Effort to remove Weber fails in Senate

BY TIMOTHY TAIT
STATE PRESS

Student government President Chris Weber, who refused to resign from office following two arrests in past weeks, succeeded in retaining his position following a Senate impeachment hearing Tuesday.

The Associated Students of ASU Senate convened impeachment hearings against Weber Tuesday night, but fell short of the required 18 votes to convict him of the Articles of Impeachment. Thirteen senators voted to convict Weber following an extensive debate.

"When he (Weber) is no longer able to work in one of our own departments — namely the Safety Escort Service — by our own regulations, we have a serious problem," College of Law Sen. Sanjay Vidyadaran said.

The Senate was divided on the question of how Weber's arrests have affected ASASU.

"They have seriously disrupted the Association," College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Sen. Alex Shivers said.

Weber apologized to the Senate for the situation.

"The question is how this has affected the Association and the students — obviously it has," he said. "We all have been affected in some way."

"I apologize to all who have been affected because of this situation."

However, others disputed the claim that the Association has been adversely affected and asked for proof.

Campus Affairs Vice President Andrea Van Bommel said her departments have seen no adverse effects due to Weber's arrests. Activities Vice President Marc Wendell concurred.

"No one has brought forward proof that he (Weber) will not be able to perform his responsibilities," Public Programs Sen.

ASU English professor proclaimed Arizona's best

BY BRIAN ANDERSON
STATE PRESS

An ASU English professor was honored as Arizona's professor of the year Tuesday by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

Jay Boyer said his first thought was that he was going to be fired when Gary Krahenbuhl, the dean of the College of Liberal Arts, and Provost Milton Glick surprised him and his film studies class with the award presentation.

"It was a total surprise for me," he said. "I feel flattered. It was a really nice surprise."

Boyer said he was pleased to have won the award, but he does not think he is the best professor in the state.

"I doubt seriously that I am the best professor in Arizona," he said. "I'm simply one who works hard and does the best he can day by day. Some very nice people nominated me and some equally nice people awarded me."

Wendy Wilkins, assistant dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said she is excited to have the state's best professor on her team.

"We're thrilled, we're excited and we're glad that the outstanding Arizona professor of the year is at our university and in our college," she said.

Wilkins added that Boyer was named the state's best professor because of his versatility in teaching and his dedication to his work and his students.

University President Lattie Coor echoed Wilkins's feelings in a written statement.

"I am deeply pleased at this national recognition for the quality of Professor Boyer's teaching," he wrote. "His role as a faculty member fits the very strong commitment to undergraduate teaching that we have made in recent years. I am especially pleased to see such a strong affirmation of the quality of teaching at ASU."

The Carnegie Foundation used three separate panels to judge the candidates; Boyer was one of 49 professors nationwide to receive the honor.

"Seeing your work recognized tends to rejuvenate you," Boyer said. "It makes me feel as if somebody is saying, 'Thank you.' That's a nice feeling."

Visitors locked out of residence halls during Super Bowl week

BY GREG ZEMEIDA
STATE PRESS

The only way visiting parents will be able to see their children's dorm rooms during Super Bowl week is through a window.

According to a policy being distributed this week by Residential Life officials, only ASU students will be allowed in residence hall rooms from Jan. 24-29.

Hall staff will check people's IDs to ensure they are students. Visiting relatives can stop by the dorms and call for students to come down, but they aren't allowed past the lobby.

The non-student access rule is part of a policy developed to deal with safety issues in the halls during the week preceding Super Bowl XXX on Jan. 28, said Debra Sells, associate director of Residential Life.

Besides barring relatives and friends from dorm rooms, the policy prohibits anyone but residents from staying in the rooms overnight during those six days.

"If every student in the dorms invited a family member to stay over, it would place an overwhelming burden on hall facilities, including plumbing and elevator services, not to mention violating building fire codes," Sells said. "As much as we enjoy having parents visit ... as overnight guests, we wouldn't be able to handle

Weber

Evan Itzkowitz said.

Weber admitted to using poor judgment in the past, but said his effectiveness in office has not been compromised.

"My job has not been affected," he said. "The most important thing for me is doing the job. I'll learn a lot and make a lot of (my) mistake."

Weber said he will be "acutely aware" of his future actions.

"I'm very much aware — more than anyone — the effect of actions, even alleged, on myself and on the Association and on the University," he said.

Sen. Natasa Christodoulidou, of the College of Business, said she is concerned that some senators may have supported Weber simply because of ties to Greek organizations.

"I hope everyone voted with their conscience, rather than their fraternity," she said. "Fraternity members had their minds made up."

Itzkowitz, a member of Weber's fraternity, said only half of the Greek senators voted in support of Weber.

A Senate representative, who asked to remain anonymous, said Monday his only concern was that Greek senators could impede the impeachment.

"The only thing that I'm worried about are the fraternity members," said the unnamed representative. "Chris has claimed (in the past) that seven senators are fraternity members. I kind of wonder if they are going to do what is best for the students — it is a question of loyalty."

The impeachment against Weber was initiated following his arrest for disorderly conduct and trespassing at Palo Verde Main on October 9. He was also arrested and charged with assault for allegedly hitting a female student during a bar brawl in September.

Weber, however, said this ordeal has made him a stronger leader.

"I believe, without a doubt, that I will be a better leader having gone through this," he said.

building functions."

Family members should make arrangements to see their children outside the halls. If that is not possible, she said hall staffs can make exceptions in some circumstances.

"We will do our best to work with the families so it doesn't become an inconvenience," she said.

The policy, which will be distributed to the nearly 4,600 hall tenants on campus, also calls for additional security measures in the dorms from Jan. 19 to 29. All dorm lobby and hall wing doors will be locked 24 hours a day. The student staff in the halls will be doubled, there will be one professional staff in each hall and more community service aides — students who receive basic security training from ASU police — will be used during that time, Sells said.

In addition, all normal hall regulations will be enforced, including the rule preventing students from renting out their rooms.

Keith Menard, president of the Resident Hall Association, said his group worked with Residential Life to come up with the policy. He said it is a good compromise that balances safety concerns with students' freedom.

"The students are concerned about their safety, but by the same token, they don't want to be prisoners," he said.

Most dorm residents like the plan and feel it is fair, he added.

Besides the additional precautions being taken inside the residence halls, ASU police will be stationed outside the dorms and in nearby parking lots during Super Bowl week to provide extra security.

Two additional officers will be assigned just for dorm security, with up to six other officers per shift roving the entire campus, said Sgt. Richard Wilson, ASU police security coordinator for the Super Bowl.

"We want to send visual cues to outsiders that these dorms are secure areas," he said.

Since the residence halls are beefing up their own security, that relieves some of the pressure on ASU police, Wilson said.

"With Residential Life taking the lead on security in dorms, it saves us from having to ... put people inside (the halls) where they are not needed," he said.

Police's two biggest concerns during the week are damage to buildings by souvenir hunters and those looking to party in the dorms, Wilson said. Most of the events preceding the game are family oriented, so police aren't expecting major problems, he said.

"It's not like we were expecting a 10-day Grateful Dead concert," Wilson said.

Around Arizona

State will now pay for lung, heart transplants

PHOENIX (AP) — Mary Schwartz got a second chance at life Tuesday.

The Phoenix mother of two, who is dying from a chronic lung disease, will get a lung transplant paid for by the state's indigent health-care program, thanks to changes in the law approved by the state Legislature.

"The first thing I'm going to do is walk on my own," said Schwartz, who is wheelchair-bound and hooked up to an oxygen tank. "Right now, even getting dressed is a hardship."

