upset about the way a criminal investigation of fraternity member Brian Southard has been handled. The Maricopa County Attorney's Office continues to investigate Southard's role in the beating of an African-American man last month, but has not yet decided if it will be prosecuted as a hate crime.

Sigma Chi Vice President Mark Manderscheid said he thinks the investigation has been intentionally prolonged to "let it blow over" and cover up mistakes made by the ASU Department of Public Safety.

He also said that people outside of the Greek system have been misinformed by the police and the media.

"People are going to believe the police before they believe frat boys," he said. "No one really wants to hear our side."

However, law enforcement officials said they are proceeding cautiously to ensure a thorough investigation.

"The case is still under review," County Attorney spokesman Bill Fitzgerald said. "There are still some loose ends that are being cleared up."

A review board composed of senior county attorneys will make the final determination whether the assault will be prosecuted as a hate crime. Fitzgerald did not know when the investigation will be complete.

Manderscheid said the search warrant used to gather evidence at the fraternity house contained numerous inconsistencies and factual errors.

"It says in the search warrant that they (DPS) need substantial evidence to get a search warrant, so they put that the cameras (in Lot 59) show a bunch of guys in the street beating a guy in a 'gang-like manner,'" he said. "They used false information to obtain the search warrant. None of it is true.

"They know that they screwed up. That's why they are delaying this whole process."

Manderscheid said the University "jumped the gun" in labeling the beating a hate crime.

"It looks like the University was out to make it a racial issue," he said. "It won't be too long until people know what really happened."

ASU DPS forwarded the case to the county attorney after evidence surfaced suggesting that the Aug. 25 assault was racially motivated.

However, DPS Chief Lanny Standridge said Aug. 30 that the assault may not have been based on racial bias.

"When anger is flaring and two people are in combat ... and someone says just a word or two, that does not show the act of fighting was motivated by bias," Standridge told the State Press in an earlier interview.

Standridge said the racial slur may not fit the federal definition of a hate crime because it was said during the altercation, rather than before.

The Department of Justice defines a hate crime as "criminal offenses committed against a person or property which are motivated in whole or in part by the offender's bias against a race, ethnic/national origin or sexual-orientation group."

An incident may also be classified as a hate crime if a substantial portion of the community where the crime occurred perceives the incident as motivated by bias, according to federal guidelines.

Bias must be a motivating factor for an offense to be classified as a hate crime, Standridge said.

"We don't want to prematurely pass from possibility to probability," he said. "Just because bias may have been present doesn't constitute a hate crime."

"The assault was classified as a hate crime (by ASU DPS) because the victim alleged that the

Super Bowl XXX preparations in full swing

Sun Devil Stadium getting $1.4 million in improvements

BY CODY V. AYCOCK
STATE PRESS

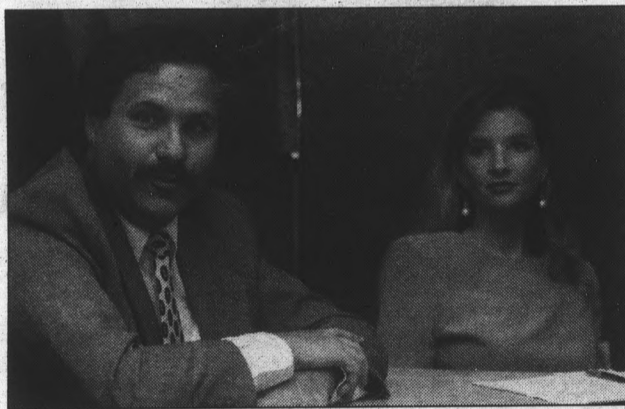

Even if they are not among the privileged few able to procure a pair of tickets, Arizona football fans will remember Super Bowl XXX for a long time.

Every time they see a dazzling catch or go to the bathroom in Sun Devil Stadium, football enthusiasts will be reminded of when the Super Bowl came to town.

In preparation for the event, the facility is getting $1.4 million in permanent upgrades. The cost for improvements will be divided among the National Football League, ASU and the local host committee.

The upgrades will enhance fans' experience in the stadium for years to come, Super Bowl officials said.

"It is definitely a bonus," said Gina Giallonardo, community and media relations manager for the Super Bowl Host Committee. "Anytime you upgrade a stadium so that it is worthy of a Super Bowl, you are obviously adding to the Most of the improvement funding will go toward improving the facility's lighting and sound systems.

Four new light poles, each with 27 fixtures, will increase visibility from the seats, said Tom Sadler, ASU stadium director.

NFL official: Super Bowl plans 'down to nitty gritty'

After nearly five years in the works, plans for Super Bowl XXX are in the final stages, NFL executives said.

"We are down to the nitty gritty," Jim Steeg, NFL director of special events, said of the 77 NFL-sanctioned events and planning that surrounds the most-touted single sporting event in the world.

More than 90,000 people are expected to pour into Tempe for the Jan. 21-28 events, bringing with them an estimated $170 million in revenue for the state, according to the Super Bowl Host Committee. Fifty-nine percent of the attendees will be corporate decision-makers from the United States and abroad.

Another 750 million people worldwide will watch Super Bowl XXX on television.

"(Super Bowl XXX) will definitely beat out any airport for good people-watching," said Gina

TODAY

The Today Section is a daily calendar of events printed as a service to the ASU community. Requests are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis and are printed as space permits.

Campus clubs and organizations may submit written entries to the State Press in the basement of Matthews Center. Requests will not be taken over the phone or via fax.

Entries must contain the full name of the club or organization, a description of the event, date, time and the full address of the location. All requests are subject to editing for content, space and clarity. Incomplete or illegible entries will be discarded.

Deadline for requests is noon the day before publication and entries will not be accepted more than three working days before publication. Only one entry per organization per day is permitted.

• Alcoholics Anonymous — Daily campus meeting. Noon to 1:15 p.m.; Newman Center, Aquinas Hall in the basement.

• ASASU — University Affairs Committee meeting. Topics: University race and gender policies. 5:40 p.m.; MU third floor, MUAB Conference Room 1A and 1B.

• Association for Childhood Education International — First meeting of the semester. Officer elections. All new members who attend today are encouraged to run for office. Fun meeting. 7 p.m.; Payne Student Lounge.

• Coalition for Justice and Peace — Weekly meeting. Bring questions and friends. Noon, MU Mohave Room.

• Progression (Gay and Lesbian Students Network) — General meeting. 7:30 p.m.; MU Lambda League Office (Room 333).

alleged assailant said he didn't like black people," DPS Spokesman Keith Jennings said.

Witnesses, however, dispute the victim's claim.

Sigma Chi President Mark Buntz, in a written statement, contended that the victim — whose name has been withheld by police — was found drunk inside the fraternity house. Members asked the man to leave; however, they never called police.

"Numerous requests were made in hopes that the man would quietly leave the premises. In addition, he was offered a ride home on many occasions," Buntz wrote in the statement.

"We wanted to handle it as gentlemanly as possible, but it didn't turn out that way," he wrote.

Southard and the victim began arguing around 3 a.m. outside the fraternity house, Director of ASU DPS Bill Bess said, adding that the argument, propelled by alcohol, quickly turned violent.

