Law enforcement aims at Prop. 200

Doctors can prescribe marijuana for patients if initiative passes

By RAY STERN
 STATE PRESS

Law enforcement officials leveled their strongest attack yet against Proposition 200 during a Wednesday press conference at Phoenix Drug Enforcement Agency headquarters.

"(Prop. 200) changes Arizona statutes in a number of severely conflicting ways," said Ernest Howard, the DEA special agent in charge of Arizona. "It is not clear how these conflicts would be resolved."

The statewide initiative would allow doctors to prescribe marijuana and other illegal drugs, expand drug treatment programs, mandate that violent drug offenders must serve 100 percent of their sentence and free convicts in prison for personal possession. The freeing of such prisoners would depend on the amount of drugs in possession and whether the drugs were to be sold.

Voters will decide the fate of the initiative Nov. 5.

Howard said besides the conflict of having state doctors prescribe federally-outlawed substances, freeing prisoners convicted of personal possession would send the wrong message to communities.

"In effect, this is saying 'do the crime, avoid the crime,' instead of the old 'do the crime, do the time,'" he said. "I do not believe our nation can afford to have this message sent while we are experiencing an epidemic of drug use."

Chief Dennis Garrett of the Phoenix Police Department called the proposition a smoke screen for the legalization of drugs. The American Medical Association has come out against using marijuana to treat chemotherapy patients and other terminally ill people, he said.

He added that there are numerous other drugs, such as Marinol, a pot derivative, that can do a better job.

When asked why terminally ill people should be denied using any drug, even if illegal, which could ease suffering, he responded: "Because of the downside of what this would do to law enforcement."

Physicians who support the proposition have said marijuana helps patients regain their appetite, which is an important part of recovering from chemotherapy.

"The Journal of Clinical Oncology in 1990 did a survey of medical oncologists," said Phoenix physician Jeffrey Singer in an interview last month. "Forty-four percent admitted to telling their chemo patients that if they can get Drug enforcement officials called a press conference Wednesday to inform the public of possible criminal side effects if the proposition is passed.

marijuana, they should. (Marinol) is not as effective in treating nausea, which is why it hasn't caught on."

Authorities at Wednesday's meeting dismissed such claims as unproven.

Ray Vinsik of the Arizona Alliance Planning Committee said one need go no further than a court trial to realize some doctors will forward any opinion.

"Just because someone says a doctor is going to do it doesn't make it good," Vinsik said. "Going back into the 70s, we had doctors prescribing amphetamines to housewives and they were all addicted."

The officials also downplayed any notion that smoking marijuana is a victimless crime.

Howard compared smoking a joint to robbing banks, and said it is irrelevant that up to 30 percent of Americans may support making pot legal.

"If 30 percent of the people supported slavery, would that make it right?" he asked.

As a law, Prop. 200 would be the target of numerous lawsuits, said Jerry Landau of the Maricopa County Attorney's office. "If someone is in favor of this bill, they should be hopping mad (at the way it was written)," he said.

Most people are not sent to prison for a first or second time conviction of simple possession, he added, because of jail-diversion programs offered by the county.

The complaint of ill-conceived wording was echoed by other officials.

Violent drug offenders are already required to serve 85 percent of their sentence, Howard said, and the extra 15 percent the bill provides amounts to only a few more months.

Besides that, he said, the definition of violent crime in the proposition does not include sex crimes or mental injuries, and it's hard to determine if a criminal was high during commission of a crime.

"Really, (Prop. 200) is not getting any tougher on violent offenders," he said.

Mesa man dies after electrocution at ballpark

Accident is second this year involving crane

By MELODY McDONALD
 STATE PRESS

A 35-year-old Mesa man was electrocuted at the Bank One Ballpark Wednesday afternoon after a crane touched the 7,200-volt power line he was working under.

He was taken to Good Samaritan Hospital in Phoenix where he was later pronounced dead.

Police said Daniel Weber — an employee of Arizona Boring Co., a subcontractor of Perini/Tutor-Saliba — was inside a 20-foot-deep hole attempting to guide the crane that was lowering a 3-foot steel sleeve.

He was reportedly holding a chain when the crane hit a power line, said Det. Mike McCullough of the Phoenix Police Department.

The accident occurred at 2:05 p.m. behind the site of the future stadium in downtown Phoenix. Witnesses said an engineer for Perini/Tutor-Saliba jumped into the hole, took the man's pulse and unsuccessfully attempted to revive him with CPR until a fire department emergency medical team arrived.

"When he left here, there were no vital signs," said Bob Crawford, media relations manager for the Arizona Diamondbacks. "They were still trying to revive him ... but there was no heart beat."

The sleeve will carry a future water line that will run underneath nearby railroad tracks and into the ball park. The accident will not delay construction on the $333 million project, Crawford said.

The entire incident is under investigation.

Wednesday's accident marked the fourth mishap this year at the ballpark, which also has been plagued by cost overruns and construction delays.

construction site Aug. 6 when a 190-foot crane toppled over, damaging a couple of front-end loaders and a pallet of oxygen tanks. The crane operator escaped unhurt.

In addition, procedures to raise the first of two trusses that will support the stadium's retractable roof were delayed three times before the task was completed May 31. In March, one of the support columns caught on fire during a welding process.

Contractors estimate that construction at the 48,000-seat ballpark is 10 weeks behind schedule because of various design changes. The project must be completed by April 1998, when the Diamondbacks make their major league debut.

Gore and Kemp talk economic, foreign policies

By JOHN KING
ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Vice President Al Gore and Jack Kemp debated politely but pointedly Wednesday night, agreeing to leave character issues aside but differing sharply over economic policy and President Clinton's leadership abroad.

"This economy is overtaxed, over-regulated," Kemp said in making the case for GOP presidential nominee Bob Dole's plan to cut taxes 15 percent across the board. Kemp said the economy was growing a feeble 2.5 percent a year under Clinton. "Bob Dole and I believe we can do a lot better."

