University tuition hiked again

Tim Hacker/State Press

President Lattie Coor speaks Thursday afternoon at an Arizona Board of Regents meeting about the tuition increases.

BY RAY STERN
STATE PRESS

Tuition will climb for the 1996-97 school year by 3 percent for resident students and 5 percent for non-residents, the Arizona Board of Regents decided Thursday.

The board also approved raising the Arizona Financial Aid Trust fee, which sets aside money for needy in-state students, from $16 per student to $19.

For ASU and the UofA, the increase amounts to $61 over the current year's tuition for residents, and $399 for non-residents. NAU's yearly non-resident tuition will go up by $355.

ASU President Lattie Coor said he considered the increases appropriate because they are close to the Consumer Price Index (CPI) rate of increase.

"The strength of the case was made by ASA (Arizona Students' Association) and the voices we heard at last week's tuition hearing," he said. "Except by unusual circumstances we should ... stay near CPI."

Regent Eddie Basha also said he recommended no more than a 3 percent in-state increase.

"We have an obligation to taxpayers and citizens to provide education as nearly as free as possible," he said.

"It's a good day for in-state," said ASA Director Paul Allvin. "It was kept for the third year in a row at inflation (rates)."

Advocates of an even higher tuition increase cited concern that universities' needs for increased services would not be met and too small of an increase now might result in a huge one later.

"I think 3 percent is too low," said Regent Rudy Campbell. "The rest of the students will be paying 8 to 9 percent (in the future) if we go to 3 (percent) now."

Happy hours over at Dash Inn

BY GARIN GROFF
STATE PRESS

The place once known for "Dash bashes" is having its last.

After 30 years as ASU's most enduring restaurant/bar, the hangout Greeks have considered their second home is closing its doors for good Saturday.

"It's unfortunate that a 30-year tradition will come to an end, but all good things must come to an end," said Dash Inn co-owner Steve Tseffos, who sold the license to the ASU-owned property.

Those who frequented the Dash, 731 E. Apache Blvd., said they will remember it as a place to hang out with friends.

"I have a lot of memories from there," said Heather Casali, a junior Spanish major. "I've met a majority of my friends there."

Becky Sweet, a sophomore theater major and a Dash regular for two years, said the Dash was like a big family.

"You know that you can always find a friend there."

Though she and her friends would go to other bars, they would always come back to the Dash at the end of a night to chat about their day.

Sweet, who said she's brought her parents to the Dash, is saddened that her children won't be able to do the same.

"I don't know what we're going to do without it. Maybe we're going to go to bed early," she said.

Tseffos, the former director of communications for Arizona Attorney General Grant Woods, said he sold the bar in part because he discovered running a restaurant/bar is not his calling. Also, negative publicity he attributes to his former position also hurt, he said.

"The fact that we were overly scrutinized made it difficult to operate like any other bar and restaurant around ASU," Tseffos said.

Running a bar like the Dash is becoming more difficult because of increased competition from corporate-owned bars like Fat Tuesday and Hooters, he added.

Tseffos took control of the Dash in October 1994, remodeling it after it had been closed for several months.

While bars and nightclubs around ASU changed every few years, the Dash endured.

"I think it says that people want continuity," Tseffos said.

Tim Hacker/State Press

Dash Inn manager Steve LeVine recalls memories of placing dollar bills on the walls of the restaurant/bar, which will hold the "Last Dash Bash" tonight before closing permanently Saturday.

The property's future is uncertain. The new owners, who own restaurant/bars in Santa Monica, Calif., haven't announced plans.

The lease on the property runs out in June 1998, making it unlikely the new owners would make substantial improvements to the property, said Jennus Burton, associate vice president for Administrative Services.

Border crossing: Eckel to come home

BY BRIAN ANDERSON
STATE PRESS

Interfraternity Council President Mike Eckel is scheduled to be released in 10 days from a Mexicali, Baja California city jail after a judge failed to find sufficient evidence to continue holding him on a rape charge.

Eckel, who spent the last 41 days in a Mexicali jail, is in good health and is excited to return home, his mother, Carolyn Eckel, said in a telephone interview from her Philadelphia home.

"He is (in jail), but we are expecting him to be released shortly — we've gotten the word," she said.

"We've been assured by (his) lawyers that things are moving along in that direction. But I'm not going to jump up and down until he's across the border."

Eckel, a senior marketing major, was arrested and charged with raping a 19-year-old ASU student during a March spring break trip to the Gulf of California coastal town of San Felipe.

Carolyn said Eckel is hoping to recoup some of the semester he has missed, adding that his release will finally allow for closure.

"This has been a nightmare, a real nightmare, for all of us," she said.

American Consul Jon Coe said he had not heard anything new about Eckel's case because the Consulate visits American inmates only once every three months.

Carolyn said she is pleased with the outcome and the support her family has received from several of Eckel's friends.

"We are sticking by our son entirely," she said.

This has been a nightmare, a real nightmare, for all of us.

— Carolyn Eckel,
Mike Eckel's mother

Goodbye ...

This is the last State Press for the spring semester. The newspaper staffers can finally take off the plastic wrap from their textbooks and start attending classes.

But while most State Press staffers are only finishing up the semester, others are completing their academic careers at ASU. It is with pride and a bittersweet joy that we propel the following seniors out into the real world:

had hoped for a 5 percent in-state increase.

"Our university has suffered immense financial strains, and we have not been able to repair the damage," he said.

Discussion on a possible tuition indexing plan, which would cause tuition to rise at a set level each year, was stalled when worries arose over methods in calculating the costs of educating each student. The regents decided to form a small study group in May that will eventually report back with ideas on indexing.

In other action, the board also approved guidelines for the 1998 to 2002 Capital Improvement Plan. The five-year plan details upcoming building renewal, Americans with Disabilities Act compliance and other construction projects. Last week the Legislature approved the primary funding source of the plan — $245 million in bond sales. However, Gov. Fife Symington has not yet signed the bill into law.

Dash Inn

The University eventually plans to develop the Dash property into residence halls or a parking lot, depending on demand and funding, he added.

The most recent tradition that will end Saturday is taping personally-decorated dollar bills to the walls.

Dash manager Steve LeVine said the practice started last summer when someone with the last name Italia asked if he could put a dollar bill on the wall by the cash register. Bills quickly went up around that bill and cover several walls around the bar.

"I put every one of them up," LeVine said, pointing to a few of the 739 bills while telling the stories behind some of them. Pausing at a bill marked "WEBER," LeVine laughed, recalling the story of the student behind the bill, former Associated Students of ASU President Chris Weber.

Weber, who visited the Dash occasionally, was involved in a well-known brawl at the Dash last fall. He allegedly punched a woman there, leading to a flurry of controversy and his ouster in a recall election this spring.