Buntz said fraternity members attempted to keep Southard and the victim apart. But the effort failed when the victim pushed the fraternity members aside, he said.

"It must be understood, however, that this was an altercation between two individuals; not our fraternity at large," Buntz wrote. "What must be realized is that this is not a hate crime."

Devil Stadium's foot-candle reading is 85-95 at mid-field, and decreases toward the end zones.

The new poles will provide 150 foot-candles uniformly throughout the entire playing surface, Saddler said.

Fans will also be able to hear the play-by-play action better and in more places.

"I think the (public announcement) system is something that has been a source of a number of complaints over the years," Saddler said. "What we are trying to do is create a better environment for the fans that are coming to the game. I think the (new) PA system is going to enhance that."

The majority of the stadium's sound is currently heard from one group of speakers above the Intercollegiate Athletics Building in the south end zone.

The Super Bowl improvements will add auxiliary speakers around the entire stadium.

Additional speakers will be located at the ticket gates and concession stands. Officials are also considering installing speakers in the restrooms.

NFL officials said they are pleased with

Sun Devil Stadium's amenities, although the last two Super Bowls have been played in more modern facilities.

"We have played (the Super Bowl) in other stadiums that this is better than, and we have played in other stadiums that (Sun Devil Stadium) is worse than," said Jim Steeg, NFL executive director of special events.

"This is not the Georgia Dome (Atlanta, site of Super Bowl XXVIII). This is not Joe Robbie Stadium (Miami, site of Super Bowl XXIX), (but) I think this site is going to add a lot to the game."

Steege said the NFL has found parking for 1,100 buses. Now all they need to do is find the buses.

Arizona has approximately 200 buses, leaving 900 to be brought in from other states, he said.

Organizers are also making room for 700 limousines and 1,500 corporate aircraft.

Giallonardo said the staff has been packing two days worth of work into each day to finalize plans.

"There are a lot of things we are just trying to get closure on," she said.

In addition to Super Bowl XXX, spectators and Arizona residents may attend the NFL Experience, the Tempe Bank One Super Bowl Eve Bash, the NFL Player's Party and an array of local events.

Giallonardo said within the sanctioned events there are 134 special events.

"When it comes down to it, (Super Bowl congestion) is about four days," Giallonardo said. "People may be inconvenienced, but it is going to be a heck of a good time."

Around Arizona

Super Bowl will bring youth center to Valley

PHOENIX (AP) — While tourists and a business boom may come and go with the Super Bowl, a youth center will be here to stay.

Three years ago, the National Football League started the tradition of building or expanding a youth center in every city that hosts the Super Bowl.

The NFL contributes $1 million to the project, called the Youth Education Town or YET Center, and a group that is selected by the Super Bowl XXX Host Committee must put up $1 million in matching funds.

About 15 organizations have expressed interest in project, even though the application process has not yet begun.

"Our only stipulation is that it be for at-risk children. That leaves it wide open," said Carlette Hower, who is coordinating YET Center activities for the host committee. "We're hoping that it is a school and an after-school program."

Organizations that have expressed interest in the project include the Salvation Army, Friendly House and Maricopa County, which is seeking money to relocate its school for homeless children in central Phoenix.

Hower said the winning group will be selected by the Jan. 28 game. The actual building is scheduled to be constructed about a year later.

GOP candidates call for states' rights in SW tour

PHOENIX (AP) — Hopscotching around the Southwest this weekend, presidential candidates Pat Buchanan and Phil Gramm each said their philosophy of returning control from the federal government to the people makes them the region's natural representative.

Among their respective stops was the annual Mohave County Republican Party picnic in Kingman on Sunday, where some 400 people turned out for barbecue and politics.

"I'm for the return to states' rights and the return of the land that belongs to the people from the federal government," Buchanan said.

He criticized the Endangered Species Act, which has been the premise for halting logging and other timber activities in the region to protect the habitats of animals nearing extinction.

"The people of Arizona know how to preserve their own land better than bureaucrats in Washington D.C. do," Buchanan said, declining to specify how much land he would seek to return to state control.

Buchanan, a former journalist and 1992 presidential contender, was scheduled to spend the night in Bullhead City and to address students and parents at Lake Havasu High School on Monday.

Gramm, who was headed Sunday night to Colorado after two days in Arizona and New Mexico, vowed that as president he would cut states and businesses loose from government shackles.

"I think the government has too much of a say in how you spend your money," he said Saturday in Phoenix. "I want you to make those decisions at home around the kitchen table."

A television image shows cars stacked by Hurricane Marilyn on the island of St. Thomas. With ferocious winds, story-high waves and lightning-forked storms, the hurricane raged through the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico this weekend, tearing apart homes, tossing airplanes and toppling towers.

Marilyn devastates Virgin Islands

Storm leaves residents without power, water, phones

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, U.S. Virgin Islands (AP) — The yachts that used to be in the marina are on the highway. The red roofs of houses are strewn on the ground. The duty-free shops where tourists used to look for bargains are filled with looters.

Hurricane Marilyn has moved on from St. Thomas, but the Caribbean island that it behind was a changed place Sunday.

Electricity, water and phones were out. Air traffic controllers, the windows of their tower blown out by 100-mph winds, used binoculars and radios to guide in relief flights. Half the houses on the island were destroyed, and nearly all the others damaged.

In Charlotte Amalie, capital of the U.S. Virgin Islands, hundreds of people looted stores at a waterfront shopping center. No policemen were in sight.

"These are all odd shoes, man," said a young man at a Foot Locker store. "I can't find something that fits."

The hurricane, the fourth to hit the Caribbean in as many weeks, tore through the Virgin Islands and eastern Puerto Rico on Saturday, blowing apart homes, tossing parked airplanes into the air and killing at least nine people.

Six of the dead were in St. Thomas, whose population is about 51,000, and two people were killed in St. Croix, the most populous of the Virgin Islands with 55,000 people. One person was killed in Puerto Rico.

President Clinton declared the U.S. Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico disaster areas, making them eligible for federal emergency aid.

In St. Thomas, many buildings lost their facades, gaping open like dolls' houses. FEMA said half the houses on the island were destroyed, and another 50 to 55 percent were damaged.

Serbs given more time to pull back

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — NATO and the United Nations on Sunday gave the Bosnian Serbs an extra 72 hours to remove heavy weapons around Sarajevo, saying the rebels were making enough progress in doing so.

Western commanders extended a deadline of 10 p.m. (1 p.m. Arizona time) Sunday evening, saying the Serbs showed "initial compliance" with demands to pull the artillery and other heavy weapons back at least 12 1/2 miles from Sarajevo.

"Therefore, we agreed that the suspension of the airstrikes be extended for an additional 72 hours," said a statement by NATO commander Adm. Leighton Smith and U.N. commander Lt. Gen. Bernard Janvier of France.

"It is our common judgment that the Bosnian Serbs have shown a substantial start towards withdrawing their heavy weapons beyond the limits of the exclusion zone," the statement said.

It didn't say how many weapons the Serbs withdrew by the 10 p.m. deadline Sunday night, but Bosnian government radio put the figure at about 150.

The Serbs were thought to have had around 300 heavy weapons surrounding the Bosnian capital.

