ASU beefing up merit-based raises

BY MELODY McDONALD
STATE PRESS

For the employees of ASU, good, hard work pays off — literally.

In an effort to reward faculty and classified staff members and bring them closer to market value, about 2 percent of the University's salary base will be dispersed among well-deserving employees, said Provost Milton Glick.

The pay raise will begin Jan. 1, 1997.

The increase is in addition to the 1 percent raise and $500 that the Arizona Legislature set aside last session. That state-appropriated pay raise goes into effect April 1.

"If someone is not performing satisfactorily, we will not be giving a merit-based raise," Glick said. "We need to make our compensation more appropriate."

Alan Carroll, director of University Fiscal Planning and Analysis, agreed.

"It's depressing when you work your tail off and someone is else getting the same kind of increase you do," he said.

The funding — about $4 million — will come through the reallocation of existing funds, Carroll said.

Funds will be spread among employees who do well on their annual performance evaluations, which should give them an incentive to maintain high performance, said Jacque Gutierrez, Classified Staff Council president.

"Now, staff will be compensated for doing a good job," she said. "Evaluations are going to be worth something now."

This is the third year in a row ASU has supplemented the legislative salary adjustment, Carroll said. He added that although the supplemental merit-based pay raise is not enough to make a large impact overall, it shows that ASU is doing what it can.

"I think we're letting our employees know that ASU is committed to doing something about it," he said.

Facilities Management and Residential Life have earmarked more than $1 million in an effort to upgrade ASU's elevators. Facilities Management receives about 10 elevator service calls daily, most due to the ages of the elevators.

$1 million to boost elevator service

BY KENNES BOLIG
STATE PRESS

Students who favor walking eight flights of stairs to braving ASU's elevators will get a lift soon.

More than $1 million has been earmarked to upgrade elevators with slow service and out-dated controls, said D.L. Smith, superintendent of Facilities Management's electric shop.

Facilities Management has allotted about $780,000 to remedy the problem, Smith said. The money will only cover improvements for five or six of the most needy elevators, he said. Facilities Management originally requested about $1 million to cover the cost of upgrading the worst elevators, but did not receive the funding, he said.

These upgrades should be complete by the end of this year.

Residential Life has contributed $350,000 toward the upgrades, focusing efforts on the elevators in Cholla Apartments, said Mohammad Madjidi, Residential Life program coordinator.

Many elevators will receive computerized systems, replacing the older tubes and wiring, which often generated a lot of heat and noise, Madjidi said.

"When you look at the new versus the old, there is quite a contrast," he said. "With the new system, there will be less problems, they can be programmed much easier and delivery is much quicker."

Efforts to upgrade the University's 143 elevators emerged from a study which identified 56 elevators in need of service, Smith said. The study, completed in January, looked at elevator traffic, age and size. Recommended upgrades were prioritized by immediate or secondary need.

The study ranked 10 elevators at the highest degree of need, Smith said. He added that the two primary problems cited — slow service and out-dated controls — can be attributed to the elevators' ages.

Facilities Management estimates that its service department receives about 10 elevator service calls daily. The amount of service calls stems from ASU's high number of elevators, Smith said. He added that comparatively, the number is not high.

"We have no more failures than they do in other elevated buildings," he said.

Smith added that although problems with campus elevators are "usually nothing major," he understands people's frustrations.

Still, Smith said the quality of campus elevators has been improving. He added that since ASU contracted with Millar Elevator Service Company, Facilities Management has received less calls and more elevators have been repaired permanently.

Two Millar mechanics are on campus five days a week to conduct routine maintenance and to respond if an elevator breaks down.

All elevators have a phone hooked up to the ASU Department of Public Safety if an elevator breaks down with passengers in it, said Bob Ubar, general manager for Millar. The police then contact either the Millar mechanics if the breakdown occurs between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. or — if the breakdown is after 5 p.m. — the Tempe Fire Department.

Ubar said if people find themselves trapped inside a malfunctioning elevator, they do not need to worry.

"The safest place is in an elevator," he said. "If it starts to move, there are tons of safeties on them. It takes only one cable to hold an elevator — we put five on them. It's virtually impossible for an elevator to drop."

Tempe man takes swing at golf passes

BY BILL BERTOLINO
SPECIAL TO THE STATE PRESS

Tempe resident Jerry Taylor is planning to tee off against the Tempe City Council by filing a petition to stop city workers from using recreational passes.

Tempe allows retired employees and their guests, current and former city council members, and current members of its boards and commissions to use passes to golf for free at its courses. This benefit has been available to selected city workers for more than 26 years.

"I have over 2,000 signatures from Tempe taxpayers opposing these controversial recreation passes," said Taylor, a Tempe resident for 30 years, at Thursday's city council meeting.

The issue dates back to early last year when the council members had virtually unlimited use of the passes. They could also receive free golf carts at the concessionaire's discretion.

Councilman Ben Arredondo became the center of attention Thursday night because he has denied taking free golf carts in the past. But according to Dick Sanders, former golf professional at Ken McDonald Golf Course, Arredondo has used the carts.

"He (Arredondo) was given free golf carts, just like all the council members," Sanders said.

In a December interview with the Tempe Tribune, Arredondo said he had receipts to verify payment for the use of golf carts.

"The city attorney said that those are my private receipts, so I don't have to turn them over," he said. "I don't know what purpose they will serve."

Despite the attention, Tempe officials believe that the recreation passes are no longer an issue.

"We have already addressed the issue — it's a situation where the guy (Taylor) won't give up," said Ron Pies, community services director.

According to Nachie Marquez, Tempe community services manager, the policy was changed in May 1995.

City officials assert that the revised policy has set guidelines which make abuse of the recreation passes very easy to spot.

The old policy would allow city officials to take $30,000 out of the general fund to compensate for the costs of golf and other recreational activities.

According to Pies, money is no longer taken from the general fund.

"The cost to the city is infinitesimal, maybe even less than 2 percent," he said.

The city has also made changes to the frequency that an individual can use the passes and the number of guests that can be permitted to play. Furthermore, officials have restricted the concessionaires from giving free carts to council members.

"It (policy) allows them to golf an average of once a week, or 52 times a year, with one guest," Pies said.

Minimum wage increases today

BY JOHN D. MCCLAIN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Nearly 4 million American workers are getting a pay raise today.

The minimum wage rises 50 cents to $4.75 an hour, the first of two increases enacted by a sharply divided Congress that will boost it to $5.15 an hour next Sept. 1.

The 90-cent raise means an additional $1,800 annually for a full-time worker. The last increase, 45 cents, was in April 1991.

