Tempe court introduces $10 user fee for guilty

By ANGELA MULL
STATE PRESS

If you break the law in Tempe, you may need to break into your piggy bank for a little extra cash.

Effective mid-December, people pleading or found guilty in most criminal or civil cases must produce an extra $10 for Tempe Municipal Court fees. All cases processed through Tempe's court, with the exception of parking tickets, will have the court-user charge tacked on to them. The money will go into a special court enhancement fund to improve court technology and facilities.

John Greco, court administrator for Tempe Municipal Court, said the court-user charge is a good way to raise funds outside of the city's general budget.

"It removes the burden from the general resident taxpayer," he said. "The primary purpose is to charge the person who uses the services of the court and is found guilty."

Tempe City Council approved the fee Nov. 9, making Tempe the fourth Arizona city with a court-user charge. Other cities are Scottsdale, Glendale and Chandler.

Louraine Arkfeld, Tempe's presiding judge, said the extra money could bring in around $100,000 a year for specific court improvements like computer-system upgrades. The money will not be used to hire more staff or increase the overall budget, she added.

"We're trying to have this so we can have information available and have things happen on time," she said.

Although the fee could generate $100,000 a year, Greco said the fee itself is not much to pay.

"Ten dollars on a given charge is really a relatively minor amount," he said. "However, when that figure goes into a special fund, it has a major impact on the court's ability to respond to its workload."

Chandler Municipal Court Judge Michael Traynor said the fee is not unfair to court users.

"The money that is being charged is something that is paying in part for the services provided for them," he said.

In 1994, Chandler's $10 court-user charge raised about $80,000 for court improvements.

In addition to generating revenue, Greco said the fee could have a deterrent effect on those coming through the court system.

"We can certainly hope (it does)," he said. "Whether it does or not remains to be seen."

College of Public Programs hosting career seminar today

By TIM BAXTER
STATE PRESS

The College of Public Programs is trying to soften the shock for students entering a chilly employment atmosphere after graduation.

A seminar, held with Career Services, will discuss possible employment options and is open to all students in the Ventana C Room of the Memorial Union from noon to 1:30 p.m. today.

Heidi Sommer, academic adviser for the School of Journalism, said the purpose of the seminar is to show how a public programs degree can help students find jobs.

Public Programs encompasses communications, justice studies, broadcasting, journalism and recreation/tourism. The seminar will feature a graduate from each field taking part in an open forum and question-and-answer session.

The seminar will include a short speech by a career-services representative and opening remarks by Tom Schrade, associate dean of the College of Public Programs and the open-forum discussion.

Sommer said this was the fourth time the school has held the seminar, which usually draws about 100 students.

"This is to help guide students that are still in the University," she said. "It's all based on the premise that it is currently a very hard job market."

Tempe police property room filling up with items ranging from bikes to skulls

By GREG ZEMEIDA
STATE PRESS

If you are looking for a cement mixer, a pair of shoes or a human skull, Roger Ferguson knows where you can find it.

As the Tempe police's property facility supervisor, he keeps track of the thousands of items impounded by police every year. From computers to human fingers, Ferguson makes a record of everything found by citizens or seized by police during an arrest.

Lately, things have gotten a bit crowded for him.

In 1991, Ferguson cataloged more than 16,000 items, but last year's total rose to 25,000. This year's numbers are expected to be even higher, and Ferguson said he's running out of room.

"A lot of stuff, unfortunately, we have to pile on each other," he said. "We take in more than we give out."

And giving the items out is what the police try to do.

The department attempts to locate the owners of lost property as much as possible, said Toby Dyas, spokesman for the Tempe Police Department. If the owner cannot be found within 60 days, the property is turned over to the City of Tempe and advertised in the paper.

The criminal investigations division then gets first pick on items that would help with police work. Any leftovers go to public auctions.

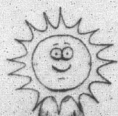

The auctions of miscellaneous items are held about once or twice a year, depending on how much property builds up, Dyas said. They are held at 805 W. Fifth Street and are announced in advance.

A separate auction is held for bicycles — one of the most common items the department receives. These auctions take place several times a year, with the next scheduled for Dec. 9 at the same location as the general auction. More than 230 bikes, frames and assorted parts will be up for bid.

All the money generated by the auctions goes to the city's general fund, Ferguson said, adding that each bike auction raises between $1,000 and $4,000.

However, not all items in the property room wind up at an auction. Weapons are melted down and all drugs are incinerated at a special department facility.

Ferguson estimated that they destroy about 12,000 to 15,000 pounds of marijuana, heroin and other drugs every year. He added that police once destroyed two separate bales of marijuana weighing 650 and 750 pounds each.

Before the department destroys any seized items or turns them over for auction, the cases they are involved in must be closed, which can take a long time, especially with the appeals process, Dyas said.

"Some stuff we may keep for years and years," he said.

ASU police have similar policies for impounded items. Found property is held for 90 days in the property department and seized items are kept until the case is over, said ASU Police Chief Lanny Standridge. If police know who owns a lost item, they send the person a registered letter.

ASU police collect numerous abandoned bikes after conducting periodic sweeps of the campus, Standridge said, adding that they also have all sorts of items in the property room which were seized for evidence, from audio tapes to clothing.

"You wouldn't believe the stuff that's there," he said.

If items go unclaimed, they are turned over to ASU's property disposal yard, where they are either scrapped or sold at an auction. Some of the money raised goes back to the University, while the remaining is used to fund the disposal yard.

ASU police also destroy all drugs in an incinerator.

If anyone thinks police may have found an item belonging to them, contact ASU police at 965-3456 or the Tempe police's property facility at 350-8338.

Nigerian activist's last words: 'The struggle continues'

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Blindfolded and dangling from a rope, Nigerian playwright Ken Saro-Wiwa spoke eight final words before his body went limp: "Lord take my soul, but the struggle continues."

Because of faulty equipment, it took five attempts to hang the anti-government activist in Port Harcourt on Friday morning.

At one point, according to the daily newspaper AM News, Saro-Wiwa asked his executioners: "Why are you people treating me like this? Which type of country is this?"

The 54-year-old playwright was one of nine Ogoni ethnic minority activists hanged Friday in the southern oil port; several papers reported Sunday that Saro-Wiwa was hanged first.

A secret tribunal convicted Saro-Wiwa on Oct. 31 of ordering the murders of four political rivals who were shot at a 1994 political rally. A military ruling council upheld the sentences Wednesday.

The government apparently wanted the hangings to take place immediately, but had to wait 48 hours for Port Harcourt to build a makeshift gallows. The city had not had a hanging in 35 years, since Nigeria's independence from Britain.

Saro-Wiwa insisted he was framed because of his opposition to military ruler Gen. Sani Abacha and the oil industry, which accounts for about 80 percent of Nigeria's foreign income.

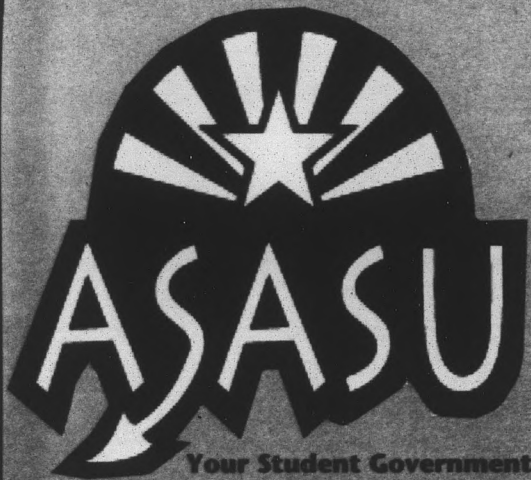

He campaigned on behalf of the 500,000 Ogoni people who live in the oil-rich southern states and who say their land and water are being destroyed by oil industry pollution.

The executions provoked an international outcry. At least eight countries, including the United States, recalled their ambassadors from Nigeria. Pope John Paul II said Sunday he was praying that God would inspire Nigeria's leaders to guide their nation with "acts in favor of respectful dialogue and justice."

The Commonwealth of Britain and its former colonies suspended Nigeria's membership and said Sunday that Nigeria would face expulsion if it did not end its military dictatorship and restore democracy within two years.

Fife, attorney general call truce — of sorts

PHOENIX (AP) — Their relationship divided fellow Republicans, entertained state Democrats and provided journalists with fodder for controversy.

After a year filled with all-out assaults, Gov. Fife Symington and Attorney General Grant Woods appear to have called a truce, going as far as supporting each other publicly.

"Maybe we've got it out of our system," quipped Assistant Attorney General Rob Carey, Woods' top aide. "I really don't think there's any concerted effort to get along better. This is how we've always been."

But the civil behavior demonstrated recently between Woods and Symington has political observers doing double takes.

When the governor filed for personal bankruptcy last month, Woods immediately issued a statement of support. A few days later, he held his tongue when Symington launched an initiative drive to revamp the juvenile justice system, choosing instead to focus on similarities between the governor's plan and the one Woods helped formulate last year.

