ASU students, faculty clean up in Guadalupe

BY CARRIE SEVERSON
STATE PRESS

Jonelle Merrill took her paintbrush dipped in light pink paint and gave a beaten-down house a bright new look.

The broadcasting junior was one of about 600 ASU students and staff who met in front of Guadalupe Town Hall Saturday morning to help in the Christmas in April project.

Christmas in April is a nationwide program that renovates the houses of low-income homeowners, particularly the elderly and disabled. The program, which began 11 years ago, rehabilitated more than 4,500 homes in 1997 with the help of 145,000 volunteers.

"I think it's a great opportunity to serve others," Merrill said. "I feel I never get to join in on any community service."

The first event of the day was the painting project that 60 students from different organizations participated in.

The students were assigned to four houses in town. Some re-painted while others picked up trash.

Val Peterson, a University representative for the community project, said the project's board of directors received a list of houses that needed the most help.

"The houses are owned by elderly people and we picked from the list what we thought we could do," he said.

"This is one of the most fulfilling things I can think of to do," said Michelle Ferrana, a history junior. "You can look back and actually see what changes you have made."

Sheriff Michael Dezeew of Guadalupe, who volunteered his time to supervise the project, said he was impressed with the amount of generosity ASU showed.

"I think what these kids are doing is great," he said. "Taking their Saturday to come down here to pick up trash and paint these houses is very kind."

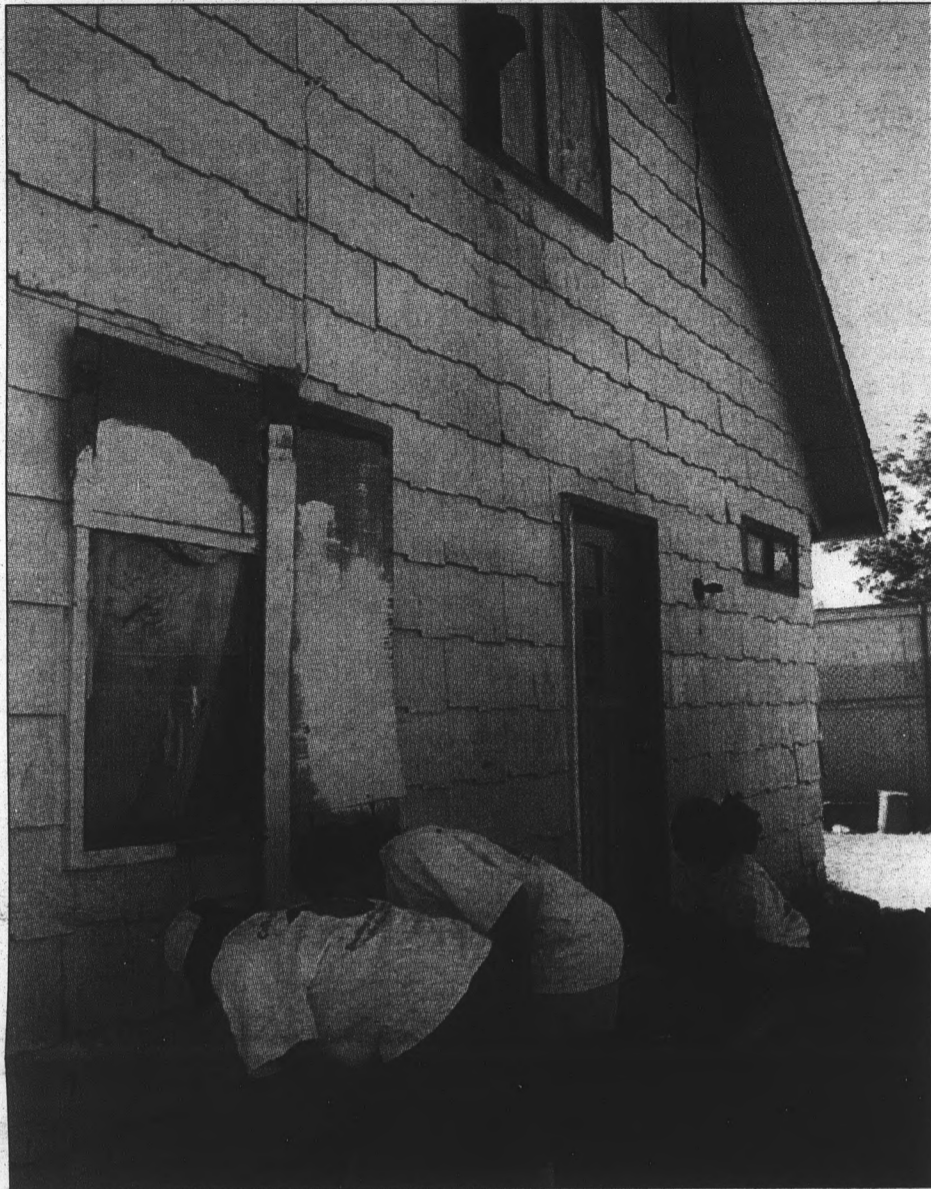

Students and staff not painting took care of the second part of the clean-up effort. They walked through the town picking up debris and removing trash.

"This is a community where a large group of volunteers can make a difference," Peterson said. He said he hoped by the end of the day people would be able to notice the effort ASU made in the town.

"It's a lot of fun because ASU students get to do this together," Merrill said.

ABOR backs bill banning Social Security identification

BY KIM PRENDERGAST
STATE PRESS

The Arizona Board of Regents is lending its support to a bill making its way through the state Legislature that bans the use of students' Social Security numbers as ID's at Arizona universities.

The Senate bill passed out of the House with one amendment, which means it floats back to the Senate. If they confer with the change, it goes on to Gov. Jane Hull's office where she can sign the bill into reality or veto it.

If passed, Arizona universities and colleges will be prohibited from using the Social Security numbers of students for identification purposes as of June 30, 2001.

However, the amendment gives students the option to use their Social Security numbers if they desire.

Until recently, ABOR opposed the bill. On Thursday, they voted to support it at the suggestion of student Regent Jennifer Reichelt.

Under the bill, Social Security numbers would be replaced by pin numbers.

Some regents questioned whether pin numbers offered any more security than Social Security numbers since they too can be stolen.

"A pin number wouldn't have a lifetime effect on the student like a theft of their Social Security number," said Peter Likins, UofA president. "We've found four instances (at UofA) where the last four numbers were used illegally."

At February's ABOR meeting, Sam Leyvas, executive director of the Arizona Students' Association, shocked the regents and presidents of the universities by waving a handful of web pages with the Social Security numbers — and in some cases the names — of students he pulled up from his computer.

He said anyone with access to a computer could do the same. ASU President Lattie Coor said none of the numbers pulled off the Internet were those of ASU students. He added that his staff spent a lot of time checking into it.

If the Senate doesn't agree to the amendment, it goes on to the conference committee where a new version is written. Then the bill will be re-voted on in both the House and Senate.

A professional dress competition.

Talent presentations.

An impromptu question.

All the ingredients used to make the 20th annual Ms. Indian ASU pageant.

Seven ASU students competed for the crown Thursday evening in the Memorial Union's Ventana Room. But there was only one winner — Alyssa Macy, a Navajo Indian and justice studies senior.

"It's an honor to be able to represent my tribe, ASU and the Indian nation," said Macy, who was also awarded best essay and best talent in the pageant. "I want to encourage others to use their means of power to help my Indian people."

Macy shared the spotlight with fellow contestant, Valaria Whiteman, a justice studies and religious studies junior.

Whiteman stood in shock after being awarded Miss Congeniality and the Peterson Zah Scholastic Achievement Award — a $500 stipend she will receive each year for the rest of her life.

"The awards took me by surprise because it was my peers who voted for me," said Whiteman, who is a member of the Northern Arpano Tribe. "This is a big mark for me. And I am also glad that my people were well represented tonight."

Although the night was filled with new beginnings, it was the ending of a good year for Amy Johns Ashley.

Dry, windy weather forecast as Everglades blaze continues to grow

By Dave Bryan
Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — A fire fed by rapidly shifting wind burned out of control in the Everglades on Sunday, consuming 70,000 acres of dry marsh grass and creating clouds of smoke that darkened the Miami area.

The fire began on the Everglades' western edge Saturday, possibly ignited by heat from a vehicle's catalytic converter. It quickly became the largest of more than 2,450 blazes that have burned 130,000 acres in the state this year.

Firefighters from Texas and Arizona were called in to help.

With rainfall 90 percent below normal during Florida's dry season, officials fear a repeat of last summer, when fires scorched 500,000 acres and forced 100,000 people from their homes.

Meager showers late Saturday were more of a hindrance than help, making grass just damp enough to prevent setting backfires. Dry conditions, with temperatures in the 80s, gusty wind and low humidity, are expected in Florida through Thursday.

The Everglades blaze has been dubbed the "Deceiving Fire" because of its frequently shifting winds. At one point Saturday, flames jumped over a fire crew, setting the vehicle near them ablaze. No one was injured.

"It was a fright for us and stark reminder of how dangerous this is," said Gene Madden, a state fire spokesman.

Early Sunday, the fire came within 100 yards of Interstate 75, closing the main coast-to-coast route across south Florida known as Alligator Alley. Flames moved close to power lines in the Everglades and lines carrying electricity out of the Turkey Point nuclear power plant south of Miami.

For the second day in a row, spectacular clouds of reddish-brown smoke drifted 45 miles south to downtown Miami, where drivers used headlights in the daytime as they moved through city streets. A layer of ash dusted cars in the suburbs.

There also were smaller wildfires elsewhere in Florida.

Fires in St. Lucie County, midway between Miami and Orlando, destroyed 43 homes and damaged 33 others, forcing residents to spend the weekend searching ashes and rubble for anything worth saving.

Mike and Kim Gusrang lived 13 years in their first home, a one-story ranch style house, destroyed by the fire. Their losses included dozens of pictures of sons, Aaron, 9, and Jason, 4.