Gore, in turn, said repeatedly that Dole and Kemp were offering a "risky $550 billion tax scheme" that would "blow a hole in the deficit and cause much deeper cuts in Medicare, Medicaid, education and the environment."

Asked if Dole would seek to change laws that make abortion legal in the United States, Kemp did not give a direct answer. He said "every human life is precious" and that "there should be all of the protection that we can give to an unborn human being" but he did not endorse any specific restrictions. "This country should not be torn asunder over this debate," Kemp said.

Gore was more specific. He said Kemp had voted 47 out of 47 times while in Congress to support restrictions on abortion. And he noted that Dole's Republican platform calls for a constitutional amendment outlawing abortion.

Given a chance to rebut, Kemp said a "constitutional amendment would not pass," a concession that could anger some Christian conservatives supporting the Republican ticket. Kemp did forcefully criticize Clinton for vetoing legislation banning certain late-term abortions.

Many of the salvos between Kemp and Gore closely tracked the positions staked out by Clinton and Dole in their first debate Sunday night.

Kemp, for example, said Clinton and Gore were practicing "demagoguery" in trying to frighten older Americans by claiming that Dole's budget plan would require devastating Medicare cuts. "It is disgraceful, the campaign being waged to frighten the American people," Kemp said.

But Gore did not budge. "The word scary has been used," he said of the Republican position. He continued by promising, "We will save Medicare" in a second Clinton term.

For activists in both parties, there was an inescapable subplot to the vice presidential debate. Gore, 48, is all but certain to seek the Democratic presidential nomination in four years. And if Dole loses to Clinton, the 61-year-old Kemp would be considered the top early prospect for the next Republican nomination.

The first half hour of the debate was dominated by economic and tax policy, and then the candidates moved on to discuss abortion, Bosnia, Haiti and a host of other issues.

"The problem with the foreign policy of this administration is there is none," Kemp said. "We have learned over the years that weakness is provocative."

Gore begged to differ, saying the administration had brought peace, however tenuous, to Bosnia and Haiti and was working to end bitter conflicts in Northern Ireland and the Mideast. "President Bill Clinton has shown tremendous courage, vision, wisdom and leadership," Gore said.

Early on, Gore tried his hand at humor, offering Kemp this deal: "If you won't use any football stories, I won't tell any of my warm and humorous stories about chlorofluorocarbon abatement."

"It's a deal," Kemp quickly agreed.

Mediterranean quake rocks much of Middle East, kills 1

By ALEX EFTY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NICOSIA, Cyprus — A strong Mediterranean earthquake rattled much of the Middle East on Wednesday, killing an Egyptian whose house collapsed on top of her and injuring 21 Cypriots.

Buildings swayed in Cyprus and panicked residents ran outside in Egypt, the two places that sustained the worst damage from the magnitude-6.8 quake. The temblor also was felt across Israel, Syria, Jordan, Lebanon, western Turkey and the Greek islands of Rhodes and Crete.

The U.S. Geological Survey said the 3:10 p.m. earthquake occurred in the Mediterranean Sea about 20 miles southwest of the Cypriot port of Paphos and some 80 miles from Nicosia.

"I was terrified," said Emma Nicolaou, who runs a photo shop in Nicosia. "I tried to run out, but I could hardly walk, the ground was shaking so much."

Hundreds of miles away in Egypt, people similarly panicked.

"I felt a tremendous shake, the door was banging and my chair was moving around. Everyone ran down the stairs and the elevators got stuck," said Magdi Awaida, who works on the 22nd floor of the Radio and Television building in downtown Cairo.

Police reported a 40-year-old villager was killed when her house collapsed in Faheem, north of Cairo.

Twenty-one people were hurt in Paphos in southwestern Cyprus, the port closest to the epicenter. State-run Cyprus radio said landslides blocked some mountain roads, nearly toppled churches and damaged several buildings.

The region has a history of deadly tremors. On Nov. 22, an earthquake of magnitude-6.2 rocked the Gulf of Aqaba, damaging buildings in Jordan, Egypt and Israel and killing eight people. A quake that struck Cairo on Oct. 12, 1992, killed more than 450 people and injured 4,000.

Wednesday's quake was felt for more than two minutes. A mild aftershock followed about an hour later.

A quake of magnitude-6 can cause severe damage if it is centered under a populated area. Magnitude-7 indicates a major earthquake capable of widespread, heavy damage.

Deadly accidents up, pushed by drunk driving, study says

By JENNIFER BROWN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Deadly accidents increased last year for the third straight year, led by the first rise in drunken driving deaths in a decade, a private safety group said Wednesday.

Overall, accidental deaths including car crashes, poisonings, falls, drownings and fires increased to 93,300 in 1995, the National Safety Council said. That's up 2 percent from 91,400 in 1994.

The 4 percent rise in alcohol-related traffic deaths, to 17,274 in 1995, was first reported in July by the government.

The private safety group said motor-vehicle accidents accounted for nearly half of all accidental deaths in 1995 — 43,900 — up 3 percent from 1994. About 41 percent of all fatal car accidents are alcohol-related — while just 6 percent of all accidents, fatal and nonfatal, are alcohol-related.

Also adding to the rise in accidental deaths was a surge in drug overdoses and other unintentional fatal poisonings, the council said.

Poisoning by solids and liquids caused 10,000 deaths in 1995, up 11 percent from 1994. For the first time, poisonings caused more deaths in the home than did accidental falls — 7,300 deaths in 1995, the council said.

About 9,000 deaths were due to poisoning in 1994, and 7,877 in 1993, the report said.

It was unclear how many poisoning deaths were due to the use of illegal drugs. But a surge in drug overdoses, primarily cocaine, is the main reason for the increase, the report said.

The number of deaths from drugs and medicine has increased steadily since 1979, while the number of deaths from other solid and liquid poisonings, including household chemicals, has decreased, the safety council said.

"It's a pretty alarming increase and I think what we can learn from this is as a society we would want to support any drug prevention efforts," said Terry Miller, statistician with the National Safety Council.

In 1995, the council reported 1.9 million accidental poisonings, both fatal and nonfatal.