In return, Symington has curtailed statements about Woods' "liberal leanings." At a recent court hearing on special masters to oversee court-ordered prison reform, Symington said he regretted Woods had an out of town commitment and wasn't able to join him.

Neither Symington nor Woods would comment for this article, referring questions to surrogates.

Columbia takes control of criticized Biosphere 2

TUCSON (AP) — Columbia University is taking over management of Biosphere 2, the glassed-in environment criticized by scientists when eight people tried to live there in self-supporting isolation for two years.

The agreement being announced today gives Columbia five years to run the huge greenhouse in an attempt to bring scientific legitimacy to a project that began as a sort of New Age ecological ark.

Edward P. Bass, the Texas billionaire who bankrolled the project and then wrested control from the cultlike group that built it, will continue to provide the bulk of the funding.

Exact terms weren't disclosed, but officials said Biosphere's budget will be $15 million to $17 million a year.

Columbia's Lamont-Doherty Earth Observatory will run scientific and educational operations as well as the growing tourist business, said university President George Rupp. However, the university doesn't plan any long live-in missions.

The 3-acre complex in the desert 30 miles north of Tucson contains replicas of an ocean, savannah, rain forest and marsh, and a working farm, allowing scientists to study Earth's processes under controlled conditions.

"The intellectual lure of the Biosphere is tremendous," said Columbia geochemistry professor Wallace Broecker, a member of the National Academy of Science who has been involved with the project for several years.

Clinton, GOP butt heads on budget

Federal spending, gov't would stop if leaders don't reach compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration refused Sunday to commit to a seven-year balanced budget as the Republican price for averting the twin crises this week of a partial federal shut-down and a halt to government borrowing.

In what amounted to a day of broadcast budget bargaining, leaders swapped conditions for completing a pair of bills allowing the government to continue borrowing and spending money, which President Clinton has threatened to veto.

Federal spending authority expires at midnight today and failure to extend it will force nearly half the federal work force to go home Tuesday morning and curtail government services. Borrowing authority also lapses this week, which could rattle financial markets.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., went on ABC's This Week With David Brinkley and said, "If the president would agree to a balanced budget in seven years, then we could make very good progress" in completing the bills.

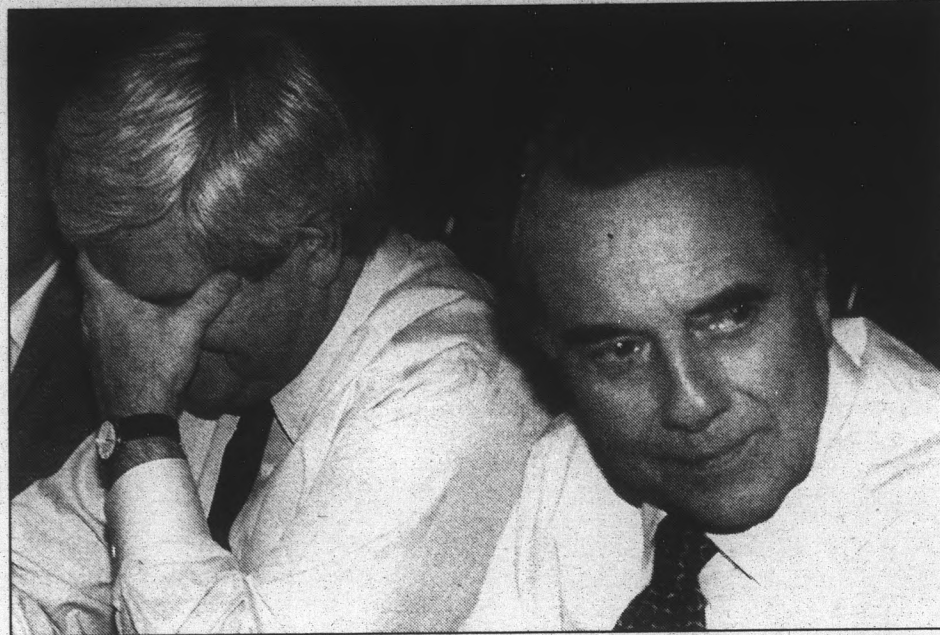

That sentiment was echoed by House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga. Appearing on NBC's Meet the Press, he called for "a letter from the president that said, 'I accept in principle getting to a balanced budget in seven years, not the details, but in principle.'"

White House chief of staff Leon Panetta wasted little time in turning them down.

"That cannot be part and parcel of an agreement" on the short-term bills, he declared on CBS' Face the Nation, though he didn't rule out discussing it as part of a long-range budget-balancing deal.

The tough talk left it highly likely that 800,000 federal employees would be sent home Tuesday, when most agencies' authority to spend money expires. Also looming is the expiration Wednesday of the government's ability to borrow money, although Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin has said he would avoid an unprecedented default by using money in some of the government's cash-heavy trust funds.

The latest day of bipartisan intransigence

Associated Press

came as GOP House and Senate bargainers tried to hammer out the final pieces of their plan for cutting taxes, trimming spending and overhauling Medicare and other social programs on the way to a balanced budget by 2002. That measure, which Republicans hope to finish this week, also faces a veto by Clinton, who says its spending and tax reductions are too steep.

House negotiators tentatively agreed to abandon their demand that the $500 per child income-tax credit apply to families earning up to $200,000 annually, said one participant in the closed-door talks, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Instead, the source said bargainers "basically want the Senate figures," which would limit the break to couples making up to $110,000, and single people making as much as $75,000. That could also help weaken Democrats' argument that the GOP tax cuts would go heavily toward the rich.

Sunday's focus, however, was the veto battle between Clinton and Republicans over short-term borrowing and spending authority.

Gingrich and Dole, who had a short, testy telephone conversation with Clinton on Saturday, spoke of possibly calling the president again on Sunday. Dole even made his television appearance with a portable phone, saying he would be happy to receive a call from Clinton. But as the day wore on, the chances of a conversation between the leaders faded.

Congress completed the short-term debt-limit bill last week. It would allow the government to keep borrowing money through Dec. 12, but is loaded with conditions the administration opposes, such as restrictions on Treasury's ability to shift funds around to survive the current showdown.

The Senate plans to give final congressional approval to the short-term spending measure today. It would let agencies keep functioning through Dec. 1 as Congress continues working on budget legislation.

That bill would also boost monthly premiums Medicare recipients pay as part of the GOP plan for revamping the health-insurance plan for the elderly. Clinton opposes that increase, and Panetta called on Republicans to drop that provision. The administration also believes the temporary bill, which would limit spending to as little as 60 percent of 1995 levels, is too stringent.

Agency told in advance of plot to kill Rabin

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — In the latest evidence of a stunning intelligence failure, the Shin Bet security agency acknowledged Sunday that it had advance information about the assassin of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

In a highly unusual move, the secretive agency sent a fax to Israel's Army radio saying authorities were told of a plot in June by a friend of Yigal Amir, who confessed to shooting Rabin. The Associated Press obtained a copy of the fax.

In other developments Sunday:

- Amir's brother Hagai, appearing in court, said he received weapons from a sergeant in an elite army unit, who is the seventh person arrested in the killing. A judge ordered Hagai Amir held for 12 more days.

- As the official mourning period ended, more than 200,000 Israelis streamed into Tel Aviv's newly renamed Yitzhak Rabin Square in a defiant replay of the Nov. 4 peace rally where Amir shot Rabin. The demonstrators carried flags, candles, cardboard doves and signs reading "Enough Death." It was believed to be the biggest gathering ever in Israel.

- Israeli troops began pulling out of the West Bank town of Jenin, carrying out the Palestinian self-rule agreement signed by Rabin and Yasser Arafat in September. The pullout is to be done by today.

- The ruling Labor Party picked acting Prime Minister Shimon Peres as its new leader, replacing Rabin.

Meanwhile, the Shin Bet acknowledged that Shlomo Halevy, a friend of Amir, provided an accurate description of the assassin after being told of plans to kill Rabin by a mutual friend.

Halevy told his army commander of the plot but did not reveal Amir's name or say that he knew him, pretending instead that he overheard two men discussing the plot in a bus station bathroom, the Shin Bet said.

Security sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Halevy's information was turned over to the Shin Bet, but after a superficial check, the agency decided to ignore it.

Associated Press
Hundreds of thousands pack the newly renamed Rabin Square in Tel Aviv Sunday during a massive peace rally called to honor slain Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin. Rabin was assassinated after addressing a peace rally at the plaza, formerly named Kings of Israel Plaza, nine days ago.

STATE PRESS Editorial Chicken games

Right about now America is probably sorry it ever heard of the Contract With America.

Republican candidates vowed to transform the face of Congress and this country. Voters, wanting quick and decisive action, fell prey to the GOP sirens.

The Republicans seized control of both the House and the Senate. Once again, America had a split government — a presidency in the hands of one party, and a Congress in the hands of the other.

But past Democratic Congresses were willing to compromise with Republican White Houses. Legislative battles arose all of the time — but legislation got passed. The government moved slowly, but it moved.

That was before the likes of Newt Gingrich.

The house speaker apparently thinks that compromise is passé — something dirty and old-fashioned.

