Tempe police shift bicyclists toward safety

BY KENNES BOLIG
 STATE PRESS

In an effort to decrease bicycle mishaps, Tempe police will begin distributing bicycle safety pamphlets to University-bound bicyclists Monday.

The pamphlets are a warning to Tempe bicyclists. In two weeks, the police will stop issuing pamphlets and start issuing tickets.

The literature will detail Tempe's bicycle laws as well as general bicycle safety information.

"We have a lot of accidents at the beginning of the year," said Officer Jay Latko of the Tempe Traffic Bureau. "Every year, you get brand new kids who don't know what to do."

Tempe police will increase surveillance within a two-mile radius of the campus, focusing its manpower along Apache Boulevard, University Drive, Rural Road and Mill Avenue, Latko said.

"We want to spread the word more than increase the tickets that we write," Latko said.

Fines for bicycle violations such as riding against the flow of traffic or failure to stop at a red light can range from $77 to $107. However, those cited have the option to waive the fine by attending a $10 bicycle safety course offered by the ASU Department of Public Safety.

Tempe police began working to increase bicycle safety knowledge when a 1993 study revealed that 66 percent of bicyclists were at fault in the 266 bicycle-vehicle accidents that occurred that year, Latko said.

Park party honors Tempe milestone

BY RAY STERN
 STATE PRESS

Tempe Events Coordinator Bobra Crockett had a subtle warning for ASU students not planning to attend the city's "Party in the Park" festival this Saturday at Kiwanis Park.

"I've gotten a lot of calls from people from Nebraska who will be there," she said, referring to the Cornhuskers' game against ASU Saturday night. "They're looking for something to do. There's going to be a lot of red and white out there."

The party is the main event in Tempe's yearlong celebration of its 125th year as a community.

"It's a big community event," Crockett said. "We have involvement from schools, Tempe businesses and community groups — it's almost a big family reunion."

The party kicks off at 10 a.m. with dancing.

Structure Underwear to seek models at Maloney's

BY DEANNA DARR
 STATE PRESS

Those buff beefcakes of ASU will have the opportunity to strut their stuff Saturday night for the chance of becoming the new Structure Underwear model.

The Structure Underwear model scouts will take applications at Maloney's On Campus, 955 E. University Drive, starting at 6 p.m. during the ASU-Nebraska football game.

"We've heard really great things about the guys at ASU," said Lisa Marsh, public relations coordinator for Structure, a chain of men's clothing stores.

Marsh said the model search last year was not advertised, but this year they decided to "blow it up." This nationwide search is only halfway through, yet more than 5,000 men have sprung at the chance to pose in their skivvies for millions of strangers.

Marsh said the scouts started their quest on the East Coast and traveled west, making brief stops all over the country.

She said the scouts will approach hopefuls at the bar as well as talk to those waiting-to-be-discovered models who come to turn in applications. Men interested should bring two photos of themselves; one of themselves in shorts, swimming trunks or their favorite undies, and a head shot.

"I'd do it. It would be a unique experience," said Ryan McGillicuddy, a Maloney's patron visiting from New Hampshire.

"I want to be the next Marky Mark," he added, referring to the singer well-known for his drawer-dropping.

Stacy Freiberg, a server at Maloney's, said she believes the men of ASU could make a really good showing, and may even go to the finals. She added that there always seems to be some ASU guy in calendars.

Twenty semi-finalists will be chosen and taken to Columbus, Ohio, for a complete make-over and photo shoot. Five to 10 finalists will then be taken to Los Angeles, where the winner will be chosen.

The winner will be featured in the 1997 Structure Catalog and receive a two-year contract from Boss Modeling worth $100,000. They will also receive a complete Structure wardrobe — including underwear — worth $2,500.

Eric Greenwald, manager at Maloney's, said he wouldn't be surprised if people came to the bar Saturday night just for the competition.

The competition is not for everyone, though.

Tempe resident Dave Lambert said, "They'd probably have a better chance of selling them (the underwear) if I didn't do it."

Anyone who thinks they've got what it takes to have their barely-clad bottom plastered around the country should be at Maloney's Saturday night, or they can call 1-800-945-1010 for entry forms and information.

TODAY

Campus clubs and organizations may submit written entries to the State Press in the basement of Matthews Center. Requests will not be taken over the phone or via fax.

Deadline for requests is noon the day before publication and entries will not be accepted more than three working days before publication. Only one entry per organization per day is permitted.

Entries must contain the full name of the club or organization, a description of the event, date, time and the full address of the location. All requests are subject to editing for content, space and clarity. Incomplete or illegible entries will be discarded.

The Today Section is a daily calendar of events printed as a service to the ASU community. Requests are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis and are printed as space permits.

The Wacky Olympic games are expected to draw some fun and laughs as kids and wanna-be kids try their skill at sack racing, the Quacky Duck Race, Buffalo Soldiers Shuffle and ASU Off-Your-Rocker Soccer.

"They're basically games you remember playing as a kid, with a fun twist to it," Crockett said, adding that on-site registration will be available for the games Saturday.

Bridgett Hanna, public information officer, said that 1871 was the year Charles Trumbull Hayden built his home and the Hayden Flour Mill, transforming Tempe into a viable community.

"There were a lot of things that made that year stand out," she said. "It was the time when he (Hayden) apparently had this vision of the city, and then all of sudden he was making it happen."

Before that, Hanna said, Tempe was more of a group of settlements than a town. Fifteen years after Hayden arrived, the Legislature appropriated $5,000 for a teacher's college that would eventually become ASU.

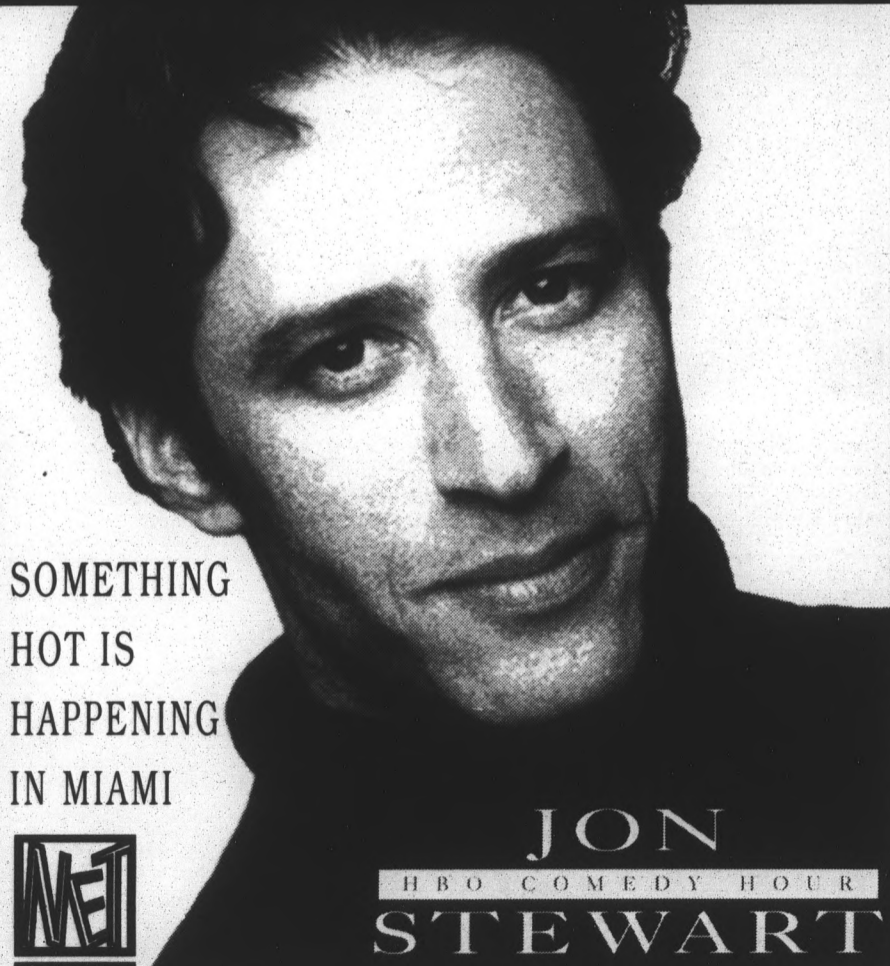

The name Tempe comes from a remark by an early visitor to the area, an Englishman named Lord Darrell Duppa. Legend has it the butte, green fields and wide river reminded him of a passage he had read about the Vale, or valley, of Tempe in ancient Greece.