Other report findings:

—Accidents are the leading cause of death for people under age 38, and are the fifth-leading cause of death in the United States.

—Sports-related deaths in 1995 included four deaths directly related to football, 28 parachuting deaths, seven hang-gliding deaths, 1,700 swimming deaths, 107 hunting deaths and 97 recreational underwater diving deaths.

The council's report used state information from death certificates for reports through 1993, and relied on estimates from each state for 1994 and 1995 reports.

Professor shows GOP's bad attitude

It is always good to know there are caring and concerned professors on campus who have empathy for students and know the struggles they face.

For example, Donald Dalglish, professor of military science and adviser for the College Republicans.

In Tuesday's edition of the State Press, Dalglish said "Who the hell entitled students to go to college at someone else's expense there are too many damn students in college anyway. Why should we pay for their going to bars every night or watching sports events?"

Tell us, Don, who paid for the education of your party's presidential candidate? Could it have been the taxpayer who footed 100 percent of the college education bill for Bob Dole and millions of other GI's coming back to the states after the Second World War?

Arguably, though, Dalglish has a point. There are many students on campus majoring in partying, skipping class and graduating just as ignorant as they were when they started college. Fortunately, for them and the rest of society, they usually go to work for their daddy, end up advising College Republicans or join the U.S. military, which specializes in training people of limited intelligence to perform marginally useful tasks, such as purchasing $900 toilet seats and $600 hammers.

But for the rest of us students who are working our butts off to pass classes and slaving away at a subsistence-level job to pay the rent, Dalglish's comments are offensive and reveal him to be an elitist and out-of-touch academic.

Dalglish is the epitome of his ilk. He and his fellow Republicans would gladly sacrifice education, the gateway to power and the key to America's future, for death satellites orbiting earth and a little bit of extra jingle in their jeans.

It is also convenient for the likes of Dalglish to keep people ignorant. It is a lot cheaper and easier to use and manipulate the uneducated masses if they are unable to think for themselves. Educated people tend to question and critically examine their government and are less likely to march off to war at the exhortations of politicians and fat generals.

The comments are not surprising, considering the source. It is no secret Republicans want to cut education, so it is logical to assume Dalglish, as the College Republican adviser, would support this. Maybe it is a good idea. The first program we could cut is military science. Since the biggest enemy the U.S. military seems to be facing now is eighth rate military power Iraq, does the University really need to spend money on training future officers to march in a straight line, order shoelaces and kill people?

Maybe, Professor Dalglish, instead of ranting and raving about college students, you should read up on Thomas Jefferson who said, "If a nation expects to be ignorant and free, in a state of civilization, it expects what never was and what never will be."

Owens plays dirty in 6th District

In the congressional race for the 6th District both sides are flinging accusations, but it is the Republicans who have landed a direct hit.

On Oct. 3, the Republicans filed a lawsuit in Washington, D.C., accusing the AFL-CIO of "illegally electioneering on behalf of Arizona Democrat Steve Owens and other Democratic candidates." It is about time the Republicans get tough on the Democrats for their campaign of liberal deception, back door financing and illegal activity.

In the Oct. 4, issue of the Mesa Tribune, Congressman J.D. Hayworth said, "The union campaign clearly violates federal laws that prohibit the use of member's compulsory dues to influence federal elections." In response to the lawsuit, Jonathan Hiatt, AFL-CIO general counsel, was quoted in The Arizona Republic as saying, "The labor ads do not violate the law because they do not expressly advocate the election or defeat of a particular candidate." He said "The ads have not been coordinated with Democratic candidates or party officials." This is not true. These ads are not only illegal but they are false and severely misleading.

For example, several pieces of literature put out by the Owens campaign contain similarities indicative of coordination and misrepresentation. One flier distributed at a recent rally listed "the four priorities" of the Owens campaign as "protecting Medicare, protecting pensions, investing in education and saving college loans."

Another piece of literature, a flier that was handed out on the main campus of ASU last week, declares "Congressman J.D. Hayworth voted to let multi-millionaires avoid paying their income taxes by renouncing their U.S. citizenship." The flier was paid for by the "Steve Owens for Congress" campaign and cited House Resolution 831 Congressional Quarterly vote #272 as the source.

After some time on the Internet I found the entire bill, the votes, committee meetings and notes on HR 831. This bill is now law after several revisions. It was originally designed to give tax breaks to the self employed. The bill was stuffed with rules regarding the FCC, microwave spectrums, health plans in New York state, contractual law, employer deductions, estate taxes, a 30 percent tax rate for qualified plans, gifts, death and U.S. citizenship.

This bill was stuffed with pork which is a waste of taxpayer's time and money. Also, the vote in question was entirely partisan, 193-224, right down party lines.

The accusations from the Owens campaign clearly are false. As for the Hayworth campaign, they are claiming Steve Owens is in the "hip pocket" of big labor and the unions. According to documents from the Federal Election Commission dated Sept. 20, 1996, Steve Owens claims to have received $91,535 in political action committee contributions. The larger contributors under the non-party and other committee section of the document are big labor and unions, some with connections to organized crime.

This money comes from the dues of union members, whether they approve of its use or not, to produce and broadcast negative attack ads. It is estimated that the unions have spent an unprecedented amount of $1.1 million in Arizona in an attempt to unseat Hayworth. Come November 5, the AFL-CIO will have spent over $2 million for the 6th District seat.

In this battle for the 6th District the shots being fired are damaging only to the those that seek to deceive.

Tragically, Steve Owens, the AFL-CIO and the Democrats are fighting dirty. The unions are attempting to buy Owens a seat in congress with PAC money and stolen membership dues which pay for deceptive advertising. Now, with the courts involved, there might be some hope of civility in this race. But when it comes to the unions you are more likely to be hit on the head with a lead pipe from behind than to get a fair fight.

Men can discuss feminist issues

According to the more popular and stereotypical messages males receive, anytime men mention the word feminism our testosterone is supposed to bubble and boil and our throats are supposed to hiss with contempt.