And so, determined to pass his budget, Gingrich began to play a game of high-stakes "chicken" with President Clinton.

The federal government will come to the end of its authorization to borrow and spend money as of tomorrow.

To head this off, Congress needs to present Clinton with a bill that will allow the government to continue its fiscal operations.

If this bill is not signed into law by Tuesday, 800,000 federal employees will be temporarily out of work. Even more crucial — the federal government will be at risk of default for the first time in this nation's history.

But Gingrich and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole don't seem to care for compromise. Instead, they decided to take the nation hostage to attain their goals.

The two bills that would allow the government to continue operating past Tuesday contain some interesting details. In order to pass a "stop-gap" spending bill, Clinton must agree to the following:

- Commitment to a balanced budget within seven years.
- Permanent hikes of Medicare premiums.
- Limitation of appeals by death row inmates.
- Reduction of spending by many government agencies to 60 percent of fiscal 1995 levels.

All of these measures have been attached to a bill that serves one purpose — keeping the government running until Dec. 12.

Imagine yourself in Clinton's place. How could you possibly sign a bill with so many strings attached?

Gingrich and Dole, in effect, have leveled a budgetary gun at the head of the federal government.

"Either give us what we want, Billy, or the government gets it."

Such Wild West legislative tactics have no place in Washington. Gingrich and Dole should be thoroughly ashamed of themselves.

Have these men even considered the cost of a government default? Or what will happen to those 800,000 workers? And what about the veterans who won't be receiving checks come Tuesday?

Certainly, a balanced budget is something that Clinton and Congress need to work out. But the time to do this is later — not when the government is on the verge of shutting down.

Compromise, not hostage-taking, is what makes the government run. Gingrich and Dole seem to have forgotten that.

Men who would play games with the fortune of an entire nation for political gain have no place in the Capitol.

Clinton's flip-flop approach not surprising

That's right folks, he's doing it again. Mister flip-flop has changed his mind on another subject. This time it's taxes. It seems that the esteemed President Bill Clinton has publicly stated that he raised taxes too much. Now he wishes he could lower them.

Are you surprised by that?

I hope not because our president has changed his mind on almost every issue that he has publicly stated. And in the near future he will definitely do it again.

This time he will completely go against every issue he has campaigned for and every cause he has championed, when he vetoes the proposed federal budget.

The proposed Republican budget, which will balance the budget in seven years, contains many of the issues that President Clinton has tried to enact for almost three years.

If you don't believe me, just look at Clinton's record and the proposed budget.

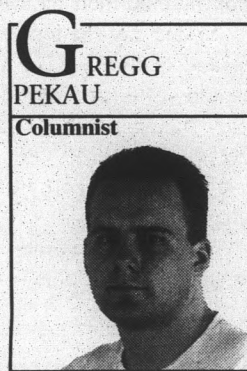

Just two short years ago President Clinton tried to reform Medicare. It seems that the Congressional Budgeting Office projected that Medicare would be bankrupt by the year 2002. As a result, the president included Medicare reform as a part of his health care reform package.

The Republicans, trying to save Medicare, included Medicare reform in the budget. President Clinton's response is that the reform is too harsh and that the CBO's calculations are incorrect. The only difference between the two reforms is that the Republican budget would cost on average four more dollars per person, per year.

Next comes welfare. While campaigning for the presidency, Clinton argued that the welfare system needed a drastic overhaul. He said that the focus of welfare should be putting people back to work.

The Republicans agreed and included welfare reform as part of the budget. Clinton responds by saying that the Republicans are trying to starve the poor and that they require too much from those who are unemployed.

Tax rates are another story. Clinton campaigned on the notion that we must first balance the budget. So in his first year, he signed into law a tax code that was retroactive. This tax code raised taxes predominately on the middle class. Now Clinton wishes he hadn't raised taxes. In a speech in Texas, the president admitted that he believed the taxes were too harsh and wished he could give middle-class Americans a break.

GREGG PEKAU
Columnist

This is a subject the Republicans have championed for years. Lowering taxes is one of the key issues for all true conservatives and most Republicans. The proposed budget will allow a $500 tax credit for each child in a family. President Clinton and the other Democrats retaliate by claiming that the tax cut is for the wealthy and that middle-class Americans will be worse off.

Next comes two issues very close to one another. These issues are deficit reduction and a balanced budget. Clinton campaigned with the slogan, "It's the economy, stupid." And with this slogan he proposed balancing the budget within seven years by reducing the federal deficit. The result of his first three years in office is that the deficit has pretty much stayed the same and the budget is no where close to being balanced.

The Republican's proposed budget not only reduces the deficit, immediately, but it also balances the budget in only seven years. This has been confirmed by the CBO and the General Accounting Office. So the proposed budget accomplishes what President Clinton has campaigned for.

If the proposed budget goes along with most of the issues the president stands for, why would he veto it?

The answer to this is again very simple. Clinton is an excellent politician. He knows that the Republican Congress has done what it said it would do, quicker than they promised. The only way for Clinton's party to save grace is to stop the Republicans any way they can. So for Clinton to stay favorable in his own party, he must by principle veto this bill.

I see this as a grave injustice. For the first time in my lifetime, America could have a balanced budget. And the only thing that is holding it up is politics.

Well I say it's time to put away the politics and do what's right for America. Clinton should sign this bill into law and let the country get back on track. Each year we dig a deeper and deeper hole that is getting impossible to get out of. So I plead, give us the opportunity to succeed now, so that our grandchildren don't have to pay for our mistakes.

Real-life rape stories reflect injustice of legal system

I would like to respond to Jeff Hickman's "Come forward but press charges" in the Nov. 1 issue of the State Press. Did it ever occur to you to ask why women come forward but do not press charges? Or did you just assume that they do not press charges because they are weak? Let me tell you two true stories regarding women who were raped.

The first story is about my best friend, Michelle. In her 19th summer, she went to a theme park to visit her boyfriend, Tom, who worked for the park as a mechanic. While he was working, Michelle toured the park alone and ran into Tom's friend and roommate, Chad. Chad offered to take her to Tom's work station and she willingly followed him. He explained that Tom was working on the roller coaster that day. It was under the roller coaster that, much to Michelle's surprise, Chad raped her. She did not stop to find Tom when it was over, she did not go to the nearest security station. Instead, Michelle got into her car and drove straight to the hospital.

Here she underwent the scrutiny of nurses, doctors and police officers. The medical team plucked out her pubic hair, took samples from her vagina, gave her countless VD tests, took her blood and examined and photographed every inch of her body. The police officers asked her personal questions about her sexual history, the visit to the theme park, whether she had been drinking or doing drugs, her relationship with Tom and Chad, and Tom's relationship with Chad. The officers then suggested perhaps she had given some indication to Chad that she was interested in him sexually. The medical team and the officers discussed her as though she was not in the room, and they gave her a new name: "the victim."

When it was all finished, they gave her back her soiled underwear and mud-stained clothing and the police officers recommended that she not press charges. The officers rec- ommended that she not press charges. Do you know why? They could prove by all of the collected evidence that she had rough sex with Chad. What they could not prove was the fact that she had said no. It came down to her word against his. "And to be quite honest, dear, no court in the world would convict him on your word."

Then the police officer gave her the facts regarding the American court system — just in case something like this ever happened again. "We need more than proof of rough sex. If he had beaten you up, well, then you would have your case. Your bruises are proof that you fought back and did not agree to intercourse." Basically what he was saying is that Michelle must have wanted to have sex with him, otherwise she would have been beaten up. At least, that is the way the courts and the juries see cases of this nature. They don't take into account the fear, shock or horror the victim feels. Obviously, if a deer stands frozen in your headlights, it wants to get hit.

Michelle assured him that she would keep that in mind next time around, and, in a daze, thanked him for being so honest. And then she went home.

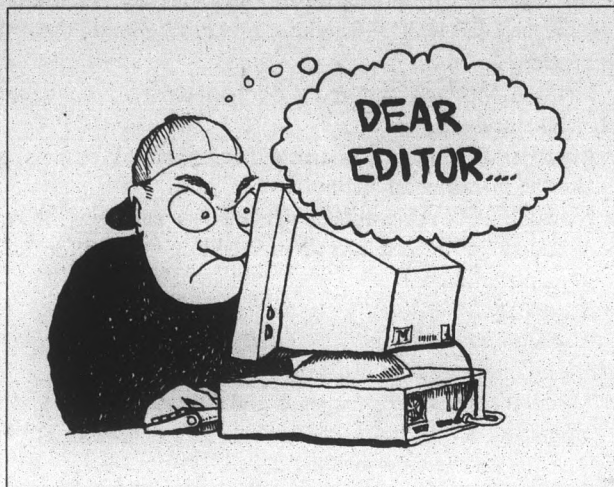

In one day she lost her self-respect, security, faith, dignity and confidence. In the weeks and months to come, she would suffer the loss of her boyfriend, who believed Chad over her; her father's love and respect, because only sluts get raped; countless hours of sleep and buckets of tears; and she would suffer from the fear that everyone knew she was dirty, less worthy.

The second woman was raped a year later and never stepped forward. She was Michelle's best friend.

