Eckel begins defense before Mexicali judge

BY BRIAN ANDERSON
AND MELODY McDONALD
STATE PRESS

ASU's Interfraternity Council president has been transported to a Mexicali, Mexico city jail for the first day of what will be a three-day presentation of his defense to a Mexicali judge, a public jail official said Wednesday.

Senior marketing major Mike Eckel was charged last week with raping a 19-year-old Phoenix woman during spring break.

In a telephone interview, Edelia Lozano of the Mexicali Jail said Eckel spent Wednesday presenting his case to Judge Leticia Beaza in a Mexicali courtroom.

On Friday, the final day of Eckel's defense presentation, Beaza will determine his fate, Lozano said.

The verdict may not rest entirely on Eckel's defense, however.

Julie Erfani, an associate political science professor, said if the woman accusing Eckel does not appear at the trial, Eckel will be allowed to return home.

She added that the possibility of Eckel being released to U.S. officials for prosecution in the United States is unlikely.

"When you commit a crime in another country, you're subject to the laws of the land," she said. "He can't be tried for the crime in the U.S., and he certainly can't be imprisoned here."

ASU Spanish professor Emil Volek disagreed.

"If convicted, he won't stay," he said. "He'll be brought into the States."

José Vasquez, an official with the American Consulate in Tijuana, Mexico, said he could not release any information pertaining to the case other than that a small delegation, led by Consul John Coe, traveled to Mexicali Wednesday morning to speak with Eckel.

As of Wednesday evening, the group had not returned to the American Consulate.

Vasquez added that Eckel is "doing fine." Interpreters for this story were Eddie Diaz and Sandy Marcialla.

Mexican jail conditions harsh, ASU professor says

BY MELODY McDONALD
STATE PRESS

After he was robbed in Mexico City, ASU Spanish professor Emil Volek saw the horrific conditions of a Mexican jail first hand.

"Even the best treatment might be worse than what you'd get anywhere else," he said. "Hygienic conditions are very bad, and there aren't good facilities."

Mexican jails are so harsh and crowded they are "unimaginable to us," Volek added.

"You may have big groups of people in one cell — groups that have all been arrested for different things," he said. "So they are all piled up in one cell without any beds and things, and they are sleeping on the floor. In some (cells), you may have people that need to sleep in turns."

Interfraternity Council President Mike Eckel may be experiencing these harsh conditions in a Mexicali jail.

Students plan rally against racism

Organizers hope to educate on effects of discrimination

BY BRIAN ANDERSON
STATE PRESS

With campus race relations at their lowest point in years, one student group is attempting to bring together diverse organizations and individuals to combat discrimination.

Students Against Discrimination will be holding a rally at 11 a.m. today in front of the Memorial Union to "raise cross-cultural consciousness" toward the effects of discrimination, said group spokesman Dondrell Swanson.

Swanson, a senior journalism major, said SAD is not protesting any specific person, but simply demonstrating their feelings to anyone who will listen.

"There is nothing violent or hostile associated with this rally," he said, referring to an angry protest last month.

"Our goal is to create an environment that is conducive to the educational process."

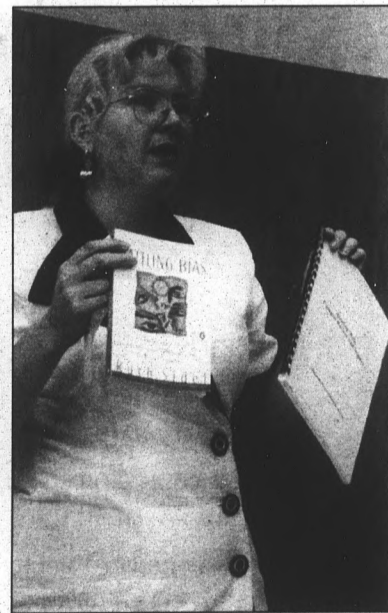

Swanson said he expects about 300 people to attend the rally. Among the attendees will be representatives from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored just across the California border at the north end of the Baja California peninsula.

People, the Lambda League, the American Indian Movement and the Hillel Jewish Students Association.

A worker for the American consulate in Tijuana, Mexico would not comment on the Eckel case or current conditions of the Mexicali jail or any other jail in Mexico.

"I don't know anyone that would go on record that would disturb the diplomatic relationship between U.S. and Mexico," she said.

Volek said violence in cells is also a concern for those jailed in Mexico, partially because many aggressive people are packed inside. He added that police often ignore the brutality.

"If somebody is beating someone, they wouldn't rush in," Volek said. "They stay away from the dirt."

However, improved conditions in jail are not entirely impossible.

"Sometimes they can get better conditions if they bribe the guard," Volek said. "(But) if you don't have money, you're screwed."

He also said many have their extended families bring food in from the outside, adding that jail food usually consists of traditional Mexican food such as tortillas.

"Don't expect any french fries, salads and pastries," he said.

Julie A. Erfani, associate professor of political science, would not comment on the conditions prevalent in Mexican jails. But she did say jails on Mexico's borders are often worse than jails centered near the capital.

"Since this occurred in Mexico's northern frontier, the likelihood of irregularity is greater and conditions of the jail being inferior or worse is greater," she said.

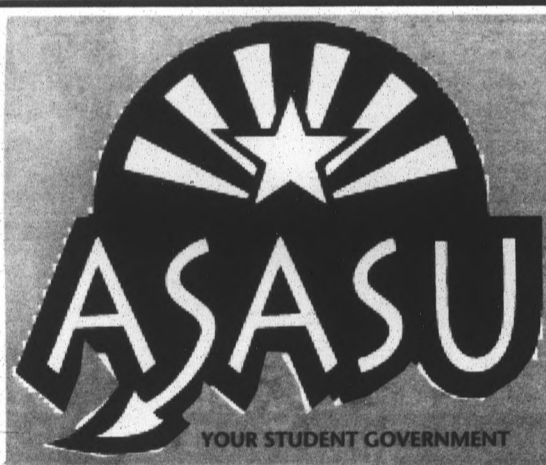

Despite the severe conditions, Volek said Eckel is probably being treated better than the locals, adding that he was amazed the case was brought before the judge in just a week.

"Normally, it would take months," he said.

Although he said Eckel is probably doing fine, Volek said he would not like to be in those conditions.