Powell says GOP mentors not 'sensitized' to racism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired Gen. Colin Powell says his Republican mentors, Ronald Reagan and George Bush, were not "sensitized" to racism and failed to truly understand it.

"The problem with Reagan and Bush and (former Defense Secretary Caspar) Weinberger and their ilk is that they just never knew," Powell says in an interview with The New Yorker, released Sunday.

The first inklings of the black general's political philosophy have suggested considerable differences with the conservative direction of the Republican Party he may hope to lead.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, a conservative running for the White House, said Sunday that Powell's ideas sound more Democratic than Republican.

"I would have to say that, in his initial statements about politics, about affirmative action, about gun control, about the pro-life issue, I think his views in some way reflect more the views of the Democratic Party than the Republican Party," Gramm said on NBC's Meet the Press.

Powell has just launched a national tour to promote his memoirs and test the waters for a possible presidential campaign, either as a Republican or an independent.

Powell has described himself as a fiscal conservative with more liberal views on such issues as affirmative action, gun control and abortion rights.

In the interview with The New Yorker, he said Bush and Reagan were "two of the closest people in my life," but adds that on the issue of racism, "they were

STATE PRESS Editorial Colin-mania

The nation is in the grip of a new affliction — "Colin-mania."

President Powell? The thought of that outcome has the media in a frenzy — and the American people dreaming.

America is hungry for a savior, one who will lead them from gridlock in Washington into the promised land.

This time, many are latching on to Colin Powell as the messiah. People figure that he did such a great job kicking Iraq's butt that he should have no problem running the country.

We must admit that we are intrigued by a Powell candidacy. But put on the brakes before you begin ordering those "Powell '96" buttons.

The search for a political messiah is hardly novel to this age. Americans have always been fed up with the political game in Washington, and have always sought someone who would go Jesus-like into the Capitol and clear out the corrupt lawmakers.

And just as frequently, the target of their search is a former general, basking in the glory of victory.

This country has a long list of generals-turned-presidents: George Washington, Andrew Jackson, Zachary Taylor, Ulysses S. Grant, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

No one argues that Washington and Jackson earned as much glory in the presidency as they did on the battlefield.

But what about the rest of them?

Shortly after mauling Mexican forces in the 1846-48 war, Taylor was swept into the White House on a wave of public affection. About the only notable thing about his presidency was the fact that he died from a really bad stomachache.

A war-weary nation figured that the man who forced Lee's army to its knees would be a good man to help the nation heal its wounds. But eight years of a scandal-racked Grant administration left America detesting politics even more.

Gen. Eisenhower successfully held together a bickering squad of generals, and led them to victory over Nazi Germany in World War II. And while Ike didn't do a bad job in the White House, he certainly wasn't as well-loved when he left the presidency as he was when he entered it.

History proves it — being a great general doesn't necessarily mean that you'll be a good president.

"First we're going to cut it off, then we're going to kill it." It works fine when you're dealing with the Iraqi army, but not so great with the Congress.

The best advice we can offer at this stage is caution. We think it rather premature to throw support behind a candidate before he's announced any of his positions, before he's announced if he'll seek a party nomination, before he even announces his candidacy.

The thought of a Powell presidency is a tempting one. A nation seething with racial hatred could certainly benefit from an effective, strong African-American president. Call it the Nelson Mandela strategy.

And Colin Powell may very well have what it takes to be a good president. With a turbulent world out there, America needs a president who knows foreign affairs inside and out — just like Powell.

But let's be reasonable before we throw our support behind Colin Powell.

Let's hear what he's got to say before we make up our minds to vote for him or not.

Gingrich book deal innocent and proper

It wasn't long ago that we heard every liberal and Democrat screaming foul. They were furious because Newt Gingrich had the audacity to write a book.

But why were they mad? It wasn't because Gingrich was expressing his views. They were mad because HarperCollins, his publisher, agreed to a $4 million advance for the publication. And the truth be told, the proposed $4 million advance was not only proper, but underestimated what the book was worth.

The biggest question that arises is if it is proper for the speaker of the house to cut a book deal. I see no reason why the House speaker should be restricted from voicing his opinions and views. Gingrich was under no obligation other than to complete the book. So if HarperCollins was willing to spend the money, I see no ethical problem whatsoever.

In fact, I believe it's a great idea for Gingrich to write a book. Whoever is the speaker of the house is arguably the third most important person in the government. By writing a book, the speaker is forced to express his views and ideas.

On the issue of the proposed $4 million advance, I see no wrongdoing here, either. HarperCollins has been publishing books for decades. They know what they are getting into. If they felt that Gingrich was worth the money, they must have had some assurance that they would get the money back.

And if you compare the advance that Gingrich was to receive to those of other top authors, you would see that $4 million is a little on the low end. In fact, it's been reported that authors such as Tom Clancy, John Grisham, and Stephen King all receive well over $10 million in advance.

Another way to look at the proposed advance is to watch how Gingrich's book, To Renew America, is doing in terms of sales. By the end of the second week that his book was on the shelves, it had reached the top of the sales list. And the book held on to that spot for more than four weeks.

GREGG PEKAU
Guest Columnist

In fact, since being released, the book has been a permanent fixture on the Top 10 bestsellers' list. Sales of the book have been well above average, showing that the proposed $4 million advance was well worth it.

Maybe the liberals are a little skeptical because no one with their beliefs can write a successful book. If you don't believe me, just look at the two books by former Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill and then-Sen. Al Gore. Both of these books, with their overly liberal and socialistic views, had little, if any, success.

But you didn't hear Republicans complaining about the liberals' book deals. They understood that the message that O'Neill and Gore were sending wasn't popular anymore.

So why is To Renew America such a success? First of all, Speaker Gingrich is the new leader of the conservative revolution that Barry Goldwater and Ronald Reagan started. Gingrich has taken the role as both the speaker of the house and the speaker of the next generation of conservatives.

Another reason for the book's huge success is our blatantly liberal media. It seems every time I hear Gingrich speak, his words are being twisted to make him look bad. It is almost impossible to understand what he is trying to say because of the press.

The only way to solve this problem was to put his views forward in a way that can't be distorted. Writing a book is the perfect way of doing this. The people who would like to hear what he is really saying now have the opportunity.

I believe that the proposed $4 million advance was not only proper, but also well below what Gingrich was worth. It's a shame that Gingrich was forced away from accepting the advance by liberals trying to cast shadows on his image. I only hope that in the future, when new leaders emerge, they will not be held back by those afraid of change.

Watchdogs of bias barking up wrong tree

Beverly Schnell is the kind of stubborn lady who believes that when she's right, she is right. And no one — lawyers, bureaucrats or liberal do-gooders — is going to tell her otherwise.

That's why she has just won a two-year legal battle that began with what seemed to be a harmless classified newspaper ad for a handyman.

Ms. Schnell, divorced and middle-aged, lives in an old two-flat Victorian house in Hartford, Wis., which is near Milwaukee.

A few years ago, she tried to rent the second apartment to someone who could do handyman work in exchange for a break on the rent.

So she put an ad in a local newspaper. The ad said: "Apartment for rent, 1 bedroom, electric included, mature Christian handyman."