TIM ELIZONDO
Columnist

State Press columnist Theresa Valles wrote in her column about the typical "ignorance" that men have in regards to women's issues and cartoonist Brian Fairington greatly helped the progress of gender understanding with his ad-hoc attack on the modern day working woman. But for a moment I ask that we put aside the stereotyping and the assumptions and address the question of where does feminist theory and/or feminists place men within the discussion of "women's issues."

This question seems to be one that has a great need to be addressed. For if one agrees with Valles' assumption that all men have their thumbs up their proverbial wazoos, which I might be inclined to agree with, then obviously a greater need is presented for men to be introduced to the type of consciousness raising education that programs like Women's Studies provide.

But the problem is that there seems to be no movement or gesture from the feminist perspective which attempts to court males into these types of classes. The name alone — "Women's Studies" — connotes a discipline that is about women and perhaps only for women.

The most popular reply by other people when I disclose I am currently taking a feminist theory class is either "Oh, you must be taking that to pick up girls," or "Why are you taking that?"

Both men and women seem to agree with the idea that a Women's Studies class is no place for a man and the only reason a male would take such a class is because either he is on the hormonal prowl or something is not quite right with his mentality.

My feminist classmates have made similar comments ranging from the "What are YOU doing here?" to the "You don't understand. You're not a woman."

What is it about learning a new way of viewing history, politics, literature and social construction that is supposed to make me unable to understand? If feminist theory is about viewing the female experience in a male-dominated world, then what makes me and my biological make up unable or unqualified to participate, in the discussion? Or, if I was allowed to participate then why as a man do I not have any credibility to the issues about women simply because I'm not one?

Using this line of thinking, an African American would be unqualified to take a course on Western civilization, let alone teach it, just as an Anglo would be unqualified to discuss issues involving African Americans.

Men rape women. Men abuse women. I would say most issues that are dubbed a "woman's issue" somewhere along the way involves a man either directly or indirectly.

I wish somebody would explain it to me, because the notion that men do not belong in these types of classes or forums is extremely pervasive on this campus and within our culture.

'Coming out' a big step for gays

On Oct. 11, we, the gay community, celebrate National Coming Out Day. Coming out, the act of accepting one's homosexuality, can involve only a thought of recognition or actual disclosure to friends, family or acquaintances. Regardless of how it is started, coming out presents us with more questions than answers. It confronts us with the reality of legal discrimination and the threat of verbal and physical violence. For most of us it is like a cold shower and there are very few with the necessary aplomb to make the transition from denial to reality unaffected. It is a process without a clear path that leads us, with every new set of circumstances, with every new encounter to a new beginning where we have to make the decision of whether to reveal our sexual orientation or to lie, directly or by omission.

Maintaining the silence is usually the easiest choice. After all, very few people start conversations with an open "Are you gay?" although some friends of mine are exceptions, and society rewards conformity and sameness. More than that, society punishes queerness, so thoroughly, in ways so subtle and brutal, that we need no explicit warnings to keep quiet. The fear of ridicule, of wickedness will make us, during a good portion of our lives, censor ourselves.

Some people come out and break the silence against terrible pressure, usually in isolation with the veiled or explicit threat of violence waiting just around the corner. That some come out overcoming fear, self-loathing and insecurity represents a triumph of the human spirit, a revolt against the established order, a pure act of individual strength. Coming out shows with exquisite clarity the near-miraculous capacity of human beings to start — against all odds — something new and unexpected, an act whose consequences cannot be known or bound.

Coming out is easier in big cities with stable and well-organized gay populations than in small towns. It is easier in this country than in many others in the world. For instance, the situation in Latin America, where I come from, is terribly sad. Coming out is easier now than it was 20 years ago and even more so than 30 or 40 years ago. All this as a result of the individual and collective fight of hundreds of thousands of homosexuals to eradicate the oppression. All this thanks to all the gay people who have turned the spotlight onto themselves for the world to see what before had been forced into obscurity. All this to make the world a better place to live for themselves and for the ones coming after them. It is easier now, but not easy enough. It is safer now, but not safe enough.

We need stronger institutions and platforms from which to disseminate the message that diversity is not a politically correct statement, diversity is what human beings are all about. If sameness and uniformity are required from everybody it can only spell death for the human race. We are in need of equality before the law at every level and on every count. We need better ways to reach people still in the closet so that they can benefit from the experience and support of those who have been there and know how it feels. We need an education system that teaches that homosexuality is morally, if not numerically, equivalent to heterosexuality. We need more people proud of who they are, at ease with themselves and willing to be our leaders. We need not to be afraid.

We need also to make changes among ourselves. More specifically, we need to eliminate the notion that homophobia would come to an end if only the closeted gays and lesbians finally felt uncomfortable enough in their closets and decided once and for all to come out.

This is mostly wishful thinking. Visibility does not end discrimination as African Americans well know. Everyday contact with different people will not end hundreds of years of fag-bashing at the hands of churches, governments and fellow travelers. Visibility, therefore, must not be our main objective, political power should.

Visibility will be just a nice byproduct of that power.

Individual strength can never be enough to resist the pressure of society and effect significant change at the same time. A multitude of men and women acting in concert can. Political power, which arises every time a group of people act together, can end discrimination.

Today we call gays and lesbians on this campus to come out and celebrate, but also to organize and actively pursue an end to legalized homophobia. From this forum we encourage all sympathetic straights to come and celebrate with us but also to reflect on what has been, and still is, a most unfair treatment, for those of us who are homosexuals, at the hands of the majority.

Today we must come out and live our lives the way we want to, confronting this world in all its reality. Come out to feel the warmth and closeness that our community is able to provide. Come out to find out who you really are. Above all, today we must come out because, on the edge of the third millennium, we can still affirm — with complete certainty — that only the truth shall make us free.

Columnist should have paid attention in poli-sci class

After reading Joshua Solovskoy's article on the presidential election, I had to wonder what the requirements for graduating with a degree in political science were. As I looked at his definitions for liberal and conservative ideologies it was apparent that Solovskoy did not pay too much attention to his POS 101 lectures.