"This was like our little dream house," said Mike Gusrang.

In the northern part of the state, 35 families were evacuated and one house was destroyed Saturday in a 200-acre fire near Panama City in the Panhandle. Officials said Sunday that fire is under control.

Cop killed in ambush; second in 3 weeks

By ERLEND AAS
STATE PRESS

Chandler police Officer James Snedigar was shot and killed in an ambush following a Tempe jewelry store robbery on Friday.

Snedigar was shot as he entered the apartment where Sergio Hernandez Martinez, the suspect in the heist, was outfitted with body armor and an assault rifle. Martinez, 26, was killed when SWAT team members returned fire, a police spokesman said.

Two other suspects, Leroy Campbell and Arthur Larry Lucero, both 24, have been charged with two counts of first degree murder, one count of armed robbery and one count of burglary.

They could face the death penalty if convicted on the murder charges.

Bail was set at $4.5 million for each of the suspects.

Snedigar, 38, is the second Valley officer killed in three weeks, and the fifth officer shot in a month. He is survived by his wife, three children and a 1-year-old grandchild.

What ended in Snedigar's death started when two armed robbers entered the Crescent Jewelers at 1310 W. Elliot Road in Tempe.

While a third man waited in a stolen black Ford Mustang, the robbers smashed and emptied jewelry display cases before they fled, said Tempe police Sgt. Dave Lind.

Employees called 911 and police arrived within seconds, starting the chase which ended at the Sierra Palms apartment complex, 1100 N. Priest Drive, two miles from the jewelry store, police said.

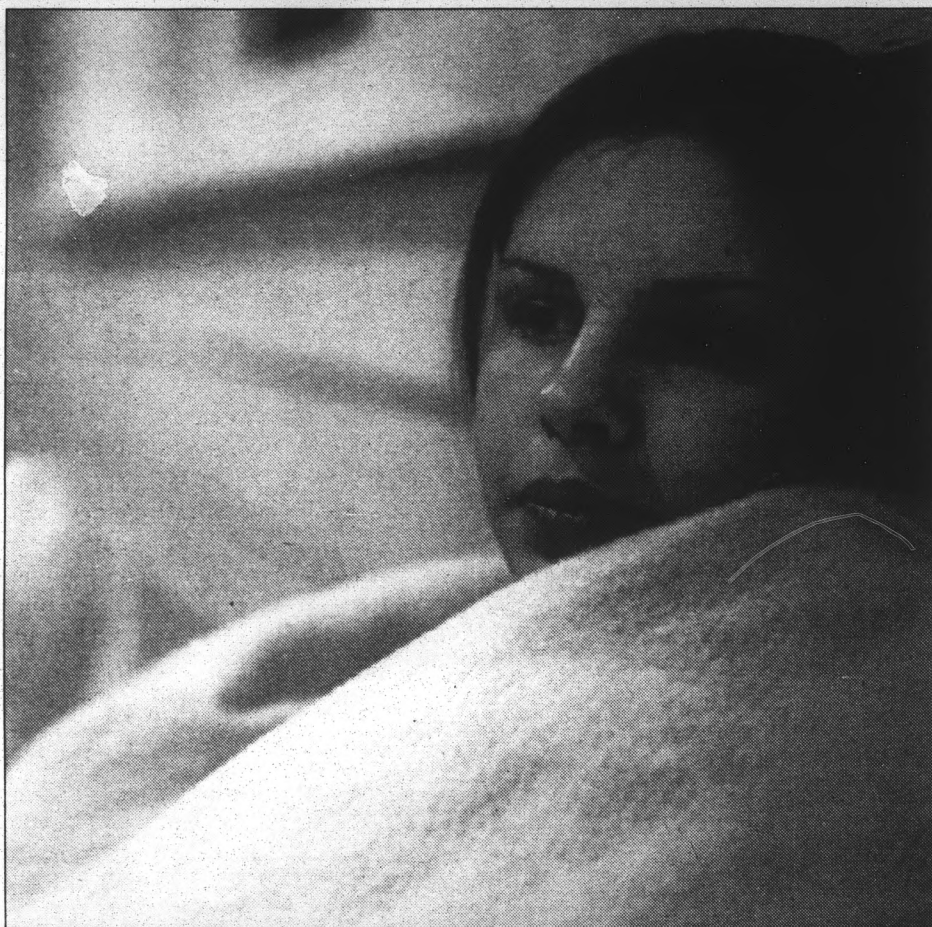

Police found the abandoned Mustang inside the complex and followed a trail of jewelry to apartment 1086 where most of the jewelry was later found. That apartment was empty. They also noticed a broken glass door in apartment 1055, Lind said.

At 3 p.m. Snedigar's four-man SWAT team threw stun grenades into apartment 1055 and entered. Inside, Martinez was waiting, police said. Snedigar took 3-4 shots in his protective vest and one to the head, police said. He died shortly thereafter.

Martinez died in a shower of bullets as the other SWAT team members returned fire, police said.

The two other suspects, Lucerno and Campbell, were first arrested on unrelated warrants when they tried to leave the complex on foot, Lind said. They had changed their appearances with clothes they found in an apartment, and had no jewelry at the time of arrest.

All three suspects were former convicts.

Michelle Stricker waits for police to conclude their search of the Sierra Palms Apartments. Stricker, who is seven and a half months pregnant, was in her boyfriend's apartment during a fatal shootout next door that left Chandler Officer James Snedigar and robbery suspect Sergio Hernandez Martinez dead. (Below) A flashlight illuminates slain officer James Snedigar's vest early Saturday morning outside the apartment where he was killed.

Snedigar, who was the first Chandler officer to be killed in the line of duty, died three weeks to the day after Phoenix officer Marc Atkinson was ambushed and slain by drug suspects.

Three other Valley officers have also been shot in the last month. On March 19, Tempe

Sgt. Jon Schaper was shot on Mill Avenue, and on March 22 Phoenix Officer Lyn Butcher was shot. Both escaped serious injury. On April 9, another Phoenix officer was ambushed after pulling over an erratic driver, but escaped without injuries.

Chandler girl has brush with shootout

By ERLEND AAS
STATE PRESS

When SWAT team members killed Sergio Hernandez Martinez in a swarm of bullets, Michelle Stricker, 19-years-old and 7 1/2 months pregnant, was only feet away.

Martinez allegedly shot Chandler police Officer James Snedigar Friday afternoon after pulling a smash-and-grab robbery at a Tempe jewelry store.

The shootout took place in apartment 1055 in Chandler's Sierra Palms Apartments. Stricker said she was in unit 1056 when two bullets came through the wall.

"I was so afraid," she said. She was visiting her boyfriend's family when the shooting occurred. Stricker and Susan Agar, the residents of the apartment, were the only people there.

"We were so scared," Agar said. "First we hid in my bedroom, then we hid on the kitchen floor."

Fortunately, the two women didn't take cover in the other bedroom, where two bullet holes were found.

"I'm just glad they weren't in here," said John Fox, a 22-year-old High-Tech Institute student, while looking at the holes in his bedroom wall.

Police spokesmen could not say if the two bullets were fired by officers or the suspect, and said they were unsure if police knew the women were in the adjacent apartment.

Ongoing investigations might be able to answer those questions, said Officer Pat McDonnell, a Chandler police spokesman.

The two women in unit 1056 got a call from an apartment manager at 12:30 p.m., telling them to lock the door and not leave the apartment, Agar said. Later, a SWAT team with guns drawn escorted them out of the apartment complex, she said.

From about 1 p.m. on Friday to 3 a.m. on Saturday, no one was allowed to leave or enter the complex.

Agar was allowed back into her apartment at 3 a.m., but entered with mixed emotions.

"I'm going to be scared to walk into my own home now," she said.

Parade displays Phoenix's colorful gay community despite opposition

By JAN-ERIK SAUE
STATE PRESS

More than 70 groups, 11 floats and several thousand people participated in the third annual Gay Pride Parade on Central Avenue.

There was Tinky Winky, the purple Teletubby, on one float, and drag queens on another. There were the Sisters of Perpetual Indulgence, appropriately dressed in their nuns' habits, and the Phoenix chapter of Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays.

Then there were the protesters who had lined up at one spot along the route. They were led by Rev. Fred Phelps of Topeka, Kan. and a dozen of his supporters waving signs saying "No Special Laws for Fags" and "Fags Doom Nation." The protesters gained little support among the spectators, who generally just frowned and turned their focus on the parade.

Most of the spectators along 1.5-mile route happily waved to the floats as they passed by. A few ASU students took the trip to downtown Phoenix to show their support.

"No one should be condemned for their sexuality," said Steve Adams, an education junior. "In today's society we have come too far. Prejudice and hatred does not belong anywhere. The conservative religious groups promote an anti-gay message. We should instead send a message that being gay is not a sin."

There were also some ASU students participating in the parade.

"This is a chance to stand up and be proud of who we are," said Anthony Lee, an engineering senior. "No one should have to hide their true selves and be ashamed of their sexuality."

Lee hoped the parade would be more than just a fancy show.

"If our parade helps one young person realize there's nothing wrong with him or her, then this has been a good thing," Lee said. "Hopefully people can see that there's nothing to be afraid of, no reason to hide who you are."

UofA police face civil rights lawsuit

TUCSON (AP) — The University of Arizona is being sued by a Nigerian graduate student who claims campus police unjustly arrested him because of his skin color.

Nurdeen Lawal, 32, who is black, has filed a $1 million claim against the university, arguing his civil rights were violated during his arrest in January, The Arizona Daily Star reported Sunday.

He was arrested by campus police officers who were looking for a black man suspected of thefts at the Architecture Building.

When Lawal came out of a nearby building and got into his car, which was parked next to the Architecture Building, police followed him to a campus-area fast-food restaurant and arrested him.

Lawal, a master's student in electrical engineering, had not been in the Architecture Building and was wearing clothes entirely different from the ones witnesses said the suspect was wearing, his attorney, Paul Gattone of the Southern Arizona People's Law Center, told the newspaper.