Legislation approved during a half-day special session Tuesday covers lung and heart-lung transplants under the Arizona Health Care Cost Containment System — the state's Medicaid alternative.

The bill also extends AHCCCS eligibility for organ-transplant patients from six to 18 months. The average transplant recipient waits at least eight months for a suitable donor, forcing some patients under the old system off AHCCCS lists before they reach the operating room.

Students stage walk-out to protest new mascot

TUCSON (AP) — Several hundred Pueblo High School students walked out of their classes Tuesday to protest plans to change the school's mascot, Tucson Unified School District officials said.

About 250 to 300 students were involved in the walkout at the beginning of the second period, said Monique Soria, a spokeswoman for the school district.

Principal Lorraine Richardson has scheduled a vote for Nov. 8 to determine whether the school should drop its Warrior mascot, which has been the source of complaints from Indian students for years, Soria said.

The students marched down the street after leaving the campus, chanting, "Pueblo Warriors," Soria said. Fourteen Tucson police units responded to a call from the school's resource officer but were there only for the students' protection, she said.

The students marched to Armory Park, the Ronstadt Transit Center and the school district offices, Soria said.

She said students will not be disciplined and will be allowed to make up their work.

State senators support term-limit resolution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arizona's two Republican U.S. senators voted with the losing side Tuesday as the Senate tabled a motion to put the body on record as being in favor of a constitutional amendment to limit the terms of lawmakers.

Sens. John McCain and Jon Kyl both voted against tabling the non-binding "sense of the Senate" measure that said the body should pass a constitutional amendment limiting members' terms.

Thirty-nine Democrats and 10 Republicans voted to table the measure, while 42 Republicans and only three Democrats voted against tabling.

Black men take message home

Rally an inspiration to many

WASHINGTON (AP) — Black men energized by the huge rally in the nation's capital began spreading the spirit Tuesday, making plans to clean up inner-city neighborhoods back home, register voters and simply help each other survive.

As Washington got back to normal, meanwhile, both black and white members of Congress urged President Clinton to create a commission to study America's racial divisions.

Organizers of the "Million Man March" celebrated their success and accused the government of a racist undercount — the 400,000 estimated by the U.S. Park Service.

After Monday's long day of prayer, songs and speeches, many men traveled all night by bus, car or train to return home in time for work Tuesday, tired but still inspired by the brotherhood they felt on the national Mall. Others who only saw the event on TV said they too were uplifted.

"I hope it reverberates around the country in energizing people right where they are," Joseph E. Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, told ABC-TV.

Some men said they already are volunteers in their communities but left Washington determined to take on more responsibilities.

Frederick Heard, a Detroit postman who helps out with an after-school sports league, said he wants to plan a local march with the same themes of self-help and self-respect. "We should get to all the inner-cities," he said.

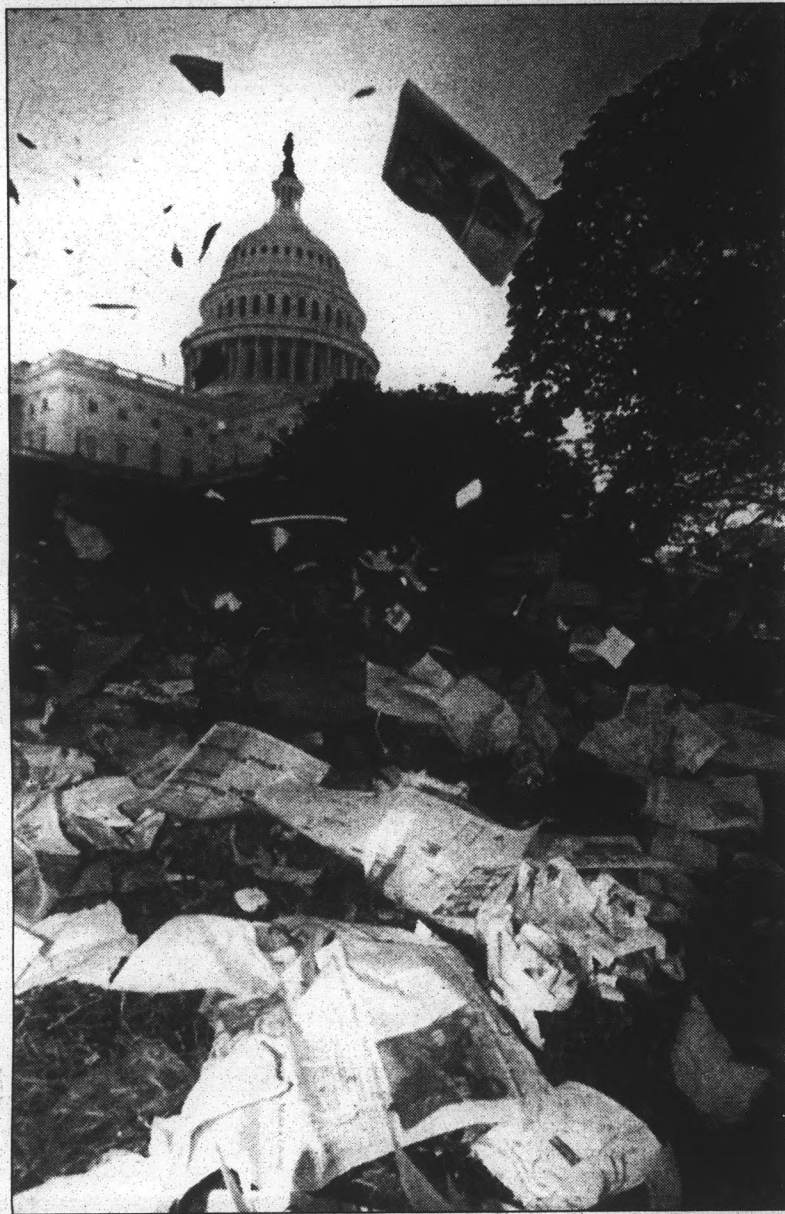

Heard's 15-year-old son, Justin, said he hopes the spirit kindled Monday will keep some black men alive: "I want brothers to come together, stop killing each other."

Alvertis Simmons of Denver promised to encourage black fathers to pay the child support they owe.

"Brothers, make this commitment," he said. "If you know a brother who is not paying child support, cut him off because he should be taking care of his kids."

James Bolden Jr. caught some of the event on television from his home in Topeka, Kan. The speeches were inspiring, Bolden said. But he hopes the talk leads to action on issues such as job discrimination.

"The march is general," he said. "We need to break it down and make it more specific to the problems at hand."

Study: Ads lure young to smoking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Of all of the influences that can draw children into a lifelong habit of smoking, cigarette advertising is the most persuasive, according to a survey of California youngsters.

Peer pressure, the example of family members who smoke, or a combination of the two are not nearly as powerful in prompting the smoking urge among children 12 to 17, when most start the habit, according to a study in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute.

"Tobacco marketing is much stronger than peer pressure in getting a youngster to take the first step toward smoking," Dr. John P. Pierce of the University of California, San Diego, a co-author of the study, said at a news conference Tuesday. "It is what starts adolescents down the slippery slope to addiction."

The study was supported, in part, by the American Heart Association, one of more than 100 health organizations backing a Food and Drug Administration plan to control cigarette advertising and marketing.

Thomas Lauria of the Tobacco Institute, an industry lobby group, said that Pierce's data "was at best dubious" and amounts to little more than "advertising bashing."

"This flies in the face of what many government bodies have concluded," Lauria said.

He said a 1994 surgeon general's report and a Federal Trade Commission study have concluded that advertising is not a major factor in attracting children to cigarettes.

