Student Health will administer flu shots from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. today through Friday at the registration desk on the first floor of the Memorial Union. The first officially reported case of the flu in Arizona was found at the ASU Student Health Center last week. Flu vaccinations cost $10.

Pesky flu returns, zaps first victim

BY JEFF OWENS
STATE PRESS

The flu came back to Arizona in disguise last week, with the first officially-reported case in the state coming from ASU Student Health Services.

State Health Department officials confirmed that a young male ASU student showing decidedly un-flu-like symptoms is this season's first documented case of type-A influenza.

With that, the battle that Student Health Service staffers have expected and carefully prepared for all semester is finally underway.

ASU Chief Nurse Dianna Garcia-Smith said while Student Health staff has mounted its most ambitious prevention effort to date this year, a different strain of the flu struck suddenly while it was looking in the other direction.

"Last week, unbeknownst to us, I think we had the flu going and we didn't recognize it because it didn't look the same," she said. "We expect high fevers, chills, snotty noses and the whole works, but what happened with this one person who came in was that he came in with just a regular sore throat — nothing fancy, and no fever. The only thing that was different was that he was slightly dizzy, and we had another one Monday who had a little bit of blurred vision."

Garcia-Smith said when a throat culture of the initial patient was sent to the State Health Department lab (a standard procedure), it came back with a surprising diagnosis — type-A influenza.

"We couldn't believe it," she said.

Tickets hard to score for ASU/UofA game

BY BECKY HILL
STATE PRESS

Intense rivalry and high expectations for Saturday's ASU/UofA game means it's going to be hard to find a seat for the game anywhere.

And forget about getting a ticket.

UofA apportioned ASU a mere 4,000 tickets for the game and those were gone months ago.

Assistant Athletic Director Mark Brand said considering the Wildcat's stadium has over 57,000 seats, the number seems small, but ASU simply received its customary Pac-10 allotment.

"We tried to get more tickets to sell to our fans but they would not comply," he said.

"Because it is such a big game, UofA can easily sell the remaining 53,000 tickets to their fans and it makes sense that they would want to. Would we want more than 4,000 UofA fans in our stadium?"

It appears that ticketless fans will remain that way unless they want to shell out the big bucks to a ticket agency, a scalper or a greedy friend willing to part with a ticket for the right price.

The more than 35,000 ASU students who will not see the game live can watch it on television at home or at a local bar.

But McDuffy's manager Scott Adams said bar seats may be as hard to come by as tickets.

"There are a lot of really important games going on Saturday. In fact, we traditionally have 150 people right at 10 a.m. for the Indiana/Purdue game," he said.

"People need to know that if it's important to them to sit down, they need to get here early."

David Koedyker, a sophomore who has not declared a major, displays his tickets for the ASU/UofA football game Saturday evening. The ASU box office is sold out of tickets for the upcoming game. UofA only gave ASU 4,000 tickets. Koedyker got his from the UofA ticket office.

Academic Senate kills five College of Education degrees

BY DEANNA DARR
STATE PRESS

The ASU Academic Senate voted Monday to "disestablish" five graduate degrees within the College of Education that they classified as redundant or having low productivity.

Degrees eliminated were:

- Ed.D., Learning and Instructional Technology.
- Ed.D., Counselor Education.
- M.A., School Library Science.
- M.Ed., School Library Science.

• M.A., Educational Administration and Supervision.

The Academic Senate said these programs were "inactive or low production degrees from which few students graduate."

Thomas Metos, division director of Educational Leadership and Policy Study, said no students were enrolled in the past several years in the program that was cut from his division.

He said the decision had to do with expanding and streamlining the college. He added that there is an M.Ed. program that covers the same material as the M.A. in Educational Administration and Supervision.

Nicholas Appleton, division director of Curriculum and Instruction, said the college is in the process of restructuring degrees as well as consolidating individual degrees into one and allowing for concentrations. He said this allows for more flexibility within the program.

Appleton said the M.A. degrees are not as popular as the M.Ed. degrees since they are research-based rather than practice-oriented. He said that while the M.A. is usually considered a stepping stone for entrance into the Ph.D. program, students should not find it a problem to get into the program without this degree. Appleton said the applicant's teaching experience will be taken into consideration.

The library science degrees were cut because they are unable to find staff experienced enough to offer these degrees, he said.

Appleton added that the changes will only effect a handful of students enrolled in the program, and they will be able to finish their degrees.

Flu

Type-A influenza is one of the most common of the three flu types, and is spread by airborne droplets from coughing or sneezing. It is typically accompanied by symptoms including high fever, congestion, coughing and chills. Symptoms do not normally include dizziness, blurred vision or the absence of fever.

"It (the virus) can mutate between epidemic seasons," Garcia-Smith said. "That's why we watch it like a hawk; it changes very quickly. This year it's a whole different little animal. We were looking for major fevers and runny noses."

Atlanta Center for Disease Control reports confirmed type-A influenza cases this year so far in Alaska, Arizona, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, New Mexico, North Carolina, Tennessee and West Virginia.

Dr. Lawrence Sands, Maricopa County public director of community health services, said it is not radically unusual for the same disease to manifest itself with different symptoms in some cases. He added that it is too early to say whether the disease itself has changed.

"The flu typically presents itself abruptly, with high fever and a dry cough, but it's hard to say at this point what's happening on the basis of one or two cases," he said. "The important thing is that we know now that type-A is in the community. It is more important than ever then that the people who haven't been immunized be immunized as soon as possible."

ASU Student Health Services, which has offered flu vaccinations since October, will continue to provide immunizations only until the end of this week. They will be administered at the registration desk on the second floor of the Memorial Union from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. through Friday. The cost is $10, and can be paid at the time or billed to student accounts.

Adams said because he is showing a lot of satellite-only games that day, there will be a $2 cover charge.

In addition to having 55 televisions, 10 of which are big screens, the sports bar located at Fifth Street and Ash Avenue will also sell Rose Bowl memorabilia.

"We've gotten to where we are a full-blown standing-room-only ASU party every Saturday," Adams said.

For those not willing to battle the McDuffy's crowd or risk going without a chair, there are plenty of smaller bars around town looking for Sun Devil fans.

Bandersnatch Brew Pub on the corner of Fifth Street and Forest Avenue has three televisions inside the bar and two on the patio.

Owner Addie Mocca said the pub, which has its own in-house brewery, will have 10 cent wings, $1 ten-ounce drafts of Bud and Bud light, $2 dollar pints of their home brew and no cover.

Another popular hang-out for ASU students on game days is the Thirsty Beaver, 1001 E. Eighth Street. The log cabin-like building will open about an hour prior to the 4:30 p.m. kick-off time and has six televisions and one big screen.

At this time no drink specials are planned, but there is no cover charge.

Pope to visit Cuba

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

VATICAN CITY — In a stroke of brilliance or folly, Fidel Castro won a long-sought pledge Tuesday from Pope John Paul II to visit Communist Cuba next year, capping a triumphant stay in Rome by the Latin American revolutionary.

But, as the Vatican made clear, the pope accepted the invitation only after Castro agreed to the usual conditions for papal trips — that the pope can travel anywhere and meet with anyone. The Cuban leader had hoped to restrict the pope's visit, and may have paid a risky price for papal recognition.

"The only thing missing is the date in 1997," papal spokesman Joaquin Navarro-Valls said. Preparations will begin "shortly," he said. A Cuban stop in October during an already scheduled trip to Brazil was one possibility.

Cuba is the only Latin American country John Paul has yet to visit, and people questioned for years whether he would ever go to the Commie island. That all ended during Castro's historic, 35-minute audience in the pope's private library.