Despite the attention that fight received, the Dash has an average record in terms of police calls for a college bar, according to Tempe police.

However, the Dash did have two liquor law adjudications against them under Tseffos' ownership, said Myron Musfeldt, chief of investigations for the Arizona Department of Liquor Licenses and Control.

The violations were for selling alcohol to minors and resulted in a fine of $1,500 and another of $2,500.

Before bidding its final farewell, the Dash will hold its "Last Dash Bash" tonight for patrons and employees.

"I'm sure that we'll all find a new place to go, but not like the Dash," Sweet said. "It's very irreplaceable."

Peacekeepers mediate Muslim-Serb clash

CAPARDE, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — American peacekeepers broke up a clash Thursday between Bosnian Muslims returning to their former homes and Serbs now holding the settlement. It was their second such intervention in a week.

Tempers were high, but a U.S. commander defused the situation, walking alongside his armored column through a hail of Muslim obscenities and gently separating the two groups without his troops firing a shot.

The latest incident occurred as some 300 Muslims armed with bottles and sticks tried to return to war-damaged Caparde, a village 20 miles southeast of Tuzla that is now held by the Serbs. The Muslims fought briefly with as many as 100 Serbs carrying sticks and chains.

The only reported injury was to a Bosnian, believed to be a Muslim. Two concussion grenades were thrown and a few shots were fired by the opposing factions.

The dispute raised concerns that U.S. and other foreign troops in the NATO-led peace force are being manipulated by the opposing factions to do more than patrol zones of separation and disarm armies.

Senior American military officers, speaking on condition of anonymity, blamed Bosnia's Muslim-led government, saying it is sparking conflict and trying to build world opinion against the Serbs.

To back up his diplomacy, Lt. Col. Tony Harriman of Delta, Colo., commander of the 1st Squadron, 4th Cavalry, called in a half-dozen Bradley fighting vehicles, a tank, several Humvees and an armed observation helicopter

Thursday to separate the two groups. But his troops, numbering less than 50, did not fire a shot.

"This looked like a confrontation-in-the-making, so I intervened," said the soft-spoken Harriman.

Harriman said both groups were in violation of the Dayton peace agreement signed last December — the Muslims for having political leaders with them as they tried to cross into Serb-held territory, and both sides for being armed.

"I talked to the political leaders and police on both sides and I said, 'You got two groups in violation of the accord and I expect you to live up to your obligation,'" Harriman said.

Harriman enlisted the mayor of Kalesija, a town a few miles away, where the Muslims had assembled. Harriman set up a loudspeaker for the mayor, who urged his people to turn back.

"We were trying to keep everybody moving by keeping the momentum up, keeping people talking and moving along," said Harriman. "Actually we did it by walking with them."

As he walked though, old women wearing bandannas and men screamed obscenities, accusing the Americans of colluding with the Serbs and threatening to return with weapons to confront those now occupying their old homes.

It was the second run-in between Bosnian Muslims and Serbs this week.

On Sunday, U.S. military helicopters patrolling central Bosnia flew low over a clash between Muslims trying to return to their homes and Serbs defending their new turf. The choppers kicked up so much dust and wind that the mob dispersed.

Two Muslim women sit on the ground as a U.S. helicopter patrols the area around the Bosnian village of Caparde, about 40 kilometers east of Tuzla. About 250 Muslims entered the Serb-controlled village and were met by about 100 Serbs wielding sticks and chains. U.S. IFOR troops came to the scene to prevent the conflict from escalating.

Labor party ceases opposition to Palestinian state

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Swiftly answering the PLO's decision to end its call for Israel's destruction, the governing Labor Party on Thursday abandoned its long-standing opposition to a Palestinian state.

PERES

With its landmark vote, Labor discarded what was once a bedrock tenet and became the first major party in Israel to at least tacitly accept the idea of an independent Palestinian state, once unthinkable for most Israelis.

The move came a day after the Palestine National Council annulled clauses in the PLO charter that called for Israel's destruction.

The momentous exchange of gestures is expected to bolster the Israeli-Palestinian peace process, frozen since a series of suicide bombings by Islamic militants in February and March killed 59 victims in Israel.

Yet Israel still faces the threat of attack from Muslim extremist groups such as Hezbollah, Islamic Jihad and Hamas.

Prime Minister Shimon Peres told about 1,000 Labor Party delegates who had assembled in Tel Aviv to vote on the new platform that it would help him "achieve a comprehensive peace in the Middle East" if he is re-elected in May 29 balloting.

The new platform also abandons another major Labor Party position: that the Golan Heights, captured from Syria in 1967 and annexed in 1981, are essential to Israel's security. It says only that the strategic plateau, which Syria wants in exchange for peace, "has political importance."

Israel-Syria peace talks have been snagged for years over the Golan Heights issue.

Peres said the new platform "gives the government a free hand to negotiate."

While Peres did not explicitly say he now accepted the Palestinians' goal of statehood, he stressed that the current autonomy arrangement in the West Bank and Gaza "cannot remain."

"With the Palestinians, we wish to arrive not at yet another interim settlement but a permanent settlement, a fundamental solution ... total elimination of the conflict between us and the Palestinian people," he said emphatically.

In Gaza, Yasser Arafat praised Labor's move. "It will help a lot in the negotiations for the final status," the PLO chief said.

Talks on a final Israel-Palestinian settlement, to begin May 4, are to address the most difficult issues dividing the sides: the PLO's demand for statehood, final borders, and the future of Israeli settlements and the disputed holy city of Jerusalem.

Labor's platform, approved overwhelmingly in a show of hands, does maintain some hard-line points on those issues: It says that Jerusalem, including the eastern sector claimed by the Palestinians, will remain united under Israeli rule; it calls for eventual Israeli sovereignty over parts of the West Bank such as the Jordan Valley; and while promising no new settlements will be built, it pledges most settlers will remain under Israeli rule.

In Israel, Labor's vote was widely seen as a turn towards accepting the idea of Palestinian independence in the West Bank and Gaza, which Israel seized from Jordan and Egypt, respectively, in 1967.

Columnist Yosef Lapid wrote in the Maariv daily that "Peres' vision of a New Middle East is taking shape ... Peres and Yasser Arafat agree on the establishment of a Palestinian state that recognizes the right of Israel to exist."

President refuses to name rebel general to Cabinet

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — Bowing to intense public and political pressure, President Juan Carlos Wasmosy said Thursday that he would not name a rebellious general to the post of defense minister.

Wasmosy said he had "decided to listen to the voice" of the people and would find someone other than Gen. Lino Oviedo to fill the job.

There was no immediate reaction from the general, who retired Tuesday in preparation for the cabinet appointment. Oviedo was offered the post in exchange for a promise to step down as army commander.

