College rankings failing, student group says

BY LIDIA E. KELLY
STATE PRESS

Ranking colleges overall is not a fair way to examine universities' performances, according to a group of students from Stanford University.

FUNC — Forget U.S. News Coalition — was founded in October in response to the U.S. News and World Report's annual rankings.

"Our main point is that universities' policies are made in the best interest of rankings, not students," said Nick Thompson, vice president of Associated Students of Stanford University.

He also said FUNC, which has spread nationwide, is not against ranking specific schools and programs within a university.

"However, I don't think that anyone is able to do an overall ranking," Thompson said.

James Fallows, editor of U.S. News and World Report, said he recognizes the complaint as one that "may have some justice to it."

Fallows said some of the universities, mostly from the second and third rankings, are under tremendous pressure to change their status.

"Sometimes it may mean things that are similar with improving education, sometimes may not," Fallows said.

ASU Provost Milton Glick said even though he doesn't think the rankings can distort any university's activities, some of them look questionable.

"The danger of the rankings is that they are much more driven by inputs than by outputs," Glick said.

Fallows agreed, saying a good example of that is how much money the university spends per student.

"You can even use (that) as a negative input," Fallows said. "But as I said, we are revising what we can do about it."

Associated Students of ASU President Marc Baumgartner agreed with Stanford's position that the main mission of a university is to educate, not to be at the top of a ranking.

"I think that ASU is fulfilling the mission," Baumgartner said. "But it's a little bit hypocritical of Stanford to be against rankings — many students go there because of rankings."

Gerhard Casper, president of Stanford University, said in a written statement that he doesn't believe the quality of a university can be measured statistically.

"As the president of a university that is among top-ranked universities, I hope I have the standing to persuade you that much about these rankings — particularly their specious formulas and spurious precision — is utterly misleading," Casper said.

Fallows said he is thinking about what the magazine should do to make the rankings more constructive. "But I cannot say anything specific," he added.

He also said that while he takes serious responsibility for that part of U.S. News and World Report, he doesn't accept some of the complaints.

"Our rankings are only a guideline to compare the options for you."

Watered-down Rio Salado bill clears committee

BY JENNIFER NETHERBY
STATE PRESS

A watered-down version of the Rio Salado bill passed the state Senate Finance Committee Monday, gutting the proposed construction tax break by $5 million.

The new version excludes any hotel construction from getting a tax break.

The Commercial Enhancement Reuse District bill, as originally drafted, would have given Tempe an $8 million tax break on construction costs for the proposed 1,000-room Peabody Hotel and Convention Center as well as other construction in the area. The tax break was proposed as a business incentive to start the hotel construction.

The amended version will provide a maximum $3 million dollar tax break for construction of the Town Lake and other municipal construction. The cost of the construction will be capped at $100 million.

The time frame for project's completion was extended from three years to five years.

The committee approved the bill by a 6 to 3 vote. It will now move on to the Senate Rules Committee.

Mayor Neil Giuliano said the tax break is necessary for the Rio Salado project.

"With a project like this size, incentives are needed," he said.

Sen. Gary Richardson, R-Tempe, one of the bills sponsors, said the expanded coverage of the bill takes away Phoenix's argument against it.

Phoenix legislators strongly opposed the bill because of the tax break proposal for the hotel — which they charged would compete with a proposed downtown Phoenix hotel.

With the changes that passed, Richardson said the bill is half as significant.

Richardson said he is concerned about the broadened impact taking away supporters. The more comprehensive the exemption becomes, he said, the more likely supporters will desert the bill because of fiscal impact.

Richardson said that because of the changes, the city would have to use city funds for a hotel construction incentive.

There is the possibility, depending on the political atmosphere, that the hotel subsidy will be added in the house version of the bill, Richardson said.

Fraternity party-control program not working, security officials say

BY ROWE EDGELL
STATE PRESS

More than a year after the implementation of a program intended to curb underage drinking and bring order to fraternity parties, two security company officials staffing the events said it is not working.

However, campus police say there has been a reduction in fraternity-related problems due to the program.

The Greek Alcohol Risk Reduction Program, GARRP, requires fraternities to hire outside security companies to check parties' I.D.s at the door. Participants who are of drinking age wear wristbands and all alcohol must be checked in. Drinkers are also given a card indicating the type and amount of alcohol they can consume during the party.

Taren Jewell, the vice president of operations at Showtime Services Inc., a security company hired by many of the fraternities, said the program is "not going great."

Jewell said the fraternities have "one last chance" before Showtime tells fraternity officials that they will not work for them any longer.

"(Fraternity members) grab wrist bands and switch them," Jewell said. "We would have more control if the fraternities would just let us do our job."

Interfraternity Council President Aaron Engram disagreed.

"The parties have definitely toned down," he said. "Before, parties did get out of control. Now, they are limited to 250 people when before we sometimes had over 500."

Although the fraternities are making the effort to reduce minors' access to alcohol, they are also criticized for compromising the effectiveness of the program.

Parties

"Even if (party-goers) are behaving, they are still passing alcohol to minors," Jewell said. "At this time, it is not a very good system."

"Overall, the wristbands have been a recurring problem," said Dana Mule, vice president and general manager of Showtime. "We no longer do frat parties where the members of the fraternities have access to the wristbands because the senior members just start handing them out, especially to the women."

Mule said he feels there should be some intervention on the part of the Greek system to "ebb the flow of underage drinking."

ASU police have no knowledge of the problem.

"Basically we've had no real problems with the fraternities in regards to alcohol," said ASU police Capt. Kay Gojkovich. "We don't see the problems we used to have."

Gojkovich said police have noticed a decrease in the number of complaints and calls for assistance since the beginning of GARRP. She noted the biggest problem was getting people to leave and not congregate outside the houses after parties ended.

Russ Jones, vice president of Arizona Elite Security Services, another security company used by the fraternities, said the company has not had any complaints from guards at the parties and there has been no report of problems.

The idea for GARRP, created by a board of University faculty, staff and students, took effect October 1, 1995 and includes the following requirements:

- Fraternities must pre-register their parties with an adviser.
- Parties must have signatures of the chapter president and social chairman.
- No party advertisements may proclaim the party will have alcohol.
- No beer trucks or kegs are allowed.
- No more than a twelve pack of beer or an eight pack of wine coolers is allowed inside.
- Alcohol must be issued to drinkers by a hired bartender who keeps tabs on how much has been consumed.
- Once the alcohol is checked in, it cannot leave the party.
- Three security guards must be provided for every party with 74 people and one more guard must be added for each additional group of 74 parties.

"The main purpose is to reduce liability for the organization," Ingram said. "It makes fraternities think more and take precautionary steps."

He added that some underage drinking probably still occurs, but it is up to the security guards to check I.D.s and make sure that people who are not supposed to be drinking don't have access to the alcohol.

Albright smooths relations with France

BY BARRY SCHWEID
ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS — Speaking some French and even a little Russian, Secretary of State Madeleine Albright smoothed over some of the bumps in recent U.S. relations with France on Monday while keeping an anxious eye on Asia.

Albright pleased the French by inviting President Jacques Chirac "to put his shoulder to the wheel" in Arab-Israeli peacemaking. She also succeeded without ruffling French feathers in sidetracking a proposal for a five-power summit to allay Russian concerns over NATO's projected expansion eastward.

"We've had some ups and downs, why not have an up period?" a pleased French Prime Minister Alain Juppe told Albright at the end of their meeting.

And Foreign Minister Herve de Charette, who like Juppe has had some rough times with the first Clinton administration, was velvet smooth during a joint news conference with Albright at the Quai d'Orsay. "We did everything to dispel the impression there are clouds in the relationship," he said.

Chirac greeted Albright with a kiss on each cheek, and de Charette went one-up, kissing the U.S. secretary of state five times, according to State Department spokesman Nicholas Burns, four times on the cheek and once on the hand.

"Our relationship is very solid and positive," Albright said.

Burns said the United States and France had found common ground on urging reforms in Zaire and wanting neighboring countries to steer clear of a rebellion in the eastern part of the African country.

Only a year ago, the French were grumbling that then-Secretary of State Warren Christopher's trip to Africa was an election ploy. French officials suggested they had a special expertise that the United States should respect.

And in the Middle East, de Charette complicated Christopher's drive to halt cross-border attacks between Israel and Lebanon by riding his own diplomatic shuttle and advising the Arabs to hold out for better terms.