On one side was a bearded 70-year-old Cuban with a Catholic education whose revolution has endured for nearly four decades and become a cultural icon for the left. On the other: a Pole who leads nearly 1 billion Roman Catholics and helped bring down communism in the Soviet bloc, deepening Cuba's isolation.

While the Roman Catholic Church in Cuba traditionally has lacked the strength of the Church in John Paul's Poland, the pope could become a rallying point for anti-Castro Cubans.

"Of course, I would not impose conditions. We will treat him with respect," Castro told reporters about six hours after the meeting.

His tone was a great contrast to 1990, when a possible papal trip was shelved after Castro accused the Church of "anti-revolutionary" meddling.

The Cuban leader apparently hopes Vatican influence can help ease the 34-year U.S. embargo against Cuba, recently stiffened by the Helms-Burton Act intended to discourage foreign companies from investing in Cuba.

The embargo on Cuba did not come up during Castro's meeting with John Paul, Navarro said, although the pope opened the World Food Summit in Rome last week condemning the use of embargoes.

The pope is seeking greater political liberty and more freedom for the Church, such as better access to the media and permission for foreign priests to work in Cuba to bolster a dwindling clergy of 200 men.

Reports from Cuban church officials indicate the government has given the church a greater opening recently while keeping the lid on other dissent.

Navarro refused to say whether the pope raised the issue of human rights, but a Vatican statement after the meeting called for the "normalization" of conditions for the church in Cuba.

Cuban leader Fidel Castro, right, holds the hands of Pope John Paul II during their historic meeting at the Vatican Tuesday. The pontiff accepted Castro's invitation to visit Cuba, the only Latin American country that the 76-year-old pope has yet to visit.

Sexually transmitted diseases seen as public health scourge

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Sexually transmitted diseases are diagnosed 12 million times a year in the United States — including a staggering 3 million cases among teen-agers, the Institute of Medicine reported Tuesday. It urged a national attack to wipe out the largely hidden epidemic.

The nation spends just $1 to prevent sexually transmitted illnesses for every $43 spent treating them, the report found. The tab reaches $10 billion a year not counting the massive costs of AIDS, the best known of these diseases.

Left untreated, sexually transmitted diseases can cause infertility, cancer, birth defects and miscarriages, even death. And Americans suffer 10 to 50 times more sexually transmitted diseases than people in other developed countries, concluded the Institute of Medicine, an arm of the National Academy of Sciences.

Sexually transmitted diseases are "far more common than most Americans are aware," said report co-author Dr. Edward Hook III of the University of Alabama. "They attack people early in their life but ... these diseases change people's lives and affect them for the rest of their lives."

Among the institute's recommendations: Routine testing for sexually transmitted diseases among sexually active Americans, particularly young women, and improved sex education in schools — including condom distribution — to ensure that teens know how to protect themselves.

A separate Kaiser Family Foundation survey on Tuesday found one in 10 Americans cannot even name a sexually transmitted disease, and only 23 percent know about chlamydia, the most common sexual disease, striking an estimated 4 million Americans a year, the survey found.

Chlamydia is easily cured, but often goes undiagnosed because it seldom causes symptoms — and ultimately as many as one in 10 infected women become infertile from advanced disease.

The federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention is spending $106 million this year to fight sexually transmitted diseases other than AIDS, and the Clinton administration already is wrangling with whether to increase that funding.

The CDC hopes for additional money next year to expand nationwide a chlamydia screening program that has cut cases up to 60 percent among women who visit family planning clinics in 20 states. CDC will re-examine how it fights sexual disease in light of the Institute of Medicine report, said the agency's chief scientists for sexually transmitted diseases, Dr. Helene Gayle.

Sexually transmitted diseases include dozens of disorders transmitted by unprotected sex, from syphilis and gonorrhea to the liver-destroying hepatitis B and the deadly AIDS virus. Americans have been bombarded with AIDS prevention campaigns, but Tuesday's report says other sexual diseases are largely ignored.

Chunnel blaze underscores risks of tunnel beneath the sea

By LIONEL GOUGÉLOT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CALAIS, France — It was the Chunnel builders' nightmare — intense flames and deadly fumes choking the 31-mile tunnel used to whisk passengers and freight beneath the English Channel.

Eight people, including a pregnant woman, were overcome by smoke when fire broke out Monday night on a truck being hauled to Britain on a freight train.

It was the first serious accident since the tunnel linking Britain and France opened two years ago. Service was halted and could take three weeks to be fully restored.

None of the injuries were life-threatening. But the fire was a terrifying example of what can happen — despite elaborate safety precautions and frequent security drills — in this man-made engineering wonder beneath the sea.

"Another five or 10 minutes longer, we'd have all been carried out in bags," said truck driver Brian Shilton, one of 34 people evacuated from the tunnel.

"It just filled up with smoke so quick it was just unbelievable. Everyone was vomiting and choking and we all thought it was going to be the end," he said. "It was like being in a tomb."

The fire broke out at 9:45 p.m. 11 miles into the westbound tunnel — one of three tunnel corridors — and roughly a third of the way through the trip from Coquelles, France, to Folkestone, England.

The heat and smoke from the blaze were so intense that firefighters had to pull back every 10 minutes. It took eight hours to put out the fire. The cause of the fire remained undetermined, though Eurotunnel, which operates the tunnel, said arson seemed unlikely.

Most of the truck drivers had left their cabs to spend the half-hour tunnel ride in a club car. When the flames and smoke billowed into the car, they sprawled on the floor, breathed through handkerchiefs and prayed for their lives.

"There was panic and we waited in the club car. We couldn't leave," said Benoît Ringaud, a French trucker.

The freight train was carrying 29 trucks, 31 passengers and three crew members. It was the only train in the tunnel at the time and rescuers quickly evacuated the passengers.

The tunnel shut down immediately. Eurotunnel said it hoped to reopen partial service sometime today, but full service could take three weeks to restore. Eurotunnel was using ferries and planes to provide alternate service to passengers Tuesday.

A lengthy shutdown could prove financially devastating to the company, which is buried under $14 billion in debt. The company's stock fell nearly 4 percent Tuesday in London.

The Chunnel opened more than a year late in summer 1994 at much higher costs than projected and Eurotunnel has been losing money ever since.

Le Shuttle, the train that hauls passenger cars and freight, is distinct from the high-speed Eurostar trains, which whoosh 16,000 passengers a day from London to Paris or Brussels in three hours. But both services use the same tunnels, often at the same time.

Death of children shows society's evils

Remember that annoyingly sappy Whitney Houston song, "The Greatest Love of All?" It babbled on and on about the children being our future. We never really liked that song, but the part about kids being the future keeps playing over and over again as we read some of the latest news stories.

We're not talking about those feel-good kiddie stories that run in The Arizona Republic or Tribune newspapers. We're talking about the gritty stories that chill your soul. The ones that make your stomach turn.

Stories that point to the fact that all is not right in the world. Some wrongs can't be made right, and after-the-fact punishments do not make up for crimes. The harm is already done.

In Delaware last week, 18-year-old Brian Peterson Jr. helped his 18-year-old girlfriend, Amy Grossberg, give birth to what is believed to be his kid. Peterson allegedly admitted to dumping the newborn into a plastic bag and tossing it in the trash. As if it was just another piece of garbage.

The baby died. Peterson and Grossberg are up on murder charges.

Why did this baby have to die? Nobody knows yet. But in the end, it doesn't matter. It doesn't matter if the truth comes out. It doesn't matter if Peterson and Grossberg are convicted and sentenced to death. The end result is the same: a baby is dead.