Dr. Joycelyn Elders, then surgeon general, said in 1994 when she released a report on youth smoking that tobacco company advertising and promotions make smoking attractive to children and urged, "We shouldn't advertise something that we know to be a poison and a killer."

The FTC commissioners, in a 3-2 vote, decided in June 1994 not to take action against the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. on a complaint that the firm's Joe Camel promotion was influencing children to smoke.

ASU ... or Alcatraz?

There is one undeniable truth about Super Bowl XXX — the NFL and local businesses will pocket the cash, and ASU students will get the shaft.

In order to protect local business profits, the shaft just got a little bit larger.

In what has been branded an attempt to deal with "safety issues," Residential Life has decreed that no one, save for University students, may enter residence hall rooms for the week preceding the Super Bowl.

In addition, all overnight guests are banned from dorm rooms for that week.

Among the excuses being thrown around for this ban are a potential strain on plumbing.

The only strain on plumbing we can see is the tremendous amount of flushing we're going to have to do to dispose of all of this crap.

Let's see if we've got this straight. Students can't even have family and friends come into their rooms for safety issues and plumbing?

Do you really expect us to believe that?

There is a very good reason that this ban was slapped on residence hall residents — the reason no one is saying.

Money.

Hotels are expected to make a tremendous profit from guests during Super Bowl week. It wouldn't do to have students having friends stay with them — thus depriving a hotel the opportunity to gouge a potential customer.

Downtown Tempe will be filled with tourists with bulging wallets — tourists flinging around mass quantities of money.

Such tourists need to be able to get in and out of Tempe easily, and they need places to park.

Of course, it wouldn't do for visiting parents to clog up streets and parking spots. After all, they're not going to be shelling out hundreds or thousands of bucks apiece — they're just coming to see their kid.

So rather than see the local cash flow restricted, even if by the minutest of margins, ASU has decided to turn its dorms into, well, prisons.

There's really nothing else you can call them.

Even more ludicrous is the claim by the Resident Hall Association president that most dorm residents actually like being quarantined from the outside world for a week.

Oh, really? And just how many have you asked?

We will concede that the "no overnight visitors" mandate might be a fair one. During Super Bowl week, Tempe will be the tourist capital of the planet.

If allowed to do so, a vast number of students would doubtlessly share their space with a stranger during that week for a handsome sum of money. While this would be a great source of revenue for students, it would definitely put a strain on the resources of ASU's residence halls. This much is obvious.

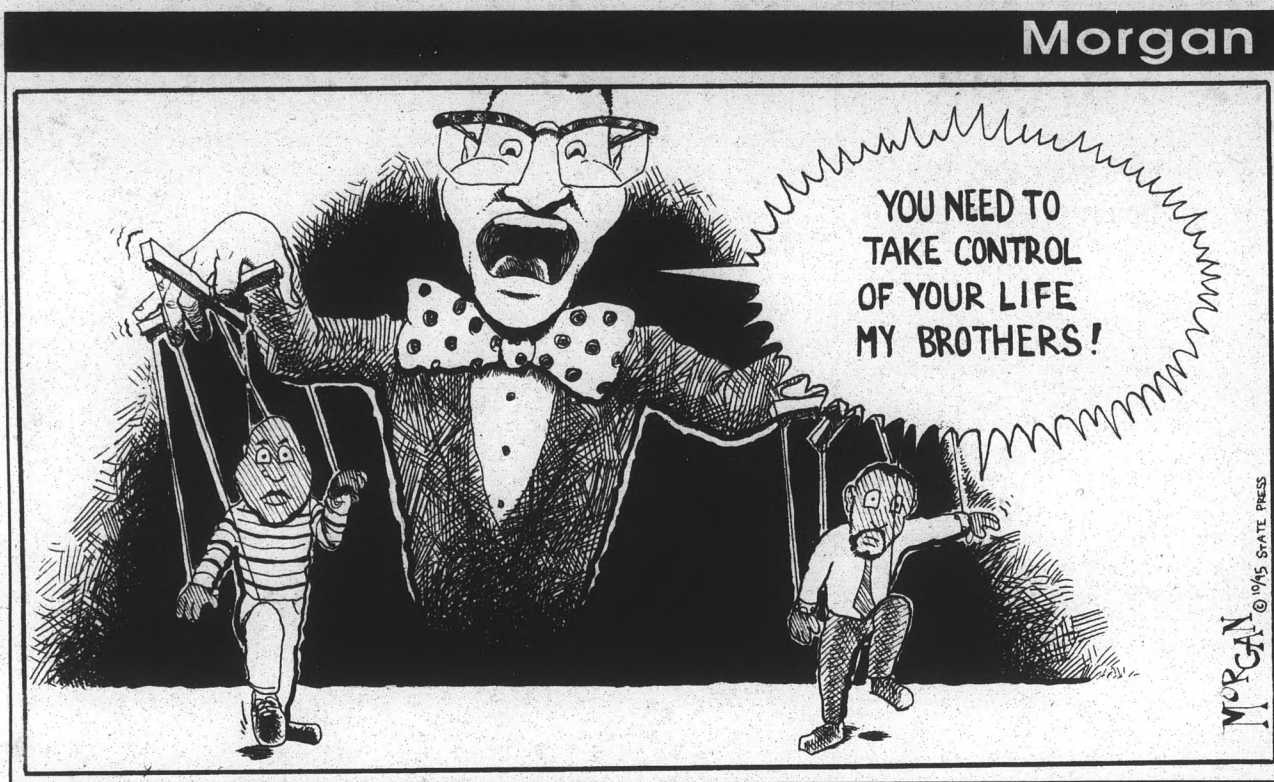

But uncalled for, and completely dictatorial, is the complete ban on visitors in rooms at any time during this week.

We cannot see how having a visitor in one's room for a few hours could possibly put a strain on residence hall resources.

The rule is a stupid one. It is unnecessary, foolish and unfair.

The Super Bowl steamroller continues to roll on merrily — right over the students of this University.

Welcome to Camp Super Bowl — where education and freedom take a backseat to football and money.

Million Man March good start for reform

I watched and listened to Minister Farrakhan speak at the Million Man March Monday afternoon, and again on Larry King Live later that night. Frankly, I think that the so-called "mainstream" should be thanking him. Likewise, for the national Black community.

GERRY ANDERSON

Guest Columnist

He speaks and facilitates the very step toward Black self-actualization that the collective Black leadership should have been calling for, and that the mainstream has been calling for some time.

However, thanking Farrakhan seems to be the last thing happening. Rather, the media insists on raising seemingly irrelevant issues, both within and without the Black community, and painting Farrakhan as a hate-mongering racist.

Predictably, many notables, again within and without the Black community, condemned the Million Man March. Talk about playing the "race card."

The march detractors and the media did exactly what they probably condemned attorney Johnnie Cochran for doing.

The real slap in the face is that the purpose of the march had less to do with race than did O.J.'s reasonable doubt. Go figure.

Anyway, I have never heard Farrakhan say anything hateful or racist, though some points are undeniably too strong and/or too generalized for some tastes.

I have to assume that if no one identified with Farrakhan, based on similar experiences or observations, there would be no audience(s). Nonetheless, I can only hope that any beliefs that he is a hate-monger, to the point of not "endorsing" the march, are based on something more substantial than out-of-context sound-bytes pursuant to an attempt to increase ratings or circulation.

Nonetheless, it seems that everyone around us has, or feels as though he or she is obligated to have, an opinion about everything.

