Regents to consider nighttime law college

BY TARA TEICHGRAEBER
STATE PRESS

In an attempt to meet the needs of law students working full-time, the Arizona Board of Regents and ASU officials will study the idea of establishing another college of law that would offer evening classes only.

State Rep. Laura Knaperek-R. Tempe, asked regents last spring to consider creating an additional law program to serve working professionals who wish to pursue a juris doctorate.

An ABOR committee began studying the idea last month and should have recommendations next spring, said John Platt, student regent.

"(Many people) have families — they've been working for ten years and are not in a position to quit their jobs and just go back to school," said Platt, a second-year law student. "These are people who might make very good attorneys, but there are some practical realities we need to look at."

Preliminary concerns following a meeting Thursday between regents, college deans and Knaperek were whether a student demand exists and potential costs of starting and maintaining a new college, Platt said.

Costs involved would include the need for more faculty and administration, and extending the operating hours of facilities like the law library, computer labs and copy centers.

But cost is not the only concern.

"Our concern is not just the cost, but also space. A lot of classroom space in the College of Law is used at night right now," Platt said.

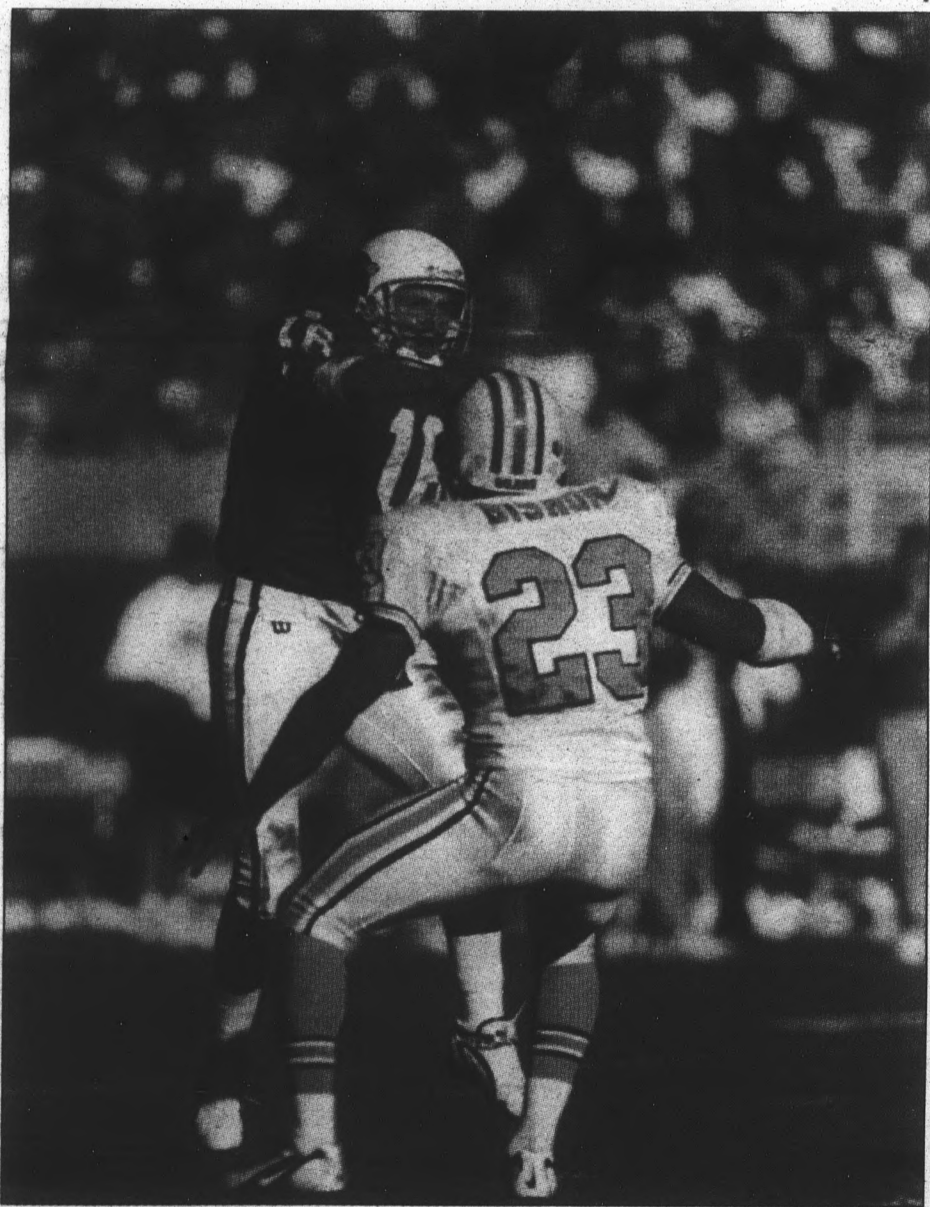

Regents and university officials must also decide how to structure a part-time law curriculum, which currently takes three full-time years to complete.

"Night classes are often a little more relaxed," he said. "They often lack the energy of (day classes). Keeping that same energy will be important," Platt said.

ABOR President Rudy Campbell said he was not immediately supportive of the idea, but would entertain ideas in support and opposition.

"On the surface, I'm not supportive — we don't need any more lawyers. But I will listen to both pros and cons," Campbell said. "We have students at the UofA who can't take classes in the medical school. Do we build them a new Arizona Cardinals quarterback Jake Plummer's first NFL start was plagued by turnovers. He tossed four interceptions and fumbled once as the Cardinals lost 41-14 to Tennessee Sunday at Sun Devil Stadium.

Oilers rattle 'The Snake' in first professional start

BY ED ODEVEN
STATE PRESS

Jake Plummer's brief NFL debut in Philadelphia last week provided glimpses of brilliance and superstar potential.

With that performance came expectations that Plummer would become the savior of the floundering Arizona Cardinals, and would deliver the same results in a full game.

The rookie quarterback's first starting assignment Sunday demonstrated that he is human after all.

Plummer got the starting nod from Arizona head coach Vince Tobin on Tuesday after guiding the Cardinals to a fourth-quarter lead with a late touchdown on a 98-yard drive against the Eagles on Oct. 19.

But he struggled in the stadium where he became a hometown hero.

Plummer completed 21 of 40 passes for 195 yards and two touchdowns, but he tossed four interceptions as the visiting Tennessee Oilers cruised to a 41-14 victory over Arizona at Sun Devil Stadium before 44,030 fans.

The loss dropped the Cardinals' record to 1-7. Tennessee improved to 4-4.

"You gotta make mistakes to get better," admitted Plummer, who led the Sun Devils to an 11-0 regular-season record last season and a 1997 Rose Bowl appearance.

"It's a lot tougher game than the college game," he said. "It's not what I wanted my first one out, but most times out they are not as sweet as you want them to be. I've got to keep getting better."

Tobin said the rocky start shouldn't affect Plummer's drive to improve.

"He didn't play as well as I'm sure he wanted to play," he said. "We would have wanted him to play and the fans wanted him to play. But he's still got something. I think Jake is a competitor. He'll continue to fight. He's been very successful in the past. I expect him to do everything in his power to be successful in the future."

Tennessee Oilers veteran cornerback Darryll Lewis agreed that the road to stardom is often a bumpy one.

"He's a rookie, it's tough in the NFL," Lewis said. "It's just going to be a learning process. The guy is talented. I've had a chance to watch him play college. He's going to be a playmaker, but to come in and say you are going to be a superstar in your first game in the NFL is just tough."

Plummer earned a standing ovation when he entered the game with 10:59 remaining in the first quarter, but there wasn't much more to be excited about as the Cardinals fell behind 20-0 at halftime.