For an equally horrifying story, let's travel to South Carolina, where Johnny Satterwhite decided to take his separation from his wife a step further than most people.

Johnny left Bertha Satterwhite a note wishing her a Merry Christmas and saying she'd be all alone in 1997.

One thing you can't accuse Johnny of is not keeping his word.

Sometime last week, he allegedly shot to death Mary, 16, Terrance, 14, Johnny, 13 and Christopher, 10, and then drowned himself. All of the children except Christopher were his step-children, but obviously Johnny didn't discriminate.

Bertha found her dead children after a mutual friend of the couple's called to say Johnny had left her four packages. The friend did not know what the "packages" referred to.

The justice system cannot punish Johnny, because he's dead. Some will argue that he took the easy way out. It would be far better if he were alive to stand trial.

But in the end, it doesn't matter. The children are still dead.

We watch our children die. We see them raped, murdered, mutilated. We watch the legal system struggle to mete out justice. Life sentences with no parole, death sentences with no escape.

But in the end, the punishment doesn't matter. It never will.

The children are still dead.

Icon's relationship with GOP showing signs of cracking up

Bill Bennet, God bless him, is starting to come around. It has taken a while, but the Jesuit education in his background is starting to rear its ugly head and lead him to start nipping at the hands that have so generously fed him.

Bennet, for those of you who have somehow managed to miss being scolded in the past decade, is a big time Republican/conservative thinker who hangs around the corridors of power lamenting the United States' moral decay. A staunch defender of The Western Canon (the books you probably don't read here at ASU anymore), and all it stands for, he has been quick to point fingers at all the usual neoconservative straw men.

Family degeneration, drugs, obscene music lyrics, liberalism and failure to teach the Western classics, all figure mightily in his tales of woe. This much we could expect from Rush Limbaugh (who, after all, merely copies most of the rare good points he makes from people like Bennet), but Bennet now appears to be willing to go one step further. He may be proving, like so many before him, that an education matched up with a sense of morality can indeed be a very dangerous thing.

It seems to have started during the Dole campaign. Many leading Clinton-haters couldn't understand why Bob Dole didn't just pull off his gloves and start pounding Arkansas Bill on the character issue. After all, that was his one great advantage over Clinton, wasn't it? Well, it was not quite as great an advantage as Dole might have lead his more naive followers to believe.

You see, back when Bob Dole was still married to his first wife he, well, developed an outside interest, if you get the drift. Not only that, but the outside interest was willing to go public in a big way if Dole tried to hammer Clinton on "the character issue." Dole, already being called a hypocrite for his reversal on economic policy, didn't think he could afford to be seen as hypocritical on character as well (for details on this, and how the media kept quiet, pick up a current news magazine).

STEVE FORSBERG
Columnist

Naturally Bennet would come to Dole's aid if the issue came up, right? Bennet said "No." The Republican faithfuls were aghast. Bennet announced that if the news went public he would denounce Dole in the same terms that he had used to denounce Clinton's marital indiscretions. If this basic story is indeed correct (it is too early to tell for certain — the leakers and pundits are still at work) it probably eliminates even the slim chance of Bennet ever being a candidate for high office. Interestingly, it seems that he likes this, and he certainly has been changing his tune recently. Perhaps, now freed of some ambitions, he will feel more at ease being a non-partisan social critic.

Perhaps it is wishful thinking, but Bennet's recent National Press Club address seems to possibly indicate that a schism is opening up between himself and the traditional economic conservatives. It seemed to pain him to say it, but he repeatedly called into question "rampant" and "unfettered" capitalism. He questioned the wisdom of letting market forces dictate U.S. society. He decried the practice of fixating only on the dollar sign bottom line, even at the expense of other more important criteria for societal success.

"Why is the U.S. so rich and yet so unhappy?" Bennet asked, and then tentatively forwarded the rather dangerous (for a conservative) notion that the two facts may be directly related. Have we created a virtual slave-driver economy, which forces people into producing ever more material wealth even while our collective morale plummets and our "moral and spiritual" core is being burned out? Bennet didn't come out and say it, but one couldn't help but notice that the outline was there.

Bennet is no fool. He could spend the rest of his life giving speeches to corporate gatherings at ten grand a pop so long as he keeps his aim on the inner city and keeps writing children's books.

Already, however, he speaks with some embarrassment about how his "Republican friends" give him odd looks when he talks about how corporate America manufactures a culture of discontent and about how material wealth shouldn't be the end all of human existence.

As time goes on, Bennet is beginning to sound suspiciously similar to many of the "liberal" social critics that his crowd so despises. The question is, will they notice? And if they do, will they turn on him? Probably.

Steve Forsberg is a senior studying history.

Riots started by media-crazed sheriff bent on self-promotion

Some people just aren't satisfied with the 15 minutes of fame life has to offer them — they crave for more. This craving can result in outstanding and cherished achievements in the arts, science, pop culture or other fields of public life.

Or it can lead them to seek the sheriff's office in Maricopa County, brag about being the toughest sheriff in America, treat inmates as subhuman and cause a major prison riot.

Joe Arpaio doesn't seem to be discriminatory of what kind of attention he gets. To our sheriff, all PR is good PR.

Whether it is pink underwear or cartoon-like, black-and-white striped prison garments with the sole purpose of humiliating inmates; or whether it is creating a tent prison in the midst of the desert; or whether it is giving the prisoners green bologna and other delicacies which give them food poisoning — Sheriff Arpaio still stands tall, chanting his "toughest sheriff in America" slogan more devotedly than a Hare Krishna follower chants his beloved mantra.

Sunday afternoon, when about 400 inmates at the tent-city jail rioted — leaving nine people injured, Arpaio saw the blooming of the seeds he's been sowing since 1992. Seeds of disrespect, maltreatment and inhumanity caused Sunday's riot, not a fight between inmates or pepper spraying of a prisoner by a guard. Those were just bad excuses for angry prisoners to let out the frustration and rage over being treated as less than humans by this guy who's actually been put in office by a popular vote.

"I believe jail should be punishment," Arpaio has been quoted as saying. Few would disagree with the principle in this statement, but I hope people will start to oppose the power freak's methods soon. By depriving people of their basic freedom, jails are already punitive facilities. Arpaio's jail are greenhouses for creating hardened, cynical criminals. But does he care? Hardly. By creating hardened, cynical criminals, the chances are big that they will revisit Arpaio's tents, thereby providing the big boss with more people to harass, and more power to him.

The sheriff enjoys putting on the meaner-than-hell image for the TV cameras, which can be a pretty enjoyable show in an elsewhere dull political arena. The problem is he appeals to a large enough audience to get him re-elected, and the people that write him off as the joke he is don't seem to voice their opinion strongly enough.

Another problem with Arpaio's image is that it's seen as the standard to follow by the prison guards who work for him. This causes a prison environment like that of a concentration camp (as one former tent city "resident" called it), not an institution to spur improved behavior.

The tent-city jail may be Arpaio's and his followers ideal of the perfect jail, but I see it as unworthy of any civilized country's justice system. To me, it stands as a reminder of past judicial mistakes, which should be left just like that — mistakes.

"I have nothing to hide," the sheriff said to Channel 3 yesterday. That's probably what the emperor said too when he paraded down the streets in what he thought was exquisite clothing, but turned out to be no clothes at all. And just like the emperor in the fairy tale, Arpaio's display of self-indulgence is nothing but pathetic.