"The minimum wage is not going to cure poverty in one fell swoop," Labor Secretary Robert Reich said in an interview. "But clearly this is a major step forward for hard-working people at the bottom rung of our economy."

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said 3.66 million hourly workers earn at or below the current minimum.

Congress enacted the increase on Aug. 2 — a rare Democratic legislative victory during 20 months of Republican control that came only with the help of GOP moderates.

"I don't think there was a single issue in the 104th Congress on which the sides were so opposed and the debate was so clear," Reich said.

Both sides used different studies to support their arguments.

Conservative Republicans argued vehemently that raising the minimum wage would price many entry-level jobs out of market. House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, was so opposed he had pledged to fight the raise "with every fiber of my being."

Democrats said if the wage was not increased, its inflation-adjusted value would fall to a 40-year low by January. They said passage would lift 300,000 people out of poverty.

In the end, the legislation included a $21 billion package of tax cuts over 10 years, mollifying conservatives and their small-business backers, who are getting more generous equipment write-offs and a new type of simplified pension plan for companies employing 100 or fewer workers.

The wage package partly excludes workers who receive tips. Their employers will have to pay a minimum of $2.13 an hour, the same as before, and provide more only if the employees don't collect enough tips to earn the new minimum.

It also provides a "training wage" that holds the hourly rate at $4.25 an hour for employees younger than 20 during their first 90 days on the job.

Congressional negotiators endorse domestic violence gun ban

BY DAVID PACE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Under pressure from the White House and Senate Democrats, congressional Republicans agreed to a sweeping domestic violence gun ban, abandoning most of their alternative proposal.

The final language was hammered out over the weekend as part of the huge spending bill before the Senate. It expands the current ban on gun ownership or possession by felons to include virtually anyone convicted of a misdemeanor involving domestic violence.

"This legislation will save the lives of thousands of battered women and abused children," said Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., who proposed a similar ban that was endorsed by the Senate 97-2 earlier this month.

Rep. Bob Barr, R-Ga., a former U.S. attorney, proposed an alternative last week that would have extended the gun ban to people convicted of domestic abuse misdemeanors only if physical force was involved, and only if the person was notified of the gun ban when arrested, given the right to counsel and a trial by jury.

Last week, congressional Republicans initially agreed to substitute Barr's alternative for the Lautenberg amendment. That brought protests from Senate Democrats and the White House, since President Clinton initially proposed the gun ban during his train trip to the Democratic Convention in August.

Barr contended Lautenberg's original bill was unconstitutional. States do not uniformly define misdemeanor crimes, he said, so Lautenberg's bill would have violated the equal protection clause of the Constitution.

He also complained that Lautenberg proposal ignored the general law exemption that would have kept the gun ban from applying to police officers and military personnel. The final agreement included Barr's language removing that exemption.

In the agreement reached during the weekend, congressional Republicans dropped Barr's language requiring notification of the gun ban at the time of arrest. They also agreed to modify Barr's language extending the ban only to persons convicted after a jury trial, or after having waived a jury trial.

Democrats claimed that would have exempted most convicted abusers from the ban because few such cases carry punishments severe enough to guarantee the right to a jury trial.

PLO Leader Yasser Arafat speaks to the press during his arrival at the Cairo airport from Alexandria after his meeting with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak on Monday. Arafat is planning to fly to Washington for the summit with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu on rescuing Israel-Palestinian peace talks, a Palestinian official said.

Expectations modest for Mideast summit

BY BARRY SCHWEID
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Against a backdrop of deep distrust and modest U.S. expectations, Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat and Israel's Benjamin Netanyahu headed for a White House summit aimed at ending an upsurge of violence in the Mideast and keep flagging peace hopes alive.

Summing up the situation on the eve of what for President Clinton was a politically risky summit, Secretary of State Warren Christopher said Monday: "It's clear to me that the Middle East peace process is in a state of crisis."

Peacemaking is like riding a bicycle, he told reporters: "You have to keep going forward."

Netanyahu, speaking with reporters on his plane en route to Washington, offered to hold continuous negotiations with the Palestinians after the Washington summit and "until agreement is reached."

But a senior U.S. official described Arafat and Netanyahu as so distrustful of each other that simply getting them to "re-engage" is the first order of business at the Washington summit.

"They are not talking to each other in a way that anything could be resolved," said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

He said the summit agenda must include Hebron, the West Bank town where Israel has not fulfilled a pledge to pull its troops away from Arab residents, and safe passage for Palestinian workers entering and leaving Israel.

More than 5,000 Jewish settlers demonstrated near Hebron's Tomb of the Patriarchs on Monday, pressing for continued Israeli rule there. Palestinians demand that Israel pull its troops out of the biblical town, but Netanyahu says Hebron's tiny Jewish minority wouldn't be safe if he did.

The official said the United States was not insisting the summit deal with Netanyahu's decision to open a new entrance to a tourist tunnel that borders Muslim and Jewish holy sites in Jerusalem — an action that touched off Arab riots.

However, the two sides could bring up any issue they wished, the official said.

Clinton planned to meet separately today with Netanyahu and then Arafat before all parties sat down together. A Wednesday meeting also was planned.

In a setback for the White House, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak rejected Clinton's telephone invitation to join Jordan's King Hussein as a summit participant. Hussein arrived in Washington on Monday night.

STATE PRESS Editorial Wage hike step toward progress

People making minimum wage finally have something to celebrate, although breaking open that bottle of Dom Perignon may be a little excessive.

The federal minimum wage was raised from $4.25 to $4.75 effective today, the first raise in more than five years. This is the first of a two part hike, with another 50 cents coming down the pike next year.

Students and workers slaving away for minimum wage can finally afford that long awaited vacation to Globe, provided they don't need to pay rent, eat, cough up insurance fees or buy anymore school books for the next two months.

The wage hike has been a long time coming. Bitterly resisted by congressional Republicans who claimed the wage hike would spiral inflation through the roof and crush the economy by destroying American business, the wage increase is the first real break for the working person in a long time.

Of course, many will say raising the minimum wage will only result in job flight to third-world countries. Look around, pal. When was the last time you saw a TV, toaster, telephone or just about any other consumer device with a "made in the USA" sticker?

Others will say an increase in the minimum wage will spur inflation and lead to a recession. Think about that for a minute. When was the last time an increase in the minimum wage actually spurred a recession? It hasn't happened.

During a period when corporate fat-cats and wheeler-dealers are closing American factories, laying off workers and absconding with huge stock options and obscene salaries, it would only seem fair to kick the worker bees a few crumbs, since more than 4 million Americans work for minimum wage.