Tennessee defensive end Kenny Holmes said the Oilers game plan was designed to rattle "The Snake."

"We blitzed him and tried to get in his head, with him being a rookie and everything," said Holmes. "We tried to let him make mistakes."

It worked.

The Cardinals' first possession was a quick three-and-out as punter Jeff Feagles was called upon for early duty with a fourth-and-10 at the Arizona 29.

The next two Arizona drives ended in turnovers.

Out of the shotgun on second-and-10 at the Tennessee 36, Plummer tossed his first interception of the game into the hands of

Fund-raiser cash slated to beef up student scholarship awards

BY CHRIS PASSAMANO
STATE PRESS

A main focus of the recently announced Campaign for Leadership is easing the financial burden on students, officials said.

University officials plan to dedicate $45 million of the $75 million devoted to students to endowed scholarships and fellowships.

Currently, ASU distributes financial aid to more than 29,000 students annually, but most of that aid is in loans. Scholarships and fellowships account for only 7 percent of the total disbursement.

"What we are trying to do is establish some new endowments," said Christine Wilkinson, vice president of Student Affairs.

The new campaign will more than triple the University's endowment for scholarships and fellowships from $15 million to over $45 million. This would help to make ASU more competitive with other Pac-10 schools, ASU officials said.

"This campaign will benefit students for years to come," said Judy Knudson, associate vice president of Institutional Advancement. "By endowing scholarships and fellowships, we are insuring that we will have more money for students each year."

When a university endows a scholarship, it takes the money donated for the scholarship and invests it. The money earned by the invested funds is then given out as scholarship money. The principle of the investment is never touched. For example, if the endowment is $1 million, that million dollars will always be there — only the earnings will be used.

"The majority of the $75 million will go to endowments," said Lonnie Ostrom, director of development at the ASU Foundation. "We want to continue and create new endowments so we can strengthen in all areas."

college so they can take classes at night? I just don't think it's necessary."

Professors at ASU's College of Law were unwilling to comment on whether they felt an evening law school was pursuable.

"We're on a dean-appointed committee and can't share our views with the press," said Cathy O'Grady, associate professor. "We're in the middle of studying it."

Platt said that while the option of an evening law program should be available if the demand exists, he is glad it wasn't an option available to him.

"I was one of those people we've talked about — I wanted to go to law school but didn't want to quit my job," Platt said. "I might have been tempted (to attend an evening law program), but I'm glad I didn't. Things like being on the Regents wouldn't have been open to me, nor the Student Bar Association or student government. I would've been too busy (with a career and school). These are things that really enriched my experience. "You get out of an experience what you put into it. This just isn't a 3-year thing," Platt added.

He said if the ABOR committee determines a need, the program likely will be offered.

"The issue is how to best serve current students and those who'd like to be in the program," Platt said. "If there really is an interest, if it's feasible and if the quality can be maintained, we'll do it."

Lewis who sneaked in front of Arizona receiver Rob Moore to make the pick.

Moments later, Plummer was given a chance to redeem himself. On third-and-nine at the Arizona 25, Plummer's off-target pass to Moore went right into the hands of Tennessee's Denard Walker who ran it back 39 yards for the score to give the Oilers a 10-0 lead with 12:49 remaining in the second quarter.

That was one throw Plummer said he would like to take back.

"The one I threw behind Rob (Moore) that went for the touchdown was just a bad read," he said. "I'm going to make bad reads, but hopefully they are not going to result in touchdowns for the other team. That's just part of it."

Adding $30 million to the University's endowments will give ASU the ability to offer more money than ever before to good students.

"Since we can strengthen in more areas, we can continue to attract the best students," Ostrom said. "We can go out and say, 'Here's a truly outstanding student.' We don't want to lose out to UCLA or Arizona or some other university. Now we can offer more."

With $45 million of the $75 million devoted to endowments, there is still another $30 million to use in other areas.

Much of the remaining money will be applied to undergraduate research programs, student internships and service learning programs, officials said.

Additional money is planned to support virtual-learning environments.

Snowbound travelers saved from blizzard

BY MARTHA BELLISLE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

DENVER — Rescuers used helicopters, snowmobiles and military vehicles Sunday to pick up snowbound travelers and residents left without heat by a record blizzard that piled snowdrifts up to 15 feet high.

About eight people were unaccounted for Sunday in southeastern Colorado.

"We're making Herculean efforts to get into some of these areas," said Steve Denney, a regional planner with the Colorado Office of Emergency Management.

At least one death was blamed on the storm. An unattended candle supplying light in a house without power started a fire that killed one woman in Omaha, Neb.; it took firefighters about half an hour to reach the house because of the weather.

The blizzard that blew through the Rockies and onto the Plains on Saturday left as much as 50 inches of snow in the Colorado Rockies, 22 inches in parts of Denver and 35 inches in the city's suburbs.

The storm had moved eastward Sunday and snow fell from eastern Kansas through Missouri and Iowa into Wisconsin and eastern Michigan. Heavy snow had fallen in Utah on Friday and flakes fell as far south as the Texas Panhandle on Saturday.

Thousands of customers were without electricity for light and heat Sunday in Nebraska and Iowa.

Hundreds of miles of highways remained closed Sunday, including one 185-mile stretch of Interstate 80 across eastern Nebraska, and some travelers in Kansas were stymied by 4-foot drifts.

At least 1,000 vehicles abandoned in the snow made it difficult for Colorado crews to plow out a 160-mile stretch of I-25 that was closed from south of Denver to near the New Mexico state line, said Bill Vidal, executive director of the state transportation department.

Ryan Hyde, 11, left, and his sister, Maureen, 9, scoop snow off their parents' car on Sunday in Denver, after a severe winter storm dropped more than 20 inches of snow on the city that stranded motorists and closed the airport.

"The problem is locating the drivers or getting wreckers to move them out of the way," Vidal said after flying over the region by helicopter Sunday with Gov. Roy Romer.

Airlines began restoring flights Sunday out of Denver International Airport, which had been shut down since Saturday, said airport spokesman Chuck Cannon. Hundreds of would-be passengers were stranded at the airport overnight by snow-choked roads.

It was the biggest October snowfall on record for Colorado and one of the state's five worst for any time of year, said forecaster Chad Gimmestad at the National Weather Service. Snow fell at a rate of about an inch an hour Sunday in Omaha, where the 9.5 inches by midday was a record for the date.

Shadow of Tiananmen Square haunts Clinton-Jiang summit

BY TERENCE HUNT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Eight years after the Tiananmen Square massacre chilled relations, the United States and China are on the verge of a historic reconciliation.

To the dismay of critics of the right and the left, the new era begins Wednesday as President Clinton welcomes President Jiang Zemin to the White House with pomp and pageantry that mask the strains of the past.

Jiang, who likes to impress Americans by reciting Lincoln's Gettysburg Address and singing "Yankee Doodle," is the first Chinese leader on a state visit to Washington in 12 years. Born into a family of intellectuals and trained as an electrical engineer, the 71-year-old Jiang was Deng Xiaoping's chosen successor.

"The most fundamental importance of this trip is the symbolism of establishing an amicable relationship between the two countries," said Michael Swaine of the Rand Corp.'s Center for Asia-Pacific Policy in Santa Monica, Calif. "Recent polls have indicated the American public tends to view China as a concern or threat fairly high up on their list, higher than Russia."

Douglas Paal, president of Washington's Asia Pacific Policy Center, said, "Jiang is going to work hard to convey a folksy image. He has asked his advisers to give him softer speeches that have a relaxed style, give him a more human image in the minds of the American people."