Though the party Saturday is the main event marking Tempe's 125 years, Hanna said the City of Tempe will continue to celebrate until Feb. 21, which is when the city hall rededication ceremony takes place.

Ground troops increase U.S. presence in Mid-East

BY ANDREW SELSKY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

KUWAIT — Although rhetoric has softened and tension eased, the American military boosted its presence in the Persian Gulf Thursday with more ground troops and some 75 warplanes to patrol Iraqi skies.

Soon, more than 30,000 U.S. military personnel and 200 American planes will be in the region, most aboard three dozen ships in the Gulf.

Some 200 American soldiers landed Thursday at Kuwait International Airport, the vanguard of 3,500 soldiers sent by President Clinton to protect Kuwait.

The soldiers from Fort Hood, Texas, join 1,200 others who have been training for weeks in the Kuwaiti desert on 120 Abrams M1-A1 tanks and 60 Bradley fighting vehicles.

The USS Enterprise also arrived in the Gulf carrying about 75 warplanes and 8,000 personnel in its battle group, said Cmdr. T. McCreary, a U.S. Navy spokesman. It joins the carrier USS Carl Vinson, which has been involved in policing the "no-fly" zone in southern Iraq.

Iraq has been radar tracking U.S. aircraft patrolling the northern and southern no-fly zones since last week, but has not fired on them. The zones were established at the end of the 1991 Gulf War to protect Kurds in the north and Shiite Muslims in the south.

In Washington, CIA Director John Deutch said the faction leader who forged a temporary alliance with Saddam Hussein to rout a rival Kurdish faction — sparking the latest troubles in Iraq — is now seeking U.S. protection.

Massoud Barzani met Wednesday in Turkey with U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Robert Pelletreau, but no details of that meeting were made public.

Deutch also told the Senate Intelligence Committee that sanctions imposed after the Gulf War haven't weakened Saddam's hold on power and Iraq's military might still threatens its neighbors. Saddam's position in the region actually has strengthened of late, he said.

Further details also emerged Thursday of shelling from artillery batteries inside Iraq that the Iranians claim killed eight Kurdish refugees Wednesday at a camp in Iran. The Iranians blamed the Iraqi army and Baghdad-backed Kurdish guerrillas.

In Geneva, the office of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees said 11 refugees were wounded during shelling of the Siran Band camp in Iran. It had no report of deaths.

U.N. refugee agency spokeswoman Judith Melby said there was a "shooting incident" on the Iraqi side of the border and "one can assume" it was between the two main Kurdish factions.

"There was then shelling toward the camp of Siran Band, and there was a response by the Iranians. The situation was total panic in the camp," Melby said.

Parents in northeast must spend more income on college

BY DEB RIECHMANN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Parents in the Northeast must spend more household income to send their children to in-state public colleges and universities than parents elsewhere, a federal study says.

"As a percentage of household income, tuition has doubled over the last 15 years," Sen. Carol Moseley-Braun said Thursday in releasing a study she requested from the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress.

"Access to higher education is getting more and more out of reach for working and middle-class Americans," the Illinois Democrat said.

Nationally, parents spent about 9 percent of their median household income last year on in-state tuition and fees for their sons and daughters attending public four-year schools, the GAO says. That's up from 4.5 percent 15 years ago.

Average tuition as a percentage of median household income varied greatly from state to state, the report said.

For example, Hawaii's average tuition last year was less than 4 percent of median household income in the state. Hawaii, however, recently approved an 85 percent increase for in-state, undergraduate tuition at the University of Hawaii's Manoa campus.

By comparison, Vermont's average tuition for four-year public colleges and universities was more than 15 percent of median household income.

Dave Merkwitz, a spokesman for the American Council on Education, which represents higher education institutions, said he was not surprised that Northeastern states had lower rankings on the affordability scale.

States in the Midwest and West have a tradition of low or no-cost public systems of higher education, while there is a greater concentration of higher-priced private schools in the Northeast, he said.

Recent cutbacks in state funding have pushed tuitions higher nationwide. But public support for colleges in the Midwest and West historically has been strong, resulting in lower tuitions, Merkwitz said.

The report also repeated an earlier GAO finding: Between 1980-81 and 1994-95, the average annual tuition at four-year public colleges and universities for in-state students rose 234 percent — from $804 to $2,689.

That compares with an 82 percent increase in household income, the report says. And tuition rose faster than other consumer prices.

The report says the average consumer expenditure for a new car increased 160 percent; the national median sale price of a new single-family home rose 101 percent; medical costs went up 182 percent; and food prices rose 66 percent.

Israeli warplanes attack Lebanon

BY AHMED MANTASH
ASSOCIATED PRESS

JEBAA, Lebanon — Israeli warplanes and artillery pounded guerrilla strongholds in southern Lebanon on Thursday after two Israeli soldiers were killed and several wounded in a firefight.

The fighting — the worst since a U.S.-brokered cease-fire in April halted a two-week Israeli blitz of the region — came as tensions were rising between arch-foes Syria and Israel, the two main players in Lebanon.

Syria recently shuffled thousands of its soldiers in Lebanon. While at least some of the troops appeared to have been placed in more defensive positions, the movements sparked concern in Israel of a possible military confrontation at a time when peace negotiations are stalled.

Israel has warned in recent weeks that it would strike back hard against any attacks on its troops. The Lebanese government said Thursday it was concerned the latest fighting could herald a major Israeli assault on Lebanon.

"Today's aggression is a prelude to a massive Israeli operation," Foreign Minister Faris Bweiz said.

The fighting broke out early Thursday at an Israeli army outpost at Sojod, on the edge of an Israeli-occupied border enclave in the south.

In the initial clash, both sides fired machine guns and rocket-propelled grenades. Israel confirmed two of its soldiers were killed and said eight soldiers were wounded.

Israel's northern military commander, Maj. Gen. Amiram Levine, said his soldiers killed "more than three guerrillas, and wounded many."

But the Iranian-backed Hezbollah said it suffered no casualties in the clash.

As usual, Israeli artillery opened up on suspected guerrilla hideouts and bases in Iqlim al-Tuffah, or Apple Province, just across from Sojod, to cover the evacuation of casualties and troops under fire.

Jets and helicopter gunships joined the battle at midmorning, targeting Hezbollah positions in Iqlim al-Tuffah. The aircraft fired at least seven air-to-surface missiles in repeated sorties, the sources said.

The jets returned in the afternoon for another air strike, firing at least one more missile.

Smoke billowed from the area, and the strikes set several fires in the apple orchards and pine woods around Jebaa and a string of other communities dotting the highlands. One house was destroyed.

In four hours of combat, the Israelis fired about 400 artillery shells, the sources said. The guerrillas fired back with more than 30 81mm mortar rounds.

A Lebanese woman suffered minor shrapnel injuries when an Israeli shell struck in the village of Jebaa, the security sources said.

Hezbollah, or Party of God, is a Shiite Muslim fundamentalist group leading a guerrilla war to dislodge the Israelis from the enclave they have controlled in southern Lebanon for almost two decades.

BOO — To whoever committed the Saturday acquaintance rape of an ASU student. This was the first reported rape of the school year. We are not stupid enough to think that rapes will cease to happen overnight. Nevertheless, hearing of yet another rape on campus sickens us. The suspect has not only violated the student, but also forced fear into the minds of other students on campus, as exemplified in part by the rise in calls to the Safety Escort Service.

BRAVO — To Tempe's plan to reinvent Apache Boulevard. Those of us who live near there or have driven by that area are giddy, we tell you, giddy with excitement over the impending improvements. It's just too bad that by the time the area is spruced up, we'll be graduated and living in some piddly town somewhere, slaving away at a monthly newspaper.

BOO — To Scottsdale Mayor Sam Campana for wasting 911's time with her silly requests for street directions. There are so many ways to be snide here, we can't pick just one. Suffice it to say that our estimation of her IQ has plummeted at stomach-lurching speed. Yo, Sam, why don't you invest in some street maps. They're really cool. And we bet you have some lackey who could interpret them for you.