For if he had he would clearly recognize that liberal thought, starting with John Locke, called for the individual rights of citizens and in no way attempted to control social actions. On the other hand, conservatives led by Edmund Burke sought to control the natural desires and urges of the citizens by social institutions, including church and government.

Furthermore, Solovskoy defines current conservatives as believing in a laissez faire social policy. If this is the truth, then why has the Republican Party repeatedly voiced their opinion that Roe vs. Wade should be overturned, making abortion illegal? Perhaps he can explain how this viewpoint, which many Republicans wear as a badge of honor, coincides with a social theory that "government should not be involved in our lives."

On the other hand, liberal ideology does not believe that the government should be involved in every social issue. A more accurate definition would be to say the government should help social problems which cannot be rectified by the people themselves.

On the surface Solovskoy's article appears to be supporting the Republican candidate. But when considering that he is clearly a partisan "dittohead," with no critical thinking skills of his own and no concern for truth or accuracy, the real message of this article appears. Do you want to continue to support the deterioration of the school system, which has produced such fine minds as Solovskoy, by voting for Dole, who has promised to eliminate the Department of Education? Or should a vote be cast for an ally of schools and teachers, President Clinton?

I thank Solovskoy for writing the most convincing argument for a Clinton second term that I have read in a while.

SES may reduce service due to lack of volunteers

By JENNIFER NETHERBY
STATE PRESS

Safety Escort Service will be forced to cut back service if it does not get more volunteers to escort students across campus soon.

SES is short on volunteers between 6:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. during the week and on weekends, said Keith Menard, the Associated Students of ASU campus affairs vice president.

SES provides free escorts to safely take students across campus every day from 6:30 p.m. to 12:15 a.m.

There are between one and four volunteers working these times, Menard said. At least two volunteers are needed to escort students across campus.

Menard said at least 10 to 12 volunteers are needed, depending on the number of hours each volunteer works. Volunteers are required to work at least two hours a week.

Service will continue as long as possible, he said, adding that when it becomes too much of a burden for volunteers, service will be cut back.

Escorts are now working extra hours to cover the shift.

To become a SES escort, students must pass an ASU police background check.

"The main thing is, it can be a man or woman. We don't discriminate," Menard said.

Spent cans to fund playground renovation

BY KENNES BOLIG
STATE PRESS

The ASU Child Study Lab hopes recycling the old will help educate the young.

The lab, a nonprofit preschool run by the Psychology Department, is hoping to upgrade its playground for the lab's 25th anniversary next year by recycling aluminum cans to raise money.

Through a partnership with Phoenix Metro Can Cashier, the lab will receive 40 cents for every dollar earned, said Lynn Sankey, the fund raiser's organizer.

"The lab needs our help to keep going," she said. "It needs our help to get equipment that is viable for children and that is safe and not run down."

The Child Study Lab is an accredited preschool that provides research and educational opportunities for the department while serving about 140 families, both affiliated and not affiliated with the University, said Zita Johnson, the lab's coordinator.

The lab's playground is located next to the Psychology Building west of McAllister Avenue.

"The playground offers a lot of opportunities for learning," Johnson said. "We would like to extend those opportunities."

Through the Kids for Cans Campaign, the lab hopes to raise enough money to enlarge the playground's climbing structure and to enhance the children's garden, Johnson said.

"We've been working for years to upgrade the playground," said Sankey, who has two children attending the preschool and is a member of the lab's auxiliary parent group. "It's our way of giving something back to the lab."

Anyone interested in donating aluminum cans is asked to bring them to the lab located in the Psychology Building or to contact Sankey at 838-4891.

Symington proposes at least $100 million tax cut

TUCSON (AP) — The Arizona Legislature should cut state income taxes by at least another $100 million next year, Gov. Fife Symington said Wednesday.

His proposal, along with a 15 percent tax cut and $500 per-child tax credit that Republican presidential candidate Bob Dole has endorsed, would result in a 43 percent income tax reduction for Arizonans earning $35,000 a year, Symington said.

The governor pledged when running for re-election two years ago to eliminate the state's income tax. Enacting his latest proposal would mean a 27 to 33 percent drop in all in the state's income taxes during his six years in office, he said.

"Whack the tax. That's our mission," Symington told a downtown rally that drew about 50 supporters — local and state GOP candidates and party faithful. Afterward, he held a similar rally and news conference outside the state capitol in Phoenix.

State Sen. John Kaites, R-Glendale, who accompanied Symington to Tucson, said the governor's proposal would enjoy "a tremendous amount of support" in the Republican-dominated Legislature.

"It's something that is doable," Kaites said. "We understand where our priorities should be placed, and that's why last year 88 percent of all new spending went to education in Arizona."

Kaites said when the state has surpluses such as the current $750 million cited by Symington, "we should be in a position to cut taxes."

Symington described the legislative process as "a total brawl" that he said he looks forward to.

The governor said he remains committed to eliminating the state income tax — the purpose of which "is to basically invite more capital into the state."

"It's a great economic development tool" that will allow Arizona to compete with states such as Nevada that have no state income tax, he said.

Symington said his administration has reduced Arizonans' state income taxes by 21 percent, or $1.2 billion.

In addition, the Legislature reduced the state's property tax by $200 million this year, along the lines of a Symington proposal.

At his urging, the Legislature cut income taxes by $40 million in 1993, $100 million in 1994 and $200 million in 1995.

Protesters target CIA after allegations of drug sales surface

BY MELODY McDONALD
STATE PRESS

Believing recent allegations the CIA sold crack-cocaine in American cities to fund Central American contras in the 1980s, a handful of protesters picketed the federal courthouse in downtown Phoenix Wednesday afternoon.

About 20 people — mostly African Americans — walked up and down the sidewalk holding signs reading "Investigate CIA," "Hypocrites, Murderers, Liars" and "Indict George Bush — The Crack Kingpin."