"Fortunately, I have never (been) in a cell, and I hope I never will," he said. "(Eckel) is definitely ready to come back to the States."

Menendez brothers convicted of first-degree murder

Jury rejects parental abuse claim; brothers could get death penalty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jury convicted Lyle and Erik Menendez of first-degree murder Wednesday for ambushing their parents in their mansion 6 1/2 years ago, rejecting the claim that the brothers killed to end years of abuse.

They could be sentenced to death because the jury decided that the brothers were guilty of special circumstances of lying in wait and multiple murders.

The judge ordered a penalty phase trial to begin Monday. The same jury, will decide whether the Menendezes should be sentenced to lethal injection or life without parole.

The brothers, whose previous trials ended with hung juries, were deathly pale as the verdicts were read by the court clerk. But neither Erik, 25, nor Lyle, 28, who also were convicted of conspiracy, showed any emotion.

Their grandmother and other family members seated in the audience remained calm.

The jury, which had deliberated for nearly four days after two alternates were substituted for regular jurors, maintained somber, impassive faces as they answered, "yes," individually on whether they agreed with the verdicts.

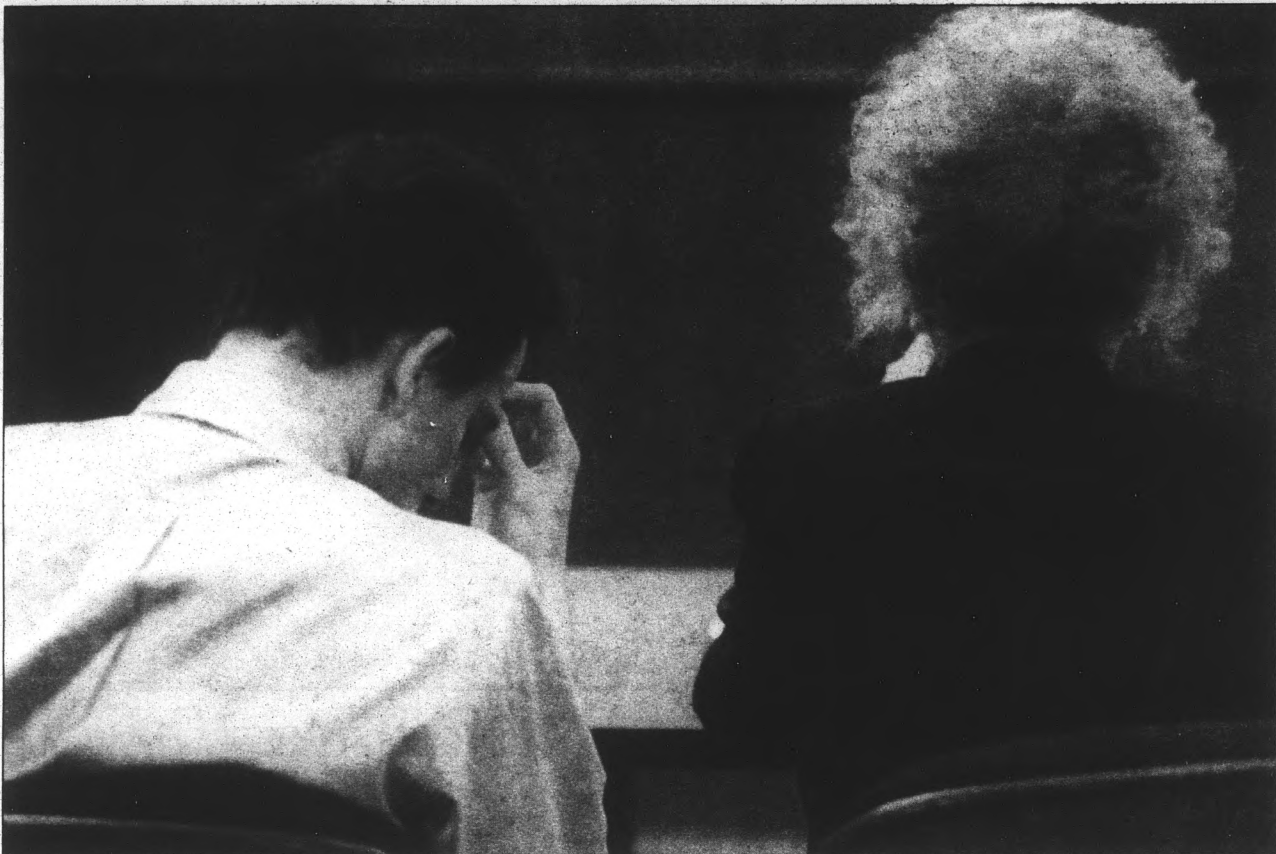

With a packed courtroom and an overflow of reporters and spectators jamming the hallways, the judge issued a gag order on all participants in the case in fear that their comments might affect the sentencing phase.

Prosecutor David Conn, who had taken over the case after two earlier juries deadlocked, left the courtroom with his face flushed and a broad smile, declaring, "I feel great."

The case went to the jury March 1, but negotiations had to restart Thursday when illness forced the judge to replace two panelists with alternates.

The jury's job was complicated by an array of possible guilty verdicts, from first-degree murder down to manslaughter.

The Menendez murder case, a tale of wealth, power and incest in the rarefied realm of Beverly Hills, struck a chord that resonated throughout the country. It placed two young scions to an entertainment industry fortune on trial for the murder of their parents and raised a troubling question as old as time: Could the murder of parents ever be justified?

Lyle and Erik at first denied any role in the killings of Jose and Mary Louise "Kitty" Menendez. They said they had been at the movies. They said the Mafia must have done it. For six months they went on with their lives, spending their inheritance. Then, in March 1990, they were arrested.

It would be three years before their shocking defense was unveiled. They confessed to shooting their parents but said they acted in self-defense believing their parents were about to kill them.

The brothers said they had been sexually and psychologically abused since they were tots, and they finally believed their parents would kill them rather than risk disclosure of incest.

In the first trial, prosecutors avoided the abuse issue and argued simply that the brothers were greedy underachievers.

The new, energized prosecution team headed by Conn took a new tack. They insisted that the sexual abuse stories were fabricated and portrayed the brothers as spoiled brats who killed because they wanted their parents' $14 million fortune.