There was no response, so she placed another ad that said: "For rent. 1-bedroom upper flat. Appliances and electric paid. Looking for mature handyman or couple."

Boy, oh boy, was she in trouble.

Why, you ask?

Obviously, you are not sensitive, politically correct and hip about how we must regard our fellow man, woman or whatsis.

There was the word "handyman." HandyMan. That is sex discrimination because she was rejecting handyFEMALES. Or even females who might not be handy.

And she engaged in religious discriminations because she said, "mature Christian handyman."

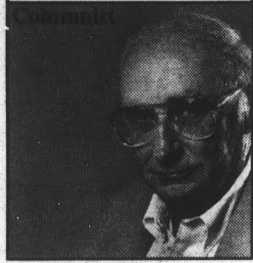

In Milwaukee, there is something called the Metropolitan Milwaukee Fair Housing Council. Its do-gooders snoop the classifieds, looking for ads that discriminate.

And when they spotted Ms. Schnell's ads, they pounced.

They called Ms. Schnell and explained her misdeeds.

She was flabbergasted. A deeply religious person, she said that the ads simply meant that she wanted a geezer with decent values who was quiet, stable and handy with tools. And she would have accepted any religion.

So the do-gooders offered her a deal. They would drop the charge of violating the state's fair-housing law if she would pay $500 for their lawyer's fee and $50 for their efforts.

As they said, she didn't have to use the word "Christian." She could have said that she wanted someone with "traditional family values."

Which is kind of stupid, if you think about it. She might then have been discriminating against gays or couples who don't believe in marriage or a married couple who believes in swapping-sex parties.

So she refused to fork over $500 for their lawyer and $50 for their petty-cash fund.

Instead, there was a hearing by a state agency, and the bureaucrat said that she lost.

Which made her even more indignant.

So she told her lawyer to appeal the ruling. It went to a higher court, which declared that she should have her day in court and that a trial should be held.

So before a jury trial was held, the do-gooders offered her another deal.

They would settle for mere token payment of $50. Ah, but that would have meant that they won and she lost and she could be asked to pay their lawyers' fees, which would add up to thousands of dollars.

She told them to forget it.

So they offered her another deal. They would drop the case if she would take sensitivity training and agree to a confidentiality agreement. In other words, they didn't want her or her lawyer to talk about the case.

She told what they could do with that deal too.

So they caved in. Rather than take a chance on losing the trial, they said they wanted the case dismissed completely.

To their surprise, Ms. Schnell tried to reject that too.

As her lawyer explained: "She didn't want it dismissed. After what she's been through, she wanted her day in court. She wanted a trial so she could prove that she is not the kind of person who would discriminate."

"She hasn't rented for three years for fear that she'd be sued again. So she's lost the income from that. She works part time as a florist to scrape by and to help her elderly, sick mother."

"She's angry and feels that the Fair Housing Council was unfair and heavy-handed. And that they aren't interested in whether a person is innocent, but just in pushing their agenda."

"The council didn't want to go to trial because the jury would hear her intent and the way she meant it. She was looking for someone of good values. The definition of Christian in the dictionary also says it is someone of good values. She meant it like that. She didn't want a criminal or a party person. She wanted a reliable, law-abiding citizen. But she didn't phrase it in that way to avoid discrimination charges."

But the judge said the council could get the case dismissed without a trial.

And that made Ms. Schnell the "prevailing party." In other words, she won.

Is that the end of it? Maybe not.

Now, she is thinking of another appeal that would require a jury trial.

"She believes someone has to stop the spread of this kind of thing," her lawyer said. "If people don't stand up for the truth, then organizations will continue to do this to innocent citizens."

And she still could use a handyman. Oops, that should be a handyperson. Or maybe a handycreature.

Is there a handywhoozits out there?

Unacceptable behavior responsible for media coverage, not color

I am writing in response to an editorial written sometime last week about the black representative that had sex with the 16-year-old girl.

You expressed a problem with reporters attacking Rep. Mike Reynolds. You expressed a problem with reporters attacking Reynolds so vigorously, and assume it was because he is a black man.

Why is the news being so hard on Sen. Bob Packwood? I'm sure that there is a complete file of articles written on Packwood's conduct.

The problem here is this type of conduct. Both of these men are in positions of power and authority and have displayed unacceptable behavior.

I would very much agree with you that this country has a big problem with racism. But when blacks move into positions of authority, they need to realize that they are in the public eye and are expected to act in an exemplary manner.

If Reynolds did indeed have sexual relations with a 16-year-old, then he does not deserve respect or a position such as a representative in our government.

I am also very glad to see that Packwood got what he deserved — humiliation — just as all those women felt after he displayed his unacceptable behavior.

Internet enhances higher education

BY MICHELLE CARSON
SPECIAL TO THE STATE PRESS

With the increasing presence of modems, e-mail and the Internet on campuses, students and faculty alike are experimenting with aspects of education that don't include a classroom.

The University has already merged onto the information superhighway with on-line sites that deal with everything from touring the campus to promoting the Super Bowl. ASU was also credited with one of the best servers in the country by Internet World magazine this month.

With the enormous commercial growth of the Internet in the past year, experts say higher education is next in line to get interactive.

"The Internet will revolutionize college education," said Gia Preston, a national Internet consultant who spoke to more than 200 students Wednesday in the Memorial Union Arizona Ballroom.

Preston conducted a two-hour presentation that showed students the opportunities existing on-line. She is one of the many who recognize the possibilities of education through the Internet.

"I would like to make education as accessible as possible," she said. "Putting classes on line allows for the destruction of barriers. It allows anyone to access a class at any time, just by pointing and clicking."

ASU already has a number of interactive educational tools available from any computing site on campus.

"The Internet allows students to interact with the authors and researchers they are studying instantly. They can find out what is going on right now, as opposed to reading a book that was published three years ago," said Samuel DiGangi, associate professor of special education.

Engineering students are learning in the labs, but they can also access class information while on-line.

Kati Weingartner, support systems manager for the engineering programs at ASU, said the Internet is playing an increasing role in the engineering program.

"Classes have servers on Netscape," she said, which allows students to "download homework, class syllabuses and special programs."

One of the Internet programs at ASU, the Electronic Forum, is interactive software that allows students to communicate about class lectures and labs and to study collaboratively. It was designed to help large lecture classes seem more personal for students.

The EF is also used by professors to take opinion polls, post notes and announcements and receive comments from students.

As the Internet takes ASU by storm, other campuses across the country are also taking advantage of the opportunities that lie within cyberspace.

Pennsylvania State University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology are the first schools in the nation to offer fully-credited classes over the Internet. Classes are available 24 hours a day, and homework is collected via e-mail.

Free classes currently offered in the Computing Commons and presentations such as Preston's, which was sponsored by Sprint and the Associated Students of ASU, are helping ASU students learn about the Internet.

Preston said the Internet will cause emerging changes in college education.

"We have a medium now which the world is exploding into. The curriculum, the professors, everything is going to change," she said. "Things will be taught for the benefit and with the interaction of students, which is how it should have been in the first place."