Lawal also alleged that police dislocated his shoulder during his arrest.

Lawal was then taken to the campus police station, where he was photographed and fingerprinted. He also was cited for reckless driving, fictitious license plates and driving without a license, the newspaper said.

Street blockades won't solve traffic problem on Mill Ave.

We're convinced that somebody out there is plotting to make our lives miserable.

Lately, the Tempe Police department has taken up its mission to reduce traffic congestion and cruisers on Mill Avenue on weekend nights with a vengeance.

Just ask anyone who lives anywhere in the vicinity west of Mill Avenue on University Drive.

They'll tell you that they have had to take a little detour to find their way home Friday and Saturday nights.

Via China.

If you haven't noticed, Tempe police have started erecting barricades on streets that meet Mill in an effort to curb traffic congestion weekend nights. Which is all well and good, unless of course you live in the area, which many of us, as students attending this institution, do.

It's a nice-enough idea — it ostensibly keeps dull and dumb teenagers from the fascinating action of driving up and down fascinating Mill Avenue and keeps the same drivers out of the normally quiet neighborhoods that border the area, which we admit has been a problem.

But we don't think barricading the streets was the solution we were quite looking for.

It's a solution that seems typical of Arizona.

There's a problem with traffic? Well, batten down the hatches! We'll close down the streets! Nobody gets in and nobody gets out!

We hate to point out the obvious, but, uh, aren't streets, like, made for driving on? And doesn't this all seem a tad bit extreme?

Is anybody thinking here? They are going to build a damn lake in the area. What are they going to do when the traffic quadruples in response to that little brainstorm hatchling of American suburbia? Are we going to close the freeways then, start sending out caravans of camels out across the Valley?

Has anyone seen Field of Dreams? Seven words: If you build it, they will come.

So we've built it. A little strip of marketing paradise on earth right here in our little downtown Tempe and things are so organized and well-thought out around here that the method we use to regulate the traffic that no one could foresee it would cause is to block the streets.

Sounds like a few little small-town developers got a few big-town developing ideas and just plum forgot that we still — if the infrastructure of Mill Avenue is any indication — are a small town.

It's not just that we have to go through Maine to get home anymore. It's that the traffic situation springs from a challenging problem of urban planning and civic order and the way that the powers that be have decided to deal with it is overly simplistic. The challenge is not being met.

We don't think that bodes well for the future.

Chandler police officer becomes latest victim in an open season

It happened at the Sierra Palms apartment complex in Chandler.

Fourth-year officer James Snedigar was in pursuit of three men suspected of robbing a jewelry store, when he stepped through a broken arcadia door and into an ambush.

The alleged gunman, Sergio Hernandez, was waiting for Snedigar with an assault rifle and shot him in the head before Snedigar ever had a chance to return fire.

The Arizona Republic reported that Hernandez may have been covering for the other two suspects in the incident, who also were allegedly involved in the robbery. Hernandez is suspected of luring police officers into one apartment while his friends tried to escape into another.

Snedigar's murder reveals a serious problem. Thus far, five police officers have been shot in a month and two have died. These incidents are causing residents to worry about the safety of their officers. They are demanding protection and they are blaming everything and anything for not having it.

Irate voters suggest a lack of legislation is at fault. Residents want laws to be passed requiring all police officers to wear bulletproof vests. Supporters feel these vests will help save lives in what seems to have become open season on Valley police officers.

However, what they are forgetting is that these vests are not only expensive, but also cumbersome. What if an officer becomes engaged in a wrestling match and can't maneuver properly? Or, what if an officer is involved in a foot race and can't catch the suspect?

Brant Galloway
columnist

Earlier this month, Phoenix police officer Marc Atkinson was allegedly killed by three men identified as illegal immigrants. This slaying prompted a cry for stricter border control and negative reactions toward illegal immigrants.

But, perhaps the easiest excuse for police shootings is gang violence and the popular notion that whenever crimes concerning police officers occur, it must have been caused by a gang member. I'm sure stories will soon appear that Snedigar's killer was a member of some secret Chandler gang.

Maybe the killer shouldn't take all the blame for murdering the Chandler police officer. After all, the murderer didn't shoot Snedigar, he shot a uniform.

The tragedy of this murder lies in the meaningless way in which Snedigar lost his life. The killer didn't know Snedigar and wasn't on some revenge-related mission to kill.

Sadly, Snedigar was killed for being brave. He was the first SWAT member to enter the apartment. Hernandez allegedly shot Snedigar in an attempt to avoid punishment and because of the color of his uniform.

He didn't realize that Snedigar had a wife, three children and a grandchild. He didn't know Snedigar had been protecting the streets of Chandler for four years. He only recognized that Snedigar's uniform represented the law and the punishment he was in danger of receiving.

Unfortunately, we continually criticize the wrong things. Why blame gangs and insufficient legislation, when we should be focusing on the one simple truth: Police officers are shot by criminals who don't want to be caught.

In gang terms, they were just wearing the wrong colors.

ASU's sunscreen: an exercise in the tricky art of free advice

Of all the pop songs released so far this year, the one with the most word of mouth has to be "Everybody's Free to Wear Sunscreen." If you don't recognize the song by its unusual title, you'd probably still recognize it by its unusual spoken-word lyrics. The song is currently number 10 on the Billboard Adult Top 40.

While the single is the brainchild of Australian film director and soundtrack producer Baz Luhrmann, the lyrics actually come from a July 1997 opinion column written by Chicago Tribune journalist Mary Schmich.

The column became a hot item on the Internet, when students started e-mailing copies to their friends, believing it was the work of author Kurt Vonnegut Jr. This was merely a rumor, but the rumor caught the attention of Luhrmann, who eventually learned the true identity of the writer. Schmich gave Luhrmann permission to use her words over a record sample for a compilation album.

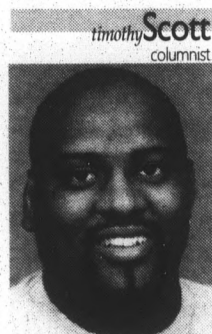

Luhrmann then hired Australian actor Lee Perry, to extol the virtue of sunscreen and offer various pearls of wisdom in a series of monotone non-sequiturs.

In the original column, Schmich said her intention was to write a semi-serious commencement speech to college graduates. She encouraged anyone over 26 to try writing one as well. This gave me the idea to put together my own version of "The Sunscreen song" for all the students here at ASU.

Of course, giving free advice should always be considered impolite. So, I prefer to think of this as an exercise. Here goes ...

Letters Editor to the Editor Amidst history ...

Sixty-four Albanian refugees were killed by a mistaken NATO airstrike. Tens of thousands of other refugees are waiting in misery along the borders of their native Kosovo — no shelter, little food, separated from their families.

The headlines of horror and pictures of sobbing children have become all too familiar in the past weeks. Meanwhile, ASU hosted a Baywatch audition on Hayden Lawn.

As I listened to conversations revolving around tans and Pamela Anderson, I cringed. While I know that the activities on Hayden Lawn are not meant to demonstrate the core values of ASU, they are a very real picture of where our focus is as a university. And right now, that focus needs a readjustment.

Other than a few discussions in classrooms or the recent demonstration by Serbian students, the ASU community seems sadly oblivious to the crisis exploding in the Balkans.

Perhaps many have purposely chosen to keep themselves aesthetically distanced. Or maybe others do not consider this situation particularly relevant to their own plight in life.

But as a student of history, I say that both of those reasons are merely facades for the simple lack of education and understanding.

As we look back at moments in history, such as World War II and the Holocaust, we condemn those who chose to keep themselves "aesthetically distanced" from the atrocities happening in Nazi territory. We ask the question, "Why didn't we do something sooner?" Or we look at headlines from yellowed newspapers proclaiming news of the bombing of Pearl Harbor or D-Day and wonder what it was like for the readers of those headlines ... knowing they were in the middle of history.

We are there ... we are in the middle of history. And we, as college students, with inquisitive minds and all the resources offered at a major university, have an opportunity to educate ourselves about the situation in the Balkans and through this education, become equipped for action.

Perhaps, instead of hosting radio stations or Baywatch auditions, we should encourage discussion panels or establish fundraising projects for relief efforts.

There is a huge, hurting world out there ... beyond our Arizona sunshine and plans for summer vacation.

Take a moment and allow yourself to learn a little about the Balkans, to ache for all the victims in this struggle, to be moved to action and to claim a piece of this moment in history as your own.

Without knowledge, compassion and action, the headlines of today's newspaper will be only a distant reminder, 30 years from now, of one of the greatest horrors to close the doors of the twentieth century.

... and some questions

I am writing to express my growing concern over the involvement and possible further buildup of troops into the Balkan area. Although my heart goes out to the thousands of ethnic Albanians who have suffered at the hands of ethnic Serbs in the Kosovo area, there are still some questions that come to mind when wondering about our role as peacekeepers in this volatile area.

Why is our country, a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), deciding to use brutal force on a country that is not even one of the nineteen member countries?

How are massive bombing runs and the destruction of the cities from which many of these ethnic Albanians live going to help these people after the conflict? Who will help rebuild after the conflict has ended and who will foot the bill for it?

How will committing U.S. ground-fighting forces stop the overall bloodshed within the region? Will it not only contribute to further loss of life in the area?

How could it be that our political elite even tolerate a possible vote in Congress to send these troops when our national security and interests are not threatened?

Would it not be more to everybody's advantage, for example, to divert about a F-111's worth of funding to some real humanitarian aid?

The answers to these questions are not very clear to me at this time, however, peace can only be achieved in this if the people that live in this region really want it.

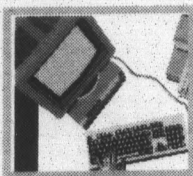

The U.S./NATO forces have the means to acquire this peace, but at what cost? Surely, the American public is not in favor of long-term commitment of troops within an area that could prove to be more of a burden to take care of than we are actually willing to accept.