On his last trip to Paris, in November, Christopher was presented with five French novels by de Charette, who told him he would have a chance to improve his French in retirement.

While signaling along with the French the onset of better relations, Albright checked reports from Beijing that Deng Xiao-ping, the architect of China's economic modernization, was near death. She said she could not corroborate the reports.

And she monitored what she described as very serious concern about tensions on the Korean peninsula, authorizing spokesman Burns to say a resumption of food aid to North Korea would be announced within a few days.

After delivering about $6.1 million worth, food shipments were halted when a North Korean submarine ventured into South Korean waters last September.

In Seoul, South Korea said it would send food aid and nuclear technicians to North Korea despite tension with its communist rival over the shooting of one defector and a standoff involving another.

The one apparent uneasy moment occurred earlier in Bonn when German Foreign Minister Klaus Kinkel hotly rejected any suggestion the Church of Scientology was being singled out as Jews had been in Germany early in the Nazi period.

"We perceive Scientology not as a religion but as a profit-making organization," he said. "Scientologists are not persecuted."

Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr, whose office is evaluating evidence in the criminal investigation of President Clinton and his wife, talks to reporters outside the Little Rock federal courthouse two months ago. Starr will leave his post to become dean of the Pepperdine University School of Law Aug. 1, 1997, the university announced Monday.

Whitewater prosecutor to leave for Pepperdine

BY PETE YOST
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — In a surprising development, a California university said Monday that Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr will step down from the probe to join the school this summer, raising questions about whether his investigation of President Clinton and the first lady is at an end.

The Whitewater investigation, which Starr has led for the past 2 1/2 years, is at a critical juncture with prosecutors weighing the evidence involving the president and Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Starr and the Whitewater prosecutor's office were silent after the announcement by Pepperdine University in Malibu, Calif.

But a lawyer familiar with the Whitewater probe cautioned against reading too much into Starr's stepping down from the investigation.

Starr will decide what, if any, action to take against the Clintons and "he will have ample time to consider all matters," said the lawyer, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The lawyer said the question of precisely when Starr will leave the Whitewater prosecutor's office has yet to be decided.

A former presidential aide suggested indictments won't be forthcoming. "Is Starr going to indict the first lady and then leave for the West Coast? I don't think so," said the aide, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Zaire war escalates as three towns get bombed, 6 dead

BY TINA SUSMAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

KINSHASA, Zaire — Government forces bombed three rebel-held towns in eastern Zaire on Monday and vowed to intensify the attacks, which witnesses said killed at least six people. It was the sharpest escalation yet in the five-month war.

The towns of Bukavu, Walikale and Shabunda were bombed, said Defense Ministry spokesman Leon Kalima. He gave no casualty figures but urged civilians to leave rebel-held areas.

"These bombardments will continue and intensify," Kalima said.

Aid workers said six people were killed and at least 20 wounded in Bukavu.

"These numbers could grow," said

Brenda Barton, a spokeswoman for the U.N. World Food Program, based in Nairobi, Kenya. "There's a panic in the town," and many people are fleeing, she said.

There were no immediate casualty reports from Shabunda and Walikale, two other towns under the control of Laurent Kabila's Alliance of Democratic Forces for the Liberation of Congo-Zaire, which began fighting Zairian troops in September. Kabila started the war after Zaire threatened to expel Tutsis who had lived for decades in eastern Zaire.

In Kalemie, 300 miles south of Bukavu, Kabila condemned the attacks as a "terrorist action" and said his army was preparing "to bring the war where these planes are coming from."

He said the Zairian planes came from Kindu, 200 miles west of Bukavu, one of two airports in eastern Zaire controlled by the government.

Kabila said the government was trying to demoralize the population, telling The Associated Press that there were no specific military targets in the areas that were bombed.

Since the fighting began, Kabila has routed government troops from the swath of land bordering Uganda, Rwanda and Burundi. President Mobutu Sese Seko has rejected international calls for negotiations to end the conflict and vowed to press ahead with a counteroffensive launched in January from the eastern city of Kisangani, about 300 miles northwest of Bukavu.

Reporters and aid workers visiting

Kisangani in the past few weeks have reported seeing Mi-24 combat gunships and warplanes, apparently piloted by mercenaries from eastern Europe.

"We have the means to win," Mobutu's prime minister, Leon Kengo wa Dondo, told parliament on Saturday. Parliament met again in closed session Monday to discuss the idea of negotiations, which opposition parties support. But Kengo said they were out of the question.

Foreign diplomats and Zairian political observers say Mobutu, ailing with prostate cancer and holed up at his isolated home village of Gbadolite, is coming under increased pressure from his own party to open talks with Kabila but has refused to give the go-ahead.

Plush resort weekend timed with new policy

At the end of this month a new policy will be implemented that may change smokers' habits and the tobacco industry by attempting to hide tobacco products from the public.

The Food and Drug Administration has ruled that beginning next week, convenience store clerks will now be obliged to check the identification of purchasers of tobacco products under the age of 27. What happened to 18 as the legal age of majority? So far we haven't heard anything about raising the "appearance age" on purchasing alcohol products.

In August, cigarette vending machines will be yanked from public places and limited to establishments where minors aren't allowed. Outdoor advertising will also be banned from schools and playgrounds and promotional products such as caps, jackets and other merchandise will be prohibited from being sold or given away.

Apparently the federal government feels the need to pull the reins tight on advertising. There are probably very few people, including those tied to the tobacco industry, who would argue that children should not be protected from harmful products, including cigarettes. Yeah, they cause cancer, stunt growth, cause bad breath and that kind of stuff, but advertisers should retain the right to market where they see a need to.

This weekend, several congressmen and congressional aides were treated to a grand weekend at The Phoenician resort in Scottsdale. According to the Associated Press, their airfare, hotel rooms and meals were comped.

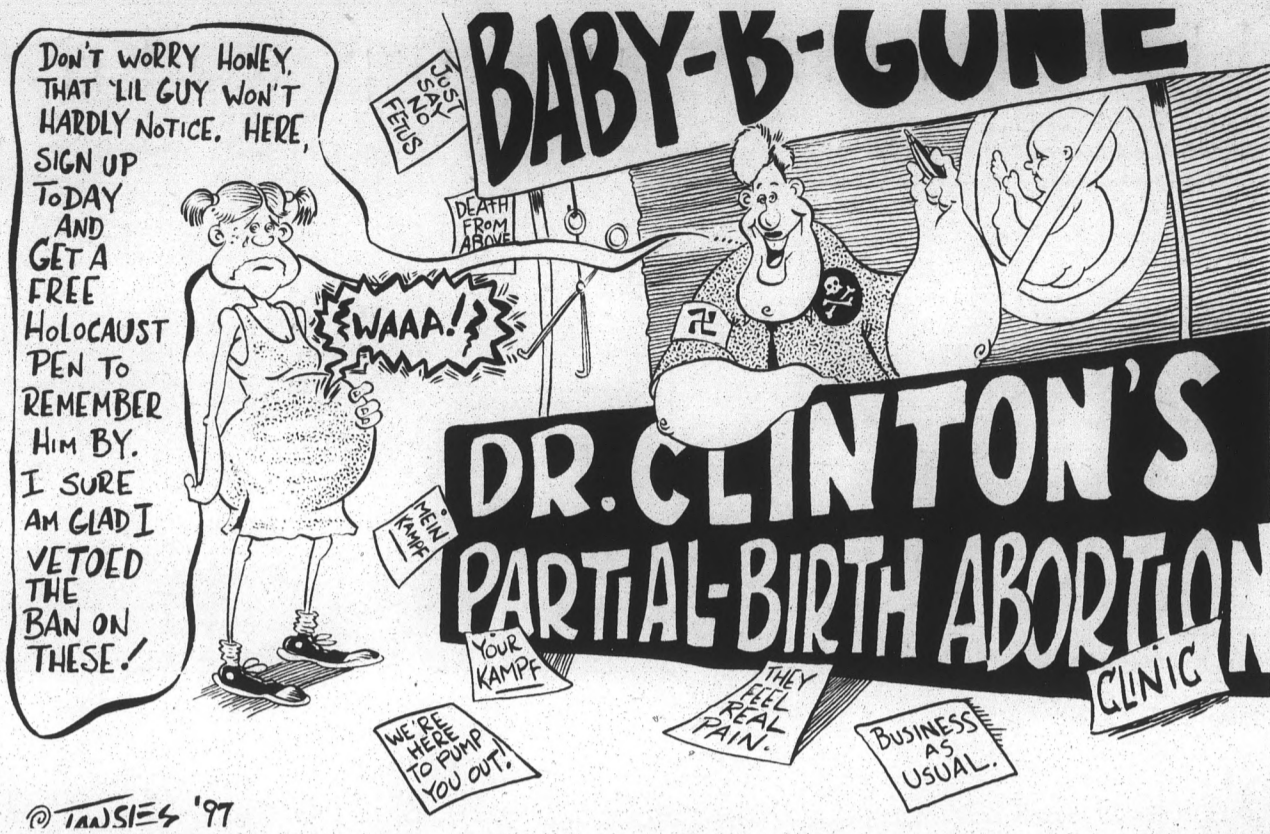

Sounds like a nice getaway weekend in sunny Arizona? Guess who paid for it. The Tobacco Institute, a pro-tobacco group.