Rev. Oscar Tillman, president of the Arizona State Conference of the NAACP, said the protest is a way of showing his concern about what has happened to "our community." He was referring to the allegations recently uncovered by the San Jose Mercury News that the CIA dispersed crack-cocaine into California's predominately black communities to fund Nicaragua's civil war.

Although $19 million was provided by the U.S. Congress to back the contras — who were trying to overthrow the communist government in Nicaragua — the newspaper claims the CIA provided additional funding to the group by trafficking drugs.

"Drugs were introduced to a segment of our community," Tillman said. "And I'll be less than a person to stand by and try to pretend that nothing has happened."

"Someone knows of a horror story dealing with someone on drugs and it could not have happened had it not been for the people at the top, such as George Bush when he was over at the CIA, such as George Bush when he was president."

Caroline Lowery, executive director of the Arizona Black United Fund Inc. and co-founder of Stop Police Brutality, blames the government for her daughter's suicide and her two cocaine-addicted sons.

"We have lost many lives," she said, her voice trailing off. "We have to realize somebody don't like us, and I don't know why."

Rudy Buchanan Sr., founder of Citizens for Improved Community Police relations, said it is important to push for an investigation.

"We want to bring some awareness to this issue," he said. "We, in Phoenix, Arizona, are in total support that the truth come out in regards to this issue."

Lori Cain/State Press

Voter registration drive drops short of goal

BY SARA BUSH
STATE PRESS

Although the Associated Students of ASU voter registration campaign came up 255 registrations short of its goal, those participating in the campaign were enthusiastic about the response.

In the past few weeks 4,745 people registered to vote through the drive, which ended Oct. 7.

"You reach for the stars and you land on the moon," said Damon Pace, ASASU state relations member.

Autumn Ness, ASASU Task Force Coordinator, headed the ASU voter registration effort, which combined student organizations as well as the MTV Rock the Vote campaign.

"Historically, students have really low voter turnout," she said. "They don't usually know about the issues."

Ness said this is the first year ASASU made a concerted effort to get students to vote.

"Nothing like this (campaign) has ever been done before," she said. "I think it's actually going to make students a force in this election."

ASU's College Republicans and Young Democrats aided Ness' non-partisan mission. Both staffed tables on campus and registered students to vote.

Young Democrat Vice President Michelle Carson, a sophomore journalism major, was impressed with the "tremendous turnout" at their registration drive.

"I think it is extremely important for people in our age group to start getting out there to vote," Carson said.

Ness said that with the voter registration deadline passed, she will shift her focus to planning other election events and disseminating information about candidates. Ness is also publicizing the early polling site located in the Apache Room in the Memorial Union.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Michael Jackson was greeted by hundreds of jumping, weeping, sign-waving fans Wednesday in South Korea, where his act is strictly adults only.

"We love you. Thank you," Jackson said at the Kimpo Airport as police struggled to contain the throng.

Jackson's concerts Friday and Sunday in Seoul had been opposed for months by Christian, civic and consumer groups upset by the 1993 child molestation allegations against Jackson. The groups said Jackson was a negative influence on youth, but agreed to back down after promises that tickets would not be sold to people under 18.

NEPTUNE, N.J. (AP) — Bruce Springsteen is trying to set the record straight — he is not backing Bob Dole for president.

The Dole bus blared Springsteen's "Born in the U.S.A." on Monday as the campaign caravan rolled into Red Bank, one town away from Rumson, where Springsteen owns a home.

On Tuesday, Springsteen sent a fax to the Asbury Park Press.

"I read in The Press this morning that my music was appropriated for the Republican rally for Bob Dole in Red Bank yesterday. Just for the record, I'd like to make clear that it was used without my permission and I am not a supporter of the Republican ticket," the message said.

This is not the first time Springsteen has been unwillingly thrust into the political arena. In 1984, Springsteen issued a similar pronouncement after President Ronald Reagan invoked the name of "The Boss" during a campaign swing through New Jersey.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — Sir Edmund Hillary is now king of the humanitarian mountain.

The conqueror of Mount Everest was named 1997 Humanitarian of the Year by the show business industry's worldwide children's charity. Variety Clubs International cited his "outstanding empathy understanding and devotion to children worldwide."

The New Zealander, who along with Tenzing Norgay was the first to scale the 29,028-foot Everest in 1953, will be presented his award next April during the group's 70th annual convention in Auckland.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Want to buy some of George Burns' cigars? Or a pair of his familiar round glasses?

These and 263 other items can be purchased at Sotheby's Beverly Hills auction house on Thursday. Sotheby's bid estimates: cigars up to $1,200; the glasses $1,500 and a director's chair from Burns' office $5,000.

Not exactly prices commanded at this summer's Jackie Kennedy auction, but Burns lived less grandly, occupying the same Beverly Hills house for 61 years. Sotheby's estimates the total return at from $250,000 to $350,000.

Auction proceeds will go to the comedian's favorite charities: Cedar Sinai Medical Center, United Jewish Fund and the Motion Picture and Television Fund.

Burns died March 9, two months after his 100th birthday.

BERLIN (AP) — Wrap artists Christo and Jeanne-Claude, astronaut Thomas Reiter and Olympic gold medalist Jens Weissflog were among those awarded Orders of Merit on Tuesday by German President Roman Herzog.

Christo and his wife and partner, Jeanne-Claude, were named for their fabric-wrapping of the Reichstag, which focused the art world's attention on Berlin in the summer of 1995.

ASU prepares for 1st road trip of season

By DUSTIN KRUGEL
STATE PRESS

No. 4 ASU will be chartering unknown territory Saturday — the road.

The Sun Devils will be playing away from the friendly confines of Sun Devil Stadium for the first time since Nov. 11, 1995. Saturday's game against UCLA at Rose Bowl will begin at 12:30 p.m.

ASU may not want to leave the 100-degree heat after its 5-0 start, which is the school's best since 1982 when then-coach Darryl Rogers led his squad to a 9-0 start.

"That was a big advantage because most teams can't deal with the heat," junior tailback Michael Martin said of playing at home. "We practice in this 98-degree weather everyday."