He seems eager to make a good impression and solidify his standing as the newly-elected head of the Chinese Communist Party. He tells interviewers that China and the United States share responsibility for world peace and stability and should improve relations.

Clinton once seemed an unlikely champion of closer ties with China. He accused President Bush in the 1992 campaign of coddling China and came to the White House promising he tough on Beijing until it improves its human-rights record. When that didn't work, Clinton made an about-face, the first of his many reversals on China.

Acknowledging that many differences still separate the two nations, Clinton has concluded it is a grave mistake to try to punish or isolate the world's most populous country, whose economy is expected to surpass the United States as the world's largest early next century.

Nationwide municipal elections held under shroud of rebel intimidation

BY FRANK BAJAK
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOGOTA, Colombia — Amid heavy security, Colombians voted for state and local offices Sunday in elections marred by a rebel sabotage campaign that has killed dozens of candidates and scared thousands more into withdrawing.

Obeying leftist guerrilla orders to boycott the ballot and stay off highways, tens of thousands of Colombians in the countryside outside state control were expected to stay away rather than risk rebel retribution.

More than 200,000 police and soldiers guarded voting stations, but rebels seized and burned ballots in several isolated villages, blew up electrical towers and kidnapped 10 election officials in one northern town, authorities said.

Nationwide, police said road traffic was down 80 percent — an indication people were heeding the rebel "armed strike" advertised in leaflets and by word-of-mouth. Some roads were dyna-मित, apparently by rebels.

In their stiffest challenge to the government in more than 30 years of fighting, leftist guerrillas have badly embarrassed President Ernesto Samper's scandal-plagued administration.

More than 100 candidates and elected officials have been murdered this year, most by guerrillas but some by the rebels' paramilitary foes, and more than 2,000 candidates withdrew under death threats, dozens after being kidnapped.

In Cartagena del Chaira, a small river town in the rebel-dominated southern state of Cauqueta, where 9,200 people are registered voters, all businesses were shuttered and the streets were full of soldiers.

"They brought an election official, there are some tables, but nobody went to vote," resident Guillermo Enciso said by telephone. "We're afraid to. The order is not to vote, the order of the guerrillas."

As a soldier stands guard, a woman casts her ballot during state and municipal elections in La Paz, in the northern state of Cesar, Colombia Sunday. Women and men were segregated to be body searched before voting. Cesar is a battleground between leftist rebels and paramilitary soldiers where more than 147 candidates have resigned. In a climate of fear and amid heavy security Colombia held regional elections after a rebel intimidation campaign that forced more than 2,000 candidates to withdraw.

STATE PRESS Editorial

$300 million dreams

In case you were sleeping last week, a gigantic University fund-raising campaign begun in July 1995 was officially unveiled and kicked off, with the goal being to collect a cool $300 million. With $120 million already in the bank, ASU's crack fund-raising team may even pull it off.

If the money is raised in its entirety, officials say the $300 million will be split among three areas — $75 million for "Great Students," $75 million for "Great Teachers" and $150 million for "Great Communities."

Recently, the State Press published a number of articles detailing how the money will be spent. But until it is spent, we assume the options are still open.

With that in mind, we'd like to present ASU with a few more ideas on how to best spend that $300 million:

- With tuition for in-state students running about $1,000 per semester, the $300 million could pay tuition for 50,000 in-state students for three years. No messy scholarship or grant forms to fill out, and no loans to pay back. Unfortunately, the average time for ASU students to complete their education here is five years, so campaign fund-raisers will have to solicit another $200 million to ensure we get a degree.

- ASU could buy the Los Angeles Dodgers. Media baron Rupert Murdoch is currently negotiating a $350 million deal for the team. That's slightly over our budget, but we could toss the spring training facilities out of the deal and just have the Dodgers practice in Packard Stadium.

- We could afford to pay off 12,000 women who accuse our athletes of committing un-gentleman-like acts. That way, no one gets distracted from the most important thing — the game.

- ASU could pay off half of the Arizona university system's debt. We're up over $700 million now, and two-thirds of that debt service is paid by students through their tuition. If the fund-raiser money was applied to that amount, an ASU student might end up paying only 7 percent of their tuition toward the debt instead of 15 percent.

- ASU could buy 25 percent of a stealth bomber. You never know when that might come in handy.

- How about doing some shopping for our "Great Students?" The $300 million could buy each of ASU's 50,000 students 750 used CDs, 150 kegs of cheap beer or 60 Super Nintendos.

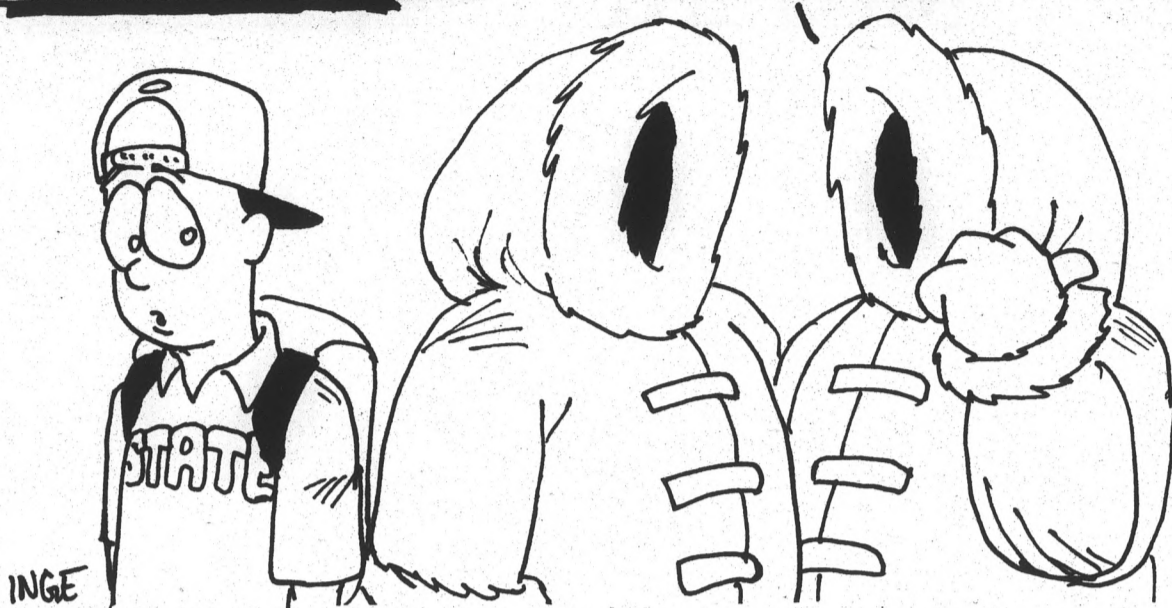

- Instead of giving out scholarships, ASU could buy top-of-the-line, 4-door, 6-passenger turbo diesel Hummers for 3,000 lucky students. Let's face it, the reason most students are working at a degree is so they can someday afford a car like this. Why not cut out that annoying and time-consuming middle step?

- ASU officials could get 1,000 personal visits with President Clinton. With that kind of influence, ASU is sure to be the best-equipped and most prestigious university in the world.

- ASU could pay the yearly salaries of 7,500 more DPS officers. We don't know if the crime rate around here would drop, but folks would sure get out of the Gammage parking lot quickly.

World Series has share of legends

With the end of another baseball World Series, it's good to reflect on the 1932 classic played at Chicago's Wrigley Field — the Chicago Cubs vs. the New York Yankees.