Instead of abused siblings, he said, they were "young men feeling their oats" when they killed. He called them vicious and cold-blooded killers.

Islamic suicide bomber kills Israeli soldier

TAIBEH, Lebanon (AP) — An Islamic militant leapt out of the bushes and blew himself up in front of an Israeli army convoy in southern Lebanon on Wednesday, killing one soldier and wounding an Israeli civilian.

The attack by the Iranian-backed Hezbollah put pressure on Israel on a second front while it is still reeling from a wave of Palestinian suicide bombings that killed 62 people, including four bombers.

Israeli troops in southern Lebanon came under mortar fire Wednesday around the same time, the Israeli army said. Israeli gunners opened up with 155-mm howitzers and 120-mm mortars against a cluster of Shiite Muslim villages just north of the enclave Israel holds in southern Lebanon, Lebanese security sources said.

A militiaman of the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army was killed 90 minutes after the suicide attack when guerrillas detonated a roadside bomb. The second bomb exploded moments after Israel's northern commander, Maj. Gen. Amiram

Immigrants rush to get 'green cards' renewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of legal immigrants, some responding to rumors of mass deportations, rushed to federal offices nationwide Wednesday to renew expiring "green cards."

Immigration officials said there was no threat of penalties against those with expired cards.

Since late 1993, the Immigration and Naturalization Service has asked those with permanent resident alien permits issued before 1979 to renew their green cards.

But word apparently failed to reach many.

"I heard nothing ... whatsoever, not until 6 a.m. on the radio," Larry Healy, a 67-year-old retired railroad worker originally from Ireland, said as he waited in line at the Los Angeles INS office.

"If I had known about it, I would've come one month, two months ago," Healy said. "I'm retired. I have nothing else to do."

An INS spokesman in San Antonio expressed some skepticism that late-comers weren't aware of the deadline. "We've been in this roughly two years and these folks have had a lot of time to get in and do this," said spokesman Ray Dudley. Still, there was confusion about which document had expired.

Kim Ogden, an INS spokesman in Dallas, said many who showed up at that office worried that other immigration documents were expiring. And rumors were circulating of "mass deportations" for holders of expired cards, he said.

Lack of a new green card doesn't change a person's status as a legal resident. But failure to obtain a new card could pose problems for those who travel abroad and then try to return to the United States, as well as for legal immigrants applying for benefits with the now-expired document.

The INS began the card-replacement effort in November 1993 in an attempt to deter counterfeiting of the green card, which is the agency's most counterfeited document.

"We feel that in the 40 months that this program has ensued, we have in fact made various and numerous attempts to make sure that the public understood and knew what the requirement was and that we have given them ample time to request replacement," said INS Deputy Commissioner Chris Sale.

Applicants for new cards must fill out a form, submit two photographs and a complete set of fingerprints, and pay a $75 fee. Cards issued since 1979 must be renewed every 10 years.

It could take up to 10 months to grant the new cards. Temporary green cards or passport stamps can be issued for cardholders who are traveling abroad.

Tale of 2 cases

For a campus that has been following the issue of rape so closely in the past year, this week has been an eye-opener.

In Phoenix, the Maricopa County Attorney's Office announced that the three basketball players accused of kidnapping and sexual assault will not be prosecuted. The office cited inconsistent statements and prior consensual sexual activity as their reasoning for deciding that a conviction would be hard to get.

In the United States, it is difficult indeed to get a conviction for acquaintance rape. Unless the evidence is seamless, flawless and damning, prosecutors seem to shy away from trying for a conviction.

Across the border, in San Felipe, Mexico, another ASU student is learning the hard way that other countries deal more harshly with rape suspects.

Mike Eckel, president of the Interfraternity Council, was accused of raping a 19-year-old woman while on spring break in Mexico. Eckel was taken into custody on Thursday, and is currently being held in a Mexicali jail.

Two similar situations — but two different countries, and two different results.

Without rock-solid evidence, there cannot be a sexual assault conviction in a U.S. court. By contrast, a defendant in Mexico must prove his innocence, or else be ruled guilty by default.

Obviously, the chances of conviction will skyrocket if Eckel is tried in Mexico.

In the United States, we have no higher principles than these: The defense of human rights for all, and the proposition that any person accused of a crime is innocent until proven guilty.

These principles were upheld in the case of the three ASU basketball players. Although the police report makes it clear that the players' conduct was indefensible, there was no way to prove the men guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

Eckel deserves similar treatment. We urge that he be transferred back to this country to await charges, if any. But in order to be convicted, Eckel should be also be proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

We would also urge that both cases be treated similarly out of court as well.

The basketball players will not face criminal charges, due to the unlikelihood of successful prosecution.

But all of the reports released on this case show clearly that the players' conduct was flagrantly inappropriate.

Though a final decision should be left to the University, it is clear that the players' actions probably violated the ASU Athletic Code of Conduct.

If they did, appropriate action should be taken immediately — even if their actions did not warrant prosecution.

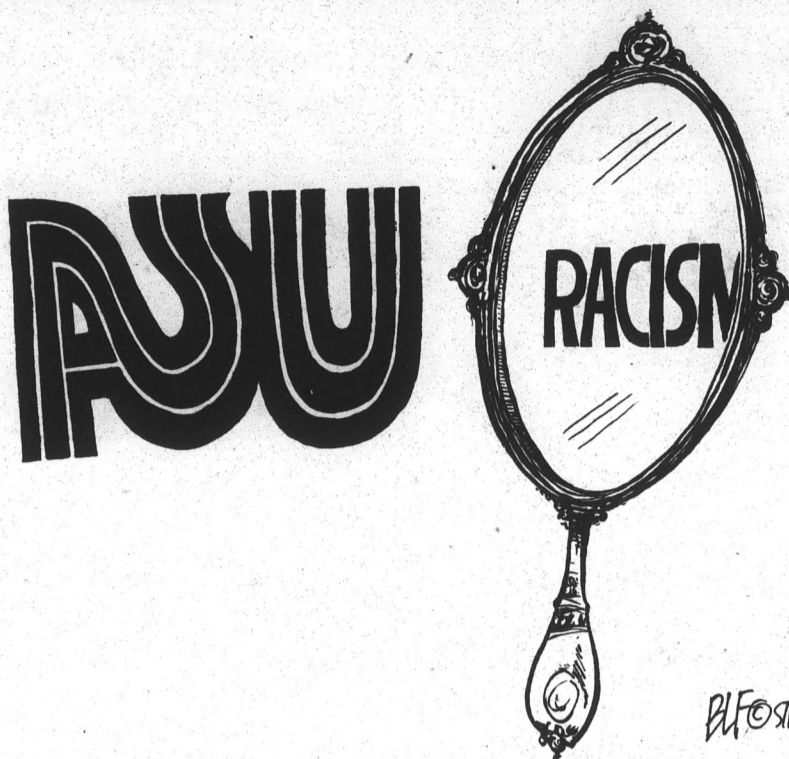

Eckel's case should be handled in the same way.

