ABOR increases tuition, residence hall charges

BY VIVI STENBERG
STATE PRESS

The Arizona Board of Regents raised tuition and fees for the 1997-98 school year by 2.5 percent for in-state students and 4 percent for out-of-state students Thursday. The increase represents an extra $8 million in funds for the three state universities.

Regents also voted to hike residence hall rates by 2 percent at the meeting held at ASU East.

The increase was approved 6-2 after regents failed to pass two other proposals. Regent Kurt Davis proposed a 1 percent hike for in-state students and 3 percent for out-of-state students. ABOR President John Munger proposed a 3 percent jump for residents and 5 percent for non-residents.

Both proposals were met with tie votes of four to four. The board has nine members, but Regent Hank Amos was absent.

ASU Provost Milton Glick said he hoped regents would have approved a recommenation for an across-the-board increase of 3 percent that ASU President Lattie Coor requested last week.

However, he said: "We understand the board's argument of wanting to protect resident students. This is a fair compromise."

Residents of Arizona will have to pay $50 more annually, adding up to $2059 per academic year for ASU and UofA students. For non-residents of the two universities, tuition will jump from $8308 to $8640 — an increase of $332. Out-of-state NAU students will pay $7,754 — an increase of $298.

Associated Students of ASU President Marc Baumgartner said he disagreed with the method regents used to set tuition.

"I don't think we need the money," he said. "And I'm very wary of the process here today."

Baumgartner said he didn't think the issue got the attention it deserved.

"We are dealing with real money and

Council crafts city budget; spending up 28.7 percent

BY JENNIFER NETHERBY
STATE PRESS

The Tempe City Council is moving forward with a proposed $274.2 million budget for the 1997-98 fiscal year, up 28.7 percent from last year's budget.

Management services director Rich Oesterle said the increase is primarily due to the 25 cent transit sales tax passed by voters last September, Rio Salado construction, and an increase in spending on wastewater treatment and water treatment facilities.

Despite the budget increase, the property tax rate is expected to remain constant at $1.40 per $100 of assessed value. It has been at that rate for the past four years.

The proposed operating budget, which provides for general city services, totals $174.6 million, a 7.7 percent increase over the previous year. Without spending from the new transit tax, the increase would have been under 1 percent, Oesterle said.

The proposed operating budget includes $1.3 million in funding for increased sewage treatment services costs at the 91st Avenue Treatment Plant, $1.5 million for the Warner/Hardy Athletic Facility, $1 million for water taste and odor control and $130,000 for a Household Products Recycling Center for disposal of household wastes.

The proposed capital improvements

Governor inks Rio Salado bill; OKs plan tax break

Erik Guzowski/State Press

Tempe mayor Neil Giuliano shows Gov. Fife Symington a development plan of the proposed Town Lake on the now dry Salt River bed. Symington signed a bill Thursday giving the project a $4 million tax break.

BY JENNIFER NETHERBY
STATE PRESS

Gov. Fife Symington signed a $4 million tax break into law yesterday to spur construction of Tempe's Rio Salado project.

The law will give the city a tax break on construction of the Town Lake, underground utility lines, parking and other necessary improvements.

The purpose of the law was to act as a construction incentive for the planned hotel and Town Lake within the Rio Salado project. As introduced in the state Senate, it would have provided the city and developers with $6 million in tax cuts.

However, the state Senate axed the tax break for hotel construction earlier this year.

The city will now have to make up the $2 million difference to provide incentives for construction of the Peabody Hotel, Tempe Mayor Neil Giuliano said. It is not yet known how the city will fund the difference, he said.

The project is a redevelopment plan for the Rio Salado riverbed in Tempe, which includes construction of a Town Lake and a 1,000-room hotel.

Symington signed the bill on the bank of the Salt River alongside Giuliano and legislative sponsors of the bill.

The governor called the Rio Salado project "the most important reclamation project in the history of the state."

He said he plans to fish there when the lake is completed.

The Rio Salado project is expected to generate $32.7 million dollars in tax revenue each year and create 10,000 permanent jobs. The city is expecting to spend $25 million this year for construction of the lake.

Giuliano said the new law will move Tempe "one step closer to making Rio Salado a reality."

The House version of the bill added in a funding break for underground utility lines and other municipal construction, Gardner said last week.

"We broadened the base a little more," he said. "It will be a little bit better deal for the city."

Gardner said the bill was broadened to ensure the project would happen.

A similar bill last year in the Legislature failed to win approval by either legislative chamber.

Baumgartner and other student government presidents requested a zero percent increase.

For the first time, regents also set resident hall rates alongside tuition.

Regent Kurt Davis proposed a 2 percent on-campus housing hike. The amount is roughly 1 percent less than ASU requested.

Davis' proposal, which passed unanimously, asked that the increase be used for ongoing costs and maintenance.

"We should worry less right now about additional programming areas," he said.

budget, which includes infrastructure improvements, totals $79.7 million, an increase of 124.8 percent from the previous year's $35.5 million. Construction of the Town Lake and other Rio Salado improvements account for $31 million of the capital improvement budget. Transit improvements account for $12 million of the capital budget.

Oesterle said without the transit and Rio

Salado spending, the capital improvement budget would have decreased from the previous year.

"These two projects are really an integral part of the increase in capital improvements," he said.

The tentative budget will go to the City Council May 29. A public hearing is scheduled for June 12, the day the Council is expected to adopt the budget.

Justice Department workers arrive with evidence at the federal courthouse in Denver Thursday, for the trial of Oklahoma City bombing suspect Timothy McVeigh. Opening arguments began Thursday morning.

McVeigh prosecutor portrays defendant as hate-filled man

BY MICHAEL FLEEMAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

DENVER — Seething with rage against his own government, Timothy McVeigh blew up the Oklahoma City federal building in a twisted plot to spark a second American revolution, a prosecutor said in opening statements Thursday.

"McVeigh liked to consider himself a patriot," Assistant U.S. Attorney Joseph Hartzler said. "Our forefathers did not fight innocent women and children. ... They didn't plant bombs and run away wearing earplugs."

Jurors listened grim-faced as Hartzler, who has multiple sclerosis, leaned forward in his wheelchair and spoke softly about the deadliest act of terrorism on U.S. soil.

"It was an act of terror intended to serve selfish political purposes," Hartzler said. "The truck was there to impose the will of Timothy McVeigh on the rest of America ... by murdering innocent men, women and children in hopes of seeing blood flowing in the streets of America."

But in equally forceful terms, McVeigh attorney Stephen Jones declared in his opening statement: "My client is innocent."

He accused the government of trying to elevate McVeigh's political beliefs — which Jones said many share — into a motive for mass murder.

Making no effort to soften the emotional power of the bombing, he began by spending six minutes reading off the names of each of the 168 people killed when the April 19, 1995, truck bomb tore apart the nine-story building.

As Jones solemnly read the names, bombing victim's relatives quietly cried in their special section of the packed second-floor courtroom.

McVeigh, wearing a plaid shirt and khaki pants, showed little emotion in court. He leaned forward to listen, sometimes resting his head on his folded hands as the prosecutor portrayed the 29-year-old Gulf War veteran as a selfish, deluded coward.

Hartzler said that on the day of the bombing McVeigh was wearing a T-shirt that bore the Thomas Jefferson quote: "The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants."

Hartzler contended that McVeigh's hatred of the federal government was fueled by what he saw as the government slaughter of innocents at the Branch Davidian compound near Waco, Texas, two years to the day before the bombing.