Apology needed over comments

If Robert Kerrigan, the chairman of the ASU College Republicans, wanted to disagree with anything written by Roger Axford, it should have been sufficient for him to have stated the basis of his disagreement on its merits. Instead, he found it necessary to resort to petty, small minded, very personal insults which served only to make one wonder why he couldn't support his point by simply stating the facts. If that weren't bad enough, he also had to throw in repeated references to excrement that were, quite frankly, downright creepy.

I have known Axford and his wonderful sister Marian Axford Shea, for several years. Rather than catalogue here their many contributions to our community over the course of decades, let me simply say that they are examples of what students should hope to become as they leave the University and take a larger role in the affairs of our society. They are people of integrity and fine character who speak the truth, who care about what happens to their neighbors, and who, through word and action, are ensuring that the world will have been a better place for their having been in it.

Apparently none of this means anything to people who would rather tear down than create. Kerrigan, in his dis-tempored Tourettes fit, even went so far as to call into question the parentage of these two respected citizens. Moreover, he perpetrated this deliberate slander in his capacity as official spokesman for the College Republicans, making the whole group look disreputable.

Kerrigan needs to apologize for his nasty, uncivil and immature insults. He should be ashamed of himself, but I suspect that he is not.

Spend less time as fans, more time as citizens

I must commend Brian Moore for his insightful contribution to our esteemed university press. It is high time that people take off the blinders and look around at reality. People, IT IS A GAME.

While I stood in line to vote recently, I realized just how this country is spiraling into a cesspool of despair. As I stood in line, throngs of angry voters left the polling place because they were in the wrong place. Funny, during the last local election there was no problem. Know why? Nobody showed up to vote. Also, as I stood there with my sample ballot of carefully researched choices, people were asking for a peek so they could see what the propositions were. They don't know the issues but they could not only tell you ASU's current football record, but also the starting lineup of the team.

I challenge all of you football fans out there to try this. You know your way to the stadium; find your way to the polls. If we could get 80,000 people of the 145,000 in Tempe to vote, the politicians may spend a little more time dealing with our concerns.

As hunger spreads in Zaire and wars continue in the Balkans we should try to keep things in perspective. Through horrid weather conditions, 60 percent of the people in Romania turned out to cast their ballots. If we cannot take interest and voice our concerns intelligently in world affairs as citizens, how can we expect our leaders to make decisions based on our interests? Such apathy will produce a fascism that does not concern itself with the thoughts of its citizens. Keep that in mind as you swig back beers on your Monday nights to the tune of the NFL.

Student proud of ASU

In reference to the opinion of Professor Merri H. Schall:

I will see, forever, the seemingly endless touchdowns of Terry Battle.

I will see, forever, a diverse, intelligent student body on campus.

I will see, forever, the respect for opposing viewpoints, along with respect for the leaders of our great country who visit our honorable school.

Despite what Schall believes, I am proud of what Arizona State University has become. Oh, pray for us, Sparky, for the tenured, senile professors to which we are subjected.

Sexual harassment needs definition

After reading Bryn Chancellor's letter concerning the U.S. Army "sex scandal" and related subjects, I felt compelled to respond by questioning a few things.

First off, what is sexual harassment? Can you give us a clear-cut definition? Judging from my experiences, nobody can. Every time I ask that question, I get a different answer. The answers usually range between unprovoked, unwanted sexual advances to nothing more than saying one off-color remark about women in general.

I believe the former can be legitimately construed as sexual harassment. But what about the latter? This is where it needs to be defined once and for all. Believe it or not, the general, off-color remark is protected by the First Amendment, assuming it does not infringe upon the rights of others.

Chancellor asserts that "incidentally, reverse sexism, racism, classism, etc. are the biggest lies on the planet." Therefore, according to Chancellor, rich, white males are responsible for most, if not all, injustices involving "sexism, racism, classism, etc."

Now that you have established that, why don't you gather your black, Hispanic, native, poor and female friends and start castrating rich, white males. Will that give you the satisfaction you need? If you want to know the truth, you do not need to do that because reverse discrimination already has. In courts, civilian or military, if a woman even utters the words "sexual harassment" or "sexual assault," a man is considered by judge or jury to be guilty until proven innocent, rather than innocent until proven guilty, which is proper protocol in a court of law. In most cases I have observed, or have been indirectly involved in, judge, jury and plaintiff tend to lose sight of the fact that it takes two to tango.

Do not misunderstand, I am not discrediting all incidents of sexual harassment and assault, but I am saying that, in many situations, women should not be absolved of their responsibilities.

For starters, if a woman decides to wear a short skirt or something which would naturally turn a man's head, she should expect to be stared at or advanced upon (not physically); that's human nature. How the woman responds to that is the key. If she makes it clear that she is not interested, even if she has to be blunt, many men will accept that. However, if she leads him on, gives him a clue that she is interested and even touches him, it usually gives a signal that she "wants it."

When sexual contact is involved, a female either consents or she does not consent. If she is drunk and cannot give an answer, the responsibility goes both ways. Yes, the male took advantage of her, but the female had a responsibility to herself to not subject herself to the condition she was in. If she even utters a "yes" or an "OK," then she takes on all responsibility for the results. In this situation, the woman has absolutely NO right to cry rape (it does happen).

Also, it cannot be denied that women advance on men as well. It is no secret that women also stare, make remarks and advance on men as well. Is that not sexual harassment? In the eyes of the courts, it is not. In fact, it would probably be laughed at by some judges.

Do not misunderstand the message of this letter. I am NOT condemning every incident of rape or sexual harassment. I am NOT saying that women, and only women, are responsible for these incidents. I am, however, saying that both genders are responsible for their own actions, as well as their environment. If this were really the case in America, the women involved in consensual sex with the four non-commissioned officers at Ft. Leonard Wood would also be charged with sexual misconduct. I am also calling for a clear-cut definition for sexual harassment from both genders. Not only am I tired being held legally responsible for doing or saying something which comes natural, I am tired of having my First Amendment rights violated by some femi-Nazi like Bryn Chancellor who has a chip on her shoulder.

POLICE REPORT

ASU police reported the following incidents Tuesday:

- A female student reported that someone unlawfully entered her vehicle while it was parked in Parking Structure 4 and removed the stereo and several cassettes.
- A male student reported that someone unlawfully entered his vehicle while it was parked in Parking Structure 4 and removed several compact discs.
- A male student reported that someone unlawfully entered his vehicle while it was parked in Parking Structure 4 and removed the stereo, loose change and keys.
- A female student reported that someone removed the rear tire from her bicycle while it was secured at the Senior Center.

- A female student reported that someone removed her bicycle from Palo Verde Main, where it was secured with a lock.

- A male not affiliated with ASU reported that he lost one key belonging to the University.

- A female student reported that she lost four keys belonging to the University.

- Two males were arrested, cited and released for shoplifting at Stabler's Market in the Tempe Center.

Tempe police reported the following incidents Tuesday:

- A man entered Valley Video, 925 W. Baseline Road, pointed a gun at the clerk and demanded all the money in the cash register. The suspect is described as a black male, 5 foot 6 inches tall and wearing a military-type gas mask. The suspect fled the store heading south and ran into an apartment complex at 5250 S. Hardy Drive. The jacket the suspect was wearing during the robbery was found in the complex. A cream or tan older Ford Fairlane or Edsel with tail fins was seen leaving the complex shortly after the man entered it.

- A man was arrested for misdemeanor assault and domestic violence after investigations revealed that he slapped his girlfriend in the face and hit her head against a wall three times at 1125 E. Marigold Lane. He was booked into Tempe City Jail.

Government pays $4.8 million in radiation experiment settlement

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. government will pay $4.8 million for injecting 12 human guinea pigs with uranium and plutonium without their knowledge as part of a Cold War-era radiation experiment.