Although no one is saying exactly who attended the "tobacco outing," it was reported that about 100 legislators and congressional aides were there over the weekend. It is unclear whether lawmakers from tobacco producing states such as Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia were in attendance.

It is no coincidence that this three day R&R weekend comes less than two weeks before the new regulations on tobacco sales go into effect. Hotel security made it very obvious that the media was not on the guest list.

Issuing a restraining order on Joe Camel and his cohorts to stay at least 300 or however more feet away from school grounds will do nothing to keep minors from getting their hands on a pack of cigarettes or round of snuff when Mom or Dad keep it around the house.

We hope lawmakers will look past the "we'll wine you and dine you to sway your vote" message of the Tobacco Institute, and vote according to one of the principles of our society: free enterprise.

White House 'coffee party' opens new chapter of problems for Dems

Those who follow news and current events with an open mind have seen the development of a scandal of monumental proportions, the likes of which our nation has never seen. This scandal involves all levels of the Clinton administration, the Democratic party and unethical fund raising practices.

The scandal deals with the apparent illegal funds received by the Democratic National Committee from foreign entities, the unprecedented opening of foreign markets and the lifting of trade sanctions against Asian nations which have historically committed human rights violations. Tragically, the White House has no scruples about how it acquires campaign funds.

The latest in a growing list of clearly illegal financial activity — including Whitewater-Madison Guaranty, the Lipo Group-Indonesian connection, the Buddhist Temple-Al Gore affair and known drug dealers being solicited for campaign funds while visiting the White House — is so overwhelming, not even the liberals will be able to deny the accountability of their party and their president. However, the amount of delusion that has permeated liberal thinking about their King may allow them the comfort to overlook the magnitude of treason.

Neither denying nor confirming the allegations, President Clinton said on Thursday he was "puzzled" and "it is very serious" that DNC funds were being funneled through the Chinese Embassy before last year's elections. The money, $690,000, was collected at a "coffee" with the president of the United States.

The who behind the money funnel is one of China's top up-and-coming leaders and alleged dealer of illegal weapons to Los Angeles gangs, Wang Jun. Wang Jun and his contemporaries are the heirs to the largest communist-ruled country in the world. These fledgling potentates will rule a nation fixed in Chinese symbolism and iron-fisted domestic policies that have no regard for human life.

According to the Washington Post, "Charles Yah Lin Trie, a fund-raiser for the DNC, used his influence with party officials to bring Wang Jun, head of a weapons trading company owned by the Chinese military, to a White House coffee with Clinton."

Wang Jun is suspected by the FBI of trying to traffic 2,000 AK-47 automatic rifles into the possession of street gangs in the United States. Also, it is known that Wang has been the deal-maker for the purchase of long range missiles between the People's Republic of China and the former Soviet Union.

William Safire states in the Feb. 13 New York Times: "these fixerpreneurs (Wang and his contemporaries) are the Chinese wave to the future. They are coming to power in the army, in the Forbidden City. They need an international enemy — and we are it."

Once again, President Clinton and the DNC have granted access to the highest levels of the U.S. Government and access to classified information to the Communist Chinese government. Last time it was via the former Commerce Department official John Huang, who has connections to the Chinese-owned Lipo Group.

Huang, while working for the DNC, continued to hold top secret clearance as the middleman between the Democrats and the Chinese.

This current wave of allegations, like several other events from the past, take aim at people around the president. Clinton once again is at the center of the controversy but shielded by plausible deniability. The connection can, however, be found in two seemingly unrelated events: Clinton's trip to Moscow during the Vietnam War and the immortal words of the former Communist leader of the Soviet Union, Nikita Khrushchev, as he banged his shoe on the podium of the United Nations and exclaimed: "we will destroy you from within."

Quality family time replaced by fast-paced world

When was the last time you sat down with your family to a home cooked meal? Are your thoughts drifting back to Christmas and Thanksgiving? You are not alone.

The NDP, a market research firm based on New York's Long Island surveyed 2,000 homes — to find some startling statistics. They wanted to find out how many families actually ate a home cooked meal at least once a day. Surprisingly, they found that only 55 percent of American dinners contain one homemade item. This is just one meal and at least one homemade item.

Think of the classics like Lassie and Leave it to Beaver. In these "American" shows, it was unheard of to be absent from the dinner table when it was family mealtime. There would be an informal roll call, a gathering around the table and then a prayer or blessing the food.

After the traditional preparation, the family would then participate in a plausible mealtime conversation while eating

MICHELLE HARDT
Columnist

Mom's freshly baked bread, corn on the cob and breaded pork chops. Is this as much a fantasy as these shows are sitcoms? Maybe I'm standing out on a ledge, looking into these families only to portray their perfect stereotypical (non-existing) lifestyles. But I do recall that many families used to take part in a similar dinnertime at least once a day.

More so than having a family gathering, it seems that the idea of home cooked meals has become somewhat outdated, bothersome and too time consuming. If anything, frozen meals or pre-prepared meals have been stocking our freezers and cupboards for the last 10 years. Has this affected our families? I think so. There are so many things that unfortunately are prying our families apart.

Of course, television and high-tech computer programs now preoccupy many, especially children. On the other hand, many mothers work and are not always able to allot time for family meals. These things aren't bad; they just mean that families have to work harder to make time to be with one another — whether or not it involves a home cooked meal. Some say, "but that is impossible." The lives of those who are part of an average-sized family are often chaotic and hard to keep track of: Joey has late band practice, Suzy has dance rehearsal, Billy works at the ice cream shop, Sally has soccer practice, Dad has to stay late at the office and by the time Mom gets home, the last thing she wants to do is cook.

When does the family see each other? When do they talk and discuss important issues in their lives? Well, obviously no one is going to give up their beloved activities, so maybe weekends could be reserved for "family bonding time."

Coming from a big family, the only time we have to spend together as a whole is Sunday dinner. Part of this is due to the fact that two of us don't live at home anymore.

It is for this reason that this one time of week is so vital to our family. In fact, it would be safe to say that my family plays one of the most vital roles in my life. I can't imagine growing up without the support they gave me. We are a team. Hopefully, the fact that we have team meetings once a week won't take away from our strong relationships.

I guess we just have to be careful. The modern world is succeeding in trying to take the place of our families. Technology and other unavoidable circumstances can pull us away from the best thing in our lives, our family.

Once we as a society lose our close family units, there is no telling where values, religion, good works, service and morals will be taught. For the sake of our country, we need to work harder to maintain our strongholds and good family relations.

Our Sun Devil football team had a tremendous season last year, including a huge upset over former defending champion Nebraska, a Pac-10 championship and a Rose Bowl appearance against Ohio State.

It definitely was a magical season. For next year, Sun Devil officials want to show their gratitude to fans by raising the prices of many season tickets. Thanks, ASU.

I have been a student season ticket holder for three years. Back in 1994, you couldn't give the tickets away. People stayed away from Sun Devil Stadium like it was the bubonic plague. The ushers would tell you to be quiet if you showed too much school spirit.

After its first bowl berth in nearly a decade, the athletic department wants to enhance their budget so we can compete with the "big boys" — Ohio State, Nebraska, Florida State and Penn State.

Die-hard fans who want 50-yard line seats will have to pay a hefty sum — an annual "gift" of $25,000. This pledge includes premium parking and the privilege to buy 20 bowl tickets.

Now that's a lot of money. I would say a majority of ASU football fans don't even make $25,000 a year. That's because we are still in college, working two jobs (like myself) and taking a full load of classes. I don't think I could even afford a gift of $100.