Considering a C.E.O. at a Fortune 500 company would generally start off with a yearly salary of $1 million, the executive shouldn't be complaining about making more than 195,000 times as much as the lowest paid-company employee. Of course, this simple calculation doesn't take into account the C.E.O.'s bonuses (generally for cutting overhead — e.g. employees) stock options, board membership payments or any of a million perks — from free cars to free housing — corporate fat-cats receive.

And compared with 1995 corporate profits, 50 cents an hour is a microscopic amount of crumbs. Since the last time the minimum wage was increased, the real buying power of the minimum wage has dropped 27 percent.

While the extra $1,040 a year will definitely aid those struggling along, the $9,980 an American working at minimum wage will earn still falls well below the poverty level.

Business executives have been raking it in over the last 10 years while the American worker has been left farther and farther behind. Money is becoming more concentrated in the hands of the few and although a raise in the national minimum wage won't do much to change that, it is a step in the right direction and it will give millions of American workers a marginally improved life.

Politicians demonstrate two faces when dealing with family values

I pledge allegiance, to the flag, of the United States of America. To the republic, for which it stands, one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

Remember that?

One hundred years ago, women did not have the right to vote. One hundred years ago, recently emancipated slaves struggled to overcome prejudice.

One hundred years later, on the doorstep of the 21st century, women and minorities still must fight for acceptance and equality. Those fights have assumed an air of legitimacy because the documenting of those struggles have become threads in the tapestry of our history. When it becomes collective, there is the beginning of acceptance.

But what about homosexuals? These are the days where their fight is becoming public and so far, they are being denied liberty and justice. There were the gays in the military flap, where the issue was brought up that maybe it was OK for them to be in the armed forces because, hey, maybe their homosexuality didn't prevent them from shooting a gun just like the other soldiers.

Prejudice kept that from being overtly accepted. Now you "don't ask, don't tell." Some believe the policy is progress, but realists know it is legally indefensible, a house of cards waiting to fall.

Now we have the Defense of Marriage Act. This act says that legally a marriage must consist of one man, one woman. No variations, thank you very much. President Clinton signed this into law after Congress passed it. You have to love election years. Elected officials are paid a more than reasonable amount of money so they can debate gems like this. How long before this is challenged and struck down by the Supreme Court?

Think about the irony involved here. It is a bilateral goal to bring back "family values," a blanket statement that means people should stop screwing around and spreading social diseases. Yet, we are excluding a lifestyle that could use normalization and should be encouraged to promote monogamous relationships. If family values are the goal, let's give everyone the mechanism to create a family.

Maybe tolerance will grow with the realization that a significant portion of our society is homosexual. This process has begun and is a significant issue in our own state. Two major political figures have opened up about their homosexuality. Arizona Republican Congressman Jim Kolbe revealed he is gay last month under pressure from The Advocate, a national gay magazine, which was going to make the announcement, or "out" him, with or without his permission. This on the tail of his vote for the Defense of Marriage Act. Closer to home, Tempe Mayor Neil Giuliano made a similar announcement recently when he believed a city resident was going to out him. Both announcements were met with outpourings of support.

The support seems to come from the rational understanding that what people do in their own bedrooms is their own business. This sort of disclosure probably helps the homosexual community, but at the cost of the privacy of these men. Again, there is the reality that being gay does not change their effectiveness as elected officials. They are just as able to vote on legislation and perform their elected functions as their straight counterparts. But the test for real tolerance will come when they face reelection.

Once there is real tolerance, homosexuals can be brought into the mainstream. Tolerance, however, is not bought cheaply. Religious and moral arguments create judgments of right and wrong that are hard to overcome. To create true freedom then, our gods must become less judgmental. As the gods go, men will follow. Americans are guaranteed private lives and public lives as two distinct entities. People have a right to a private life. With Liberty and Justice for All.

Think about it.

Men need to turn on brain before operating mouth

"Hey, baby. (BURP) you got a nice ass!" a grubby man leans out his car window and screams at a woman walking down the street. A beer in one hand, he makes grabbing motions with the other as he rides by in a rusty El Camino.

CHRISTA CERRENTANO
Guest Columnist

Does this scenario sound familiar? If you are a woman you've likely been on the receiving end of a similar situation. Some men out there have been on the hanging-out-the-car-and-screaming end. Come on, admit it.

Not only grubby men in El Caminos do this. A friend of mine used to enjoy doing this. He was a clean-cut guy with a very nice car and he didn't drink. While driving down the street he'd honk his horn and scream out the window at women. The problem was since the car was going 35 mph and the woman was walking at a pace of about 3 mph, you can't really see people at these speeds. So, as we would pass them I'd turn around and see what he was yelling at. Sometimes they'd be girls around 15-years-old, usually they were about 11 or 12; or the "girl" was actually a 13-year-old boy with long hair. This just goes to prove that the point was purely to be obnoxious and disrespectful.

Yes, I am fully aware men aren't the only contributors to this behavior, there are women who do this, too — I know some of them. An acquaintance of mine liked to roll down her window and yell something to the effect of, "Whoooo, baby, look at you!" or "Oh, baby, you are fine." I'm not saying this was respectable or mature behavior, but comparably these aren't as bad the general comments directed toward women:

"You got a nice body, you got a nice ass, too," the panhandler said to me at Mill Avenue and University Drive.

Once I was called "sweet tits" by a drunken fool at a party — drunkenness is no excuse for disrespect, I might add.

Incidentally, I am not the only woman to which this happens. Things of this sort happen every day, in every town of this country, to all women regardless of their race, age, size, measurements or the ways in which they are dressed.

Some men have suggested this behavior is harmless, goofing around while some men have told me to take this as a compliment.

Um, no. Let's have a lesson for people thinking these things. It is not a compliment to ride by a woman and yell at her that you'd like to take her home and make her your love slave. It is not a compliment when you approach a woman at a bar and tell her she has an "amazing ass." These are insults to her womanhood and an invasion of her peace of mind. It is degrading. It is almost as violating as a stranger touching her. Women have enough self-esteem problems. We don't need men adding to our self-consciousness with mindless comments when all we are doing is walking down the street in nothing more provocative than a t-shirt and jeans.

If you admire a woman you don't know show her that you respect her, be kind to her and most importantly don't touch her. If you can't think of any other way to strike up a conversation and you really must go as far as saying something about her body, then be respectful. Tell her she's pretty, that she has beautiful eyes or something of that matter. Be creative, but be respectful. Don't insult her intelligence or her body. Don't be crude, it will get you nowhere.

Semen shows prisoners have too much time

Prisoners in New York must have become bored with writing letters of love with their own blood, so they figured they needed to deliver something which says so much more than flowers or candy.

An article published by The Associated Press last Tuesday described how workers at a New York medium-security prison were splattered by the semen of inmates. The semen was wrapped in plastic and packaged to be sent to their girlfriends or spouses, but exploded in mail surveillance devices.