BRAVO — To the weather. The temperature has been dropping over the last week or so, sparking an inexplicable urge to cavort around campus and giggle like air heads. If it keeps getting cooler, we won't be able to control ourselves.

BOO — To the white flies. Sure, inhaling 30 or so every now and again is an innovative dining experience — they make a cheap snack, after all — but on the whole, they're revolting. And they're messing up our windshields.

BRAVO — To caffeine. Hot or cold, we highly endorse slamming down mass quantities of the stuff to stay awake in those snooze-inducing lecture classes. Maybe one day they'll invent the perfect teacher to keep us interested beyond the first five minutes of class. Until then, we're going to caffeinate ourselves until we snap.

BOO — To the Presidential Commission on Debates for ruling that Ross Perot can't participate in the presidential debates. The Reform Party's nominee sounds bitter that he can't babble alongside President Bill Clinton and Republican candidate Bob Dole. Frankly, we're bitter, too — we're being deprived of comic relief.

BRAVO — To David Letterman for including in his Wednesday show a guy who stretches noodles. Some people swallow fire, others snort spare change, swallow it and cough it back up ... but Noodle Guy is someone we'd like to meet. We have a crate of Ramen noodles just waiting to be stretched down here.

BOO — To the Taco Bell food at the Memorial Union. It is the epitome of bad fast food. Not that fast food is ever a gourmet experience, but this Taco Bell food ranks far below that of other Taco Bells. We'd rather eat frozen burritos from Circle K.

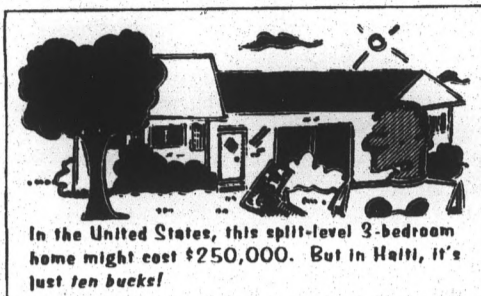

Disney pays its Haitian garment workers 30 cents an hour. This may not seem like much.

Politics at heart of marriage act

"In determining the meaning of any Act of Congress, or of any ruling, regulation, or interpretation of the various administrative bureaus and agencies of the United States, the word 'marriage' means only a legal union between one man and one woman as husband and wife, and the word 'spouse' refers only to a person of the opposite sex who is a husband or a wife."

VIVI STENBERG
Guest Columnist

The Defense of Marriage Act cited partly above, which was passed by an overwhelming majority in the Senate last week, leaves little doubt of the political intentions behind it.

We are in an election year where the last thing politicians seem willing to display is political courage on a controversial decision. Both major parties have landed safely on promoting "family values" as a suitable political platform during the '1996 campaign, leaving no room to the discussion of nontraditional forms of the all-American, but hopelessly long-lost family concept.

The act, which is expected to be signed by President Clinton as soon as he finds some time in his campaigning schedule to run this country, allows states to disregard gay marriage licenses issued by other states. The act also denies federal recognition of same-sex marriages.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., has been quoted as saying the bill is a mean-spirited form of GOP legislative, but he still can't escape the fact that only 14 of the Democratic senators had the guts to vote against it.

Someone said when discussing whether or not gays should be allowed to marry, that it's just a matter of sex (meaning gender), and it shouldn't be such a big deal.

True. Unfortunately, when politicians think of "sex," gender doesn't seem to be the first to come to their minds.

When politicians think sex, (excluding their own bedroom — or elsewhere — activities, of course), they think immorality, promiscuousness and the break-down of family values.

Politicians, eager to promote the "morality issue," find homosexuals an easy target to let out this stand for their voters. By playing on old stereotypes of gays and leaving out both human and practical matters, the Defense of Marriage Act is being justified by its promoters.

"We're labeled as promiscuous," one gay activist said to the New York Times. "But when we ask for recognition of our long-term relationships, were denied."

Welcome to the double-standard of American politics. There is most definitely a human side to the issue of legalizing same-sex marriages, but maybe even more important is the legal, economic and practical benefits it would lead to.

Gays and lesbians are asking for the rights and government benefits that most people take for granted such as Social Security and Medicare. The Defense of Marriage Act has barred the possibility of obtaining such benefits as well as the option of filing joint tax returns and getting special marriage or family rates/exemptions.

The act also denies gays and lesbians the right to inherit from a spouse automatically in the absence of a will. But maybe more cruel is the failure of permitting someone to visit a partner, or the child of a partner, in a hospital or other public institutions.

As a country which loves to emphasize the incomparable amount of freedom its citizens exercise, this bill is a disgrace. The United States should be in the forefront of promoting freedom of choice along with (sexual) equality, not in the right-wing backwoods it will place itself when President Clinton signs the bill.

Math teacher lives productive life despite having five tattoos

While David Galantowicz has a right to dislike tattooing and body piercing/jewelry, his article on Sept. 16 illustrated that he doesn't really understand the history behind the subjects and that he is quick to judge an individual on appearance alone.

Body art and jewelry are as old as mankind itself and present in virtually every civilization to have existed since man could grasp tools. Tattooing did not start with sailors (too many Popeye cartoons?).

Similarly, if women (or men, for that matter) want to "store" jewelry, a bracelet or necklace will do the trick nicely. That the individual chooses to attach it via a hole in the body suggests a deeper meaning behind the act. Even cultures where skin color is too dark to permit designs engage in scarification, which is just as the name implies. I find all of these aspects very interesting, although I'm not about to run out and scar myself. Just the same, I am not going to pass judgment about an individual's character based solely on skin designs or dangling bits of jewelry.

Getting pierced or tattooed is rarely done on a whim. I don't intend to offer any deep, philosophical, grandiose or academic reasons as to why people do what they do. I have five tattoos because I am fascinated by the art and the history of the subject. They are all original designs.

Interestingly, I have been able to live a normal life despite them, holding down a job (two of them), paying my bills and staying out of trouble. Personally, I enjoy the variation I see on campus. It breaks up the monotony and makes for a good show.

Besides, there are other, more pressing, issues on campus on which to write. I notice a lot of students carry their books by hand instead of in backpacks. Those freaking weirdos. Now there's an article.

Success sweeter after earning it

I would like to address Tim Elizondo regarding his comments on students who seem to live the "high" life. Like Elizondo, I am working my way through college, spending the weekends in the books and planning for my graduate education.

And like Elizondo, I constantly see the over-privileged students enjoying the weekends, squeaking by, going on great trips for spring break and the like. Yes, I too see them driving BMW's, Mercedes and other fine automobiles that my parents cannot afford. However, my reality is just different than theirs.

I am not sure that it is fair to characterize these individuals as "immature," "disrespectful to themselves" and especially "unequal." Although you seem to view these as people with their priorities way out of whack, you are forgetting to recognize that they simply have had a different life than you. Granted, they may not have the pressures of success regarding grades or after graduation, but that certainly should not affect you in the least. In fact, when these over-privileged beer indulgers are failing the tests, it makes my GPA look that much better.

Who cares that they are fools in the class. Take your notes, study and know that you are earning your success. In a society such as this, you need to remember that there are always going to be the "haves" and the "have-nots." We know which categories we fall into. But I'll tell you, the success is that much sweeter when we earn it than when we have it handed to us.

Certainly this is not a knock at those that go out, have fun and put school second or third or fourth. Go ahead! College is what you make it and some people have different goals and expectations. Mine is to graduate close to top of my class, go to a respectable law school and hopefully retire by the time I'm 50. Some people's goals are to see if they can be honorary chairman of Coors. That is not my concern and, Elizondo, it shouldn't be yours either. Don't cloud your college memories with feelings of contempt, because the parties aren't.

Campus needs 'freaks' for balance

This letter is in response to David Galantowicz's editorial on so-called "freaks". David, without these festive freaks, ASU makes me want to smoke crack. In this slightly gigantic University, there are only about 50 individuals who look at all interesting or different. When I see these "freaks" on campus, I feel a little better about attending this dull, soulless, conservative, cookie-cutter school. I don't think of them as hoodlums or clowns but as people who are intriguing, independent, willing to take risks and constantly evolving their image as it fits their mood, instead of playing it safe and boring.