Trouble-makers come in all ages

I feel the need to write a rebuttal to the comments of the anonymous faculty member who lives in downtown Tempe. I sincerely feel bad that you live in that kind of environment where you can't get a good night's sleep. I also live in a neighborhood that is similar, but I try to do positive things to make sure those things don't continue to happen in my community.

But that is beside the point. One major flaw to your response is that you don't realize who lives in downtown Tempe. Adults don't normally live there; that's why you see all of these ASU students and the like causing problems. But let's also dispel the myth that all of ASU's population is a set of vile, alcohol-consuming, bad-mouthing hoodlums. Most of the people at this school and down on Mill Avenue are good, honest, hard-working people, who only go there to have a good time and to meet other people.

Yes, we do spend money down there, and just like you, we deserve to be there. Most of us don't cause problems for anyone. I, for one, have never fought, yelled, vomited on or urinated on anyone or anything on Mill Avenue or anywhere else for that matter.

Most of the people that are down there are on the same level as I am — they are pretty good kids. But I will agree with you that there are trouble-makers, but as I stated before, they are everywhere. They also live in my neighborhood. Like you, I have to deal with them from time to time.

I take offense to the insinuation that you make saying that all underage youth are "wannabes." I assume you mean wannabe drinkers. If they are consuming alcohol, I can rest assured that they are not getting it from the bars on Mill. I have personally witnessed the ID checks that everyone must go through to get into a bar on Mill Avenue.

So if kids are drinking and puking on your doorstep, they are getting that from mom and pop's unlocked liquor stash at home. I am not a trouble-maker and the people that I am trying to make this statement for are not trouble-makers. I have never endorsed any underage drinking nor have I ever endorsed the kind of activity that you have described.

I wish to protect those people who don't have a say on what is going on and in their choice to be down on Mill Avenue. If you don't like what people are doing, I can certainly understand that, but I urge you to make a positive effort in trying to do something that will benefit the overall community and the youth that is in it. One other thing I urge you to do is to go down to the Arizona Center or another place that caters to an older crowd, and try to tell me that the things you described such as fights, vomiting and taunting police don't happen there.

I can assure you they do. Just because you get older, doesn't always make you more responsible. I have seen plenty of what you have described being done by people much older than myself. I wish you the best of luck with your current situation and I hope the best for you and for all of us who want to be on Mill the best, too.

Morgan cartoon spawns reasonable debates

I am writing to protest the social irresponsibility in Bryce Morgan's editorial cartoon that appeared in the Nov. 8 issue of the State Press.

A reasonable debate can be sustained regarding the influence of biology in same-sex preferences.

A reasonable debate can be sustained with regard to whether same-sex partners can/ought to be parents as a couple.

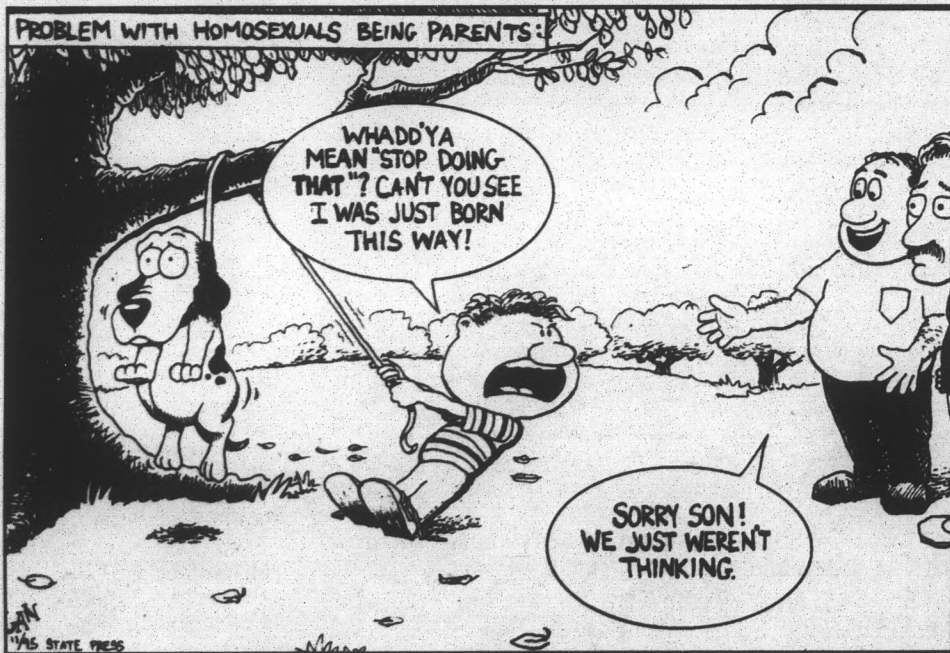

A reasonable debate can be sustained with respect, in general, to how any parents respond to their children.

But there is nothing reasonable about a debate that assumes there is a connection between any biological determined same-sex desire and homicidal tendencies.

To deplore the conceptual primitivism of Morgan's cartoon is not to engage in political correctness. Rather, it is to demand that, especially in a university-community publication, debates — including editorial opinions — be characterized by a minimum of respect for the issues involved.

Opinions such as revealed in this cartoon are prima facie demeaning, insulting and conducive to social violence. And more than anything else, they undermine the quality of intellectual and cultural life of the campus community.

Hateful images take heavy toll

Please don't print any more of Bryce Morgan's gay-hating political cartoons. The Nov. 8 cartoon was quite offensive in the way it portrayed gay parents, reducing gays to subhuman status.

Hateful images, like this one, in the media contribute to a climate of hatred and violence against gays, lesbians and bisexual people which is already taking a heavy toll.

Don't forget that ASU lost a student to anti-gay violence this fall.

Don't forget that last spring's ASASU elections were marred by threatening phone calls to an openly gay candidate.

Don't forget that before he was assassinated, political cartoons portrayed Prime Minister Rabin as a Nazi. Media images affect personal safety.

Fillers not needed

I was sorry to see that the State Press was so badly in need of copy on Nov. 8, that it printed the hateful and utterly ridiculous cartoon by Bryce Morgan regarding gay parenting.

Next time you need a "filler," let me know. I can draw as well as Morgan, and I research topics before I speak out on them.

POLICE REPORT

ASU police reported the following incidents over the weekend:

- A female student reported someone knocking on her window at Hayden Hall. Police advised her to contact them if it happens again.
- Two students were arrested and released for driving under the influence of alcohol.
- An underage student was arrested and released for driving under the influence of alcohol.
- Someone broke into a vehicle while it was parked in Lot 39.
- A student was arrested on an outstanding warrant for failing to appear in court.
- A student was arrested for possession of marijuana.
- A student was arrested for underage possession of liquor and providing false information to police.
- Three students were arrested and released for stealing money from a City of Tempe parking meter at Sixth Street and College Avenue.

- A television crew set off the intrusion alarm in a third level sky box at Sun Devil Stadium. The Guardomatic Alarm Company reset the alarm.
- A student reported that someone attempted to steal his vehicle while it was parked in Lot 44.
- A student's Jeep was damaged while in Parking Structure 5.
- A student was contacted while putting a shotgun in his vehicle at Sigma Alpha Epsilon. The man was warned of ASU policies prohibiting weapons on campus.
- Police contacted a man at the Nelson Fine Arts Center who was riding his bicycle in circles and talking to himself. He was advised of trespassing laws and told to leave the area.
- Police contacted a student at Cholla Apartments after hearing reports that he had bottle rockets in his room. The man was advised of fireworks violations and underage possession of alcohol.

Building ID signs obtain new look to fit standards

BY TIMOTHY TAIT
STATE PRESS

Brown is out — gray, maroon and gold are in.

In accordance with the University's graphics standards, Facilities Management has begun a five-year program to change the design of all building identification signs on campus.

The new graphics standards, instituted this past summer, aim to give the University a more professional, uniform appearance by coordinating the look and use of logos and signs on campus, said Val Peterson, director of Facilities Management.

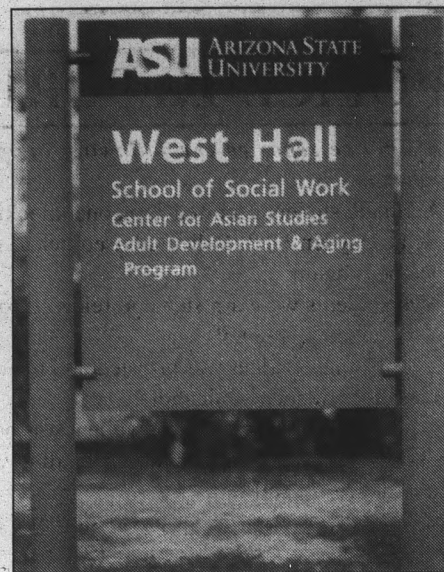

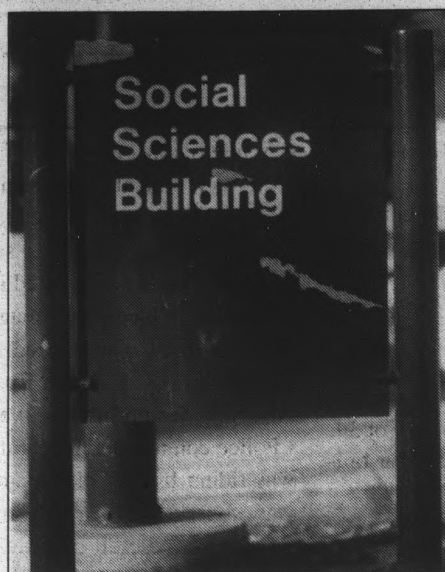

He said the signs are usually repainted when the paint begins to fade or information on the sign becomes outdated.