Hot-selling Chili beer spices up brewing market

CAVE CREEK, Ariz. (AP) — For the barfly who thinks it's macho to gulp down the worm in the tequila bottle, an Arizona brewer has a new challenge: Chili beer.

He's found plenty of takers.

Ed Chilleen's Black Mountain Brewing Co. sold 5,000 cases of Cave Creek Chili Beer when it first hit the market in 1991. Now the fiery brew is sold in all 50 states and eight countries, and sales topped 240,000 cases last year, according to an industry group.

Each clear longneck bottle has a pointed green chili about the size of a man's little finger floating inside, stem and all.

The taste? Like beer and chili pepper.

"It's a tough thing to drink," said Teresa Farley, a 26-year-old Tucson resident who picked up a bottle at the grocery store out of curiosity. "It's so spicy it hurts."

Either there are a lot of tough drinkers or the novelty of the spicy suds is winning over the weak of tongue.

Demand quickly overwhelmed the capacity of the tiny brewery in this western-theme hamlet in the foothills north of Phoenix. Chilleen signed with a larger brewery in Cold Spring, Minn., to make most of the beer under the Black Mountain name.

The idea for chili beer was born about five years ago in a conversation between Chilleen and a fellow restaurateur.

"He wanted a spicy beer for his Mexican food restaurant," Chilleen told a visitor to his family-run microbrewery.

He first thought of spiking the stuff with chili powder, then got a better idea: "How about we just drop a chili pepper in it and see what happens?"

Chilleen headed for the supermarket to find his key ingredient, settling on a serrano pepper.

"I would have liked to use a jalapeno pepper, but it wouldn't fit," he said.

The brewery, next to a restaurant Chilleen owns called The Satisfied Frog, had been running about a year. It took almost another year to perfect the process of getting the pepper in the bottle without ruining the beer.

"Any time you add something to beer, you take a chance at contamination," said Chilleen's son, Scott, who runs the Arizona operation.

Chili beer helped put the company in the top 20 selling microbreweries nationwide, according to the Institute for Brewing Studies in Boulder, Colo.

Their production is a drop in the barrel compared to sales by industry giants like Anheiser-Busch, Miller and Coors. Microbreweries account for a little more than 1 percent of beer sales in the country, said Jim Neighbors, administrator of the institute.

But some brands make a national splash, he said.

"Black Mountain embodies many of the elements of the craft brewing industry," he said. "It is free to experiment and use a variety of ingredients not normally available to brewers."

Chilleen made a few thousand cases for his friend with the Mexican restaurant in California, but the friend dropped out of the project before sales got hot.

PEOPLE

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — There's no turning back for the cast of Friends.

Jennifer Aniston, who plays Rachel, said the attention brought on by the show's wildly successful first season can be unnerving.

"This is when I say, 'Jesus, I just want my life back.' But I know it's too late," she told TV Guide in its Sept. 23 issue.

David Schwimmer, who plays Ross, fears typecasting. "Each of us likes to believe that we will have careers beyond this," he said. "But when a series starts getting into things like a hit record and a music video and mugs and T-shirts ... well, I don't want to be known as Ross when I'm 60."

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gwendolyn Brooks likes the word "black" with a capital "B."

Blacks have fought hard over the years to get the labels of black, "colored" and "Negro" in the upper case, but the print media won't accept it, the Pulitzer Prize-winning poet said Friday at a luncheon.

"The tiredness of the black spirit has noted this, and with glee has noted also that 'African-American' comes all capitalized," she said, "and that white people, although much amused by this entire little fray, seem disposed to accept it ..."

Newspapers and magazines "still refuse to honor the notion of respectable and respected identity and insist on spelling 'blacks' with a little 'b,'" said Brooks, who won the 1950 poetry Pulitzer for "Annie Allen."

LONDON (AP) — Don't look for Camilla Parker Bowles at the Queen Mother's digs anytime soon.

Prince Charles' grandmother has twice refused his requests to bring his reported lover to official functions at her residences, according to Sunday Express, which quoted an unidentified senior royal adviser.

The Queen Mother doesn't object to Mrs. Parker Bowles personally but wants to prevent Charles from divorcing Princess Diana while he is heir to the throne, the newspaper said.

Charles reportedly wants to ease Mrs. Parker Bowles, who's divorced, into public life and eventually marry her.

"The British people would never accept a divorced king and queen. It would divide the country," the adviser quoted the 95-year-old Queen Mother as saying.

LONDON (AP) — The Duchess of York still loves her royal man and he "wants me back," a newspaper reported Sunday.

The former Sarah Ferguson and her two daughters may move back to the estate where Prince Andrew lives, but in a separate house, the News of the World said.

"He wants me back. I love him and we both love the girls," the newspaper quoted her as telling unidentified friends. "I don't know what's stopping us."

The couple has been separated since 1992 and the duchess was forced to move out of a house she was renting last year when the landlords opted to sell it. The two have been seen in public with increasing frequency.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Radio talk-show host Barbara Carlson has embarrassed her ex-husband, Gov. Arne Carlson, before by talking about their failed marriage on the air.

Now she's planning a tell-all book, and the governor is warning that he won't tolerate any "defamatory material."

The book, This Broad's Life, is scheduled for release next summer. She chronicles her years of alcohol abuse and her dozen years of marriage to Carlson.

"Part of this book deals with my life and drinking, and the governor is part of that," Ms. Carlson said. "There are some things that are very painful in the book."

"The additional 72 hours will permit the Bosnian Serbs to completely relocate their heavy weapons beyond the limits of the Sarajevo TEZ (total exclusion zone)," the statement said.

Smith and Janvier noted that Sarajevo airport had been opened, meeting one of their demands, and that roads had been opened into the city for use by the United Nations and aid agencies.

They indicated one of their next steps would be to bring together Serb and Bosnian government commanders to discuss a cease-fire around Sarajevo.

The NATO and U.N. commanders warned that if the Serbs didn't keep their promise, or attacked within the zone around Sarajevo within the next 72 hours, airstrikes would resume.

The second 72-hour period ends at 10 p.m. (1 p.m. Arizona time) Wednesday.

At midnight Saturday, the Serbs had removed 71 heavy weapons, according to the United Nations. Sunday evening, U.N. spokeswoman Maj. Myriam Sochacki said the number had increased steadily during the day.

The commander of Serb troops around Sarajevo, Gen. Dragomir Milosevic, said that by 6:30 p.m. (12:30 p.m. EDT), half of the weapons had been removed, and the rest would be pulled out by Wednesday night.

Powell

never sensitized to it. ... This was an area where I found them wanting."

Powell, who served as national security adviser and chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff during the Reagan and Bush administrations, said he "almost went crazy" reading a Republican newsletter saying affirmative action was no longer needed to combat "vague and ancient wrongs."

"I said, Vague? Vague? Denny's wouldn't serve four black Secret Service agents guarding the president of the United States."

He criticized another Republican candidate for president, California Gov. Pete Wilson, for his campaign against affirmative action. "We've got Pete Wilson out there saying that affirmative action is bad because there are eight-tenths of 1 percent more black students in the University of California school system as a result of 15 years of affirmative action."

Powell told the magazine he didn't want to be elected as the first black American president. "I don't want to be the poster child for the brothers, or for guilty white liberals. That would not be true to the image I have of myself."