"He told people the government deliberately murdered people," the prosecutor said, adding that McVeigh described Waco as the "government's declaration of war against the people."

McVeigh was arrested on traffic charges 90 minutes after the explosion, and when federal agents searched his car they found a slips of statements quoting "The Turner Diaries," a 1978 fictional account of an attack on a federal building that is eerily similar to the Oklahoma City bombing. Hartzler said the book "served as a blueprint."

McVeigh planned the bombing for months, the prosecutor said, and hoped it would rival the first shots of the American Revolution, which also occurred on an April 19 — in 1775.

"He envisioned he would bring liberty to this nation," Hartzler said. "Well, this was not just talk for McVeigh. He was ready for action. He knew from literature how to make a bomb and how to get the ingredients."

In a new revelation, Hartzler said federal agents later found a file in his sister's computer that "McVeigh obviously wanted them to read." It was marked "ATF READ."

"You'll see the chilling words, 'All you tyrannical m— f— will swing in the wind some day for your treasonous actions against the Constitution. ... Die, you spineless, cowardous bastards.'"

Hartzler said McVeigh and co-defendant Terry Nichols, who is to be tried later, "became friends in part because they both shared a distaste for the federal government."

In detail, the prosecutor explained how they worked together to get materials to build the fuel oil and fertilizer bomb. He said they bought the nitromethane fuel at a raceway, two tons of ammonium nitrate fertilizer at a farm supply store and stole five blasting caps from a nearby rock quarry.

To get the other ingredients, Hartzler said, they "picked up the phone book and let their fingers do the walking."

In the fall of 1994, McVeigh showed his plans to Army buddy Michael Fortier and his wife in their kitchen, drawing diagrams and stacking Campbell's soup cans to show how to arrange the barrels in the truck for maximum destruction.

College women may be target of serial rapist

BY ROBYNN TYSVER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

OMAHA, Neb. — Four women have been raped and two others sexually assaulted on college campuses in four Midwestern states, and police suspect the attacks are the work of the same person: a man who likes to spit on his victims, question them about their sex lives and ask them to pray for him.

The attacks took place in February and March, on campuses 10 minutes to six hours apart.

The rapes have led schools to step up security and have unnerved students and faculty members with the idea that a rapist is targeting women working alone in computer labs and music rooms.

"It is a terrifying thought to me that college campuses would be the preying grounds for a serial rapist," said Heidi Hess, 30, who quit her job as a part-time journalist and business teacher after she was raped on March 5.

Ms. Hess was chatting on the Internet alone one night in a computer lab at the University of Nebraska at Omaha, a campus where she had worked and studied for 10 years without fear. She heard rapid footsteps behind her. A man in a ski mask grabbed her, threw her to the floor and raped her.

Ms. Hess — who decided to speak publicly because "people need to know it happens to people we know" — said her attacker talked through the whole ordeal.

"He threatened me and he asked a lot of questions about my sexual past," she said, declining to give any other specifics.

Police investigating the other attacks in Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin began to link the cases because the attacker used similar language and spoke as if he were educated. He also used a ski mask or covered his victims' heads with a knit cap, although one of the women was able to see her attacker, police said.

DNA evidence has provided a solid link between attacks in Nebraska and Iowa, Lincoln Police Chief Tom Casady said. Further genetic tests are under way.

The first attack occurred at Union College in Lincoln on Feb. 6, when a man wearing a ski mask raped a woman who was playing the piano at night in the basement of an administration building.

New mother at 63 ignites moral and ethical concerns

BY SCOTT LINDLAW
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — At 63 years old, the world's oldest new mom is dealing with night feedings and diaper rash. She will be 65 during the terrible twos, and 76 during the rebellious teen-age years. And maybe, just maybe, she'll be around at 85 to see her daughter graduate from college.

When doctors confirmed Wednesday that the woman gave birth at 63, it raised questions about the ethical and practical ramifications of having a baby so late in life.

"I don't know if she's going to have energy for a baby," said Maryann Fiore, who had triplets at age 45 and is now 50.

Speaking by telephone from her home in Caldwell, N.J., as her children yelled, "Mommy! Mommy!" in the background, she said: "I was bestowed with a lot of energy. But at 63 it will be a little overwhelming, I think."

"It raises a lot of moral and ethical questions. What are we doing to society? If we're bringing a baby to an older woman, later in life, when she's older, who's going to take care of her child?" asked Dr. Matan Yemini, co-director of the Diamond Institute for Infertility and Menopause in Millburn, N.J.

Dr. Mark Sauer, an infertility specialist at Columbia University's medical school, said: "I lose my comfort level after 55, because I have to believe that there are quality-of-life issues involved in raising a child at the parent's age. When the baby born in November is 5, her mother will be 68. And I have to believe that a 78-year-old dealing with a teen-ager may have some problems."

For the doctor who heads the fertility program where the unidentified woman conceived, one of the more troubling questions is how to verify age.

The University of Southern California's Program for Assisted Reproduction allows women up to 55 to participate, and this woman went to great lengths to hide her age.

At the outset, she presented doctors with "multiple medical records" indicating she was 50, when she was actually 60. It wasn't clear whether she altered the records or simply gave other doctors the bogus age, too.

STATE PRESS Boos & Bravos

BRAVO — To the end of another Associated Students of ASU election season. This political mish-mash was allowed to continue far too long for our tastes. We've witnessed complaints filed, complaints dismissed, penalty points assessed, possible disqualifications, criminal-record holding candidates — we've seen it all. We can only hope that the next ASASU session will be as interesting as the election.

BOO — To the folks over in the math department for kicking around the notion of eliminating two math classes. MAT 106 and MAT 114 are much needed stepping stones for math illiterates like ourselves. On one hand, the department boasts of students' improvement in these algebra classes. On the flip side, they want to cancel them. Something just doesn't make sense here.

BRAVO — To all Sun Devil football players who got swooped up in the NFL draft. It's about time major league football teams turned their normally blind eyes to ASU. We hope the draftees bring as much excitement and success to their new teams as they brought to the University.

BOO — To the first reported rape of the semester. Police reported Monday that an 18-year-old female student told them she had been raped by a man on March 27 in a residence hall room. The spineless suspect is still on the loose, so be careful out there.

BRAVO — To ASU administrators for developing and implementing the Chicano/Chicana studies program. The University is only the second research I institution to have such a program. It makes complete sense to have courses studying a culture that has enriched the state of Arizona so greatly.

BOO — To Marriott for monopolizing the on-campus food market. If you thought things were a little on the pricey side before, wait a couple of months to see what happens. We ask all of you to take five minutes or so from your hectic schedules to saunter over to local off-campus merchants and eateries. Usually, they will serve up some pretty good food at prices most students can actually afford. At least most of the money will remain in the community and not go to some overstuffed corporate giant.

BRAVO — To ASU East for putting up homeless men, women and children in old military homes out at Williams Air Force Base. The homes are much more valuable to these people than they ever were to a bunch of military men and women. Maybe the city of Tempe should take similar action and stockpile homeless in the Hayden Flour Mill when it shuts down.

BRAVO — To the past and present staff of the State Press for picking up a General Excellence award from the Arizona Press Club. With the risk of tooting our own horn — great job, everybody.

Danger of entanglement in World Wide Web calls for protection of sites

Oh what a tangled Web we weave! We use this expression in regards to lies, but now the deception extends to the Internet or the World Wide Web.