If reports show that Eckel's actions were out of line with the standards of the IFC, then that organization should have no choice but to expel him from office — even if criminal charges are not filed.

The lack of prosecution should not be regarded as a defense of actions.

Actions don't have to be criminal to be inappropriate.

And, a conviction should not be a prerequisite for punitive action to be taken by an organization.

Race still vies for attention from politicians

Few countries enjoy the level of freedom that citizens of the United States can lay claim to. Other countries are beginning to emulate the example set by North America. The individual's right to vote and take part in electing leaders is a recent change in South Africa. In Russia, the strangle hold on freedom of speech has begun to loosen, allowing Russian citizens and the rest of the world to be better informed about the former Soviet Union. These are examples of the trend toward democracy which was spearheaded by a free and independent America which guarantees a constitutional right to freedom and equality for all of its citizens.

Unfortunately, the American Constitution is flawed — not in its ideals, but in the way that those ideals are practiced. While America boasts about its dedication to democratic ideals, in practice, the United States is still considerably lagging behind what it preaches. The pull between Black and White, and where to find a common ground is for all intents and purposes turning backwards.

Jeff Cohen and Norman Solomon recently wrote a column examining which individuals are in charge of the American political system. They point out that Southern politics, the kind that opposed the civil rights movement, is running the show. Southern politicians occupy top positions in the House and the Senate, heading numerous committees. They may not be spouting the diehard calls for racism that characterized the 1950s and 1960s, but the basics are still there underlining political agendas.

Cohen and Solomon point out that Southern politicians, or Dixiecrats, are strong advocates of returning power to the states. This shift in power has strains reminiscent of the call for "states' rights" during the 1960s.

Pat Buchanan, would-be Republican presidential candidate, would have the American public believe he is the right man to lead this country into the next century. For the staunchly conservative Americans who prefer to keep the reigns of authority within White America, he is the perfect man for the job. Campaigning to a primarily White male audience, Buchanan has welcomed the minority vote, as long as it stays at the back of the bus with the women.

David Duke's run for office in Louisiana should have opened America's eyes to the direction in which it was headed, but the ex-Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan managed only to create a minor stir. He was briefly noted by both supporters and the opposition, but in short order was relegated to the annals of history. His bid for election should have been a warning to the American public that little has changed since the civil rights movement. The contentious issues that were once debated publicly have been swept under the rug instead of being solved.

The South cannot claim all of America's racial bigotry and although the United States has come a long way from its history of slavery, it has only fought half the battle. Affirmative action and minority scholarships will only go so far to equal the playing field. Public belief is the bigger problem. How is America's image as the country of democracy supposed to hold up to the incessant barrage of internal race problems? The racial tension plaguing the country makes a mockery of the Statue of Liberty and everything it stands for as a welcoming beacon.

Racism is a well-defined staple of the American culture and although the United States has come a long way from its history of slavery, it has only fought half the battle. Affirmative action and minority scholarships will only go so far to equal the playing field. Public belief is the bigger problem. How is America's image as the country of democracy supposed to hold up to the incessant barrage of internal race problems? The racial tension plaguing the country makes a mockery of the Statue of Liberty and everything it stands for as a welcoming beacon.

The underlying current of racism is ignored by politicians because most don't rely on the African-American vote for election. There are those who will make the time and effort to hear their opinions and problems, but in the end it makes little difference because the voters who decide whether or not politicians gain office are not concerned with racism unless it affects something voters value.

While it can be argued that this is merely apathy on the part of voters, the bigger problem is politics. Political agendas are not concerned with the way a teacher attempts to fuel a discussion on racism, or with the beating of a Black man on a university campus. To the politicians making the agendas, these are insignificant issues that do not amount to substantial issues in a campaign. These politicians are the same ones who extol the virtues of a free, equal and democratic America. Politicians disregard African-American interests because they are not important to their agendas. Because the American public lets politicians ignore minority concerns as inconsequential, politicians are effectively pulling the wool over America's eyes.

Race relations at ASU microcosm of society

The campus of ASU has been targeted by elements of the White supremacist movement as a breeding ground for the expansion of their doctrine and the continuation of their objectives. ASU is under attack and is now wounded by the weapon of race discrimination.

The Nation of Islam Student Association, along with the rest of the campus community, view these recent physical threats and racial insults directed at members of the Black community at ASU as disturbing to say the least; however, we are not surprised.

Recently, members of the Arab and Muslim community on several college campuses across America have been insulted and harassed in light of the bombings and violence that has taken place in the West Bank and Gaza Strip in what is called the Middle East. This has not been as widely reported — yet it exists.

Affirmative action foes are using everything at their disposal to ensure that their mission is accomplished — and let us not forget the presidential campaign of Pat Buchanan which was well supported and received by many here in Arizona and undoubtedly many at ASU. In this sense, this University is a microcosm of the macrocosm showing that as far as race relations in America, we still have a long, long way to go.

It is for this reason that the Nation of Islam Student Association would like to express support for the Students Against Discrimination led by Dondrell Swanson and Christina Bailey. They have expressed that they would like our support, and we gladly lend it, for we, too, are against discrimination based on religion, color, sex, class or ideology.

There is a type of discrimination that we are in favor of and it is explained in the Holy Qur'an — the book of scripture of the Muslims — Surah 25 entitled Al-Furqan. It speaks of the discrimination between truth and falsehood, right and wrong, good and evil, righteousness and wickedness. This is the only type of discrimination we should participate in.