Wasmosy was forced into the face-saving deal when Oviedo refused his orders Monday to resign. The president accuses the general of violating a constitutional ban on military participation in politics.

The general, who hopes to succeed Wasmosy in 1998, holed up in barracks, beginning a 27-hour standoff that sparked fears of a military coup and an end to Paraguay's fledgling 9-year-old democracy.

While the job deal defused that standoff, it provoked a wave of public and political protest. Thousands of students staged street demonstrations and opposition political groups called for Wasmosy's impeachment.

"The conflict has been completely overcome," Wasmosy declared Thursday in his brief speech from the presidential palace. "Let's go back to work for the greatness of the country."

A crowd of some 3,000 young protesters outside the palace broke into cheers. A nearby group of Oviedo supporters threw rocks and firecrackers at them. At least two people were reported injured.

The U.S. Embassy issued a statement praising Wasmosy's decision.

"This is yet another demonstration of the strength of Paraguayan democracy," the embassy said.

STATE PRESS Boos & Bravos

BOO — To the Arizona Board of Regents for raising tuition ... again. In-state students will see a 3-percent increase, which will cost students about $30 more a semester. Out-of-state students are receiving a 5-percent increase, amounting to about $200 more a semester.

It probably sounded like a drug-induced suggestion when we hinted to the regents that we'd appreciate no increase. But we were serious.

BRAVO — To the Arizona Board of Regents for not raising in-state tuition by more than 3 percent or out-of-state tuition by more than 5 percent. Sure, we're going to have to learn to enjoy eating Ramen noodles for breakfast, lunch and dinner. But at least we won't have to sell off all of our clothing, vehicles and family pets to finance our education.

BOO — To the Maricopa County Public Health Department for no longer providing anonymous HIV testing at ASU. The reason? Because ASU is apparently a "low-risk" area. From now on, students who want the testing will have their names recorded, instead of being just a number. Regardless of whether ASU is not as high-risk as other areas, people's lives are still in jeopardy. It's pathetic when that fact gets lost in the bureaucratic shuffle.

BRAVO — To the 500 ASU students who spent Saturday rebuilding homes for low-income, disabled or elderly people. This Christmas in April program offers proof that the ASU community is not just a bunch of party animals.

BOO — To final exams. Somebody has to say it. How many people ever retain the information they use on these tests? Sure, final exams determine our final grades, but it is exasperating when a semester's worth of hard work is wiped out because of a lackluster showing on the final. Not to mention the inevitable collapse from lack of sleep and too much caffeine is a drag.

BOO — To the little twit who cursed at people that refused to answer questions for a KAET-TV (Channel 8) poll. Sure, nobody likes rejection, but this was rude and unprofessional. No wonder people don't like doing phone surveys.

BRAVO — To all of the seniors about to blow this joint. Some of you are getting out of here after only four years. Some have taken longer. A lot longer. But the important thing is you're done. No more 7:40 a.m. classes, In-Touch registration or long lines at the bookstore. You'll have to forgive the rest of us who are so envious we can hardly function.

BOO — To the heat. It was nice not having to peel the first layer of skin from our legs after sitting in the car for only five minutes.

BRAVO — To all of the secretaries on campus who work behind the scenes to keep their bosses and the students sane.

Phoenix legislators ignore homeless plight

I have always known that there was an order of power. The first seat is held by God, the second, by Jerry Colangelo. I have never questioned the order, just watched in amazement as it functioned so well.

Now a new group of individuals are on a quest for that sacred third position. They have the power, the savvy and the political clout to get there. They are the Phoenix City Council, and they want to be No. 3. In their eyes, one thing is standing in their way.

A homeless man selling a Grapevine.

I know that it may sound silly to infer that the council members care about any homeless guy selling a Grapevine. But they care. They care so much that they want to help him load up his shopping cart and leave town.

These are the same people who champion Phoenix as the metropolis of the future. They love the huge skyscrapers and new baseball parks. They look at the downtown area as an expanding business and cultural mecca. They reap the benefits of men like Jerry Colangelo, who has brought millions of dollars into the pockets of professional athletes who just happen to play here in Phoenix.

They see the flourishing job market and increasing national attention as good for the city. And it is. What they don't realize is that with the money, the wealth and the glamour, come the downsides of urban culture.

The homeless and the poor just haven't been able to benefit from a new stadium, art exhibit or corporate buyout. They find cheap housing, centers for blood and plasma donation and free medical care through ACCHS. They aren't here because Phoenix offers them great opportunity, they are here because with the good that growth brings to Phoenix, it also brings the poverty that is commonplace in any large city.

The Phoenix City Council members know that there is a homeless problem in Phoenix. They have known for a long time. They want to solve the problem, like the rest of us. Instead of trying to help these people find an alternative to the streets, they are just trying to hide them. Any way they can.

MICHELLE CARSON
Columnist

They hate the thought of wealthy men and women on their way to a Suns' game having to pass by such a display of poverty and injustice. They want those people to look out the windows of their Lexus and see nothing more than palm trees and sports bars.

The council is enacting a proposal which would ask people not to give money to "vagrants." It would allow police officers to kindly escort these unsightly citizens off the sidewalk and out of the mind of council members. If the same person was seen selling a newspaper or holding a sign, they could be charged with a misdemeanor offense.

The people who support such a proposal are the same ones who champion people who help themselves. They call for a return to independence and self-sufficiency. But if you're homeless, you would find that these people are also the ones least likely to give you a job or a decent place to stay while you are getting back on your feet.

The people who stand on the streets of Phoenix are not attractive. They do make people feel uncomfortable and unsafe. But they don't feel that way because they have a problem with the homeless.

They feel that way because they have a problem with themselves. When you see someone who desperately needs shelter and food, and you just left your mansion on Camelback mountain, it can cloud your conscience. Now, the last thing Phoenix would want to do is make the rich think that they may be doing something wrong.

These are the people who are fueling Phoenix's birth. They are paying for the Suns' tickets and spending tons at the Biltmore. We love these people. The last thing we want to do is make them feel uncomfortable. So we'll do the honorable thing, we'll kiss their ass.

We'll build new malls for them to shop in and buy new teams for them to watch. Most importantly, we'll surround them with a city without any vagrancy. A city full of clean, not controversial culture. They can go to sleep at night knowing that the indigent and the vagrant are far away from Phoenix.

And while the council members watch the money roll into the downtown area they will know that they have satisfied the No. 2.

But I am reassured, knowing that above all, they must answer to the No. 1.

Sound bytes of columns that didn't make grade

Bye ASU! Bye, bye!
Oh, wait! I'm a freshman.

Seeing as how this is the final issue of this semester and I have the honor to send this puppy off on a final note, I will just bore you with the quasi-left-wing-yet-right-minded ideals of how society should be run.