I had the unpleasant experience of dealing with the Internet a couple of weeks ago, shortly after the Heaven's Gate UFO cult in San Diego committed mass suicide. I, like many others, was interested in seeing their Web site.

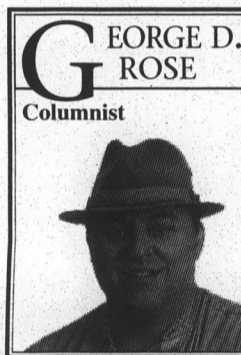

A friend asked me to see if I could get a copy of their graphic for a report on cults he was doing. Since I enjoy doing research for my classes and was interested in looking at this column on the Internet, this was no big deal — so I thought.

A search with the term "Heaven's Gate" got several thousand responses. I searched the list until I found a pair of hypertext entries with the required phrase. Both mentioned Heaven's Gate, UFOs, Hale-Bopp and San Diego. "Great!" I thought, and clicked on the first one. The next thing I knew, I was ambushed by a picture of a woman's naked bottom and an invitation to "enter into 'Heaven's gate'."

I exited the site as soon as my fingers would let me, but the damage had been done. My feelings on sex are that it is a wonderful thing that God created to be enjoyed between a married couple, in private. This whole episode destroyed the meaning of the word "private." This was not my idea of enjoying sex in the privacy of my own home. It made me wonder how many other people have experienced similar intrusions.

A number of months ago in a newsletter from our home school association, one of the mothers cautioned parents about the Web. She said that she had typed the word "toys" into the search engine. Some of the responses she got dealt with cybersex, adult toys and other sexual aids I can't mention here. All this from something as innocuous as a child's toy.

She then typed in "I love horses" for her horse-loving child. She got references to a site from some guy who really "loves" horses, in an all too friendly way. This stuff makes you wonder. Maybe it's time to regulate the Web.

GEOERGE D. ROSE
Columnist

I know there are a lot of First Amendment flag wavers out there who are saying, "Whoa, Buddy, you're talking about my freedom of expression here." Granted, I am, but even the Supreme Court recognizes that some things overstep the bounds of protected speech. You can call that art if you want, but it's still pornography.

Many believe that being an "adult" allows them leeway to make their own decisions about what material they choose to view. This may be true, but there are multitudes of children (and unsuspecting adults) browsing the Web every day. What's to prevent them from innocently discovering some gross perversion that will rob them of their purity? I'm a grown, married man with children, and even I felt violated.

Even I tried the toy trick to see what responses came up, and the lady wasn't kidding. Thank God these don't show their graphics until you click on them. What's to prevent a child or overactive adolescent from taking the next step accidentally or otherwise? Why should I, as a parent, have to invest in costly software to protect my family when the creators of this garbage can prevent unrestricted access at the site?

If my neighbor has a pool, is it my job to build a fence around it? Is it my responsibility to watch it 24-hours a day, seven days a week to keep children from having uncontrolled access to it? No. The law recognizes these things as attractive nuisances which act as magnets to curious children. The law requires the owner of the pool to take reasonable steps to prevent accidents and holds him liable when accidents do happen.

This is the most logical connection between these damaging Web sites and real life. This should be the standard for responsibility and liability. Some things shouldn't have such a public forum in the marketplace of ideas.

The Web has such potential for expanding knowledge and improving the acquisition of information. It has the ability to provide for inexpensive communications between parties around the world. Even though it has its bright side, it has an equally dark side. We as a society must, for the sake of ourselves and our children, take charge of this resource and channel it for good before it is too late.

Two magical words to assure bliss and happiness: I don't

(While Mike Royko is recovering, we are reprinting some old favorites. This column was originally published Sept. 14, 1989.)

So many conflicting opinions have been thrown around about America's No. 1 problem that I went to see Dr. I.M. Kookie — one of the nation's leading experts on just about everything — to see if he had any solutions.

"Yes," Dr. Kookie said, "the solution is to make it illegal, outlaw it completely."

But the sale and possession of drugs already is illegal.

"Drugs? Who's talking about drugs?"

Well, what are you talking about?

"Marriage."

Marriage? You consider marriage the nation's leading problem?

"Of course. Look at the statistics, it's all there."

What's all there?

"Misery, grief, strife, discord, irrational behavior, violence, crime. Yes, the single biggest domestic problem in America is lack of domestic bliss."

I'm amazed that you would say that.

"That is because you are a boob. Even worse, a sentimental boob. Do you realize what percentage of marriages result in divorce?"

I know it is high.

"It is about 20 or 30 percent, depending on what study you read. Some say it is as high as 50 percent. Do you think that 20 or 30 or 50 percent of Americans are dope addicts?"

I hope not.

"Of course not. So we should get our priorities straight. Here you have all these millions of people experiencing the terrible misery of shaking the marriage addiction, going through the agony of divorce withdrawal, getting zonked over property settlements, having their brains scrambled by nosey relatives and friends. And who profits from this? The marriage lords, the kingpins of Splitsville."

Who are they?

"Stores that have wedding gift listings, tuxedo rentals, divorce lawyers, counselors, shrinks. And the real estate dealers. There's a divorce, the house gets sold, and they grab their 6 percent commission. And there are the hairpiece makers and the plastic surgeons."

Hairpieces and plastic surgeons?

"Sure. The first thing a guy does when he gets a divorce is buy a hairpiece so he can look younger. And the woman gets her face lifted. They are all part of the divorce cartel."

But what about the happy marriages?

"Happy marriages? You know how many married people bump each other off?"

How many?

"Scientific studies have shown that it is one heck of a lot."

How much is that?

"How much is a heck of lot? Plenty, that's how much. And maybe more than plenty. I'll tell you this: In any year, more husbands knock off their wives and more wives bump off their husbands than crack dealers zap each other off. And that doesn't count the ones who do it legally."

How do they do it legally?

"Wives who load up husbands with cholesterol. Husbands who watch TV all night and burp until the woman goes flippo and does a header out the window. Happens all the time."

But I'm sure most married people are happy with their lot.

"Nonsense. Go do your own scientific study and you'll see."

What kind of scientific study?

"Go to a shopping center on a Saturday. Stand outside a Kmart or a Wal-Mart or a Sears or any of them. Look at the faces of the couples. Count the ones who look happy. Then count the ones who look miserable. You'll see: It's 98 percent gloom and 2 percent cheer. And that 2 percent are probably not married but are just sneaking around on the side."

But that is still no reason to make marriage illegal.

"I'll give you more reasons. Ulcers. You think single people get ulcers from playing tennis or going skiing? No, 90 percent of the ulcers are married ulcers, from mortgages, commuter rides, yard work, flooded basements and fighting over why he leaves the toilet lid up and why she calls the bar to see if he left yet."

All right, I will concede that some marriages are not perfect. There are abuses. But that's no reason to make all of them illegal.

"Sure it is. And if Congress and President Bush had any guts, they'd crack down and put a stop to this whole mess. We'd have a slogan: 'Just Say No to Marriage.' And we'd have a drug czar who would go after any wedlock users."

But if people want to get married, even if it means risking their mental and physical health, that should be their right. It doesn't affect you.

"Sure it does. My tax money is used to pay for the divorce courts and the cops who have to break up the marital fights."

True, but trying to prevent people from marrying would cost even more. It would cost billions. And people would get married anyway, so the money would be wasted.

"True, but we'd accomplish something anyway."

What?