The article states the prisoners luckily are not going to be charged for throwing feces, urine, blood or seminal fluid, which is a felony, because they did not intend for the prison workers to be subjected to the fluid.

The story mentioned how several packages (that's right, plural) splattered the workers. The main story here is not how the prisoners were not prosecuted for the mishap, but that they discovered this unique gesture of love.

What woman would not be impressed by opening a package from their perfect boyfriend and spotting a sticky substance that was created while performing the most intimate of acts with oneself?

Knowing people conceive of such ingenious, romantic gestures should give the American people faith in the judicial system. Our prisoners are using their time constructively to develop contacts with lonely, sympathetic female outsiders not only with words of love, but also with a part of them.

Franklin County District Attorney Richard Edwards called this a case of "Darling, I love you and here's my semen to prove it," but (the inmates) probably were not upset with the results either." How could an inmate not be upset over losing their life-producing excretion to an over-protective prison worker? Obviously, Edwards does not understand the severity of the matter. Thankfully, the convicts won't have to endure the additional five years they could have gotten for their act. State Attorney General Dennis Vacco determined it was "unclear whether the prisoners wanted to harm or harass the employees." The mere insinuation that the packages were an attempt to disturb the guards is in itself ludicrous.

The martyrs of love could be punished, however, for their valiant effort to reach the objects of their desire. The prison superintendent said the prisoners could lose good behavior time or be put into "more restrictive housing." Being in an isolated environment could be beneficial to the felons because it would give them more time to produce material to send out to their significant others.

The prisoners must be commended for not becoming jaded by the influence of the religious right. Actually, they have listened more to the opinions of former Surgeon General Jocelyn Elders.

Now that the article has been published across the country we might expect an epidemic to ensue. Soon women across the nation will be swept away by men distributing their semen. We must thank these outstanding citizens who have such good taste and romantic savvy for discovering a new way to a woman's heart.

Positive role models important

I am writing in regard to the article "Minority enrollment up at ASU" in Wednesday's paper. I am president-elect of Arizona State's first Hispanic fraternity and in this position I feel I am in touch with the Hispanic community on campus. Although I basically agree with Vega's five reasons for the rise in Hispanic enrollment, I must admit I feel he left out the most important reason of all: role models.

There are many fine Hispanic organizations here on campus (M.E.Ch.A., Omega Delta Phi inc., etc.) that do a huge amount of service in our community. We go out and show our youth that there are Hispanics attending higher education institutions and influence them by being positive brown role models.

We cannot take all the credit, for there are many great influences on us in the form of advisers and professors such as Frank Hidalgo, Dr. Jesus Trevino and Professor Rosales. I feel we, as positive role models, have given the Hispanic people a future and hope for that future. We as role models will send our children to college, we will contribute to their education, vote for elected officials who will provide a better education for them and we will fund our own scholarships to send our own children to school. That, my friends and colleagues, is empowerment.

Empowerment is something that my role model and my brother's role model taught us by saying, "Nothing in life is free and you'll have to fight for every scrap you get!" We as a people will fight and will never leave our lives, our culture or our future in the hands of another.

Application box doesn't define person's existence

Whoever said that ignorance is bliss obviously hasn't read Jon Collier's letter concerning his "frustrations" with the ethnicity/cultural origin portion of application forms. When he states that, "the academia lists all of these wonderful cultures that are so rich with tradition and history, but then leaves me with the choice of white," he seems to suggest that each of the other groups listed are fully represented. Well, hold on while I wipe my tears away and put down my violin, so I can set things straight.

In the first place, each listing is an extreme generalization of the diverse cultures that fall within each category. To suggest that all Asian, Hispanic, etc. cultures are the same is ludicrous. Take me for instance. I am half Yavapai (which falls under "American Indian") and half Italian, yet I too must resort to a single box on the application form. I check the "American Indian" box, but that does not mean that the Yavapai are the same as the Navajo, Cherokee, Apache, etc. Each tribe has its own distinct language and culture.

Collier states that every culture should be listed on application forms, but how realistic is that? To be fair, every single culture that exists on this earth would need to be represented, not just the "White(non-Hispanic)" cultures. The Native American tribes alone could easily fill up a page.

The point is the box you check does not define the person you are. If you want to express cultural pride, that's what the personal statement is for.

Cartoon called 'brutish'

Like many of my colleagues, I agree with Justin Turner's poignant description, ("appalling") to the Fairington cartoon which appeared in the State Press on Sept. 25.

I would like to applaud Turner and add to his article the short-sightedness of those responsible for printing the cartoon. I presumed, at first, that it was included on our editorial page (normally dedicated to intelligent discussion) to stimulate a reaction — why else would such a brutish "editorial" fundamentally lacking in any rhetorical maturity appear in our paper?

So I waited for the reaction. I refuse to believe Turner's was the only reaction to be heard, when the stereotype perpetuating insult to intelligent and motivated women so blatantly offended many students, staff and faculty members.

Was there not enough space? Whatever the reason may be, I implore that those responsible for the printing of the cartoon raise their standards so as not to include such elementary representations of archaic and limited thought processes. Universities are supposed to promote an atmosphere of intelligent critical thought, shouldn't our paper do the same?

POLICE REPORT

ASU police reported the following incidents Monday:

- A female affiliated with ASU reported that someone removed her bicycle from Sahuaro Hall, where it was secured with a lock.
- A male student reported that someone removed his bicycle from Best Hall C-wing, where it was secured with a lock.
- A female student reported that someone removed her bicycle from the Psychology Building, where it was secured with a lock.
- A female student reported that someone removed her bicycle from the Memorial Union, where it was secured with a lock.
- A female student reported that someone removed her clothes from the laundry room at Sahuaro Hall.
- A female student was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol at 12th Street and Mill Avenue.
- A male employee was arrested, cited and released for violation of a court order by ASU police.

Tempe police reported the following incidents Monday:

- A man was arrested at 611 S. Mill Ave. after he approached a mounted police horse from behind and rapidly slapped the horse three times on the left hind quarters. The horse was immediately startled and jumped forward. The man then gave false information to the arresting police officer because he "didn't want to get in trouble." He was booked into Tempe City Jail. The horse was not injured.
- A man was arrested for public sexual indecency, indecent exposure to a minor, possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia after he exposed his naked body to a 14-year-old girl while masturbating in the parking lot of The Ramada Suites, 1635 N. Scottsdale Road. The man then ran from the lot to his hotel room. When police later contacted him in his room, a bag of what appeared to be marijuana was found in plain view. The man was booked into Tempe City Jail.