Senior linebacker Derek Smith said he won't miss unseasonably warm October weather in the Valley. ASU's practices were moved back one hour this week due to the warm temperatures.

"We do have an advantage in our stadium with the heat. People come in here and die," Smith said. "I think it will be kind of nice with the mild temperatures (in Pasadena). We can go out and run like it's nothing."

After averaging almost 60,000 fans per game this season, ASU may walk into the Rose Bowl with a crowd of 70,000-80,000 Bruin fans. The Sun Devils have not lost a road game since their 31-0 collapse against USC on Sept. 30 of last year in the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

"It will be the first time we will hear a crowd that won't be for us. Sometimes that can shock a team, but this is a veteran club," Head Coach Bruce Snyder said. "Other than that, it's natural grass and it's shaped the same way our field is."

Smith said he is looking forward to hearing a little harassment from the Bruin faithful.

"It is actually kind of fun when they are booing and stuff," he said. "I kind of like that. It kind of gets you jazzed. It brings a smile to your face."

Tim Hacker/State Press

ASU women's tennis coach Sheila McInerney will watch her Sun Devils battle a top-notch field and 100-plus degree weather this weekend. ASU opens its season at 8 a.m. on Friday, hosting the ASU/Miss Karen's Frozen Yogurt Fall Tennis Classic at Whiteman Tennis Center.

Weather, tennis to be hot at Classic

By RANDY JONES
STATE PRESS

Things will be scorching at the Whiteman Tennis Center this weekend.

ASU's women's tennis squad hosts the fourth ASU/Miss Karen's Frozen Yogurt Fall Tennis Classic. Action begins at 8 a.m. Friday and continues until Sunday's final around 3 p.m.

Four of the top 10 teams from last year's NCAA rankings will compete in the tournament (Texas, Wisconsin, UofA and Pepperdine). Along with those teams, Grand Canyon, San Diego State (doubles only), Kansas, Purdue and Loyola Marymount will be visiting the desert.

Temperatures are expected to be over 100 degrees all three days.

That heat and the level of competition should make things exciting and good for the Sun Devils, Coach Sheila McInerney said.

"I'm really pleased with this field," she said. "We try to do this with the first tournament, getting a diverse group (of teams). ... The weather is going to be brutally hot. I called all the (opposing) coaches and told them to start hydrating their players now and bring a lot of sunscreen."

McInerney, heading into her 13th year at ASU (198-124), sees good things for this year's edition of the Sun Devils.

"Basically we return seven of our (top) eight from last year," she said.

The Sun Devils finished 12-11, 1-9 in the Pac-10 South in 1995. Their final ranking was 27th.

Top returnees for ASU include the top three seeds in the tournament — juniors Reka Cseresnyes and Stephanie Lansdorp and sophomore Katy Propstra.

New to ASU are freshmen Michelle Martin of Lynchburg, Va., and Kerri Giardino from Palos Verdes, Calif.

Many Sun Devils see the team making strides this season.

"Everybody's better from last year's (team)," Cseresnyes said. "The three freshmen (now sophomores) have more experience. They know what to expect."

Sophomore teammate Alison Nash agreed. "I think we're ready to have a good season this year," she said. "Everyone's improved over the summer. It's good to get some matches in and work on what we've been practicing."

Senior Aimee Haas said the team will know where it stands after Sunday.

"This tournament will be a good criteria as to how we will do this year," she said. "So far everyone is playing well (in practice). We're in good shape, injury free. That's always a bonus."

McInerney said only Propstra will miss action due to physical problems. Propstra is sidelined with tendonitis in her elbow. Walk-on Martin will not compete due to problems with her being cleared by the

Smoltz, Lopez help Braves down Cards 4-2

ATLANTA (AP) — John Smoltz kept the Atlanta Braves close, then Javy Lopez cracked it open.

Lopez broke his bat on a tie-breaking, two-run single in the eighth inning and the Braves, behind yet another strong pitching performance, beat the St. Louis Cardinals 4-2 Wednesday night in Game 1 of the NL championship series.

"It's very important to win this one because now we can come in (Thursday) more confident and relaxed," Lopez said.

That Smoltz pitched well in October — he improved to 7-1 lifetime in the postseason — was no surprise. The defending World Series champions expect that from the ace who led the majors in wins and strikeouts this season.

"I would say overall, this is my atmosphere. I'm comfortable in this," Smoltz said.

The real shocker was all the empty seats. There were about 3,000 unoccupied ones in the upper deck in center field, perhaps from fans who are waiting for the Series to start.

Chipper Jones went 4-for-4, including a misplayed bunt single in the eighth, as the Braves won their eighth straight home game in the postseason.

"We made some mistakes," Cardinals manager Tony La Russa said. "When you sit back at night and think about how they scored those two runs in the eighth, it's going to grate at you."

Mark Wohlers pitched the ninth inning and earned the save as he did in each game of the first-round sweep of Los Angeles, during which Atlanta held the Dodgers to .147 hitting.

Game 2 is scheduled for Thursday night, with Greg Maddux facing Todd Stottlemyre of the Cardinals.

Smoltz limited St. Louis to five hits over eight innings. He struck out six and walked two.

12-year-old boy plays key role in N.Y.'s win

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernie Williams didn't need help from a 12-year-old fan with his home run.

He hit it so deep into the left-field stands that even a fishing net couldn't have stopped it.

Three innings after young Jeff Maier stuck his glove over the right-field wall and created the controversial game-tying homer, Williams took Randy Myers deep for his fourth homer of the postseason, giving the Yankees a 5-4, 11-inning victory over Baltimore on Wednesday in Game 1 of the AL championship series.

"This is about as close as it comes to one play beating you," Orioles manager Davey Johnson said.

Maier's move — a day too late for the Gold Glove Awards — gave an eighth-inning homer to New York's Derek Jeter that tied the score 4-4. Baltimore's Tony Tarasco had settled under Jeter's fly ball against the 9-foot wall in right.

But Maier stuck out his gloved left hand — not even an autographed Mizuno model — above Tarasco's more expensive Rawlings model and pulled the ball away. Umpire Rich Garcia called it a home run, then admitted after looking at a replay that he blew the call.