Our beloved ASU Athletic Director Ken White has reassured fans that there will still be plenty of seats available for non-contributing patrons.

So now you are going to have thousands of people vying for the cheap seats in the nose-bleed section. I sit (oops, I mean stand) in the student section and I cringe at the idea of what next season's ticket prices will be.

You may have heard the old saying "money can't buy you love." Money can't buy you a national championship either. But it sure helps.

I say the fans who are suckered into giving "gifts" for the best seats should demand a guarantee from the athletic administration. If ASU doesn't go to the Rose Bowl next year, ticket-holders should get a refund on their "gift." Do you think that would put too much pressure on coach Bruce Snyder?

Snyder has a lot to worry about for next year. He has lost 12 starting seniors and the new recruiting class he signed last week has been ranked in the lower half of the Pac-10, according to experts.

Instead of increasing the athletic budget, Snyder should start looking to the east for high quality, blue-chip players. Out of the 15 new players signed, nearly all are from California or Arizona. What about going to Illinois, New York, Florida or Texas for our future prospects? How hard is it to talk young men into coming to ASU? You have beautiful weather all year, the most gorgeous women on the face of this planet and the winning tradition of Sun Devil football.

To keep winning in football, you don't just throw money at the program. You need to build a strong base. Snyder might try to lure some alumni to return to their roots and help with coaching. Wouldn't it be great to have Danny White as an offensive coordinator? He did a great job with the Arizona Rattlers. Or how about John Jefferson as wide receivers coach? And maybe newly elected Pro Hall of Famer Mike Haynes as defensive backs coach?

The coaching staff and the athletic department should be looking at the old maroon and gold instead of the "green" to maintain dominance in the Pac-10.

Articles lack details needed for writing state legislators

I applaud your efforts in Friday's articles "Extra credits legislation slated for vote" by Kevin Culwell and "ABOR lashes out against community college bill" by Vivi Stenberg, which encourage students to contact their legislators to express opinions on House Bill 2444 and State Bill 1109.

However, since bill numbers or titles did not appear in the article, it is likely that many students did not go to the trouble. In future articles, I would suggest including either the bill number or information about how to access the Arizona State Legislature's web page, which is <http://www.azleg.state.az.us>.

Quotes aim to mislead readers

I am really tired of listening to the sanctimonious drivel of people like Joshua Solovskoy who are so quick to quote Biblical admonitions against homosexuality.

Particularly those who take them completely out of the context of the time in which they were written. I note that in his Jan. 29 article, Solovskoy quotes selectively from the Book of Leviticus — leaving out the parts stating that women don't belong in church and most certainly should wear red dresses, that men who have an emission of semen are unclean, that it is a sin to have a tattoo and so on. But, since he insists, let me quote for you from I Corinthians 12:13-17:

"For just as the body is one and has many members, and all the members of the body, though many, are one body, so it is with Christ. For by one Spirit we were all baptized into one body — Jews or Greeks, slaves or free — and all were made to drink of one Spirit.

"For the body does not consist of one member but of many. If the foot should say, 'Because I am not a hand, I do not belong to the body,' that would not make it any less a part of the body. If the whole body were an eye, where would be the hearing?"

If the whole body were an ear, where would be the sense of smell? But as it is, God arranged the organs in the body, each one of them, as he chose. If all were a single organ, where would the body be? As it is, there are many parts, yet one body. God has so adjusted the body, giving the greater honor to the inferior part, that there may be no discord in the body, but that the members may have the same care for one another. If one member suffers, all suffer together; if one member is honored, all rejoice together. Now you are the body of Christ and individually members of it.

I also note that Jesus himself admonished the crowd to "let he who is without sin cast the first stone," hence, I rather object to Solovskoy telling me that I am a sinner, that I belong to a group of humanity that is immoral, unnatural, illegal and illogical.

Transit system is key to future

I wanted to comment about the transportation problems facing the Valley. A comprehensive light-rail system needs to be developed to connect the various cities that comprise the Valley.

This will alleviate congestion on the roads and freeways and reduce air pollution. The voters and politicians should start this system now, as putting it off worsens the situation.

In addition, light-rail transportation should be readily available by the time the entire freeway system is complete. Remember that both freeways and light-rail complement each other and are not replacements for one another. Once the Valley has an adequate transportation network (this also includes more buses), then the Valley will be able to attract more investments, reduce air pollution and bring in events such as the Olympics. Only then will Phoenix, and the metro area, be "one of the big boys" as a great city.

'U.S. News' editor shares views of modern media

Erik Guzowski/State Press

James Fallows, editor of U.S. News and World Report, will speak at the Centennial Lecture at Gammage Auditorium on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

By LIDIA E. KELLY
STATE PRESS

"News should inform and engage, inform and entertain, inform and reach people in all the different dimensions," said James Fallows, editor of U.S. News and World Report and weekly commentator for National Public Radio.

"There is a lot of very good material presented by very fine and well-meaning reporters," he said. "However, the prevailing trends in journalism are basically bad, now."

Fallows, at ASU to deliver the 1997 ASU Centennial Lecture sponsored by the University Honors College, said that often the biggest challenge for today's media seems to be getting a scandal story before a competitor gets it.

"If instead, the biggest challenge in this business was finding ways to engage readers in what we are talking about, that would have a different result," he added.

Fallows said even though there is more information available now than ever before in human history, people still remain uninformed about the outside world.

Factors contributing to this situation are the invention of TV and personal lack of interest, Fallows said.

"People at times are too lazy and self-indulgent to do what they should, to know what's going on in the world," he added.

In his 1994 book, Breaking the News:

How the Media Undermine American Democracy, Fallows argues that the quality of American journalism has declined over the past couple of decades.

"A part of journalism that has the most problems is the part that deals with government in general and presidents," Fallows said, adding that there has been an unrealistically negative view of both agencies.

Fallows said when he was offered the position as editor of U.S. News and World Report in September 1996, he believed he had an obligation to accept.

"I had been having these theories of journalism," Fallows said. "And also I thought that I could do it."

Fallows said the changes made at U.S. News and World Report in the past five months were made in a context of evolution rather than revolution.

"We are going to give you a news magazine that is less celebrity driven and less in competition with daily newspapers," Fallows said. "There will be a calm, in-depth explanation and more investigation done."

Fallows will speak during the week to journalism classes and the ASU Honors College. He will also address university deans and administrators.

He will deliver the Centennial Lecture at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday in Gammage Auditorium. Free tickets are still available through Gammage box office at 965-3434.

CompuServe chief executive resigns

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Robert J. Massey, president and chief executive of CompuServe, resigned suddenly Monday from the financially troubled online service.

CompuServe's parent, H&R Block Inc., said in a statement that Massey quit to pursue other interests.

The company reported a $58 million loss in the quarter ending Oct. 31. It also shut down its family oriented WOW! service Jan. 31, saying it would concentrate on marketing to businesses.

Company spokesman Steve Conway said the resignation had nothing to do with financial troubles at CompuServe, the nation's second-biggest online service with 3.3 million customers. Conway said Massey was unavailable for comment.

Massey, 50, joined CompuServe in 1976 and became chief executive in June 1995.

"Our goal remains a speedy and sustained turnaround at CompuServe and under Bob's leadership, the company has made progress in that direction," CompuServe Chairman Frank L. Salizzoni said in a statement.

Salizzoni, who also is chief executive of H&R Block, will assume Massey's duties while the company looks for a successor. H&R Block owns about 80 percent of CompuServe.

House tentatively approves Gila River bridge construction

(AP) — The state House cleared the way Monday for a special taxing formula to fund construction of a bridge over the Gila River.

The House tentatively approved a plan (HB2353) to allow sales tax revenue from Phoenix International Raceway to be diverted from the state straight to a fund to a bridge construction fund.

"We shied away from this in the past," said Majority Leader Lori Daniels, R-Chandler. "We saw it as a raid on the general fund."

She said she thought the project was a good one but that it should be funded in another way.

The bill, which still needs an official vote by the House, allows the county to sell bonds to help fund the project.

Rep. Jerry Overton, R-Litchfield Park, said a bridge will provide a crucial link between the southeastern part of Maricopa County and the rest of county. It will also keep PIR from being cut off when the river floods.

Senate, ABOR conflict on education

BY VIVI STENBERG
STATE PRESS

State Sen. Carol Springer, R-Flagstaff, won another victory with her bill to allow community colleges to teach upper division courses.

The bill passed through the senate rules committee Monday and is now headed for a full vote on the Senate floor.