Seeking to harm or kill those who have different beliefs or look different from you is reprehensible. Religious persecution, political persecution, sexual discrimination, racial discrimination — those are the evils of the society in which we live that must be eliminated if we are to ever live in a society based on the principles of freedom, justice and equality.

The administration of ASU should be commended for their stance against racism and discrimination with the formation of the Campus Environment Team and the newly formed Task Force — however, approaching the problem from the position that racial tension is increasing — as if it never existed on the campus previously is terribly naive.

Thank you for reading these words and may God bless every one of us to participate — in our own way — in healing the wounds of racism.

There is more to a person than just skin color

When I first became a student at ASU, I was under the impression that college was supposed to be an exciting, advantageous opportunity. Now, I have become sincerely skeptical of this outlook.

In my two years at ASU, I have been exposed to more hatred and ignorance than imaginable. I never thought that in order to receive a quality education I would have to battle the individuals who provide it. It is absolutely ridiculous, and (to be completely frank) a damn shame to attend a division one university which does not ensure that a sufficient and effective balance of cultural awareness and sensitivity be obtained among students on campus.

When an individual has to deviate from their daily routine because of death threats on their life, there is a serious problem. What is it going to take for people to realize that racial tension on this campus is at its peak? Something needs to be implemented now before a life is lost because of the nonchalant manner in which the situation is being addressed.

I'm not taking away credit from individuals who are honestly trying to help control the situation. I am addressing individuals who have power and are not applying it effectively.

These are the people who need to put more effort in trying to assure individuals who come to this campus that it is an institution of higher education and not a comfort zone for ignorance.

The time is now.

We all need to open our eyes and see that life is not about stepping on others to reach the top, but about helping each other and helping ourselves do what is right.

Once people are able to understand that there is more to a person than just skin color, maybe we can begin to look toward the future and see a brighter light.

Student leaders need to step up, be leaders

In response to the current climate of racial hostility at ASU, it is time for some changes and some action to make those changes happen. In order for change to occur some student leaders needed to step up and be leaders. One group of students has stepped up trying to make things happen.

The Students Against Discrimination have proven to be an organization that is serious about catalyzing change. The recent events that have occurred on our campus are not issues that solely affect the African-American community. They are issues that affect the entire ASU community and the Phoenix metropolitan area. SAD has recognized this and is working to help everyone else understand it.

The Brothers of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc. not only support the efforts of SAD in spirit but also with our physical presence. If we are to recognize the cross-cultural effects of discrimination, we need to work together to come up with solutions. SAD is currently a group of unified students from several different communities — gay, lesbian, Chicano/Chicana, White, Black, Native American and many others. Now SAD can use your support.

We encourage other organizations that care about their community (ASU) to support the efforts of SAD and get involved with assisting them. They are working hard to encourage productive changes for us all. Write letters, go to meetings and encourage others to get on board with the Students Against Discrimination.

Unite against discrimination

A news story aired recently on National Public Radio suggested that our society may be even more "racially torn" now than it was during the civil rights movement 30 years ago. Closer to home, incidents of racial violence, vandalism, harassment and offense on this campus this year have threatened to strain our community bonds to the breaking point.

In the face of these incidents and reports of sexual assaults and homophobic harassment, many people of goodwill are asking how they can get beyond dialogue, roll up their sleeves and do something about the environment on campus. After all, rules, regulations and administrative programs can accomplish only so much. At some point, individuals must shoulder the responsibility of healing wounds, showing solidarity with those who have been victimized by harassment, and working to prevent further degradation of the environment.

As a first step, those interested in getting involved should make every effort to attend campus rallies scheduled for the next few weeks. Each has a distinct purpose of education and commitment to change and progress.

First is a "Unity Rally '96" sponsored by Students Against Discrimination, today at 11 a.m. in front of the Memorial Union fountain. If you have not experienced discrimination on campus, if you have been sheltered from the sting of discriminatory harassment and offense, then you should come to this rally and bring your similarly situated friends. The first step in addressing the problems on campus is to understand their nature, to better appreciate the perspective of those most affected by them. I'm guessing that Thursday's rally will provide that education.

Then, on April 2 from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. on West Hall Lawn, bring your ideas and sense of commitment to a rally sponsored by the Campus Interfaith Council and other campus groups, entitled "Community Response to Intergroup Conflict and Tension." All interested faculty, staff, students and guests from the community are invited to express their opposition against discrimination, to demonstrate that harassment of an individual is an affront to the entire community and to show solidarity in a commitment to take action to improve campus life. Speakers will provide specific information about the proposed programs in which individuals can participate, even as we celebrate common values around which we can unify.

Finally, for those inclined toward the power of prayer and meditation, graduate student Peter Lima is organizing a prayer and meditation session at Danforth Chapel on April 6 from noon to 2 p.m.

As members of a diverse campus community, we have reacted to incidents partly on the basis of different perspectives shaped by unique experiences, and we have occasionally disagreed on the specific solution to be applied to a problem. But we can unite on some fundamental values and goals regarding making ASU a safe haven for all to work, live and study. Even as we work through our differences, let us demonstrate our solidarity on essential goals.

Act now. Find out how you can participate in improving campus relations. You can start by attending one or more of the rallies and working to re-establish our community bonds.

Charles Calleros is chair of the Campus Environment Team.

ASASU senate race wide open

BY TIM BAXTER
STATE PRESS

Although the race for Associated Students of ASU president is hotly contested, almost all of the senate seats are wide open.

"Right now there are only two competitive races — everything else basically has one or two seats open," said Elections Coordinator Alex Shivers.

Only the business and liberal arts seats are contested.

The Honors College has two people running for two seats. Out of the nine remaining colleges, three have a single candidate running and six have no candidates at all, providing a golden opportunity for write-in candidates.

"I've already had a ton of inquiries," Shivers said. "In fact, the young Democrats have already contacted me about what it would take to get someone on."

The deadline for write-in candidates is Friday, March 29. Potential write-in candidates need to fill out a form at the ASASU offices on the third floor of the Memorial Union. ASASU will check to make sure the applicant meets minimum requirements to hold the office. Collecting signatures is not necessary.

"If there's not too many write-in candidates and they do even a little campaigning among their friends, they should have no trouble getting in," Shivers said.