A quick run through of all the topics in my "In Development" file that never panned out to 650-850 words (or just weren't that interesting anyway):

• That Friends show. They're in their 20s. They're single. They have a pet monkey.

And you can't buy a magazine without seeing their smarmy, smiling faces and polished, mooning butts.

The world seems to be captivated by this wholesome sex-tet since the show has been the favorite at the hype machine.

Admittedly, I can believe Friends is a popular TV show, but is it that good?

I decided to give it a go.

(For those of you who don't watch the show, pay close attention. This is where I drag the show through the gutter.)

I recognize Matthew Perry and Jennifer Aniston from earlier work on other, quaffable TV shows (Growing Pains and Ferris Bueller, respectively).

What is worse is that this show has spawned more twentysomething, Generation X wannabe comedies (Partners, The Single Guy).

I know that I only watched one episode and that I really didn't give it a chance, but I know I would become desensitized. Anyway, I made my personal list of awards for this show since it is clear that it will never be nominated for another Emmy.

Best outfit: the monkey (sorry, Matt LeBlanc).

Best hair: the monkey (sorry, Jennifer Aniston).

Best kiss: the monkey (sorry, David Schwimmer).

Best actor: the monkey (sorry, you).

Apparently not since people are still forking over their money at the pump. Now is as good a time as any to start carpooling.

• Courses in Star Trek. I know it sounds weird, but I think it takes some looking into.

The philosophy department at Elon College in North Carolina, has a course called Philosophy in Star Trek, which relates episodes to philosophers such as Plato, Descartes and John Locke. It explores abortion, whether androids should get equal rights, ethics and the meaning of life.

Political-science majors could use the show as a reference. Using readings in modern American political history, students could consider the political issues Star Trek raises, including gender and race relations, foreign policy, personal autonomy and privacy. Trinity College in Connecticut is already doing this.

The Foreign Language Department could introduced a Klingonese class. After all, there's one in Pennsylvania, which already translated the Bible into the language of the space dwellers.

Too bad there won't be any Star Trek courses here at ASU.

• Trust no one. Central Intelligence Agency director John Deutch announced in February that the CIA can dispatch agents in the guise of journalists.

Could it be that they're posing as tourists became too obvious?

A new report by the private Council on Foreign Relations about changes in intelligence-gathering community recommends "a fresh look be taken at limits on the use of non-official 'covers' for hiding and protecting those involved in clandestine activities."

Deutch wouldn't say whether the practice is in use today. And if anyone would know, he would. Only the director has the authority to override regulations, in force since 1977, that forbid assigning spies disguised as reporters or of hiring actual journalists to gain information.

A CNN and USA Today poll found that nearly four out of 10 Americans believe the federal government threatens their freedom, reported an article in the San Diego Union-Tribune. "Only one out of 10 has faith in the government, another poll found."

No wonder. Posing as journalists, the government could withhold factual information and give out misinformation.

Gee, just think of what that does to the reputation of the media.

Best of fortune to those graduating. (Take me with you!)

As homeless population grows so does apathy for their welfare

Several days ago I stopped at the McDonald's at Rural and Apache to pick up some drive-thru dinner for the ride home.

"Can I take your order?" said the little box beside the garishly-colored weather-resistant menu.

I looked at the less-than-healthy offerings, quickly checked the status of my wallet and answered: "Two plain cheeseburgers and a small coke."

"That'll be $2.79. Please pay at the first window."

Sliding my car into gear, I pulled up behind the car ahead of me. While I sat there, hoping that my order would come out right, I started looking around. I saw what everyone sees when they go through the drive-thru. The guy in front of me was primping and preening in his rearview mirror. Behind me, a couple sat in silence as they waited with the rest of us. Across the parking lot, a black sedan pulled in and a young couple got out, clearly surprised with the heat wave that hit them as they emerged from the air-conditioned recesses of their car. A couple of guys went speeding down the sidewalk on their roller blades. And then I saw another person.

In the corner, a man was digging for his dinner in the McDonald's trash can. His beard and hair were overgrown and unkempt, and he wore a combination of hand-me-downs and rags. He was covered in a layer of dirt, dirt which only served to darken his darkly-tanned face. I watched with a mixture of disgust and pity as he rummaged through the old wrappers to pull out pieces of Egg McMuffins and the remainder of this morning's hash browns.

"Hey, buddy!"

The manager came out and told him to get going before he called the police. The man with the garbage didn't say a word. He just picked up his meal in his hands and started walking toward the line of cars carrying people waiting for their properly-wrapped meals. He stared at us as he walked by. Before I looked away, I looked in his face for a hint of who he once was. All I saw was a dirty man cradling someone else's leftovers.

The homeless are a growing epidemic in North America. Every day, more and more people converge on our cities' streets, rummaging through our trash and pleading for our charity. They come from all walks of life, each with a different reason. Bankruptcy, alcoholism, drug abuse, mental illness — each one has a heartbreaking story to tell to anyone who will listen. Unfortunately, their only audience is the people sleeping next to them in the alleys. People who have stories of their own to tell.

We don't have time for them, other than to complain. We would rather they kept to themselves and stayed out of our nice, clean neighborhoods. Last fall when Tempe was gearing up for the Super Bowl, there were concerns that the homeless would hurt the city's image. To keep them from sleeping in the parks at night, city officials had the sprinklers turned on at nights. We ignore their signs as we wait for the traffic lights to turn green, and we quicken our pace if we see them moving toward us. We complain about their smell, and we worry that they will rob us.

There are shelters and soup kitchens for the homeless, but they aren't enough. These facilities do not have the space or the resources to cope with the number of people on the streets. We wonder why they do not go to shelters, but we don't ensure that the shelters are available. Our only concern is to get them out of sight and out of mind.

One night several years ago, I came home from a night class and stumbled across a man sleeping underneath my bedroom window. My roommate called the police, but he was gone when they arrived. Ten minutes after the policemen left, they phoned to say that the transient had been arrested. He was a "regular" and despite escaping from the local mental institution, was relatively harmless. I didn't care what he was — I didn't want him sleeping under my bedroom window.

I am sure that the man was as scared as I was, but my only concern was myself. I didn't take the time to ask what would happen to the man who had done nothing more than take some warmth from the light shining through my window. Likewise, I cared little about the fate of the man behind the McDonald's. Just like everyone else, I had other concerns.

Tonight, I will sit in front of my television surrounded by the comforts of home. Later, I will wash my face with soap and hot water. Then I will brush my teeth. After checking all the locks, I will crawl under the covers and sleep comfortably and safely.

Somewhere else, the man from McDonald's and the man beneath my window will be sleeping as well — without walls and locks, without soap and hot water, without down comforters.