"Initially, we intended to repaint the signs as needed, or until I can't stand it anymore," he said, "but we have not been able to do that."

Instead, Facilities Management divided the campus into five regions with signs in one region getting repainted with the new scheme every year.

According to Peterson's estimates, there are between 100 to 150 building identification signs on campus, with each sign costing around $50 to repaint. The entire process is completed on campus, which costs less than sending the signs to an outside contractor, he said.

State Press Photos

Building identification signs such as the Social Sciences' sign, left, will be replaced by a new style which includes gray, maroon and gold graphics.

Budget cuts dig into Indian reservation housing fund

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — While proposals to trim about 10 percent from the total federal budget are being proposed in Congress, spending for American Indian programs could go down by between 15 and 33 percent.

It's a disproportionate cut that the state's reservations cannot afford, say Indian leaders. They say one reason is because the reservations are still desperate for adequate housing — and the numbers prove the point.

Proposed cuts in the budget for the Bureau of Indian Affairs could spell a $14 million reduction in New Mexico and on the Navajo reservation. The Housing and Urban Development department's budget for Indian housing nationwide stands to be cut from $282 million to $100 million.

Those are bad signs for the Navajo reservation — the nation's largest — on which some 20,000 families are homeless or live with relatives.

"The people making these decisions in Washington," says Navajo President Albert Hale, "obviously have never been out to Indian reservations. They have obviously never seen the despicable conditions under which Indian people live."

The $100 million from the HUD Indian housing budget is enough to pay to run the program and fund about 1,000 new housing units in all of Indian country. The money will bring only about 70 new homes to the Navajo reservation.

Add that to the mere 190 houses the Navajo government can build from its $10 million housing budget and it's obvious there isn't enough money to go around to make a significant impact on the housing shortage.

The Navajo Nation government surveyed the housing stock on the reservation in 1993. The survey identified 29,000 houses for a reservation with a population of 160,000.

"There's more cry on the reservation for housing than for scholarships or food or anything else," says Leo Denetsone, the tribe's housing manager for the Fort Defiance Agency in Arizona. "People need housing."

The standard house built by the tribe is 768 square feet, wood frame with a wood stove, two bedrooms and a bathroom. Frequently up to 10 people live in one house, says tribal housing official Timothy Tsosie.

With the funding cuts, the BIA has changed its strategy — from concentrating on building houses to repairing them.

BIA money for renovations on the Navajo reservation was $1 million last year, allowing for 60 homes to be fixed. With budget cuts, that number would fall to 42.

In all, it means each community on the reservation sees two homes built by the tribe each year and fewer than one renovated with BIA money.

Taiwan, U.S. relations strong under TRA, minister says

BY DAVID J. KOVACS
STATE PRESS

More than 200 people — including Taiwan's minister of foreign affairs — attended a University conference to examine relations between Taiwan, China and the United States.

The keynote speaker at Thursday's conference was Frederick F. Chien, minister of foreign affairs for the Republic of China. He spoke of the future of the Taiwan Relations Act, the basic law that governs U.S.-Taiwanese relations.

"Clearly this statute has passed the test of time," he said. "It is an understatement to say the TRA has bolstered the morale of the people of my county."

The TRA was created by the U.S. Congress in 1979 when former President Jimmy Carter gave diplomatic recognition to the People's Republic of China as the sole government of both Taiwan and China.

However, Congress passed the TRA the same year to ensure friendly ties with Taiwan and declared that the United States has a national security interest in the area's safety and stability. The TRA is unique among U.S. foreign-relations policies because it is based entirely on congressional legislation, rather than diplomatic ties.

Chien also announced Taiwan's plans to build an Asian-Pacific regional operations center he said would give U.S. companies greater access to the Taiwanese market and Asia.

"By partnerships and strategic alliances with ROC (Republic of China) firms, U.S. enterprises will be able to expect their own markets throughout the region," he said.

Chien condemned mainland China for trying to "squeeze the region and suppress our international space."

"They see our national power steadily growing," he said. "They see that the beauty of our democratic institution is almost completed."

Chien said the TRA has allowed Taiwan to become the seventh largest trading partner of the United States with transactions between the two nations exceeding $42 billion, including $17 million of U.S. goods going to Taiwan every year.

"In almost every way, other than diplomatic recognition, the Taiwan Relations Act has enabled four successive American administrations to continue strong and friendly ties with the Republic of China and the Chinese people from Taiwan," Chien said.

Councilman Williams talks on the business of politics

BY TIM BAXTER
STATE PRESS

A person does not have to be an entrepreneur or a politician for business and politics to play an important role in everyday life, according to Phoenix City Councilman Cody Williams.

"People ask me, 'How did you get into politics?'" he said. "We're all in politics all our lives. The politics of life say you win if your team has more points at the end of the game."

Williams, who spoke to about 40 students Thursday in the Turquoise Room of the Memorial Union, said there is some truth in the old adage, "It's not what you know, it's who you know."

"Sometimes it's timing, and timing is intangible," Williams said. "There is a way to be successful. Conversation is not kissing gluteus maximus; it's politics."

Everyone needs to have a grounding in business to succeed, and then stay focused on it, he said.

"The thing that creates success is the back-end — did they get the books right? One of the worst things you can do is forget to follow up," he said.

Williams also said many people rely too heavily on communications tools such as charts and projections, adding that they lose sight of the primary goal of communication.

Another problem many people face is cluttering their message with too many distractions, Williams added.

"You don't give out the food if you want people to stay, and you don't give out the handouts if you want people to pay attention to you," Williams said.

"Don't rely on the fax, don't rely on the phone, don't rely on the e-mail," he said. "Go outside and play. Get out and communicate."

Williams said confidence, initiative and a good follow-through are the keys to success.

"You can out-politic anyone if you are comfortable with who you are," he said.

PEOPLE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Seattle Mayor Norman Rice won a televised "Funniest Mayor" contest by joking about his rain-soaked city, comparing it to a moisturizing pad.

In a videotaped routine on HBO's Comic Relief VII show Saturday night, Rice also manipulated his voice to gurgle as though he were speaking underwater.

Rice poked fun at his city's environmentalist image too. After New York Yankees fans threw garbage onto the field during a playoff game against the Seattle Mariners, Rice said, Seattle fans sorted through the waste for recycling.

The victory, determined by an applause meter that measured audience approval, earned $7,500 for Seattle's Health Care for the Homeless program.

Second place brought $1,500 for homeless assistance to Newark Mayor Sharpe James. Baltimore's Mayor Kurt L. Schmoke came in third and took home $1,000.

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Paul Newman says a letter from a fan of his spaghetti sauce helped keep his celebrity in perspective.

Writing to rave about Newman's Own sauce, the fan noted that his girlfriend claimed Newman had done some acting.

"If your acting is as good as your spaghetti sauce, you must be great," the letter said. "Do you have any movies on VCR?"

Newman, who described the letter at a luncheon for the Michigan Council of Foundations, said he framed and hung it.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Scott O'Grady expected a Veterans' Day salute to the military. He also got a surprise personal salute from a few of his favorite Marines.

The downed fighter pilot who became a hero by displaying his survival skills in the Bosnian woods took the field at half-time of the Florida-South Carolina football game Saturday.

Suddenly, eight of his Marine rescuers walked out for a public reunion orchestrated by school and Marine Corps officials.

"This was great," shouted Sgt. Glenn Kirst after he and his buddies were reunited with the Air Force captain. "He's such a nice guy."

O'Grady survived six days after his F-16 was shot down by a Serb surface-to-air missile in June.

LETTER TO SANTA CONTEST!

HO. HO. HO.

It's that time of year again! Christmas is sneaking up on us ... before you know it, Santa will be wiggling down your chimney and filling your home with gifts of joy (if you've been good and you still believe in Santa Claus!).

Anyway, we are having our annual "Letters to Santa Contest." All you have to do is write a letter to Santa. It can be funny, creative, political, socially correct, sad, touching, senseless, inane, insane, colorful, vivid, cold ... you get the message.

There will be three winners. Judges will award a $25 dining gift certificate to the first place winner, $10 in "movie money" from Harkins Theatres to the second place winner and a State Press coffee mug to the third place winner.

All entries will be published in the December 5 State Press Final Edition. The three winners will have their letters published in large type, large enough to cut out and magnet to the fridge as a joyous reminder of the festive season, not to mention large enough to cut out extra copies to give to everyone they know.