"It's definitely a good opportunity to get involved with a low degree of work, and then you can also say you were elected, which gives you more credibility even if it was just by five or six votes," he added.

Clinton, Dole pledge budget cooperation

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a delicate dance of rivals, President Clinton agreed Wednesday to work with Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole and other lawmakers to pass several important bills while combat is deferred on a balanced budget.

"We laid out our priorities. The president laid out his priorities. And hopefully together we can lay out America's priorities," Dole, the Republican presidential nominee-to-be, said at a news conference after the 70-minute Oval Office meeting.

White House spokesman Mike McCurry said Republicans seemed to want legislation "that would advance the cause of the nation. The president appreciated that."

The meeting was the first since the presidential primaries ratified Dole as the all-but-certain GOP candidate against Clinton this fall. That will put the president and his rival at close quarters over the next several months as they joust over election-year legislation on spending, taxes, welfare, crime and other topics.

While the presidential campaign was not a topic of discussion at the White House meeting, officials said Dole congratulated Clinton for having amassed the delegates to be renominated. Clinton returned the favor, congratulating the Kansas senator on his success in hardfought GOP primaries.

At a news conference afterward, Gingrich said he believed the opportunity for compromise might extend until the political conventions this summer. He said he doubted there would ever be agreement with Clinton on a balanced budget, but he added there was a chance to accomplish "a lot of things ... that are good for the American people."

ASU West eliminates engineering program

By TIMOTHY TAIT
STATE PRESS

Citing dwindling enrollment, ASU West has cut funding for most engineering classes — effectively eliminating the branch campus' engineering program, said an ASU West official.

David Schwalm, vice provost for academic programs at ASU West, said a lack of students forced the University to cut funding.

"We have suspended the teaching of live classes due to a lack of enrollment," he said. "Engineering courses were part of the original plan, but the students and faculty never materialized."

Eight to 10 classes may be eliminated next semester, Schwalm said.

The only ASU West engineering classes that will remain are courses televised from the main campus, unless the College of Engineering and Applied Sciences chooses to pick up the funding.

"It depends on what the budget situation is for us," said

Daniel Jankowski, college of engineering associate dean for academic affairs. "ASU West serves some students, but not many. It is just not cost effective."

Enrollment in the ASU West engineering classes has dropped steadily over the past three years, Schwalm said.

"The enrollment this semester was pretty small," he said. "We only had an average of eight students per class."

Twenty students are needed to financially support a class.

"The enrollment didn't come and we couldn't justify spending the money," Schwalm said. "This was a decision after three years of examination and seeing that (enrollment) hasn't taken off."

Jankowski said the class sizes at the West campus would not be permitted at the Main campus.

Less than 80 students are enrolled in engineering classes on the West campus. Many of these students are Main students.

"The enrollment has always been small," Schwalm said. "Very little of the campus was dedicated to engineering. The loss to students will be very minimal."

Daniel Wilson, a senior lecturer of engineering at ASU West, said the demise of the classes is imminent.

"They are closing a program that was a cornerstone of the West campus," the 10-year ASU West veteran said. "But it has struggled for years."

However, Schwalm said engineering courses may return to ASU West in the future.

"I suspect that if it returns, it will return as a hosted program that would be run by Main," he said. "We will revisit this at some point."

The engineering classes hosted by ASU West were part of the original plan for the branch campus. However, major firms such as Honeywell have dramatically reduced their work force, lowering interest in the West engineering courses, Schwalm said.

"When ASU West was started in the 1980s, Honeywell had maybe 7,000 employees; now they have maybe 700," he said. "Engineering didn't develop in the West Valley — the demand just was not there."

Devils to compete at NCAA Championships

Senior Mollica attempting to win ASU-record 3rd national title in Minneapolis

BY DAN MILLER
STATE PRESS

MINNEAPOLIS — There are only three days left for the sixth-ranked ASU wrestling team to reach its post-season peak.

Today six Sun Devils will be among 330 of the best mat warriors in the country as they converge at the collegiate wrestling's big show — The NCAA Championships.

"We've wrestled the best teams in the country — consistently, not sporadically — throughout the season," said ASU Coach Lee Roy Smith, whose Sun Devils will begin first-round combat at 10 a.m. at the Target Center. "Our schedule is as tough as anyone's. I don't think our wrestlers get intimidated on the road. They deserve to win. They expect to win."

Senior three-time All-America Markus Mollica, the defending NCAA champion at 167 pounds, will be going for an ASU record third national title at the tournament. Mollica, who has been ranked No. 1 in the country since the pre-season, has compiled a team-best 30-2 record this season and is 109-13 in his ASU career.

"It's a different feeling," Mollica said of being at the NCAA's. "It's the biggest tournament. It's the biggest event. It's a feeling of being more focused."

Mollica, who will enter the tourney as ASU's only top seed, became the first wrestler in conference history to win four Pac-10 titles two weeks ago at Cal State-Bakersfield.

He said he hasn't adjusted his preparation for the biggest tournament of his career.

"I'm just trying to focus more on the things that I do well in matches and certain aspects of competition," Mollica said.

In addition to Mollica, senior two-time All-American Steve St. John (134 pounds) represents ASU's strongest shot at making it to Saturday night's finals, Smith said.

"The Sun Devils other entrants are sophomores Matt Suter (158), Aaron Simpson (177) and Shawn Ford (126), and redshirt-freshman Casey Strand (190).

"I'd like to see us end up in the team honors," Smith said, referring to a possible top-four team finish. However, anything can happen and that's what we've emphasized."

ASU placed fourth at last year's NCAA's in Iowa City, Iowa with the same number of wrestlers. The defending-champion Hawkeyes are the pre-tourney favorites to repeat.

However with a few key performances, ASU could legitimately press for top honors. St. John has already beaten the top-ranked wrestler in his weight class this year.

"I just have to realize that the season starts over at the national tournament," said St. John, who beat Iowa's top-ranked Mark Ironside last month.

St. John, who spent over half the year recovering from major knee surgery, has gone 15-3 since January and climbed back to a No. 5 ranking.