It was the fifth inning of Game 3, and the score was tied at 4. Babe Ruth had already hit one home run. Ruth took a second-called strike from Cubs pitcher Charlie Root, and the Yankees' bench began to cheer and ride the Babe.

Then, the radio announcer said that Ruth looked to the Yankees' bench, mouthed some foul words and then pointed over the pitcher's head to the center-field bleachers. The announcer (clearly a Cubs fan) said something to the effect that Ruth was arrogantly signaling a home run to center field. And then the miracle happened. On the next pitch, the Babe hit a home run into the right-center bleachers. The Yankees were on their way to a four-game sweep.

But the story doesn't end there. A controversy of major proportions erupted after the game — did or did not the Babe call the shot? The radio announcer backtracked on exactly what he had said about the Babe pointing toward the bleachers. He recalled that he had said something about him waving toward the bleachers rather than pointing.

Woody English, the Cubs' team captain, playing third base, swears that Ruth did not call the home run, but simply held up two fingers indicating two strikes.

FRANK
Columnist

Gabby Hartnett, the Cubs' catcher, supported English's version. He stated that the Babe raised two fingers and said, "That's only two strikes."

However, English was miffed by the whole affair. As Ruth rounded the bases, he stopped at third base right next to English, turned toward the Cubs' bench and made an exaggeratedly low bow.

According to the leading sportswriter of the time, Grantland Rice, and the widely-read columnist Westbrook Pegler, who were both there that day, Babe Ruth pointed over the head of the Cubs' pitcher to the center-field bleachers before hitting the next pitch to the exact spot where he had pointed.

Paul Gallico of the New York Daily News saw the game and wrote about Ruth: "He pointed like a duelist to the spot where he expected to send the rapier home." And Joe Williams, of the New York World-Telegram, wrote a story that told it all in the headline: "Ruth calls shot as he puts homer No. 2 in the side pocket."

In published accounts of the game, Ruth was quoted as saying that he called the homer. However, shortly before he died in 1948, Ruth said that he didn't exactly point to one spot, but he sort of waved to the whole outfield.

Now, 65 years later, baseball buffs continue to argue, "Did he or didn't he?" This is the stuff of which legends are made.

Pat Robertson, Christian Coalition threaten individual choice

When I was a kid in school, I was taught that America was a country

STEVE STEIN
Columnist

founded on the principle of the separation of church and state. The Constitution said so — I was told. Religion was not supposed to interfere with government and vice versa.

I was told that the men and women who fought England for this country's emancipation were fighting religious persecution. My teachers taught me it was wrong to persecute someone because their beliefs were different, or even because they chose not to believe in religion at all. I always thought that in this country, it was up to the individual to make those decisions.

But Pat Robertson, head of the Christian Coalition, tells me I am wrong. He tells me that children, no matter what religion they happen to follow — or whether in fact they follow any religion at all — must pray in public schools. You see, Pat and his Coalition want to save this country's children from bad influences — so much he doesn't want to give them a choice in the matter.

He also tells me that women, no matter what their feelings are regarding the intensely personal choice of abortion, must allow the government to make the choice for them. Apparently, Pat and his Coalition care so much for those women that they don't even want to give them permission to decide for themselves and grapple with their own consciences.

Pat also recommends to me that gays, no matter why they became gay, could and should be rehabilitated of their sexual unnaturalness. Evidently, Pat and his Coalition love gays so much that they want to protect them from sinning.

What Pat has been telling me is that he and the rest of the Christian Coalition know what's best for me and everyone else. Isn't it comforting that Pat feels so much caring for all of us that he wants to save us from ourselves?

He has such compassion for kids, as long as they pray. He has such compassion for pregnant women, as long as they don't get abortions. And he has such love for gay people, as long as the closet door is slammed shut and they eventually repent their sins.

And just think — he cares so much about us that he and his Coalition are making a serious attempt to take over the Republican Party. Doesn't that make you feel so safe and secure in the land of the free?

I guess freedom of religion, the right to privacy and the opportunity to come to terms with one's sexuality are just passing phases on our nation's road to theocracy. With Pat and the gang strongly influencing the Republican Party in the near future, we might be looking forward to a nation filled with Pat's brand of Christianity real soon.

Doesn't that just fill you with optimism for our nation's future? No more complicated questions about whether to be a Christian, Jew or Muslim — just accept Pat's version of Christianity and go to church. No more anguish-filled moments where a woman is forced to search her own conscience — the only "choice" is having the baby or going to jail. No more freedom for a person to grapple with his or her own sexuality — just be straight or run to a closet.

So much simpler; so much more black and white; so much less to make conscious decisions about.

And so much scarier for those who dare to think or feel for themselves.

Sorority housing debate not newsworthy

It is one thing for the State Press to knock the Greek system on a sporadic basis, but I am tired of reading slanted articles pointed at specific houses. As a member of the Greek system, I feel these houses have done nothing to warrant the use of their names.

In terms of newsworthiness, last Wednesday's (Oct. 22) front-page article discussing housing in Palo Verde Main did not seem to have any. The article seemed to lack timeliness. This may be an ongoing issue, but the heat of it occurred when school started, and no one but the people involved really even care that it was, and is, still an ongoing issue.

Furthermore, the use of the names of real fraternities and sororities in fictitious opinion articles is unnecessary. (Neither) I, nor any other member of a Greek organization, appreciate having the name of our house dragged through the mud for no apparent reason. Gossip and rumors do not need to be incorporated into opinion articles.

Check the facts! Perhaps if you had, you would know that we also lost dorm rooms on our floors only two weeks prior to moving in. The freshmen were not the only ones affected. We were never notified by Residential Life, nor were any provisions or sympathy made for us.

We may whine, but we did not request a front-page article to express our dissatisfaction — you took the liberty of doing that for us. This not only upsets one house, but the entire Greek system.

Perhaps next time the State Press decides to print an article that drags the name of the Greek system — or certain organizations within it — through the mud, they will think twice. We do not appreciate it.

Online readers left out of cartoon-debate loop

I am an alumnus of ASU, Class of '91. I enjoy reading the Press during my lunch. However, in reading the Opinion/Editorial section, I have read letters that reference cartoons or other artwork that I am not able to view.

Why is it that this online version does not publish the cartoons or artwork?

Cartoon contradictory, stereotypes Greek system

I am writing in response to that ridiculous comic in the Oct. 23 edition. I am astonished that you would have the audacity to print it. Your contradiction is also appalling, considering you have published several articles recently condemning college students because their only source of recreation is to slam as much beer as they can and perform their best imitation of John Belushi in Animal House.

I realize that when people do something different they become the object of ridicule, but why do you choose to cut down one of the only fraternities with the courage to stand up for what they feel is right? In a time of such conformity, would it hurt your pride that much to acknowledge people doing something positive? As editor, you are supposed to be in a position of leadership, but belittling those with the strength to take leadership roles questions your qualifications as a leader.

As far as intelligence goes, one of the best judgments is by actions; with your contradictions, submission to stereotypes and generalizations that all fraternity members are dumb and the several racial slurs this year, you have obviously showed yours.

To the artist, you must feel strong by cowardly imposing your opinions on society behind a cartoon.

Proposal to end late-term abortions deprives women of their rights

The comparison of the sometimes medically necessary late-term abortion to the killing of Jews during the Holocaust is absolutely insulting, infuriating and demeaning ("Clinton's veto kills unborn's rights, Congress' will," Oct. 21). Mainly, (because) the Jews had families, homes, love, children, feelings and relationships. A fetus that is incompatible with life outside the womb has none of those things.