"Never again," Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary said in announcing the settlement Tuesday. "Never again should tests be performed on human beings."

O'Leary said $400,000 apiece will go to the families of the 11 victims who are now dead, and a woman still living in upstate New York. Doctors believe the deaths of the 11 were not directly related to the experiments.

"This settlement goes to the very heart of the moral accountability the government owes its citizens," the outgoing energy secretary said at a meeting of the American Public Health Association.

Lawyers for the plaintiffs said the government has yet to compensate about 20,000 other people used for biochemical experiments in the 1940s, '50s and '60s.

The 12 victims in the settlement were injected in the 1940s — 11 with plutonium, one with uranium — to see how the human body would react to an atomic bombing. The tests sprang from efforts to develop atomic weapons.

At the time, scientists claimed that the people were terminally ill anyway and would not survive 10 years, but a number of them lived longer.

Autopsies on the patients injected with plutonium revealed bones "that looked like Swiss cheese," said Raymond Heslin, a lawyer for the plaintiffs.

Nine of the victims received the injections at Strong Memorial Hospital in Rochester as part of a research project conducted by the University of Rochester and the U.S. government. The three others were injected in Illinois, California and Tennessee.

"It was a rotten thing to do," said Luther Schultz, whose mother, Eda Schultz Charlton, was injected in 1945 at Strong Memorial. Mrs. Charlton received a dose of radiation 43 times the amount an average person absorbs in a lifetime, but she lived another 38 years to age 85.

"If people had been notified and knew what they were doing, it would be a different thing," Schultz said. "But this was just picking people out and shooting poison into them — I'm pretty bitter about that."

The only survivor among the 12 is Mary Jean Connell, who is now in her 70s and lives near Buffalo. Her lawyer said she had no comment.

Last year, President Clinton appointed a panel that is now drafting a report on human radiation experiments to be released within two months. The panel experts have found that it was not uncommon for doctors to use patients as test subjects without their knowledge in the 1940s.

Theft of MCAT Foiled in S.F.
 A young masked gunman burst into a room full of students taking a medical exam Saturday in San Francisco and demanded a copy of a test section but was thwarted when several outraged proctors and would-be doctors punched him out, police said.
 Police said the youth grabbed a green folder at the front of the room, disappeared into a bathroom and then re-emerged, cursing. He then confronted a proctor, demanding the physical sciences portion of the test.
 As the proctor fumbled for the test section, the youth may have been careless with his gun — the proctor grabbed it, and suddenly the intruder found himself at gunpoint.
 The youth then apparently smacked the proctor in the face. Enraged, at least five proctors and test-takers surrounded the suspect and threw punches at him, drawing blood, witnesses said.

$4.5 million Old Main face lift to restore charm

BY SARA BUSH
STATE PRESS

More than a century after its original construction, ASU's Old Main building is getting a face lift — or perhaps with a $4.5 million price tag, the project is more like a major overhaul.

The changes, which should be completed by 1998, will make the building look like it did when it was first built in 1895.

"We are not changing the (original) architecture with our interior or exterior renovations," said Jason Eslamieh, senior project manager working on Old Main. "Not only are we going to be preserving and restoring features that are still there, we will also be putting back things that have been removed. Every detail will be replicated and duplicated."

Those things removed include a facade and balcony that were formerly located on the building's north side and a ballroom that Eslamieh and a colleague recently rediscovered.

"We were in the attic when we noticed a hole in the side of a wall. We looked and saw a 3,500-square-foot ballroom," Eslamieh said. "It was such a pleasant surprise."

The ballroom had been closed off by a false ceiling in earlier renovations. According to Eslamieh, all of the chandeliers are still intact and the room will be renovated to its original condition.

The north facade and balcony were also removed in earlier renovations to make way for two classrooms and more fire exits.

Eslamieh and his team have already completed the building's lower level, which houses ASU Telephone Services. According to telephone company officials, virtually every part of their facilities are brand new. The offices now include all new dark woodwork as well as antique telephones for decoration.

"I think it's just awesome," said Rose Snow, manager of ASU Telephone Services. "We went from pipes being exposed to all of these renovations."

Besides Telephone Services, the ROTC program is also housed in Old Main. ROTC will probably move to the new Liberal Arts and Sciences building, which, if approved by the Board of Regents, should be built by the time Old Main is finished. The Alumni Association will then move in to the refurbished Old Main building.

Renovation officials hope to raise about $3 million to combine with $1.5 million in bond funds to cover the total costs of the Old Main changes. Eslamieh said he has no doubt that they will be able to raise the money.

Eslamieh added that the Old Main project is preserving an important part of Arizona's history. He has been working toward this project for about 21 years.

"Arizona, due to its age, doesn't have many old buildings. We owe it to ourselves and future generations to preserve it," he said.

Tim Hacker/State Press

Jason Eslamieh, senior project manager for the Old Main remodeling project, stands in front of one of the 1890s style windows. The University is spending $4.5 million to restore the building to its original appearance when it was built in 1895. The project will be completed by 1998.

Thirteen dead in Illinois commuter plane crash

QUINCY, Ill. (AP) — Two commuter planes collided on a runway Tuesday, killing all 13 people aboard both planes, officials said.

A United Express plane with 11 people aboard, including two crew members, collided with a smaller commuter plane with two people aboard at Baldwin Municipal Airport, officials said.

Deputy Chief John LaTour of the Quincy Police Department told CNN there were no survivors.

Don Zochert, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration, said the United Express plane was a Beech 1900 aircraft. Police said the plane was coming in from Burlington, Iowa.

Adams County Sheriff Bob Noll said the other plane was a King Aire 200, and was believed to be from the St. Louis area.

Witnesses told WGEM radio in Quincy that both planes were enveloped in a ball of fire after colliding shortly after 5 p.m.

CNN said Flight 5925, the United Express flight, was trying to land when the crash occurred.

Skies were overcast at the time of the crash, but visibility was 10 miles. The temperature was in the mid-30s and the wind was light.

Three fire departments and four ambulances were at the airport, eight miles from Quincy.

Quincy, on the Missouri-Illinois line, is 100 miles northwest of St. Louis and 250 miles southwest of Chicago.

In August, a skydiver fell to his death at the Quincy airport during the World Free Fall Convention, the fifth death in the 11-year history of the world's biggest skydiving festival.

ODDS & ENDS

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — Belly up to the bar for a shot and get another one in the arm while you're at it.

Six Kenosha bars and a visiting nurses group have joined to offer patrons a house special: $9 for a flu shot and a beer.

Debra Hertzberg, president of the nonprofit nursing corporation, said she had been thinking of vaccinating people in taverns for years but was afraid people would find it inappropriate.

But she said a positive response to a similar program in Denver persuaded her to take flu shots to Kenosha bars.

"It brought forth a lot of smiles from people," said David Palmer, owner of TG's Sports Bar. "They think it's a cute idea."

Hertzberg said there is no danger in mixing alcohol with a flu shot, but her staff will not vaccinate anyone who is visibly drunk.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Leaving a gas cap on the roof of a car is innocent enough. But thousands of dollars?

A 71-year-old man who was driving to a bank left an open envelope full of cash on the roof, police said. He realized what he had done when he got to the bank, but it was too late.

Dozens of people scooped up the bills that were flying around the streets on Friday. Some were spotted shoving money into their pockets as they ran.

Those who took the money can avoid charges if they return it, Capt. Craig Foust said Monday. He said police are already preparing theft charges against four people who were caught taking some of the cash.

The envelope contained thousands of dollars but police would not say exactly how much.