Although my sense of duty for my country is present, my sense of duty for the security of another country — especially when engagement could lead to military involvement with one large country to the East — is not.

If the course of action for combating genocide is to engage militarily with that country — even if it is not a member of NATO (and perhaps, not subject to their rules), why did NATO and the United States stand idly by to watch the genocide unravel in the African nation of Rwanda?

Day-camp program helps unite ASU, local schools

BY JODIE LAU
STATE PRESS

Take 50 elementary students, throw in 23 ASU Camp Sparky members and what do you get?

A lot of fun and inspiration, said Victor Diaz, co-director of Camp Sparky's third day-camp.

"We're trying to educate them and at the same time have fun with them," said Diaz, a broadcast journalism freshman. "We're trying to give them the same opportunity that other school children have."

Camp Sparky counselors spent Friday at Lowell Elementary School in Mesa teaching students about how the media affect their community. This was just one of the four day-camps planned for this semester.

The organization began during the fall 1997 semester and has since grown to 40 members.

"The purpose is to enrich the lives and inspire success within kids in the metropolitan area, and that's through our community outreach," said Brent Maddin, Camp Sparky's co-founder and a biology and society senior.

The ASU students helped the fourth through sixth graders create mock broadcasts and newspapers.

The elementary students took roles as broadcast announcers, writers and reporters on the news shows. Each show addressed problems that happened at the elementary school, such as vandalism, bike thefts, littering and recycling problems.

"This gives them a chance to think about their community, which doesn't happen a lot," said psychology junior Diana Zakrzewski.

The newspapers gave the kids an opportunity to personally reflect on community-related issues and things that happened to them, said Brie Smith, an architecture freshman and co-director of Friday's camp.

During lunch, the students participated in a team-building activity where each student had a disability — such as being mute, blind or having a missing arm.

Smith said the activity emphasized teamwork; each student had to help another so they could get their food and eat.

Twelve-year-old Ageda Gonzalez said from "being tied up," she learned "to be friendly to friends and others."

Teachers at Lowell Elementary said they were impressed with the program. "These are real-life college students who are giving to the community and having fun at the same time," fifth-grade teacher Christel Arbogast said.

Sixth-grader Dianne Downs said the Camp Sparky counselors were role models. Most of the young students don't have older brothers, sisters or family members that are "college people."

Diaz said this community service is for the kids, but there is another purpose behind Camp Sparky. "We're bridging the huge gap between the community and ASU," he said. "We're forming a bond that probably wouldn't be formed any other way."

Smith said this benefits the receivers as well as the givers. "It gives us counselors an opportunity to go into the Valley and work with these kids, to build relationships with them. And it's good for them because they wouldn't normally have this opportunity for these programs," Smith said.

6 men ordered to pay $1 million to sex slaves

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Six men who admitted forcing 17 women and girls into a prostitution-slavery ring were ordered to pay a total of $1 million to the victims.

The six men, who pleaded guilty to helping run brothels in Florida and South Carolina, were also sentenced Friday to between 2 1/2 and 6 1/2 years in prison.

The ringleader, Rogerio Cadena, 52, pleaded guilty to conspiring to violate the women's civil rights and was sentenced three weeks ago to 15 years in prison and also ordered to pay $1 million.

Prosecutors said Cadena's organization smuggled the women, some as young as 14, to the United States from Mexico with promises of steady work, then forced them into prostitution from 1996 to 1998.

The victims had sex with as many as 130 men a week, prosecutors said. The women were allowed to keep only $3 of the $20 to $25 charged by Cadena's men, and the $3 went back to the organization for room and board.

The ring was discovered when two 15-year-old girls escaped and found their way to the Mexican consulate.

Alleged white supremacists' trial enters defense phase

BY PEGGY HARRIS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Two men accused of committing a murderous crime spree as part of a plot to set up a whites-only nation face a tough road as their defense opens this week.

Both their mothers testified for the prosecution. One placed her son near the scene of three 1996 murders. The other told the mostly black jury her son took part in the killings.

"God won't let me live with it anymore," Gloria Kehoe told her son, Chevie Kehoe, in front of jurors.

Prosecutors are seeking the death penalty for Kehoe, 26, of Colville, Wash., and Danny Lee, 26, of Yukon, Okla., who are accused of racketeering, conspiracy and murder.

The trial resumes Tuesday, skipping today, a key anniversary in white supremacist circles: April 19 marks the start of the American Revolution at the Battle of Lexington in 1775, the fiery federal raid on the Branch Davidians at Waco, Texas, in 1993, and the bombing of the Oklahoma City federal building in 1995.

Court officials say the day off is only to give defense lawyers time to study the vast amount of prosecution evidence: more than 150 witnesses and hundreds of exhibits.

The government alleges the two young white men were out to overthrow the federal government and set up a new nation, based in the Pacific Northwest, that would bar people of African, Asian, Hispanic or Jewish descent.

Kehoe and Lee are accused of the January 1996 robbery and killings of gun dealer William Mueller, his wife, Nancy, and her 8-year-old daughter, Sarah Powell, in the northwest Arkansas town of Tilly.

The victims' decomposed bodies were found in an Arkansas bayou. Plastic bags had been taped over their heads.

The prosecution says Kehoe and Lee believed Mueller might have been a government informant and his wife might have been part American Indian.

Jurors also have been told that:

- Kehoe and Lee detonated a bomb outside City Hall in Spokane, Wash., and were disappointed that it didn't cause much damage or reaction.
- Lee talked about killing people "down South" with whom he had trouble.
- Kehoe said in a television interview that white people are morally superior.
- Kehoe feared he might have to kill his own wife because she might be part Indian. He also allegedly talked of killing his parents to get their gun collection and of killing his brother, Cheyne, who has testified against him.

The two Kehoe brothers were convicted in Ohio of crimes related to a shootout with police. The shootout was videotaped by a police car camera and broadcast nationwide.

In this trial, Cheyne, 22, of Colville, Wash., and their mother provided graphic descriptions of what they said Chevie told them about killing the Mueller family.

Mrs. Kehoe, of Yaak, Mont., cried and looked at her son as she testified. "It's got to be told, Chevie," she said.

Lee's mother, Debra Graham, testified that around the time of the Muellers' killings, her son was home visiting her in Oklahoma. And she said he left the day before the date on which authorities believe the Muellers were killed.

Despite their testimony and the many exhibits, Lee's attorney, Cathleen Compton, argues that the government had little physical evidence.

"I think, without any disrespect to the court or anyone else, if these boys were in charge of conspiring to overthrow the government, we're all safe," Compton said.

Johnson & Johnson first sponsor to drop Olympics

BY HANNAH WOLFSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SALT LAKE CITY — Johnson & Johnson has become the first company to abandon the Olympics in the wake of a bribery scandal, backing away from an estimated $30 million sponsorship deal for the 2002 Winter Games.

Company spokesman John McKeegan on Sunday blamed the decision on internal disagreements about how to link the company's many brands under a sponsorship umbrella in time for the Salt Lake games.

But he acknowledged that Olympic corruption was also a factor.

"We can't say that it didn't have anything to do with it," McKeegan said. "It was certainly in the background."

The Salt Lake bribery scandal sparked several investigations after it was revealed that members of the city's bid committee offered $1.2 million dollars in cash, scholarships and other gifts to International Olympic Committee members and their relatives during the successful campaign to win the 2002 Winter Games.

A total of 10 IOC members have been banished or have resigned after being linked to the cash payments and other vote-buying induc-ments. Ten others have been censured or warned about their actions in what has been described as the worst scandal in the history of the modern Olympics.

“We can't say that [the Olympic bribery scandal] didn't have anything to do with it. It was certainly in the background.”

Johnson & Johnson had just signed a letter of intent to increase financial support when the bribery scandal surfaced late last year.

"The sponsors that we talk to are assessing the environment in which we find ourselves every single day," said John Krinsky, U.S.

Olympic Committee Deputy Secretary General and the games' chief fund-raising officer. "And when they have to invest millions of dollars and the reputation of their products and services they have to be very, very careful."

Though Johnson & Johnson has never been a full sponsor for the games, it has provided its products to athletes through the USOC for about 20 years. McKeegan said that relationship would continue.

Krinsky said the company pulled back in January or February, before Olympic organizations finished investigating and implementing reforms. And he added that the door is still open for an agreement for 2002, because company officials have since met with Salt Lake Organizing Committee head Mitt Romney.

Salt Lake already has commitments for more support than Atlanta had by the time it staged its more expensive 1996 Summer Games.

But since the revelation that Salt Lake bid executives wooed IOC members with bribes, no new sponsors have signed on.

Krinsky's marketing project, Olympic Properties of the United States, still needs to raise about $300 million in cash, goods and services to meet SLOC's $1.45 billion budget.

Prison comedy 'Life' breaks loose to top sci-fi 'Matrix' at box office

By ANTHONY BREZNICAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Eddie Murphy-Martin Lawrence prison comedy Life pulled in $20.7 million in its opening weekend at the box office, bumping the sci-fi adventure The Matrix down to second place.

Life, which features Murphy and Lawrence as innocent men who use humor to cope with life sentences at a notorious Mississippi prison farm, had the year's third-highest opening, according to estimates by Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc.

It was an impressive showing for Murphy, who seems to suffer a flop after each success. His Holy Man bombed last fall with a paltry total gross of $12 million, while Dr. Dolittle garnered $144.1 million during the summer.

"The success comes from a combination of both stars," said Nikki Rocco, head of distribution for Universal, which released the film. "They play well off each other. It's just a good time, without the special effects and action of other films."

The Matrix took in $18.1 million during the weekend. The futuristic Keanu Reeves thriller, about a computer hacker who discovers humans are the unwitting slaves of machines, has earned $99.1 million.

Despite the end of spring break, young audiences also flocked to the Drew Barrymore high school comedy Never Been Kissed, which had $8.7 million for third place.