These people are not eyesores, but eye candy, all flavors. The real eyesores on campus are the people with orange tanning-booth skin, some awful co-ed naked (insert generic sport here) shirt, those wretched scrunchy hair ties sported around the wrist, white shoes after Labor Day or the ever-popular Birkenstocks and socks. By the way, fraternity tattoos make me violently ill.

For the love of God, there are more than enough utterly forgettable people around here, why do you feel the need to pick on those who are far more memorable than you? Oops, I think I just answered my own question. No doubt you have some issues about people forgetting who you are just moments after they've met you. Don't be bitter, just go and get a Prince Albert, it might give you some semblance of a personality.

It's a stealth fighter, not a stealth bomber. Duh!

I just wanted to make you aware of a mistake you published in the Monday, Sept. 16 State Press. It was regarding the article on the F-117A Stealth Fighter. You called it the F-117A Stealth "Fighter-Bomber." That is a mistake I have heard repeatedly over the last couple of weeks on the news.

There is no such plane. The F-117A is Lockheed-Martin's stealth fighter and the B-2 is Northrop's stealth bomber.

You quoted the source being the Department of Defense. The Department of Defense would never call that plane the stealth "fighter-bomber," nor would Lockheed-Martin. My father, Paul Martin, is vice president of tactical aircraft at Lockheed-Martin and is in charge of the F-117A program, so I would appreciate it if you were more responsible in the information you are publishing.

Editor's Note: The story was written by the Associated Press. Although the F-117 is classified as a fighter aircraft, it is a sub-sonic tactical bomber.

Dole fails test on crime issues

I have to express my amazement at Bob Dole's sudden "toughness" on crime and drug use. The former senator talks about how we can trust him to cut drug use in this country in half and yet he voted against President Clinton's Safe and Drug-Free Schools Act. After the act passed Dole voted to cut the program.

Dole and Speaker Newt Gingrich both also voted against the Improving America's Schools Act of 1994, which also authorized and expanded the Safe and Drug-Free School program.

These are only a couple of examples of Dole's failure on the crime issue, and it is very ironic that all of a sudden he decides cutting drug use in our schools is good when he could have worked for this goal while he was still in Congress.

In the future I would hope that the State Press will look at people's records before you go and put something like this on your front page. This was by far the worst distortion of facts in the State Press that I have ever read.

Team says thanks

What can we say? You guys in the stands are by far the best! Keep cheering and screaming because we hear you loud and clear. In past times you were the only group of fans that would show up faithfully and cheer your hearts out for the Devils, now that things have hopefully changed you are still going be number one. To all who have weathered the storm and remained loyal we give a personal thanks. See you all on Saturday!

Student Health Center will not offer abortion pill if approved

By SARA BUSH
STATE PRESS

Although the Food and Drug Administration moved closer Wednesday to approving RU-486 — the abortion pill — local professionals do not expect the drug to change abortion services in Arizona.

"RU-486 will increase the options for women and we're happy about that," said Cheryl Swain, acting executive director for Planned Parenthood in Central and Northern Arizona. "However, I don't think it is going to change the number of abortions."

Since official FDA approval of the drug is still pending, RU-486 will not be available for about a year. Planned Parenthood, whose clinic performs most of the surgical abortions in Arizona, said it will definitely offer the drug. Swain said other physicians such as OB/GYN doctors may begin to offer it as well.

Despite the differences between RU-486 and surgical abortion, ASU Student Health will not begin to offer the drug when it becomes available.

"From a clinical standpoint, it's not something we would be prepared to offer," said Carl Labbe, pharmacy manager for ASU Student Health. "Being a state institution, it's a touchy subject."

Abortion opponents worry about medical consequences of taking the abortion pill and the possibility of black market sales of the drug.

"There is no reason to approve the pill," said Dr. Carolyn Gerster, chairman of the board for Arizona Right to Life. "There are already 1.5 million abortions in this country every year."

She said the FDA has rushed the drug through the approval process and that European and American studies on it are flawed. Gerster also expressed concern about the drug falling into the wrong hands.

"Once it gets out there, there is no way we can control it. The potential for abuse will be great," she said.

RU-486 takes at least three doctor visits to induce abortion in women and is effective up to the seventh week of pregnancy.

On the first visit, a doctor administers RU-486 to dislodge the fetus from the uterine wall. Two days later, the doctor administers another drug to induce uterine contractions and expel the fetus. A third check-up visit follows a week or two later.

Side effects include cramping, nausea, and painful contractions.

"The fact is it's not an easy procedure," Swain said. "But some women feel that it is more private and they have more control over it."

Money sought for hurricane relief

By DEANNA DARR
STATE PRESS

One ASU student group is doing more than just talking about the problems in the world.

Asociación de Estudiantes Caribeños en ASU spent Thursday selling nonalcoholic daiquiris and taking donations to raise money for hurricane relief in Puerto Rico.

"It's more than just the money, it's making people conscious about what's happening in Puerto Rico," said Victor Torres, a doctoral student in material science and a native of Puerto Rico.

Yasha Rodriguez, a graduate student in archaeology, said 80 percent of the island had both electricity and water knocked out by the storm. She added that 24 people were killed and the agricultural economy of the island was severely damaged.

AECASU is made up of 25 students from the Caribbean islands and parts of Central America. Rodriguez said about one-third of the group is made up of students from Puerto Rico, all of whom have family there.

Ana Vega, senior industrial engineering major, said her uncle's farm in Puerto Rico was completely destroyed by the hurricane and the roof of her parents' home was partially taken off.

Money raised by the group will go into an account set up at a bank in Puerto Rico. The money will be used in various areas to help storm victims.

Rodriguez said student support was good. "People do stop, and even if they don't want to buy (a daiquiri) they donate money."

Students who would like to donate money for the hurricane relief effort should contact Victor Torres at 829-7569.

Ocotillo and Mariposa halls will offer a variety of informational programs aimed at educating students about campus safety issues next week.

"We want to keep people in mind of campus safety and that we are here for them," said Sylvester Chestnut, the hall director for Ocotillo and Mariposa. "We want to make the campus aware."

Safety Week will officially begin with a program demonstrating how students can stay safe in their dorm rooms Sunday at 8 p.m. in Ocotillo Hall.

The bulk of festivities will commence Tuesday and continue until Friday. Activities will include a question and answer session with ASU Crime Prevention Coordinator Radawna Michelle Tuesday and a seminar led by a University psychology professor designed to provide information and counseling for sexual assault victims Thursday.

Bicycle registration will be available beginning 3 p.m. on Tuesday and should last until Friday. An engraver will also be present for students who would like any personal items engraved for safety purposes.

The EDGE

PASSING OFFENSE

Nebraska quarterback Scott Frost threw only 12 passes in his Husker debut two weeks ago. ASU's Jake Plummer is making his 31st consecutive start. ASU has a big edge here and must exploit it often, lots, frequently and repeatedly. You get the picture.

RUSHING OFFENSE

Nebraska's running game ran the Sun Devil defense off the field last year. Literally. The Huskers finished with 394 yards on the ground. At least Heisman Trophy runner-up Tommie Frazier isn't running the Huskers' option to perfection anymore.

PASS DEFENSE

Nebraska has two potential all-Americans (Grant Wistrom and Jared Tomich) on the defensive line. ASU has only one all-American (Juan Roque) to block those two. Nebraska also ran back two interceptions for touchdowns in its season opener.

RUN DEFENSE

Practicing against Nebraska's run-dominated offense everyday in practice doesn't hurt the Huskers' defense. The Huskers limited Michigan State to 1.7 yards per carry.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Nebraska coach Tom Osborne has his team practice special teams in the middle of every practice and not at the end, like many schools do. The Huskers stress the importance of special teams and it pays off for them.

OVERALL

The Sun Devils need to show up in the first quarter. Last year, they didn't and fell behind 35-7 after 15 minutes. The first quarter will again be a key this year. If Nebraska takes a 14-point lead early, this game will be over awfully quick.

The Sun Devil defense, shown here against UofA last season, will be looking to swarm the Cornhuskers' high-powered rushing attack Saturday when ASU and Nebraska meet at 7:15 p.m. at Sun Devil Stadium.

Devils, Huskers ready to rumble

By Dustin Krugel
State Press

Get ready to rumble. "It's like getting a warm-up fight versus getting ready for Tyson coming to town," ASU head coach Bruce Snyder said of playing the two-time defending national champs Nebraska this week instead of North Texas.