Coor files suite against neighbor over driveway

BY MELODY McDONALD
STATE PRESS

Mess with the chief Sun Devil, and you get forked. ASU President Lattie Coor filed a lawsuit against his neighbor Sept. 23 over property rights to the 12 and-a-half foot driveway that runs along the side of both of their homes. Although Coor has a deed and title insurance to the driveway, there's been "discussion" between Coor and his neighbor, Robert T. Schultz, over the property for some time, said Warren Ridge, Coor's attorney. "Mr. Schultz was there earlier (before Coor built his home two years ago), and he apparently used some or part of the strip to park a boat on, even though it's not his property," Ridge said. "They (Schultz and his attorney) claim they gained some kind of ownership rights." Superior Court Judge William Moroney will have the last word when the matter goes to court Wednesday. The Coor residence is located between Schultz's home and a mountain, Ridge said. The driveway is the only "practical way" for Coor to get to and from his home. "He would have to build a bridge over a wash or trespass on land neighboring his property," Warren said. "You can't come in the back door, and he has to get to his home some way." On one occasion, Schultz barricaded the driveway in attempt to prohibit Coor and his guests from using the property, which is "why we're going to court," Ridge said. "You can't allow someone to threaten your own property."

Although the barriers have been removed, Schultz still threatens to prohibit Coor from using the driveway, he said. Schultz's attorney, David E. Oliver, said Schultz has rights to the property. "My client has paid taxes on the property since about 1982, and we're also claiming the right to block it off," he said. "We did so, and we got sued. And we will be making our counter claims after accepting service of the suit." Oliver, however, would not discuss further details of the case. According to the lawsuit, Coor is asking for a permanent injunction that prevents Schultz from restricting Coor's access to his residence. He is also requesting an order of the court declaring that Schultz has no right, title or interest in the disputed property.

Iowa woman accused of murder, stealing baby after faking pregnancy

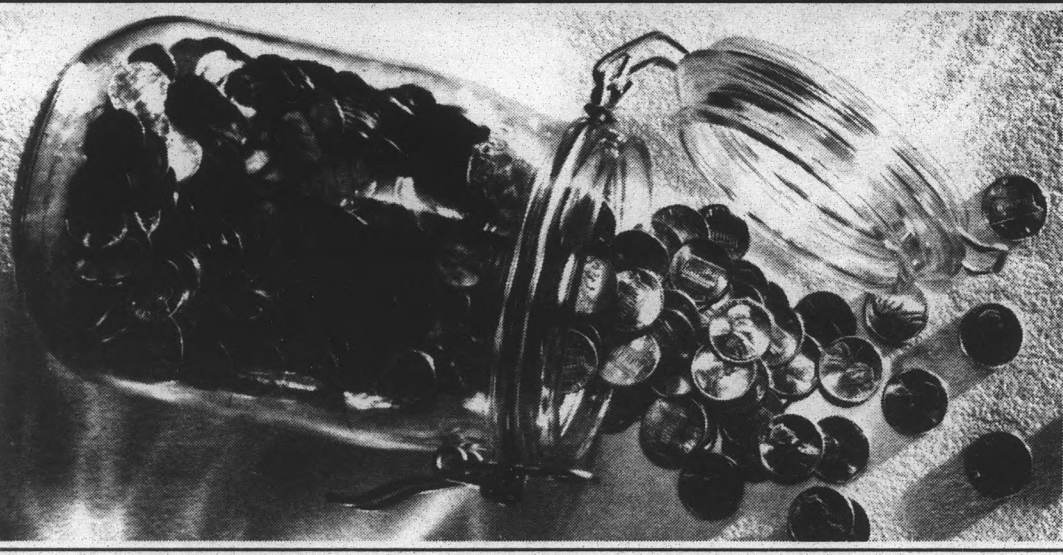

KEOKUK, Iowa (AP) — A woman who pretended for months that she was pregnant allegedly lured a new mother to her home, shot her twice in the head and then hid the body in her basement, passing the boy off as her own. Police said Kimmi Hardy bought a gun a month before the slaying, wore maternity clothes for about five months, and even held a baby shower after the killing. Robert Hardy, 36, who prosecutors plan to charge as an accessory, told police his wife shot Theresa Lund, 34, a month ago in their basement and hid the body in a crawl space, according to court papers filed Monday. Hardy told police he wasn't home during the slaying, but later helped his wife get rid of the body and hide evidence. On Friday, Hardy led authorities to Lund's body, which was found along railroad tracks near Alexandria, Mo., less than 10 miles from the Hardy home. The Hardys and Lund lived in Keokuk, a Mississippi River town of 13,500 in the extreme southeast corner of Iowa, and were casual acquaintances, police said. Lund and her 6-week-old son were reported missing after her car was found in a store parking lot on Aug. 28. That same day, Mrs. Hardy, 36, told friends and family that she had given birth to a son, court papers said. Police, acting on an anonymous tip, found the child at the Hardy home on Sept. 18. When confronted by officers, Mrs. Hardy said she bought the baby for $3,000.

Clinton honors ASU professor for excellence

Bustoz awarded $10,000, named in nation's top 10

BY PERCY EDNALINO JR.
SPECIAL TO THE STATE PRESS

An ASU mathematics professor has been singled out by President Bill Clinton, and he doesn't think it's fair.

Although Joaquin Bustoz was one of 10 teachers in the nation who received the first Presidential Award for Excellence in Science, Mathematics and Engineering Mentoring, he said he felt the award should be given in recognition of students' accomplishments.

"In reality, people are being singled out because of the success of students," Bustoz said.

Bustoz started the Math-Science Honors program at ASU and has been involved in math and science outreach programs that target Native Americans on reservations and in the inner city.

The awards were given to individuals who have helped women, minorities and disabled people succeed in the fields of science, mathematics and engineering.

Along with the award came a $10,000 grant. Bustoz said the money will go toward helping students meet the cost of his program.

For William Trotter, chair of the mathematics department, Bustoz's work represents more than just a personal achievement. Trotter said the outreach programs Bustoz are involved in help establish a strong bond between students and instructors.

"It's important to underscore that this is an outreach program of the very best kind," Trotter said. "Throughout his career, Bustoz has maintained that students from under-represented groups can achieve in a fully competitive level and don't require any special standards."

Gary Krahenbuhl, dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, agreed with Trotter.

"I guess what makes me feel best is all of the good he's accomplished helping minority students excel in math and science," Krahenbuhl said.

Krahenbuhl added that the award helps people recognize ASU as a university with a high standard for academics.

"I think it's just one more important piece of recognition for a University that's really on the move — a University that, in many ways, is setting the example of a responsible institution that's meeting society's needs," he said.