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., the current front-runner for the 1996 GOP nomination, said Sunday that Powell would be a great asset to the Republican Party whether he runs or not. But he added that "we're not going to change the party to make him comfortable."

"He's going to have to take stands on issues like the rest of us," Dole said on ABC's This Week With David Brinkley. "You can't be rigid in this business. You've got to be flexible."

Dole wouldn't say whether he would consider Powell as a running mate, but said: "I would certainly want him in my administration somewhere."

The White House, meanwhile, avoided criticizing Powell but defended President Clinton against the former general's terse assessment of U.S. foreign policy. Powell, who also served under Clinton, has compared administration foreign policy meetings to college bull sessions.

"He's in the process of selling a book and obviously that's part of what's going on here," Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said on CBS's Face the Nation.

"At the same time, he's making comments on domestic policy that are very much in line where the president is," Panetta said.

Asked about Powell's chances as an independent candidate, Panetta said, "I don't think the American people are going to crown anybody in political office. They want people who are willing to jump in the ring and fight it out, and right now, the general has not indicated whether he's willing to do that."

STATE PRESS

It's time to pick up the pieces.

With the aftershock of ASU's 77-28 humbling at the hands of No. 2 Nebraska Saturday still vibrating through their systems, Head Coach Bruce Snyder and the ASU football team are busy taking inventory of the damage and trying to get on with their season.

But Snyder said one thing is sure, no one will ever forget what transpired in Lincoln.

"We can't forget it," said Snyder, whose Sun Devils (1-2 overall and 0-1 in the Pac-10) next face Oregon State at 7 p.m. Saturday at Sun Devil Stadium. "We're embarrassed as hell. We should be angry as hell. And we have a team coming into our stadium and we got to get our butts going. That's what my gut tells me, 'Don't sugarcoat this thing.' There's no way in my opinion that that score should be that way ... We've got to play better than that."

Snyder said if anything, ASU can look back on the Nebraska game as a tremendous learning experience.

"If you look at organizations — no matter what nature — when they go through travail, they go one of two directions: They either get better from it or they get worse from it," he said. "It is paramount that we improve. We have to take this thing as a learning thing, harden from it, understand how to get ready to play (and) understand the speed of a national-championship caliber team."

Nebraska, which set a record for the most points scored by an ASU opponent since Nevada-Reno beat ASU 74-2 in 1946, also set a new mark for most points scored in a half.

Big football scores reflect 'reality' of current system

By DAMIAN SHAW
STATE PRESS

Nebraska 77, Arizona State 28. Florida State 77, North Carolina State 17. Penn State 66, Temple 14. Texas A&M 52, Tulsa 9. Colorado 66, North East Louisiana 14. Florida 62 Tennessee 37. Welcome to the world of college football's top 10.

With somewhat of a partial playoff system in tact this year, college football teams are trying harder to impress voters and garner one of the coveted top two positions in the Associated Press poll so they can play for a national championship in the Fiesta Bowl.

Translation: teams are running up the scores because a win just isn't good enough.

Nebraska coach Tom Osborne apologized to ASU coach Bruce Snyder for a late touchdown gained through the air, and Snyder jokingly said that he's already forgotten about it, "in the plane somewhere over Colorado", but Snyder knows the reality of college football.

"If Nebraska settles for a 45-28 game, they'll probably drop (in the rankings)," Snyder said. "It's a reality of our system. As gracious as I think Tom Osborne appears and would like to be, and (Penn State Coach) Joe Paterno, and (Florida State) Bobby Bowden, I think they understand the gravity of playing in the Fiesta Bowl on (Jan. 2)."

This is the first year of the new Bowl Alliance, which will mean the top two teams in the nation will face off in a rotating three-bowl system. In this, it's inaugural year, the Fiesta Bowl will host the national championship. The Big Ten and Pac-10 are the only two conferences which are excluding themselves from the Bowl Alliance, preferring to still match up both of their division champions in the Rose Bowl.

Snyder said he believes that running up the score is a by-product of the race for a national championship match-up.

"I don't think there's any question that in order to be one of the two teams playing in the Fiesta Bowl, you have to end up (ranked) one or two," Snyder said. "The way to get one or two is you've got to make an impression. You can't beat somebody 28-21, or 28-14, (or) you're going to drop in the rankings."

Snyder did not speculate on whether a playoff system would be the best thing for college football.

Women's golf team off to fast start

By RON MATEJKO
STATE PRESS

The ASU women's golf team showed it was still a legitimate contender for yet another championship with a second place finish at the Rolex Fall Preview this weekend.

UCLA won the three-day tournament, which was held at La Quinta Golf Resort in La Quinta, Calif. The Bruins took first overall with a total of 879 strokes to the Sun Devils 890. ASU got as close as three strokes from the lead but were held off due to a strong final round by the Bruins' Jenny Park and Kathy Choi.

The second-place finish gives ASU at least a top two finish in 29 of its last 31 tournaments. The Sun Devils, who came into this season ranked No. 3 in the nation, placed four of their five golfers in the top 20, a feat only matched by UCLA.

Coach Linda Vollstedt was satisfied with her squad's performance this weekend.

"I am pleased with our team, especially since we are so young. We played three good rounds and I thought we finished strong," she said. "I thought a top three finish would be good so I am happy with where we placed."

One question that had to be answered in this tournament was how would the Sun Devils rebound from the loss of several talented players from last season's team? And who would step up to fill their void?

The challenge was answered by pre-season All-American Kellee Booth. She finished fourth overall, seven strokes off the pace, and shot a 2-over par for the tournament. Booth also set a course record by firing a second round 67, which propelled her to first overall after two rounds.

Freshmen Jody Niemann and Keri Cornelius proved they can compete at the collegiate level, finishing 17th and 20th, respectively. Vollstedt was pleased with the performance of her newcomers.

"The two freshmen played great for their first tournament," Vollstedt said. "Jody played great by finishing in the top 20 and played three solid rounds. Keri also played three solid rounds and finished in the top 20 also, which is great for their first tournament."

The only Sun Devil that did not place in the top 20 was Linda Ericsson, who was battling an illness all weekend. Vollstedt was impressed she even participated at all.

"I'm proud she even played at all," she said. "She was still willing to play and she hung in there. She played solid."

Vinny Riviello also played well, finishing at 11-over for the tourney and tying for 11th overall.

The Sun Devils next tournament is the Diet Coke Invitational on Oct. 9-10, which will be held at New Mexico State University.

The Huskers 63-21 advantage at halftime broke the old mark of 55, against Colorado in the second half of a game in 1983. The Huskers also tied a record for most points in a quarter by taking a 35-7 lead after one. Snyder said all of these superlatives at ASU's expense did not help his sanity Sunday.

"You try to be resilient," he said. "I don't walk around whipping myself. But there's embarrassment, disappointment and envy. All three things — those are not good feelings for your mental health."