"I thought it was out of the ballpark," Garcia said.

TURN TO YANKEES, PAGE 16.

New York Yankee Bernie Williams (right) is congratulated by base coach Willie Randolph after hitting the game-winning solo home run in the 11th inning of Game 1 of the American League Championship Series on Wednesday to defeat Baltimore 5-4 in Yankee Stadium.

Yankees

"He reached out; he did not reach down. In my judgment, he did not interfere with the fielder attempting to catch the ball. It probably was a situation where the ball would have hit the wall."

Garcia said that if he had looked at a replay before the call, he would have ruled the play a double. Tarasco disagreed.

"It was like a magic trick, really. I was about to close my glove," he said. "Merlin must be in the house, abracadabra somewhere."

Garcia said none of the other umpires saw the play well enough to overrule him. Johnson was ejected during the ensuing argument and protested because the Yankees didn't have security in the right-field corner to prevent interference.

During last week's first round of the playoffs, a fan in the left-field corner reached out to catch a home run down the line by Juan Gonzalez of the Rangers.

"I was told there would be security there so this would not happen," Johnson said.

Security was increased — but to prevent fans from throwing anything at Roberto Alomar. Still the focus of attention after the spitting incident with umpire John Hirschbeck on the last weekend of the regular season, Baltimore's All-Star second baseman was booed long and loud each time he went to the plate.

Alomar extended his slump to 7-for-36 by going 1-for-6 with three strikeouts. He made the final out of four innings, but did manage a great defensive play when he threw out Cecil Fielder in the sixth while falling from his right knee on the center field grass.

Maier's defensive play was more critical. "I was just trying to catch the ball," the young fan said. "I feel bad for the Baltimore fans. But as a Yankee fan, if I helped the team I feel pretty good. I think I had a right to catch it because I thought it was going to go out."

Jeter, not exactly a power hitter, had 10 homers during the regular season.

"That didn't win the game, Bernie won the game," he said.

What would he say to Maier: "Thank you. Reach over all you want," Jeter said. "It's just something that happens. Sometimes you call it right and sometimes you call it wrong."

NCAA Clearinghouse. McNerney said she should be in action soon.

This tournament could provide some big wins for many Sun Devils.

"These fall tournaments have a lot of bearing on individual rankings for the NCAAs at the end of the year," McNerney said. "Somebody who does really well here gets one or two good NCAA wins, (which) could really be a big help come the end."

Cseresnyes finished last season ranked 20th nationally, while Lansdorp was 91st. The doubles duo of Propstra and Lansdorp was 12th.

McNerney said the goal for this tournament is for her players to get as many games in as possible.

"Hopefully the kids will go away playing a minimum of three singles and two doubles matches," she said. "This lets us get a feel for the new players and kind of see what shape the returning players are in."

The Cardinals had caused more trouble for Smoltz than any team throughout his career. They had gone 9-5 against him, and stopped his 14-game winning streak in June.

St. Louis starter Andy Benes, who beat Smoltz back in June, allowed two runs and seven hits in six innings. He struck out seven and walked none, and remained winless in five career postseason starts. Reliever Mark Petkovsek took the loss.

Mark Lemke, who hit a two-run single earlier, drew a leadoff walk from Petkovsek in the eighth. Jones followed with a bunt that bounced high, and Petkovsek slipped trying to field it.

Petkovsek whipped a throw to second baseman Luis Alicea, covering first base on the play, but Jones knocked the ball out of Alicea's glove and Lemke made it to third.

"It wasn't your routine bunt back to the pitcher," La Russa said.

"I'm surprised I got the signal right," Jones said.

Tony Fossas relieved and retired Fred McGriff on a popup. After Jones stole second, pinch-hitter Terry Pendleton was intentionally walked to load the bases.

T.J. Mathews relieved, and Lopez, who was 3-for-25 in his career with the bases loaded, managed to hit an 0-2 pitch up the middle for a single. When the play was finished, a bat boy went to the left side of the plate to retrieve a splinter of the bat.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by Frances Drake

Thursday, October 10, 1996

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) While you've been frustrated with a work project, you will finally finish off that task. You are in a romantic mood, so it's the perfect time to plan a weekend trip for two. Look for someplace new and exciting.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Impatience must be kept in check when around the elderly members of your family. A surprise financial dealing from a friend could be presented. Bide your time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) It is imperative that you be on time for appointments and social gatherings. Nobody will be impressed with a grand entrance. Handle financial affairs carefully.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Getting your point across to others might not be as difficult as anticipated. Beware of gossip mongers on the job. Business profits are likely.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) If you overindulge in the pursuit of pleasure, this could prove to be a costly move. It is important that you do not abuse your health and diet. Opt for privacy in the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Ingenuity brings job gains. The financial picture brightens. Group affairs are your cup of tea. Both singles and couples experience some wonderful romantic times.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Friends are not necessarily on the same wavelength as you. Patience is the key to your success. A home matter requires careful examination, so be attentive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your mind is made up about a future trip. However, some family members are in disagreement about your decision. It is time to act on your inspirations, but watch temperament.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you have been recently experiencing some doubts about your romantic life, this is certain to change for the better soon. You'll shop with an eye for beauty. However, look for bargains.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Act quickly to implement your goals and plans on the job. You must strike while the iron is hot. A confusing financial situation is solved to your satisfaction.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 Feb. 18) This would be a great time to get together with friends and make leisure plans. There could be a difficult person to deal with, so be prepared to get your point across.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) You're still at a stalemate with a partner, but as the day progresses, you will work out your problems together. Revised thinking affects a monetary deal.

YOU BORN TODAY have a very warm, generous nature and a compassionate heart. You are always the one clutching the hanky during a tear jerking movie or television show. Far from being a weakness, this sensitivity is your strength. You can not only sympathize, but empathize, with those around you. Naturally, you work best when you can champion human rights. Although politics appeals, you are most often found working in a humanitarian capacity. © 1996 King Features Syndicate Inc.