I personally know a woman who has had a late-term abortion (in her seventh month). This was not a decision she took lightly or made randomly because she couldn't fit into her cocktail gown. This is a married woman who desperately wanted a baby — a planned pregnancy.

All seemed to be going well except the heart rate was a little slow. During the seventh month, a routine ultrasound was performed when it was discovered the baby had trisomy-13, a series of rare birth defects. The baby had no eyes, enlarged organs which were growing on the outside of her body, six fingers on each hand, six toes on each foot and an extremely enlarged brain. The heartbeat had slowed to four beats per minute.

The doctors informed her that if the baby died in utero, the baby's body would begin to deteriorate, causing the mother's blood to become septic. This would cause an emergency situation that could threaten not only her reproductive organs but her life.

She was informed of a doctor in California who could perform a procedure called an Intact D&E (dilation and extraction). This involved using a needle, about the size of those used for drawing blood, to remove some of the cerebral fluid from the baby's head so it could safely pass through the cervix and be delivered intact.

Because a late-term abortion was performed, the woman and her family were able to wrap the baby in a blanket and spend two hours with her. Her hand- and footprints were inked onto a canvas where it hangs in their household to this day. Had she not had access to this procedure, there is no telling whether she would have the beautiful, healthy daughter she has today. Who knows if her reproductive organs could have been saved?

This is just one example of the hundreds of women who seek this procedure each year because either their life is in danger or the baby will not survive outside the womb. There are only three known surgeons in the entire country who can perform this procedure. This is the safest procedure for women. All the uneducated, religious political extremists want to take that option away.

George Rose Sr. may not like the word "pro-choice." Well, how about "a woman's ability to make medical decisions without government interference?"

And I'd like to know if Mr. Rose Sr. believes in the notion of contraception? What about poor married women who cannot afford birth control pills or condoms? Should they really bring another unwanted child into the world?

It takes an incredibly mature, selfless human being to give up their own flesh and blood for adoption. Besides, just look into the adoption agency called Aid for the Adoption of Special Kids. There are plenty of unwanted children available for adoption that have special needs or are a little bit older.

Mr. Rose Sr. and his anti-choice, anti-woman views should stay in his own anti-rights world. Stop trying to impose your beliefs on everyone else. Or, how about inviting all of us into the next consultation he has with his doctor, for whatever reason. Let us help him decide upon his medical treatment.

In closing, I respect Mr. Rose's right to free speech and to his opinion, but to imply that women should be denied access to safe medical care when absolutely necessary is beyond the scope of his freedoms.

Pat Robertson, Christian Coalition threaten individual choice

When I was a kid in school, I was taught that America was a country

founded on the principle of the separation of church and state. The Constitution said so — I was told. Religion was not supposed to interfere with government and vice versa.

I was told that the men and women who fought England for this country's emancipation were fighting religious persecution. My teachers taught me it was wrong to persecute someone because their beliefs were different, or even because they chose not to believe in religion at all. I always thought that in this country, it was up to the individual to make those decisions.

But Pat Robertson, head of the Christian Coalition, tells me I am wrong. He tells me that children, no matter what religion they happen to follow — or whether in fact they follow any religion at all — must pray in public schools. You see, Pat and his Coalition want to save this country's children from bad influences — so much he doesn't want to give them a choice in the matter.

Charles Barkley arrested for bar scuffle

By Mike Schneider
Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla. — Charles Barkley was arrested early Sunday for throwing a bar patron through a plate-glass window after the man tossed a glass of ice at him.

Police said Barkley, a forward for the Houston Rockets and an 11-time NBA All-Star, told the victim as he lay bleeding on the ground: "You got what you deserve. You don't respect me. I hope you're hurt."

Jorge Lugo, 20, was treated at a hospital for a minor cut to his upper right arm.

Barkley was charged with aggravated battery and resisting arrest without violence, police said. He was jailed for five hours before being released on $6,000 bond.

The fight at Phineas Phogg's bar at Church Street Station, a popular entertainment district in downtown Orlando, began as the bar was clearing out.

Barkley told police that Lugo threw a glass of ice at him and three women who were sitting at his table. Barkley chased Lugo to the front of the bar, where an off-duty officer tried to intervene.

Barkley then picked up Lugo and threw him through the window.

"He lifted that kid up and flung him like he was a toy and threw him into the window," witness Jerry Colon said.

Barkley left the scene but was stopped and arrested a half-block away.

Barkley, who was in town for an exhibition game Sunday against the Orlando Magic, was not at practice Sunday morning but was expected to play in the game. Rockets spokesman Tim Frank said the team had not decided whether to take action against Barkley.

The NBA star has been at the center of similar incidents in the past.

In August, a jury rejected a $550,000 lawsuit from a man who claimed Barkley beat him up at a Cleveland nightclub. He was accused of being in a bar fight in Chicago in 1992, though charges were dropped. Barkley was acquitted later that year on misdemeanor battery charges brought by a man who said Barkley broke his nose outside a Milwaukee bar.

You'll never know unless you read your HOROSCOPE.

Programs match ASU mentors with junior-high students

By GINGER SCOTT
STATE PRESS

About 30 young African-American students at ASU are volunteering to help guide a group of Tempe junior high school students through their adolescent years.

Sisterhood and its male counterpart Brotherhood are mentor programs for young African-American boys and girls.

"We try to take them to activities that will enhance who they are and make them more culturally aware," said Jeanine Bashir, a senior majoring in justice studies.

She said she envisioned the Sisterhood program in the summer of 1995 after the death of an 11-year-old African-American boy, Robert "Yummy" Sandifur. She said she was upset by the violence and negative behavior that was creeping up on the youth and decided to do something about it.

Bashir, with the guidance of her own mentor Carla Debow, organized and planned the Sisterhood program and then proposed it to the Tempe Elementary School District. On her own, she recruited mentors from Students Taking Action to Reach Success, an ASU organization, and in 1996, the Sisterhood program went into action. This fall was the first year for the male version — Brotherhood.

One of the programs' main objectives is to work with the young students on setting goals for themselves.

"We try to encourage young African-American males (in the Brotherhood program) to achieve whatever goals they have in life," said Carlin Skinner, coordinator of the Brotherhood program. "We try to help improve their self-esteem and expose them to college life. College is not for everyone, but everyone needs a plan."

The program currently works with approximately 35 students from Gilliland Junior High School, located at 1025 S. Beck Ave.

"These are kids that benefit by forming a relationship with someone who is stable and knows how to set goals," said Jeanne Young, a counselor at the school. "It gives them an opportunity to form a relationship with an adult that is not a parent or a teacher."

The students meet with their mentors at least once a month and have phone conversations at least twice a month. The mentors work with the students on topics such as self image, goal setting and African-American history, and participate in activities, such as poster-making, that coincide with the topics.

The mentors meet with Bashir monthly to discuss the topic of each month.

"At the end of the year, we have a big open house to show all of the things they have done," she said.

The Sisterhood and Brotherhood mentors donate their time on a volunteer basis. Bashir said she hopes to apply for grants to fund next year's programs.

"I would like for this program to grow," she said. "This really comes from the heart, and there is really a need there."

TUCSON (AP) — After decades of silence, singer Linda Ronstadt revealed more about the domestic violence that once touched her life.

Ronstadt, one of several speakers at a forum held Friday night in connection with Domestic Violence Awareness Month, said the husband of a family member was abusive to his wife and her three children.

The man also slapped a teen-age Ronstadt during a disagreement, but she never told — something she regrets, she said.

Later, when it became evident that the man was beating the children, no one ever confronted him, Ronstadt said.

"This particular issue I have a lot of anger about, and it's important to me," she said. "(Now) I'm tattling."