Dust off your keyboards, sharpen your pencils and begin your letters today. This is your chance to (finally) tell your parents that you "got published." Bring your disk (Mac preferred) to the State Press, Matthews Center Basement, Room 47 by noon Thursday, Nov. 30. Include your name, phone number and ASU ID#. Students and staff are encouraged to enter.

Trial to begin for man charged with killing NBA star's father

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — He calls himself Lord D. A.A.S. U'allah now, but prosecutors still know him as Daniel Andre Green.

He is the young man charged with killing Michael Jordan's father, and his capital murder trial is scheduled to begin today.

The trial promises to be long and arduous, with jury selection expected to take up to a month. Prosecutors have summoned two jury pools of 500 each to find people with no opinion of the highly publicized case.

Michael Jordan, whose Chicago Bulls play Tuesday in Orlando, is not expected to attend.

Prosecutors are seeking the death penalty for Green, who turns 21 this month. The defendant has converted to Islam and changed his name, but court documents continue to refer to him as Green.

"I just didn't kill the man," Green, who has pleaded innocent, told The Charlotte Observer for a story Sunday.

Green, in a telephone interview from jail, said he was "ecstatic" the case is going to trial but wasn't sure if he will testify.

Police have described the shooting of James Jordan, in the early morning hours of July 23, 1993, as an act of random violence motivated by robbery.

Tired from driving after he attended the funeral of a friend in coastal Wilmington, Jordan pulled his red Lexus coupe off U.S. 74 and onto a patch of pavement in front of a country store in Robeson County.

Inside his unlocked car with the passenger window rolled down, James Jordan slept. Without warning, police said, he was killed by a single shot to the chest around 3 a.m.

His body was found Aug. 3 floating in a swamp. Green and his boyhood friend, Larry Demery, were arrested 12 days later.

Child genius off to graduate school

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. (AP) — Why waste time? Now that 11-year-old Michael Kearney has graduated from college, he's working on a graduate degree.

All in preparation for becoming a game show host. "He could be Mozart, Einstein. We have no idea," said Kevin Kearney, father of the boy with the 300-plus IQ. "Right now he wants to be a game show host. That's a passion we have to accept."

Michael was the youngest child on record to enter college — age 6 1/2 — and the youngest to graduate — age 10 — when he got his degree in anthropology last year at the University of South Alabama.

On Friday, Michael announced plans to attend Middle Tennessee State University, which has offered him something similar to a full-time graduate assistantship. The real thing might violate child labor laws.

Michael plans to start school in January. He hasn't decided what he'll get his degree in.

"Glug, glug, glug," he said in response to a question about whether he would join a fraternity. "I'll bring the Kool-Aid."

Michael and his sister Maeghan, who is finishing high school at age 9, were mostly home-taught by their parents. Michael began spouting algebra while a toddler.

"He's been trying to take over the family since he was 3," his father said. "I used education as a scam, to divert him so Dad could stay in charge."

Models hit Tulsa runway for food bank benefit

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Paris. Milan. New York. Tulsa?

For one night, this city in the Plains was transformed into a fashion mecca as 11 supermodels — Linda Evangelista and Naomi Campbell among them — strutted and twirled in Versace to raise money for a local charity.

"We're starved for this," said Joanne Sullivan, one of the 2,000 spectators Saturday. "We can go and see and pretend we're in New York, at least for a night."

The crowd cheered and whistled from the start as Amber Valletta, a Tulsa native responsible for bringing in the show, burst onto the runway in a lavender suit. Her model's pout turned into a wide smile.

"What we've done here is so good, I know I want to continue," she said later.

When her mother, a volunteer at the Tulsa Community Food Bank, suggested the show as a way to raise money to feed the hungry, Ms. Valletta began recruiting her friends for "Supermodels Stepping Out Against Hunger."

Gianni Versace provided the $5 million in fashions. The runway was constructed by volunteers, the flowers were donated. Hairstylists and makeup artists worked for free.

About $100,000 was raised.

"It's a good charity," said model Frederique. She was somewhat surprised, however, by the crowd's eagerness.

"They were so happy to see us, everyone applauded," she said. "It was so nice to hear."

Sun Devils get best of both worlds in victory

Snyder says ASU's win over Cal proves it can overcome adversity

BY DAN MILLER
STATE PRESS

Another game, another lesson. But this one was different. For the ASU football team, most of the learning experiences earlier in the season resulted in a painful notch in the loss column. But lately, the Sun Devils have been acquiring wisdom and reaping the spoils of victory at the same time. ASU's 38-29 win over California Saturday furnished compelling evidence.

"I think the real start of the maturing began at the Stanford game, but this game was dramatically different than those," explained ASU Head Coach Bruce Snyder, whose team (6-4, 4-3 in the Pac-10) remains in contention for a bowl bid. "In those we learned how hard you had to play and how you had to play all four quarters.

"In this particular game, I think the lesson is even when you don't feel quite up to par, even when you know how important it is and you don't totally feel it and you're beat up, you've got to go do it. And that's what they did."

Snyder, whose Sun Devils next face UofA in the Nov. 24 season finale at Sun Devil Stadium, added that the victory over the Golden Bears (3-7, 2-5) further reinforced his suspicion that his team has truly gelled.

"I think we're a good football team right now," he said. "I don't think we're a great football team from dominate personnel standpoint, but we are doing some things that good teams do. Good teams do certain things and we're doing those things. We're really a solid team right now and

Volleyball team buries Bruins, Women of Troy

No. 16 ASU treats home crowd to pair of upsets, rattles off 3 straight to topple USC

BY DAWN WAGNER
STATE PRESS

With the No. 4 ranking in its NCAA region on the line, the ASU volleyball team pulled off two upsets over the weekend at home over No. 7 UCLA and No. 14 USC.

After defeating the Bruins 3-0 (15-10, 15-8, 15-9) in front of a home crowd of 1,300 Friday night, the No. 16 Sun Devils turned around and narrowly defeated the Women of Troy in five games.

On Saturday, ASU lost the first two games of the match to USC 9-15, 9-15, then rallied back to win the next three, including a nail-biting 15-13 win in the deciding fifth game.

"The wins were very crucial because we kept losing to teams we shouldn't have like Oregon and Oregon State," said senior outside hitter Christine Garner. "It was crucial that we won this weekend."

The two wins this weekend and two previous wins over UCLA and USC this year marked the first time ASU has ever swept the Trojans and the Bruins in both match-ups.

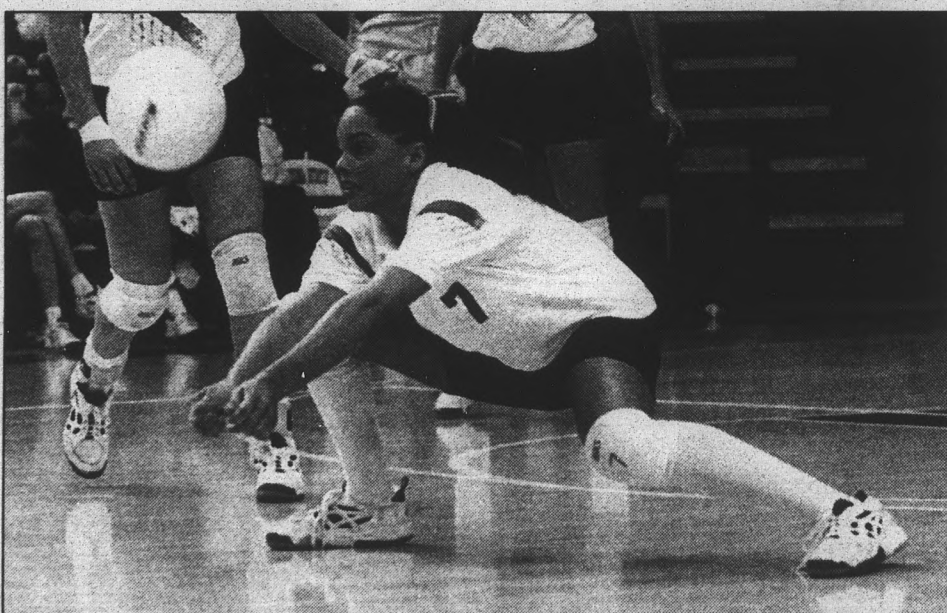

Against the Women of Troy, ASU faltered in the first two games due to service errors and lack of communication but soon turned on the heat after a pep talk from Coach Patti Snyder-Park.

"She told us that just because we won the night before didn't mean we could relax," Garner said.

After the break, Snyder-Park said the level of play dramatically improved.