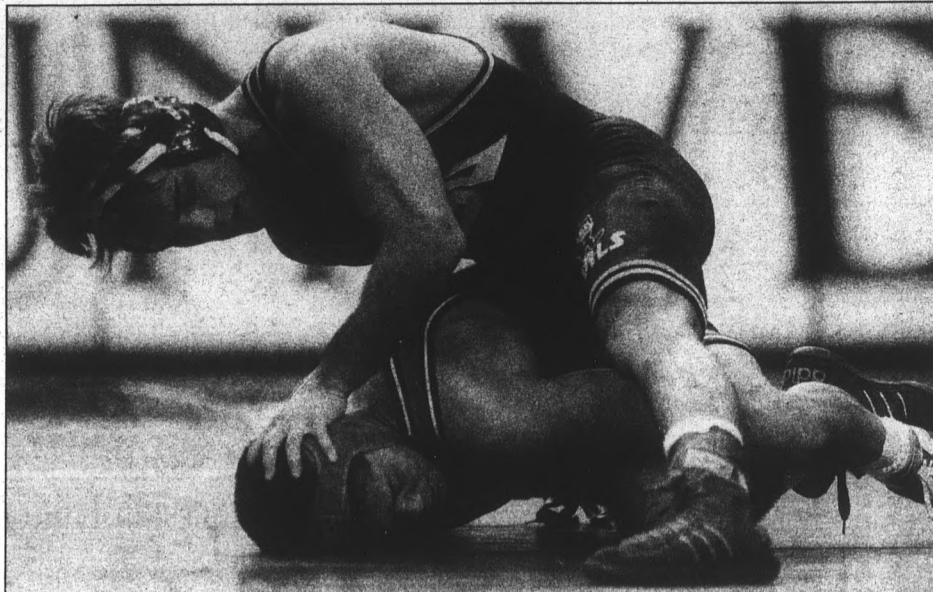

Two Sun Devils will try to channel disappointments at the conference championships into positives at nationals.

Suter, the defending Pac-10 champ, lost a bitter double-time overtime match in the conference final.

"It was kind of a wake-up call for me," said Suter, (28-8), an NCAA qualifier last year who is ranked eighth in the country. "I went into the Pac-10's thinking I was going to win it, not having any thought of losing it. I think the fact that I lost it is just going to make me hungrier all around."

Simpson, who suffered a mild upset in the quarterfinals of the Pac-10's, but wrestled back for third, agreed.

ASU junior All-America Danny Felix (118pounds) won't be wrestling in the Sun Devils final meet — The NCAA Wrestling Championships which start today in Minneapolis.

ASU wrestler forced out of action in Championships

BY DAN MILLER
STATE PRESS

MINNEAPOLIS — ASU junior All-America Danny Felix was forced to withdraw from the NCAA Wrestling Championships Wednesday after failing to make weight.

Felix, who was scheduled to be the fifth seed in the 118-pound bracket when the tournament starts today at the Target Center, was 1/2 pound over just prior to the 5 p.m. weigh-in deadline. Dehydration and cramps prompted the ASU coaching staff's decision.

"Danny struggled with his weight control all year," said ASU coach Lee Roy Smith. "He had a very difficult time (making weight) at the Pac-10's (March 2) and unfortunately it caught up with him. Our staff was monitoring him very closely."

Felix, whose natural weight is about 132, was 1 3/4 pounds over when weigh-ins began at 3 p.m.

He was not available for comment.

Felix (27-8), a three-time Pac-10 champion who is ranked seventh in the country, was on track to earn his second All-America honor (top-eight finish).

He has twice beaten the tournament's No. 1 seed, Mike Menz of Iowa. Their last meeting was in Tempe on Feb. 11.

It would have been Felix's third NCAA appearance in three years after placing seventh in 1995.

The Sun Devils still have six wrestlers vying for honors.

Junior guard may leave men's hoops

BY DUSTIN KRUGEL
STATE PRESS

When ASU basketball coach Bill Frieder landed star recruit Lenny Holly last year, he expected to have his starting point guard for the next two seasons. However, after suffering from several injuries this season, Holly said he might be forced to abandon basketball.

"It's crossed my mind, but I'm 50-50," he said. "I really want to play. Hopefully I can get my situation under control so I can come back. Right now it is still open."

The 6-foot-4 junior guard, who averaged about seven points per game this season, suffered a series of seizures which forced him out of two games and several weeks of practice.

"He had a very tough, frustrating year," Frieder said.

Holly said Frieder has not pressured him into making a quick decision.

"Basically, he just told me it's up to me," Holly said. "If I want to come back, he would have me back. If I don't, he understands why. He understands totally, so that's good on his part."

Frieder said the most important thing for Holly is school.

"Lenny needs to get his education whether he plays basketball or not," Frieder said. "It's in your best interest to stay in school, but Lenny is very frustrated with what happened to him medically this past year. I think it's very up in the year."

"Just because you can't play basketball, you don't throw in the towel academically."

Holly was the Southwest Conference Newcomer of the Year in 1992-93. He averaged 8.8 points, five assists and two boards per game for Texas Tech. Holly helped lead the Red Raiders to the NCAA Tournament in 1993 before transferring to New Mexico Junior College for the 1994-95 season.

Frieder and Holly have not set a timetable on when a final decision will be made on Holly's status.

ASU swimmers visit South America

BY ED ODEVEN
STATE PRESS

The 1996 South American Swimming Championships gave four ASU students a chance to solidify their claim as world-class swimmers.

The international meet, which was held on March 14-18 in Porto Alegre, Brazil, featured the best South American swimmers including ASU's Felipe Delgado, Robert Delgado, Eduardo Piccanini and Francisco Sanchez.

Felipe Delgado and Francisco Sanchez tied for first in the 50-meter freestyle at 23.3 seconds. Sanchez narrowly edged Delgado in the 100 freestyle by five-tenths of a second.

Ex-Sun Devil Piccanini, a three-time All-America selection, won the 200 butterfly in 2:03.5 and finished second in the 100 butterfly in 55.3 seconds.

"Unfortunately, he didn't make the times he needed to make," said ASU assistant coach Brian Jones. "He'll have another shot at it in May (to qualify for the Brazilian Olympic team)."

Robert Delgado posted personal-bests of 55.99 seconds in the 100 butterfly, 2:06 in the 200 butterfly and 1:56 in the 200 freestyle.