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — John Updike says his new novel about a post-apocalyptic America was influenced by the real-life collapse of the communist bloc.

"That something as apparently formidable and unified as the Soviet Union could splinter like that showed it could even happen to the United States," he said in a recent interview. "I think we take the United States of America for granted as a perennial entity."

In Toward the End of Time, Updike imagines the country in 2020, devastated by a nuclear war with China. Government has collapsed and the Midwest is a radioactive wasteland.

When the two-time Pulitzer Prize winner began the book in November 1995, the buzz was all about anti-government militia groups.

"Here I thought I'd give them a world in which the federal government has been blasted away," he said. "You can't reach the police. You don't pay taxes, true, but you don't get any protection from hoodlums, either."

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — A redwood tree was planted at City Hall in memory of longtime resident and actor Burgess Meredith.

Meredith, known for his roles as The Penguin in TV's campy Batman series and the crusty boxing manager in the Rocky movies, died last month at his Malibu home. He was 89.

Meredith's wife, Kaja, daughter Tala and son Jonathan were among the 50 people who watched as the 3-foot-tall seedling was planted Saturday.

"We felt that Burgess was strong and stood tall in the community and was a beautiful personality. And this tree is a coastal redwood and will live 2,000 years and grow to its height in that time," said Mary Frampton, executive director of Save Our Coast, a local organization.

A plaque will be placed by the tree stating: "Dedicated to Burgess Meredith 1907-1997. As this tree stands tall above others, enduring, beauty giving, rooted in the Earth, so stood Burgess Meredith. Oct. 25, 1997."

ARCHER DANIELS MIDLAND CO.

WILL BE ON CAMPUS RECRUITING FOR:
PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS
MAJOR: CHEMICAL ENGINEERING
WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1997

This position entails on-the-job training in the area of soybean crushing or corn wet milling, so there's no question it can be a hot, dirty job. It's similar to the position of a foreman or front line supervisor, and it generally leads to a career in plant management.

Training lasts 8-9 months, and in that time, you will schedule work for employees, set production schedules, develop cost-saving measures, and much more. You'll frequently be called on to use your technical background to solve problems. This position is a good blend of supervision, management, and engineering.

Red Scare-era filmmakers venerated

By JOHN HORN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Fifty years after the blacklist, Hollywood is honoring the living screenwriters caught up in the Red Scare-era witch hunts. Still, the decades have not healed all wounds, and the two surviving members of the Hollywood Ten remain angry over their very different roles in naming names to congressional investigators.

A commemorative event on Monday comes on the golden anniversary of the hearings of the House Un-American Activities Committee, during which Hollywood filmmakers were questioned about — and persecuted for — their politics.

The Hollywood Ten, a group of distinguished writers and directors, were cited for contempt of Congress and jailed for failing to cooperate with the committee.

Blacklisting of Hollywood writers suspected of communist leanings or affiliations began with the committee's hearings in October 1947. Hollywood blacklisting flourished into the 1950s.

Only one of the living members of the 10 — Ring Lardner Jr. — will attend Monday's event. Lardner, the co-screenwriter of Laura and Woman of the Year, will read a statement the committee refused to let him deliver after he declined to testify.

"I think it's appropriate for the occasion. They escorted me out of the hearings, and I never could read it," Lardner said, adding that he had lost the text but archivists found it.

The other living member, writer-director Edward Dmytryk, was invited but declined to attend. He served six months in jail, but upon his release he testified as a friendly witness, was removed from the blacklist and returned to work, making The Sniper and The Caine Mutiny.

"I understand the amount of pressure he was under," Lardner, 82, said of Dmytryk. "I still think it was wrong."

Dmytryk said he didn't want to sacrifice himself for a cause and tactics he didn't believe in. By refusing to speak candidly about the Communist Party, filmmakers demonized it and sealed their fate, he said.

"I think it's silly — Hollywood apologizing to itself," the 89-year-old Dmytryk said. "These people are still being asked to be recognized as martyrs. Having been one of them, I can tell you, we're not martyrs."

Monday's event will include film clips, commentary and re-enactments of committee hearings. Several actors, including Kathy Baker, Kevin Spacey, David Hyde Pierce and Alfre Woodard, will participate.

It's being organized by Hollywood's four leading talent guilds, some of which were hardly courageous in supporting their members during the investigations.

Only on Friday did the Directors Guild of America restore membership to blacklisted director Herbert Biberman (Salt of the Earth). Biberman, who died in 1971, was expelled from the guild following his Hollywood Ten conviction.

"I think people will feel good, some effort has been made to correct the record," said blacklisted writer Paul Jarrico (Tom, Dick and Harry), noting that the Writers Guild of America has been restoring dozens of credits to movies written by screenwriters who wrote under different names while blacklisted.

Women's soccer team records 2 Pac-10 shutout wins

By RANDY JONES
STATE PRESS

Right after its 2-0 victory over Oregon Sunday, ASU soccer coach Terri Patraw told her team that what type of mark this team leaves will be decided very soon.

"We've beaten the teams we should have, now we're going to beat teams we are capable of," she said as the team huddled around her after the game.

ASU (10-5, 4-1 Pac-10) has defeated UofA, Washington State, Oregon State and the Ducks in conference this year. Next weekend it will travel to face the top two teams in the Pac, USC and UCLA.

Currently USC is 13-2-1, 4-1 Pac-10, while UCLA leads the Pac-10 at 13-2, 5-0.

"I think they will be a great test and will let us know who we are," Patraw said. "I think we are capable of beating them both, we played USC to two goals last year. And we are a much different team this year. We have had much more drastic changes to our programs than their's. We'll see. Anything can happen."

The Sun Devils looked more veteran than their one-plus years of existence would suggest in their two victories at the Sun Devil Soccer Field over the weekend.

From start to finish ASU dominated against the Ducks (4-12-1, 1-5), however, many a shot didn't find the net, and it seemed the Sun Devils were headed for a scoreless tie in regulation.

Time and time again the Sun Devils' attacks resulted in nothing but frustration. Not until freshman Jessica Bohl finally tickled the net with her 16-yard blast by Ducks' keeper Amanda Fox in the game's 71st minute was the game in hand.

"(The goal) was a relief," the midfielder said of the score. "We were dominating the whole game and just couldn't seem to get one in. I think finally when we got our first one in, it got our confidence up and we just kept pushing."

Sophomore forward Kerri Kulak, who missed three straight goal-scoring opportunities in the first 10 minutes of the second half, agreed with Bohl.

"It was a little (frustrating)," she said. "But I thought if we tried a little harder one of them would eventually go in ... I think every time we play once we get that one goal it just starts us off."

After the tally, the Sun Devils went on a shooting spree. Eventually ASU outshot the Ducks 15 to 3 in the second half.

ASU's second goal was a beautiful one. It started with a 40-yard pass from defender Marianne Simmons to forward Karine Inoue. Inoue penetrated the Ducks' penalty box before feeding forward Aisha Thomas, who buried the ball in the back of the net.

Instead of new leaf, Cardinals turnover game in latest defeat

By JOSH DEFAMIO
STATE PRESS

It was supposed to be the day the Arizona Cardinals turned over their future to a young quarterback.

Instead, they turned over the ball. And turned over the ball. And turned over the ball.

Seven Cardinal turnovers led to five touchdowns by the visiting Tennessee Oilers. Those 35 points helped the Oilers (4-4) paste the Cardinals (1-7), 41-14.

"This game showed how important turnovers are, as far as winning is concerned," Oilers head coach Jeff Fisher said. "If you look at what we did, we didn't play too particularly well on offense. The reason we were able to do what we did was because we got turnovers."