RAWLINS, Wyo. (AP) — Frances Hanson is fed up with the bland, bricklike commercial variety of fruitcake, the kind so hard it can crack a tooth.

So she's set out to defend the much-maligned confection in a new cookbook, An American Treasury of Heirloom Fruitcakes and Puddings.

Hanson says the fruitcake is a wonderful piece of history that has been ruined by commercial bakers who sometimes use "petrified fruits" or alcohol.

Her cookbook features recipes for traditional English, Scottish, Irish, French, Southern American, Californian and Japanese fruitcakes.

Fruitcakes started developing a bad reputation when they were first made by commercial bakers in the 1930s, she says.

In fact, she jokes, some of those first commercially made cakes may still be floating around today.

Historians banned from hiking through top secret Area 51

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The Air Force has refused to allow a group of historians to trek across a top secret base while retracing the steps of pioneers who traveled in 1849 from Enterprise, Utah, to Death Valley, Calif.

Members of the group will have to go 30 to 40 miles out of their way to swing around a classified military base known as Groom Lake, or Area 51.

Area 51 is the site where some of the nation's most exotic aircraft have been tested, including the U-2 spy plane, the SR-71 Blackbird and the F-117A stealth fighter.

The area 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas is so secret the military has, until recent years, refused to acknowledge its existence.

The five-member expedition begins its journey Saturday. The group comprises three school employees, a business owner and a welder.

They plan to trace the 375-mile route of early pioneers who faced treacherous terrain and weather conditions throughout their journey as they headed west in search of gold. They are credited with giving Death Valley its name.

Tech. Sgt James Brooks said Groom Lake, which is within the Nellis Air Force Range, is off-limits to civilians and open only to military officials.

"No permission has been granted for them to travel within the range," Brooks said.

The secrecy surrounding the site has led some to believe that there is UFO activity at the base, and that Star Wars research is conducted there.

Archaeologist Jerry Freeman said he wasn't sure what was to be found within Area 51, but that the presence of historians and archaeologists, who would be escorting the group at times, was not enough to persuade military officials to grant access to the site.

Freeman said the group is using journals, books and photographs to determine what they're looking for, such as grave sites and rock inscriptions detailing the journey.

PEOPLE

STRAFFORD, Vt. (AP) — Famous groom, famous in-laws, famous minister, famous guests — and still Daniel Day-Lewis managed to keep his wedding a secret.

The Oscar-winning actor married Rebecca Miller, the 34-year-old daughter of playwright Arthur Miller, in a small ceremony last week at the Strafford United Church of Christ.

The Rev. William Sloan Coffin, a friend of Arthur Miller's since their days as Vietnam War protesters, officiated. The 18 guests included Day-Lewis' mother, widow of the Irish poet Cecil Day-Lewis, and the Irish bagpiper Ronan Browne.

On the bride's side were Miller and his wife, photographer Ingebor Morath.

The couple met when Day-Lewis, 38, visited Arthur Miller while preparing for the filming of The Crucible, based on Miller's play.

"Lightning seemed to strike them rather rapidly," Coffin said.

They appear to have consulted the John Kennedy Jr. book of wedding advice: The party was so secret that a house cleaner for the Coffins didn't even tell her husband, a reporter for a weekly newspaper in nearby Randolph.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bryant Gumbel says he's staying out of the decision of who will replace him on the Today show. But in case anyone's wondering, he's a "big supporter" of Matt Lauer, the show's news anchor.

"We are really best friends," he told the Daily News. "We go to lunch together. We go on golfing trips together. We golf here together. We talk in the evenings on the phone. We talk on computer by day. We're very, very close."

Gumbel is leaving the NBC morning show in January after 15 years and has "stayed out of the process" to find a new co-host for Katie Couric, he said. "It's not my playground."

Gumbel, who makes $2.5 million a year, is the longest-running host in the show's 45-year history. He is considering offers from NBC, CBS, ABC, CNN and Fox, plus independent syndicators.

LONDON (AP) — Her favorite role might be her last, Jessica Lange says.

The two-time Oscar winner will be making her third appearance as Blanche du Bois in A Streetcar Named Desire when the Tennessee Williams play opens later this year in London.

"I had never played a part I liked more than this," Lange said Tuesday.

After Streetcar, Lange said, she intends to rest for at least a year. "It might be my permanent retirement. I'm not sure," she said.

Lange played the role on Broadway in 1992 and again on TV. In her London stage debut, she will star with Toby Stephens as Stanley Kowalski and Imogen Stubbs — now on screen in Twelfth Night — as Blanche's sister, Stella.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass. (AP) — You can get anything you want from "Alice's Restaurant" balladeer Arlo Guthrie — including a more up-to-date story.

The folk singer is revamping his famous 1967 song, which sometimes bores even its author.

"He gets tired of it. It's too long," said Guthrie's daughter, Annie.

The rambling song recounts a raucous Thanksgiving feast in 1965 and Guthrie's arrest for littering, which gave him a criminal record that kept him out of the draft.

He will add more recent political references and sing it for a local audience on Monday and Tuesday, Annie Guthrie said. It will also be taped and broadcast over dozens of radio stations on Thanksgiving.

Money from the new version will help support the Guthrie Center, a social service organization in the building once occupied by the famed restaurant.

Inmates return to tent city; families skeptical

(AP) — Inmates involved in a riot at the Maricopa County tent city-jail began trickling back to the facility Tuesday, several hours after Sheriff Joe Arpaio met with a prisoner committee about their complaints.

Chained together at the wrists, the inmates shouted greetings at the watching media as they got off vans and entered the Durango Jail. Sheriff's deputies searched the prisoners before allowing them inside.

About 200 of the 680 inmates were expected to return to tent city Tuesday. The rest were expected to return today or Thursday, said Capt. Ron Tate, who is in charge of the tents.

Earlier in the day, an hourlong meeting between Arpaio and four inmates ended with the prisoners defending the sheriff and saying they trust he will improve conditions at the tent city complex.

"We never had the sheriff's ear before," said inmate Lee Helmandollar, standing with the sheriff outside the Estrella

Jail. "We thought he wouldn't meet with us, but he proved us wrong."

Helmandollar and another inmate, Antonio Stewart, said Sunday's riot was caused by a guard who pepper sprayed an inmate using an unauthorized bathroom. The inmates said the riot was blown out of proportion by the media and that it would not happen again.

"We won't let it," said Stewart. "This is our home." Arpaio vowed to find out what caused the riot and to penalize those responsible. He said inmates' request for more bathrooms, better education programs and medical care were reasonable and he would try to fund them.

"One incident can trigger a riot in any jail or prison system ... but we're not going to allow any more here," Arpaio said.

About 60 inmates who do housekeeping and kitchen duties were sent back to the tent city jail Monday, Arpaio said. Another 200 were expected to return Tuesday evening.

All 680 inmates had been sent to other facilities in the city following Sunday's riot, in which two guards were injured and nine others were temporarily trapped.

Prison workers made last-minute repairs to the jail Tuesday, including walls, gates and a control tower that were busted during the three-hour melee. But some said what needs fixing is the attitude of Sheriff Joe Arpaio and his guards.

"It was bound to happen," said Leslie Alvarez, of Mesa, whose husband is on the work furlough program at tent city.

"When you don't give people water and you feed them rotten food, they get sick and you don't treat them, how do you expect them to react? I mean, they're not animals."

Facing a rash of criticism following the riot, Arpaio has repeatedly said he will not change his programs — including the tents, green bologna and pink underwear — but will listen to inmates' allegations of abuse at the hands of guards.