The Arizona Board of Regents decided not to give SB1109 approval at last week's meeting during a review session on legislative proposals.

Regents expressed concern that removing the current statute that limits community colleges to lower division courses would create a new layer of bureaucracy and not benefit Arizona's students.

Two other bills appearing on this week's legislative agenda were discussed by the regents.

The bill that would create a college savings plan overseen by a committee of state officials and governor-appointed citizens, passed the senate finance committee Monday.

ABOR voted to support the bill.

Its main sponsor, John Wettaw, R-Flagstaff, said the bill will enable more students to attend colleges in the future.

Thursday, the Senate Education Committee will decide on legislation that would require ABOR to establish a career-related work-study program for university students. The proposal is an attempt to expand financial-aid programs for students, and has been welcomed by the Arizona Students' Association.

Although ABOR members acknowledged an increase in financial aid would be beneficial, they opposed the legislators attempt of "micro-management."

Regent Eddie Basha lashed out against legislation which he said was trying to do the board's job.

Regent Hank Davis called the bill an "administrative nightmare," since no funding is suggested in the bill.

Basha and other board members labeled two other proposals as being "micro-management." One was a bill that would require ASU to establish a night-time law school by July 1998; another would establish a committee to study the feasibility of creating a veterinary school at UofA.

One piece of legislation that received the board's support was a bill seeking to use three-tenths of one percent of tobacco tax revenues to pay for scholarships to students who refrain from smoking. The regents said the bill would enable more students from low-income households to attend college.

Salaries source of unhappiness according to CSC survey

BY DEANNA DARR
STATE PRESS

ASU classified staff members' biggest gripe with the University continues to be low salaries, according to an employee satisfaction survey released last week.

The survey, conducted by the Classified Staff Council last fall, polled the 3,032 classified staff members to get feedback concerning their jobs at ASU.

Of the 1,458 responses, 93 percent said they would leave their jobs at ASU for higher pay. Of those same respondents, three percent felt their pay compares to the salaries of similar jobs outside ASU. Thirty-seven percent felt their salaries compared to salaries of other jobs at the University.

ASU Provost Milton Glick said he feels the numbers are an accurate representation of the situation among classified staff.

He said that it is because of feelings like these that improving employee salaries continues to be one of the University's top priorities.

ASU President Lattie Coor said many talented employees are drawn away from the University by higher salaries offered outside ASU.

He added that many people decide to stay at ASU despite the salary because of the working environment and the educational opportunities offered to employees.

According to the survey, the main reason employees stay is the benefits offered by the University. Of those who responded, 86 percent said they are satisfied with their benefits package.

Glick said that he did not completely understand this result. "I don't think the benefits are outstanding — not related to the national market," he said.

He added that it remains a priority for the administration to both maintain and improve the benefits offered to classified staff.

Debbie Bair, who headed the Staff Development Committee that conducted the survey, said the overall results were very positive. She added that the final results brought to light issues the CSC was not aware were concerning classified staff.

"It (the survey) shows us what our constituents feel is important," she said. In this case, the unknown issue was overtime and compensation time, which had not been considered a serious concern before.

Glick said he too felt positive about the overall outcome of the survey. He added the results did not surprise him, but he regretted that more of the staff did not feel they were adequately respected by the state.

"Classified staff are very important people to the University," he said. "Respect is something you can give somebody even when you don't have money."

POLICE REPORT

ASU police reported the following incidents on Sunday:

- A male student reported that five people criminally damaged his 1971 Volkswagen Bug by flipping it over in Area 57.
- A male non-affiliate was arrested for Driving Under the Influence of Alcohol at 2500 S. Rural Road.
- A male employee reported that someone criminally damaged the northwest doors to the new Music Building.

Tempe police reported the following incidents over the weekend:

- An adult female was arrested after she fled police on her bicycle by riding through several apartment complexes and attempting to jump over a wall. She was found to be in possession of drug paraphernalia and marijuana.
- An adult female was arrested on four outstanding warrants when she entered the Tempe Police Department to bail her daughter out of jail.
- An adult male was arrested for possession of marijuana and a syringe after he ran his bike into the back of a stopped police car. The bike he was riding was later found to be stolen.

• An adult male was arrested after he threatened his father with a screwdriver and damaged his father's air conditioning unit. The man sustained minor injuries when he resisted arrest.

• An adult male was arrested for indecent exposure when two children saw him urinating in front of his trailer. A background check revealed that the man had committed four separate sex offenses in Utah and had failed to register as a sex offender in Arizona.

• An adult male was arrested at his place of employment after he physically assaulted his live-in girlfriend. The man had pulled her hair, thrown her to the ground and tried to choke her in front of their apartment.

BOSTON (AP) — An autographed script of the last episode of Cheers was stolen from a charity auction where many of the guests wore party masks.

George Wendt, who played Norm on the NBC comedy, donated the script to the Handel & Haydn Society, a classical orchestra and chorus. It had been autographed by the entire Cheers cast.

The script was stolen Saturday night while a hotel security guard took a telephone call. It had received a high bid of $1,000.

Many partygoers at the Four Seasons Hotel wore masks in keeping with the theme, Carnival in Venice. Security videotape was being studied.

Proceeds were to benefit 7,000 students in the Boston area.

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Bruce Willis is becoming a regular Chamber of Commerce type.

Willis' Valley Entertainment Group has joined the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce.

"The people in Twin have supported his businesses, and he wants to do the same," Valley Entertainment spokeswoman Michelle McElroy said Saturday in The Times-News in Twin Falls, a city of 28,000.

The 41-year-old actor lives in Hailey and is the largest commercial real estate developer in the small town 100 miles east of Boise and 75 miles north of Twin Falls.

Valley Entertainment has put $7 million worth of construction into Main Street in two years and also operates a pool hall, diner, office, ski hill and retail complex. It is also a member of the Hailey Chamber of Commerce.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. Dre — a homeboy from the Valley?

The 31-year-old Grammy-winning rapper and record producer bought a house in the San Fernando Valley for $3.25 million, the Los Angeles Times reported Sunday.

State Legislature favors 2-year budget cycle

BY PAUL DAVENPORT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

The House and Senate voted separately Monday in favor of shifting the state to a two-year budget cycle, a move which supporters said would give them more time to scrutinize agencies and programs.

The Senate voted 20-9 for a biennial-budget bill (SB1110) to switch from the current yearly budgeting format in 1999, effective with the 1999-2000 fiscal year.

The Senate's vote sent its measure to the House, which later Monday gave preliminary approval to a similar bill (HB2305) by a voice vote. That came after the House refused 34-22 to reconsider an amendment that would have deleted the two-year format while retaining other budgetary provisions in the bill.

The House bill still awaits a formal vote by that chamber. Either chamber could accept the other's version, or differences could be worked out in conference committee and the result passed by both chambers.

Since 1993, spending for the vast majority of the state's 110 budget units has been decided by the Legislature on a biennial basis. However, the 11 that still are decided annually account for 90 percent of the budget.

The 11 include the Departments of Administration, Corrections, Economic Security, Education, Health Services, Juvenile Corrections and Transportation. Also, the Arizona Health Care Cost Containment System, the university system, community colleges and the courts.

Under both the House and Senate versions of the bill, the Legislature would decide budgets in odd-numbered years and conduct program reviews during even-numbered years.

Rep. Bob McLendon, D-Yuma, sponsor of the unsuccessful amendment to continue yearly budgeting for the 11 large agencies, said they should be scrutinized every year.

"This forces them to rely on much more tenuous budget projections," he said. "I believe this is something we're not ready for. We ought to think long and hard about it."

Rep. Bob Burns, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the law still provides oversight despite the biennial process. The Glendale Republican said the off-year performance reviews would provide an opportunity for the Legislature to thoroughly review the agencies' budgets.

Earlier, Senate President Brenda Burns, R-Glendale, said biennial budgeting would give the Legislature time to re-examine goals and objectives of a program.

"What happens to government is that programs get created, somehow we lose sight of them because we move on to other issues, and they eventually take on a life of their own," she said.

Both Burnses said lawmakers always can make supplemental appropriations if an agency or program needs extra money during an even-numbered year.

Legislative aides said 30 states now have annual budget cycles and 20 have biennial systems.

ASU baseball falls 9-3 to No. 21 Oklahoma State

Willie Bloomquist swings at a pitch during Monday's game against Oklahoma State. ASU lost 9-3 to the No. 21-ranked Cowboys. ASU was limited to just five hits, a sharp departure from the 24-hit game it had against Southern Illinois on Sunday.