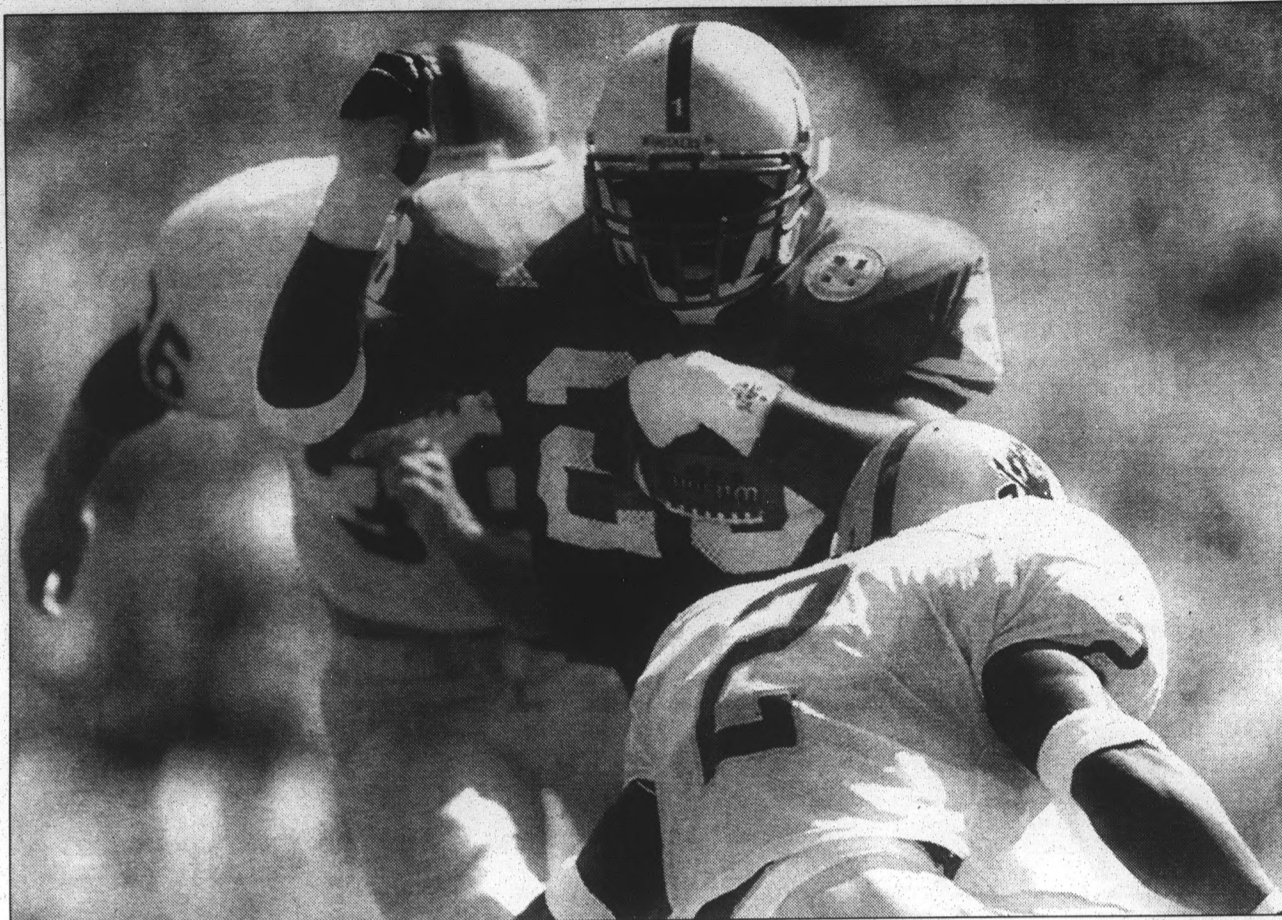

Snyder, who speculated after the game about whether it would be wise to show the Nebraska game film to the Sun Devils, said Sunday there was no doubt they would see some select parts.

"They've got to know what it is we like and what it is we don't like otherwise they have no way of knowing," he said. "We've got to show them. And it's not to berate them. They should be embarrassed and I'm embarrassed. They've got to see that is not what we're teaching."

NOTES:

- Snyder said redshirt freshman safety Mitchell Freedman, junior linebacker Scott Von Der Ahe, junior receiver Keith Poole, junior tight end Steve Bush and senior flyback Ryan Wood turned in standout performances during the game.

- Snyder said one bright spot was no one who played against the Huskers was injured to the point where they are out of commission for this week's game. However, he added the three-page injury report Sunday was the biggest it's been this season.

"PICK IT AND WIN" CONTEST WINNER

JEREMY STEIN

Junior recreation major Jeremy Stein was the Week Three winner of the State Press Sports "PICK IT AND WIN" contest for ASU football games.

Jeremy picked Nebraska to defeat ASU 72-10. Since none of the contestants who entered the contest correctly picked the exact score of Nebraska 77, ASU 28, Jeremy's prediction was determined to be the closest. The Week Three contest response was the largest ever, and all but five entrants picked the Cornhuskers.

Jeremy won an ASU cap courtesy of The Cap. Co. on 6th St. and Mill Ave., an autographed Jake Plummer poster schedule courtesy of ASU athletics, a headshot in Monday's State Press sports section, an ASU sports calendar and a bonus prize.

• Stein on the game: "It was great having a chance to attend the game. The atmosphere at Memorial Stadium is one of the best in college football. They've got real fans there. In their two previous games they had won by at least 30 points so I expected another big output. Plus it was the first game at Memorial Stadium since they won the National Championship."

• Did Nebraska run up the score? "You can't ask them to just lie down and die. They were just playing. ASU was totally committed to the run so what did you expect them to do? If he (Tom Osborne) would have put Frazier back in there, then that would have been running up the score. That was their third-string quarterback."

• Stein's season prediction: 6-5. "They looked decent in the second half, but until they can stop the run better, the best finish they can hope for is fifth in the Pac-10."

• Favorite Sun Devils: Terry Battle and Keith Poole. "They both have big-play ability."

**ENTRIES FOR THIS WEEK'S CONTEST (ASU VS. OREGON ST.) ARE NOW BEING ACCEPTED.

ATTENTION ASU FOOTBALL FANS: IT'S WEEK FOUR

As a reminder, the State Press sports department is sponsoring the weekly "PICK IT AND WIN" contest for ASU football games. The week three winner was junior education major Jeremy Stein.

To win, contestants must correctly predict the winner and final score of the ASU football games on Saturday. The Sun Devils' next game is Saturday against Pac-10 foe Oregon State at 7 p.m. at Sun Devil Stadium.

The weekly winner receives: an ASU cap courtesy of The Cap. Co. on 6th and Mill, an autographed Jake Plummer poster schedule courtesy of ASU athletics, a headshot in Monday's State Press sports section, an ASU sports calendar and a bonus prize.

If none of the contestants in a given week predict the exact score, then the winner will be determined by which contestant comes closest.

In the event of a tie, the winner will be drawn out of a hat. However each person in the tie will be recognized.

Entries must be either faxed to 602-965-8484, "Attn: Sports Editor," or dropped off at the State Press offices in the basement of Matthew's Center. Valid entries should include full name, student #, year in school, major and daytime phone # where you may be reached. Winners will be contacted the Sunday after the game.

The entry deadline each week is Thursday at 5 p.m. Entries received after the deadline will not be considered. Telephoning the State Press is not a valid form of entry.