ASU's Hanell adds to resumé

BY ED ODEVEN
STATE PRESS

ASU senior All-American golfer Chris Hanell's list of accomplishments keeps growing.

And so has the quality of golf in Sweden. Competing for his native Sweden, Hanell placed eighth out of 188 individuals at the World Amateur Team Championships in Manila, Philippines over the weekend.

Sweden finished second with a 15-under par (849). Australia, which won the event in 1958 and 1966, captured the Eisenhower Trophy with an 11-stroke victory (838, 26-under-par) in the 47-nation event at the Manila Southwoods Golf and Country Club.

"We've been really good in amateur golf," Hanell said of Sweden. "And now, we are starting to get there in professional golf as well. ... Slowly we are starting to catch up (with the U.S. and Great Britain)."

Spain was third (851), Canada was fourth (855) and Finland tied for fifth with Great Britain/Ireland (859).

The U.S. team, 10-time champions, were disappointing ninth-place finishers at 861. It was the first time the Americans had not finished in the top two at the event since a fifth-place finish in 1976.

"I'm happy with where I finished," said Hanell, who shot a four-round 282 (68-73-66-75).

ASU men's golf coach Randy Lein said, "He played very well against the best amateurs in the world. He played pretty impressive."

Hanell's performance was an eye-opener for Lein.

"I would say finishing in the top 20 in a world event is more prestigious (than winning a college tourney)," he said. "And (Hanell's third round score) of 66 was the low round for that day."

After a strong performance in the Philippines, Hanell should be excited for the spring semester to begin.

"It gives him a big shot at his confidence level," Lien said. "He will be anxious playing for the team again in February."

Despite his finish, it wasn't all smooth sailing for Hanell. He struggled in the final round before regaining his normal calm demeanor.

"I'm a little disappointed that I dropped in the final round," he said. "I was trying to charge it early in the final round, but it kind of backfired on me. Then I tried to play it patient. My coming back sealed second place for us. It was nice for me and the team."

Hanell's father and uncle traveled from Sweden to show support.

"They were cheering for the whole team," Hanell said. "Both took a break from working."

Sweden's success was not a big surprise for Hanell.

"Going into the tournament I knew we had one of the better teams," he said. "We were playing really good. But, Australia took off in the second round by about nine shots. They just kind of kept that lead for the last day."

Tailback Leon Callen (27), fullback Charles Myles (9) and their backfield teammates have UofA's rushing attack ranked fourth in the Pac-10. Callen ran for a game-high 116 yards last Saturday against UCLA. Bryan Gershey/Special to the State Press

Wildcats regain roar in time for ASU

BY DUSTIN KRUGEL
STATE PRESS

The words "Bear Down, Arizona" have been synonymous with UofA football for 70 years, but somehow those words got misconstrued in a disappointing loss against Oregon.

"Lay Down, Arizona" would have been the more appropriate term after the 49-31 smothering the Wildcats received from the Ducks on Nov. 9.

"The thing that upsets you as a coach is when you don't give (100 percent)," said UofA head coach Dick Tomey, who made the media wait over an hour to talk to the players after the loss. "I don't think we have been guilty of not giving great effort very often in my 10 years. I can remember one time in Washington State my first year. The immediate response to that, if your players are listening and are competitors, that they go out and play better."

The players responded to Tomey's challenge in a big way with a 35-17 dismantling of UCLA last Saturday at Arizona Stadium. Their next challenge will be even greater — No. 4 and arch-rival ASU. The game will start at 4:30 p.m. on Saturday.

"We certainly had our best game Saturday," Tomey said. "That really pleases me, except you hope you don't have the kind of team that you don't have to have a disappointing showing in order to play your best."

The Wildcats have struggled thus far (5-5, 3-4 Pac-10), unlike year's past. UofA has finished with only one losing record since 1981, including four bowl trips in the '90s. ASU's last bowl trip was to the Freedom Bowl in 1987.

With a win over the Sun Devils, UofA will likely add to its bowl total. UofA has won the last three intrastate meetings, including last year's 31-28 thriller at Sun Devil Stadium.

"I'm not even going to think about that," senior defensive end Van Tuinei said after the UCLA game about playing in the postseason. "We'll wait for next week and see what happens."

A bowl bid seemed light years away after consecutive road losses to Oregon and California. However, UofA's perfect 5-0 home record has kept it in the hunt.

"We've struggled at times. We've let ourselves down," junior inside linebacker Chester Burnett said. "We can be a much better team than we have showed this year. We haven't played to full capability at home, but we've come away with some wins because we make plays. On the road we struggled a bit and that has hurt us."

Until recently, UofA's "Desert Swarm" defense was able to shoulder the burden of a weak offense by finishing in the top three in defense in the conference every year. The defense has regressed a bit and the Wildcats are ranked sixth overall in the Pac-10 in defense.

"I don't think our secondary has played consistently well," Tomey said. "It has done some good things. They have made some interceptions, but basically I think the secondary, along with the rest of the defense had a couple of bad weeks."

Sun Devil program inks 2 of nation's top high school wrestlers

BY JOSH DEFAMIO
STATE PRESS

You may be able to take the ASU wrestling team down, but they will not stay pinned there for too long.

Faced with a preseason ranking that left the perennial powerhouse out of the top 20, the Sun Devils responded by snaring Quinn Foster and Sonny Marchette, two of the most sought after prep wrestlers in the nation. Both will compete for ASU next season.

"We were after six of the top wrestlers in the nation," Head Coach Lee Roy Smith said. "We ended up with two of them. We feel pretty good about that, considering our poor national rankings. These two will be exciting. They are both physical, aggressive and technically-skilled wrestlers."

Both wrestlers have backed up their hype with impressive prep numbers. Foster was a member of the United States National Junior Freestyle Team that competed in the world championships last year. He won the national prep championship last season and was also a state runner-up in Virginia, before transferring to Blair Academy in Blairstown, New Jersey. His three-year high school record is an imposing 144-13.

Marchette has helped Walsh Jesuit High School of North Canton, Ohio to three consecutive state championships. He won the individual state title last season. He also earned second team honors on the Asics Tiger High School All-America Team and currently owns a career record of 101-5.

Another common attribute both wrestlers share is good schooling.

"These (Foster's Blair Academy and Marchette's Walsh Jesuit High) are two of the most prominent high school programs around the country," Smith said. "(They have been) consistently among top 3 high school programs over last five years. We're getting a couple of great wrestlers from great programs."

The two are expected to fill two of the team's potential troubled spots, the 134 and 142 pound weight classes. Smith had listed these two slots as half of the team's biggest needs for next season.

"These two meet our needs at 134 and 142 pounds," Smith said. "We'll look to the spring semester to complete our other two weight-class needs (at 150 and 190 pounds)."

Junior Aaron Simpson, one of the Sun Devils' two captains for the upcoming season, credits much of the recruiting success to the reputation of Smith and the ASU wrestling program.

"We have such a top-notch program here," Simpson said. "You always hear the name Smith throughout the wrestling world. Lee Roy is one of the top coaches, he knows what he's doing, he knows how to get athletes get ready for competition."

ASU's Garner, Johnson shoot for success as 2-sport stars

Senior Christine Garner has decided to give basketball a shot after playing four years for the ASU volleyball team and one year for the ASU softball team.

By PERCY EDNALINO JR.
STATE PRESS

Christine Garner and Alyssa Johnson. Two different players. Two different sports. Garner is the ASU volleyball team's all-time career leader in kills, while Johnson is ranked No. 4 in career RBIs for a Sun Devil softball player.

Two different sports with one thing in common: Success. Now Johnson and Garner are seeking success again — on the basketball court.