"At least some of them would feel guilty."

Stereotypes and cartoon misrepresent gay community

This letter is in response to the April 22 article written by Ross Eide in which he writes about Ellen Degeneres of ABC's sitcom, Ellen, openly pronouncing her homosexuality. She will play the first lesbian lead character on a sitcom; evidently, her actions have spurred a lot of controversy.

His opinion was that the reason she was coming out was not because it would be the "socially correct" thing to do, but because the producers of Ellen are hoping for higher ratings. His opinion was clearly stated, and I believe it should be respected. Along with his viewpoint, though, he has made some comments that I found to be in poor taste, and I hope to point out his disregard for certain individuals.

Eide wonders if viewers never contemplated if the character Ellen may be gay, considering she had all the well-known lesbian signs, such as never dating and never wearing skirts. How apt that he would be able to discern her sexual preference because of her choice to wear pant suits rather than skirts. This is the kind of judgment that spurs stereotypes. As for the fact that she doesn't date — am I to go out with any man to prove my heterosexuality?

The second part of his column asks if we considered Ellen to be a "clean, non-threatening, heterosexual comedian" before this controversy began. I ask, now that Ellen chooses to be openly gay, does this mean she becomes dirty?

Does Eide feel so threatened that he can no longer "enjoy her now?" By all means, turn the television off and close Time magazine — but one shouldn't express oneself so as to misrepresent a group of people by placing conditions and attributes on their character that may not be true.

Throughout the semester, I have read the State Press and felt irritated, at times, with the ignorance that has been propagated. However, the April 22 issue hit an all-time low. The "comic strip" is demeaning not only to gay women — but to all women — and to our society.

One's sexual orientation is not chosen by the individual. Sexuality 101 ... sexual behavior does not equal sexual orientation. We choose how we are going to act. We choose how we will conduct ourselves in public. However, when it comes to our sexual orientation, that is already determined for us at birth.

It is an outrage that the State Press would even consider running such an inflammatory "comic strip." This is a good example of how ingrained defamation of difference is socially acceptable in our culture today. No longer is there encouragement to become involved in matters of substance. The comic strip insults all of our intelligence, self-respect and integrity. This is a university campus that promotes diversity, and yet, the State Press would prefer to promote ignorance.

Grow up! This paper is printed on a university campus. I would have believed, prior to my enrollment, that most students would be living in enlightenment, not in the dark ages of life, ruled by fear. Obviously my assumption has been a gross mischaracterization of members of the ASU student body.

Traffic to campus not same as traffic on campus; safety first

The April 23 editorial about vehicle traffic on the malls raises important concerns for our campus. However, it also reflects common misperceptions that surround campus traffic issues.

I take exception to your characterization of fire engines as "meandering" around campus. Aside from when they are responding to an emergency, the Tempe Fire Department frequently travels the campus to maintain familiarity with the layout, to confirm that their vehicles can navigate the entire campus and to remind everyone here that emergency vehicles may need to get around quickly.

In a letter to me dated Feb. 17, Milton Glick, ASU senior vice president and provost, offered two principles to guide our efforts to address mall traffic. They are:

1. The malls should be accessible and flexible in use.
2. The needs of pedestrians and access for emergency vehicles must not be compromised in any way.

Glick acknowledged that operation of the campus sometimes requires non-emergency vehicles, but not at the expense of pedestrians nor emergency response. One example of how this has been managed is the policy for the huge soda delivery trucks; they must be off campus before 7 a.m.

I agree that vehicles on the malls often add to the congestion and our frustration. However, there are efforts to minimize vehicle traffic. For example, within Facilities Management, the current policy is for vehicle operators to use surface streets first, then enter the malls only when a building cannot be accessed any other way.

Also, during class changes, Facilities Management strongly advises vehicle operators to stop and wait if congestion becomes severe, as is often the case between classes.

Also, I disagree with your assertion that departmental bikes, like those in Facilities Management, have not helped to reduce congestion. These bikes have eliminated other vehicles that might have been used instead.

Historically, bike paths have not worked because pedestrians do not honor them. They always walk on them, interfering with the bikes. Hence, pedestrians' behavior is the primary reason we do not have — and likely will not get — an extensive bike path system.

I agree with your conclusion that the community must implement some changes to enhance the traffic situation on the malls, but not because it's a "nuisance," as you suggest. Rather, we must manage our malls, because if we don't, the situation will become hazardous.

The most important priority is safety, not convenience. The most significant factor in safety is not the vehicles but rather the multitude of bikers and skaters who go too fast for conditions and the pedestrians who are not paying attention to where they are going.

Finally, I do not agree with the idea that commuting to the campus and traveling within the campus are necessarily linked. People say they need to ride their bikes or skates to class because they ride them to campus.

Everyone else who comes to campus, e.g. by bus or car, walks to get around the campus, and I don't hear them complaining. Why won't bikers and skaters do this? If they must ride, why can't they ride at a speed that doesn't frighten the rest of the community?

ASU students meet comic book 'god' at screening

By Jonathan Inge
State Press

Comic book "god" Todd McFarlane, on campus Wednesday for a screening of his new Spawn feature, said he doesn't "think grannies are going to like" the animated series.

He gave full warning to the 450 people gathered in the Memorial Union cinema for the showing. "This is not Saturday morning cartoons. It is R-rated and will be aired at midnight," he said of the series to be shown on cable TV.

The 30-minute program was broadcast to 21 universities. However, ASU was the only site where students got to meet 36-year-old McFarlane.

Memorial Union Activities Board Film committee members Ryan Dong and Allison Ortyl organized the event to introduce the new show to students.

"In one of our meetings, it was said that McFarlane lived in the Valley and it would be cool if we got the creator to introduce his own show," Ortyl said.

But Dong added that the deal "didn't pull together until the last minute."

Moderator Adrian Fontes said the event was of major significance to comic fans.

"It's like a major football player to a football fan — a virtuoso flutist to a music lover. Todd McFarlane is at the pinnacle of the comic book world," he said. "When you mention his name to others, they say, 'Who?' But to those people standing in line, he's a genius."

In 1992, McFarlane joined other frustrated Marvel Comics illustrators to form their own independent publishing company — Image Comics.

In May of 1992, issue No. 1 of Spawn — written, penciled and inked by McFarlane — sold 1.7 million copies, making it the best selling independent comic book of all time. Since its debut, Spawn sales through issue No. 34 have continued at phenomenal levels, remaining in the top 10 in sales in the United States and several European countries. More than 55 million copies of his comic book have

Spawn tells the story of Al Simmons, a government assassin, who dies while on a mission. He sells his soul to the devil to return to his beloved wife as Spawn, only to find that she has married his best friend.

"He's caught in a theological nightmare," McFarlane said. "Spawn comes from hell and gets his powers from hell. Moms think it's satanic."

The free premiere received "ewws" and "ahhs" from the audience. Those in attendance saw a rough-cut trailer and gag reel of the new show.

"The tone of the comic is dark and not easily translatable into movies," ASU student Gentry Smith said.

Edward Richy, a senior anthropology major, has been a long time McFarlane fan — not for Spawn, but for his other works.

"I'm for Amazing Spiderman.. I bought some of his artwork. In 1988, I sold a page of Amazing Spiderman, issue number 299, for $80," he said. He greatly anticipates the Spawn film, but he said "if it looks anything like the Captain America or Punisher movies," he would be disappointed.