To me, that means that it is more and more difficult to be on the same sheet of music with everyone about everything. In fact, as more opinions (issues) increasingly come into play, there should be a corresponding need to be more tolerant about one thing or another. If not, we are destined to go nowhere fast. Adding insult to injury, we'd all have to go nowhere together. Definitely, Option B.

Accordingly, on common ground is where I prefer to pitch most of my tents. It seems as though that's where general productivity is at its highest. Is there anyone out there who does not think that it was a good idea for Black men to come together in the name of peace, so as to take the burden off of the Black women, and to stop dodging responsibility and looking for taxpayer subsidized handouts? (Be careful! Your hypocrisy quotient is at stake.)

Would you have preferred: a) that Farrakhan had gotten Black men together to finally do what they're supposed to do, or b) that Black men had not gotten together at all? It may help to perform a crude form of cost-benefit analysis.

If you would have preferred that someone — anyone — else had gotten the Black men together for the same purpose, I apologize for not making it clear that that was not one of the options. I mean, we — the Black community — have other leaders, but obviously none have had the presence of mind to plan such an event or agenda. So again, march or no?

Whatever your opinion, I hope that no one allows the media to stunt our collective growth or otherwise further polarize the races more than the media has already tried to do in the recent (O.J.) past.

You should rebuke any attempt to take a long overdue self-help attitude and event, and turn it into an 'ism' of one form or another. Remember, only God can bring together that much love at one time.

How he chooses his messengers is anyone's guess. His methodologies and selection criteria notwithstanding, I do know that Black men getting their Black acts together is the first step in us as a nation getting our collective acts together. (And that's a lesson learned from having taken the hard road.)

However, don't kid yourselves into thinking that Blacks are the only race of people that have work to do. Much marked misery has come from 1492 and 1555 A.D. But that was then and this is now.

To move forward we all have to come to the table with something that, at least, resembles good faith. Those that come to the table with an intent to divide usually have an alternate agenda. Remember, divide and conquer. Despite compulsions to the contrary, it really is that simple.

People, animals not on equal moral level

It is a horrifying thought that C. Lakshman, a graduate student and potential leader, in writing on the ethical treatment of animals in the Oct. 12 issue of the State Press, cannot see the utter lack of compassion contained within his or her seemingly compassionate stand. It is precisely Lakshman's view which has delivered to us unparalleled human suffering.

No person falling within the range of societal normalcy favors the gratuitous inhumane treatment of animals. Those who inflict such are among the most loathsome creatures on the planet.

There are plenty of philosophical arguments to be made on behalf of the proper treatment of animals; some are even religious. The Jewish dietary laws from the book of Leviticus, for example, are predicated on the very notion that if one of God's creatures is to be destroyed simply to placate a primitive craving, that is an act worthy of serious reflection.

It would, however, be tortured compassion to take the next step, as Lakshman does, on religious grounds, and grant animals and people equal moral standing.

Lakshman may have a problem in distinguishing between humans and animals, and indeed, such a stand would be logical if argued on a secular basis, but that was not how the argument was couched. Any 6-year-old Jewish, Christian or Muslim child would be happy to inform Lakshman that the difference between a human and an animal is that it is the human, not the animal, who is created in God's image and therefore has vastly more intrinsic value.

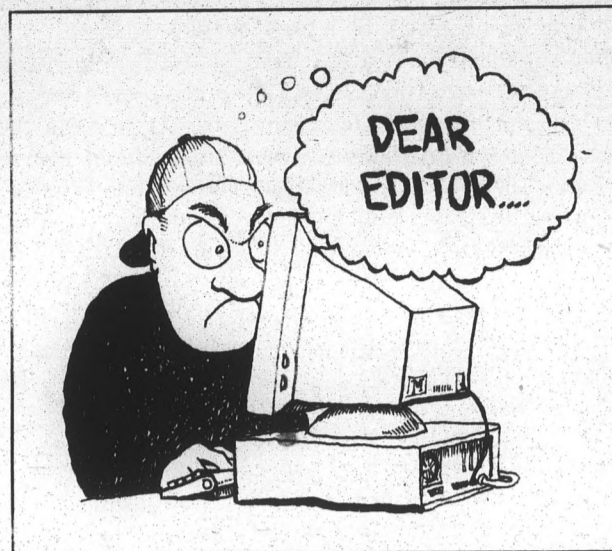

suppose Lakshman can be excused for simple ignorance, though one might hope a graduate student is a bit more capable of unearthing easily obtainable relevant facts before expounding on them.

Ignorance, however, becomes unintended malevolence by equating the suffering of animals with suffering of Native Americans, Black slaves and European Jews under the Nazis, which is exactly what Lakshman did. It is a safe bet that the animal cages Lakshman decries would have been preferable to millions of Jews to the gas chambers and crematoria of Nazi death camps.

It is hard to rest comfortably knowing that there are still people who cannot distinguish between the death of a child and the death of a chicken.

Lakshman's tired arguments serve not to elevate the status of animals, but to degrade the status of humans. Beliefs have consequences; the inability to recognize such a simple fact should send chills up the spine of any thoughtful individual. Rightly or wrongly, it is easier for a person to abuse a chicken than another person. The terrifying irony in Lakshman's compassion is that it is precisely the inability of a person to see the difference between a child and a chicken that has brought us historical catastrophes like Black slavery, the subjugation of Native Americans and the Holocaust.

Women should unite, not pass judgement

My name is Kim Kirby. I'm a single mother, an exercise science major and a topless dancer. I'm writing in response to the article written by Liz Montalbano in the Tuesday, Sept. 26 edition of the State Press.

To say I was infuriated by your comments couldn't possibly describe the range of emotions that your article evoked. Where was the article concerning women like me when I was getting food stamps and the Department of Economic Security was helping me pay my child care costs? Was I shooting our gender in the foot then? I think not. Montalbano, and women like her, are not concerned with my struggles; yet, they are obviously threatened by my successes. Which is more degrading, Liz — going home with $200, or having to face the landlord again with only half the rent payment?

Yes, women have had to struggle from the beginning of time. Yes, some men do treat women like objects. Yet knowing this, how can you, my sister in this struggle, turn around and throw the degradation of women at me and my fellow dancers? What I've done is turn the tables and taken back control. If a man were to take a situation and turn it around to benefit him or make him successful, he would be considered shrewd, driven and a real "go-getter." I've done exactly that for myself, and you say that I'm setting women back 100 years. I find that extremely discriminatory.

I'm a strong, intelligent and proud woman who has overcome great obstacles in my life. I'm completing my education, just as you are, and I'm proud to be the example of womanhood that I am to my daughter. We (you and I, Liz) are working toward similar goals. We are both striving for our education and for the power to make our own choices. We are sisters in this struggle, and giving support to each other will only push us forward, not backward. We should unite. Your blame-tossing and finger-pointing will only serve to hold us back.

Sun Devils in a slump, not at a standstill

Well, Ms. Bailey, you sure certainly do have a way with words! It is to my utter amazement that you are able to hold the position of Opinion Editor.

So, according to your Oct. 11 "What is up with that?" column in the State Press, the ASU Sun Devils suck, huh? Certainly you could have stated a much more creative and artistic adjective to describe us than the word "suck."

By the way, we don't suck.

I have been here for four years and can give you the opinion of someone on the inside: this team, although struggling, is one that is filled with heart and pride. We came to ASU to be Sun Devils and I will bet my life that nobody has second-guessed their choice to come here. While the win column is only at two as of now, it is no indicator as to how hard this team plays and practices.