BY PERCY EDNALINO JR.
STATE PRESS

The ASU baseball team (9-6) lost to Oklahoma State 9-3 Monday in front of 2,925 fans at Packard Stadium. The loss to the Cowboys comes after a huge 25-9 shellacking of Southern Illinois on Sunday.

ASU head coach Pat Murphy said pitching dictated the game's outcome.

"I'm a little upset that we didn't really bear down," Murphy said. "Regardless of the fact that we played three during the weekend, that's no excuse. We've got to do this in the regionals."

Starter Ron Marietta (0-1) was handed the loss for the Sun Devils while Dave Maurer (0-1) earned the win for the Cowboys.

Marietta was shelled for six runs on six hits in 1.2 innings pitched. Maurer went six innings and gave up two runs on three hits and struck out five.

While ASU's starting pitching couldn't hold up to Oklahoma State, its late-inning pitching kept the game from turning into a blowout. Closer Ryan Bradley tossed three innings, giving up one hit while striking out three.

Oklahoma State capped off the second inning with a four-run rally. The Cowboys' tear continued in the fourth when Jay McCullough stroked a two-run home run to left field.

ASU's hitting was limited to two solo home runs from leadoff hitter Mikel Moreno. Moreno knocked his third and fourth homers of the season with a shot to left-center field in the third, and a home run to left field in the seventh. But for Moreno, the effort was in vain.

"I'd rather go 0-for-4 with four strikeouts in a win, than to have a night like tonight," Moreno said.

Moreno went two-for-three while teammate Andrew Beinbrink saw his seven-game hitting streak come to an end. Beinbrink went 0-for-3.

Experts debate strength of post-Rose Bowl recruiting class

BY ED ODEVEN
STATE PRESS

ASU head football coach Bruce Snyder has defied logic before.

He guided ASU to a surprising 11-1 record last season and ASU's first bowl appearance in 10 years.

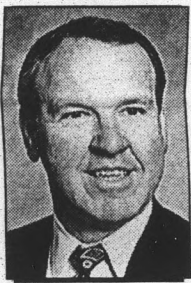

Snyder and his coaching staff persevered with their recruiting efforts that led to the inking of 22 players on Feb. 5 — National Signing Day.

"They (my staff) have not had a day off," Snyder said. "Right after the Rose Bowl we went right into recruiting, and they have worked extremely hard and I'm proud of them. They did a good job."

Now, he hopes to reap the rewards of his hard work. And he hopes his football instincts and recruiting ability will lead the Sun Devils back to the top of the pack.

"Mark my word," Snyder told The Sporting News, "this will go down as one of the best classes in Arizona State history."

Despite a 1997 recruiting class that includes Parade Magazine All-American Ralph Zarate, a gigantic offensive lineman (6-foot-5, 275-pounds) from Tucson High School, quarterback Chad Elliott, a USA Today All-American, wide receiver Justin Taplin, who was The Arizona Republic and Phoenix Gazette 4A Player of the Year and USA Today All-American offensive lineman Scott Peters, some analysts feel that the Sun Devils did not completely capitalize on their remarkable season.

SNYDER

What others say

Four well-known industry insiders, Alan Wallace, Bobby Burton, Rick Kimbrel and Ivan Maisel, were not in awe of ASU's recruiting class.

However, it was a step in the right direction.

"I don't think it's a bad class," said Wallace, publisher of Super Prep Magazine, "but I have them seventh in the Pac-10."

Wallace rated the Pac-10's recruiting classes in this order (from first to last): USC, Washington, Stanford, California, UCLA, Oregon, ASU, UofA, Washington State and Oregon State.

Wallace gave ASU a sixth-place Pac-10 ranking a year ago.

Bobby Burton, a football expert for National Recruiting Adviser, ranked the Sun Devils fifth in the conference.

He said ASU's new class was characterized by quickness.

"I think the biggest thing with this team was its speed," he said. "That's the way you win games on offense."

Burton expressed praise for Snyder's signing of speedy defensive back Courtney Hysaw, Taplin and wide receiver Clifton Jones.

Burton said these players "all fit that mold," he said. "I don't think there's any doubt they went for speed."

Since Washington and USC have been luring quick athletes to their programs, ASU made a smart move, Burton said.

He ranked the Pac-10 in this order: USC, UCLA, Washington, Cal, ASU, UofA, Oregon, Stanford, Washington State and Oregon State.

Maisel, who writes for New York Newsday and The Sporting News, said it's too early to judge Snyder's recruits.

But Maisel said Snyder's coaching and recruiting ability are "attributes to the program." He added that Snyder's past success should help him out with recruiting this season.

Rich Kimbrel, football analyst for PrepStar, said that rating the Pac-10 recruiting was simple.

"You can put USC and Washington at the top and deal a deck of cards to everyone else. It's just so hard to tell who has the best hand," Kimbrel said.

However, he feels the Sun Devils had a solid recruiting class.

"I have them in the Top 35," he said, without specifying a certain spot. "I'm not sure where they are at yet."

Although Snyder does not sign as many high-profile recruits as Notre Dame, Florida or Michigan, Burton said he agrees with Snyder's approach to recruiting.

"I think he does it the right way," Burton said. "They evaluate the players themselves. They don't necessarily look at anyone else's Blue-Chip list. A coaching staff doesn't necessarily have to go get the highest-rated recruits to be successful. I think that's part of what happened to them over the past few years."

Burton said that people have a misconception about recruiting.

"People don't realize that recruiting is a year-round effort," he said. "The first process is just to find who the good players are. The second process is getting them interested. ASU didn't have a lot of guys interested at first."

Most of the top-caliber players considered going elsewhere, especially perennial powers like Florida State, Penn State and Michigan.

RED HOT SUN DEVILS

Carie Breedlove Softball

The junior bounced back from a poor performance against Texas to dominate No. 23 UMass in the Coca-Cola Classic this weekend. Breedlove (2-0), held UMass to two runs on only three hits and retired the side in four of the five innings she worked.

Eddie House Basketball

House was a bright spot last week for the struggling Sun Devils. The freshman guard scored 20 points on Thursday in a 72-66 loss to the USC Trojans. He also had a game-high 24 points Saturday in a 91-82 loss to UCLA.

Elizabeth McNabb Gymnastics

McNabb, one of four freshmen competing for ASU, scored her third consecutive 9.95 on her floor exercise routine, good for second place. She also scored 9.625 on beam, good for sixth place.

Ryan Mills Baseball

Mills (1-0) struck out a career-high 17 batters Friday afternoon against the Salukis of Southern Illinois at Packard Stadium. The sophomore lefthander saw his ERA drop from 1.50 to 0.86 and leads the Sun Devils with 28 strikeouts.

Battle of the sexes would be intriguing match-up

With the way things are going for both men's and women's hoop teams, postseason hoop dreams are definitely out of the question.

Each team is hapless in the Pac-10, with the women's squad riding a string of eight consecutive losses and the men losing five in a row, and eight of nine.

Both teams have similar conference records. The men's team is 2-10 in the conference (10-14 overall) with wins over California and Oregon State. The women's team is 1-8 in the Pac-10 (7-15 overall), with a last-second victory over UCLA being its only conference win.

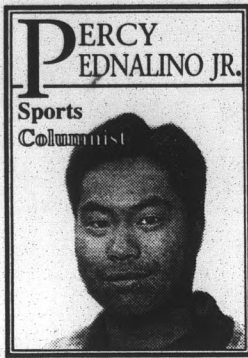

Both also feature dynamic guards — Rameeka Lowe for the women and Jeremy Veal for the men — and have suffered major losses this season.

The women's team lost forward Christine Garner to professional beach volleyball earlier this season, while the men's team is experiencing the backlash of losing guard Quincy Brewer and forward/center Okeme Oziwo because of injuries.

The similarities between the two is uncanny. It kind of makes you wonder who would win if both Sun Devil squads faced off on the court.

Realistically, the men's team would win with a stronger inside game. It helps, too, if your players are capable of dunking. The women's team would, however, give the men a good game, especially if coach Charli Turner Thorne has the team playing its pressure defense to its capability.

But those intangibles aside, who would win in a position-

PERCY EDNALINO JR.
Sports Columnist

by-position matchup between these two?

If dunking isn't allowed and the rough stuff is trimmed, my bet's on the women's team.