"You better put your dukes up, baby." No. 17 ASU will face-off with No. 1 Nebraska at 7:15 Saturday night at Sun Devil Stadium.

The Sun Devils are lucky to get in the ring again after the Cornhuskers clocked ASU 77-28 with a first round knockout blow on Sept. 16, 1995 in Lincoln.

"They were no doubt the best team in college football, but I do feel they can be beaten," junior cornerback Jason Simmons said of last year's Cornhuskers.

Unfortunately for the Sun Devils, the 1996 version may be every bit the heavyweight that it was last year when the Huskers trounced Florida, 62-24, in the Fiesta Bowl. The Huskers enter the game 23-point favorites and have a 26-game winning streak and a 37-game regular-season winning streak on the line.

"They are one or two games, whatever it is, from having more than two national championships the last four years," Snyder said. "It's a tremendous challenge to play them because they are clearly in advance of everybody."

Last year ASU looked a little dizzy after the first play from scrimmage when Husker running back Clinton Childs scampered 65 yards for a touchdown. The Sun Devils did not pick themselves off the canvas until after the first half was completed when Nebraska already owned a 63-21 edge at halftime.

"I think the first quarter is very important," Snyder said. "I think you gain more fight the closer, the longer it goes. We just don't want it to get out of hand."

Neither does ASU's defense. A Nebraska run-dominated offense accumulated 394 yards on the ground against the Sun Devils one year ago.

"The only way to do it is stop the run," Snyder said of slowing the Husker offense down. "That's the only single way. They've led the nation in rushing every year. No one's been able to do it. They run the football. They have virtually every run known to man."

Snyder said Nebraska has ways of dissecting the most prepared game plans.

"They do a great job of adjusting during the game," he said. "You may have a great plan at the start of the game, but it might not be that great of a plan when they get done with it."

Snyder said he admires how Nebraska suddenly pulls plays out of a hat that haven't been run in years, just to exploit an unsuspecting defense.

"They'll look at you for awhile and say, 'this will work,'" he said. "They have it, it's just a matter of dusting it off. Getting lined up for every formation they use is a task in itself, just lining up. They know what they are doing and that's been that way in the past — forever."

Nebraska's defense has also been known to knock opponents senseless for 60 minutes. Against Michigan State in their season opener on Sept. 7, the Huskers returned two interceptions for touchdowns in the 55-14 victory.

"They are probably just as good, if not as good," ASU offensive coordinator Dan Cozzetto said. "Some of the guys who were starters last year are backups for them."

Legendary ASU coach Frank Kush (center) will have the field at Sun Devil Stadium named after him Saturday during ASU's game with Nebraska.

Legendary coach Kush to be honored at game

By Randy Jones
State Press

One hundred seventy-six wins. Two undefeated seasons. A 6-1 bowl record. Inducted into the college Hall of Fame on Dec. 12, 1995.

Frank Kush was, and still stands as, the greatest head coach in ASU football history.

Saturday has been declared "Frank Kush Day" by the athletic department, and the coaching legend will be honored with the stadium being renamed Sun Devil Stadium/Frank Kush Field in a ceremony during the halftime of the ASU/Nebraska game.

Other events involved in the celebration include a golf tournament, dinner roast and a variety of other pre-game activities. Tonight a dinner honoring the coach will be held, with all former Kush players invited to attend.

While his departure from ASU was not one of celebration, with allegations of punching a player and other problems in the program, his legacy and shadow still remain.

During his time in Tempe, Kush's teams had winning records in 19 of 22 seasons, produced 38 All-Americans and sent 128 players to the pros, including 10 first round draft choices. Kush was ASU's head coach from 1958 until 1979.

Kush currently is executive director of the Arizona Boys Ranch. He found out about the honor three months ago and is happy the program is remembering its roots as it makes a return to national prominence on the football field.

"It's really a tribute to everyone involved," he said. "I was there when the school had 4,200 students. I saw it grow physically as well as athletically. This is a tribute to all the people that were there. From Dan Devine (who hired Kush as an assistant), other coaches, the players and our fans."

Nebraska coach Tom Osborne had nothing but praise for the former coach.

"Frank's a good guy," he said. "He's

Senior kicker Robert Nycz attempts a field goal out of the hold of senior quarterback Jake Plummer. Nycz has already won one game for the Sun Devils this season with a 38-yard field goal with two seconds left against Washington to give ASU a 45-42 victory.

That tells you a little bit about their defense."

On the other side of the field, Nebraska head coach Tom Osborne was concerned with ASU's offense, which has averaged 48.5 points in its first two games. ASU was the only team to score more than 25 points against the Huskers last year.

"They seem to have good running backs, good skill players and overall good speed," he said. "Defensively they move around very well. So I've been very impressed with them. Their win over Washington was very impressive. They were very dominant against North Texas. So we feel we have our hands full of them."

Snyder said that Nebraska's offense and defense aren't ASU's No. 1 enemy Saturday.

"Their history is a distraction. They are still playing one man against another man. Nebraska's not the issue, it's us."

Fright Night is back

After sitting out against North Texas last Saturday with a broken middle finger, sophomore free safety Mitchell Freedman will make his return this week with a cast on, Snyder announced Thursday.

"Once I get into the game I don't even notice it's on," said Freedman, who played half of last season with a cast on his left hand. "I know it's there. I feel it on the sidelines. But in the game it helps to use my head, I can do the same thing that I can do with two hands. I'll just have to work a little harder when I make the hit. I'll have to hit a little bit harder."

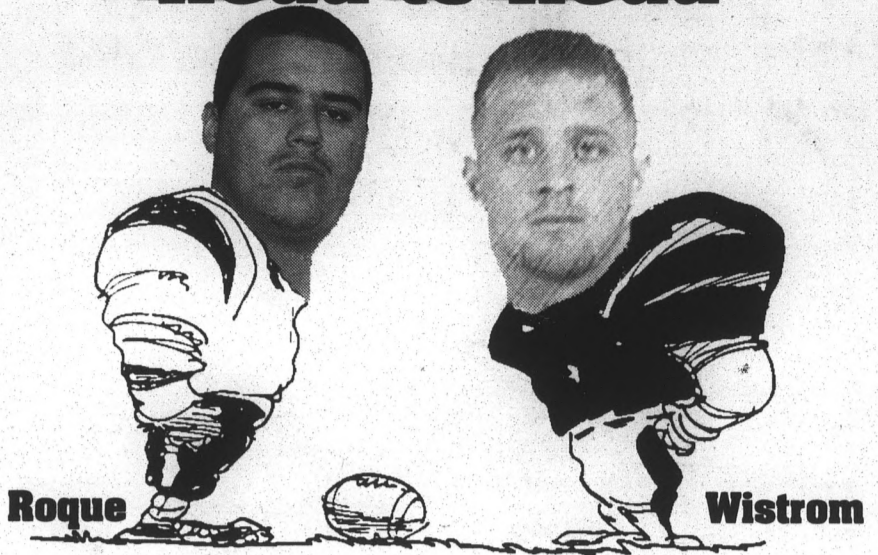

Snyder added that starters junior offensive guard Glen Gable (foot contusion), senior center Kirk Robertson (knee), senior defensive tackle Shawn Swayda (hamstring) and junior tailback Michael Martin (knee sprain) will start the game despite nagging injuries.

Snyder said he will make a game-day decision on senior offensive guard Pat Thompson (Achilles' heal).

Bye week massacres

In games following bye-weeks under coach Osborne, the Huskers are 21-4, last losing to Oklahoma in 1990. All four of the losses, have been to the Sooners.

Head to Head

BY DUSTIN KRUGEL
STATE PRESS

Only one obstacle stands between Nebraska defensive end Grant Wistrom and a black and blue Jake Plummer on Saturday night, but it's a very big problem for Wistrom.

For Wistrom, it is a 6-foot-8, 320-pound predicament in the name of ASU senior left tackle Juan Roque. Roque, who is widely regarded as the best tackle in college football west of Ohio State's Orlando Pace, is the man who is charged with the responsibility of shutting down the smaller 6-foot-5, 250-pound Wistrom.

"If he doesn't play good we will be in real trouble because we have to protect Jake's backside," ASU offensive coordinator Dan Cozzetto said of Roque.