Coach Snyder has installed a system that has been proven to work. It is now his fourth year and I feel that he is doing a fantastic job with us. I refuse to say that we are a bad team. The reason why we are struggling is due to the fact that there are many starters on this squad who are true sophomores and juniors, which means that they were pressed into duty without red-shirting.

So basically, we are a young team on the verge of success.

Our senior class this year is mostly true seniors who came to ASU in 1992 and played as freshmen. We only have two seniors on this squad who were not recruited by this staff, Justin Dragoo and Dedrick McCartney. That means that there are about 20 players who have disappeared from the 1991 recruiting class, but you did not know that, right?

All of our players are outstanding Sun Devils; they know they have to pay the price and have accepted it, so trust me, the bad days are coming to an end. The Sun Devils will once again return to prominence. That is a promise that will be kept.

As for your little remark, it is typical for an ignorant person to make judgments on things that he or she has no knowledge of. So keep this in mind next time you feel like making comments about things that you are ignorant to: The stupidity of a person is not based on what that person does not know but rather by what that person thinks he or she knows ... don't think!

Pick-up truck hits two pedestrians in crosswalk

BY GREG ZEMEIDA
STATE PRESS

Two men were hit by a pick-up truck that apparently ran a red light at the intersection of University Drive and Ash Avenue Tuesday afternoon.

The men were taken to Scottsdale Memorial Hospital and the Maricopa County Hospital. Their injuries were not life threatening, according to Tempe police.

The two men were in their early 20s or late teens. Police did not know their names or if they are ASU students.

The truck's driver, 78-year-old Arnold Petermann, was driving east-bound on University at about 3:45 p.m. when the two men began crossing Ash northbound. Petermann hit the two, knocking them about 50 feet forward through the intersection, police said.

"It looks at this point that (Petermann) went through a red light," said Officer D.A. Yennie of the Tempe police.

A witness, Karen Hurst of Scottsdale, said one of the men was walking a bike through the intersection and the other man was riding one, side by side. She said the two were one-third of the way across the street when Petermann hit them.

"I just saw him coming up to (the red light), and I said, 'Oh my God,'" she said.

After the two were struck, Hurst said one of the men hit the truck's windshield and rolled off the hood. She said one man was bleeding from the head and an elbow and the other was also bleeding from the head.

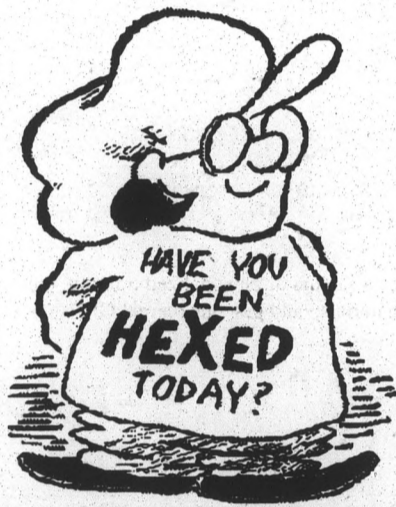

Hurst said she doesn't think Petermann saw the red light.

"I know it wasn't green," she said.

Phantom spells Broadway for ASU

BY ANGELA MULL
 STATE PRESS

As The Phantom of the Opera prepares to materialize at Gammage Auditorium, ASU Public Events is working to unmask more Broadway hits for the 1996-97 season.

Negotiations are in progress to bring Miss Saigon, Beauty and the Beast and Sunset Boulevard to Gammage, said Kyle Hayden, Public Events' promotions assistant. He said the success of last year's Phantom enables bookings like these and November's Damn Yankees.

"It definitely let us get bigger and better acts," he said. Last year's 71 Phantom performances grossed about $10 million and brought in 205,000 people, Hayden said. This year, Phantom runs from Dec. 16 through Jan. 27 with ticket prices ranging from $15.50 to $60.50. About 60 percent of the tickets are gone, and Hayden said he expects the remainder to sell out.

In addition to more Broadway shows, Phantom attracts new audience members, Hayden said.

"They're far more likely to come back once they've seen something like Phantom," he said.

Kyle Lawson, theater writer and critic for The Arizona Republic and The Phoenix Gazette, said improvements at Gammage for Phantom's many sets accommodate larger-scale Broadway productions.

"Gammage is now in a prime position to bring those productions in their original glory," he said. "They won't have to be cut down or cheapened."

Lawson said the quality of entertainment at Gammage has also improved because of the hard work of Public Events' booking team. However, they're only as good as the plays that are touring.

"If one season's not as good as another, it may just be that there's not that many good productions touring that year," he said.

However, last year's Phantom did not benefit everyone, said William Reber, director of ASU's Lyric Opera Theater.

His theater's Albert Herring ran opposite Phantom and saw its box-office take drop 30 percent because of a false perception about full parking lots and restaurants, he said.

"People who might not want to fight the mass of people going to see whatever the Gammage show is will decide not to come to our shows because of that perception," he said, but added, "Even though Phantom may be going on across the street, our theater is still fully accessible."

Student-satellite program earns recognition for unique output

By KELLY WENDEL
STATE PRESS

The University's ASU-SAT-1 team's quest for space is gaining international recognition and domestic kudos for its design and applications in small satellite development.

Two members of the ASU-SAT-1 team recently returned from Oslo, Norway after delivering details of the ASU satellite program to the International Astronautical Federation's fifth annual congress.

Junior physics major Charles Hewett and aerospace graduate student Joel Rademacher presented a paper detailing ASU's satellite design to more than 400 fellow scientists in a special student session of the conference.

Hewett said the presentation was well-received and many expressed interest in the student-satellite program.

"It was a great experience," he said. "There was a good interchange of information."

Hewett also recently won first prize at the third annual Small Satellite Student Scholarship Competition held at Utah State University Sept. 18 to 21. He claimed the prize based on his work on ASU's satellite's plasma flow apparatus. This is Hewett's second win at the conference; he won first prize in the competition in 1994.

Helen Reed, director of Aerospace Research at ASU, said conferences such as these expose ASU's program to the aerospace industry.

"This is good way to tell world we are doing great things here (at ASU)," she said. "The research we are working on here will be applicable to the future, and we are very excited about that."

ASU's satellite program is unique in many ways. Not only is the satellite the smallest satellite to perform meaningful science, it also cost less than $200,000 to build. The University project differs from industry programs where specific boundaries and duties for the mission are set, and the satellite must be built around those constraints.

Students at ASU were given a launch date, weight, size and altitude from Orbital Science Corp., a space technology company. From there, the fledgling engineers and scientists determined the objectives for the satellite. The result is a low-cost, lightweight package of student-designed electronics and mechanisms that function as a complete system.

Scheduled for launch in December, the ASU SAT-1 will orbit the earth at 65 kilometers while taking measurements of the earth's ionosphere. Gradually, the satellite's orbit will degrade, and it will burn up in the earth's atmosphere.

POLICE REPORT

ASU police reported the following incidents Tuesday:

- Two male students were contacted at Manzanita Hall about a missing fire extinguisher. They both consented to a room search, but the only item of interest found was an empty beer can. They were both warned of underage drinking and possession of alcohol.
- Two male students were contacted at the north side of Manzanita Hall while throwing oranges at the hall. They were advised of criminal damage and left the area.
- Someone broke into Student Services Building A143 and A131 and stole a printer and scanner worth $1,290.
- Someone stole a male student's car while it was parked in Area 17. It is a maroon 1987 Pontiac Firebird with New Mexico license plate 920 GZP.
- ASU police assisted the Tempe Fire Department in putting out a fire in a vehicle parked in Parking Structure 1.