Ironically, the statistics favored the Cardinals, who lost their sixth straight game. The Oilers netted only 20 more yards of total offense, totaled only 15 first downs to the Cardinals' 22, and averaged 4.2 yards per carry. The Cardinals totaled 4.4 yards every time they ran the ball.

But the Oilers spent most of the day facing a short field. They made the score 10-0 when Denard Walker picked off an errant pass from rookie quarterback Jake Plummer and scooted 39 yards for a touchdown.

"The one that I threw behind (wide receiver) Rob (Moore) was just a bad read," Plummer said. "I'm going to make bad reads, and hopefully they're not going to result in touchdowns for other teams."

The other four gave the Oilers an average field position at the Cardinals 31-yard line.

"We have to, as a team, be more focused," wide receiver Frank Sanders said when asked about the number of turnovers. "The players who get the ball in their hands have to be more focused. If it comes down to the cornerback, he has to be more focused."

It was Sanders who committed perhaps the game's most crucial turnover. With the Cardinals trailing 13-0 late in the second quarter, Sanders attempted to pitch a completed pass to fullback Larry Centers. The ball bounced off of Centers, and was recovered by Blaine Bishop at the 38-yard line.

Four plays later, quarterback Steve McNair scrambled 35-yards for a touchdown with only nine seconds left on the clock.

"We were behind 13-0, and we were moving a little bit," head coach Vince Tobin said. "Whether we got anything out of it or not was irrelevant. We turned it over on a play that really shouldn't have happened. So they go up 20-0 at halftime."

Sanders admitted that he tried to improvise on the play and it backfired on him.

"It was just something I was trying to make happen," Sanders said. "And it ended up not working out."

The second half didn't get any better for the Cardinals. On the first play from scrimmage, rookie quarterback Jake Plummer's pass went through the hands of tight end Chris Gedney, and was picked off by Marcus Robertson. Robertson returned the ball 39 yards to the 3-yard line, before he was finally taken down by Plummer.

Two plays later, McNair punched it in for his second touchdown to make the tally, 27-0.

"That was tough," Plummer said. "It was tough to go out and have the pass tipped up and get intercepted. It's not what you want to do coming out."

Tobin was not so quick to chalk that play up as a tough break.

"Whether (Plummer) threw the ball too hard or not, I don't know," Tobin said. "It used to be if it hits you in the hand, you're supposed to catch it. Not knock it up to

Women's volleyball team falls to Wildcats in 4 sets

BY LORI HARO
STATE PRESS

It was not a heart-breaker, but the ASU's women's volleyball team's game against UofA proved to be a tough one as the Sun Devils fell once again to its rival Friday night at the University Activity Center.

Unlike the first time when these teams battled out a five-game match in Tucson, the Wildcats defeated the Sun Devils in four games winning the match 15-7, 6-15, 17-15, 15-5.

ASU falls to 12-9 overall, 3-7 Pac-10. No. 15 UofA is 15-3, 7-3.

ASU led the third game 14-11, but after a tedious time of sideout after sideout, the Wildcats were able to come back, finishing the game at 17-15.

"I guess it's not our year this year against the UofA," ASU head coach Patti Snyder-Park said. "They're mentally tougher than we are, if you've got 14 (points), you finish a game off. They're definitely mentally tougher."

UofA did not just dominate mentally on the court, but physically as well. Its power came in the form of senior outside hitter Carolyn Penfield.

"She's a momentum player for them big time," ASU senior middle blocker Kirstin Mattson said. "If she doesn't play well, they don't play well. If you take her out of the game, they're all out of the game."

However, ASU was not able to take her out of the game, as she had a match-high 33 kills. Penfield also contributed 13 digs, three block solos and three block assists.

Other contributors to the Wildcats' win were sophomore middle blocker Erin Aldrich who added 11 blocks and sophomore outside hitter Raylene Morton who had 12 digs.

Senior outside hitter Terri Cox led the Sun Devils with 20 kills and 15 digs. Mattson had 15 kills, seven digs, one block solo and four block assists. Freshmen outside hitter Amanda Burbridge and setter Carmen Fusco added 11 kills and nine digs, respectively. Sophomore middle blocker

MATTSON

Laura Hibsman was on top of her blocking game with three block solos and three block assists.

"I think we didn't play to our expectations," Mattson said. "It was mental, but we didn't take advantage of the situation. When it counted they played better."

Cox and Snyder-Park also believe that the loss was due to the team's defeat of themselves.

"It's getting so old, it's on our side every time," Cox said. "I don't even know what to say anymore."

"We've already had to address that when you lose a game 16-14 or 17-15, that should make you so bloody mad that you go out there and fight even harder," Snyder-Park said. "We've experienced enough games where we've lost 16-14, 17-15 and we've faded, it's just a deflation of our spirit."

Women's tennis squad completes grueling tournament in L. A.

BY LORI HARO
STATE PRESS

The ASU women's tennis team finished 14-10 overall, with the doubles team of senior Stephanie Lansdorp and junior Katy Propstra reaching the semifinals, at the ITA All-American Tennis Championships played at the Riviera Country Club in Los Angeles.

"It went well," head coach Sheila McInerney said. "It was long, but it was good that everybody got to play in so many matches."

In Saturday's main draw action ASU's top-player Reka Cseresnyes beat Cal's Amy Jensen in the first round 7-6, 6-1, but fell to Mirela Vladulescu of the University of Alabama-Birmingham in the second round 7-5, 6-1.

Cseresnyes felt she was sharper in the first match.

"In singles I played well in my first match, there were a lot of exciting points," she said. "In my second match it was kind of weird. I was leading in the first set and then I just kind of lost control of the match (she) went on to play well and I couldn't fight back."

Vladulescu won the tournament by beating Marissa Catlin of Georgia 6-1, 6-1.

The No. 6 doubles team of Lansdorp and Propstra defeated Buskens and McManus from Boise State 6-4, 2-6, 6-3 in the second round. In the third round they beat Tennessee's Lepsi and Malhotra 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, allowing them to compete against Pepperdine's No. 14 doubles team of Angela Lawrence and Zsofia Csapo in the semifinals where they lost a three setter 6-2, 5-7, 6-2.

Lawrence and Csapo won the doubles final by an illness default against Georgia's Catlin and Vanessa Castellano.

McInerney was especially pleased at Lansdorp and Propstra's performance. This tournament marked the first time the duo had competed since the NCAA's this summer because Propstra underwent elbow surgery in June.

"They played really well, with Katy coming off her elbow surgery, I didn't know how they were going to play," McInerney said. "I was pleasantly surprised."

Propstra felt OK in her first tourney since summertime.

"It went really well," she said. The elbow's "a little sore just because it was the first tournament."

Propstra also said that Lansdorp and her didn't have any goals heading into the tourney.

"We really didn't have any expectations before the tourney. Just because we hadn't played much before. But we played well."

Fall tennis continues in November when the Sun Devils will compete in the ITA Rolex Regional Nov. 12-16 in Irvine, Calif.

somebody else."

Plummer, who finished his first career start 21 of 40 passing for 195 yards, connected twice for touchdown passes with wide receiver Rob Moore in the second half. However, both touchdown passes were countered by scoring passes from McNair to wide receiver Chris Sanders.

The 1-7 record marks the Cardinals worst start at the midway point since 1986, when they still played in St. Louis. At that record, the playoffs are a faint, faint hope, and the team may have to start thinking about next season.

Shutout

Patraw said she was a scared with her teams' inability to finish.