County Health Dept. to cancel anonymous HIV testing at ASU

BY JEFF OWENS
 STATE PRESS

The Maricopa County Public Health Department will no longer provide anonymous HIV testing on campus, a student health official said.

Karen Moses, assistant director of health education and wellness, said the department considers ASU a low-risk area, and will devote its limited resources to areas it deems as higher-risk.

"The county has notified us that they are re-directing their efforts with their HIV anonymous testing program, and they're going to be places where they anticipate getting lots of HIV-positive individuals," she said.

Candy Webb, county coordinator of HIV counseling and testing, said the county "only has six counselors, and we need to get them out to the highest-risk areas."

"The people we see at ASU usually aren't high-risk," she added.

Webb said anonymous testing at ASU will continue until May 1. After that, the nearest site will be Mesa Family Health Center at 59 S. Hibbert St. in Mesa. Testing will be offered each Tuesday and Wednesday, she added.

Moses said ASU will continue to offer confidential HIV testing. In confidential testing, the subject's name and condition become a matter of record; in anonymous testing, the subject is designated by a number, without any record of name or condition.

Moses said more than 30 people come in for anonymous HIV testing each month and that she does not consider ASU students as low-risk in general.

"Any sexually active student who doesn't use condoms consistently and correctly is at risk," she said.

Contest offers $500 to renovate Hayden Library front entrance

BY STACY HOLMSTEDT
 SPECIAL TO THE STATE PRESS

Students with a flair for design could find themselves $500 richer through a contest to renovate the entrance of Hayden Library.

"We need to spruce up the front entrance to the library and make it more user-friendly," said David Webb, manager of grounds.

The goal of the contest, which is open to faculty, students and staff, is to create a structure to provide shade and aesthetic appeal to the eight planters at the base of the Hayden Library steps.

"Because the planters are on the roof of the library, they have very restricted growth," said Webb.

The College of Architecture and Facilities Management, which are sponsoring the contest, will provide a $50,000 budget for the project.

Applications are available in the library lobby near the project model. The contest deadline has been set for September.

New ASU West provost says connecting classroom with outside world important

BY TIMOTHY TAIT
STATE PRESS

Integrating a classroom education with the lives of commuter students is the biggest challenge facing ASU West, the branch campus's new provost said.

"The challenge is to bring the benefits of a private residential college to a commuter school," Elaine Maimon said. "There is so much potential at ASU West to be the model of metropolitan universities. I can't mess that up — I have to channel all of the positive energy and make ASU West a place that people will want to learn from."

Maimon was named as the provost of the branch campus April 11, replacing interim-provost Ben Forsyth. Maimon will take her new post on Aug. 1.

"I really don't think of this position as a stepping stone," she said. "I am very project oriented, and I work to complete a certain agenda."

Maimon has served for eight years as the dean of experimental programs, a position that she calls the "dean of successful programs," and as a professor of English at Queens College in New York.

Maimon said retaining the ties between the West campus and the Main campus provides excellent resources for the 10-year-old branch campus.

"The concept of one University, geographically distributed, is a powerful one. Serving commuting students in the West Valley who are working and have responsibilities is difficult. They have special needs," she said. "The resources of this terrific University are incredible."

Getting students interested in striving for doctoral degrees and college professorships is a goal of Maimon's.

"We have to make it possible for kids to stay in their neighborhood and go to ASU — giving students a sense of belonging or home," she added.

Maimon, in her 25 years as an educator, has also held the positions of associate dean of the College at Brown University and associate vice president for special projects at Beaver College. She is also the founder of the Writing Across the Curriculum movement. Maimon earned a doctorate in English from the University of Pennsylvania in 1970.

"The emphasis needs to be on connecting what you are being taught in the classroom with what you learn outside," the mother of two said. "We need to build connections between the business world and students."

The emphasis needs to be on connecting what you are being taught in the classroom with what you learn outside. We need to build connections between the business world and students.

Macintosh equipment at risk for drop-in theft

Crime spree racks up $70,000 so far

By TIM TAIT
 STATE PRESS

Macintosh computers on campus are the targets of a campus crime spree, resulting in the nabbing of $70,000 in equipment in the past two weeks.

Radawna Michelle, crime prevention coordinator for ASU Police, said the assailants have gained access to the computers by removing ceiling panels in adjacent rooms, crawling through the ceiling and dropping into the rooms containing the desired equipment.

"What I know is that an individual or individuals are walking around office areas, blending in with the community and casing equipment they want to steal," she said. "But they don't pick locks — they gain access by other means."

In the fall, two similar computer thefts were reported with several other areas showing evidence of entry. However, in the past two weeks $70,000 in Macintosh equipment has been stolen from the Engineering Building, the Agriculture Building and the Student Services Building.

To protect equipment, Michelle recommends securing computers with cables and locks and staying aware of suspicious-looking people.

"Report anyone who seems suspicious," she said. "We can find a solution to the problem, but not necessarily the apprehension of the subjects."

Michelle also recommends participation in ASU Police's Campus Watch Program where police and the community work together to reduce crime in a department or building.

For more information on the Campus Watch Program, contact Michelle at 965-3456.

POLICE REPORT

ASU police reported the following incidents Thursday:

- Two juveniles not affiliated with the University were contacted at Dixie Gammage while playing on the second floor fire escape. The two said they were waiting for one of their parents to get out of class. Another parent was then notified.
- A female employee reported that an unidentified person verbally threatened her at Parking Structure 1.
- A female student reported that someone stole her purse from Room 210 of the Farmer Education Building.
- A female student reported receiving 25 harassing phone calls at her home.
- An employee reported that a computer printer and key pad were stolen from the elevator machine room in Manzanita Hall. The loss was estimated at $350.
- A female student was contacted at Palo Verde Main in reference to a disturbance that occurred at 615 Alpha Drive involving a possible assault. She declined to aid in the prosecution.

- Two bicycles were reported stolen.

Tempe police reported the following incidents Thursday:

- Two women were arrested at 2134 N. Country Club Road after they allegedly entered a house and removed $700 in property and stole a vehicle. One of the suspects told the victim it was payment for an unpaid debt. When they were arrested, one of the suspects was in possession of dangerous drugs and had an outstanding Mesa warrant for her arrest.
- A man was arrested after he allegedly assaulted his aunt and uncle. He pushed his uncle against a counter, then threatened to kill both of them. He also threatened to cut the uncle's throat and choke him until his eyes popped out. When the aunt tried to call the police, the suspect grabbed the phone from her hand and broke it. He was charged with several crimes, including assault and criminal damage.

Extras needed for movie being filmed at Sun Devil stadium

By ANDREA HEALEY
STATE PRESS

Aspiring actors and actresses can head down to Sun Devil Stadium Saturday and get a chance to be one of 25,000 extras in a movie being filmed here on campus.