• Three unaffiliated male juveniles were contacted at Life Sciences C and E wings while skateboarding. They were advised of ASU policy and left the area.

• Someone stole a female student's purse from a bench outside the Language and Literature Building.

• Someone broke into a vending machine in the Engineering A-wing sometime over the past week and stole $100.

Tempe police reported the following incidents Tuesday:

- A 37-year-old woman was arrested for aggravated assault with a firearm after arguing with her husband. She got a .22 caliber revolver out of the bedroom, went to the living room and asked her husband, "What do you think of this?" She pointed the gun at his chest and pulled the trigger twice, but the gun was empty. The husband left and she took an overdose of pills.
- A 39-year-old man was arrested for two counts of child abuse after he fondled his 5-year-old stepdaughter on two different occasions. He also had an outstanding warrant for two counts of sexual abuse.

• A 33-year-old man was arrested for possession of marijuana, possession of methamphetamines and possession of drug paraphernalia after being contacted in a dumpster in the 1200 block of N. Scottsdale Road. The man also had an outstanding warrant for failure to appear on a driving under the influence of alcohol charge.

• A 34-year-old man was arrested for theft of a motor vehicle and theft of a bicycle after police contacted him for stealing gas from another vehicle. They then discovered he was driving a stolen truck with a stolen bike in the back of it.

HEAVY HITTER

Senior middle blocker Sones has emerged as consistent player and emotional leader

By DAWN WAGNER
STATE PRESS

Holly Sones knew the transition from high school to college volleyball would be a big one.

The competition would be tougher and it would be a lot more work. But then, throw in the fact she had to move to an entirely different country and you've got the makings for a stressful first experience.

"When I first got here, I was saying to myself, 'What am I doing here? These girls are really good,'" Sones said. "I just wanted to get on a plane and go back to Canada."

But Sones, originally from Ballinafad, Ontario, knew about the competition in the Pac-10 and she stuck it out.

"The caliber of play is higher in the States than in Canada," she said. "I think the U.S. has a great program for volleyball that feeds right into the national team."

When the senior middle blocker was looking for schools, ASU fit right into the picture. The Sun Devils offered her exactly what she wanted.

"I guess mostly I wanted to get a university to pay for me to go to school," Sones said. "I didn't want to have to rely on my parents and I was broke."

And since her goal has always been to play for a university in the U.S., Sones came to Tempe. And she has managed to make her mark as one of the Sun Devils' most consistent and respected players.

"I think she's been extremely strong and very reliable," said ASU coach Patti Snyder-Park. "She's also meant so much emotionally to this team. She has really evolved as a leader this year. She's a very kind-hearted and team-oriented person."

Sones, who has been nominated as an all-Pac-10 candidate this season, leads the team in hitting percentage and is ranked third in the Pac-10 for aces-average this year. She is second on the team with 20 service aces.

As this year's captain, Sones has been an integral part of the success of the team said sophomore Terri Cox.

"Her hitting statistics have helped us a lot this year," Cox said. "She's really smart with the ball and is probably the most consistent player on the team."

Snyder-Park agreed.

"It's extremely important to have a middle blocker be successful," Snyder-Park said. "They have to pay attention to Holly. If they didn't, we'd be able to run her all night and we'd shut people out."

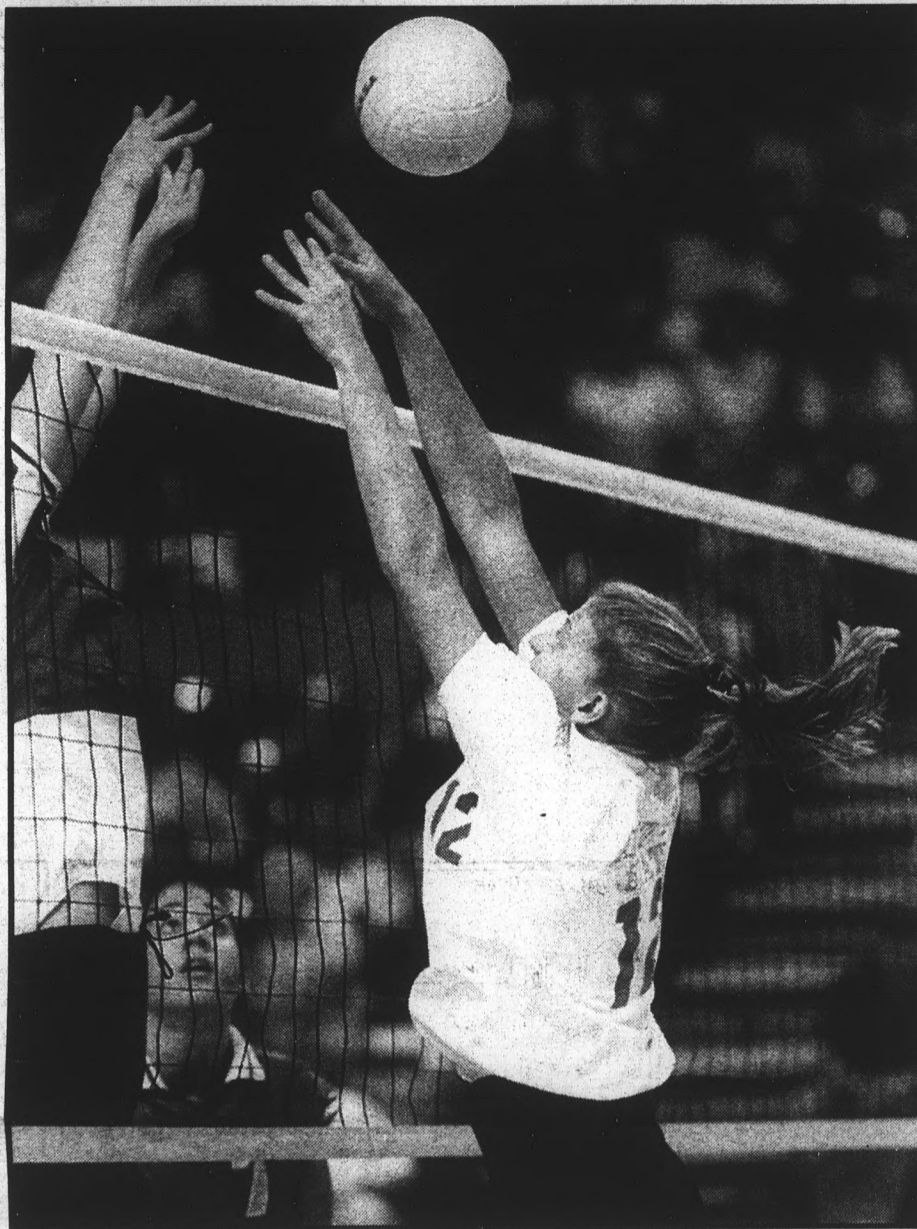

"She allows us to diversify our offense."

But even before college, Sones had racked up some impressive statistics.

She was a member of the Peel Selects Volleyball Club, where her team placed third in the 1992 Canadian Championships. She was named three times to the provincial all-star team and once to the national team.

But this year will be Sones' last for competitive volleyball. The geology major said she is afraid of what she might lose if she were to take the sport to the next level.

"I think you have to reach a point where you decide if you want to be dedicated to it for a long time," Sones said. "If I were to continually practice it would take away from the fun of the sport and I don't want to lose that."

Senior Holly Sones, a middle blocker on the ninth-ranked volleyball team, leads the Sun Devils in hitting percentage and is a candidate for post-season honors.

Volleyball's Garner continues assault on record book

By DAWN WAGNER
STATE PRESS

Mark another one in the record books for Christine Garner.