During last year's meeting in Lincoln, Roque and Wistrom got well acquainted in Nebraska's runaway 77-28 victory.

"(Wistrom) played hard. This guy is fearless. He came at me every single play," Roque said. "We exchanged words, which is natural, of course. Pretty much the whole game we shut up and played. I know he's gunning for me. I know it's important for him to have a good game. I have to worry about my assignments and not the personal battle."

In last year's head-to-head dual, Roque held his own. Wistrom was limited to no sacks and only three tackles.

"(Roque) had a learning experience at times," Cozzetto said. "That was Juan Roque's first year playing left tackle. This year it will be a good matchup between the two."

One game was enough for Wistrom to make him believe Roque is one of the best tackles around.

"He can move well for a big person," Wistrom said. "I read where he gave up two sacks last year. He moves well for a big man. He held me without a sack. He's probably the best tackle I'll face this year. This (game) will see where I'll rank."

Wistrom won't be the only defensive stud on Nebraska's line, 6-foot-2, 265-pound, Jared Tomich, starts at the other end to give the Huskers possibly the best one-two punch in the country.

"They are the real deal," Cozzetto said. "Tomich and Wistrom are everything they are cracked up to be."

Cozzetto said there isn't much difference between the two and added that the Sun Devils don't plan on double teaming either player.

"Wistrom might be a little quicker, but that's where you play your fastest guy on that side," Cozzetto said of Wistrom, who plays right end. "He rushes the passer real well. He can really turn the corner. He has great balance. He's got good strength, too."

battled through some hard times. He was a hard-nosed, tough coach, but Frank's got a big heart."

Kush said he is happy the school is singling him out for the honor, but those who came before him and those there now should also be recognized.

Current head coach Bruce Snyder said the prosperous times athletically under Kush and other Sun Devil greats such as Devine, led to more than just great teams.

"Frank, along with some other very good coaches had a great run (here)," Snyder said. "They built that stadium (Sun Devil Stadium). I've said this before and probably got my butt in trouble over it, but I believe it, the reason Arizona State can rub elbows (academically) with the Stanfords, the Cals and the UCLAs is because of football. It's not just (a sport), it's this University. Whether we like it, or whether we want to recognize it, there is a tremendous benefit to have a program that is run right and is successful."

Along those lines, part of the goal of Frank Kush Day is to help student-athletes succeed academically. A $10 surcharge on Nebraska game tickets allowed the University to establish the Frank Kush Fund.

Of the money raised:

•$1 million will be used to establish a permanent funding for Academic and Student Services to provide student-athletes with tutoring and academic advising.

•$1 million will be used to endow a new summer scholarship program for players. These "get-ahead" summer programs will help student-athletes complete their degrees on time.

•$1 million will be used to endow the ASU football program.

Kush said these are the most important facets of the entire celebration.

"It's a fantastic thing," he said of the fund. "A lot of athletes now will have the opportunity to continue their educations. It is a great concept. It is especially good for athletes in the non-revenue sports, allowing them to finish."

Student regent creates ABOR web page for issues

By BECKY HILL
STATE PRESS

The Arizona Board of Regents is gearing up for next week's meeting at the UofA, and this time around students may have an easier time getting involved.

Students who try to stay informed and want to learn about agenda items up for discussion or approval at upcoming Arizona Board of Regents meetings would, in the past, have to wade through about 100 pages of pink and white paper, or call Tucson to speak with the student regent, Jonathan Schmitt.

Schmitt changed all that this week when he established a World Wide Web homepage with an e-mail link for students to contact him directly.

"I will list those items from the agenda that affect students, give a short summary of those issues and possibly offer my initial opinion on the item," he said via e-mail.

"Because I attend classes all day, I am place-bound and students don't have access to me.

Schmitt, a senior studying agricultural and resource economics at UofA, said "This will create a new mode for students to communicate with their student regent and for me to keep in contact with my constituents."

The page is new but should be up and running today. It will include issue summaries for next week's meeting.

The Web site currently offers biographical information on Schmitt and background about the duties, selection and history of the student regent position.

Some of the discussion items expected to garner the student interest include:

- The first reading of a proposed new policy for out-of-state tuition waivers.
- A presentation of early-awareness programs for "at-risk kids" hoped to eliminate the need for affirmative action programs on college campuses in the future.
- Proposal for a low-power electronics research center meant to take advantage of the portable electronics market which is expected to triple by the end of the century.

POLICE REPORT

ASU police reported the following incidents Thursday:

- A male affiliated with ASU reported that someone damaged an ASU vehicle at the Facilities Management compound.
- A female affiliated with ASU reported that someone removed her purse and its contents from the College of Business.
- A male affiliated with ASU reported that he lost one key belonging to ASU.
- A male affiliated with ASU was arrested on an outstanding warrant from the ASU Department of Public Safety. The subject was able to post bond and was released.
- A male student reported that someone removed his bike tire from Palo Verde West.

• A male student was contacted at the Student Recreational Complex, where he had sustained an injury. He was transported to a local hospital.

• A female student reported that someone threatened her at Ocotillo Hall.

• A female student was arrested, cited and released for possession of marijuana at Sonora Hall.

Tempe police reported the following incidents Thursday:

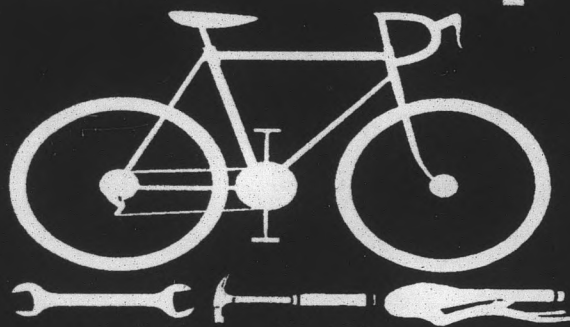

- Mesa police arrested a woman for aggravated assault when investigations revealed that she had pointed an assault-type rifle at seven people ranging in age from 19 to 15 years old outside her house at 2124 E. Carson Drive.

One of the victims went to the house to confront the suspect's sister who was believed to have damaged the victim's truck. The other victims went to the house to watch the confrontation. The woman was transported and booked into Tempe City Jail.

• A man was arrested at Mill Avenue and Baseline Road for conspiracy to distribute dangerous drugs and misconduct involving weapons after investigations revealed he was involved in a five pound methamphetamine deal. The man was also found to be in possession of a loaded handgun that was found under his car seat.

Volleyball begins Pac-10 play hosting Cal, Stanford

BY DOUG COOK
STATE PRESS

When the unranked ASU volleyball team faces its first Pac-10 foes of the season today and Sunday at the University Activity Center, the Sun Devils will be challenging teams from completely opposite ends of the spectrum.

ASU (5-1) will hook up first with unranked California (2-3) at 7 tonight. The Golden Bears are coming off a ninth-place finish in the conference in 1995. ASU then turns around and plays unbeaten, second-ranked Stanford (6-0) Sunday at 1 p.m. The Cardinal were last year's Pac-10 champ and are one of the finest programs in the country.

Sun Devil head coach Patti Snyder-Park, whose team has had almost two weeks to prepare for the beginning of conference play, said she is confident in her squad.

"We (coaching staff) kind of feel good about what's been happening in practice," she said. "We feel the players have been improving individually, (and) we're settling more into our offense."

ASU, picked to finish eighth in the Pac-10 by the conference coaches in a preseason poll, has been putting up impressive individual numbers in its first five matches.

Junior outside hitter Terri Cox ranks first in the Pac-10 in kills average (6.32) and digs average (5.21), while placing second in the nation in both of those categories.

Snyder-Park is very pleased with Cox's contributions thus far.

"She's just a tremendous athlete and she's got so much experience," she said of Cox. "It's remarkable that she can make the shift from the right to the left side and put up those kinds of numbers. It says a lot about her ability."

ASU is led by Cox and senior setter

Tracy Heflin. Heflin is averaging 13.95 assists per game, giving her first place in the Pac-10 in that category.

The Sun Devils have not competed since Sept. 7 when they played at the Capital Premiere tournament in Washington, D.C.

The rest could help the Sun Devils. California, which recently lost two matches to No. 1 Hawaii, may come into Tempe a tired team.