Tempe city council drops monthly meetings to three

BY RAY STERN
STATE PRESS

Though the number of monthly city council meetings in Tempe is dropping from four to three, the meetings remain among the most time-friendly for the public to attend, officials said Monday.

"They are held at a very good time," said Councilman Ben Arrendondo. "Many council meetings are held in the afternoon. That prevents a great portion of people who work from attending."

Under a change made at Thursday's meeting, beginning Jan. 1 the city council will not meet the first Thursday of each month. Formal meetings preceded by an informal issue review session, or study session, will be held the second and fourth Thursdays starting at 6 p.m. Each third Thursday the council will hold an extended issue review session starting at 6:30 p.m. The formal meetings begin at 7:30 p.m.

Currently, meetings are held every Thursday.

Councilwoman Carol Smith said the later starting times encourage citizens to attend more meetings.

"Tempe has had a history of always meeting in the evening for that reason, so the public could watch live," she said. "I think we should continue that."

Mesa's council starts at 5:30 p.m., with study sessions on Friday at 7:30 a.m. The Phoenix City Council meets at 2:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and 3 p.m. on Wednesdays, and the Maricopa County Board of Supervisors meet on alternate Mondays and Wednesdays at 9 a.m.

"I think the 9 a.m. meetings are very much based in tradition," said Larry Crittenden, public information officer for Maricopa County. "You know that does exclude certain groups of people from being able to attend."

ASASU peddling political info

By JENNIFER NETHERBY
STATE PRESS

Students itching to display their political prowess in the November election may want to get slammed with the Associated Students of ASU.

ASASU is hosting the "ASASU Election Info-Slam" Wednesday to provide information about election issues.

Representatives from interest groups, political action committees and local campaigns will have information booths on Hayden Lawn from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., said Damon Pace, ASASU government relations representative.

"We're hoping students can get informed on issues and what different ideas are going to be important in the upcoming election," Pace said.

Melanie Laux, a representative from the Arizona Secretary of State's office who will be at the event, said there will be non-partisan information available about the various propositions on the ballot and candidate information. She will also be answering general voter information.

Groups such as Arizona Right to Choose, Arizona Right to Life, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, National Organization for Women, Rock the Vote and the National Rifle Association will have booths and information on their positions on various issues. ASU groups like the Young Democrats and College Republicans will also be at the event.

The event is part of the ASASU Voice Your Choice campaign, an effort to register 5,000 students to vote and provide election information.

In addition to the informational booths, two local bands, the Piersons and the Beat Angels, will be playing from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., said Autumn Ness, ASASU government relations task force coordinator.

Libertarian candidate for the state house in District 25 Kent Van Cleave will be at the event. District 25 covers parts of east Phoenix and west Tempe.

KEDJ-FM radio station will be giving away tickets to the Rage Against the Machine concert as well, Ness said.

Governor's pending deal may settle claims

(AP) — Ann Symington would be released from all bankruptcy claims related to her husband under a proposed settlement that could be approved within the next month, the governor's attorney said Monday.

The settlement would release Ann Symington from claims that her assets should go toward reducing Gov. Fife Symington's $25 million debt.

The possibility was raised because of lingering questions about whether the couple mingled assets despite a 1976 prenuptial agreement that their estates would remain sole and separate.

Under the agreement, Ann Symington will pay $15,000 to the trustee and turn over all books, jewelry, furniture and other items given to her by her husband in March 1993 — reportedly to repay her for handling some of his massive legal defense bills.

The items could be sold to help pay some of the governor's outstanding debts.

Terry Dake, an attorney representing the bankruptcy trustee in the case, said the deal does not give Ann Symington a general release, but rather dismisses claims the trustee already knows about.

Creditors still may sue over whether Ann Symington actively helped her husband's alleged fraud or misled the pension funds to obtain a 1987 loan for her husband.

CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

I

It's not really his title, but it's definitely his job.

Met him on campus a couple of years ago. Someone knew someone who knew him. Up to his eyeballs in ASICs, with some off the wall ideas about a high speed, board-level remote access solution.

His first response to us: "Yeah, right."

So we reminded him about our bold technical leadership. Except for being surrounded by state-of-the-art everything, the sharpest minds in technology and the world's leading systems organization, we told him, he'd practically be left alone to develop his ideas. Mr. Autonomy.

TAKE US THERE

Since then he took his idea about remote computing to the Nth degree. Now it's part of our newest PCMCIA based remote network computing solutions.

Which brings us back to campus. This semester we're scouting the country again, looking for more spirited people and ideas. We're pushing this company to the Nth degree.

And you can take us there.

Memory of student lives on through artwork

By TIMOTHY TAIT
STATE PRESS

The eyes of David Ivens seem to stare out of the self-portrait his mother disliked, looking out of the glass enclosure at the painting's admirers.

Ivens took his own life last February at the age of 24, but his classmates decided to ensure that his art did not fade away.

The "David Ivens Memorial Exhibition" opened Monday at the College of Art Harry Wood Gallery. The exhibit features 12 of Ivens' pieces along with the work of some of his fellow students.

Mary and John Ivens, David's parents, said the exhibit brought back many memories of their son, an art education major who was slated to graduate the semester he ended his life.

"I remember getting up late at night and seeing Dave working at his easel," Mrs. Ivens said. "He used to always work shirtless, and I would ask him 'do all great painters have pastels all over them?'"

"It seems like he used to do his best work at night," she added. "Tonight has brought back some tears, but it is good to see."

Mrs. Ivens said the exhibit was a wonderful tribute to her son, despite the tears.

"I was glad to see this art show come to fruition," she said. "It is a great tribute to Dave and a wonderful display of a lot of students' work."

David's brother, Jeff Ivens, reflected on one of David's self-portraits completed in 1995 — the one his mother said she disliked because it didn't look like him.

"The painting is more powerful in retrospect," Jeff said. "When he first finished it, everyone said 'wow.' Mom didn't like it, but I thought it was good. Now, it looks like a warning."

Ann Schutte, art faculty associate who organized the event, said David was very dedicated to his artwork and his death was unexpected.

David Ivens, shown here in a self-portrait completed in 1992, took his own life last February. He is being remembered in an art exhibit in the Harry Wood Gallery at the School of Art.

"Students really took notice of him," she said. "He was obsessed with his work and had passion for what he did. He could draw abstractly or representationally. He was a perfectionist who would have an idea and spend all night chasing that idea down."

The exhibit was proposed and set up by students who wanted to share Ivens' work with others.

"Students thought other people should have the opportunity to see his work," Schutte said. "It's great that students get the opportunity to pay tribute to him."