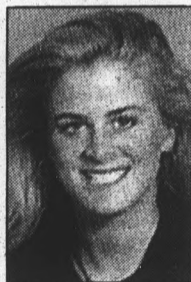

Actually, make that two.

After posting 47 kills this weekend on the road, the senior outside hitter broke the all-time career kills record for ASU. The previous record was set in 1986 when Tammy Webb rounded up 1,679 kills. Garner now has 1,707.

She now needs 47 kills to surpass Stanford's Bev Oden for 5th place in the Pac-10 for career kills.

GARNER

For her efforts, Garner was honored by the Pac-10 as Player of the Week.

With this award, she becomes one of only five players in Pac-10 history to receive Player of the Week honors four times in four years.

Garner was also named the AVCA Division I Player of the Week, the highest weekly national honor.

Garner is on the threshold of working her way up in two other ASU all-time rankings. She is currently seventh in career service aces and eighth in career digs.

But Garner wasn't the only person breaking records last weekend.

With two wins over No. 17 USC and No. 9 UCLA, the ASU volleyball team passed a few milestones, including its first ever sweep of USC and UCLA on the road.

• Sun Devil coach Patti Snyder-Park posted her 118th win on Friday, pushing her to the top-spot as the all-time winningest coach at ASU.

• The USA Today/AVCA poll ranked the Sun Devils at ninth in the nation this week, pushing them to their highest ranking in 10 years. ASU was ranked seventh

Members of the Cleveland Indians erupt in celebration at the Kingdome after they claimed the American League title with a 4-0 triumph over the Seattle Mariners Tuesday night.

Indians crowned AL champions

SEATTLE (AP) — The Cleveland Indians overcame it all — Randy Johnson, the Kingdome and history.

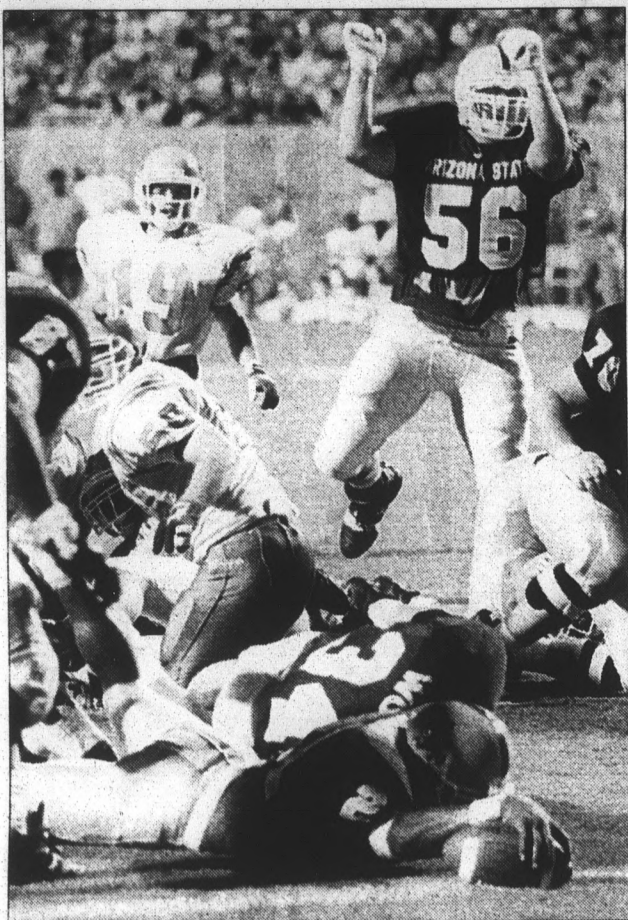

The epitome of bad baseball for four decades, the Indians reached the World Series for the first time since 1954, beating the Seattle Mariners 4-0 Tuesday night to win the AL playoffs 4-2 behind seven shutout innings from Dennis Martinez.

"I think that the people of Cleveland have suffered long," said Indians manager Mike Hargrove, who played on some of Cleveland's terrible teams. "This is something you can never count on."

The Mariners, for the fourth time in 16 days, asked Johnson to save their season. Relying on his slider more than his overpowering fastball, he kept his team close until Carlos Baerga's homer capped a three-run eighth, and Johnson left to a standing ovation that included the applause of Indians pitcher Orel Hershiser.

"They come back so many times. They got us scared,"

Sophomore guard Kyle Murphy (56), who once appeared to be out for the rest of the season with torn knee ligaments, has been given the green light to practice and should be ready to play in ASU's next game against Oregon on Oct. 28.

ASU sophomore offensive lineman back in saddle

BY DUSTIN KRUGEL
STATE PRESS

ASU's offensive line will get a much needed lift from a familiar face the next time it suits up against Oregon on Oct. 28.

Starting sophomore left guard Kyle Murphy appeared to be headed to the sidelines the rest of the season after he tore ligaments in his left knee when ASU defeated Oregon State 17-9 on Sept. 23. Murphy tore his medial collateral and his anterior cruciate ligaments.

"We expected him to most likely miss the rest of the season," head trainer Perry Edinger said. "It appeared that way, but our doctors followed through and checked and checked it.

"He's responded very well. It's very safe to play on the remaining four games and we will then evaluate it at the end of the season and see if we have to operate."

Sun Devil Head Coach Bruce Snyder said the news came as a complete surprise.

"I had resigned myself to it and didn't like it," Snyder said of the possibility that Murphy would miss the rest of the season. "I thought it was like Malchi Crawford. It was great news."

Snyder said he received the good news on Friday the 13th of all days.

"He came dancing into my office and said 'coach I can play,'" he said of Murphy.

After the meeting, Snyder said he was in such disbelief he immediately confirmed it with Edinger.

"I believed Kyle but I wanted to confirm it anyway," he joked.

Murphy, who was officially cleared to practice for the first time this Sunday, was unavailable for comment Tuesday. Snyder said it may take a few games for him to get back to his old self.

"When you first come back, you're not the same way you were," he said. "But he's a bright guy."

Snyder said the competition for the left guard position will be competitive, especially with redshirt freshman Mike Barnes' play in the last three games.

"Once a guy gets a taste of starting they don't want to give it up," he said. "So Kyle's going to have a fight on his hand. Mike Barnes has started three games now. I'm sure he doesn't want to give it up. We'll see how that works out."

Edinger said Murphy's injury usually takes three to four weeks to recover from unless surgery is needed. Backup tight end Brian Jennings and junior center Kirk Robertson suffered similar injuries to Murphy's, Edinger said.

"It's more common (injury) than you want," he said. "We maybe have two to three a year."

Indians

Baerga said. "They've got guys that can beat you any time."

Martinez matched Johnson pitch for pitch, holding the Mariners to four hits in seven innings. At 40, he finally won for the first time in the postseason and became the oldest pitcher to win a league championship series game.

Now the Indians, who won 100 times in the regular season and swept Boston in the first round of the playoffs, will take on the Atlanta Braves, the team with the best record in the National League.

The World Series starts Saturday night in Atlanta. Greg Maddux, likely to win his fourth straight NL Cy Young Award, will start Game 1 for the Braves. Orel Hershiser, 7-0 in the postseason, will likely pitch for Cleveland.

The last time the Indians went to the World Series, they were wiped out in four games by the New York Giants. The lowlight of that event in 1954 was Willie Mays' catch against Vic Wertz.

Cleveland last won the World Series in 1948, beating the Boston Braves. Bob Feller was the star of that team, and the Hall of Fame pitcher was at the Kingdome on Tuesday night to see the pennant clincher.