Jerry Maguire, a film starring Tom Cruise, Cuba Gooding, Jr. and Renee Zellweger, is filming in the stadium where extras will be needed to fill in as football game attendees. The only job demand is delivering a convincing performance as an Arizona Cardinals or Dallas Cowboys fan.

Jerry Maguire Productions, Inc., the film's production company, will donate $1 for each person that shows up at the filming. The money will go to three different charity organizations: the Red Cross, Yavapai Big Brothers/Big Sisters and the

Make-A-Wish Foundation of Central and Southern Arizona.

Interested volunteers should pick up tickets at any of the three charities' offices or stop by the DIR Group ticket office at 4240 N. Brown Road, Suite E, in Scottsdale. As a last resort, volunteers can pick up tickets at a will-call table the day of the event.

Ann Videan of the DIR Group said 18,000 volunteers have already signed up.

The stadium gates open at 6 p.m. and participants will be seated by 7 p.m. Filming starts at 7:30 p.m. and lasts until at least 12:30 a.m.

Along with the thrill of being in a movie, there will also be give-aways. Prizes include an Acura Integra courtesy of Acura, a large-screen television, a Sony stereo system, sports bags and other gifts.

ASU/USC II, coming to a stadium near you

Last series' post game brawl still on No. 22 Sun Devils' minds as No. 2 Trojans visit

BY RON MATEJKO
STATE PRESS

Many eyes will be on the ASU baseball team when it meets USC for a three-game series starting at 7 tonight at Packard Stadium.

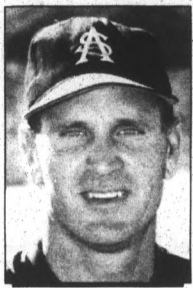

This will be the first time these teams have met each other since their post-game brawl on March 17 at Dedeaux Field.

"There will definitely be a watchful eye on us," senior infielder Robbie Kent said. "Especially from the umpires."

ASU assistant coach Bob Welch and USC Coach Mike Gillespie are both suspended for their participation in the brawl. They have been banned from Packard Stadium during the series.

Both teams have been on a season-long probation with the warning that any further funny business will result in penalties more severe than listed by the NCAA.

ASU pitchers junior Kaipo Spenser and sophomore Ryan Bradley, along with sophomore outfielder Mikel Moreno, received suspensions from the Pac-10, but have already served them. The same goes for USC catcher Jeff DePippo and pitcher Brian Ponchak.

WELCH

ASU Coach Pat Murphy said all the controversy his team has faced this season has given his young players good experience.

"I think they learned a lot from it," Murphy said. "With all the adversity we've had this season it's amazing this club has held together."

Kent said the attention surrounding the series makes for an exciting playing atmosphere.

"It's fun. The fans get more involved in the games," Kent said. "It's never anything where players really want to go after each other, but there is a little jawing going on back and forth and that makes it fun."

Junior Jason Bond is expected to start for No. 22 ASU (29-19, 10-14) with Randy Flores expected to start for No. 2 USC (34-10-1, 14-7).

The Trojans swept three from the Sun Devils earlier this season at Dedeaux Field.

From the bullpen
• Junior catcher Cody McKay tied an ASU season-high with his current 15-game hitting streak. He has raised his batting average nearly 40 points to .319 during the streak.

• ASU baseball has drawn an all-time high 89,862 fans at Packard Stadium this season. They have four home games remaining to eclipse the 100,000 mark.

• ASU needs to go 5-3 in its last eight games to match last season's win total.

Softball team needs miracle finish to gain berth in postseason tourney

Pat Shannahan/State Press

ASU shortstop Tammy Lohmann and the rest of the softball team plays Santa Clara at 5 tonight on the road.

BY DAMIAN SHAW
STATE PRESS

Stranger things have happened.

The Indianapolis Colts nearly went to the Super Bowl, the Chicago Bulls topped the unreachable 70-win plateau, and Major League Baseball is on its way to playing a full, uninterrupted season. Now the ASU softball team needs to win at least 12 of its last 14 games.

The Sun Devils need to sweep or split with all of its remaining foes to ensure a berth in postseason regional play, starting with at 6 tonight at Santa Clara. Also on tap for the Sun Devils this weekend are Stanford, California and St. Mary's.

Coach Linda Wells said that winning the Pac-10 games isn't the only priority for the squad.

"We need these games this weekend," Wells said. "We only have four non-conference games left and we need those wins to give us some pad in the win column."

Besides giving the Sun Devils an infusion of wins, the games are also important because the non-conference games are within the region in which ASU needs to garner additional wins.

The team was embarrassingly beaten earlier this season by the Cardinal, after splitting a doubleheader with the Golden Bears. Wells said she would like to get even with Stanford and steal another from California.

"We need to secure wins from Stanford and again it would be nice to get a split from California," Wells said.

Junior designated player Lisa Dacquisto, who is third on ASU's career hits list with 203, believes the daunting task of defeating the Sun Devils' final seven opponents to be within reach.

"If we happen to sweep everyone the rest of our games, which is possible, then I guess we have a chance for postseason play," Dacquisto said.

The Sun Devils, who gained entry into the

Regents approve 3-year contract for new ASU AD

WHITE

FROM STAFF REPORTS

The Arizona Board of Regents has approved a three-year contract for Kevin White, ASU's new athletic director.

The package, approved Thursday, calls for White to receive an annual base salary of $150,000 — $50,000 more than what his predecessor, Charles Harris, earned his final year.

White, 45, was hired March 27 from Tulane, where he had been athletic director for the past five years.

White's contract also calls for him to receive $50,000 from the Sun Angel Foundation for representing the university at speaking engagements and fund-raising activities.

Additional incentives allow White to earn as much as $25,000 if the football team plays in a bowl game, the men's and women's basketball teams reach the NCAA tournament, the baseball team goes to the College World Series, and an Olympic sport wins the national championship.

Two tennis players advance

FROM STAFF REPORTS

Sophomore Reka Cseresnyes and freshman Katy Propstra advanced through the first two rounds of the Pac-10 Championships Thursday in Ojai, Calif.

Cseresnyes won both of her matches in straight sets defeating Tunde Nagy of Washington State 6-0, 6-1 and Khirsten Pietrocha of UofA 6-2, 6-2, while Propstra struggled through two three-set matches, beating Andrea Reisz of WSU 6-7, 6-4, 6-1 and Suzie Italiano of USC, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

Booth, Ericsson, Riviello named to All-Pac-10 team

FROM STAFF REPORTS

One day after the Sun Devils were crowned the Pac-10's best, three ASU women golfers were named to the conference's first and second teams.