All About Books and Comics, 810 S. Ash Ave., capitalized on the event by selling back issues of the comic.

Employee Jason Keenan provided an explanation for Spawn garnering a large fan base.

Erik Guzowski

Todd McFarlane signs memorabilia of his comic book work for his fans after speaking about the illustration industry to his fans in the Memorial Union cinema Wednesday.

"McFarlane is an underground comic god," he said. "People love it that he does it all himself. Spawn crosses barriers. In our store, we not only see kids but also people in their 50s and 60s buying comics for their grandkids. Women love the storyline."

McFarlane's family — his wife, Wanda and two daughters, Cyan, 5, and Kate, 2, — also attended the event.

Mrs. McFarlane said it was nice seeing her husband receive a lot of creative control.

"He wants to bring Spawn to the mass conscious," she said. "He wants to please his fans. He wants the character to be bigger than him."

Free film festival features fresh filmmakers' flicks

BY KEVIN CULWELL
STATE PRESS

It's no Sundance, but ASU is bringing the closest thing possible to campus.

The ASU Art Museum is hosting a free film festival featuring emerging filmmakers from Orange County, Calif.

The event, set for 8:30 tonight at the Nelson Fine Arts Center plaza, is a series of short films ranging from four to 24 minutes in length.

The hour and 50 minute presentation, with one short intermission, will feature a couple of award-winning pieces and participants from more prestigious film festivals.

There will be everything from computer generated to animated to live-action films, said John Spiak, curatorial assistant at the art museum. Spiak helped organize the event.

"All of these films range in emotion from sweet and dramatic to funny and lively," he said. "It should be a great event."

Bob Pece, an Orange County filmmaker who co-organized the event, said "it's a showcase of very different genres, with many different art-inspired films."

Pece has two films included in the event.

"This will be good for the students of ASU and the general community to see what kinds of independent films are being made," he said. "There are a lot of solid works that a lot of people never get to see."

The two featured award winners are Sportsters from Beatrice Palicka, about a bicycle race between a Mexican farm worker and a high-tech engineer, and Breath of Life from John Gibbons and Steve Jones, about a spiritual journey of a Native American.

Palicka's film garnered international awards, including the Silver Seal Award from a 1995 film festival in Manchester, England.

The Sacred Hoop, about a widow searching for deeper meaning in her life, is the other movie by Palicka which will be presented tonight.

Breath of Life received two bronze awards for best low budget film and best musical score from the Telluride Film Festival this year.

Another featured film is Sax's Final Orbit, from Gregory Earls and Suzie Lyons. This story revolves around a relationship between two very different struggling artists.

Pece's two entries are Fossils 'n Stuff, about a fossil hunter's quest for a three-legged dinosaur, and an animated short film The Legend Unlikely.

All told, there will be 13 films showcased.

Guests are encouraged to bring either lawn chairs or blankets, as the event will take place outside.

"I've always preferred outside festivals because of the greater ambiance," Pece said. "They always create a better atmosphere."

Study shows bladder infection vaccine shows promise in mice

BY PAUL RECER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Human tests may begin next year on a vaccine to protect against painful bladder infections that annually affect more than 7 million Americans, mostly women, and cost more than $1 billion to treat.

In studies on laboratory mice, the vaccine disarmed nearly all strains of a bacterium, called E. coli, that causes more than 90 percent of all urinary tract infections.

Researcher Solomon Langermann said Thursday that the vaccine is being testing in monkeys and should be ready for human trials in 1998, if the federal government approves.

Bladder infections are one of the most common of all infections, affecting 7 million to 8 million Americans. E. coli is a common bacterium in the colon, where it has a beneficial effect.

The infection usually occurs when E. coli is transferred from the rectum to the urinary tract and then up that tract to the bladder. About 95 percent of all such infections are in women.

Bladder infections can cause fever, painful and frequent urination, and blood and pus in the urine. They usually are treated successfully with antibiotics, but some E. coli are becoming increasingly resistant. In uncommon cases, usually in patients who already are seriously ill, bladder infections can spread to the kidneys and can be a contributing factor in deaths, experts say.

Langermann was lead author of a study to be published Friday in the journal Science. His co-authors include researchers at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis.

Dr. Jerry Blaivas, a professor of urology at Cornell University's New York Hospital, said a vaccine against E. coli urinary tract infections "would have an enormous impact" on general public health.

"It is the second-most-common cause of morbidity (illness) in the country," said Blaivas. "If there was a vaccine to prevent 90 percent of urinary tract infections, that would be fantastic."

But Blaivas cautioned that such a vaccine would have to be carefully tested to assure that it does not alter the normal action of E. coli in the gut or allow other bacteria to bloom and cause other types of infections.

Langermann said the vaccine creates antibodies against a protein that E. coli uses to establish infection in the bladder.

The vaccine causes the body to make antibodies that prevent adhesin from locking onto the cells of the bladder wall. Instead of causing an infection, the disabled bacteria are washed out of the body when the bladder is emptied.

Langermann said the vaccine was tested on hundreds of mice. After the test animals were injected with the vaccine, human E. coli bacteria were injected into their urinary tract. A similar number of mice got the bacteria after placebo vaccine shots.

"In all of the mice that received the vaccine, there is a greater than 99 percent reduction in colonization by E. coli," said Langermann.

Windy conditions delay spaceship's visit for UFO Awareness Week

BY BEN LEATHERMAN
STATE PRESS

Thanks to a windstorm which hit the Valley Wednesday evening, today will be the day ASU stands still.

The much-touted landing of a UFO on campus by a local artist group was delayed until today, due to inclement weather.

Heather Sunburst, an art junior and member of Thought Crime on Campus, said the UFO's frequencies were not stable enough to land the craft near the beacons they set up on Hayden Lawn.

"I was doing it through telepathy, but their signals could not get through the wind current," she said. "I talked with them this morning and they said Friday would be all right."

The visitation is part of Thought Crime's UFO Awareness Week, funded in part by a $200 grant from Associated Students of ASU. The week's activities also included a series of lectures Wednesday night on extraterrestrial issues. Thought Crime on Campus is a collective of local artists who believe that people should be open to the idea of UFOs.

Sunburst, who also goes by Cricket 52, said the extraterrestrials managed to scatter smaller versions of their ship around campus. The white, saucer-like objects, five-inches in length, were found all over campus, including Cady Mall and near the Art Building.

She added that several "hoodlums" had also knocked over beacons on Tuesday evening which also hampered communication with the spacecraft. The 10-foot high wooden objects — which are painted black with the white silhouette of a screaming woman — have been set up since Monday.

"They disputed the whole flow of the energy," she said. "No phenomena was able to take place."

In the absence of the mother ship, members of Thought Crime tried to enlighten students as to how they might feel like aliens to society. While a cacophony of music echoed in the background, Sunburst called out to passing students.

"If you've ever felt like an alien, come over to our display," she said. "Do you sometimes wake up in the morning — look at yourself in the mirror and say, 'I feel like an alien'?"

Jim Diletto, president of a computer graphics firm, said extraterrestrials may be part of forces not seen by humans.

"For the believers and non-believers, we have to address science and universal belief systems to draw conclusions about UFOs," he said.

Jeff Ferris, a local skateboarder, also spoke on the existence of Rods — small string-like creatures which travel at super-fast speeds. His proof came in the form of a video which showed the creatures randomly caught by unwitting photographers.

Michael Hudson, the group's founder and a computer systems engineering senior, said the goal of the lectures and the week as a whole was to open students' minds to different ways of thinking.