Although the box office has been languishing in a post-Titanic funk for most of the year, the popularity of those top three films pushed the weekend's ticket sales 13 percent higher than the same weekend last year.

But the end of spring break may have harmed other youth-oriented films such as 10 Things I Hate About You, the loose adaptation of Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew. It lost 27 percent of its audience in its third week and was fifth with $3.7 million.

The critically praised rave-scene film Go lost 36 percent of its business to finish seventh with $3 million.

Ron Howard's comedy EDtv, one of the year's biggest disappointments, plunged 51 percent to collect only $1 million with a paltry per-location average of $655.

Estimated grosses for Friday through Sunday at North American theaters, according to Exhibitor Relations, with final figures to be released Monday:

1. Life, $20.7 million.

Jefferson Airplane member dies at 52

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Skip Spence, an original member of the rock band Jefferson Airplane, has died of lung cancer at 52.

Spence died Friday at Dominican Hospital in Santa Cruz, where he had been fighting a number of ailments.

His death came weeks before the release of More Oar, a CD tribute to Spence including songs by Beck, Robert Plant, Tom Waits and members of R.E.M. The recording was inspired by Oar, Spence's unique, folk-psychedelic solo album from 1969, which will soon be reissued.

Spence had long battled schizophrenia and alcoholism. He had been on a ventilator since entering the hospital April 5.

In 1965, Alexander Lee "Skip" Spence, born in Ontario, Canada, was set to audition as a guitar player for Quicksilver Messenger Service when another local musician, Marty Balin, invited him to play drums in his new band, Jefferson Airplane.

Spence had never played drums before but learned quickly; on Oar he plays every instrument.

Spence left the Jefferson Airplane in 1966 and became a founding member of Moby Grape. Later, he gave another San Francisco Bay area band, Pud, a new name — the Doobie Brothers.

Survivors include four children.

"He hasn't won, but he's awfully consistent. Now he's going to be looking to win — not hoping to, but expecting to. That's a huge difference" — ASU men's golf coach Randy Lein, on Jeff Quinney

Quinney fires course-record 62 as ASU wins tourney

Leah Fasten of the State Press

Jeff Quinney celebrates after sinking his putt on the 18th hole of the final round of the Thunderbird/Savane Invitational on Sunday. Quinney's 62 set a Karsten record and led ASU to its first team title of the year.

BY CLINT CURRIE
STATE PRESS

Jeff Quinney shot a course-record 62 in the final round to give him the individual title in the Thunderbird/Savane Invitational, a tournament ASU won by 15 strokes.

"This is what we wanted," head coach Randy Lein said. "I couldn't have scripted it any better."

There were claps and cheers from the gallery as Quinney approached the 18th green. The word had spread throughout the crowd that one of ASU's own was about to break a record. Quinney gave back a modest smile, dropped his shoulders, eyed the hole and sunk the last putt on his miraculous 18-hole performance. The crowd cheered again and his teammates and family came out to congratulate him.

"It felt great," he said. "I got chills through my body after the putt."

Quinney broke the competitive Karsten record that was only one hour old. At about 1:30 p.m., Oregon's Ryan Lavoie walked off the course after shooting a then-record 64.

"It started out on (hole) number two," Quinney said. "It (his eagle) kickstarted the whole day."

Quinney's run included the eagle on the second hole and birdies on holes 3, 5, 7, 8, 11 (sinking a 35-foot putt), 13, 14 and 15.

"I kept telling myself, 'Earn it shot by shot,'" Quinney said. "Today it all came together."

"He hasn't won, but he's awfully consistent," Lein said. "Now he's going to be looking to win — not hoping to, but expecting to. That's a huge difference."

Quinney finished with a weekend total of 201 with rounds of 70, 69 and 62. Quinney overshadowed teammate Paul Casey, who finished in third place with rounds of 70, 67 and 70 for a 9-under par 207.

"I'm happy that I'm playing good again," Casey said. "I've had two top five finishes in a row, and I'm peaking at the right time of the season."

Casey has played his best golf of the year this month, firing 4-under par April 4 in Lecanto, Fla., and 9-under in Tempe last weekend. Casey's timing is perfect as ASU prepares for the Pac-10 tournament this weekend in Seattle.

"The team win is great," Casey said. "A couple of guys didn't play great that usually do."

Casey's point was that the team has tremendous momentum right now because the golfers that struggled, like Greg Padilla, Jin Park and Matt Jones, have been consistent all year and one not-so-good tournament does not turn that around.

Jones tied for 18th place while shooting par with rounds of 74, 70 and 72.

Padilla was the first round leader after firing a 67, but the day was long and Padilla's second round of 73 brought him back to the pack. His third round of 79 put him at 3-over par and landed Padilla in a tie for 36th place.

Jin Park shot a 71 in his last round, but previous rounds of 73 and 77 kept Park five shots over par and in 43rd place.

In all, ASU was 30-under par for the weekend and beat second place UCLA by 15 shots. UCLA's Jeff McGraw (206) and B.J. Schlaghauf (209) finished in second and fourth place.

Behind UCLA in the top ten were Cal, Oregon, UofA, Colorado State, Texas, Washington and Kansas. Oklahoma State was "a shocker," according to Lein, with its tenth place finish. The Cowboys brought two of the country's best golfers in No. 4 Charles Howell and No. 7 Edward Loar.

Texas' David Gossett is the only player in collegiate golf this year to have a better tournament than Quinney's 201. Gossett shot a 199 at the Taylor Made at Red River. Gossett, the country's No. 2 golfer, according to the MasterCard Collegiate Golf Rankings, finished tied for 46th at 6-over par.

ASU's second team was led by Ryan Whitaker's 7-over 223 and Brad Cannon's 8-over 224. D.J. Lewin finished at 10-over par, Jonas Runnquist finished at 11-over par and Jason Hause finished at 14-over par.

Sun Devils revert to old ways, take 3 of 4 from Bay Area schools

Gill eclipses RBI mark

BY CHRIS CARLOCK
STATE PRESS

Winning cures all ails.

The ASU softball team found that out after sweeping No. 10 Stanford Friday night and splitting with No. 13 Cal Saturday at Sun Devil Club Stadium. The successful weekend moved the Sun Devils to 5-9 in the Pac-10 and 34-14 overall, with half of the conference schedule completed.

"We came out emotional and fired up," freshman Erica Beach said. "We're ready to go into the next half of the Pac-10."

If anybody has reason to be fired up, it's Beach. The southpaw threw consecutive 1-0 shutouts to improve her record to 14-7. She wasn't too shabby at the plate either, collecting five hits in 13 at-bats, including her fifth homer of the season.

"I felt pretty much on top of it," Beach said of her game.

Beach completed the weekend with a six-hit, two strikeout performance against Cal. She now has a scoreless inning streak of 20. Beach managed to strand four runners in scoring position in the 1-0 victory. The defense was stellar behind her as Holly Smith turned in a few gems at shortstop.

"Our defense was great in all four of these games," head coach Linda Wells said.

ASU scored its run in the fourth inning when Beach led things off with a single. After Jamie Hlebechuk came in to pinch run, Chris Gill singled to right field. Kirsten Voak then laid down a sacrifice bunt that led to Kathy Ponce's sac fly, which plated Hlebechuk for the only run of the game.

"It's huge," Beach said of winning three games. "This is just the next step to get us to where we need to be playing."

The first game against Cal didn't go as well. Voak surrendered her 18th, 19th and 20th home runs of the season and the Bears' leadoff batter scored in each of the second through sixth innings to propel Cal to a 7-6 win. After tying the game at four in the third inning, two leadoff homers and a two-out, run scoring single gave Cal a 7-4 lead heading to the bottom of the seventh. After the first two batters were retired to start the final frame, Beach lined a double to the fence in right field. Chris Gill then entered her name into the record books by smashing a two-run homer to left field to bring ASU within one. The two RBI put Gill ahead of Alyssa Johnson as ASU's all-time leading run producer with 109. Winning pitcher Jocelyn Forest then retired Voak to end the game.

Friday night ended on an emotional high for the Sun Devils as Missy Hixon delivered a clutch game-winning single to center field with one out in the bottom of the eighth to give ASU a 1-0 win over Stanford. Beach and Stanford's Becky Blevins each allowed only three hits throughout the game but the Cardinal defense opened the door for the Sun Devils in the eighth.

Stanford substituted Kelly Yablonski in right field to start the inning for defensive purposes. The Sun Devils were glad to see her out there, for with one out, Yablonski misplayed a line drive by Holly Smith for a three base error. Hixon made the Cardinal pay with a single to score Smith from third, giving ASU the sweep.

"I didn't get a hit the whole game, so I was due for one," Hixon said. "I was real relaxed and I wasn't worried. We definitely needed the wins."

Beach stranded four Cardinal runners in bouncing back nicely from her eight-run first inning against UCLA the weekend before. Gill and Voak were the other Sun Devils who had hits in the game.

ASU started off the weekend in impressive fashion, pounding out 10 hits in a 6-0 rout of the Cardinal. Hixon, Beach and Jennifer Langenhuizen each collected two hits while Beach and Langenhuizen scored twice to boost the Sun Devils' confidence. Voak dominated from the get-go, improving her record to 19-6 by throwing a five-hit shutout.

Leah Fasten of the State Press

Freshman Erica Beach was impressive with the bat in this weekend's doubleheaders with Stanford and Cal (5 of 13, fifth home run of the season). But Beach dominated in the circle, throwing consecutive 1-0 shutouts to improve her record to 14-7.

At 5-9 in the Pac-10, the Sun Devils have climbed out of the basement and are now hoping to climb toward the penthouse.

"It was a good boost for the team," Beach said.

ASU will travel to Oregon next weekend to take on No. 12 Oregon State and No. 14 Oregon. The Sun Devils split with the Beavers and were swept by the Ducks in the conference-opening weekend in Tempe a few weeks ago.