Sun Devil sophomore Kellee Booth notched her second consecutive first-team honor. Senior teammates Linda Ericsson and Vinny Riviello earned second-team honors. For Ericsson, it is the third time she has been named to the second team.

Also on the first-team all-conference team was UofA freshman Marissa Baena, UCLA senior Kathy Choi, Washington junior Dodie Mazzuca, Stanford junior Mhairi McKay and UCLA senior Jenny Park.

ASU freshman Jody Niemann was a honorable mention selection. Niemann narrowly missed taking the 1996 individual title Wednesday in Tucson. Niemann's three day total of 215 was one stroke behind first place finisher Baena.

Women's basketball coach wanted

A committee is being formed to choose ASU's next women's basketball coach. A classified ad is currently running in the est issue of NCAA News which is distributed to every Division I school.

Interim Athletic Director Christine Wilkinson said she wants to fill the position as soon as possible.

The names of any possible replacements won't be released until interviews begin in mid-May.

Former coach Jacquie Hullah resigned April 11 after three seasons with the Sun Devils. She finished with a 20-60 record at ASU.

Tutor going to Japan

ASU junior swing Molly Tuter was one of 10 basketball players selected to represent the Pac-10 in a tour of Japan this summer. One player from each team in the conference will travel to the Land of the Rising Sun to play against the Japan Olympic Team and various Junior National Teams from Aug. 8-18.

A men's team will be announced some time in May.

Pac-10 Championships next up for men's golf

The ASU men's golf team will play in the Pac-10 Championships in Los Angeles on April 29-May 1.

The Sun Devils won the title last year. ASU defeated second-place California by 23 strokes in Richland, Wash. Three key contributors from last year's team return, junior Chris Hanell, junior Scott Johnson and senior Joey Snyder.

Softball

NSCA/USA Today Top 25 Poll earlier in the season, dropped out after being swept by UCLA last weekend. The team is among those, "receiving votes," and come in at 27th. Its chances of reentering the list were made more difficult by a sweep by No. 2 UofA on Wednesday, 2-1 (in extra innings) and 6-0. Remaining in the top 25 could help ensure ASU a playoff spot.

Dacquisto said if the Sun Devils do not make an appearance in the postseason, she'd still like to finish strong.

"If we don't, then I want to know we finished the season playing our best," Dacquisto said.

Gymnasts compete at NCAAs

FROM STAFF REPORTS

ASU gymnasts sophomore Meagan Wright and senior Katie Freeland competed at the NCAA Gymnastics Championships Thursday night in front of 9,327 at the Coleman Coliseum in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Wright placed ninth overall in the individual all-around competition with a score of 39.225. She placed 11th on bars (9.85), 15th on vault (9.9), 27th on floor (9.775) and 37th on beam (9.7).

Freeland, competing for the last time as a Sun Devil finished in 41st place at 38.175. Her individual event scores were: bars (9.45), vault (9.775), floor (9.175) and beam (9.775).

In the team competition the "Super Six" who will compete for the NCAA crown are Georgia, Alabama, Utah, UCLA, Oregon State and Michigan.

Six Sun Devils heading to Atlanta for Olympics

BY ED ODEVEN
STATE PRESS

The countdown has begun! There are 84 days left until the 1996 Summer Olympics officially begin.

Many of ASU's top athletes will try to capture Olympic medals. The Sun Devils that are headed to Atlanta may be well-known to their teammates and coaches, but do you know them?

Picture this: you are sitting at home in mid-July watching the Olympics. You have a cold drink in one hand and a bowl of popcorn in the other. Then the announcer shouts the name of a Sun Devil who has just won a gold medal.

Here's your guide to the Sun Devil athletes who are Olympic bound.

Men's Swimming

ASU, which placed ninth at the 1996 NCAA Men's Swimming and Diving Championships in Austin, Texas, boasts a strong supply of Olympic-caliber talent.

Heading ASU's list of medal hopefuls is 19-year-old freshman Francisco Sanchez. He will swim for Venezuela. Sanchez, a sprint specialist, was the 1995 Venezuelan Athlete of the Year, after setting a world record at the World Swimming Championships in the 50-meter freestyle (21.8 seconds) in Rio de Janeiro in December.

Sanchez was also a major factor in the NAAs. He placed first in the 50-yard freestyle (19.35) and was the runner-up in the 100 freestyle (42.89). Sanchez will race for Olympic medals both events.

Felipe and Robert Delgado will be ASU's only brothers combo. The Delgados are natives of Guayaquil, Ecuador. Felipe Delgado, who tied Sanchez for first in the 50-meter freestyle (23.3) at the 1996 South American Swimming Championships, will compete in the 50 and 100 freestyle in Atlanta.

"We'll just wait and see what happens at the Olympics now," Felipe said.

Robert Delgado, a freshman butterfly specialist, will race in the 100 and 200 butterfly events.

ASU's representation at the Olympics is something that the team is proud of.

"It gives us a lot of credibility and we take pride in that," ASU assistant men's swimming coach Sean Farrell said. "It's definitely notable."

Junior Logi Kristjansson agreed.

"It's good for the team and school to get this publicity," Kristjansson said.

Possible Olympians?

Kristjansson will travel to Monaco from May 30-June 1 for an international swim meet. Kristjansson, who is a member of the Iceland National Team, hopes to qualify for the Olympics in the 100 and 200 backstroke.

"I didn't go into swimming with the Olympics in mind," said Kristjansson, who has been swimming competitively for 11 years.

Kristjansson outlook has changed.

"For the last four years I have been focused on the Olympics. I've been aiming for these Olympics for four years," he said. "It will be a great relief if I make the Olympic cuts."

He is an optimist. "I haven't thought about failure yet, because that's already losing," Kristjansson said. "Half the battles are won before they are fought."

ASU men's swimming coach Ernie Maglischo has kept his swimmers in good shape recently.

"We are training together under Maglischo's guidance. He's pushing us to our limits," Kristjansson said.

The Olympic-bound Sun Devils have become good friends.

"This group is getting pretty close," Kristjansson said.

The rest of the ASU swim team that aren't training for the Olympics have been helpful to Kristjansson and company.

"The team backs us up," Kristjansson said. "I really appreciate the team's effort and support."

Guillermo Diaz, a freshman from Torreon, Mexico, is attempting to make his country's Olympic team.

"I am hoping to compete in the relays and 100 butterfly," said Diaz, who has been swimming since he was 6. "It would be great (to go to Atlanta). It's something that every swimmer would like to do. I just have to wait and see."

Mexican teammates Xavier La Madrid and Juan Beltran are also trying to make the Olympic cut.

"They are pretty much up there," said Diaz, about his teammates chances of making the Olympics.