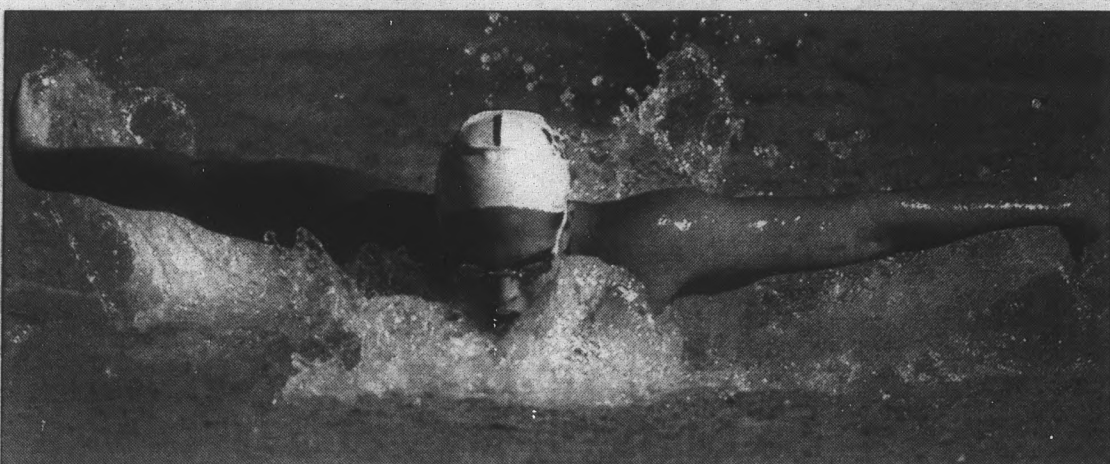

"We started to serve the ball in," she said. "Annette Monsen had a great game.

The ASU women's swim team showed it could hang with the best over the weekend.

UCLA and USC, which are both ranked in the top 10, presented a challenge for the Sun Devils (3-2), but Coach Tim Hill said his squad held its own.

"We swam very well," Hill said. "We swam against two very good teams. I was pleased with our performance, but it's never fun to lose."

ASU lost to UCLA, 171.5-125.5, and USC, 182-116, but Hill said the score wasn't an accurate indicator of how close the meets really were.

"There were many races that were decided by hundredths of a second," he said. "With those races the meets would have gone the other way, but you can't tell that by looking at the score."

Senior Chris Jeffrey won five events in the two meets. She has now won 12 events in ASU's five meets. Hill called Jeffrey "one of the best swimmers in the country."

Hill said the two teams have more depth than the Sun Devils, especially

ASU-Cal

I think we're very difficult to beat." Just ask Cal.

The hapless Golden Bears were next to helpless when it came to stopping ASU's rushing attack. The Sun Devils — behind a career-high 188 yards on 30 carries from senior tailback Chris Hopkins — racked up a season-best 345 yards on the ground. ASU ran 61 times while the passing game was reduced to a mere afterthought.

"It wasn't so much that we thought we could run the ball, we thought we really should run the ball otherwise we would be playing right into their hands with the great pass rushers they had," Snyder revealed. "We thought, 'Let's see if we can get our running game going and take some of the pressure off (quarterback Jake Plummer).' I didn't think we'd run it 60 times, 45 to 50 maybe, but not 60."

Snyder also praised the Sun Devils' offensive line for paving the way for the big day.

"I thought they did a great job of run blocking and a great job of pass blocking when they had to," he said of the front five, adding the only sack it allowed was basically a coverage sack. "To be able to score that many points while running the ball and not being that up, I think is a terrific victory."

Hopkins, who eclipsed his previous superlative of 135 yards against Oregon State on Sept. 3, 1994, found the end zone of a pair of 5-yard scampers. The 6-foot, 189-pounder had seen a limited amount of backfield action in the last three outings.

"I think that's a reflection of him and what kind of character he has," Snyder said of Hopkins, who has been playing behind sophomores Michael Martin and Terry Battle, both of whom were injured Saturday. "But not only that, it's reflective of the whole team. It's the sign of a strong team from an attitude standpoint. Sometimes you have to accept tough decisions when you don't like them.

"I just think when you're really healthy from an attitude standpoint you fight your way through it and that's what he did."

Plummer, who only attempted 17 passes, completed 11 for 148 yards and two touchdowns — his 16th and 17th of the season — both to junior wideout Keith Poole. He was intercepted twice.

Snyder said there is no doubt in his mind that ASU will be ready for the Wildcats.

"They'll be ready for the UofA game and looking forward to this week to kind of regenerate themselves," he said.

NOTES:

- Nearly the entire starting secondary is banged up. Sophomore cornerback Jason Simmons (ankle), senior corner Lee Cole (groin) and sophomore strong safety Damien Richardson (leg contusion) were all slowed by injuries Saturday. Sophomore tailback Michael Martin rushed for 54 yards on seven carries despite aggravating an inflamed Achilles' tendon. Sophomore Terry Battle (knee) did not play.

- Snyder said junior linebacker Scott Von der Ahe, who has been playing with pain, is in dire need of a rest.

- Despite ASU's bumps and bruises, Snyder said the team is well ahead of where it was last year at this time. "We're easily way under a year-ago's injury list," he said. "Last year at this time we were just a shell of a team."

- The Sun Devils did not practice Sunday and will only do some light running today. After regular practices Tuesday and Wednesday they will run Thursday, then take Friday and Saturday off, Snyder said.

- Snyder said the players will be voting on some team awards today which include who will be the official captains for the UofA football game.

Cold and windy weather didn't help the top-ranked men's golf team play its best as it finished ninth at the Golf World Invitational in Hilton Head, S.C.

"We just never warmed up," Coach Randy Lein said. "(There's) no excuses."

The team finished at 881 (288-292-301), 16 strokes behind top-finisher East Tennessee State. Texas Christian University and Oklahoma rounded out the top three.

"If we would have played well, we could have won," Lein said. "But that just didn't happen."

Junior Scott Johnson was the top finisher for the Sun

WEEKEND ROUND-UP

Devils, with a three-round total of 213 (70-72-71), just two strokes away from medalist honors.

Redshirt-freshman Brad Cannon was the next scorer for the squad, placing 30th at 222 (72-74-76) on the par-72 course.

Overall, Lein said the team had a good fall season.

"We're disappointed (with the finish) but we haven't lost our confidence," Lein said. "One tournament is not going to be the deciding factor. We still think we're the team to beat."

NOTES:

True freshman Darren Angel is currently the top-ranked player in the country in the Rolex/Nicholas Rankings. He became the first Sun Devil to win a tournament as a freshman since Phil Mickelson during the 1988-89 season. Angel has had three top 10 finishes in his first five tournaments.

Senior Joey Snyder is ranked third.

Women's Golf

The ASU women's golf team finished fifth overall in the Palmetto Dunes Collegiate Tournament at the Arthur Hills Course at Palmetto Hall in Hilton Head Island S.C.

The Sun Devils were among the top five teams in the

ASU senior Mollica claims 167-pound title in Michigan

FROM STAFF REPORTS
STATE PRESS

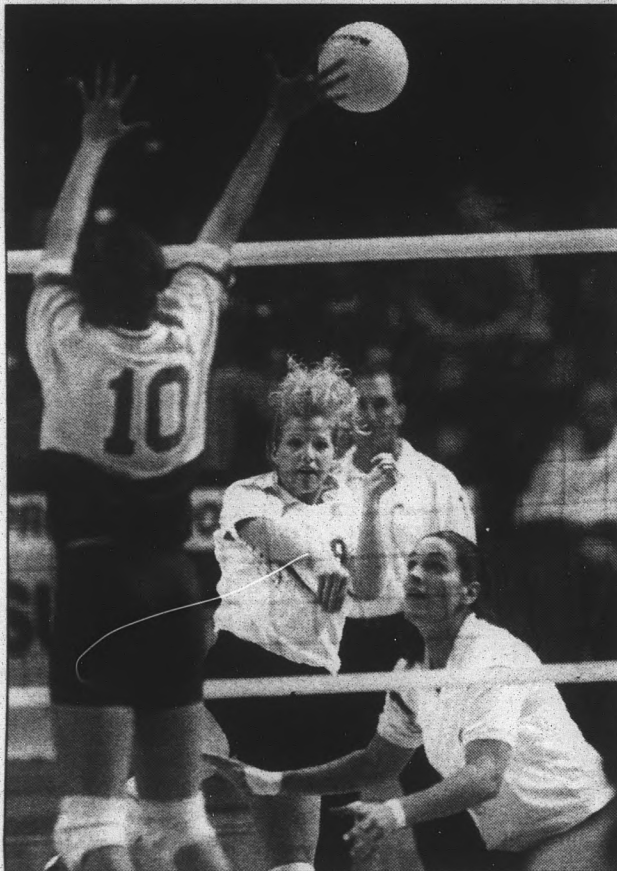

The ASU wrestling team sent a select few wrestlers to the Michigan Open over the weekend. Senior Markus Mollica, a two-time NCAA champion won his weight class at 167 in the contest at East Lansing.

Other finishers for the Sun Devils included redshirt-freshman Casey Strand, who placed third at 177 pounds, beat out Vladimir Matyushenk in the consolation match. Strand went 5-1 in the event.

Junior Michael Douglas finished fourth at 150. Douglas is a junior transfer who was the junior college champion at that weight.

Sophomore Aaron Simpson, also made the trip at 190, and finished 1-2 at the event. The Sun Devils will begin their regular dual-meet season after Thanksgiving.

Junior journalism major Jeremy Hein was the Week 10 winner of the State Press Sports "PICK IT AND WIN" contest for ASU football games. His winner's box will be published in Tuesday's State Press.