They're off to a good start. Garner has been consistent at the forward position, while Johnson has contributed to the team as a guard. Both players are fifth-year seniors who are playing basketball for the first time this season, after successfully completing four years as stars in another sport at ASU.

Last season, Garner was an All-American outside hitter for the volleyball team, while Johnson was a Pac-10 All-Conference third baseman for the softball team. Players are given five years of eligibility in NCAA athletics, but only four years in any single sport.

"It was tougher for me than it was for Garner," Johnson said of the switch. "Because for the past couple of years, even in softball, I really wasn't doing the conditioning. It's been tougher for me to get used to running again and to get back into shape."

Head Coach Charli Turner Thorne said having both players has helped give the team a winning mentality. She added that the major adjustment both players had to make was to the different training styles.

"It is different in basketball than softball and volleyball, as AJ and Garner are finding out," Turner Thorne said. "The bruises, the physicalness and the conditioning that are involved in basketball aren't really the same as in those other sports. They're still rigorous, but they're different."

Turner Thorne said the amazing thing about both players making the jump to basketball is the smooth transition they've made.

Making the transition to another sport is nothing new to Garner, who is seeking a spot on the U.S. National volleyball

Senior Alyssa Johnson has adjusted well to the ASU women's basketball team after playing for the ASU softball team for four years.

UofA

UofA's defense, which started the year with no senior starters, has begun to hit its stride in recent weeks, Tomey said. The defense has earned the nickname of "Desert Swipe" because of its 14 interceptions, including five returned for touchdowns.

"It's been a growing experience, but it's been one where he have learned from and made some big plays," Tomey said.

UofA may have found its long term solution at quarterback with redshirt freshman Keith Smith, who has completed a Pac-10-best 62 percent of his passes for 1,359 yards and 544 yards rushing.

Senior tailback Gary Taylor (550 yards) leads an inconsistent running attack, which has rushed for the fourth most yards in the Pac-10 with 186.4 yards per game.

UofA's go-to wide receiver, senior Richard Dice, was shelved with season-ending knee surgery on Oct. 31. Dice caught four passes for 68 yards and one touchdown in last year's meeting against the Sun Devils.

Sun Devil Club Sports

Women's Rugby

The ASU women's rugby team shut out the University of New Mexico 10-0 Saturday at the band field. Kelly Hallett and Dini Heather scored for the Sun Devils. The win follows a first-place finish at the Scottsdale Halloween Classic in which the team tied the UofA. The team will compete in a tournament on Dec. 7 at Las Vegas.

Anyone interested in attending or participating can call Kelly at 303-8363.

Men's Lacrosse

Midfielder Steve Wagner and junior defenseman Len Maloney scored their first goals of the season during the team's New Mexico road trip. Midfielder Scotty Aronoff also scored his first goal against the ASU Alumni Lacrosse team.

The team is still looking for new players. The team's final meeting of the semester will be held in the second floor classroom of the SRC at 7 p.m. on Sunday.

Garner/Johnson

team. As a freshman at ASU, she played both volleyball and softball.

"I've always enjoyed basketball, (but) volleyball was always my first priority," Garner said. "After my freshman year ... the National Team pretty much consumed all the rest of my free time. I wasn't able to play another sport. Now it's my fifth year and I don't know what I would do if I wasn't playing a sport here."

And the basketball team wouldn't know what to do without the two seniors. A physical player in the post, Garner has chipped in 17 points and 11 rebounds in the basketball team's two exhibition games. Johnson has hit 6 of 8 at the free throw line, and has three steals and six points to her credit.

A business management major, Johnson said she hopes to continue staying involved in sports. Johnson said she plans to graduate in May.

"I don't know if I'll be able to get involved with the Suns or Diamondbacks right away," Johnson said. "But that's eventually what I'd like to do."

Making the National Team is still a priority for Garner, who was an All-Pac-10 selection from 1993-95. Garner, who also plans to graduate in May with a degree in fine arts, said she'll continue her volleyball training after basketball season ends.

"I got cut three (players) short of making it for 1996," Garner said of the National Team. "The youngest person on the team was four years older than me, so I definitely will be back."

Although Johnson won't get to see the softball team in action until next semester, Garner has seen the volleyball team play. She admits it hasn't been easy to sit in the stands as a fan.

"I came to all the home games and it was tough seeing us not do very well," Garner said. "But I enjoyed my four years here and what Arizona State volleyball has done for me. I'm content with that."

Johnson said she'll miss playing softball most when the team's season starts in February.

"I'll be winding basketball down and going out to watch softball games," Johnson said. "I'll wish I was out there then."

Senior Molly Tuter said Garner's performance, especially at the free throw line, has been impressive, and amusing. During the team's final exhibition against Spalding America, Garner went 1 for 2 at the free throw line and hit a lay-up in the final minute of the game.

"Now she calls herself 'Gee-money,'" Tuter said with a smile. "Nobody else calls her that, but she likes it. She likes to think of herself as that."

Notes

Turner Thorne announced last Thursday that four recruits signed letters of intent to play for ASU during the 1997-98 season. Among those who signed were Chandler High senior Ebony Edwards. The 5-foot-7 guard led the Wolves to the girl's 5A title last year.

Turner Thorne said Edwards will fit well into the team's playing system and touted the high school guard's abilities.

In addition to Edwards, Perris, Calif., native Leaf Newman, Spokane, Wash., standout Jennifer Bennett and Conifer, Colo., center Kellie McDanal also committed to ASU.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST
by Frances Drake
Wednesday, November 20, 1996

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You're being way too pushy, especially where your significant other is concerned. Try to be more sensitive and listen to this person's concerns. Have friends in for a get-together in the evening.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You are in too much of a hurry and could miss an important detail in order to complete a certain task correctly. This won't escape the eye of a disapproving bigwig.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Family interests are highlighted. However, you need to put a lid on those extravagant urges you're having. Sometimes, you can be overly generous with money that can lead to financial problems for you.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Before you plunge right in and give a friend unsolicited advice, bite your tongue! Your interference isn't welcome or appreciated. Pursue a pet hobby during evening hours.
LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) You have a hard time during morning hours getting along with someone who refuses to even consider your point of view. If you bide your time, this person ultimately comes around.
VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Be willing to meet that special someone halfway in order to smooth things over in the relationship. Despite these difficulties, it's a great day for socializing. Singles attract romantic introductions.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) The accent is on togetherness, particularly in the area of love and romance. Business advice comes from an unexpected source, but it's quite sound nonetheless. Patience is needed in the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You're being too domineering at work and co-workers are uncooperative as a result. Back off and try a more gentle approach. A family member is looking to you for advice on a delicate issue.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Thanks to the efforts of an old friend, you are able to get through a sticky situation on the home front. Since this person knows all the players involved, an equitable solution is achieved.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) An unexpected financial boon is likely. However, this doesn't mean it's time to rush out and buy, buy buy! Someone close to you at home is being difficult.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Your charm is your ally in getting what you want in business. Be sure you keep sight of your goals and don't be tripped up by inconsequential details. A personality conflict is likely.
PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) Be sure that whatever you do at work is executed in a thorough manner. As a result, you receive recognition for your hard work. Business and pleasure combine favorably after dark.
YOU BORN TODAY are not the type of person to finesse another's feelings for the mere sake of peace. Appearing to be somewhat gruff and brusque, those who know you well are aware of how sensitive you truly are. Honesty and integrity are of the utmost importance to you and you refuse to deal with anyone who is not aboveboard. Unable to be compromised, you make a wonderful police officer, lawyer or judge. An interest in history and the motivations of people is keen.