NOTE: All ASU faculty and staff members are also encouraged to join the contest.

Freshman Darren Angel won his first collegiate golf tournament, the Ping Preview, last weekend. Angel shot a three-round total of 209, which was 6-under par. ASU placed first at the 18-team tournament.

Freshman Angel shoots heavenly round to lead Sun Devils to win

By LISA ESKEY
STATE PRESS

The fifth-ranked men's golf team won the Golfweek/Ping Preview in Cornelius, Ore. over the weekend, behind the first-place play of true freshman Darren Angel.

The Sun Devils finished with a three-round total of 867, seven strokes ahead of UNLV (874). Rounding out the top five were Clemson (882), Arizona (885), and Texas Christian and Arkansas, both with scores of 888. Top-ranked and defending NCAA Champion Oklahoma State finished eighth (892).

Angel, playing in his first collegiate tournament, took the lead on day two of the tournament. He shot 3-under par during the round, and held a two-stroke lead over Mike Vance of UNLV. Angel shot a three-round total of 209 to win the individual title, three strokes ahead of Charles Warren of Clemson (212).

"Having Darren win was a huge positive for the team," said junior Scott Johnson. "We had to replace Todd Dempsey and Larry Barber this year and for a freshman to go into a tournament and win like that, it's like having a fifth-year senior all over again."

Senior Joey Snyder shot a third-round low-score of 68, which moved him from 11th place after the second round to a third-place finish overall in the tournament, four strokes behind Angel. Junior Chris Hanell finished in a tie for 14th (220). He recorded rounds of 74 and 76 on the first two days.

Sanders giftwraps Cardinals' 1st win

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — It simply doesn't happen. Barry Sanders does not fumble. Yet, he did, and it cost the Detroit Lions a game they couldn't afford to lose.

Sanders' first fumble in three seasons set up Arizona's final scoring drive, and the Cardinals rallied from 11 points back to beat the Detroit Lions 20-17 Sunday.

Sanders had carried the ball 803 times without a mistake. He had not fumbled since Dec. 6, 1992, in a game against the Green Bay Packers at Milwaukee.

"When I run, I expect to hang onto the ball," Sanders said in the shockingly silent Detroit dressing room. "Those things are going to happen, interceptions, fumbles. I definitely could have picked a better time, but I don't always make those decisions."

Dave Krieg passed to Anthony Edwards with 2:31 remaining for the go-ahead score. The second fumble by Sanders ended the Lions' last chance.

"I was so happy every time we tackled him that the fumbles were just a bonus," said Cardinals Coach Buddy Ryan, who dodged his second straight 0-3 start. "Tackling that kid is like trying to tackle a runaway balloon."

Sanders carried 24 times for 147 yards, including a 47-yard touchdown run for Detroit (0-3). But his fourth-quarter fumble was recovered by Arizona's Terry Irving, giving the Cardinals the ball at their own 31 with 5:06 remaining.

"Barry Sanders runs 500-600 times without fumbling the football," quarterback Scott Mitchell said. "That stuff happens. That's just football. It's frustrating."

Nine plays later, on fourth-and-10 at the Lions 24, Krieg threw a touchdown pass to Edwards. Krieg's 2-point conversion pass to Frank Sanders gave the Cardinals the 3-point lead.

Detroit, aided by two of 10 penalties against the Cardinals, drove to the Arizona 40. Mitchell hit Sanders with a 3-yard swing pass on first down, but Clyde Simmons knocked the ball loose and Terry Hoage snagged it for Arizona.

"That is something you never expect," Lions coach Wayne Fontes said. "Of all the great backs, I know he'll come back and make some great plays before it's over."

The Cardinals (1-2) ran out the clock as what remained of the 58,727 fans at Detroit's home opener called for the firing of Fontes. "Wayne must go!" they chanted.

Jim Poulin/State Press

Running back Larry Centers and the Arizona Cardinals won their first game of the season Sunday, 20-17, over the Detroit Lions at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Student ticket prices stay same for basketball, reserved seating increases

FROM STAFF REPORTS

One dollar and (almost) two quarters. Less than a gallon of milk. Less than most "value meals" in the M.U. This year, once again it will cost students only $1.47 to attend an ASU basketball game.

Season tickets for students this year for the Sun Devils will cost $28, an easy number for math whiz Bill Frieder, ASU's head coach.

"I am thrilled that season tickets for students will remain at the same price, because I want to continue the great student base we have built here," Frieder said.

"Everyone knows that I am good with numbers, and a $28 season ticket for 19 home games means it costs a student $1.47 per game. That is a great deal, and I am happy for our students."

Season tickets for reserved seating went up this year from $121 to $150, the first increase since Frieder arrived at ASU. The price increase for the reserved seats was approved by the Intercollegiate Athletics Board.

Last season, the basketball squad advanced to the Sweet 16 of the NCAA tournament for the first time since 1973. Frieder has led the Sun Devils to post-season play for the past six years.

ASU's season ticket prices are the ninth-lowest in the Pac-10. Interim Director of Athletics Christine Wilkinson said she was happy the ticket prices continue to be competitive.

"We are very proud that our student season tickets will remain at such a great price, and that our reserved season tickets will continue to be one of the most affordable in the Pac-10," Wilkinson said. "We understand that our fans are really excited about our future, and we want that to continue."

Tickets are currently on sale at the ICA Ticket Office for both student and reserved seating.

Golf

Johnson finished with a total of 228 and freshman Greg Padilla, also playing in his first tournament, finished with a total of 236.

"Chris and I are disappointed with how we played," said Johnson. "We played well, but nothing went right. We put too much pressure on ourselves, and the shots didn't fall. It was discouraging, but we will learn from it."

Angel became the first freshman to win a tournament for ASU since Phil Mickelson during the 1988-89 season. Angel posted scores of 71, 68, and 70 during the three rounds.

Cross country places 5th, 11th

From Staff Reports

ASU men's harriers Tom Weber and Ari Rodriguez placed in the top 20 and helped secure a fifth-place finish in the men's division at the Aztec Invitational on Sept. 15 in San Diego.

The ASU women finished 11th. UCLA won the women's division, while Fresno State took first in the men's division.

Weber, a senior, cut over one minute off his time of last year by completing the course in 26 minutes, 2 seconds for 15th place. He placed 26th in the invitational last year. Rodriguez, a junior, trailed Weber by only five seconds to secure 18th place. Matt Repak (21st), John Tyrrell (33rd) and Travis Anderson (43rd) also placed for the Sun Devil men.

Senior Kim Barrett led all Sun Devil women for the second week in a row as she took 39th. Barrett was followed by Debbie Steiber (42nd), Kirsten Stocker (55th), Phaedra Kohlahaus (64th) and Ronnesia Gaskins (68th).

The Sun Devils next meet is Saturday, Sept. 30, at the Grand Canyon Invitational in Phoenix.

We need your HELP

Every weekday, we give you the State Press absolutely free. Great news. Great features.

We do this for you every day. Will you do something for us?

When the State Press has inserts, they tend to flop to the ground and create a safety hazard as well as an eyesore.

We appreciate your help. And so does the earth.