The exhibition of Ivens' work is paired with select pieces done by the students who knew him. Schutte said she believes this to be the first exhibit of this kind at ASU.

Jeff said he hopes that as many students as possible see the exhibit, and perhaps realize that if they have problems like David's, they can seek help.

"He left behind a lot of good stuff, but he had 10 times more to come," he said.

The exhibit is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. until Oct. 11 in the gallery, located in the first floor of the Art Building.

Broncos not likely to intimidate No. 5 Sun Devils

BY DUSTIN KRUGEL
STATE PRESS

The Big West conference isn't earning any respect from the Las Vegas oddsmakers.

For the second time this season, No. 5 ASU will not have a point spread against its next opponent Boise State at 7 p.m. Saturday at Sun Devil Stadium.

It's tough to take the Big West seriously when the conference is a combined 7-20 this season. The one bright spot for the conference is Utah State's upset of now-No. 24 Utah in both team's season opener on Aug. 31.

When North Texas lost to the ASU (4-0) on Sept. 14, 52-7, the oddsmakers also shunned that game. North Texas was ranked 110th out of 111 Division I schools in The Sporting News preseason rankings. The Broncos, who are in their first year at the Division-I level, were ranked 103rd.

Boise State (1-4) enters the game in bad shape. The Broncos are without their Head Coach Pokey Allen, who is suffering from a life-threatening cancer. Assistant coach Tom Mason has taken over Allen's duties.

"(Allen) has done very well there," Snyder said of Allen, who has a 23-14 record at Boise State, in his weekly press conference Monday. "The program is really tied to him. They are going through turmoil with him on the sidelines. They are struggling a bit. Tom Mason is a terrific coach. I've only known him as an assistant coach. He's taken over in the hard times. It's a reeling program."

The Broncos wanted to emphasize a more balanced offensive attack, but those plans have been derailed after Boise State has fallen behind early in its games.

Wide Receiver Ryan Ikebe is ranked 10th nationally with 32 receptions for 471 yards and one touchdown. Quarterback Tony Hilde has completed 84 of 153 passes for 1,193 yards and nine touchdowns and eight interceptions.

Defensive stud

Junior linebacker Pat Tillman won the Hertz Car Pac-10 defensive player of week honors for his efforts in ASU's 48-27 victory over Oregon.

"There was no question about his impact on the game,"

Jim Poulin/State Press

Junior linebacker Pat Tillman wraps up Washington quarterback Shane Fortney in the Sun Devils' first game of the season on Sept. 7. Tillman was named Pac-10 defensive player of the week for his performance against Oregon last Saturday.

Snyder said. "I think we'll find Pat Tillman will play that kind of game against that kind of offense — where it's wide open and there is a lot of space to fill. The onside kick recovery, the fumble recovery, the interception and 12 tackles, that's a day's work for Pat or for anybody."

Where are the crowds?

If Saturday's attendance (approximately 45,000) is any indication, some fans still might be skeptical. ASU officials said Monday that 47,000 tickets have been sold for this Saturday's game. For the USC game on Oct. 19 only 10,000 tickets remain unsold.

"We've been building a program. Part of that building is building the fan base. That part is a project in progress," Snyder said. "I believe going to an event on a regular basis is a habit. I'm not sure we are habituated yet. I think this community really appreciates this team. They like what they see, but it's not a habit yet. But it will be. Sure, I'd like to see it full every game."

Sun Devils climb to top as college football world turns

Watching the No. 5-ranked Sun Devils' assault on the college football world, I can't help but think I've been here before.

All the mighty and traditional powerhouses are dropping like flies. A senior quarterback is making a run at a possible Heisman trophy, aided by his trusty touchdown-scoring wide receiver. And, an upstart program is clawing for respect from its peers.

RANDY JONES
Sports Columnist

They say history repeats itself, and right now I get the feeling that indeed it does.

As a second-year student at the University of Virginia in 1990 I witnessed the entrance of the Cavaliers into the upper reaches of the college football hierarchy.

Being a lifelong UVA fan it was the ultimate. No other feeling can match being ranked No. 1, especially after enduring years of awful football. For most of the history of Virginia football, the one reason for attending games was to get completely inebriated.

That all changed in one season.

Now six years later, here I am at ASU, and it's all happening again.

The current season being played out in front of my eyes by ASU is amazingly becoming a mirror image of the Wahoos run for the national championship that season.

Virginia was led by the "Moore to Moore" connection. At quarterback was Shawn Moore and at wide receiver was Herman Moore. The duo finished fourth and sixth in the Heisman race respectively.

The Sun Devils have their own tandem with a catchy name. "Plummer to Poole" has already connected on four touchdown passes this season, and quarterback Jake Plummer is now being mentioned as a serious candidate for Heisman.

Apart from the players, similarities are abundant in the teams' records, schedules and weekly rise in the AP and CNN/USA Today polls.

In '90 the Cavaliers started the season ranked 15th. The '96 Sun Devils 20th.

Early in the season, Virginia won what has been called the biggest game in school history by defeating the Clemson Tigers 20-7 on Sept. 8. Virginia had never beaten the evil Tigers, possessing a 0-28 record against them.

Philadelphia running back Ricky Watters leaps over Dallas Cowboys Darren Woodson (28) and Mike Ulufale in the first quarter Monday in Philadelphia.

Dallas' 23-19 win over Eagles revives struggling Cowboys

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys live.

Lifted from their lethargy by Herschel Walker's kickoff return, the Cowboys beat the Philadelphia Eagles 23-19 Monday night to restore their credibility and avoid the basement in the NFC East.

It was a prime-time performance by Dallas' prime timers — Troy Aikman, Deion Sanders, Emmitt Smith and Walker, who had a 49-yard return after the Cowboys had fallen behind 10-0 on Philadelphia's first two possessions. That ignited a run of 20 straight points in a 16-minute span of the first half, highlighted by a brilliantly executed 96-yard touchdown drive.

The Cowboys' defense, led by Sanders and Leon Lett, had six sacks and forced five turnovers.

Three of the turnovers set up field goals by Chris Boniol, including an interception by Sanders, whose 39-yard reception was the game's key offensive play. The fourth was George Teague's interception that stopped Philadelphia's final drive at the Dallas 30 with two minutes left.

The win put Dallas (2-3) a game behind Philadelphia (3-2) and two behind Washington. And the Cowboys get another prime timer, Michael Irvin, back for their next game, at home to Arizona on Oct. 13.

The Eagles, meanwhile, will be without their quarterback, Rodney Peete, for the rest of the season. Peete tore the patellar tendon in his right knee when he slipped dropping back to pass with 1:50 left in the half.

How big was this win for Dallas?