"We're helping people on campus realize there are different types of people than their friends, their peer groups, their sorority or fraternity," he said. "There might actually be aliens on campus if they open their eyes and focus. They might actually see them."

Murphy answers questions on regionals, UofA

ASU head coach Pat Murphy gives his insight to fans and media after each game during his "Coaches' Corner" open forum.

By PERCY EDNALINO JR.
STATE PRESS

It's been a standard of his for a couple of seasons now. After every ASU home game, head coach Pat Murphy talks to fans about the team during his post-game interview sessions, dubbed "The Coach's Corner".

But if you haven't had a chance to catch him there, and want to know just what makes him tick, then here's your chance. Murphy took a few minutes of his time and sat for a spell to answer some questions about the season, this weekend's UofA matchup, and the team.

Q: This far into the season, are you pretty pleased with the way things are going?

A: I'm never pleased, but we're a pretty good ballclub. We're not great, but we're a pretty good ballclub. We want to be No. 1 in June. We're working towards that and we're moving in that direction, but we're a long way away and we've got to keep at it.

Q: What are your thoughts going into this weekend's UofA series?

A: We've got to go one game at a time and not worry about anything else. We just need to play baseball and not get caught up with all the intruders I've been talking about all season.

It's just going to be good baseball. It's no different than when we played them down there earlier. They're a good baseball team. It's going to be a good series. We can't worry about what records are or anything like that, we just have to go up and play.

Q: In talking to some of the players, it's all about taking each series one game at a time and not thinking too far ahead. But it's got to be in the back of your mind as far as making it into the regionals and whether or not ASU will get to host them.

A: If the 11th-ranked team in the country doesn't make the final 48, there should be a congressional investigation. Am I right about that? We'll just keep playing the way we are. We're not going to worry about that. We've been in the top 15 for most of the year, and only for one week we haven't been in the top 15.

Q: As far as ASU's pitching goes, what has been working lately and what needs improvement?

A: Defense has been great and our catching has been very good. I think we just need to continue to challenge hitters and change speeds in the zone. Just fire our fastballs. What's been a difference right now is that we haven't given up a lot of free bases.

Q: As far as ASU's hitting goes, what has been working lately and what needs improvement?

A: We've been really aggressive and confident, but at the same time, they need to be demanding their pitch and not just go up there and swing.

Q: Talk a little bit about fan support and attendance this season. Has it been where you would like it to be?

A: It's at the highest that it's been in the last 10 years. And it's grown in the last two years. The fan support is great. The people are knowledgeable about ASU baseball. I wish there were more students, though. I'd love to see more students out there (against UofA).

No. 11 ASU baseball hosts 3-game tilt with Wildcats

Teams' Six-Pac standing, 8-game win streak at stake

By PERCY EDNALINO JR.
STATE PRESS

Any other season, the rivalry between ASU and UofA's baseball teams would be heated. But this season, the Wildcats are just another obstacle in the Sun Devils' path to returning to the NCAA regionals and a shot at playing in the College World Series.

Just ask ASU pitcher Jeff Cermak.

"Whenever you play UofA, you want to go out and make sure you beat them," Cermak said. "But I don't think that's the important thing right now. Right now, we just have to stay focused on the remainder of the season and stay that way going into the regionals."

No. 11 ASU (30-17, 15-12 Six-Pac) is looking to extend its current eight-game conference winning streak that ends the Six-Pac season with a three-game homestand against rival UofA (30-22, 11-13). The first game of the series starts at 7 tonight at Packard Stadium.

The last time the ASU baseball team won eight consecutive Six-Pac games was in 1993, which also was the last time the Sun Devils made an appearance in the College World Series.

Yet rivalries aside, for both teams, this series goes beyond state bragging rights. ASU is seeking its first invitation to the NCAA regionals since 1994. The same goes for UofA, although head coach Jerry Stitt said the Wildcats' chances at making the regionals are slimmer.

Stitt also said ASU should be a cinch to be one of the 48 teams who will be selected to go to the regionals.

"I think ASU has pretty much gotten themselves in with their performance," he said. "If you're coming down the stretch and you're hot, that's one of the things the committee looks at. It pretty much takes a .500 record in the conference to get in, and they've done that. They've had a great year, overall."

Stitt also said he thinks this series will be a critical one for both teams. But this weekend won't be critical for just ASU and UofA.

ASU currently is in fourth place in the Six-Pac behind UCLA, Stanford and USC. The Sun Devils are just two games out of first place. The Bruins (34-11-1, 14-7 Six-Pac) face the

SUN DEVIL UPDATE:
ASU is coming off a series sweep last weekend of California. During Friday's series opener against the Bears, ASU banged out a season-high 13 runs in the first inning ... ASU has won its last eight conference matches. The last time the Sun Devils did that was in 1993, which also was the last year that ASU appeared in the College World Series ... Left fielder Dan McKinley leads the Six-Pac in batting with his .424 average. McKinley also leads the Six-Pac in hits with 86 and is in second place for runs scored with 69 ... Second baseman Richy Leon has been the toughest player in the conference to strike out, and has done so just nine times ... Third baseman Andrew Beinbrink is third in the conference with 59 RBI.

WILDCAT UPDATE:
UofA is coming off a 15-8 win at home against Grand Canyon on Tuesday. The win guaranteed the Wildcats their first winning season since 1993 ... UofA trails 141-92 in the all-time series between the two teams. Earlier this season, ASU beat UofA in games out of three at Sancet Field ... First baseman Kenny Corley leads the Six-Pac with 21 doubles. Corley picked up three hits and scored three runs during Tuesday's game against Grand Canyon and is hitting .340 with 67 hits, 52 RBI and 11 home runs on the season ... Colin Porter leads the Six-Pac with 27 stolen bases ... Reliever Ryan Moskau (3-3, 4.09 ERA) is second in the Six-Pac with six saves ... Diego Rico is stroking his bat at a .390 pace with 75 hits, 37 RBI and 46 runs scored.

third-place Trojans (34-16, 15-12) this weekend, while Stanford (29-13, 14-7) and California (17-30, 3-21) tangle. Wins over UofA, coupled with losses by USC, could see the Sun Devils move into third place.

But first the Sun Devils have to face a Wildcat team that closely resembles ASU with its pitching and hitting.

ASU head coach Pat Murphy said UofA's pitching has been one of the things that has helped the Wildcats turn from a last-place team in the Six-Pac to this year's surprise. Murphy also said the Wildcats' hitting is still strong.

"They were the best-hitting club in the conference last year," Murphy said. "They've got the same lineup returning."

And it's that lineup that Murphy said could give ASU most of its problems. First baseman Kenny Corley leads the Six-Pac with 21 doubles, while outfielder Diego Rico leads the conference in triples with eight. UofA's Colin Porter leads the conference with 27 stolen bases, while Corley has 21. In comparison, ASU's Dan McKinley has 18. No other Sun Devils is in double figures.

As a team, UofA is hitting .313 with a .404 on-base percentage while ASU is hitting a combined .323 (.407 on-base).

"As best as we can, we're going to have to shut down their offense," Murphy said. "Everybody knows that when they play Arizona, they've got a good offense."

NOTES

Fox Sports Arizona will be sponsoring this weekend's series ... On Friday, the Sun Devils will be honoring the Diamondbacks as the team prepares for its initial season in Major League Baseball ... Fox Sports will give away keychains to the first 2,000 fans who show up to Saturday's game.