"I was nervous with 20 minutes left," she said. "Because it just takes one toe-poke the other way and you're done. Fortunately we got it solved."

On Friday, ASU ripped the Oregon State Beavers, 4-0. It was the 10th time OSU has been shutout this season.

With the wind howling, keeping the game more of a possession-type and not a bang-and-run game, the Sun Devils exploited the Beavers' defense often.

In the game's 14th minute, Inoue took a feed from Antoinette Marjanovic, beating the keeper for her eighth goal on the year, to give ASU a 1-0 lead.

Defender Kim Wagner, on a corner kick, placed a perfect ball in the middle with 13 minutes remaining in the first half, and forward Jaclyn Clark buried it in the net to put the Sun Devils up 2-0.

Wagner provided the assist on ASU's third goal just 1:26 into the second half.

The sophomore switched fields with a lob over the OSU defense, where Marjanovic scored her eighth goal of the season. Cornerback Aeneas Williams points to the fourth quarter, when the team continued battling, even though the outcome had already been decided, as an indication that his team is not ready to quit.

"Even going out there late in the fourth quarter, when the game was pretty much out of reach," Williams said. "The mindset, I think had to be that the score was 0-0. And I think as professionals, that we have to do that."

"I'm still going to try to win every game that we play, and I'm a long ways from looking ahead to next year," Tobin said.

scored her eighth goal of the season.

Patraw said Wagner's play was exemplary. "Kim played great," she said. "She was a serving machine today. Her corners were so nice, we should have had four goals on them in the first half alone. Kimmy played really good. Not just those set pieces, but also in the field of play."

ASU finished off the scoring less than a minute later when Kulak scored on an open goal after freshman Erin McGinnis' shot was deflected off a defender.

Inoue said the team wanted to put the Beavers away early in the second, not allowing any type of comeback.

"We made sure we came out strong," she said. "We didn't want to let them get back in it at all. We were trying to end that."

Of those all important games against the Southern California terrible-two some?

"I think our chances are pretty good actually," Bohl said after the win on Sunday. "We are confident. I think 4-1 in the Pac-10 and we have a good chance of going to the tournament this year. (However,) those are tough teams."

D.C. United, Marlins champions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once again, D.C. United reigned in the rain.

In a steady, day-long shower reminiscent of last year's inaugural Major League Soccer title game, United repeated as champions Sunday with a 2-1 victory over the Colorado Rapids in MLS Cup '97.

Before a noisy crowd of 57,431 at RFK Stadium, Jaime Moreno scored in the 37th minute and Tony Sanneh in the 68th as United (26-11), clearly the best team in the league all season, dominated the Rapids (18-19), who had the worst record of any playoff team and reached the MLS Cup by pulling off four straight upsets.

At times, United, with eight national team players on its roster, seemed almost spoiled for scoring chances. United had seven corner kicks and at least six quality scoring opportunities inside the box in the first half alone.

MARLINS WIN SERIES

MIAMI (AP) — Edgar Renteria ended one of the most thrilling Game 7s ever, singling home the winning run with two outs in the bottom of the 11th inning to give the Florida Marlins their first World Series championship with a 3-2 win over the Cleveland Indians on Sunday night.

The 5-year-old Marlins became the youngest expansion team to win a championship, while adding more heartbreak to the nearly half-century of disappointment for the Indians.

The Marlins won the series four games to three.

Golfers take 2nd at Stanford Intercollegiate

BY MATT PAULSON
STATE PRESS

The ASU women's golf team shot a one-under-par 291 in Sunday's final round of the 34th Annual Stanford Women's Intercollegiate Golf Tournament and finished its three-day trip to northern California in second place.

Stanford won the competition with rounds of 296, 282 and 287 for an 11-under-par 865. The Sun Devils (300-287-291—878) ended 13 strokes behind the Cardinal.

Freshman sensation Grace Park captured third place to pace ASU. Her scores improved by one stroke each day for a three-under-par score of 216 (73-72-71). Stanford's Hilary Homeyer (73-67-71—211) and New Mexico State's A.J. Eathorne (74-69-71—214) were first and second, respectively.

ASU's Tui Selvaratnam, competing as an individual, tied for ninth (75-72-73—220).

Park said she was optimistic about ASU's play. "Team-wise, I think we played really well," she said. "Stanford obviously won, but we did well the last two days."

After the first day of competition, ASU's chance of winning the tournament appeared to be dismal. Their score of 300 placed the Sun Devils seventh out of the 17 teams.

Saturday's score of 287, however, was the second lowest of the day and catapulted the Sun Devils into second. Led by Jody Niemann and Jeanne-Marie Busuttill, who each shot 71, all of the Sun Devil golfers were under par.

Senior Kellee Booth said she was impressed with her team's performance on Saturday but in awe of Stanford's.

"We would have liked to win but it was difficult to compete with Stanford after they played as well as they did in the second round," the senior said. "Shooting a 10-under-par was unbelievable. We did play well, just not well enough."

Rounding out ASU's lineup, Keri Cornelius (73-72-76—221) was 11th, Booth (80-72-71—223) tied for 18th and Niemann (75-77-73—225) and Busuttill (79-71-76—226) each duplicated the final score of four others for 28th and 33rd place finishes.

The Sun Devils will next compete on Nov. 14-16 in Hilton Head, S.C. at the Golf World-Palmetto Dunes Collegiate.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST by Frances Drake Monday, October 27, 1997

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You have the support of a partner and there's no pressing need to convert others to your way of thinking at present. Enjoy travel and leisure interests. TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This is a wonderful day for career interests. Savor your successes and don't let this day be spoiled by an argument with a family member. Keep peace if possible. GEMINI (May 21 to June-20) A child could be acting up, but otherwise, it's a time when you'll have happy moments in the company of your friends. Be sure to accept invitations that come your way. CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Private talks are best in business. Someone you deal with will stir up a hornet's nest if given the chance. Evening hours bring beneficial financial developments. LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) Although you see eye to eye with a friend, it could be more difficult to get along with a partner at present. Good news arises concerning a travel, educational or publishing concern. VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) You'll be dealing with someone who is inclined to quarrel when money is the topic of conversation. Career strivings meet with success. Be closemouthed about your plans. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You're creative, articulate and on the ball. Make those important phone calls. Stay clear of an argument about an ideological concern during evening hours. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Judgment is good about shopping and family concerns. Impatience, though, could mar your way in business. Home life equals serenity after dark. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The day should bring you success with a creative project. Don't let a temperamental friend draw you into an argument. The evening favors festivities. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) You're glib and articulate. Both work and family interests are highlighted as a result. However, getting along with a co-worker could try your patience. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Things will go very well with a close tie, provided you're willing to listen to another opinion. It's likely you could find a new way of doing things on the job. An evening spat dampens your mood. PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20) Judgment is good about business interests, but you could meet up with an argumentative type. The evening's good news brings happiness to the family. YOU BORN TODAY are flexible and able to adapt to different situations. People look to you naturally for your leadership abilities. Calm and assuring on the outside, most wouldn't guess at the insecurities you harbor. Nevertheless, you are effective and dynamic. A career in finance or the corporate world appeals.

It never sleeps. Twenty-four hours, seven days a week, it's wide awake.

It knows all about your account. It knows when your checks have cleared, when your deposits and loan payments were made, and when you need to make your next rent payment. It even knows your history.

It could be in your room. It could be in your room, on your computer. It could save you time, give you peace of mind, and give you control of your Desert Schools' accounts.

It is Desert Schools' Personal Branch. Using your home computer, you can access your Desert Schools' accounts at anytime, from anywhere. All for only $1 a month. All ASU students and faculty are eligible to join!