Why? Picture it, a three-point shootout pitting senior forward Molly Tuter vs. Gee Gervin. Oh, wait, Gervin isn't a starter. No fair. No matter, Tuter is the go-to player for the women's team while Gervin is still shaky with his long-distance bomb.

Tuter knocked in a three-pointer with less than five seconds left in the game to help the women's team beat UCLA. Against UCLA on Saturday, Gervin shot a mere 0-for-2. Gervin is averaging just 8.4 points and 2.1 assists per game. Gervin scored a team-high 14 points against Washington State on Feb. 1. That's all in a day's work for Tuter. Tuter is averaging 15.8 points per game. She also is fifth in the Pac-10 in steals with 47.

Sorry, Gee, I give Tuter the nod for this one.

If that isn't enough to convince you, how about guards Eddie House and Veal vs. Lowe and Kalene Carl. I give this matchup to the guys, but maan, it would be a close one.

Carl, a freshman, is second in the Pac-10 in assists with 110. Lowe missed the first half of the season, but has since come on strong, chipping in a 76.9 free throw percentage and 8.1 points per game. Veal, a junior, has more experience than the freshman House, but House has time to work on his game. House is averaging 12.8 points and 3.6 assists per game. Veal is chipping in 17.9 points and 4.7 assists per game, and is the team's top scorer in six of its last eight.

Veal and House take this matchup by way of experience.

Forwards? How about seniors Marci Stilson, Melissa Boyle and Charity Amama against senior Rodger Farrington, sophomore Mike Batiste and junior Urit Kelly? Farrington is among the nation's leaders in blocked shots with 103 and needs just 12 to tie the Pac-10 record. Like Lowe, Batiste's new flavor has cooled some and teams are now better prepared to guard against the 6-foot-8 swingman. Batiste is averaging 12.8 points and 7.3 rebounds per game.

Kelly has a 5.8 points per game average. What more needs to be said?

Stilson has a 7.3 points per game average and Boyle is chipping in 6.3 points per game. Amama is chipping in 3.5 boards.

This one goes to the guys.

A matchup between centers is out of the question. The women's team really doesn't feature a bona fide center, unless you want to place Boyle in that spot. Nether does the men's team, with Oziwo out. This matchup is a tie.

On to the coaches. Women's coach Charli Turner Thorne is in her first season as a head coach while Bill Frieder is in his seventh season for the men's team. Frieder took the men to the Sweet 16 during the 1994-95 campaign.

But I'm going to give Turner Thorne the edge here. She has installed a tough pressure defense that has earned the respect of all the women's coaches in the Pac-10. When the team is on its game, the pressure defense is tough to break. Sorry Frieder.

The tie-breaker? Upperclassman experience. Seven seniors dominate the women's roster. Three seniors are on the men's team. I'll give this one to the women's team. In my book, experience still counts for a lot. And that means two points for the women.

All told, that means the women edge the men by one point (4-3).

OK, so we'll never get to see a battle of the sexes between ASU's two hoop teams. Don't get me wrong, I'm not trying to get anyone mad at me. Losing skids aside, both teams are capable of winning more than their current records show.

Now if only they'd play like it.

Dallas continues remodeling, sends Jackson packing to Nets

BY TOM CANAVAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The Dallas Mavericks cleaned out the rest of their house Monday night, making a staggering nine-player trade that sent Jim Jackson, All-Star Chris Gatling and three others to the New Jersey Nets for center Shawn Bradley.

In addition to the 7-foot-6 Bradley, Dallas got point guards Robert Pack and Khalid Reeves and forward Ed O'Bannon. The Nets also received guards Sam Cassell and George McCloud and center Eric Montross.

The trade was believed to be the largest between two NBA teams in the last 25 years, league spokesman Chris Brienza said. In 1964, there was an eight-player deal between Detroit and Baltimore involving Bailey Howell, Bob Ferry and Rod Thorn, now an NBA vice president.

The deal was the third major one for the Mavericks this season and second in 10 days for new general manager Don Nelson.

Dallas traded guard Jason Kidd to Phoenix at the start of the season and recently shipped Jamal Mashburn to Miami. With this deal, Dallas now has no players remaining from last season's roster.

Though he didn't name players, Nelson said several bad attitudes in the Mavericks' locker room prompted his swift moves.

"There were just so many negative things about this ballclub," he said. "This locker room shocked me. It's not acceptable and will not be acceptable from this point on ... I observed it, watched it and basically got sick about it."

The Nets, meanwhile, freed up $14 million under the salary cap in the next two years, allowing first-year coach John Calipari to pursue top free agents.

"This is a trade for the future," Calipari said.

Both teams are struggling and the trade is not likely to make either a playoff contender this season. Dallas is 16-31 and New Jersey is 15-36 in Calipari's first season as coach and head of basketball operations.

"This was a hard decision based on the fact of what we're giving up, but Dallas was really active and wanting to make this happen," Calipari said. "They made it really tough for us to say no. The players are players I know very well and can help us get where we want to be."

Calipari made his comments as the Nets flew home on a team charter from Cleveland after a 108-101 loss. At the time, Bradley and Reeves had not been told of the trade. Pack and O'Bannon, the Nets' No. 1 draft choice two years ago, were injured and not with the team.

The trade forced the Mavericks to dress only eight men for their game at Vancouver on Monday night. Samaki Walker, drafted last June, has the longest tenure of any current Dallas player.

All the players must pass physicals before the deal is finalized.

Calipari said it was hard to move Bradley, who leads the NBA in blocked shots. But he has struggled this season, in part because of a bout with pneumonia.

"This is a matter of making a move which is best for this organization," Calipari said.

Bradley was also involved in the trade that sent Derrick Coleman to Philadelphia last season. He did not record a single rebound in 32 minutes against the Cavs.

"We are very excited about this deal, especially considering we are acquiring players in Shawn Bradley and Robert Pack," Nelson said.

Jackson had been rumored to be on the trading block all season, and his departure fully dissolved the Mavericks' heralded trio of J's — along with Jamal Mashburn and Jason Kidd — who were expected to make the team a playoff contender.

"Obviously, Nellie thought there were things that had to be done and he came in and made some changes," Dallas first-year coach Jim Cleamons said. "Hopefully, this will come to a point in time where we can get settled for the rest of the year. We're going to sit down and evaluate them and see what we have in terms of talent."

Bradley was averaging 12.1 points, 8.3 rebounds and almost four blocks. Pack is averaging 15.9 points and 9.6 assists, but he has not played since the middle of January because of a sprained ankle.

Reeves is averaging 8.4 points, while O'Bannon has struggled as a Net and is averaging 4.2 points.

Gatling, who made the All-Star team this year, is averaging 19.1 points. Jackson is averaging 15.5 and Cassell and McCloud are at 13.7.

The Nets are taking a risk in the trade because McCloud will be a free agent after this year and Cassell can invoke a clause in his contract and also become a free agent. Jackson has a year left on his current deal and Gatling four more.

In other moves, the Nets placed forward Reggie Williams on the injured list and waived forward Jack Haley, who recently signed a second 10-day contract.

Erik Guzowski/State Press

Freshman Peter Wieging shows off his moves on the pommel horse at a meet earlier this season. Wieging score a 40.65 in the all-around competition at USGA Elite Winter Cup Challenge on Friday.

Men's Gymnastics

"This was a great experience for us to show that we belong in the ranks of elite gymnasts," ASU head coach Scott Barclay said following the U.S. Gymnasts Elite Winter Cup Challenge Friday, which was held at the Kellogg Arena in Battle Creek, Mich.

Senior Rob Kjar, junior Jon Portillo, and freshmen Randy Sooter and Peter Wieging represented ASU at the competition, which determined individual national rankings. Eighty-two college gymnasts from around the nation competed.

"Our guys did very well and hung in there with the best of the U.S.," Barclay said. "This placing shows us where we stand at the beginning of a new Olympic quadrennium. We have a lot of work to do, but it shows that we are in the pack. I'm really proud of the fact that we have four athletes that can compete in a field this strong. It says a lot about our program."

While no Sun Devil gymnasts qualified for the all-around finals, limited to the top 30 finishes, all did score above a 40. Kjar had the top Sun Devil finish. He placed 40th with a score of 46.55.

Portillo (44.55) captured 57th, Sooter (43.65) took 62nd, and Wieging (40.65) finished 71st.