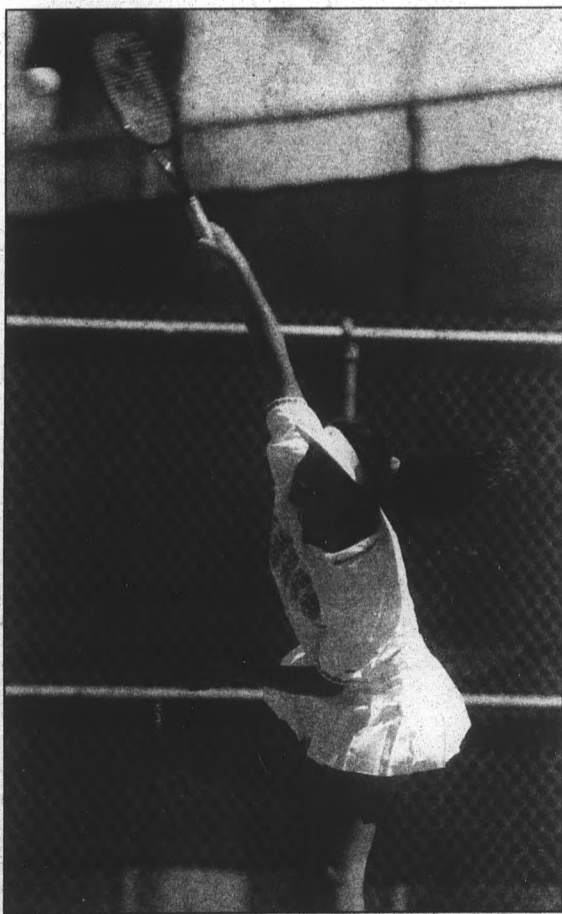

Although the Sun Devil quartet had an impressive showing in Brazil, Coach Ernie Maglischo said he wants his swimmers to peak in the NCAA's which take place March 28-30 in Austin, Texas.

"I was very happy about it," he said. "But my mind is on the NCAA's. That is the acid test for our program."

Maglischo said he was happy with the performance of

Ace!

Tim Hacker/State Press

ASU sophomore No. 2 player Stephanie Lansdrorp served up several aces in her 7-6, 6-2 victory over S. Alabama's Estelle Gevers at the Whiteman Tennis Center Wednesday. The Sun Devils narrowly edged S. Alabama 5-4. Lansdrorp, Katy Propstra, Anna Moll and Torey Pratt all won their singles matches.

"It definitely motivates me," said Simpson, who is also a 1995 NCAA qualifier. "That's been a big factor with how I've been approaching practice all week. But the national tournament has been a goal of mine all year, win or lose. I've wanted to go and hopefully I'll find myself an All-American (top-eight placer)."

Strand and Ford are both making their first appearance at the tourney.

Strand, whose natural weight is 187 and is considered small for his class, still managed to go 17-13 and finish second at the conference meet.

That feat, according to Strand, was no accident.

"I planned it all year," he said of going to the big dance. "I don't think I got lucky by getting there. I'm not just going there to compete. I'm going to be an All-American."

So is Ford, a walk-on, who despite an 18-19 season record, finished third at the Pac-10's.

"I think I will be overlooked," Ford said. "Hopefully I can upset a couple of people. I've been wrestling the best guys all year and I figure I'm right there with them."

his athletes, but worried that competing in Brazil will have a negative affect on them.

"Taking that trip down there will probably detract from what they do in the NCAA's," Maglischo said. "Because they didn't get the chance to train last week and now we've got to get them back in shape a little bit with very little time before the NCAA's."

Felipe Delgado was pleased with the performance another Sun Devil — his brother Robert.

"I feel great," Felipe said, about Robert qualifying for the Olympics. "He finally came out of a slump that he's been in," Felipe said. "He hasn't been doing well lately. He just had a helluva swim."

medals and a big smile.

"I did pretty good," Sanchez said, also earned a spot on Venezuela's 4 x 100 relay team. "I didn't go there to try to swim fast, but to do my best. I just tried to have fun and win a medal for my country."

VIDEO GAMES New in the Memorial Union Recreation Center Area 51 The Truth is in There.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST by Sydney Omarr Thursday, March 21, 1996

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Got it done! Cycle high, judgment and intuition on target. Write it, get it done. send it! You'll be dealing with dynamic, restless people including Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius natives. TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent structure, design, color coordination, music, entertainment. Clandestine arrangement involves Aries, Libra persons. Cooperate in connection with domestic adjustment, residence, marriage. GEMINI (May 21-June 20): What seemed out of reach is now available. Focus on wish fulfillment, fantasies that actually are real. Day of contradictions, you should love every minute of it! Pisces plays role. CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on career, promotion, production, dealings with people who feel they are more important than they actually are—organize priorities, meet and beat deadline. Relationship intense! LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What appeared dead and buried actually is alive and kicking. Be aware, pounce on opportunity, take initiative, display showmanship. Aries native declares, "You are showing the way and I will follow!" VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Study Aries, Leo messages. Imprint style, stress originality, courage, ability to love and be loved. Complicated financial transaction requires additional review. New approach necessary! LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Attention revolves around personal possessions, basic issues, sale or purchase of property, marital status. Moon position highlights public relations, legal rights, principles. Leo involved. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be open-minded, not glib. One who claims, "I can help you" is not really capable of helping himself. Don't fall for sob story. Sagittarian becomes valuable ally, helps achieve goal. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Check Scorpio message. Love relationship heats up, attracts too much attention. Discretion is better part of valor—don't flaunt authority. Taurus friend needs your help! CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis on lectures, interviews, gain via words, verbal and written. Aggressive relative insists, "You must accompany me on this trip!" Be analytical, avoid wild-goose-chase. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Color coordination, music figure prominently, domestic adjustment might involve change of status. Break relationship with one who takes you for granted, is mostly selfish. PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): You'll be consumed by ambition to earn more money. Ambition could be fulfilled! Perfect techniques, contact individual who once promised, "Call me any time for a favor." Virgo involved. IF MARCH 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are capable of loving more than one person simultaneously—You read more than one book at a time, are versatile, charming, super sensitive concerning body image. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play leading roles in your life. During April, you could be involved in big business deal. Organize priorities, marital status involved, relationship serious. Travel indicated for May. You might get better distribution for product in foreign land.