Since those days, not much has gone right for Cleveland. As recently as four years ago, in fact, they lost 105 games. This Indians team, however, was the most dominant club in the majors this season.

They proved against Johnson and the Mariners, a team that had won four games this year when a loss would have meant the end of the season.

A two-base throwing error by second baseman Joey Cora in the fifth set up an RBI single by Kenny Lofton for a 1-0 lead. Cleveland broke open the game at last in the eighth on a passed ball by Dan Wilson that allowed two runs to score, and the homer by Baerga that finished Johnson.

"He's an unbelievable trooper out there," Hershiser said. "He went as hard as he could for as long as he could. Tonight we finally got to him."

The crowd of 58,489, which had cheered the "Refuse To Lose" Mariners through a remarkable run in which they overcame a 13-game deficit in the regular season and an 0-2 hole in the first round against New York, gave the team one final standing ovation when Jay Buhner ended the game with a groundout. Some fans kept applauding until a few Mariners came back on the field.

Despite the loss, it was a great season for Seattle, which made the playoffs for the first time in its 19-year history. The fans' enthusiasm, meanwhile, may have helped get the city a new stadium and keep the team in town.

The Indians, though, were the ones celebrating at the end, racing onto the field to cheer their accomplishment.

Shortstop Omar Vizquel, who made two barehanded pickups, was in the middle of the mob around the mound. So was Julian Tavarez and Jose Mesa, who each pitched a scoreless inning of relief.

Baerga, who had three hits, and Albert Belle, who doubled and singled on a sore right ankle, also were celebrating.

during the 1986 season.

- Junior Tracy Heflin, who spent last year backing up Tiffanie Johnson-Gates at the setter position, had 115 assists last weekend, just four short of her total last season. Heflin has also secured a spot at starting setter for this weekend against the Washington schools.

- Freshman setter Jolynn Faatulu joins the injury list after hurting her knee Friday night against USC. Snyder-Park said Faatulu will not be playing this weekend and is waiting to hear word on the severity of her injury. She is believed to have a meniscus tear and a strained medial collateral ligament

Also injured for the Sun Devils is Kirstin Mattson, who re-aggravated a left knee injury by overcompensating for a recent right knee injury. Snyder-Park said they are in the process of trying to redshirt Mattson for the rest of the season.

- Both games this weekend against No. 23 Washington and No. 5 Washington State have been selected as Pac-10 Games of the Week. Both will be televised on a tape delay basis by Prime Sports Northwest.

Third-ranked men's golf finishes third at Red River

From Staff Reports

The third-ranked men's golf team finished third at the Taylor Made Red River Classic in Dallas, Texas, Tuesday.

In his first tournament of the season, sophomore Pat Perez was the top finisher for the Sun Devils, tying for fourth place with a score of 212. His third-round score of 69 was the low score yesterday and Perez's first two rounds were at 72 and 71 on the par-72 course.

The team finished behind the University of Texas and Oklahoma State, both co-ranked as the top teams in the nation.

ASU shot a first round of 285 and two rounds of 290, to finish 19 strokes behind Texas.

Texas A&M, the University of Oklahoma, and the University of Virginia rounded out the top five.

Senior Joey Snyder was the next Sun Devil finisher, at 17th place, shooting a three-round total of 216 (70, 72, 74). Junior Scott Johnson shot a 219, to finish in 32nd place.

Freshman Brad Cannon finished tied at 38th place, with a three-round score of 220.

The Sun Devils will be in action again next Monday in the Jerry Pate Invitational in Birmingham, Ala.

ARCHER DANIELS MIDLAND CO.

WILL BE ON CAMPUS RECRUITING FOR: GRAIN MERCHANDISERS MAJORS: Agribusiness, Marketing WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1995

Imagine an environment where a dozen people are talking at once, phones are ringing constantly, and you're carrying on three simultaneous conversations. If you're the sort of person who can thrive in such an environment, let us welcome you to the world of grain trading, where you'll spend much of your day on the telephone, talking with elevator managers, buying and selling cash grain, and arranging for the transportation of the grain.

During this 6 month training program, you'll spend time at our Decatur headquarters, a processing plant, our traffic and transportation department, a country elevator, a river terminal, our accounting department, and on the floor of the Chicago Board of Trade. Afterwards, you'll take a trading position in either our grain division or our processing division. Advancement opportunities are excellent: many ADM managers, as well as the president of the grain division, started as merchandisers.

ARCHER DANIELS MIDLAND CO.

WILL BE ON CAMPUS RECRUITING FOR: PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS MAJOR: Chemical Engineering THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1995

This position entails on-the-job training in the area of soybean crushing or corn wet milling, so there's no question it can be a hot, dirty job. It's similar to the position of a foreman or front line supervisor, and it generally leads to a career in plant management.

Training lasts 8-9 months, and in that time, you will schedule work for employees, set production schedules, develop cost-saving measures, and much more. You'll frequently be called on to use your technical background to solve problems. This position is a good blend of supervision, management, and engineering.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST by Sydney Omarr
Wednesday, October 18, 1995

Comedy Legend: He changed Saturday night habits for the nation. Instead of going out on the town, people watched his television show and it was a show of shows. He brought laughter into homes and made people feel good. Sid Caesar, Virgo comedian who made television history, told an astrologer, "You read my horoscope like a book!" Caesar, considered a legend by writers and other comedians, said that an understanding of the characteristics of his sign helped him overcome deep emotional problems.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): It is for real Creative energy finds outlet, you rise above circumstances. Focus on personal magnetism, promotion, responsibility, intense love relationship. Capricorn plays role.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Prospects excellent, look beyond the immediate. Solid backing from those who have your best interests at heart. Focus on sale or purchase of home, property - marital status figures prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Fresh start, new direction - trip involves relative who claims, "I know where to find what we need!" Focus on goal, self-realization, love. Leo, Aquarius persons play outstanding roles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Financial picture brighter than anticipated - what was lost will be returned. Follow hunch, regain motivation, direction. Win via unorthodox methods. Another Cancer involved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Answer found behind scenes - individual in your home decides to play games. Diversify, accept assignment involving social activity, funding. Circumstances move in your favor, Gemini involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Beat the odds! Pluto keynote enables you to be underdog and win. Secret plan revealed before its time. You're on ground floor, moving up. Scorpio becomes ally, Taurus also represented.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Free from restrictions! You no longer will be prisoner of inertia. Get thoughts on paper, express feelings to special person. Flirtation provides excitement, could lead to something important.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Request granted! Superior flashes green light for progress - ball now in your court. Attention revolves around home, remodeling, marital status. Aries, Libra persons make surprising impact.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lunar aspect highlights travel, publishing, idealistic romance - reading material could bring you together with soul mate. Maintain aura of mystery, keep people guessing and intrigued.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Focus on organization, overtime, added responsibility, serious consideration of affair of heart. Cancer native and another Capricorn play significant roles. Money due is received.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Investigate overseas market - don't be limited. Missing mechanical object obtained through contacts in foreign nation. Project long dormant is revived, you'll fit perfectly. Aries in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Remarkable comeback! You're number one - again. Those who attempt to topple you suffer loss, embarrassment. Emphasis on basic issues, employment, relations with co-worker. Concentrate on health!

IF OCTOBER 18 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are dynamic, creative, headstrong, romantic, capable of surveying wide areas and coming to accurate conclusions. You blend music, sensitivity with initiative, courage. Aries, Libra persons play unusual roles in your life. Before October is finished, you'll be in position to bring order out of chaos. Decisions involve business transaction, romance, marital status. You'll be in first place during November.