Men's golf goes for 2

FROM STAFF REPORTS

The ASU men's golf team will try to win its second consecutive and second overall team title of the season at the 30th Annual U.S. Intercollegiate Tournament starting today in Stanford, Calif.

It is the final regular season tournament for the No. 9 Sun Devils, who won last week's ASU Thunderbird/Savane Invitational by five strokes.

The Sun Devils won that tournament shorthanded but should be at full strength this weekend. Sophomore Darren Angel, the No. 2 golfer on the team, was sidelined with an illness but is expected to return to the lineup. It was the sixth competition Angel had missed this season for various reasons.

Despite missing so much time, ASU head coach Randy Lein doesn't think Angel will be rusty.

"If there's anyone who can play well without much practice, it's Darren," he said.

Filling out the ASU lineup will be sophomore Brad Cannon, senior All-Americans Scott Johnson and Chris Hanell and junior Pat Perez.

Cannon has yet to finish under-par at a tournament this season. However, he has tied for first once and placed in the top-20 three other times.

In nine tournaments this season, Hanell has placed in the top-10 every time. The nation's No. 1 golfer has also recorded one individual title and five top-five finishes.

Johnson has an 18-round average of 73.23. He has three top-five and four top-10 finishes during the 1996-97 campaign.

Perez is the most improved golfer on the team this year. He has only participated in the past two tournaments as a member of the varsity team, but has finishing 12th and fifth, respectively.

The other 19 teams playing in Stanford include Cal State Sacramento, California, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico State, Oregon, Oregon State, Pacific, Pepperdine, San Francisco, San Jose State, Stanford, University of California Irvine, UCLA, University of California Santa Barbara, No. 5 USC, Washington, Washington State and Weber State.

Slumping softball squad Seattle-bound

BY JOSH DEFAMIO
STATE PRESS

The Washington Huskies may be the sixth-ranked softball team in the nation, but for ASU, they're definitely a welcome sight.

Of course, the 11th-ranked Sun Devils have just finished back-to-back doubleheaders against No. 3 UCLA and No. 1 UofA.

"They're a top-10 team," ASU head coach Linda Wells said of the Huskies. "But after the last two teams we played they are an easier challenge."

The Sun Devils (30-16, 8-12 Pac-10) and Huskies (31-10, 5-4 Pac-10) split a doubleheader on April 5, but since then, ASU has hit a snag. The Sun Devils have lost eight of their last 10 games, including the last five in a row.

Part of the problem, Wells said, can be attributed to the team's inability to play consistently in all three aspects of the game.

"We have to have balance," she said. "We can't have our pitching do okay in one game, but our hitting and defense be off. We need to have a good game in all three areas (to win)."

ASU needs to be clicking on all three cylinders to beat the Huskies in Seattle. Washington has only lost one home game this season, and it swept ASU at home last season.

Washington also features an imposing lineup with five of the nine starters batting higher than .315. They are led by Becky Newbry, who leads the team in homers (six) and average (.383).

As of now, Wells has slated her starting pitchers to be juniors Roxanne Tsosie (15-6) and Carrie Breedlove (8-6), with senior Carrie James coming in relief. Ace Tsosie was uncharacteristically rocked for six runs in one inning against the UofA on Wednesday, but Breedlove and James both pitched solidly against the Wildcats.

"Tsosie just got roughed up," Wells said. "But she's still our number one pitcher. Breedlove pitched well in relief, and James was strong until she kind of ran out of steam at the end."

The first game will begin at 1 p. m.

NOTES

•ASU has been given a boost by the recent outfield play of senior Lisa Dacquisto. Shoulder surgery had forced Dacquisto into the role of designated player, but she responded when Wells moved her back to her natural position.

"It was fun out there," Dacquisto said of her third outfield appearance of the season. "Everything felt fine and it was exciting to be back in the field again."

Dacquisto handled six chances flawlessly against the UofA, including a diving catch in the fifth inning.

•Despite the two losses, several Sun Devils stood out offensively against the UofA. Freshman Chris Gill went 3-for-5 with an RBI and a run scored, sophomore Holly Smith smacked two hits, including a double, in five at-bats and also scored a run and knocked in two others, while Dacquisto went 4-for-7 with a run scored.

SUN DEVIL CLUB SPORTS

MEN'S LACROSSE

The ASU men's lacrosse team will try to recapture the Western Collegiate Lacrosse League Championship this weekend at the Final Four in San Diego.

The Sun Devils won the title in 1995, but surrendered the championship to the University of California-Sacramento State last year.

Today, ASU will play the same UCSS team in the semifinal round at 2 p.m. In the other semifinal contest, the University of San Diego runs with the University of Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo.

The championship game will be Sunday morning at 10:30.

Senior attackman Trey Reeder said the team is relaxed going into the weekend games.

"We're really loose," Reeder said. "Playing the defending champion, if our defense bears down, we should do all right."

Earlier in the week, ASU had five players named to the WCLL D-II All-Star team. Freshman middle fielder Bill McAlister, senior attackman Derek Murrell and senior defenseman Gabe Skripps were all first time honorees. Junior goalkeeper Jeff Myers was named for the second time, and Reeder was selected for the fourth straight season.

Rockets, Knicks, Heat, Jazz win as NBA playoffs start

HOUSTON (AP) — Matt Maloney and Mario Elie took up the scoring slack for Houston's big three in the first half, and the Rockets went on to spoil Minnesota's playoff debut, 112-95 Thursday night.

Winning the opener of the best-of-5 series bodes well for the Rockets, who are 15-0 in playoff series when they win the first game.

While Charles Barkley (10 points), Clyde Drexler (four) and Hakeem Olajuwon (eight) combined for only 22 points in the first half, Maloney and Elie totaled 25 as the Rockets took a 61-48 lead.

Maloney was 4-of-5 from 3-point range in the first half, when he scored 12 of his 14 points. Elie scored 13 of his team-high 21 points in the first half. Both players finished 4-of-7 from long range.

Olajuwon had 18 points and 11 rebounds before leaving the game with 5:36 left after poking himself in the eye. Barkley finished with 15 points and 11 rebounds for the Rockets, who outrebounded Minnesota 58-36.

Rookie Stephon Marbury led the Timberwolves with 26 points. Kevin Garnett added 21 for Minnesota.

The Rockets' bench also made a key contribution. Kevin Willis scored 15 points and Eddie Johnson had 13 to lead the Houston reserves, who outscored Minnesota's subs 36-23.

KNICKS 109, HORNETS 99

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks beat the Charlotte Hornets at their own game.

The Knicks, led by John Starks and Allan Houston, made five 3-pointers in the fourth quarter and beat the Hornets — the best 3-point shooting team in NBA history — 109-99 Thursday night in Game 1 of their best-of-5 series.

"This is fool's gold, tonight's game, because this was their type of game — a shootout," Knicks coach Jeff Van Gundy said. "We cannot get into a jump shooting contest with them, and we're not going to win another game in the series if we do."

New York shot 10-for-21 from long range, led by Houston with four and Starks with three. The biggest ones came early in the fourth quarter as the Knicks pulled away with a 23-8 run after blowing a 13-point halftime lead.

Houston finished with 25 points and Starks, who received his Sixth Man Award trophy prior to the game, added 19. The Knicks shot 58.4 percent overall, including 47.6 percent on 3-pointers.