Men's Lacrosse

The ASU men's lacrosse team started off the 1997 season the same way they finished the 1996 season—on a winning note. The Sun Devils, who finished last year 10-1, are now 2-0 after sweeping two games in San Diego on Saturday and Sunday.

ASU head coach Craig Hochreiter said being in shape was very important in the Sun Devils' victories.

"Everyone played well and tough," Hochreiter said. "Most of our guys were in shape and that was key because of the humidity. We still have a lot to work on, but we came away with two good wins."

On Sunday, ASU thoroughly dominated the University of California San Diego 12-4. The Sun Devils led 5-3 at halftime before exploding for seven points in the second.

Attackman Derek Murrell single handily outscored UCSD with five goals. He also had two assists.

Attackmen Eric McKnight and Michael Clare each had two goals and one assist.

On Saturday, the Sun Devils faced slightly tougher competition in the University of San Diego but still were victorious 10-7.

ASU trailed 5-4 at halftime. In the second half, the Sun Devils scrapped back. When midfielder Trey Reeder netted a goal in the third period, ASU went up 7-6 and for good.

Murrell and McKnight again shined for the Sun Devils. Murrell had three goals and three assists. McKnight added three goals. Goalie Jeff Myers stopped 14 of 16 shots in the second half.

Women's Lacrosse

The ASU women's lacrosse team went 1-2 gaining its first ever victory over the weekend at the Santa Barbara Shootout in Santa Barbara, Calif.

In the two-day tournament, held on Saturday and Sunday, the Sun Devils defeated Pepperdine 7-5, but fell short against the University of California Santa Barbara and Cal Poly-San Louis Obispo.

Sophomore Jen Prystaz said just playing in the three games helped the young Sun Devils.

"The whole tournament was a good learning experience," Prystaz said. "We got to see how we compared with the California teams. We played well against teams that have more experience."

Men's Rugby

In a gritty exhibition game, the ASU men's rugby team (2-2) hosted a Canadian team from Saskatchewan on Monday and narrowly lost 24-22.

In the second half, the Sun Devils trailed 19-10 when wing Alexis Edestein scored a touchdown and converted the extra point to bring ASU within two. Flanker Josh Burch then added another touchdown to put ASU up 22-19.

In the last minute, however, Saskatchewan squeaked in a touchdown for the win.

In another exhibition game on Saturday, the Sun Devils hosted defending national champion University of California Berkeley and lost 59-0.

Despite the loss, Burch said the team put forth a good effort.

"We did good," Burch said. "We played as hard as we could, and we were able to walk away with our heads high."

Women's Rugby

The Sun Devil women's rugby team came up short in two games against a Canadian team from Saskatchewan on Monday night.

In the A game, ASU stayed close but lost 15-7. All scoring occurred in the first half. Right wing Angela Suh scored a touchdown for ASU and Ashley Kuersten added the extra point.

In the B game, ASU was blanked 12-0.

Men's golf takes third place

BY JOHN SHEEHY STATE PRESS

The ASU men's golf team spent the weekend in Hawaii. They were not taking an early spring break, but competing in the Taylor Made/Big Island Intercollegiate at Waikoloa Kings, a scenic par 72, 7074 yard course.

The Devils shot a seven-over par 871, good enough for a third-place finish behind UNLV (11-under par) and Pac-10 rival Southern California (five-over par). Pepperdine and New Mexico rounded out the top five. UNLV was led by Bill Lunde, who won the individual title at six-under par 216. Brian Hull of USC came in second place, one shot behind Lunde.

"We had a great final round. We jumped from tenth to third," coach Randy Lein said.

Senior All-American Chris Hanell led the Devils with a fifth place individual finish. He shot rounds of 74, 67, and 72, and finished at three-under par.

"Chris is continuing to play well," Lein said. "He hasn't been out of the top ten yet this year."

Sun Devil Brad Cannon came in 19th at three-over 219, with rounds of 72, 78, and 69, which was the low round of the day.

Senior All-American Scott Johnson and Greg Padilla tied for 32nd at five-over 221. They shot rounds of 72, 76, and 73 and 74, 72, and 75 respectively. Freshman Jonas Runquist sandwiched an 80 between a couple of 73's for a 62nd place finish at 10-over, 216.

Recruits

"They had narrowed down their choices and stuff like that," Burton said.

But Burton feels ASU is a year away from a strong recruiting class.

"What I think you'll see is a much better recruiting class next year because just like Northwestern had a Cinderella season and they did not have a very good recruiting class (in 1996)," he said. "But this year (Northwestern) had a terrific recruiting class, their first Top 20 (recruiting) campaign ever."

Burton said people have another misconception about recruiting.

"People think it's an immediate effect and it's not at all," he said.

Snyder agreed.

"I think in the long haul, it's going to be next year's class that will really be impacted," he said.

Immediate impact

Snyder expects Taplin to step in right away at wide out.

"(He) has enough ability to play right away," Snyder said. "He's a dynamic football player."

Kimbrel said junior college transfers Matt Cercone (tight end), Joe Cesta (inside linebacker), Dayroni Harris (defensive lineman) and Leroy Hawkins (defensive lineman) should be able to get plenty of playing time next season.

Track improves

BY LORI HARO STATE PRESS

The NAU Invitational provided a glimpse at the progress that the ASU track and field team is making, said assistant coach Darryl Anderson.

"We're constantly improving," Anderson said. "It's just a matter of us working hard and doing the things we need to do Monday through Friday. Work habits are changing and the ability to handle the work load is getting better every week."

The women's team did especially well, winning three events. Karen Vigilant won the 400-meter dash with a time of 56.45 seconds. Pricilla Boldt won the women's 800 in 2:14.49. For the second week in a row Fiona Daly won the high jump event with a leap of 5 feet, 8 inches.

"I think it (the meet) went pretty well," Daly said. "It was better. There was more competition at this meet than at last weekend's."

Other high jumpers also did well as Erica Larson took second place also with a leap of 5-8. Erica Johnson took third place with a jump of 5-4. Adra Hysong took third place in the long jump event at 18-3.

Also for the women, Dawn Linder took second place in the 200 at 25.08 and fourth place in the 400 in 1:00.41. Chasity Walker placed third in the 60 with a time of 7.71.

For the men's team Reggie Charlton took second place in the 400 in 48.80. Matt Repak placed third in the 1600 in 4:20.05.

Vondre Armour, who is redshirting this season, ran unattached and won the 800 with a time of 1:55.82.

Junior Jeremy Staat, a newcomer from the football team, took second place in the flight three shot put event with a throw of 56'05.25.

This weekend the team heads to Reno, Nev., to compete in the Mountain Pacific Sports Federation Championships.

"Based on what the kids have done in the past, they're running as well if not better," Anderson said.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

by Frances Drake

Tuesday, February 18, 1997

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your thinking is inspired by intuitive ideas. Psychic impressions could confuse your practical thought processes. In general, communication is not favored. TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Be careful if signing contracts and written agreements. Study that fine print! Your interests are leaning toward mysticism. GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You make a great effort to attain more security for yourself and your family. Be sure that you guard your personal possessions. CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Joint finances need to be examined, reaching compromises where you can. Look to see where you can economize and where you might need to spend more. LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) You're brimming with ideas on how to recycle, and you find new uses for outworn or discarded things. Others are inspired by your frugality. A financial upturn is the happy result. VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) You have a need to comprehend others' emotions. You're also concerned about sharing feelings related to family, personal security and joint finances. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take some time to re-examine your work schedule. You need more time for yourself and your family. How ever, that doesn't mean you should shirk your responsibilities. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your sharp words carry a powerful sting, causing hurt feelings and misunderstandings. Do what you can later in the day to make amends. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You're unsure how to approach a cranky bigwig about a vital issue on the work front. Perhaps it's best to bide your time. The person in question is not in the listening mood. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Your feeling of dissatisfaction continues, and you're on the alert for new opportunities. Be careful not to make a hasty decision based on emotion. Consult with relatives. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Your romantic quandary has you at odds with just about everyone around you. Try to exert more control over your feelings. Let a situation play itself out. PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) You're troubled by what a family member confides to you in the morning. Try to get to the bottom of what's being said. Perhaps your relative has been listening to rumors. YOU BORN TODAY are a party maker. The source of your energy is your desire to achieve freedom of association. You are intelligent, original and inventive, and you're always trying to find a better way of doing something. You are motivated to bring people together to enjoy each other's company and voice their ideas. While you appear sociable and outgoing, you can be impersonal and cold at times.