Batiste's NBA chances rise at Nike Desert Classic

BY NICK PICORO
STATE PRESS

All Mike Batiste wanted to do in the Nike Desert Classic was play his game, his style of basketball. No more, no less.

By doing just that over the weekend, Batiste, who played forward for the ASU men's basketball team the last three years, may have put himself in a position to be taken in June's NBA draft.

Batiste and teammate Bobby were the favorites at the tournament held at Wells Fargo Arena. Batiste may have left as a scout favorite.

"He was definitely a surprise for us, as an organization," said Larry Harris, the Director of Scout for the Milwaukee Bucks.

According to Harris, Batiste may be a possible second round pick thanks to his play in the three-day tournament.

"He definitely helped himself," Harris said.

Batiste averaged 12.3 points and 3.7 rebounds in three games.

"I didn't want to come in here and try to do things I couldn't do," Batiste said. "I wanted to come here and play to the best of my ability."

If Batiste were to go to the NBA, he said he would probably have to play something between a three and a four. Size may be a concern because of how much of a physical jump it is from college to the NBA.

"These guys out here are real physical," Batiste said. "You don't play against guys like this in the Pac-10."

Lazor also played well in the tournament. He averaged 8.7 points and 3.7 rebounds in three games, with a high of 15 points in Thursday's game.

According to Harris, both ASU forwards played well, but Batiste probably improved his draft status more so than Lazor.

Hoopin' with the Hooters girls

You don't think there's any creativity in slam dunk contests anymore?

Cincinnati's Melvin Levett, Saturday's Desert Classic Slam Dunk champion, will beg to differ.

"I've always been creative. I've always been creative somewhere," Levett said.

And Levett showed a lot of it. First, Levett jumped over four ball racks used in the three-point shooting contest positioned about 10 feet away from the hoop and nimbly executed a one-handed dunk.

Levett brought in two waitresses from the restaurant

Hooters, where he had lunch earlier in the day. He directed them to a spot about 10 feet from the hoop, where players line up to rebound free throws. The pair hunched over each other, Levett got a running start and, much to the crowd's delight, he cleared the pair and threw it down one-handed.

Both dunks received perfect scores from the judges.

Levett, who's vertical was measured at 34.5 inches last week, said that the idea of using the waitresses came to him while he was eating lunch at their restaurant. He got approval from the restaurant manager, who liked the idea not only for its creativity but for its promotional value as well.

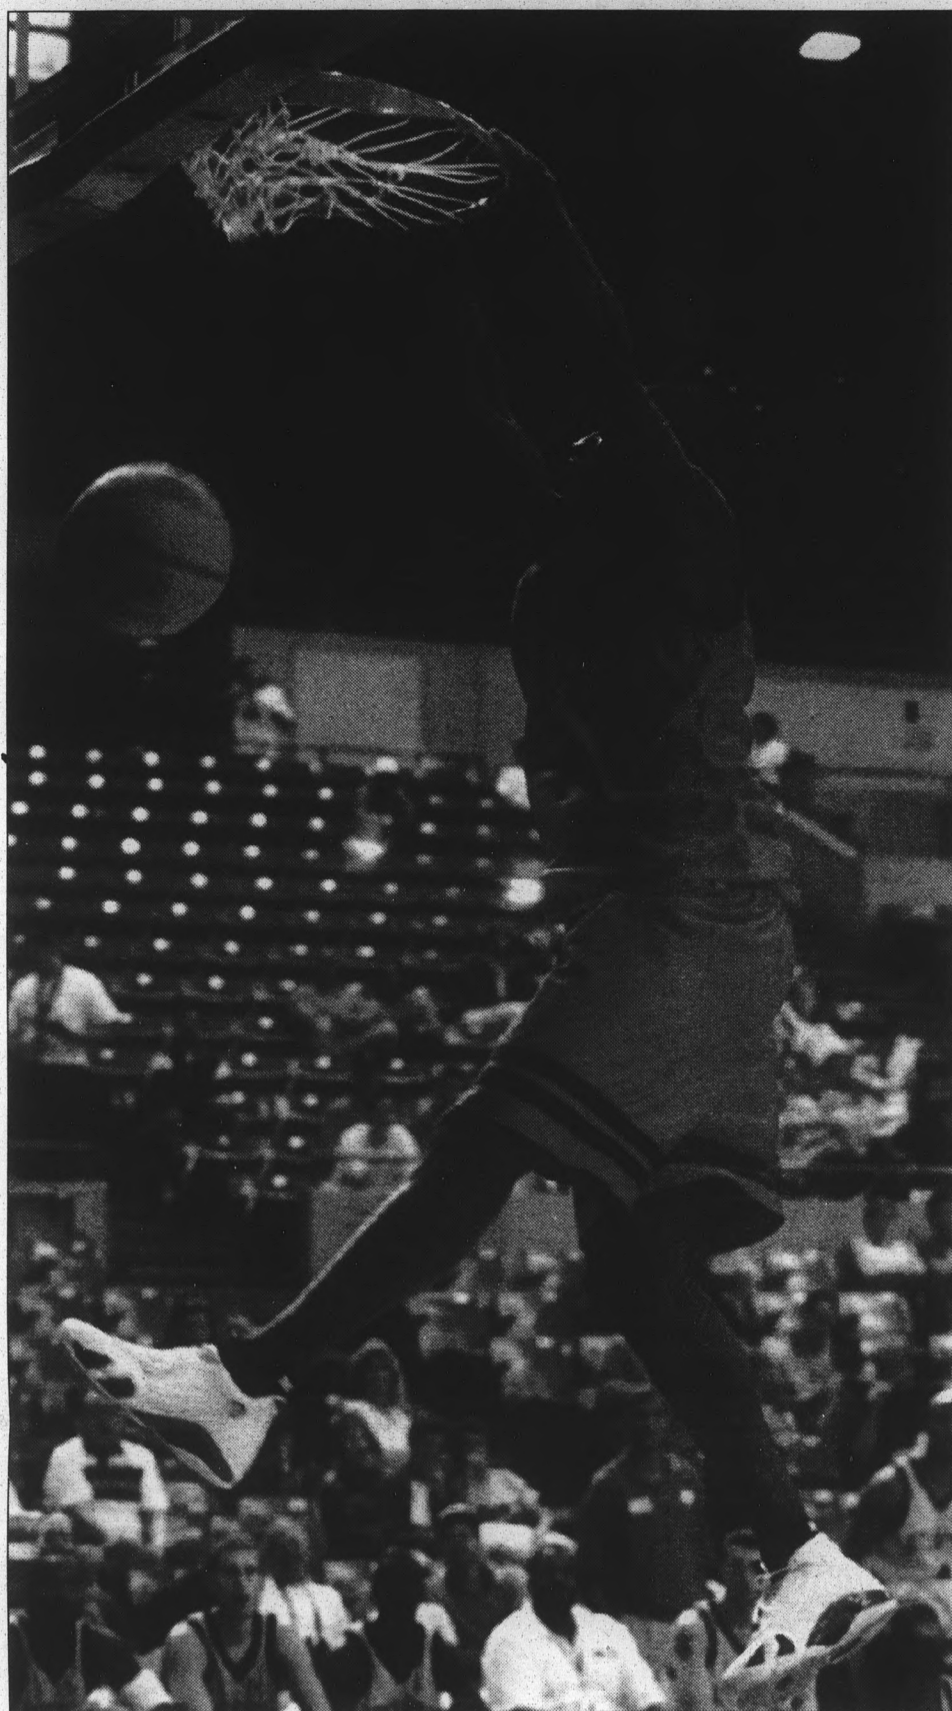

The waitresses were a little scared at first, but his successful first dunk built their confidence in him.

"They saw how high I got and said they weren't scared anymore," Levett said.

Levett was also named to the All-Tournament team.

"These guys out here are real physical. You don't play against guys like this in the Pac-10."

Mike Batiste,
former ASU forward

Samaruddin Stewart of the State Press

Cincinnati's Melvin Levett won the slam dunk competition of the Nike Desert Classic on Saturday by dunking over two Hooters waitresses.

Ex-Devils Ruegamer, Paulk selected in 3rd round of NFL Draft

BY JOE MANTONE
AND SAM GANCZARUK

Grey Ruegamer finally got a good night of sleep.

The Miami Dolphins selected the former ASU center with the eleventh pick in the third round of the NFL Draft at New York Saturday.

"(Saturday) was the best night of sleep I've had in a couple of weeks," Ruegamer said. "It's great to finally see what happened."

Before Ruegamer was tucked away in his bed, he spoke to his new head coach.

"Jimmy Johnson came on the phone, and he said, 'Are you ready to be a Dolphin?' I said, 'I've been waiting for you guys to call,'" said Ruegamer, who spoke to Johnson from his home in San Diego.

Ruegamer gets a chance to show Johnson just how ready he is this week. He will travel to Miami on Thursday to participate in a three day minicamp. Ruegamer said this will be a good chance for him "to learn the system" and "find out what's going on."

He should find that the Dolphins are a little thin at the center spot. Tim Ruddy started all 16 games for Miami in 1998, and Ruddy has been Miami's starting center for the last four seasons.

John Bock, who is listed as a guard on Miami's depth chart, is the Dolphin's backup center.

"I knew Miami needed a center, so I had the Dolphins in the back of my mind," Ruegamer said. "But getting picked by them was still a surprise."

Ruegamer

The two time All-American center was a little surprised because he said that Miami was talking to the Bears about acquiring center Casey Wiegman. But apparently that didn't work out and Miami made Ruegamer the third center selected in the draft.

New England used the 17th pick in the first round to take center Damien Woody from Boston College. And Denver closed the second round of the draft when the Broncos selected former BYU center Lennie Friedman.

Doin' the Dirty Bird

Fullback Jeff Paulk was pleasantly surprised when he received a phone call by Super Bowl runner up Atlanta Falcons head coach Dan Reeves Saturday afternoon. He had avoided watching the draft all day until the phone call.