The Golden Bears, which finished last year's campaign with a 13-15 overall record and 5-13 in the conference, will return three starters from the '95 team.

Heflin said Cal has improved greatly over the past year.

"They're progressively getting really good," she said of the Golden Bears. "They have a lot of ball control and they dig everything. That's going to be a tougher match than Stanford because we're at the same level as them (Cal)."

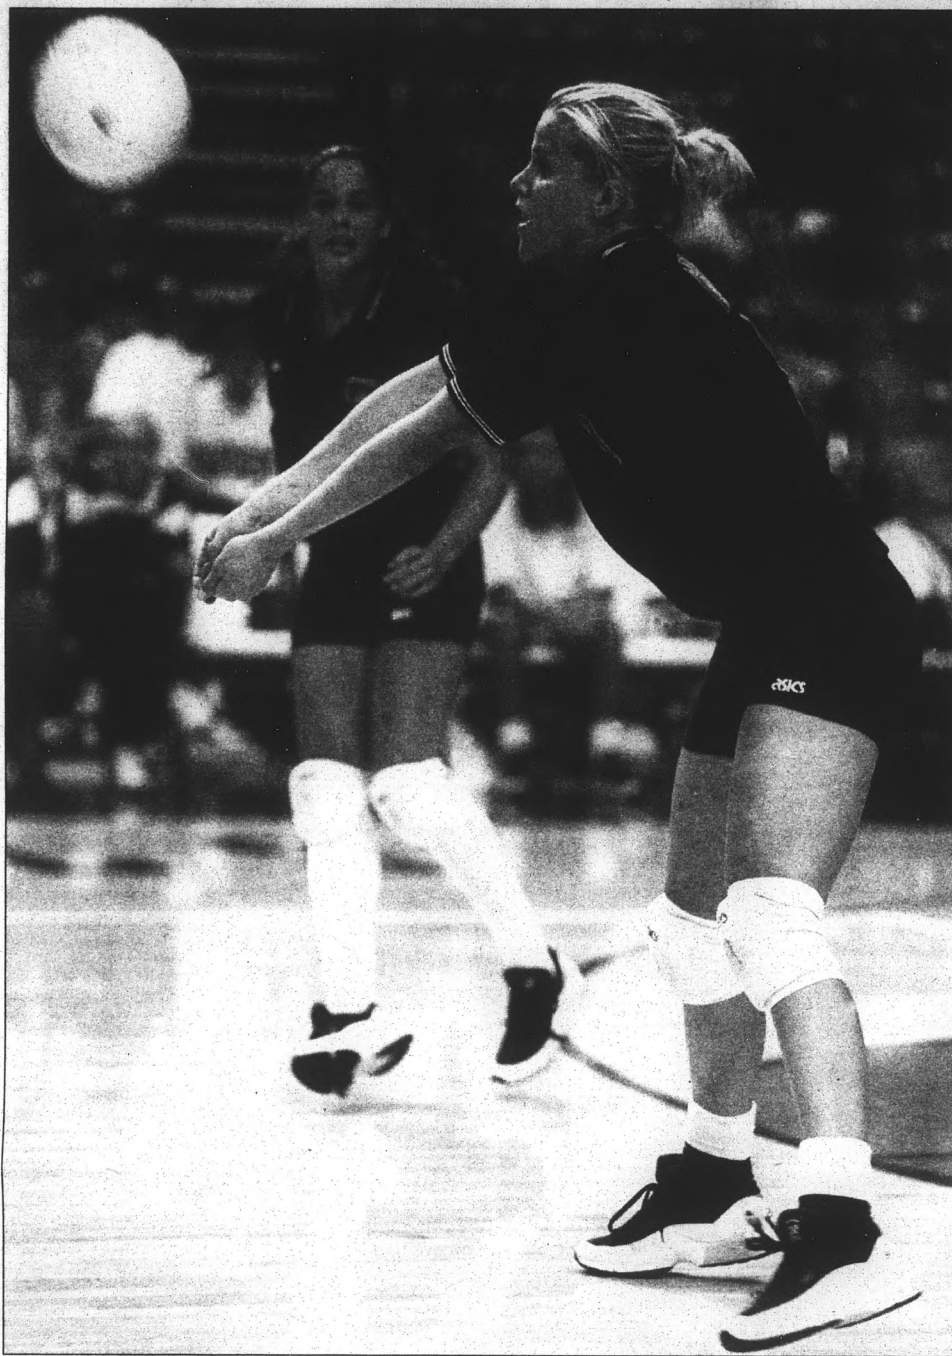

Cox agreed.

"I expect them (Cal) to be much tougher (than '95) because they were a young team last year and they basically have all the same players. They've been playing longer together," she said. "They probably have a little more experience than we do."

Junior outside hitters Jessica Dinaberg and Michelle Wickman will head a young team that includes five freshman.

Dinaberg has already shined for Cal this season. Playing in 16 of the team's 17 games, she is leading the Golden Bears in kills with 39 and is third in digs with 41. Wickman is second in digs with 42 and tied for second in kills with 38.

Don't overlook Cal's talented corps of freshmen, however. Freshman outside hitter Brook Coulter is leading the team in digs with 43 and has notched 38 kills. Also, freshman middle blocker Kellie Alva

Tim Hacker/State Press
Sophomore outside hitter Jen Lucero (front) and junior outside hitter Terri Cox will help lead the Sun Devils into their first Pac-10 action of the season, when ASU takes on California at 7 tonight at the UAC.

Sun Devil runners finally start season at Aztec Invitational

BY JOSH DEFAMIO
STATE PRESS

At the beginning of the season, the ASU cross country teams were introduced to a new coach with an entirely new training style.

Saturday, the team will finally get to see how well the extra practice worked.

The men and women Sun Devils travel to Southern California to participate in the Aztec Invitational, hosted by San Diego State University.

Both teams ran in the meet last year, with the men finishing fifth and the women coming in eleventh. Fresno State and UCLA won the men's and women's races, respectively, last season.

Junior transfer Priscilla Boldt sees the race as a chance to build team unity.

"Although we've been practicing together, we're still a whole new team," Boldt said. "Except for (senior runner) Kim Barrett, we're all very new to ASU cross country. Hopefully this race will help us to understand each other, to find out what we're all about."

Along with Barrett, who placed first for the ASU women in every race last season, Boldt is expected to be one of the top runners for the women this season.

Veterans Travis Anderson and Vondre Armour will be the top runners for the men's team. Three of the top athletes, seniors Ari Rodriguez and Matt Repak and sophomore Andy Carusetta, are redshirting this season.

The race will also be the ASU debut for Head Coach

Walter Drenth, who replaced Ken Lehman during the summer. Although he is excited about seeing his athletes compete, Drenth recognizes the importance of the early race.

"It's a start," he said. "Right now, we don't have very many runners on either side, so everybody is a top runner. We're just going to get an idea of how hard we need to work and (how) competitive we will be. If we run our best now, we'll have a hard time keeping that level. We want to run well now, and improve as the season progresses."

The race will be the first for the squads this season. The Sun Devils were forced to withdraw from a Flagstaff race scheduled for Sept. 6 due to confusion caused by Drenth's late arrival.

ASU soccer drops 3rd straight

FROM STAFF REPORTS

The ASU women's soccer team lost for the third consecutive time Thursday, 2-0, to the Willamette University Bearcats in Salem, Ore.

ASU fell to 1-3, while Willamette, the NAIA's No. 20-ranked team, improved to 3-1.

The Bearcats struck early with a goal by Katie Edmonds in the third minute of the game. They added a second on a penalty kick by Kristy Ell at the 21:54 mark.

Junior keeper Amy Moxley made five saves in her second start of the season. The Bearcat's Robin Heard made nine saves.

The Sun Devils have not scored in their last three matches. In all, ASU has not scored a goal in 299 minutes. Junior Julie Blagg tallied the last goal against Cal-State Northridge on Sept. 6.

For the game, the Sun Devils were outshot 18-10. The Bearcats had seven corner kicks to ASU's six.

Golf in 3rd after 1 round of play

FROM STAFF REPORTS

The No. 3 ASU women's golf team shot an opening-round 300 Thursday at the 18th annual Dick McGuire Invitational in Albuquerque.

The Sun Devils are in second place after one round, eight strokes behind the defending NCAA champion UofA Wildcats (292). New Mexico is third (301). San Jose State is fourth (302) and Texas A&M is fifth (303) in the par-73 course.