Beltran's top events are the 100 breast stroke and 100 freestyle. La Madrid is a freestyle specialist.

ASU freshman Panagiotis Lagopatis is currently a member of Greece's pre-Olympic team.

He will swim in Italy's Seven Hills Meet in late May and also the Monte Carlo Meet in hopes of qualifying for Greece's Olympic Team.

"I have been training really, really hard," said Lagopatis, who is the Greek junior record holder in the 100 butterfly (55.5). "I'm in the best shape I've ever been and I still have a little time to practice."

Sun Devil post-graduate swimmers vying for the Olympics include Indonesian Richard Bera and Brazilian Eduardo Piccanini. Both ex-Sun Devils need to meet time standards to make the cut.

Track and Field

ASU Norwegian standouts Gaute Gundersen and Pal Arne Fagernes have qualified for the national team.

Gundersen, a world-class hurdler, won the 110 hurdles first division title in 13.71 seconds at the 1994 European Cup in Istanbul, Turkey. He is a five-time Norwegian champ (1991-95) in that event.

Fagernes will represent Norway in the javelin event. He is a four-time Norwegian junior javelin champ. He also is currently ranked No. 1 in that event by the NCAA.

ASU's lone current female athlete competing in the Olympics is sprinter Lorreann Adams.

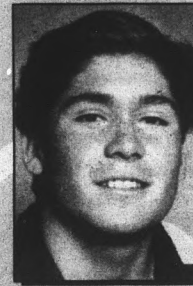

Adams, a senior middle distance runner from Guyana, is ranked No. 1 by the NCAA in the 800 meters.

CONDOM RESEARCH STUDY

Planned Parenthood is seeking monogamous couples interested in participating in a research study comparing the effectiveness of latex and investigational polyurethane condoms in pregnancy prevention. Women must be between 18 and 40; men between 18 and 50.

Qualifying couples will receive free condoms for seven months and up to $90 compensation for two clinic visits and three telephone interviews. Volunteers may also receive free Pap smears, STD screening and physicals. For more information, call Planned Parenthood at 265-2043.

Spurs decry 'soft' Label, Suns deal with injuries

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Spurs have heard enough about their playoff failures, about their reputation as halfhearted contenders, about center David Robinson being "soft."

That kind of talk is meaningless, the Spurs insisted Thursday on the eve of a best-of-5 playoff series with Phoenix.

Meaningless, perhaps. Except as a motivator.

"If anything, I think it fuels us a lot more. We don't have any soft players on this team," point guard Avery Johnson said. "We feel that it's us against everybody. That's the bunker mentality that we have."

San Antonio (59-23), the No. 2 seed in the Western Conference, does battle with No. 7 Phoenix (41-41) beginning Friday in the Alamodome.

The Spurs were 3-1 against the Suns this season, but Phoenix won the last game, snapping San Antonio's 17-game winning streak.

Suns forward Charles Barkley said he's not thinking at all about the regular season series.

"That's irrelevant. That doesn't matter now. It's the first one of three," Barkley said.

The Suns arrived in San Antonio hobbled by injuries.

Rookie forward Michael Finley, whom coach Cotton Fitzsimmons had hoped would guard Spurs forward Sean Elliott, was still suffering with a twisted left ankle and was "very doubtful" for Friday's game, the coach said.

Danny Manning has seen limited playing and practice time lately. He returned from knee surgery in February, developed tendinitis in the knee and played in only 33 games.

Spurs coach Bob Hill said Phoenix was more than a .500 team.

"They're loaded with talent, speed, quickness, defensive capabilities, shot blocking, perimeter shooting, free-throw shooting. It's got every ingredient you want," he said.

The Spurs are anxious to make it at least as far as last year in the NBA playoffs, when they suffered embarrassing home-court losses to Houston and were eliminated in the conference finals in six games. In Robinson's previous five seasons in the league, the Spurs advanced past the first round only twice.

The Spurs spent much of this week holed up in Kerrville 60 miles away preparing for the playoffs. Despite their attempts to avoid distractions, the Spurs were dogged by questions about an ESPN report that characterized Robinson as "soft." And a Sports Illustrated cover with Robinson's picture and the title "Saint David" generated even more publicity.

By Thursday, Robinson appeared tired of questions about the reports and about whether he has what it takes to win a championship.

"Obviously it has an effect," he said. "I mean, guys think about that stuff. But it doesn't matter. Our goal is to come out here and win games."

Some Suns players said they didn't appreciate the ESPN story and the possible boost it could the Spurs. "They've got a very good team," Barkley said Thursday. "Some people are so ignorant talking about David being soft. That's stupid. And it's unfortunate."

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST
 by Sydney Omarr

Friday, April 26, 1996

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Family member comes around to your way of thinking. This acquiescence carries with it added responsibility. You're asked to prove yourself, you are given free rein, results demanded.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Request for additional space granted. Focus on more room, luxury, entertainment, artistic endeavors. Building material figures prominently. Gift adds to wardrobe, body image improves.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Keep plans flexible, itinerary subject to change, former leader falls down on job. Fickle finger of fate points to you—blend humor with profundity. Scorpio plays dynamic role.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Share information, get thoughts on paper, position as teacher strengthened. Flirtation lends spice, but don't give up farm for mere whispered promise. Gemini, Virgo persons involved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Attention revolves around design, architecture, home appliances, important domestic adjustment. Focus on budget, music, marital status. Funding made available in surprising fashion.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Play waiting game—don't be coerced into making snap decision. Find out what is expected of you, what you might anticipate in return. Relationship on borderline. Pisces in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You'll make remarkable comeback. What was out of reach becomes available, you'll be designated undisputed champion. Emphasis on organization, ability to meet deadline.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Long-range prospects featured, individual in another land communicates in fascinating manner. Emphasis on foreign cuisine, expression of feelings in different language. Aries involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): What you missed yesterday is suddenly thrust upon you on proverbial silver platter. Emphasis on publishing, advertising, necessity for getting message across in effective manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Design product, talent to appeal to women. You'll acquire silent partner. Focus on facts and figures, publicity, marital status. Food plays role, manager of restaurant makes proposal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Diversify, experiment, arrive at destination via different mode of transportation. Popularity rises, social activities accelerate. Legal maneuver featured, you'll win. Gemini involved.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Demands of job cut into social time. Proofread material, check for subtle innuendoes. Scorpio individual communicates from a distance, urges material to be revised. Sound counsel!

IF APRIL 26 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: In May you could move, certainly there will be major domestic adjustment that could include change of residence, marital status. Current cycle highlights independence, fresh start in different direction, strong possibility of love relationship with someone other than current heart throb. When chips are down, you face music in majestic manner. Capricorn, Cancer persons play unusual roles in your life. July your most profitable, romantic month of 1996.