"He asked if I could play special teams," Paulk told the Tribune Saturday. "I said, 'Yea. I'll play whatever you want.'"

Many had predicted Paulk going in the fourth round, but the Falcons chose him with 92nd overall pick — the last pick in the third round — making him the 10th running back taken in the '99 draft. The present fullback for the Falcons is Bob Christian, but he is having problems recovering from a serious knee injury. Paulk said he is grateful to have such a great opportunity.

"I can't do much better in terms of a coach and team," Paulk said. "I'm very fortunate."

Kenny's still alive

Kenny Mitchell's phone didn't ring during the NFL

Paulk

Draft, but his agent's phone rang afterwards.

Mitchell, a former ASU wide receiver, was not picked at Saturday's and Sunday's NFL Draft in New York. However, he will try to sign with a club as a free agent.

"Teams are negotiating with my agent on the phone," said an upbeat Mitchell. He added that several teams — including the Cardinals, Giants and Titans — have contacted Mitchell or his agent on Sunday.

"I would like to stay in Arizona," said Mitchell, who caught 27 passes for 576 yards during his 1998 season as a Sun Devil. "But we have to find the best spot."

Mitchell said he wants "to see what the teams have to offer," but he would like to be signed before minicamps open.

"I want to do this as soon as possible," he said. "That could be today, tomorrow, next week."

Ruegamer said he was surprised that no NFL team drafted Mitchell.

"I thought he would go before the seventh round," Ruegamer said.

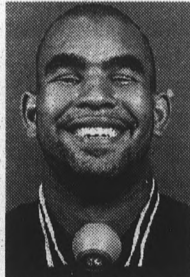

But not being drafted didn't seem to bother Mitchell. And the amount of money he will receive from his first NFL contract will probably not bother Mitchell either.

"I lived off loot checks," Mitchell said.

He'll probably get more cash than he did on ASU road trips, but that's not his top concern.

"We're not looking at money situations," Mitchell said. "We're just listening to the teams who call, and we will find the best situation for me to play."

Sun Devils one step closer to home court advantage

BY ROBERT DEAL
STATE PRESS

With one more match to go in the regular season, the Sun Devil men's tennis team is one step closer to gaining regional home court advantage after routing UofA 6-1 Saturday.

Dropping only one singles match on the afternoon, the No. 14 Sun Devils advanced their record to 12-5 and 4-2 in the Pac-10. The loss took the 47th-ranked Wildcats to 7-12. With a win against Cal on Tuesday, ASU could finish 5-2 in conference, the best Pac-10 record in the team's history.

"We've never swept both UofA and Cal in the same year," ASU head coach Lou Belken said. "It feels good to know we have the chance now."

It was an emotional match for many of the players who would be facing the in-state rivals for the last time.

The match started well for the Sun

Devils with two quick wins on the second and sixth courts. On the No. 2 court, ASU senior Gustavo Marcaccio dominated the second set with a two-break win over UofA's Jean-Noel LaCoste 6-4, 6-1. On court No. 6, senior Tim Hammond also managed a straight-set victory, defeating the Wildcats' Alex Brown 6-3, 6-3.

"We had an important match to win on No. 2," Belken said. "I think Gustavo handled it very well despite unfamiliar conditions."

The Sun Devils' only loss came on the top court, where 89th-ranked senior Jeff Williams moved up to face UofA's 100th-ranked senior Adnan Novo. Novo got an early break on Williams, helping him pull out the victory 6-3, 6-4.

The point was short lived for Wildcats, however, as the Sun Devils took the next three singles matches. On the third court, junior Alex Osterrieth defeated UofA senior Pascal Salasca in straight-sets, 6-4, 6-3.

It was courts four and five that went the longest of the afternoon. After a disappointing first set, ASU junior Ed Carter came back to obliterate the Wildcats' Michel Stopa, 2-6, 6-1, 6-1. On No. 5, Sun Devil freshman Matt Klinger took a close first-set tiebreaker before winning the three-set battle 7-6, 3-6, 6-3.

"All of the singles played extremely well," Belken said. "It's always tough to play in Tucson. There's a lot of emotion."

The doubles once again proved to be a high point for the Sun Devils' offense, despite a shocking upset on court No. 1.

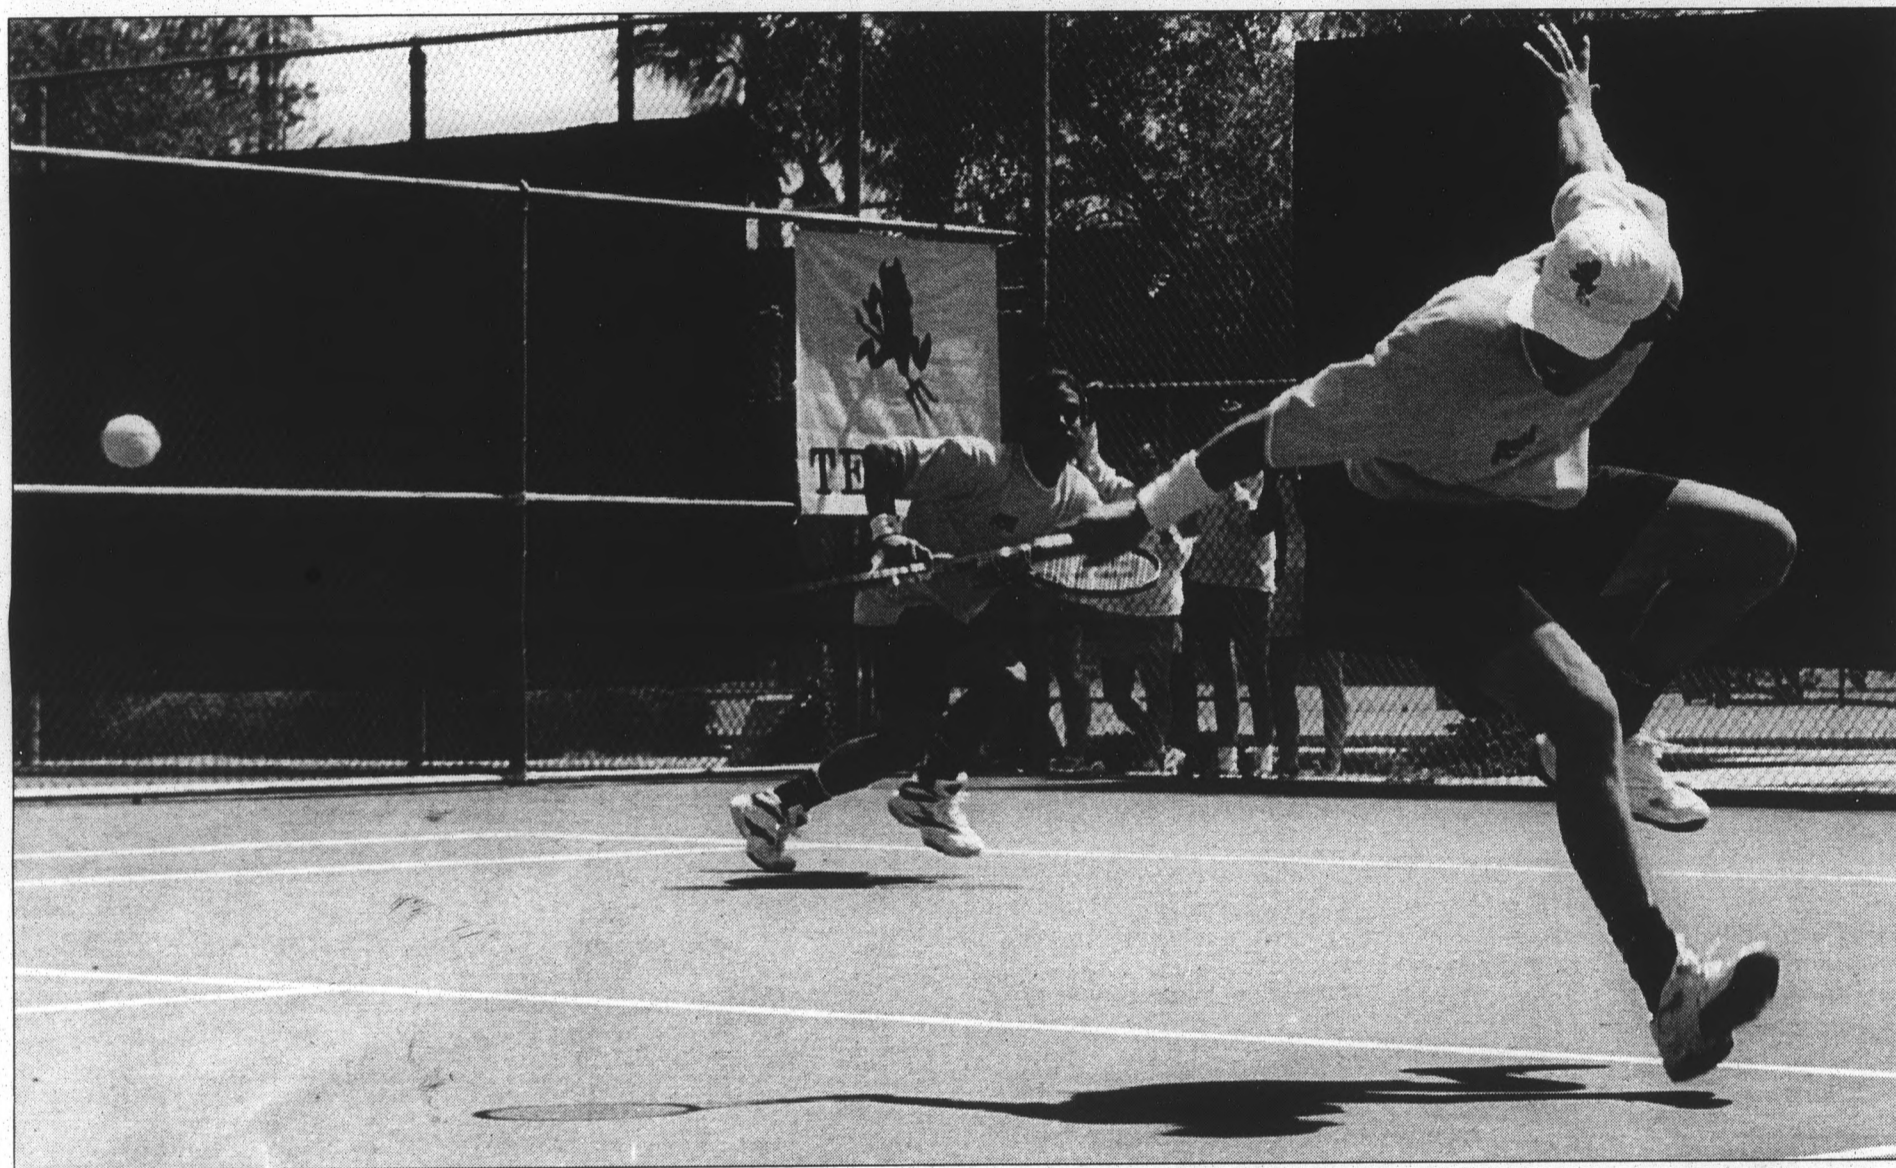

The UofA team of LaCoste and Salasca managed to upset the nation's No. 13 doubles team of Carter and Williams 8-5. The Sun Devil duo has lost two straight matches since their 8-0 start halfway through the season.