"They made their outside shots, they just burned us with them," Charlotte coach Dave Cowens said. "I think it's still going to be a long series."

HEAT 99, MAGIC 64

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Heat raced to a 25-point first-quarter lead Thursday night and went on to a 99-64 win over the Orlando Magic, who tied an NBA record for fewest points in a playoff game.

Miami earned its most lopsided victory of the season in the first playoff game between Florida's two NBA teams.

With a 35-10 advantage, the Heat held the second-largest lead after one quarter in league playoff history. Milwaukee led Philadelphia 40-14 in 1970.

The Magic have never won a playoff series after losing the first game. Game 2 will be Sunday in Miami.

Voshon Lenard outscored Orlando 11-10 in the first period and finished with 24 points, including six 3-pointers.

The Magic made just 26 of 85 shots, a season-low 30.6 percent.

Miami's Alonzo Mourning had 12 points, 11 rebounds and six blocked shots. Tim Hardaway added 13 points and 11 assists.

JAZZ 106, CLIPPERS 86

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Predictably, the best team in the West had an easy time winning its playoff opener.

Karl Malone, hearing chants of "M-V-P, M-V-P," scored 27 points and John Stockton handed out 17 assists as the Utah Jazz rolled to a 106-86 victory over the Los Angeles Clippers on Thursday night in the opener of their best-of-5 series.

Malone, shooting 13-of-27, also had 10 rebounds, and Stockton had 13 points to go along with his assist total, which was seven above his season average.

Bryon Russell had 16 points, and Jeff Hornacek and Antoine Carr added 12 each for Utah, which beat the Clippers in Salt Lake City for the 17th straight time.

Game 2 is Saturday night. The Clippers, with the worst regular-season record (36-46) of any playoff team, were led by Loy Vaughn's 20 points. Charles Outlaw and Darrick Martin added 13 and 12, respectively.

Men's team advances 2, women 4 at Pac-10 matches

Sophomore Gustavo Marcaccio (pictured at a match earlier this season) defeated California's Alex Suer 6-1, 7-6. Two of five Sun Devils advanced at the Pac-10 Championships.

FROM STAFF REPORTS

Sun Devil senior Sergio Elias' final conference meet began in successful fashion.

The Santiago, Chile native won his opening round singles match in the Pac-10 Men's Conference Championships Thursday afternoon in Ojai, Calif. He beat UofA's Tom Hauglund in three sets (3-6, 7-6, 6-3) at Libby Park.

Elias will face Stanford's Mike Bryan this afternoon in second-round action.

ASU's Gustavo Marcaccio also posted an opening-round victory. He defeated Cal's Alex Suer 6-1, 7-6.

In other first-round action, Sun Devils Ed Carter, Alex Osterrieth and Tim Hammond were eliminated from singles play.

Carter lost to USC's Patrick Gottesleben 6-2, 6-4. Trojan George Bastl edged Osterrieth 6-4, 6-3. Washington's Nick Quatrochi defeated Hammond 6-4, 0-6, 6-3.

Two Sun Devil doubles tandems begin play today. Carter and Elias will take on Washington's Eric Drew and Mark Wooley. Hammond and Osterrieth will face Wildcats Hauglund and Wagner. — Ed Odeven

WOMEN'S TENNIS ADVANCES FOUR

Things almost went as planned for the ASU women's tennis team Thursday in the first round of the Pac-10 Conference Championships.

The team only won four of six singles matches.

Katy Propstra and Torey Pratt were unable to pull out wins in their three-set matches, unlike four Sun Devils who posted first-round victories

Stephanie Lansdorp set Pam Trump of USC down in straight sets 6-1, 6-2. Kerry Giardino also won her match in straight sets, beating Meggan Cadigan from Washington 6-2, 6-0. Anna Moll defeated USC's Amber Basica 6-1, 6-4.

Reka Cseresnyes match wasn't as easy, but she still won in straight sets, knocking off Tunde Nagy from Washington State

ASU's Reka Cseresnyes (pictured at a match earlier this season) defeated Washington State's Tunde Nagy 6-4, 7-6 in the first round of singles action at the Pac-10 Championships. Last season Cseresnyes lost in the quarterfinals to Julie Scott from Stanford.

6-4, 7-6.

Though Propstra took her match to three sets, she was unable to come up with a win in the end. She lost to Ania Bleszynski from Stanford 6-2, 6-4, 7-6. Torey Pratt also put up a fight before falling to Washington's Jenny Svanfeldt 6-4, 1-6, 6-4.

The singles matches continue and doubles action begins today. The championships conclude Sunday. — Lori Haro

Drake Relays represent track road finale

BY LORI HARO
STATE PRESS

The end is near for the ASU track and field team.

The end of the season, that is, as 13 members of the squad head to Des Moines, Iowa to compete in their last away meet at the Drake Relays Friday and Saturday.

"It is not a scored meet, but it is a meet of a higher caliber," sprinter Joronda White said. "There is a more diverse field since there are more colleges there."

Hosted by Drake University, ASU will join some of the top collegiate programs in the country including Stanford, UTEP, Baylor, Georgia and Iowa State. The meet also features elite athletes. At last year's meet there were 30 Olympians, including 200 and 400-meter gold medalist Michael Johnson. Johnson will again be on hand at this meet to run the 400.

"It's important, it's a big meet so it will be nice to go there," hammer thrower Mika Laiho said.

Laiho will try to defend his hammer throw title.

Head coach Greg Kraft said that he expects all of the athletes to do well, and that they will have many chances to be successful. He is especially adamant about the men and women's medleys.

In the women's medley, White will run the 100, Karen Vigilant and Dawnyell Linder will run the 200 and Priscilla Boldt will finish with the 800. In the men's medley Reggie Charlton will kick it off with the 400, Travis Anderson will run the 800, Matt Repak will run the 1200 and Ari Rodriguez will finish with the 1600.

White was unable to compete at the Long Beach Invitational and Mt. SAC

Relays last weekend due to what was thought to be appendicitis. Her pain was not due to appendicitis and has since subsided. She has been cleared to run for this weekend.

White's goal for this weekend is to run a personal best in the 400. Her personal record for the 400 this season is 54.78 seconds.

"I haven't run in a week so hopefully I'll be able to run a really fast time," White said. "And it's easier to run fast when everyone in the heat is running fast."

Charlton will also run the 400-hurdles and Vigilant will compete in the 200 hurdles. Linder will run the 100 and White will run the 400. Fiona Daly and Erica Larson will compete in the high jump.

The team finishes its season next weekend with the ASU Invitational at Sun Angel Stadium.

ASU inks wrestlers

FROM STAFF REPORTS

The Pac-10 Champion ASU Wrestling team strengthened their roster on Thursday by announcing the signing of two highly regarded prospects.

The Sun Devils inked Gilbert, Ariz. product Jed Jobe and Micah Daggy from Des Moines, Iowa.

Daggy is from the same school as current Sun Devil Steven Blackford.

"Both of these athletes possess the agility and skill level we were looking for at our upper weights," head coach Lee Roy Smith said. "And both are very aggressive in nature on the mat. Daggy is ready physically for Division I competition and we will take the time to develop Jed physically for this coming season."

Daggy is expected to contend for the starter's position at 190-pounds. Last season's 190-pound wrestler, All-American Danny Faqir, was lost to graduation.

Jobe, a heavyweight from Highland High in Gilbert, will contend for the starting position, but may redshirt with last season's starter, Joe Micela, returning for his senior year.