Everyone did a great job (Saturday) with hitting, setting and blocking."

Not to mention pounding the kills cross court all night. Sophomore outside hitter Jenn Snyder had 25 kills alone against the Trojans while Garner added 19.

Junior Tracy Heflin added 57 digs in the five-game thriller while Monsen posted four solo blocks.

In Friday night's match, the Sun Devils were led by sophomore outside hitter Terri Cox, whose 36-inch vertical produced 11 kills. Monsen and senior Holly Sones combined for two block solos and eight block assists against the Bruins.

With the relatively easy win over UCLA, Snyder-Park said the Sun Devils were pumped up for the match against USC.

"I think we felt 100 percent confident," Snyder-Park said. "We had the advantage and we needed a win. USC had the pressure on them."

"After a five-game match (vs. UofA on Friday) they had to produce. I think they came out fired up."

The Sun Devils, who need a fourth-place finish in their division to attain a first-round bye in the NCAA tournament, have only two more games this season.

"We still have to take care of Arizona and we can't have a bad loss to NAU," Snyder-Park said. "Arizona is always a great match, but this week we secured a bid for the tournament."

nation to participate in the three-day, 54-hole tournament. San Jose State finished in first by a wide margin, totaling 881 strokes and placing three finishers in the top five. ASU totaled 904.

This is the first tournament in the last 37 where the Sun Devils failed to finish in the top three.

Individually no Sun Devil finished in the top five for the first time this season.

Sophomore Kellee Booth finished sixth (220), while the only other Sun Devil to finish in the top 25 was freshman Jody Niemann (16th).

—Ron Matejko
Women's Soccer

With 14 of 20 players returning for the spring season, the ASU women's soccer club team appears headed in the right direction. Despite a disappointing 0-2-1 finish at the Southwest regionals in Las Cruces, N.M., recently, the Soccer Devils are optimistic about the future.

"We made improvements. We're a better team skill-wise now," said senior fullback Bridget Harper. "There were only about five of us that have played together before (this season)."

The Soccer Devils lost 2-0 to UTEP, 2-1 to UofA and tied New Mexico St., 0-0 at regionals. ASU played with only one substitute and two injured players, leaving it with a small bench.

Junior striker Stephanie Kievman, who suffered a heel injury, played goalie in the first half of the UofA game and only gave up one goal. Kievman accidentally sprained teammate Maria Ascano's ankle as she slid to defend a ball.

Freshman Kerrie Kulak scored ASU's lone goal. ASU finished the fall season 4-5-1.

—Dan Miller
Men's Soccer

The ASU men's club soccer team advanced to the regional tournament for the first time in four years, finishing in a tie with the UofA for third place.

"We had a good showing," said freshman goalkeeper Andy Fisher. "For what was considered a rebuilding year, we were successful."

The team advanced to the semifinals of the tournament, losing to Northern Arizona University 5-0.

The squad began the tournament at 10:30 p.m. Friday against Texas Tech, winning 3-2. Juniors Milan Djukic and Chris Vantuyl, and senior Shawn Dumphy scored goals for the Sun Devils. Junior goalkeeper Matt Morgan had 10 in the breast and back strokes, which ended up hurting them. Some shuffling was done and the Sun Devils responded.

"Everybody made some contributions which was nice," Hill said. "There were people that weren't swimming their best events but still performed well. That was the most satisfying."

Mens Swimming

It was a tough weekend for the 12th-ranked men's swim team as it lost to ninth-ranked USC 166-128 at the Mona Plummer Aquatic Center Saturday. The Sun Devils are now 3-2 heading into the Pac-10 Championships Nov. 25.

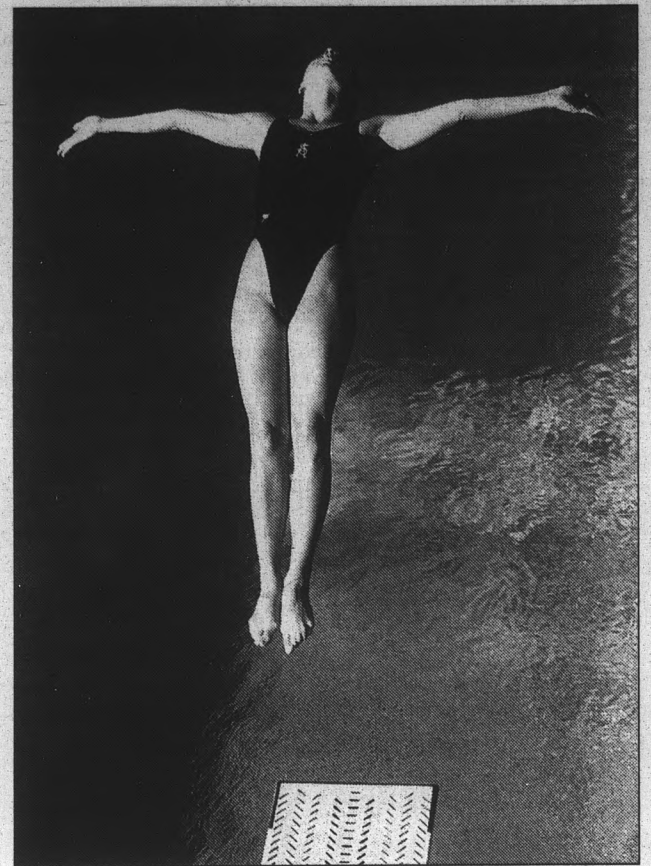

"This was not our best meet," Coach Ernie Maglischio said. "We just weren't swimming well. The inexperience of our young team showed today."

Senior Felipe Delgado swept the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events. The only other event the Sun Devils won was the 400-medley relay, which included junior Logi Kristjansson, sophomore Nolan Shifren freshman Patrick Maynard and Delgado.

Maglischio is tapering the workouts this week to ensure his athletes are rested for the Pac-10's during Thanksgiving weekend in Long Beach, Calif.

"Rest, rest, rest. That's all we can do," Delgado said. "You're going to see a different team in two weeks."

In the diving competition, senior captain John Milander swept the 1-meter and 3-meter events.

Senior captain Jennifer Cnota gracefully approaches the water during the 1-meter event in ASU's meet with UCLA Friday.

The team had little time to recover, playing New Mexico State at 9 a.m. Saturday. The team lost 2-1, the only goal from freshman midfielder Seth Lindauer.

The team finished 7-5-2.

—Lisa Eskey
Hockey

The ASU Ice Devils (7-0) continued their winning ways with a blend of strong defense and explosive offense. This was evident in the 7-1 victory over winless Northern Arizona University (0-6-1) Saturday night.

Senior backup goaltender Ross Steinberg was sharp in net, allowing one goal on 26 shots and keeping the Ice Devils' goals against average at 1.00 for the season.

The offensive spark came from sophomore center Steve Hammett who lit the lamp four times against the Lumberjacks. Hammett, who led the Ice Devils in scoring last season as a freshman, turned in the second hat trick of the season by an Ice Devil.

Coach Gene Hammett, Steve's father, said the outburst couldn't have come at a better time.

"He had a huge game," he said. "He turned things around for us. We were in a lull and he lit it up."

The next game will be the toughest of the season for the Ice Devils when perennial powerhouse Colorado St. comes to town. The game is scheduled for 9:45 p.m. Thursday at the Oceanside Ice Arena in Tempe.

Doctor With a Heart Program

YOUR HELP IS REQUIRED!

Greetings, Life Is Good And We've Come Up With A Way To Make It Better.

For Every New Patient We Receive From November 1st thru November 17th At This Office, We Will Donate A 12-Pound Turkey To St. Vincent DePaul To Be Distributed To Needy Families In The Valley.

We See This As A Win-Win Situation. You As A Patient Can Refer A Friend, Family Member Or Co-Worker And They Can Get a Full Examination And X-Rays For No Charge ($150.00 Value - During These 17 Days Only). The New Patients Can Find Out If They Can Benefit From Chiropractic Care. Many Needy Families Will Be Able To Enjoy This Holiday Time Along With The Rest Of Us.

To Refer Means To Direct To A Source For Help Or Information. Doctor Means Teacher. I Know You Know People Who Can Benefit From Chiropractic. Please Let Me Teach Them How.

P.S. We Will Have A 30" Tall Barometer Posted In The Office With A Turkey Sticker For Each Turkey To Be Donated. Stop In And Watch It Fill Up!

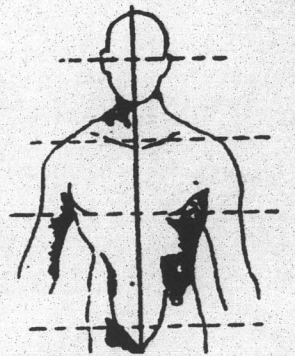

Example of poor spinal structure.

FREE $150 Value
Offer expires 11/17/95.

SPINAL EXAMINATION AND X-RAYS

I will include an orthopedic test, a neurological test, a spinal alignment check, an examination for restricted or excess motion in the spine, x-ray and a private consultation to discuss the results.

Example of good spinal structure.