The Cowboys, who fell behind 10-0 on the Eagles' first two possessions, would have been three games behind the Eagles and Redskins had they lost. Moreover, they came into the game doubting themselves — they had just one ASU two weeks ago scored a similar win, albeit bigger in Sun Devil history, by crushing two-time defending national champion Nebraska.

The ranking of the Sun Devils after the win was six. Virginia checked in at No. 10.

Having reached such lofty heights, dominant teams started falling like dominoes enabling each to reach higher.

Week four 1990 — No. 4 BYU lost and No. 3 Auburn and No. 5 Tennessee tied dropping them in the rankings. The grounds were abuzz. The Cavaliers moved up to No. 7.

Week four 1996 — No. 5 Ohio State knocks off No. 4 Notre Dame, 29-16. Mill Avenue partied on as ASU reached No. 5.

Now 4-0, the same questions which are swirling around Tempe right now were the topics of every bar conversation in Charlottesville six years ago.

Can it happen? What must happen? Can we get to No. 1?

For it to occur, the top three teams in the nation must lose. Impossible I thought. Alas, I was wrong.

First it was Notre Dame, losing to lowly Stanford 36-31. Then Florida State lost to Miami 31-22. Before I knew it Virginia was ranked No. 2.

While driving home after watching the Cavaliers dismantle conference rival North Carolina State 31-0, I heard on the radio that No. 1 Michigan was in danger of losing. I rushed to my dorm and turned on the television, still covered in blue and orange body paint, just in time to see Michigan quarterback Elvis Grbac miss Desmond Howard in the end zone for the potential winning two-point conversion. Final score Michigan State 28, Michigan 27.

Chants of: "We're Number One! We're Number One!" echoed throughout Mr. Jefferson's University for three weeks that autumn.

And as I look at schedules for the next two weeks, I see an eerily similar situation setting up with ASU.

This week third-ranked Ohio State tangles with fourth-ranked Penn State. Move ASU up one notch to four. The week after, OSU takes on underrated Wisconsin, top-ranked Florida does battle with No. 13 Louisiana State and second-ranked Florida State travels to Miami for a date with the Hurricanes.

So 6-0 and No. 1 is very much a possibility, and hopefully soon a reality for the Sun Devils.

But one word of advice to the "fans" of ASU. Especially the 30,000 or so people who weren't in their seats at the Oregon game — get out there and support your team and relish it while it lasts.

I watched as the Cavaliers went 2-4 after reaching the top, and there were a lot less fans around in the end, when the team went to the Sugar Bowl.

So, enjoy the fun Sun Devil fans. And, here's hoping the second time around for me is better than the first.

offensive touchdown in their last six quarters.

But the return by Walker, who returned to Dallas for the minimum salary after he was released by the New York Giants, seemed to provide a spark that had been lacking.

The Eagles took a 3-0 lead on Gary Anderson's 36-yard field goal, then followed that with a 65-yard, nine-play drive capped by Ricky Watters 2-yard TD run on fourth-and-one.

But Walker took the kickoff and burst up the middle to the Philadelphia 44. Seven plays later, on a third-and-goal from the 5-yard-line, Aikman rifled a ball off his back foot to Eric Bjornson in the back of the end zone.

On their next possession, the Cowboys were set back by two penalties — a holding call on Darren Woodson that set them back to their own 4 to start the drive, then a clip by Aikman on a reverse to Sanders that made it second-and-22 at the 14.

Then came the play that may have turned the game — Sanders took off down the left side on a fly pattern, got inside of Troy Vincent and took in a perfect pass from Aikman at the Philadelphia 47.

Six plays later Smith, who rushed for 92 yards in 22 carries, capped the drive with a 5-yard TD run and suddenly the Cowboys led 14-10. The official length of the drive was 96 yards, but with penalty yardage added, the Cowboys actually netted 105 yards.

Sanders' interception set up a 36-yard field goal and Peete's fumble on the play on which he was injured set up a 30-yarder to give Dallas a 20-10 halftime lead.

Philadelphia got back in the game on the first series of the second half when Philadelphia safety Brian Dawkins hit Aikman forcing a pop-up pass that Rhett Hall grabbed and returned 32 yards for a TD that made it 20-17.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST
by Frances Drake
Tuesday, October 1, 1996

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You are completely caught up with a project of an intellectual nature. Something told to you is in confidence. The evening finds you in a contemplative, introspective mood.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a very tempting time for you concerning money and the pursuit of pleasure. Instead, take time for some meaningful dialogue with a loved one. Mental work is highlighted.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Reading is favored and you learn much from the material you choose. Those who are dealing with real estate matters achieve success. At night, news comes from a family member.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your progress at work is derailed early in the day by daydreaming. However, once you exercise discipline, you have a productive work day. As the sun sets, you are satisfied with your progress.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) Someone is relying on you to keep a secret. At work, be sure you choose a practical path to where you want to go. At night, your thinking is clear and inspired.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Matters left unattended from yesterday are uppermost on your mind. Dealings with higher-ups are favored later in the day, once all tasks are out of the way. Continued progress is assured.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If leafing through a catalog, you just could decide to make an impulsive purchase. Someone close is not telling you the truth about something. You can get your views across.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Agreements and accords are favored, both verbal and written. A business partner has an important matter to discuss. Be sure you're available to this person.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) It's a good time to think about revising how you handle your finances. While your bookkeeping is basically sound, there are other ways you can save money. Enlist the aid of your significant other in this.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Your approach to a project at work is all wrong. It is not as easy to execute as you seem to think, so don't underestimate it. The evening is spent on a cultural pursuit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) You're in the mood to indulge a loved one with a special, romantic gift. However, avoid being overly generous. Remember, it really is the thought that counts.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) You are in a restless mood and need to seek out those on your intellectual level. You're in constant motion, flitting from one task to another.

YOU BORN TODAY are not one to quit easily, no matter how difficult the going is. You tackle each project, whether work or personal, as if it were a holy quest. You do not easily concede a point, even if someone else is showing you a viewpoint that is logical and reasonable. This stubbornness is both a blessing and a bane for you. You are passionate about politics and find yourself comfortable in the public arena. Motivated by a sense of right and wrong, you seek justice always.

basic differences

At first glance, the bold patterns and the soft woven fabrics suggest that our newest selection of updated OSCC woven sportshirts are the same old favorites you've been wearing for years.

Take a closer look, however, and you'll notice a few differences. Like a zippered placket instead of a buttoned one. A heavy wool blend instead of a cotton flannel. And a handsome Sedona blanket stripe instead of a normal plaid.

In fact, when you take a close look you'll see dozens of new fall favorites that have subtle refinements which make our basic woven sportshirts anything but basic. Only from Harold's.