"It's unfortunate," Belken said. "They (Carter and Williams) missed a couple of big shots, and pro set matches just go by so fast."

The match didn't do much for the Wildcats' scoreboard, however, as the other ASU teams took the best of three competition. On court No. 2, Marcaccio and Osterrieth defeated Brown and Stopa 8-5 while ASU's third court team of Hammond and senior Casey Was took out Jackson and Novo 8-2.

The Sun Devils now look to Tuesday, when they play their makeup match against Cal. The match is important in that it could be the deciding factor in whether or not the Sun Devils gain home court advantage through the first rounds of the NCAA tournament.

Hyun Dong Lim of the State Press

The No. 2 doubles team of Gustavo Marcaccio and Alex Osterrieth contributed to the Sun Devils' blowout win over UofA Saturday in Tucson. The duo defeated Alex Brown and Michael Stopa 8-5.

Women's tennis team prepares for postseason by destroying UofA

Seniors Propstra, Nash end regular season careers with victories

BY ROBERT DEAL
STATE PRESS

In an only appropriate regular season finale, the Sun Devil women's tennis team annihilated in-state rival UofA in a 7-2 fight Saturday at the Whiteman Tennis Center.

The win gives the No. 11 Sun Devils a final record of 17-7 and brings them to .500 in conference at 4-4, which should be enough to keep the team in the country's top 16, giving them home court advantage through the first rounds of the NCAA championships. The loss was a tough one, however, for the 56th-ranked Wildcats, who finished the season 7-13 and 3-5 in the Pac-10.

"The rivalry is definitely a big one," ASU head coach Sheila McInerney said. "You never downplay a win against UofA, but we've got to focus on what's really important now, and that's the postseason."

The Sun Devils dropped only one singles match in the victory. On the top court, ASU freshman Allison Bradshaw, the nation's 30th-ranked singles player, emerged victorious over UofA's Lindsay Blau in the only match to go three sets. After dropping the first set to Blau, Bradshaw broke three times in the second to gain the momentum to take the match, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4.

It was also a good day for both of ASU's seniors, who managed to end their regular season collegiate careers with a win. On the second court, senior Katy Propstra quickly defeated the Wildcats' Monique Allegre in straight sets 6-2, 7-6.

It was an even quicker match for senior Alison Nash, who completely obliterated Joanna Buczkowska on the No. 4 court, 6-3, 6-0. On the lower courts, long first sets gave way to quick seconds as the Sun Devils took wins on both. At the No. 5 spot, sophomore Celena McCoury defeated Vanessa Abel in straight sets, 7-6, 6-1.

In the absence of Kerry Giardino and Karin Palme, freshman Ana Lucia Pereyra made her singles debut on the sixth court. She proved her place on the Sun Devil squad by defeating Carly Stringer 7-5, 6-1.

The only singles loss for ASU came on the second court, where sophomore Faye DeVera was moved up to play against Michelle Gough. Despite taking the second set to a tiebreaker, DeVera was unable to hold off Gough, who won the match 6-2, 7-6.

The doubles courts also proved promising for the Sun Devils, where they gained two out of three wins. On the top court, the nation's 20th-ranked team of Propstra and Bradshaw reaffirmed their high ranking by shutting out UofA's team of Blau and Allegre 8-0.

Nash also added to her perfect last match by teaming up with McCoury to defeat Gough and Abel 8-4.

The lone UofA doubles win came on the third doubles court. In the absence of ASU's Palme, DeVera teamed up with Pereyra to take on the Wildcat team of Stringer and Laresa Marino, who eventually won the match 8-6.

The team now prepares for the postseason as they get ready for the Pac-10 individual tournament later this week.

"The season's over and it's time for a break," McInerney said. "We can give the team some time off to prepare for final exams before the big team tournament in May."

Baseball squad drops 2 to Bruins

FROM STAFF REPORTS

The UCLA Bruins won the first two games of a three-game Pac-10 series against the ASU baseball team this weekend.

UCLA downed the Sun Devils 9-3 on Saturday and opened the series at Jackie Robinson Stadium with an 11-10 win.

Results from Sunday's matchup weren't available as of press time.

Saturday's game saw the Bruins win behind the pitching of freshman right handed pitcher Josh Carp. Through the top of the ninth, Carp (5-3, 5.20) held ASU scoreless and scattered just four hits against the nation's top scoring lineup.

Carp finished with 10 strikeouts, while Sun Devil starter Chuck Crompton was handed his second loss of the season.

On Friday, a bases-loaded walk to Jason Green allowed the Bruins' Chase Utley to score the winning run in the ninth in the series opener.

A triple by Chip Gosewisch tied the game at 10-10 in the ninth. But in the bottom of the ninth, a 3-2 pitch by Chad Pennington landed high and inside and locked the game for the Bruins.

ASU previously erased a five-run deficit in the sixth when Mitch Jones stroked a three-run home run.

Pennington took over for Eric Doble, who in turn replaced starter Will Waldrip in the fifth. Doble was greeted in that inning by a two-out line drive single by Nick Lyon.

ASU plays 'unacceptable' game in St. Louis

BY SAM GANCZARUK STATE PRESS

The weekend was going all too well in the cold and wet conditions for the ASU soccer team until its final game against the University of Kansas in the College Challenge Cup in St. Louis.

Head coach Terri Patraw felt the weekend would have been "awesome" if the Sun Devils could have finished of the Jayhawks. Instead, the Sun Devils lost 2-1. Scoring the lone ASU goal was junior defender Shanel Scott.

"The weekend went well until we played Kansas," Patraw said. "The last game was absolutely unacceptable. We thought we had matured enough to the point to take care of teams we were supposed to, and we had proven it up until that game. I guess we are not there quite yet."

The Sun Devils had taken care of business earlier in the tournament by tying Missouri 1-1 and defeating Creighton 2-0. Senior forward Sarah Blaska scored in the first game and senior midfielder Kerrie Kulak and junior midfielder Antoinette Marjanovic each scored in the victory over the Blue Jays. They then defeated Butler 2-0 with goals being scored by Blaska and senior forward Jennifer Peterson.

"We were by far the best team there, with Missouri being a very close second," Patraw said. "Physically, we're there, (but) mentally we are not. That comes with maturity."

Pain-free Duerbeck wins 1,500-meters at Arizona Elite

BY JOE MANTONE STATE PRESS

With bones rubbing against each other in her foot, ASU distance runner Mary Duerbeck just wanted to run pain free.

Duerbeck, who underwent foot surgery in September of 1998 to remove an extra bone, experienced a pain free race when she won the 1,500-meters Saturday at the Arizona Elite Classic in Tucson.

"I don't feel like I'm in racing shape," Duerbeck said. "I still have farther to go, but at least I'm not running with pain."

Duerbeck first injured her ankle in January 1998 before the start of the indoor season. This began a "series of bad ankle sprains," she said. But Duerbeck continued to run.

"I had never been injured seriously before, so I had the 'I'm invincible' mentality," she said. "I don't think my body likes me too much because of that."

The injury forced Duerbeck to take some time off from running in the summer. This fall she still felt pain and when the foot was examined, doctors told her that a bone was pressed against another bone in her foot.

The surgery forced her to redshirt for the cross country season and kept her foot in a cast for about six weeks. She said she was finally able to start "slogging" in late November.

"I would jog for 30 seconds and then walk for 30 seconds," Duerbeck said. "Now I just want to take advantage of every opportunity I have to run."

That is why Duerbeck ran the 1,500 at the Elite. It was the first time she competed in a race that short. She usually runs the 5,000 or the 3,000, but the 1,500 was the longest race at the Elite.

Distance coach Walt Drenth said she will probably run either the 5,000 or the 3,000 at this weekend's Drake Relays in Des Moines, Iowa. And she will more than likely compete in one of those races at Pac-10 Championships in June.

Duerbeck and sophomore sprinter Christie Winkle, who placed first in the 100 (11.90), were the only two runners on the 21st-ranked Sun Devil women's team to win. In field events, ASU's senior Fiona Daly won the high jump with a leap of 5 feet 8.75 inches.

For the 12th-ranked men's squad, sophomore Brandon Strong and freshman Isaiah Festa were the only runners from ASU to win. Strong ran the 800 in 1:51.44, and Festa ran the 1,500 in 3:52.51. But since Festa, who is redshirting this season, ran unattached, Strong was the only official individual winner for the ASU's men's team. However, most of ASU's runners didn't compete.

"We have a number of athletes who have competed hard the last four weeks," head coach Greg Kraft said. "So we gave them the weekend off."