Sun Devil coach Linda Vollstedt, said she is pleased with her team's performance so far.

"Everyone looked good (Thursday)," she said.

ASU junior Kellee Booth leads all golfers after one round with a 4-under-par 69. She birdied on the first hole and was sharp the entire round.

Booth said she played very well and that she hopes to win the individual title.

Other ASU scores were sophomore Jody Niemann (76) and sophomore Tui Selvaratnam (77) Sophomore Keri Cornelius and junior transfer Jeanne-Marie Busuttill both shot 79.

The Sun Devils return to action at 8:30 a.m. today. The tourney's final round will be played Saturday.

HIV-positive Morrison illogical in decision to return to ring

In the movie Rocky V, a young, flamboyant fighter named Tommy Gunn took the heavyweight division by storm. He was cocky. He was muscular. He was popular. He intimidated Rocky Balboa (played by Sylvester Stallone) in the ring. It seemed that he owned the world.

In real life — not reel life — Tommy Gunn is the 27-year-old Jay, Okla. native named Tommy Morrison.

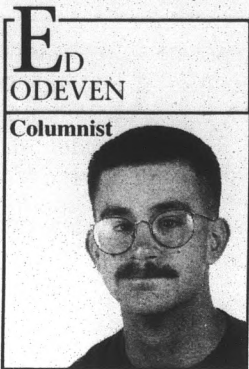

He too is a boxer. Unfortunately for Morrison, the similarities between the two end there.

Morrison testified positive for HIV, the virus that causes AIDS in February. He was scheduled to fight Arthur Weathers in Las Vegas when the disheartening news was revealed and the Nevada Athletic Commission suspended his boxing license.

He announced that he was going to retire because he had HIV and that he believed the virus could be transmitted through cuts.

Thursday Morrison officially announced he was returning to the ring.

AIDS is transmitted via exchanges of bodily fluids, including blood. If Morrison plans to return to boxing is he or his opponent safe?

No. Morrison's decision defies logic. It also defies common sense.

Boxing is a sport of intense violence. Bloody cuts are as common as bibles are at a Baptist church on a Sunday morning.

Does Morrison really think he will be safe?

"I don't care what the doctors say," said Morrison, in a Feb. 14 interview with the Kansas City Star. "I think it can be passed. I don't think doctors really know. I'm glad I found out. I could have fought for another three or four years.

And prove what?

Morrison was 45-3-1 during a mediocre career that spanned eight years. His most noted achievement was knocking out Ray Mercer in the fifth round in 1991. He also defeated George Foreman in a 12-round split decision in 1993.

But his career took a downward slope the last few years. He was KOed by lightly-regarded Michael Bentt in 1993 and Lennox Lewis in 1995.

Morrison has nothing to prove. It's unfortunate that he doesn't see that. By reviving his boxing career, he is risking his own life and the life of anyone dumb enough to fight him.

His decision to unretire has not been a positive one.

Angelo Dundee, a long-time manager-trainer for heavyweights (including the legendary Muhammad Ali) was not shocked by Morrison's decision.

"I'm not surprised at all knowing the type of kid that Tommy Morrison is. He's a go-for-broke kind of guy," Dundee said.

John Russell, Buster Douglas' ex-trainer, strongly opposes Morrison's comeback.

"I think all states should ban him," Russell told the USA Today. "I'm not trying to take his living away, but how can they let him fight? And who in their right mind would fight him?"

The brainless wonder is Ross Puritty.

Puritty fought Morrison in 1994 in a 10-round draw and has been mentioned as a possible opponent.

"I haven't heard a thing," Puritty told the Kansas City Star. "If it's true, I would fight him. I'll fight anybody, anywhere. From what I understand, no one has caught AIDS through a cut ..."

Does Puritty want to be the first?

Puritty believes his blood will stay pure when he goes mano y mano versus Morrison.

Morrison has devoted his retirement to establishing the Knockout AIDS Foundation, a charity organization that will educate children about the disease. He plans to donate money from his fights to help children with AIDS.

Morrison's heart is in the right place, but his brain isn't. While he may be helping others learn about AIDS, he is forgetting that he could infect somebody else.

Morrison should be given the nickname "Lethal Weapon," because that is exactly what he will be in the ring.

has chipped in with 37 kills and 22 digs overall.

"They are really good, experienced club players, kind of like our freshmen," Snyder-Park said of Alva and Coulter.

Snyder-Park added that the Golden Bears are a much improved team this year.

"We definitely know they're stronger," she said of Cal. "We played them in the spring season and they beat us in a spring tournament. And they've got some pretty good freshmen added to their roster, so it's going to be a real battle. We are very similar teams. ... They're coming from the bottom up so they're going to play with that 'nothing to lose' attitude."

Stanford, picked to win the Pac-10 in the conference coaches' preseason poll, returns four starters from a team that went 29-3 overall and 18-0 in the conference. The Cardinal made it to the semifinals of the NCAA Volleyball Championships last year where the team lost to Texas in five games.

Snyder-Park said her team needs to fluster Stanford. "We just have to serve extremely tough against them (and) get them out of their offense," Snyder-Park said. "We need to make their offense a lot more predictable by tougher serving."

Cox said the Cardinal are amazing. "They have all-around talent," she said. "All of those girls come with a lot of experience, not just in collegiate volleyball, but they started out young playing for top-notch club teams. They know what it's like to win."

Stanford is led by junior outside hitter Kristin Folkl and middle blockers Barbara Ifejika and Eileen Murfee.

Folkl is a second team '95 AVCA All-American who played in only 66 games for the Cardinal last year due to a stint with the U.S. National Team. She is leading Stanford in kills this year with 93 while posting second in digs with 47.

Ifejika, a junior who was a second-team Pac-10 All-American last year, has compiled 36 kills and 32 digs in 19 games this season. Murfee, a senior who played in all of Stanford's 32 matches in '95, is third on the team in kills with 61, including 31 digs defensively in '96.

That's not to mention freshman middle blocker/outside hitter Kerri Walsh. She is second on the team in kills with 71 and third in digs with 39 — all in just 17 games.

"It's hard to contain anybody on Stanford," Snyder-Park said. "Walsh is doing the most damage for them. She's putting more balls away, hitting at a higher efficiency than Folkl right now."

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST by Frances Drake Friday, September 20, 1996

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although luck is with you on the job, you still need care with details. Business and pleasure mix to your advantage. The personal touch works for you in dealings with bigwigs.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You won't be sitting home alone. Both singles and married folks will find this a most romantic time. Be sure to accept pleasurable invitations for upcoming good times.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You find yourself working over time on a career matter. Let a partner choose where you should dine or dance for the evening hours. A family member could harp about the same old thing but needs to be handled sensitively.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) After some early socializing, you'll be in a working mood. A friend could have a business tip that really helps you out. Avoid ideological disputes and discussions after dark.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) You'll get an early start. Although pleasure is your goal, you'll also accomplish something of importance at work. Know when to call it a day and be sure to get enough rest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Clear up unfinished tasks you've put off from some time ago. It seems you're called upon to help others out. Attend to a social obligation once the sun sets.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) It's a good time for new starts, but your ego could be out of line. Make a point of saving money. An acquaintance is after something, so be on your guard and listen to your intuition. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You could throw away some money on something frivolous if you're not careful. Improved concentration leads to mental accomplishments. One snide remark is made deliberately in your earshot.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) There'll be some difference of taste or opinion with friends, though you'll also be meeting with new introductions. Partners are supportive. Turn to them for much-needed advice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) You'll need the skills of tact and diplomacy if dealing in business matters. You'll meet with success largely through your own efforts. Do your own thing after dark and don't listen to others' complaints.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) You could be disappointed that a close tie is not more supportive. Still, you will make career progress. Count on your own efforts and be self-reliant.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) Worry about a career matter shouldn't be allowed to keep you from having a good time. The relaxation will do you a world of good. You've been too hard on yourself.

YOU BORN TODAY have executive talents and administrative skills. You'd make a good fund-raiser and sometimes are attracted to government service. You dislike taking advice and prefer to be at the forefront of things. You are also creative and may be drawn to the theater, either as a performer or a critic. Although fond of display, you usually have good business sense.
